

USDA To Move Campus Poultry Lab

Agreement Will Permit Expansion

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has agreed to relocate the U.S. Regional Poultry Laboratory south of highway I-96. The laboratory is presently located on campus at Harrison and Mt. Hope Roads.

Removing the poultry laboratory from its present location is part of a plan to clear the 500-acre area between the Grand Trunk Railroad and Mt. Hope Roads. The plan also includes a general University expansion, Jack Breslin, secretary of the University, said.

Although the final documents have not been signed, Breslin said, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Tuesday agreed in principle with a Board of Trustees proposal to exchange the 50 acres at the present site for 50 acres south of Jolly Road.

The rebuilding and relocation of the laboratory may take one year.

The University plans to relocate present agricultural research now north of Mt. Hope in the area 1 1/2 miles south of Mt. Hope within the next two or three years.

Discussion of the relocation began two years ago when the University first definitely considered general expansion south of the Grand Trunk Railroad, Breslin said.

The Department of Agriculture first considered removing the poultry laboratory from its present site, in 1961 when the laboratory received an appropriation to expand at the Mt. Hope site. Rather than spend the money on a site located in the center of the University-owned 5,000 acres, the Department of Agriculture decided to cooperate with the University on any relocation plans.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture owns the Mt. Hope site. The only buildings now planned for the area to be cleared south of the Grand Trunk are an $8,980, 000 power plant and a $14 million life science building.

The power plant is to be completed by December 1965. The first unit of the life science building, to cost $6 million, is now in the preliminary planning stage.

The University will extend Bogue Street south of the Grand Trunk this summer toward the site of the proposed life science building.

The horticulture research center along Hagadorn Road is presently relocating its facilities in the extreme southern section of the University property. About 12 to 18 months will be needed to complete the relocation.

The research centers are used primarily by advanced degree students and faculty members.

At present most of the proposed and current general University expansion is set for completion north of the Grand Trunk Railroad, but the University must think five to 10 years ahead, Breslin said.

ROTC Cadets Tour Selfridge

Air Force ROTC cadets from MSU will tour Selfridge Air Force Base at Mount Clemens Friday. The class of 72 cadets will receive briefings on Air Defense Command and Air Force operations.

The outstanding freshman and sophomore AFROTC cadets for the 1964 fall term will take orientation flights in T-33 jet trainers.

The two, recognized for outstanding academic and leadership performance, are Cadet Airman 1/C James P. Hannay, Lake Geneva, Wis., freshman and Cadet S/Sgt. John W. Luurtsema, Hudsonville sophomore.

Hannay is majoring in business and Luurtsema is the Cadet Wing Sergeant Major and an engineering major.

Miss MSU

QUEEN ANNE--Anne Lawrenz, Franklin sophomore, was crowned Miss MSU Wednesday evening at the Demonstration Hall ice arena. Picked Miss Congeniality by the other nine finalists was Annette Abrams, Lansing freshman.

AUSG Irons Out STEP Wrinkles

The Marshall County Board of Supervisors wrote that the project would probably "result in more harm than good" because of lack of trained and informed personnel.

"I think it's a wonderful letter," Harris said Wednesday. "The Board made many valid criticisms of past programs, but we have tried to avoid these mistakes in our future plans."

AUSG will sponsor a Student Education Project (STEP) to assist in summer educational programs at Rust College, a Negro school in Holly Springs, Miss., the county seat of Marshall County. The town is in northeast Mississippi, about 50 miles from Memphis, Tenn.

Har is pointed out that the Board of Supervisors, in a letter to Jim Graham, North Wonders Student Congress representative, objected to the program on the grounds that most such groups failed to understand existing conditions in Mississippi and were influenced by biased press coverage.

"We have trained faculty working on the program and will take only students who have the proper skills," he added.

He noted that a site committee went to Mississippi to be sure of obtaining first hand information on conditions there.

"I'm sure we will gain much more from the project than the students we help will," Har is added.

Ranger Aims For Midpoint In Lunar Trip

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Spacecraft Ranger 8 streaked toward the moon Wednesday to snap more than 4,000 pictures of a dusty crater-pitted plain which American astronauts may explore within five years.

The insect-shaped craft rocketed away from Cape Kennedy and skillfully executed early maneuvers on a planned 65-hour 234,300 mile lunar voyage which could produce better photos than the historic set transmitted last July by Ranger 7.

The vital midcourse maneuver, scheduled for about 4 a.m. EST today, is capable of correcting for a moon-miss error of up to 6,200 miles on either side of the target. The flight control center at Goldstone, Calif., has the job of calculating how much of an adjustment is needed and sending the proper firing signal when the craft is about 99,000 miles from earth.

If there are no hitches, Ranger 8 will approach the moon Saturday morning.

Viet Advice Sought

Johnson, Ike Confer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Wednesday the United States "will persist in the defense of freedom" in Viet Nam and he sought advice from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower on solving the dangerous confrontation with communist power there.

Eisenhower met with Johnson at a surprise White House conference and stayed for lunch. Later, the President added to his address before the National Industrial Conference Board the renewed pledge to defend South Viet Nam, and stated:

"We seek no wider war... our continuing actions there will be those that are justified and made necessary by the continuing aggression of others."

He said U.S. response to Communist moves will be "measured and fitting and adequate."

Strong support for Johnson's strike-back tactics was voiced by Republican leaders, headed by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, in a statement.

But Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a member of both the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees, proposed a "major reappraisal" of U.S. policy and urged more help from U.S. allies in Viet Nam.

Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and George S. McGovern, D-S.D., called again for a negotiated settlement.

Sen. Russell E. Long, D-La., the assistant Senate Democratic leader, praised the Republican leaders for a "magnificent statement" and then told the Senate: "When the Communists strike our forces in a place where we have a right to be, we propose to strike back stronger than they."

"If a second power gets into it, we propose to strike that second power even stronger. If a third power gets into it, we proposed to strike that power harder."

"In each case we propose to strike each with greater force than they strike against this nation, so long as they do not abide by the Geneva agreement."

The agreement divided former French Indochina into the present states of North and South Viet Nam and Laos and Cambodia.

Eisenhower, now 74 and in Washington for a medical check-up, was asked by Johnson "to come by the White House and visit with him," said White House Press Secretary George R. Reedy.

If the meeting signified an effort to lay strong bipartisan support for the administration policy in Viet Nam the Republican congressional leadership statement indicated considerable such support was there.

It said there can be no negotiations to halt the Viet Nam fighting so long as communist infiltration into South Viet Nam continues.

The leaders said their only differences with Johnson center on the better the military air raids against the Reds "might have been used more frequently since the Bay of Tonkin decision last August."

The Bay of Tonkin incident was an attack by North Vietnamese PT boats on U.S. destroyers.

Hannah Asks State Watch Witnesses Get Safely Home

Editor's Note: Jim Sterba is in Mississippi to cover the hearings of the Civil Rights Commission.

By JIM STERBA

JACKSON, Miss.—Civil Rights Commission Chairman John A. Hannah Wednesday urged Mississippi Gov. Paul B. Johnson to do what he can to insure that testifying witnesses are allowed to return safely to their communities.

Negro mechanic Willie Dillon, whose home was dynamited last fall, was the first witness called after the Commission concluded its voting discrimination query and turned to probing law enforcement.

Dillon told the Commission that someone put some dynamite in his front yard around midnight while he was shaving.

He heard an explosion, ran outside and found nine sticks of dynamite in his front yard.

When Pike County Sheriff Robert R. Warren arrived, he arrested Dillon for running a garage without a license and stealing electricity, Dillon said.

He was questioned, then jailed for a month before sentencing.

He said he entered a guilty plea, not knowing he could have an attorney, and was sentenced to eight months in jail or an $800 fine.

After federal court intervention, Dillon paid $42 court costs and the charges were dropped.

Dillon said he hung a light in his China ball tree to ward off people throwing bombs.

He was working on a civil rights worker's car when the incident occurred, he said.

Sheriff Warren then testified that he thought the dynamite was a civil rights worker plot, but still investigated it.

"During the investigation, I ran across the other violations and I naturally had to do my duty," he said.

"In Mississippi, if a person is under a shade tree, working on a car for hire, he is running a garage," the sheriff said.

Warren blamed a "handful of people" in Pike County for numerous bombings, church and cross burnings, and beatings, and said he had cleared up most of these cases when he arrested 11 suspects four months after Dillon's home was bombed.

These suspects spent 40 days in jail before they were released on a no contest court decision.

During the morning session, the Commission heard testimony from Negro leaders and white civil rights workers, who told of abuses and some progress made in the state.

Jesse J. Brewer told of an incident when his two brothers were beaten with axe handles when they failed to say "sir" to a garage attendant.

The law did nothing, Brewer said, even though one of his brothers had an eye knocked out in the beating.

NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) leader Charles Evers and Aaron Henry said Mississippians need not fear "black supremacy" if Negroes get their rights.

Wiley Branton, a white Southerner in sympathy with the civil rights cause, said Mississippi needs federal registrars and an end to literacy tests.

"I would have President Johnson issue a decree which would give Mississippi some time—not much—to give everyone their rights," he said.

"If the whites who say they want equality don't make progress, he should send in the troops," he said.

Hannah said the basic problem in the South and North is getting people to accept Negroes as individuals.

People in the North are making a sincere effort to do this, he said.

FARE WELL, MARIAN--Marian Anderson, who sang before a full house at the Lecture-Concert Series Tuesday night, is shown talking with Milton E. Miss Anderson's Diction, Poise Remain 'Untouched'

By LEON WHEELER
State News Reviewer

For 40 years, Marian Anderson has graced the concert stages of the world, thrilling millions. Her contralto voice was described by Arturo Toscanini as the voice one hears "once in 100 years."

The 4,000 people in the Auditorium Tuesday night came not to hear the "great voice," but to honor the "great lady," who is presently making her farewell tour and whose glorious voice started to wane more than a decade ago.

Although there were priceless glimpses of the bygone days, much more prevalent Tuesday night were the sagging tones and the conscious efforts to control the heavy and uneven vibrato in her voice.

Miss Anderson's voice has lost its edge of consummate beauty. It has much of the same tonal quality that has made her peerless, but no longer the vocal control.

Still there was the excellent diction and the fine interpretation which helped to make her the world's greatest contralto. Untouched over the years is the great poise and finesse which she exhibits on stage.

Miss Anderson's interpretation of four German songs by Schubert were her best of the evening. These songs were in a comfortable vocal range and the interval leaps were all a fifth or less.

Among the Anglo-American song group were the beautiful interpretations of Britten's arrangement of "The Ploughboy" and Roger Quilter's "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind."

The eight Negro spirituals in the program were highlighted by Miss Anderson's impassioned plea to William Lawrence's arrangement of "Let Us Break Bread Together" and the Hamilton Forrest arrangement of "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands."

Miss Anderson's recital seemed to have an underlying message which can be summed up with the words from one of the spirituals she sang:

"My race is almost run--no man can hinder me."

Investigations are particularly interested in the plotters' connections with pro-Castro leftists, officials of Communist Cuba and United Nations diplomats.

Authorities have described the three men under arrest as pro-Castro and pro-Red Chinese racial fanatics.

The New York Journal-American asserted that "terrorists practicing the violent tactics of Communist China's boss, Mao Tse-Tung, have penetrated to the sidewalks of New York with signals being called from Red Cuba."

"The fear in Washington is that violent direct-action groups, following Mao and Guevara's lead, might spill terror into the streets not only here and Philadelphia, but also in Chicago, Detroit, Baltimore and other cities with large Negro populations, said the Journal-American.

"The four suspects under arrest here--three men and an attractive French Canadian blonde--have contact with extremist groups in several American and Canadian cities.

"The suspects had discussed plans to form several three-man demolition teams to destroy unspecified U.S. installations."

"Several other suspected plotters are under surveillance by the FBI and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police."

"The New York Police Department has been in touch with police officials in at least two other U.S. cities--Cleveland and Detroit."

"Investigators are particularly interested in the plotters' connections with pro-Castro leftists, officials of Communist Cuba and United Nations diplomats."

Cap, Gown Rental Starts

Faculty and students can reserve their graduation caps and gowns now at the Union Desk.

Students will pay $4.50 to rent the caps and gowns. After returning the rented caps and gowns they can claim a refund of $1 or contribute the $1 refund to the senior class donation to the MSU Development Fund.

Regular fitting and renting for the caps and gowns will run March 1-14 in 40 Union.

Term-long reservations for caps and gowns was started primarily to accommodate students practicing teaching and unable to rent gowns March 1-14, Jack W. Ostrander, assistant manager of the Union, said.

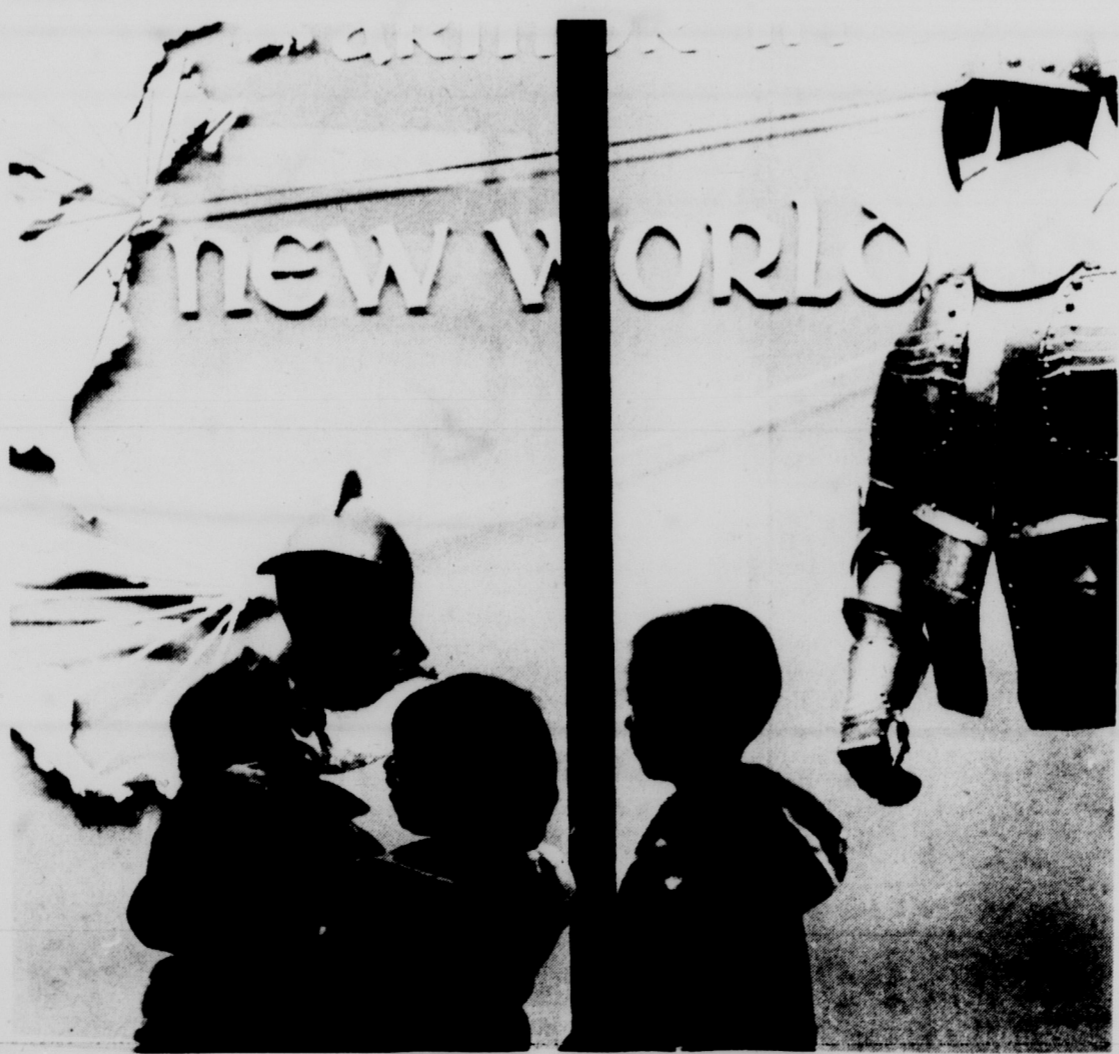

U.N. Still Seeks Adedire Funds

Funds for Abraham Adedire's hospital expenses are still being collected on campus.

We are still taking donations at the Campus U.N. office, Marcia Klugman, secretary-general of the organization, said.

"We have so far collected $125," she said, "but expenses are running extremely high."

Abraham Adedire is the 1962 MSU graduate from Nigeria who recently underwent a successful kidney transplant from his mother at U-M Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Crossing The Channels

An obscure pipeline to student expression has been exposed in the form of a student-faculty housing sub-committee. The committee, headed by Louis Hekhuis, director of student activities, has invited students and faculty to sound off at open meetings next Monday, from 2:30-4 p.m., and Tuesday, from 3:30-5 p.m.

The committee will listen to anyone who has called Hekhuis at 355-8286 to make an appointment. The appointments will enable the committee to plan an orderly and efficiently-conducted meeting.

We ask: where have all these open meetings and student-faculty committees been before? Apparently, they pop in and out of existence whenever a significant problem arises. Eldon R. Nonnamaker, associate dean of students, cited the Student Faculty Social Committee which listens to complaints, pleas and suggestions from representatives of various student organizations. Oh.

The student-faculty housing subcommittee that's denuding itself Monday and Tuesday is the offspring of the Faculty-Committee on Student Affairs. The subcommittee formed when Charles Titkemeyer decided that housing was an issue complex enough to warrant special handling.

Although it is puzzling that housing issues have become so complex all of a sudden, the broader question is this: why have such sub-channels been so dormant, or unused, or unpublicized, or have they even been so accessible as to be considered in existence?

Let us attitudinize: so what if the student members of the subcommittee were not elected by the student body, and so what if student-faculty committees have vegetated in the past? The channel is open now. Maybe this time it won't wither away from lack of publicity, or of need, or of student concern.

We urge student response. The consensus that "any committee on student rights will never get anywhere" must be invalidated. Next week's meetings with the student-faculty housing subcommittee are a good start.

To Free, Or Not Too Free

Editor's Note: Thomas E. Klunzinger, East Lansing junior, is a communication arts major.

Huron Smith, Jr. is way off base in haranguing about the U.S. being a peace-loving nation playing the aggressor in Viet Nam. His analogy of the Cuban situation and Communist negotiation is utterly worthless because 800 million Red reserves were not close at hand there, but then that is altogether another matter.

Mr. Smith, I must assume, wrote in great haste and did not allow adequate time to reflect on the background of the Viet Nam debacle. If he had, he would have realized the following:

Theodore Roosevelt's presidency marked an important change in the direction of American interest.

With the continental expansion completed, the nation stopped, sat, looked around and decided there were more august things to be doing. Like settling nasty little disputes here and there. Thus America began gradually to assume Britain's role of peacekeeper for the world. First in South America, then the Pacific, and finally the ultimate ascension to supremacy of might in Europe.

The agitation and disorder in world affairs chafed and worsened until the United States of America decided it was more than it could bear and stepped in to put a hasty end to such trouble. This concern with world order gradually dissipated over the years until the nation was abruptly reminded in 1941 that there was indeed disorder again. Again we stepped in and with some trouble brought everything back to normal, that is, as we wished the order of things to be.

And again in 1950 we pitched in with most everybody else to spread balm on the troubled Asian lands with a not-quite wholeheartedness but definite purpose anyway. Unfortunately, in that encounter the balm jar was spilled, if not lost, and things have not been the same since.

Some few years ago it was again decided that there was sufficient disorder in Asia to merit our attention, and we began operations to bring love and brotherhood back into millions of little yellow lives. Things have not worked out quite that way.

The situation has, in fact, at times approached disaster. Defeat upon defeat, humiliation upon humiliation, and no settled end is yet in sight.

Thousands of U.S. "advisors" are sent in to face a barrage of tens of thousands of dedicated agitators and worse, and many get their valuable advisory brains blown out. Big deal. So we'll send in more advisors. It's no war.

And that is where the trouble lies. There is no clear, definite, forceful policy in effect for us in Asia. Sure, we'd like to get all the uncomfortable annoyances out of the way and return things to normal, our style, but it seems that someone somewhere is awfully reluctant to say anything definite about what to do.

We cannot continue to drain away men, money, and more important resources on a situation that has no promise for us as it stands. A command must be given.

Before that command is given, however, a vital decision must be made regarding the role of the United States in the world today.

Do we really want to continue as peacekeeper for the world? Do we really want to step in and (try to) settle the small and major disturbances that occur too often these days? More than that, does the world want or need a peacekeeper?

Of course, the decision can be made just to forget about the whole thing, bring the boys and battleships back home, re-open the inactive reserve camps, pump millions more into the national economy, and give the balm jar back to the British, the Australians, the Indians, or perhaps leave it all up to Liechtenstein.

On the other hand, the decision can be made that we actually do care about what happens in Asia and the rest of the world, that we actually do want the situation favorably settled, and that all our charades so far have some substance behind them.

If the latter decision is made, there must be no quibbling about it. If we want an end to the Asian miasma, we should move to bring it about in the quickest and most effective way available.

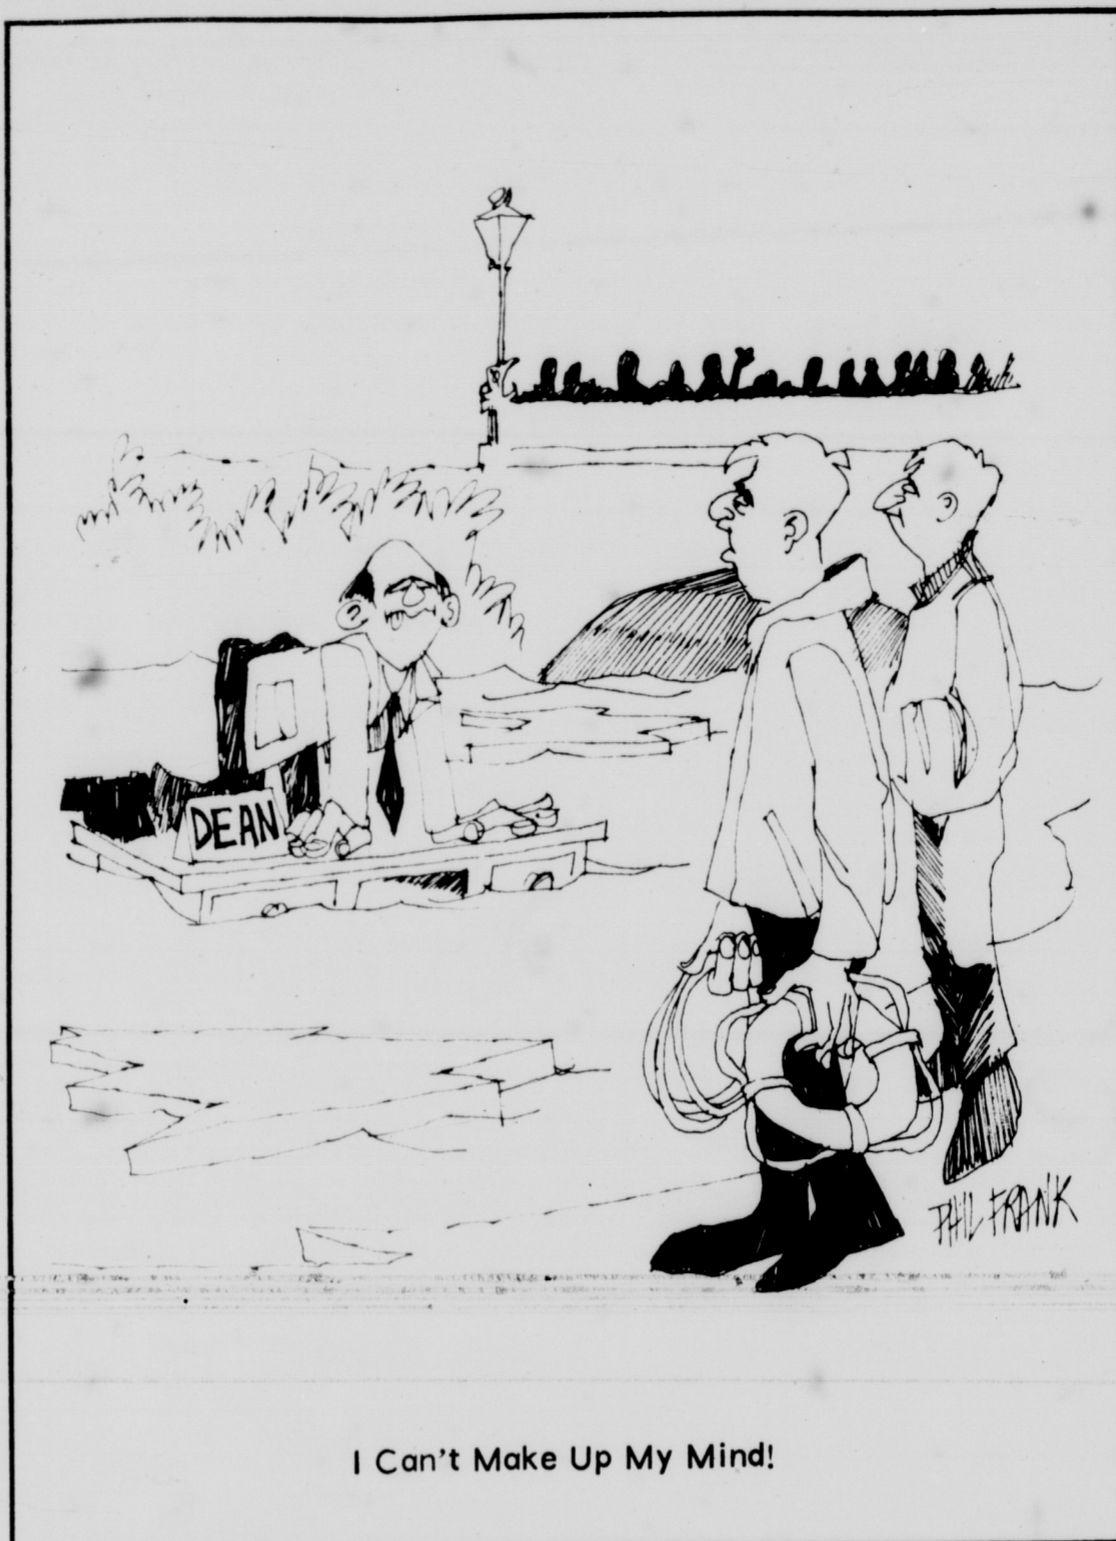

As for those who plead that we must do all we can to avoid open conflict, that man aspires to higher ends, and that there must be an end to war forever, the answer: open conflict is a healthy thing once in a while, and man may aspire to higher ends but he will never be above war, which will be with us forever.

And if the large and bothersome occupant of eastern Asia should object to a decision to enlarge the conflict, as she probably would, steps should also be taken to bring her into line.

You see, the issue at hand is not one of imperialism or colonialism or aggression against the peoples of the world. It is one of the state and fate of the United States of America.

Since we have over the years chosen to be responsible for the stability of the world, we cannot continue to have vague goals and witless indecision in our actions in Asia and everywhere else.

Either get out and go home or go forth and conquer all, take your pick. But one or the other, please!

Letters To The Editor

Vietnamese Still Want To Win

To the Editor:

Huron Smith states that, "We have gone too far in Viet Nam"; that it is time to get out; that our actions are contrary to those expected of a peace-loving nation.

Viet Nam War Necessary To U.S.

To the Editor:

In this letter I wish to counter Mr. Smith's letter of Feb. 15 and to pose a couple of questions I wish both Mr. Smith and others to consider.

Mr. Smith stated that we have the mightiest free war machine in the world, but his contention that we are not a peace-loving nation because of this war machine is rather foolish.

What would be the state of affairs in the world today if we didn't have this machine? Does Mr. Smith think the Russians would hesitate for an instant to dominate the world, their stated goal? I think not.

He also stated that we are the aggressor in Viet Nam and asks: Who started the conflict in Viet Nam? Did we instigate the subversive activities?

I have the impression that Mr. Smith seemed to think that what happens "over there" doesn't affect him. But I'm afraid he is grossly mistaken, for what happens in Viet Nam will affect all of the free world. Should we lose this conflict, for men's freedom of choice in Viet Nam, we could lose the struggle in all of Southeast Asia.

Mr. Smith states, "We have gone too far...it is time we got out." I propose that perhaps the war hasn't advanced far enough, I've never heard of a war being won by exclusively defensive means, it must of necessity be escalated to offensive means in order to be won.

Mr. Smith chose the apt, but slightly twisted, instance in recent world politics when he compared us to Germany before World War II. I think perhaps communism and Arianism would be a close comparison.

What are we to do in Viet Nam; use Chamberlain's policy of appeasement? It worked so well in stopping Hitler from starting World War II, or did it?

I wish to end with this statement: We the free world, are in a global struggle with the communistic world, whether we want it or not.

The struggle in between two ideologies, of democracy versus totalitarianism, and if there was ever a struggle we cannot afford to lose in recent history, this is the one.

J. B. Martinez, Jr.
Buchanan freshman

Has he forgotten that we are also a freedom-loving nation?

Mr. Smith, the only thing we have imposed on the South Vietnamese has been a policy of indecision, a "let's wait and see" attitude. We are not imposing a government nor our presence. They want our aid, because they want to fight, to win.

The South Vietnamese pilots who carried out those bombing raids on the North were exalted; they have been waiting a long time for the chance.

I am afraid, Mr. Smith, that you and too many others are ignorant of the real significance of Viet Nam.

We cannot refrain from action while communism, in its pluralistic forms, takes over the remaining two-thirds of the world.

If we do not face this menace now, in Viet Nam, we will have to face it in Thailand, the Philippines, Burma, or South Asia. Aggression on our part may escalate into direct war with Red China. But this is not likely, now. China knows that today we can destroy her; tomorrow we will be another story.

We now know that Red China is developing a nuclear force much more rapidly than we thought possible. She is about to explode her second device. Nor is it likely that the Soviet Union would become militarily involved. She is a wealthy nation compared to Red China, and is making every effort to increase that wealth.

I hope this letter, while it may not convince many persons of my views, will at least start more people thinking more seriously and more intelligently about our responsibility in Southeast Asia.

Sure We Need Football Fees

To the Editor:

We congratulate the athletic department on their honesty and straightforwardness in admitting that student attendance reduces revenues.

We wholeheartedly support the position which the athletic department has taken in regard to the charging of the $10 fee to students who wish to attend the football games.

We also trust that the amount of money that has been deducted from student fees in the past for football tickets will not go to the athletic department, but will be used for something of a different nature.

We are not senseless idealists, so we don't urge a reduction in student tuition, or raises to the faculty or improvement of the library facilities.

Why Not Legalize Abortion In U.S.?

To the Editor:

In regard to the article written by Mrs. Filson concerning abortion, we would like to consider certain overlooked facts pertaining to this topic. Following Mrs. Filson's approach, we too shall omit the ethical questions which surround abortion.

It is a well-known fact that one of the major problems we are facing is that of over-population. We feel that the legalization of abortion in the United States would aid in the solving of this problem. By using legalized abortion as a complement to other forms of birth control, Japan has tackled this problem with tremendous results.

With the legalization of abortion we would certainly overcome Mrs. Filson's problem of "safe abortion." We would be placing this delicate operation in the safe hands of certified physicians.

If abortion were not illegal, people would not be subjected to the guilt and fear they now face when they commit such an act. Finally, by legalizing abortions we would be offering an acceptable solution to those persons who are presently forced to seek aid from the public in solving their personal problems.

The Book Store At The Crossroads

To the Editor:

This morning I made a small purchase of several items at the MSU Book Store. I happened to check my receipt and noted an overcharge on one of the items. The cashier readily corrected the error, after having accepted the overpayment and subsequently been shown the mistake. She explained that this had happened several times previously and was the fault of the machine, which was not functioning properly. The register, however, was still in use and had not been retired for repairs!

I would therefore recommend that anyone making a purchase at the MSU Book Store (a) obtain a register receipt, (b) check the items on the receipt against the purchase, and (c) not hesitate to complain about any error that might be found.

Estimate as it may be for a college book store to make a profit, this should be done without deviating from a high standard of business integrity.

Ketchup In The Rye

Or, How To Succeed In College Without Really Trying

By Joan Solomon

The two student employees of West Wilson Hall demonstrated tremendous loyalty to their employers in their letter to the editor in Monday's State News, in which they defended the meals served in University dining halls.

I am forced to agree with the two coeds that no, Mother didn't always serve fresh, warm sweet rolls for breakfast and I was occasionally forced to eat toast.

The toast, however, WAS toasted and it was even warm, not at all like the cold, soggy slabs of half-bread, half-toast we are served in our wonderful dining halls.

Again I must agree with the two students that no, Mother didn't run the meals several hours so that I could always eat at my convenience.

However, she also didn't say that I could wear slacks to lunch only during the winter and couldn't wear loafers on Sunday. She did not refuse to give me a numbered ticket to get into dinner if I had my coat on because I had just come in from a class.

As a matter of fact, she didn't even give out tickets, so it never really mattered at our house who got to the orange benches (and the number one tickets) first.

If one believes, as the Wilson Hall employees obviously do, that quantity is more important than quality, I suppose the wide variety of dormitory food is truly awe-inspiring.

At our house we had (alas) only one entree, one salad and one dessert. However, everything was totally edible and looked and tasted like REAL food.

We could have extra portions of meat if we wanted, and we sometimes had such elaborate desserts as ice cream and cookies, not ice cream OR cookies.

No, mother never did heat the dinner plates before placing food in them; she did not feel this was necessary, since the food itself was already hot. What is so wonderful about serving cold food on a hot plate?

I realize the physical impossibilities of preparing mass-produced meals "just like mother used to make." It's had enough having to buy at least one and often two meals a day in the grill when we are paying for the cafeteria meals anyway, but I am sick and tired of hearing people tell me how privileged I am to be eating "the best institutional food in America."

Duck Strike Ends

By DAVE HANSON

A vicious plot to blow up Sparty, sterilize the Red Cedar ducks and topple the MSU smokestacks was squelched Tuesday morning by undercover agents of the CIA (Campus Investigatory Agency).

Josephine Solo, Jackson graduate student, head of the secret group that has its headquarters in a bombproof underground bunker that can be reached only by crawling up the sewer pipe by the Library, said her people took five men into custody Tuesday at about 5 a.m. when they were discovered pouring a foul-smelling liquid into the river at the Farm Lane bridge.

"We spotted them from the sub and radioed for help," she said. She was referring to the MSU Ringo, the atomic sub put at her disposal for the first time this term and fueled once a day at the Cyclotron.

"They readily admitted their plans. They seemed rather proud of their plan and in spite of their rather inebriated condition, talked quite comprehensibly."

"They said it was too late to save the ducks," she reported. "The potion they had just dropped in was a highly potent new chemical called LP#9. It effects the nervous system and the glands causing permanent sterility."

The CIA went to work immediately. They gathered up all the crumbs from a late snack just completed and lured the ducks from the water. They ate until it was hoped that the water was safe.

"We saw one chap coming down the river on a block of ice but our shouts were to no avail. He went over the rapids and then tipped over. He was last seen kissing a campus cop at Farm and Shaw."

"They had planned to demolish Sparty because it is the symbol of MSU," said Miss Solo.

The stunning bald lady, wearing her uniform of beaded diamonds and emeralds said that the rope found in the car, was intended to be the element of destruction of the MSU smokestacks.

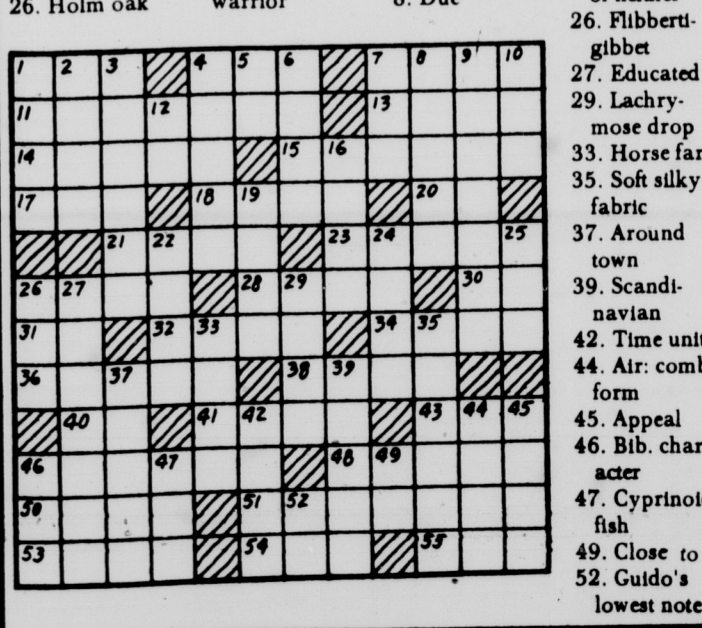

"One of them admitted that they were going to tie the rope to the two stacks and then attach the ends to the MSU buses. It was hoped that when the buses left the garage in the stadium they would provide enough force to topple the stacks."

"We wanted to demolish your landmarks," admitted one of the men. "You were lucky. Next time we'll succeed. There's thousands of us, all around you. We'll get you." The men gasped into unconsciousness at that point. Miss Solo had given him a karate blow in the neck.

April Draft Up

WASHINGTON—Because of lagging enlistments, the Defense Department Wednesday nearly doubled its monthly draft quota for April.

It asked Selective Service to induct 13,700 men in April, all for the Army. This compares with 7,900 ordered for March.

The Defense Department said the April draft call has been computed by the Army "to replace enlisted losses not compensated for by enlistments and reenlistments so as to maintain approved active Army strength."

New Viet Head Sworn In

SAIGON, Viet Nam—South Viet Nam's new legislative council was sworn in Wednesday and told by Chief of State Pham Khanh Suu "your main task is to create a national congress."

Plans call for the congress to be set up through a combination of elections where security permits and appointments to cover the rest of the country.

GOP Supports LBJ

WASHINGTON—Republican congressional leaders said Wednesday that so long as Communist infiltration of South Viet Nam continues "there can be no negotiations" to halt hostilities there.

Senate and House GOP leaders, headed by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, said in a statement that they support President Johnson's course of ordering air strikes against Communist supply bases in North Viet Nam.

Contempt Hearing Postponed

SELMA, Ala.—A hearing of contempt of court charges against a Negro civil rights leader was postponed Wednesday.

Circuit Judge James Hare continued the case until today after an attorney for the Rev. C. T. Vivian of Atlanta told the judge notice that a motion had been filed to remove the case to U.S. District Court at Mobile.

Vivian was hit in the mouth by Sheriff James G. Clark during a demonstration Tuesday which led to Vivian's arrest.

Brando's Ex Switches And Fights

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—Marlon Brando testified Wednesday in his custody battle with ex-wife Anna Kashfi that the India-born actress once broke into his bedroom and started pulling the hair of a girl who was sharing his bed.

Good Time For U.S.-Soviet Trade

WASHINGTON—Failures in Soviet economic policy may have made the time ripe for trade overtures between Russia and the United States, a study sponsored by the Committee for Economic Development said Wednesday.

The study saw sure defeat for Russia's boasted aim of surpassing American output by 1970 -- "or for a very long time after." It also suggested that Russia may be risking loss of its world Communist leadership to Red China.

Beatles Stock Soars

LONDON—Many persons in Britain and the U.S. are buying stock in the Beatles. Stock in a Beatles music firm was scheduled to go on sale today in London's stock exchange, but it appears that advance subscriptions have sold the one and one-quarter million shares already. Financial experts in London called the stock a bad risk, but that didn't hurt sales at all.

Farouk's Daughter Married

LONDON—Princess Fadia, 21, daughter of ex-King Farouk of Egypt, was married in a civil ceremony Wednesday to Pierre Orloff, 26, a white Russian geologist from Lausanne, Switzerland. The couple met two years ago when the princess was studying languages in Lausanne, where Orloff's mother is a school teacher.

Pope Receives 24th Infantry

VATICAN CITY—Pope Paul VI received a group of soldiers from the U.S. 24th Infantry Division in Germany Wednesday and accepted from them a small white car and $800.

The car (Volkswagen) and the money were given as gifts for the church's foreign mission work. Roman Catholic servicemen and families of the 24th Division stationed at Augsburg made the contributions.

Maj. Reinard W. Beaver, the division's Roman Catholic chaplain, headed the group.

Sukarno: Up Rocket Production

JAKARTA, Indonesia—President Sukarno Wednesday ordered the Indonesian air force to speed up its rocket producing program. The air force chief, Vice Marshal Omat Dani, disclosed after a meeting with Sukarno. The army has claimed it already is producing rockets for the infantry.

Jackson Peaceful Now

South Wants True View

By JIM STERBA
Administration Writer

JACKSON, Miss.—Jackson is a town jammed with a segregated mixture of people with diversified and integrated mixtures of ideals, fears and prejudices, as Civil Rights hearings continue this week.

The quiet, even peaceful, city is filled with politicians like Gov. Paul B. Johnson, who almost daily maintains that Mississippi is a state of law and order and equal rights for all.

"Although most of our time has been taken up with racial problems, Jackson has made amazing progress," Mayor Allen C. Thompson said.

Jackson is the temporary lodging place for nervous non-voting citizens of outlying counties, who have come to testify to the Civil Rights Commission about mistreatment by county sheriffs and harassment by registrars when they tried to exercise their voting rights.

Jackson is a place where news-men like Haynes Johnson of the Washington Star jam daily into the small federal hearing room to interpret to the nation a state with disrupted social norms.

Jackson is the native city of thousands of frustrated whites like drugstore clerk Colleen Dunham, who wonder if the "true picture" of Mississippi will ever get to the North.

Some taxi drivers of the two companies that serve only whites in the town said that Jackson was a friendly city, and that Northerners keep making the situation look bad. They added that they would quit their jobs before they'd "haul these damn niggers around" in their cabs.

Jackson is the community in which Negroes like the janitors at the only integrated hospital in town, the Federal Veterans Hospital, want to tell you of their problems, but hush and continue sweeping whenever a white orderly walks by.

These same Negroes avoid looking whites in the eye on the street and stand aside saying "Yessa boss" when whites want to enter an elevator.

Jackson is a Southern city threatened by boycott from the North. Federal discontinuation of funds from Washington, local Negroes who COFO (Council of Federal Organizations) workers have spurred into seeking their legal rights and a new emergence of moderate whites who want to do something about the situation.

All these people are uneasy as the Civil Rights Commission hearings continue. Rains pelt deserted Jackson streets and Negroes wait for the sun to rise so they can go to their four-dollar-a-day jobs.

Head Start In Mat Schedule Seen As Success Impetus

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

After three years as State's head wrestling coach, Grady Peninger has come to realize that happiness and success go hand-in-hand.

Peninger, a former national wrestling champion and a man who knows of success, presently has the most triumphant mat squad that he has coached here at State. After seeing his two previous teams flounder around in and near the bottom of the Big Ten conference, Peninger is quite exuberant over the 6-2-1 showing so far this year and feels confident that a conference championship could be attained.

Only in 1961 when Oka Johnson and Norman Young led the Spartans to victory has a Spartan mat squad ever gained championship laurels. When Peninger took over the coaching reins from Fendley Collins the next year, hopes were high that the "golden crown" could be retained. But all failed and the next two years were mediocre even though Peninger teams did compile a 12-8-1 mark.

New State's strongboys have ignited the spark of happiness in Peninger, causing the desire for a conference crown to flicker in his mind.

What has led to the wrestler's onslaught on the 1964-65 season? Who is responsible for their success?

There are several satisfying answers, and the Spartan mentor offers one of them.

"I think the biggest factor upon which our success rests this year," said Peninger, "is that we began competition a month earlier than usual. Instead of beginning the season in January, we scheduled our first match in December."

The former Oklahoma State star went on to explain that State would no longer be at a disadvantage with their Big Ten opponents—a fact that was quite prevalent in past seasons.

"In previous years," said Peninger, "the policy of State's administration was not to schedule meets before fall term final exams. This season we experimented with the idea for December competition and the results have been very rewarding."

To date the nine regulars on the Spartan contingent have amassed a total of 56 victories as compared to 24 defeats in dual meet competition. In the two tournaments in which State competed earlier in the season, four first places helped the grapplers finish with a first and second showing.

The big men for Peninger thus far have been Don Behm and Dick Cook. Behm, a 130-pounder from Winnetka, Ill., is one of the two sophomores on the squad. He owns an undefeated 9-0 dual meet record and Cook has compiled a 15-0-1 record.

No wonder Coach Peninger is a happy man today.

Swimmers, 6-1, Eye League Meet

By JERRY MORTON
State News Sports Writer

The adage says "you can't win 'em all" and Big Ten swimming teams are willing to accept it.

Any team in the conference would settle for only one victory—as long as it came in the championship meet at the end of the year.

Since Big Ten standings are determined solely on the basis of the conference meet, the Spartans' current 6-1 league mark doesn't necessarily insure a strong finish in the championships at Madison in early March.

"I think most of our men would prefer to have separate dual meet and conference meet championships," Spartan Coach Charles McCaffree said.

"So far we haven't agreed on anything beyond our present setup and I don't think anyone wants everything to be determined on dual meets alone."

The swimming situation is similar to wrestling and track where dual meets do not count toward the championship. The Spartans prepare for the Big Ten meet by facing most league teams before the March showdown.

This year, for example, MSU will have met every conference foe but Indiana by the time the championships roll around.

Wolves Top Skaters, 7-2, In Payoff Tilt At Ann Arbor

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR—Jumping off to a quick first period lead, a fired up University of Michigan hockey squad jolted MSU 7-2 Wednesday night.

The Spartans' loss dropped them into a virtual tie with Michigan for fourth place in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

Jacobson, greatest scorer in MSU's history, raised his season output to 26 goals.

Michigan struck early in the first quarter with two goals within one minute. Forward Alex Hood grabbed a deflected shot and put it by State goalie Jerry Fisher at the 4:37 mark.

Only 27 seconds later, teammate Marty Read fired the puck past Fisher to make the score 2-0.

State bounced right back with a pair of goals by Roberts and Jacobson. Roberts craftily weaved through Michigan's defense and blazed the shot into the goal at 5:04.

Jacobson followed suit with a score at 9:39. It appeared that the Spartans were going to make a battle of it until their defense collapsed and the Wolverines capitalized with another pair of goals.

Bob Baird and Tom Polonic provided the scoring punch to put the Wolverines ahead 4-2.

Michigan added another goal in the second period while completely dominating the play in State's zone.

Michigan put it out of reach in the final period with two more goals. Baird drove up center ice and slapped in his second goal of the game at 12:17. Pierre Dechaine then took a quick pass from the left wing and lined it in for the final score of the evening at 16:47.

Fisher was forced to make 35 saves in the Spartan net, while his counterpart, Greg Page made only 25.

The NEWS In SPORTS

Blooming Trackmen Bloomington-Bound

The Spartan track team, already off to a running start this season, will face a strong test Saturday in a triangular meet with defending conference outdoor champion Wisconsin and Indiana at Bloomington.

Sophomore hurdler Gene Washington paced the squad to an outstanding performance in last week's Spartan Relays to give MSU fans good reason to hope for a successful year.

Washington won the 70-yard-high jump, placed second in the 100 and anchored MSU's victorious shuttle-hurdle relay team.

Besides Washington, the Spartans will be looking for more good showings from broad jumper Jim Garrett, who went 24-1 at the relays, Jim Summers (60-yard dash), Daswell Campbell (300-yard run and 440), half miler Keith Coates, miler Mike Kaines and two milers Eric Zemper and George Balthrop.

Wisconsin will enter the meet with a 12-meet win string with the latest being a 73-67 triumph over Minnesota.

Saturday's meet will mark the third straight year the teams have hooked up in a triangular.

Wisconsin has won the previous two with the Spartans placing second both times.

Spring Grid Drills Slated

Michigan State's spring football drills will run from April 5, through May 8, head coach Duffy Daugherty announced Wednesday.

The workouts will have a double climax, the annual Michigan State Football Coaches Clinic on April 30-May 1, and the Green and White intrasquad game on May 8.

Practice days each week will be Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Wednesday and Friday will be "rain dates", for use in case bad weather eliminates practice on any of the regular days.

Guest star at the clinic will be Jim Stangeland, head coach at Long Beach, Calif., Junior College.

Brody Revises Radio Concept

A new board of directors will produce a new sound, to win back an old audience for Brody radio.

The new chairman of the board, Lee Bassett, said a thorough house-cleaning has been going on since the new board took over in January.

"Boards of directors in the past have been irresponsible," Bassett said. "We feel the station was not fulfilling the needs of students as it should or could."

More specifically, Bassett said there was too much fooling around on the air, the station was playing neither enough nor the right kind of music, and there were not enough special programs.

The new board has tried to develop well-established channels of responsibility and communication. By spring elections it hopes to revamp the constitution of the station, and is considering joining the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System. The station is planning to initiate surveys and establish liaison with dorm councils to find out what students want. It also hopes to strengthen its news and public affairs department.

Dorm representatives from the Brody group have already made favorable comments on the radio's improvement, Bassett said. Armstrong Hall, which withdrew its support from the station last term has still not reconsidered, but it has been invited to send a non-voting representative to board meetings.

Open rush will be held this week at the station, Bassett said, for anyone interested in a position there.

Another complaint brought against the old station was that its primary purpose was to serve as a training ground, and not a service to its customers. "We feel," Bassett said, "that the primary purpose for WBSR should be to entertain its listeners."

Mike Fried, member of both the old and new boards said that he discovered through State News files that the original purpose of the station was to serve as a training ground. A compromise was reached whereby the station would open channels with the Theater and Radio Department to allow members of the department to work on the station to gain experience.

Fried also felt that the mass firing of many old workers was unjust. Brody radio has some very tricky problems to solve, he said. There are two types of music college students are interested in, he pointed out. There is rock, and mid-road study music.

He said that when Lansing stations started transmitting rock, their more powerful transmitters captured much of Brody's audience. Students still wanted to hear mid-road study music, but radio stations cannot get free records from record companies if they don't push rock 'n' roll. In addition to this, Brody students feel the mid-road music WBSR plays is too spirited for studying.

Clergy Here On Mission

More than 60 selected Methodist ministers representing a broad cross section of Michigan converged on the Methodist Center Wednesday to participate in a three-day "Mission-to-the-Campus."

These ministers began immediately to phone some of the 5,000 Michigan State students who have registered a Methodist preference. They also plan to begin person-to-person visits to students in their dormitories and apartments.

It is hoped that this will aid the church in providing the students with the type of religious experience that is needed on a campus.

Today and Friday the ministers will continue their interviews, hold a fireside for the students and share their findings with their co-workers.

MSU Pianist To Perform

"The Style of Composers" will be the topic at a lecture-recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in 137 Akers. Henry Harris, a pianist, will also include a brief performance excerpt from one of his television programs, "The Great Composers."

Harris, a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music in New York City and the Leipzig Conservatory, has been a member of the MSU faculty since 1954. He is noted for his television series, "The Great Composers," now in its eleventh year on WMSB, channel 10.

There will be a reception for Harris following the program.

Ten Tries, Ten Girls, No 'Heir'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Marjorie Musolino was sure her Valentine Day present would be a baby boy.

So was her husband. She had convinced him.

But at 12 minutes past midnight Sunday the valentine arrived at Loudoun County Hospital: a gorgeous 8-pound, 5-ounce baby girl.

"At first my wife refused to believe it...." Musolino said. "You see we get lots of advice about these things."

It has apparently had little effect. Musolino and his wife have yearned for a male heir. But all they've received are girls, girls, girls. Ten of them now.

42,000 Miles Per Second

Protons Hit High Speed

By JEAN PITCHFORD
State News Staff Writer

After more than two years of labor by MSU's cyclotron staff, the first beam of high speed protons was produced by the cyclotron Thursday.

This beam corresponded to prediction in all respects, H. G. Blosser, professor of physics and astronomy, said.

Protons were accelerated to a speed of about 42,000 miles per second. Tests at greater speeds will be conducted later.

The cyclotron was designed primarily by Blosser and M. M. Gordon with extensive help from co-designers William P. Johnson and M. Reiser.

The work was begun under an Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) study grant and continued under a much larger design and construction grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF).

Another designer deserving of mention is the MSU computer. "It has been through extensive use of the computer for design and predictions that we've been able to arrive at this point without laborious data collecting," Richard L. Dickenson, cyclotron coordinator, said.

the structure of the atomic nucleus.

Physicists have used this bombardment method to learn that the atom consists of a concentrated center, or nucleus, surrounded by electrons, and is not, as had been formerly thought, an even distribution of protons in a sea of electrons.

Research of this kind led to the production of many isotopes and new elements. The discovery of atomic fusion as a source of energy was also made in this way.

Chinese, Soviet Union Seen Close, Unassured

Since the Soviet dismissal of Premier Nikita Khrushchev last October, Red China and the Soviet Union are ideologically closer than they ever have been, said a professor of Free University of Berlin Tuesday.

Richard Lowenthal, professor of international relations, told about 100 people in Akers that although the two Communist powers are closer it does not assure a unitary Communist policy for the future.

"There is no longer a single Communist movement and it is not likely that there will be one in the future," Lowenthal said. Lowenthal said the two powers cannot exist as one Communist bloc because they are both sovereign states and act independently of each other.

Lowenthal said Khrushchev was the man most responsible for the split between Red China and the Soviet Union.

"Khrushchev destroyed the Stalin myth that communism could never be wrong and allowed Red China to speak out on the ideological differences between Chinese communism and Soviet communism."

Red China is more successful than the Soviet Union in spreading communism to the underdeveloped eastern colonial countries according to Lowenthal.

"The Chinese are more aggressive than the Soviet Union and are therefore more successful in countries like Viet Nam where aggression is needed to assure Communist leadership," Lowenthal said.

Lowenthal said the Chinese influence is hindered because they cannot offer the aid to these countries that the Soviet Union can.

Lowenthal said the threat of communism has all but vanished in the Western countries.

"With the exception of Italy, there are no longer any mass Communist parties in any of the Western nations," Lowenthal said.

Sample Books Breaking Ice

By HUGH J. LEACH
State News Managing Editor

For several years AUSG has been attempting to establish a student discount service, but it wasn't until recently that there has been any significant breakthrough in this area.

Richard P. Hollander, Wilmette, Ill., junior and chairman of Student Discount Services, said the student sample books now being sold by AUSG could be a start toward getting better breaks for the students from East Lansing merchants.

If sales of the sample books are successful, he said, it could help break the ice with the merchants. But, he emphasized, if the books fail to sell, it will probably be concluded that students are not interested in better relations with merchants.

The book was originated by Paul Murray of East Lansing. AUSG secured rights to the book on a contract basis this term.

Because of criticism of the book as sold by Murray last fall, some revisions have been made. Now there are two books, a personal book and an automotive book. The personal book is divided into two sections, regular and bonus.

The regular section includes coupons for merchandise the student can receive with no strings attached and cash discounts on items. The bonus section contains coupons good for merchandise with the purchase of other items.

Murray said nearly all of the coupons in the regular section are for items nearly everybody can use, while the bonus section is an extra benefit for those who can use it.

The books sell for $3 each, or, if a student wishes, he may buy both the personal and the automotive book for $5. In any case, Murray said, the books are worth many times the original investment.

The books are being sold at the Union, International Center, 312 Student Services and at several East Lansing stores.

MSU Marketers Plan Job Talks

A mock interview night will be held by the Marketing Club in the Placement Bureau at 7:30 p.m.

The club believes that poise is a determining factor in a job interview and a college senior should present a favorable first impression to a prospective employer.

The practice interviews are intended to remove some of the apprehensions the applicant may have by giving him actual experience.

Graduate students will act as interviewers and a critique will follow to answer any questions that may come up.

A University professor and an associate professor at Kent State University will be giving their third textbook on marketing.

The co-authors are Frank H. Mossman, professor of marketing and transportation administration in the Graduate School of Business, and Newton Morton, associate professor of marketing at Kent State University. Their book is titled, "Logistics of Distribution Systems."

It was issued in mid-January by Allyn & Bacon, Inc., of Boston.

In 1954, the two men wrote a text titled, "Industrial Traffic Management," and in 1957, they collaborated on "Principles of Transportation."

'Nite' At Gables

IFC Donates Rare Books

Two rare books for the MSU library, an outstanding Greek alumnus award and installation of new officers were made at the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) banquet Tuesday night at Kellogg Center.

The outstanding alumnus award was presented to Glenn B. Moore, general agent, with the Aetna Life Insurance Co.

Moore was a Sigma Nu when he attended MSU and has continued to be active in alumni activities.

The two rare books dealing with insurance, donated by IFC to the MSU library, were printed in 1717. Because Moore is in the insurance business, the books are donated in his honor.

Ron Walter, Clarkson, senior and incumbent president, introduced Jon Weersing, Phi Kappa Sigma, and Steve Mandell, Sigma Alpha Nu, vicepresidents who gave out awards to IFC committee chairmen.

Chairmen receiving awards were: expansion committee, Jeff Fogelson, Phi Sigma Delta; goals, Roger Hill, Sigma Chi, and Gray Fisher, Theta Chi; Greek Week, Dave Harris, Phi Delta Theta; internal relations, Rick Morrow, Lambda Chi Alpha; scholarship, Eric Harris, Sigma Alpha Mu; public relations, David Sander-son, Lambda Chi Alpha.

Personal, Leslie Richwald, Zeta Beta Tau; social, Jim Morrow, Theta Chi; publicity, Tom Tasket, Psi Upsilon; publications, Andrew Kramer, Zeta Beta Tau, and Floyd Ostrom Sigma Chi; homecoming, Warren Trafton, Theta Chi; constitutional board of review, Bill Morgan, Sigma Chi; and placement services, Jim Tuman, Phi Gamma Delta.

Edie Freeman, Brooklyn, N.Y., senior, was given a special award as IFC secretary.

Walter then gave out awards to the outgoing executive board; executive vicepresident Jon Weersing, Phi Kappa Sigma; Administrative vicepresident, Steve Mandell, Sigma Alpha Mu; treasurer, Jerry Lerman, Zeta Beta Tau; secretary, Steve Haedicke, Sigma Alpha Mu; and members-at-large, Jon Zich, Sigma Chi, Tom Aylward, Phi Delta Theta, and Dick Neel, Theta Chi.

The new IFC officers were introduced and a special award was given to George Hibbard, fraternity advisor.

Jim Stefanoff, incoming president and Sigma Alpha Mu, introduced Andrew Kramer who presented the scholarship award to Jim Mittleman, Shaker Heights, Ohio, junior and Zeta Beta Tau.

Armstrong House To Present Trophy

Armstrong Hall's Aristocrats, floor B-1, will present a traveling trophy to the dormitory tonight at the Armstrong Senate meeting.

The trophy is to be used to recognize each term's most academically and socially outstanding floor.

'Brown' Done Well Despite Cliches

By LAURENCE TATE
State News Reviewer

The Arena Theatre does a good job on Stephen Vincent Benet's "John Brown's Body," but the play itself is strictly for people who like that sort of thing.

What Benet does is to take all those glorious old clichés from "Birth of a Nation," "Gone with the Wind," and grade-school textbooks, surround them in verse of every sort of imaginable and pretend that the result is an epic of Americans.

It isn't. The actors have a fantastically varied selection of material to work with, most of it dreadful. Director Mariam Duckwall keeps the actors moving constantly. The stage movement is precisely planned, yet seems spontaneous and is theatrically effective.

This, together with the contributions of the actors, infuses a sense of vitality into the work so that it plays a good deal better than it deserves to.

Anthony Heald is probably the most impressive of the three principals. His playing shows a subtlety and richness throughout and his big emotional scenes come strikingly across.

Welsh Male Choir Entertainment Set

A musical "Evening in Wales" will be presented by the Royal Welsh Male Choir at 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Auditorium.

The program of Welsh chorale music and poetry is a Lecture-Concert presentation.

The choir is on its first tour of America with the entire company. An earlier ensemble entertained Theodore Roosevelt at the White House in 1906.

John Samuel directs the company of 45 vocal soloists and instrumentalists. Featured performers with the group are Esmé Lewis, soprano; Eleanor Dwyer, harpist; and Peter Hydon, narrator.

Hydon will read from the descriptive work of the famous Welsh poet Dylan Thomas to set the scene for the program of traditional music from Wales.

ATL Department Sets Field Trip

Honors College and the American Thought and Language Department will sponsor a special field trip March 4, by MSU bus to the Detroit Institute of Art.

The bus will leave the garage (at MSU stadium) at 8:40 a.m. and will return by 5 p.m. The round-trip tickets, which cost $2, are on sale in the ATL office, 229 Bessey Hall. The 15 which remain will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

Anderson Receives Medallion

A special luncheon honoring concert singer Marian Anderson on her farewell tour was held Tuesday in Kellogg Center. The luncheon also celebrated the birthday of the 57-year-old artist.

Charles Hannum has the misfortune of being stuck with the dress. He cannot really save Cuddy or Lincoln from, respectively, over-cuteness and bithos, but he is not to be blamed. In general he is quite good.

For crowd scenes and such, the chorus works well. When it is solemnly intoning on the significance of the action, it is irritating.

On balance, I would recommend the production on the basis of the performance and that part of the play which has some interest. I sympathize, however, with those who do not feel up to the ordeal.

Play Revived For STEP

The campus NAACP is updating the play, "The Man Called Nigger," for production Feb. 27 and 28 to help raise funds for the All-University Student Education Project (STEP) that will send students to Mississippi this summer.

"The Man Called Nigger," written by former MSU students, was presented four years ago to encourage more contact between races on the campus. Ron Brown, Cincinnati, Ohio, graduate student and play director, said, "With over 700 attending its one-night-only performance in 1961, the play received a four-page spread in Ebony magazine, favorable reviews from Time and the Negro weekly, Jet, and national press coverage."

"The play has everything," Brown said. "There is singing, dancing, comedy and drama. It tries to challenge the moral fiber of the members of the audience, to put questions into their minds."

Focusing on the background of "The Man Called Nigger," the play follows the Negro from Africa to the Emancipation Proclamation, through the wars and the Ku Klux Klan and up to the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing state segregation.

1867 Act Outdated

Canada Suffers Disunion

Fragmentation can be halted in Canada if the British North American Act of 1867 (BNA) is discarded now and replaced by a new constitution.

"We must assert ourselves instead of using a mid-Victorian instrument for government," said John Conway, professor of humanities at York University, Toronto, at a seminar on Canada held Monday in the Physics-Math lounge.

Conway said that the BNA Act is not suited to the Canada of today.

"A degree of fragmentation has already been reached in Canada," said Conway. "Not only in Quebec but also in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba."

"Canada will never become a part of the United States," said Conway.

Because of differences in history, Canada and the United States are completely different in action and philosophy, he said. Conway said that the American is absolute in philosophy and finds it difficult to see other political systems. The reactions to world affairs of Canada and the U.S. are different.

"The U.S. is absolutist in outlook," he said. "There is an attitude of solidarity which isn't a part of Canada."

James Eayrs, professor of political economy at the University of Toronto, said that separation between Quebec and the rest of Canada will not occur.

"Although the impulse for separation is there," said Eayrs, "it is ineffective for several reasons."

Eayrs pointed out that the English reaction to Quebec has not been one of oppression or restraint. The French realize that they would fare less well as a minority in North America than as a minority in Canada.

People's Church Cleaned By ATO

The brothers and pledges of Alpha Tau Omega, having recognized a need for assistance, went to the recently damaged Peoples' Church on Grand River Saturday and cleaned it.

The ruins, which were the result of a $150,000 electrical fire, were piled up so that one can walk through the church.
