Eight University Seniors Win Wilson Fellowships

Sunday's Commencement Means Traffic Problems

By JIM STERBA
Administration Writer

Special traffic controls will be in effect Sunday to relieve traffic tie-ups for parents and faculty attending commencement exercises.

Graduation ceremonies will begin at 4 p.m. at the Auditorium.

The special traffic controls which will be in effect from 3 to 4:15 p.m. are: westbound traffic on Auditorium road will not be permitted beyond a point near the southeast corner of Snyder Hall; southbound traffic on Physics Road will not be permitted south of its intersection with Dormitory Road; the only access to Parking Lot "G" and the adjacent street parking bays will be from Auditorium Road near its intersection with Farm Lane.

Degrees will be awarded to 943 winter term graduates and U.S. Representative Gerald R.

Ford, R-Grand Rapids, will be the commencement speaker.

Ford, who is the House minority leader, will receive an honorary doctorate of laws degree. The degree total includes 49 Ph. D. candidates, 216 master's candidates and 650 bachelor's candidates.

Another 23 students are candidates for doctor of veterinary medicine degrees, and five will receive diplomas for Advanced Graduate Study.

Ford, who has been in the House since 1949, was elected minority leader early this year. He served the last Congress as chairman of the Republican Conference of the House.

Before becoming the minority leader, he was a member of the House Appropriations Committee, the Subcommittee for the Department of Defense and the Subcommittee for Foreign Operations.

He has been a member of the joint Senate-House Republican leadership since January, 1963, and served last year on the seven-man Warren Commission, which investigated President Kennedy's assassination.

Ford, 51, was born in Omaha, Neb. He holds the bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and a law degree from Yale University.

EMIL P. ESCHENBERG

Among Thousand Across U.S.

Eight MSU seniors have been awarded Woodrow Wilson Fellowships. Graduate School Assistant Dean Kenneth G. Stone announced today.

The fellowship winners are: Jack M. Armistead, English, East Lansing; Cynthia A. Brown, mathematics, Springfield, Va.; Stephen E. Crick Jr., mathematics, Livonia; Kathleen R. Hodinott, entomology, New York, N.Y.; Mary Kimball, classical studies, Ogdensburg, N.Y.; Robert H. Paulson, physics, Holton; John M. Rawls, physics, Arlington, Va.; and Richard C. Vile Jr., mathematics, New Orleans, La.

Each year the Woodrow Wilson Foundation awards fellowships to 1,000 outstanding college graduates in an effort to attract them to the profession of college teaching.

Another 1,500 students receive honorable mention awards.

Nearly 10,000 candidates each year are nominated by college faculty members in the U.S. and Canada for the Woodrow Wilson Fellow awards.

Single students or married students with no children receive $1,800 to study at the graduate school of their choice for one year.

Married students receive $1,000 extra for their first child, and $250 for each additional child.

The funds for the fellowships are granted by the Ford Foundation, and are sent directly to the fellow's graduate school.

In accepting the award, a student pledges that he will give serious thought to a career in college teaching.

Students who refuse Woodrow Wilson Fellowships in order to accept another fellowship are listed as honorary Woodrow Wilson Fellows.

The fellowships are aimed primarily, but not exclusively, at students in humanities and social science.

Board Elections In April

Petitioning for the new Student Board will begin April 1 and elections will be April 15, the interim review board decided Thursday.

Any student who has earned 75 or more credits, is carrying a minimum of 12 credits spring term and has a 2.2 all University grade point is eligible.

Petitions, which must have at least 300 signatures, will be due April 5 and campaigning may begin the following day.

If more than five persons are running for either of the two divisions, a primary will be held April 13 to cut the number to four.

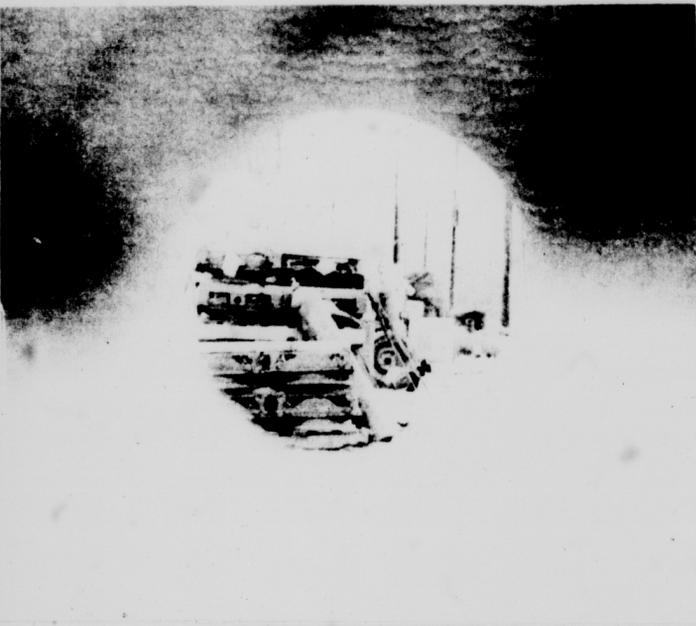

There will be two juniors and two seniors on the board.

Campaign expenditures should not exceed $200 and any donations must be included in this amount.

The interim review board decided to leave the question of elections for class officers to the student board.

"We did not feel it was within our jurisdiction to make a final decision on class councils," Bruce Osterink, review board chairman, said.

Specific campaign information will be available when petitioning opens.

Two U.S. Aircraft Downed In Raids Against Viet Cong

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)--The United States lost two aircraft yesterday in support of the government's campaign against Viet Cong battalions infesting the central highlands.

A U.S. Air Force B57 Canberra jet bomber crashed from an undetermined cause in Binh Dinh province, about 260 miles north of Saigon, after losing the flaming jelled gasoline called napalm on a guerrilla target area.

The two crewmen were reported to have bailed out. Ground patrols and airmen hunted them. Farther north, a U.S. Marine Corps helicopter crashed and burned on a supply mission, presumably from Viet Cong fire. Four crewmen were injured. Three were moved to the field hospital at Nha Trang and the fourth to Da Nang.

Da Nang is the site of the marine-guarded air base from which U.S. Air Force F100 and F105 jet fighter-bombers now are making almost daily forays against Communist bases and supply lines through eastern Laos.

Though Saigon and Washington officials say little concerning these operations, Communist broadcasts complain regularly about them.

A dispatch radioed from Peking, for instance, said jet aircraft of the United States and its lackeys--meaning Laotian government pilots--"flew spy missions over Khang Khai, Xieng Khouang, Ban Ban and other towns in the liberated territories in upper Laos between 8 a.m. and noon yesterday (Wednesday)."

"Several T28 (Laotian) planes bombed and strafed Mount Phou Khouth, Munong Khong and other places," it said.

The Peking reference to liberated territories means areas held by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao Rebels. Khang Khai is their headquarters.

Viet Cong guerrillas lobbed a grenade or mortar shell Wednesday night into a Vietnamese position eight miles northwest of Da Nang, killing one soldier and wounding two.

The position is about three miles from hills west of the base that U.S. marines have occupied to set up the outer perimeter of their defense zone.

Rounding out a week in Saigon, Gen. Harold K. Johnson, the U.S. Army chief of staff, made the first field trip of his fact-finding visit.

Congress Bows Out With Pathos, Humor

By JO BUMBARGER
State News AUSA Writer

A brief session, touched with both humor and pathos, marked the final meeting of Student Congress Wednesday night.

All bills and resolutions passed the body unanimously for perhaps the first time in its 15-year history.

The student government constitution adopted in Tuesday's referendum eliminates Congress.

Congress approved a $4,477 budget and the regular 25 cent student tax for spring term, granted four club charters and set up a committee to compile a record of the groups unfinished activities for the new student board.

A motion to revoke the charter of the Sino-American Friendship Society on the grounds that the Justice Department may declare it a communist front was tabled. Congressmen felt more information was needed and left the matter for the student board to investigate.

Campus clubs chartered are the Young Americans for Freedom, the Chinese Student Christian Fellowship, the Chi Alpha National full-Gospel Christian Organization, and Sigma Alpha Iota professional music fraternity for women.

Representatives voted to present the Congress gavel to Louis Hekhuis, director of student activities. A former student government president, he was one of the initiators of student government on the all-University level.

The $25 budget appropriation for Congress will be used to purchase complimentary gavels for Howie Wilchins, speaker, and Sue Smith, Congress secretary and a member for four years.

The group moved to send personal letters to the Re-education Committee members with the exception of Wilchins, commending them.

Army, A.F. Cadet Commissioning Set

MSU Army and Air Force senior cadets will receive commissions and branch appointments in two ceremonies this week end.

Army branch assignments will be presented to 124 ROTC cadets today at 7 p.m. in Erickson Kiva. The cadets will graduate in June.

Second lieutenant's commissions will be awarded to 17 MSU Army and Air Force cadets at 2 p.m. Sunday in Parlor C Union.

Commissioning speaker Sunday will be Brig. Gen. Emil P. Eschenberg, assistant commander of the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky. A native of Macomb County, Eschenberg was a 1939 Outstanding Cadet graduate of MSU.

For campaigns in the Aleutian Island, Ardenne-Alsace, Rhineland and Korea, he won the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Purple Heart and the Italian Cross of Valor.

Of the 124 June graduates, 14 will receive Distinguished Military Student Awards tonight. They will receive regular Army commissions instead of reserve commissions.

Beginning next week the 124 cadets will be able to wear their branch insignia instead of the ROTC insignia. About 50 per cent received their first choice of branches.

The ceremony tonight will be handled by the cadets themselves under cadet Brig. Gen. Brian M. Mumaw, Grosse Pointe senior.

Cadets receiving commissions Sunday include Gary M. VanOrnum, Alabaster business administration major, army ordnance corps; Lewis T. Clem, Berrien Springs chemical engineering major, Army Ordnance Corps; Ronald A. Kratt, Dearborn packaging major, Distinguished Air Force ROTC graduate; Barry R. Miller, Dearborn hotel, restaurant and institutional management major, Army Quartermaster Corps; John M. O'Hara, Huntington Woods economics major, Army Military Police Corps.

Thomas J. Emery, Lansing history major, Army Adjutant General's Corps; W. George Rosendale, Lansing production administration major, Army Artillery, and Ronald W. Metcalf, Royal Oak social science major, Army Artillery.

Ross A. Worring, Sand Creek psychology major, and Charles D. Doblas, Scottville political science major, Air Force.

Thomas V. Borowski, Sturgis zoology major, Army Medical Service Corps; William H. Peck, Redlands, California zoology major, Air Force and George Acki, Hile, Hawaii, business administration major, Air Force.

King Tells Ala. Court Of Mounting Tension

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)--Martin Luther King Jr. took his spreading Negro voter drive into federal court Thursday and told the judge that unless his people could march, a racial explosion would result.

King said he led a massive street march in Selma three days ago in the face of a court ban only after he was assured by a federal spokesman that it would be all right.

The Negro leader, winner of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize, sought a right-to-march ruling for his twice-thwarted 50-mile pilgrimage from Selma to Montgomery.

There were three other developments in the steadily intensifying racial struggle.

--White and Negro demonstrators hopped to the floor of a corridor in the White House in an unprecedented sit-in at the nation's executive mansion. There were a dozen in the group.

--Rain-soaked demonstrators kept up a marathon street vigil in Selma for a critically injured Boston minister, clubbed by a white gang Tuesday night in Selma. The victim, the Rev. James J. Reeb, remained in a deep coma in a Birmingham hospital.

--A fourth white man was arrested in Selma and charged with assault with intent to murder in the beating. Police said he was Odel Hoggle, 30, an auto mechanic.

--A group of about 80 Negroes marched through downtown Montgomery. They stood on the steps of a church one block from the capitol and sang freedom songs.

In a packed courtroom, King testified of tension among demonstrators when he led a Tuesday march of 2,500 Negroes and white clergymen at Selma. He said the tension followed Sunday's march when state troopers clubbed and tear gassed the demonstrators.

"And then you directed these people into the streets in masses, did you?" snapped attorney Maury Smith.

Smith represented Gov. George C. Wallace and Col. Albert J. Lingo, commander of the state police.

White House Has Sit-In

WASHINGTON (AP)--A youthful band of civil rights demonstrators spent seven hours sitting in a White House hallway Thursday, demanding a talk with President Johnson. Police took them away at nightfall.

Four boys and eight girls, nine of them Negroes and three of them white, staged the demonstration after walking into the White House amid a stream of late-morning tourists.

Most of them spent the rest of the day camped in a ground-floor corridor, threatening to stay there and stage a hunger strike until they saw Johnson and presented a demand for federal intervention in Selma, Ala.

Shortly after 6 p.m., unmarked police cars rolled out from the iron-fenced White House grounds, carrying the demonstrators.

MACHINE FEEDING--This term will probably become familiar to many students before finals end. The vending machines in the class buildings and dormitories usually get heavy use from students who skipped meals in order to study up to the very last minute. Photos by Kenn Roberts and Tom Pozarycki

Debators Accept Filipino Challenge

MSU debators will meet two University of Philippines debators in a challenge, resolving the U.S.-U.S. military bases in the Philippines be withdrawn. The debate will take place 8 p.m. Friday in the Union Ballroom.

POINT OF VIEW

Lurkers Of The World, Unite

Or, How To Pin Friends And Influence Subjugate People

By CHARLES P. LARROWE

Editor's Note: Charles P. Larrowe is a professor of economics and considers himself one of the most "extreme liberals" on campus.

The president of the University is reported to have told a Chamber of Commerce-MSU conference that the FBI has notified him that there are three trained, Communist-oriented agitators enrolled in the University, and that demonstrations can be expected. Some of the extreme liberals of my acquaintance have suggested to me that three Reds on a campus the size of Michigan State do not constitute a serious threat. But I fear that these liberals have not taken the trouble to go beyond looking at the raw data. When the data is put in proper perspective, the problem turns out to be not quite so simple. If, indeed, three Reds have infiltrated the 31,000 student body (for purposes of our analysis, we do not replicate the FBI census, but take the FBI report as a given), that means that .0096774 per cent of MSU students are Communist-oriented, restlessly casting about for causes to agitate, eager to stir up controversy where none exists. While some may say that .0096774 per cent is not a statistically significant datum, when we push the analysis further we find that Michigan State, with a Communist contingent equal to .0096774 per cent of its population, has almost twice the proportion of Reds in the campus universe, as is true for the United States as a whole. But Seriously.

(Assuming a CPUSA membership of 10,000 in a U.S. population of 190,000,000, we find that only .0052631 per cent of Americans at large are Communists.) This comparison is, of course, only an approximation, due to the fugitive nature of the data. It is possible, however, further to refine our material with the use of the Lovestone Clear-and-Present-Danger Scale. I have done so, with the aid of a colleague who has declined credit for his role in the analysis, and the generous assistance of the staff of the computer center. The computer produced a figure of 1.8, a score rarely achieved on the Lovestone Scale. Seen in this light, the data suggests the alarming prospect that Michigan State may have been selected by the Communist Party as a major target area for concentrated subversive activity. Even to the extreme liberals, this finding must surely be portentous, for apparently only the advance party has as yet arrived, and already the danger of a Communist take-over at State is twice as great as it is for the country. By a fortuitous conjuncture of events, I am able to report that a second method has recently become available which can be employed to analyze our problem. This is a technique developed by a group of brilliant young social scientists at Santa Barbara, who have been working as a team to push back the frontiers of knowledge in the field of conflict resolution. (They had not made their breakthrough in time to test the method in the Berkeley crisis, but it is rumored that Acting Chancellor Myerson has persuaded them to postpone their work in pure theory for the time being and to serve as consultants on the main campus.) The Santa Barbara method has an arresting simplicity about it which will doubtless make some of us wonder why we hadn't thought of it ourselves. Using the two methods to analyze an hypothetical example of an event that could occur on a campus, we obtain quite different results. Let us suppose that 4,200 students sign a petition asking a university administration to re-examine resident hall regulations. The Lovestone technique dictates that we start from the hypothesis that in making their complaints 4,197 well-intentioned dupes have been led astray by three Pied Pipers from Peking (the Lovestone Method takes the accuracy of the FBI census of trained, Communist-oriented agitators as a given). Note that the ratio of 4,197 to three produces a higher score on the Lovestone Scale than has been reported in the literature to date. On this finding, the petition must be rejected. The Santa Barbara method, on the other hand, suggests that if 4,200 students sign such a petition we postulate that they may have a complaint that merits examination. Subsumed under this approach is the assumption that in the absence of an issue that troubles the participants in a student protest, neither three nor 30 Pied Pipers from Peking could bamboozle their fellow students into disturbing the tranquility of the campus by their rash actions. While this seems plausible, a caveat must be added. Some of the Ivy League specialists in conflict resolution feel that a weakness of the Santa Barbara analysis for policy purposes is that it requires the use of assumptions so heroic—as, for example, the two just above—that similar conditions are never found in the real world. There is a third way of looking at our problem which is perhaps more radical than either of the newer theoretical innovations. This approach suggests that we view the university as a place of learning, a market place for ideas. According to this view, grade labeling of ideas offered in the academic forum is considered an interference with the free working of the market, and is condemned. The policy proposals that follow from the third approach are much the same as those indicated by the social scientists at Santa Barbara. One is that it is a function of a university to encourage dissent, controversy, criticism. A logical extension of the theory would suggest that a university allow, not seek to stifle, peaceful demonstrations. In a recent colloquium on the threat to American universities posed by students demonstrating for civil rights, peace and free speech, the consensus was that life on the campus was better in the days of the Silent Generation. But the moderator had the last word. In summing up, he reminded the gathering that it has ever been the function of youth to exasperate the middle-aged. "I think we should applaud, not attack our students when they find a cause and speak up for it," he declared. "They'll be stuffed-shirts soon enough."

A Final Solution

By Don Sockol

These are the times that try men's souls. Final exams are at hand and every student is under terrific pressure. Students realize that two hours, one bluebook, a hundred multiple choice questions can make or break an entire term's work. For some, the strain is too much. At the end of every term tragedy strikes at MSU. A few students, in the depths of despair, seeing no reason to go on, commit mono. I refer the reader to the Counseling Center file on Edward "Rock" McKibbin, Roseville Junior. One afternoon, McKibbin walked quietly into Olin, picked up a visitor's pass, and went up to see a friend who was in bed with mono. McKibbin talked to his friend for a few moments and then asked him if he could get him a glass of water. His friend saw nothing wrong in this and acquiesced. He had only drunk half of it when McKibbin grabbed the half-full glass and ran from the room. His friend followed him up to the third floor, where he saw McKibbin climb out a window into the ledge. When he asked McKibbin what he thought he was doing, the horrible truth came out. "I'm sorry, I had to do it. I've got to drink this water and catch mono before finals. I'll have the extra time that I'll need to study while I'm in the hospital." Meanwhile a crowd of students had gathered outside and campus police tried to keep them back. A doctor raced into the room, and McKibbin's friend explained to him what was happening. A crowd joined the crowd on the street and asked someone what was going on. "That boy up there is going to commit mono." "Oh, my God!" The doctor tried to coax McKibbin off the ledge, but whenever he made a move, McKibbin panicked. "Get back. One step closer and I'll drink this. I swear I will." The doctor saw McKibbin was desperate. "There's a priest downstairs, nurse. Will you get him?" the doctor said. A few moments later the priest arrived. He tried to talk to McKibbin. "Please, Father, I know what I'm doing. I'm flunking everything. Mono is the only way out." "Don't you know it's a sin for one of God's creatures to commit mono?" "God will understand." Just then McKibbin's English instructor, a graduate student, walked in. "Ed," she cried in genuine anguish, "What are you doing?" Miss McMore! What are you doing here?" "I came as soon as I heard." "Nothing you can say will make me change my mind. Take one step toward me and I'll drink this. I have to get mono. You know I'm not ready for my English final." "But, Rock, I came to tell you I love you. I'll pass you whatever happens." "It's a trick." "Don't you have any trust in people? I love you, Ed." "Oh, Miss McMore!" Ed started slowly back off the ledge. After an agonizing 30 seconds that seemed like a lifetime McKibbin was safely inside. He and Miss McMore tearfully embraced each other, while the doctor slowly eased the infected glass from his hand. Fortunately for McKibbin, he was saved by his teacher's love. Not all desperate students on campus are so lucky. Campus police estimate that every term at least 18 students commit mono. Surely something can be done about this. Perhaps, if everyone studied a little bit harder throughout the term, these shocking statistics would not exist.

Yes, Don, There Is A Virginia

By DAVE HANSON

Don Sockol suggested in his column last Friday that President Hannah might not exist. I have seen him and shaken hands with him and will testify to the fact that there is such a person. Someone else suggested that Hannah was, in fact, Duffy Daugherty in disguise. After all, the logic went, have you ever seen them together? Have you ever seen Hannah at a football game? What happens to Duffy after the season is over? But, again, since I know there is a Hannah, I must refute this theory. However, I cannot say at this time with certainty that Duffy Daugherty exists. I have never seen him. He may be, in fact, Hannah in disguise. But I must point out one thing before this gets out of hand. Don Sockol does not exist. Don Sockol is the pen-name of three nuts who get together a couple of nights a week at the Coral Gables with a typewriter and a thirst and proceed to get drunk enough to put their maddest thoughts on paper. They always sit at the same table, namely, a round, shabby table in the northeast corner of the bar with the name Fiji conspicuously inscribed among other scrawlings. Don Sockol, then, is in actuality that table. But as anyone in physics will tell you, there is no such thing as a table. It is only a configuration of atoms perceived as a table.

Housing Rules Vs. Student Rights

To the Editor: As seniors at MSU, we will not be affected in either our college careers or in the maturing process which it hopefully has brought about by any changes in the student regulations. Nevertheless, it is up to every student at MSU to become concerned about the present situation at this University and seemingly a point has been reached where student apathy is disappearing. The past few months have not only witnessed enlivened student reaction through these columns, but even the administration has been drawn into the limelight and forced to verbalize its position. A State News article of Feb. 22 gave some insight into what the housing office--Pat Smith, that is--believes the situation to be and what remedies are at hand. Smith stated that the University of Michigan is a commuter-oriented school, thus putting it in contrast with MSU. We fail to see what this point has to do with the prospect of granting student rights. The only alternative in examining this statement is to look more deeply into the reason for MSU's dormitory-oriented campus. Does the possibility exist that the University is making out better financially by having students remain in dorms? The policy seems clear--if off-campus living is made no more attractive than dorm living, the result will be more students living in dormitories and thus supporting the construction of new dormitories with built-in classroom facilities. Yes, this may be part of the administration's policy--i.e., expand classroom facilities by charging dormitory residents for the expanded construction. In essence this is a shrewd plan and it appears to be working. Could this be just one reason for this University's lack of concern for student rights and the ensuing choice of living accommodations? We question the fairness of such a policy if it does exist. Referring again to the same article, it was stated that a faculty subcommittee has been working for a year surveying and suggesting changes in the housing regulations. The students of MSU were represented on this subcommittee by three students selected recently by the faculty from a list submitted by Bob Harris, AUSG president. Now, we ask, were the students of MSU fairly represented on this committee? Also, we ask, how can Smith say that he does not think parental opinion does not favor the opening up of social rules for off-campus housing? We know of no one whose parents have voiced their opinions concerning regulations for off-campus housing. Reasons be what they may, the fact still exists that students here at MSU are being denied the right to mature. This is a right stimulated by education--yet denied by those administering the education.

We find it quite difficult to believe that those responsible for the archaic rules under which we are forced to live and learn at this institution truly believe that the best method for pointing students down a path to maturity lies in personal scrutiny of every step. Is it truly believed that we here at MSU require such discipline? What, may we ask, is so magical about that given day in June when each year many students are deemed suddenly capable of running their own lives at that moment when a diploma crosses each of their paths? Gary Bullington, Detroit senior; John Colizzi, Charlotte senior.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Tribute To Arnold Isenberg

To the Editor: Arnold Isenberg died in East Lansing on Feb. 26. He will be remembered for a time, in some cases a lifetime, by friends, associates, students and those who have read or may read his many distinguished papers. During a class one day, giving an ironic twist to a point that he was making, he observed, "If you cast your bread upon the water... that's the last you'll see of that bread." This man did more than his share of casting, and, sadly enough, it seemed that that which returned was less than it should have been. A graduate student for some reason once asked him if he were a Jew. His deit reply was, "If I am in a group and the group needs a Jew, then I am a Jew." This was not bitterness, if he was in a group and the group needed an excellent conversationalist, then he was that conversationalist. Some weeks ago, while reviving from a lecture at the departmental coffee urn, he took pleasure and gave pleasure by sharing the following epigram which he had been polishing: "Academic in the worst sense of the word means detached in the worst sense of the word. Academic in the best sense of the word means detached in the best sense of the word." Arnold Isenberg was academic in the best sense of the word. A Student in Philosophy

Thanks

To the Editor: On behalf of the Bailey Hall Governors Council and the men of Bailey Hall we would like to express our sincere thanks to Bruce Osterink, and the re-evaluation committee, for the outstanding work they did on the new ASMUSU constitution. Their time, energy, and effort deserves everyone's appreciation, regardless of feelings about the new constitution or not. It is our hope, that the students of Michigan State University will unite behind the new student constitution in the spirit of faith in a new era of better student government. Jim Sink, President, Bailey Hall; Ron Chesnik, Vice President, Bailey Hall.

U-M And The Urge To Expand

To the Editor: The University of Michigan will expand its branch at Flint to provide the "needed" room for 200 freshmen despite any state criticism? Well, yes-yes. Gov. Romney may indeed have supported this project, but not now, and no wonder. Recent developments on the scene indicate there is a fly in the ointment, and the "colossus of Ann Arbor" and its partner, the Flint Board of Education, put it there. This dilemma is a clear demonstration of the need for a strong, state-wide authority to deal with the unruly state school vying to become the top octopus through the establishment of satellite campuses, and thus dictating educational patterns. For nine years the University of Michigan has operated a junior-senior branch on the same campus with Flint Junior College. The Committee on the Future of Higher Education in Flint, the brain-child of the University Board of Regents and the Flint Board of Education, was born with the announcement of the University's intent to expand. In its great haste to concur with U-M on expansion, this committee failed in its explorations to recognize the need for diversity in the present, limited junior-senior program and in its "report" displayed an "oversight" on the real issues at stake. So, many students of the future must also leave Flint after their sophomore year if they don't like the choice of curriculum and go elsewhere to complete their education. "Too late," says Hatcher, to

Un-American

To the Editor: Boy, am I ever glad you told us! Now our suspicions are all confirmed. Any group campaigning for freedom of speech and the right to hand out printed material must be communistic. I mean, after all, these things are, well, un-American! Mary-Sue Gast, Baroda sophomore.

U.S. May Apply More Pressure

WASHINGTON--Increasing concentration of enemy battle units in South Viet Nam was reported Thursday with hints that the United States may apply more pressure on the Viet Cong and their North Vietnamese partner.

Not only have more Red battalions been observed in the north and central portions of South Viet Nam over the last two or three months, but increasing numbers of soldiers who are natives of Red North Viet Nam have been found among prisoners captured from Viet Cong outfits.

Defense weapons experts have said the quality of arms used by the Communists has been improving steadily in the past six or eight months.

Cal Regents Meet Saturday

BERKELEY, Calif. 1--University of California Regents were called Thursday into special emergency session Saturday as top state legislators warned that the Regents might name a "strong man" to clean up "a state of anarchy that now exists on the Berkeley campus."

Chairman Edward W. Carter called the 24 member Board of Regents into session at Berkeley at 12:30 p.m. Saturday "to discuss restoration of appropriate control over student conduct on the Berkeley campus."

Steel Talks Resume

PITTSBURGH--Top level negotiators were called to their first meeting Thursday since basic steel contract talks resumed after a two-month recess for the United Steelworkers election.

Sources close to the talks, which resumed Tuesday, said the industry's chief negotiator, R. Conrad Cooper, asked for the meeting and that United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald complied.

There was no indication of the purpose of the meeting.

"Hot Money" To Be Investigated

WASHINGTON--The federal government is preparing a broad investigation into the suspected flow of "hot money" from the underworld into legitimate financial circles.

This word came Thursday from Joseph W. Barr, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC), who told Senate investigators that racketeers may be using their profits from vice and crime operations to buy their way into banks and other financial institutions.

Barr appeared before the Senate Investigations Subcommittee which is studying a recent upsurge in bank failures to see if there is need for new legislation.

USIA Personnel To Leave Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia--A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said Thursday all U.S. information service personnel except four will leave Indonesia by the end of next week.

The U.S. government decided to close down U.S.I.S. operations in Indonesia after anti-American, Communist-dominated demonstrations caused the Indonesian government to take over five U.S.I.S. libraries.

Tribesmen Seize Governor

ADEN--Royalist tribesmen in Yemen have captured Harib and seized the governor and the Egyptian political adviser there, reports reaching Aden said Thursday.

Latest reports said firing still could be heard as remnants of the revolutionary government's garrison retreated with Marad and Abida tribesmen in pursuit.

Gov. Sheikh Mohammed Abdurrabo Awadi of Harib, whose brother, Sheikh Ahmed Abdurrabo Awadi is the revolutionary regime's minister for tribal affairs, and the Egyptian political adviser in Harib were reported captive.

Boycott Of Duchess Ends

LONDON--Queen Elizabeth II decided on her own to end the British royal boycott of the Duchess of Windsor, a source close to the royal family said Thursday.

"She thought it up herself," this informant said. "Nobody suggested it, she was moved by compassion."

The coming meeting will ease a national headache that has persisted since King Edward VIII gave up his throne Dec. 11, 1936, to marry the duchess, Baltimore-born Wallis Warfield Simpson, "the woman I love."

It took three serious eye operations on the 70-year-old former king to bring the two women to the point of getting together.

Nine Pakistani Soldiers Killed

NEW DELHI, India--Nine Pakistani soldiers were killed over the past 10 days in clashes with Indian troops along the cease-fire line in the dispute Himalayan state of Kashmir, the defense ministry said Thursday. Indian casualties, if any, were not given.

Romney Asks Revision In Compensation Laws

Gov. George Romney issued a special message to the legislature Thursday recommending revisions of the Workmen's Compensation Law which generally followed other ideas but toned down maximum weekly benefits.

Gov. Romney, admitting he would be criticized by some who feel "these recommendations have not gone far enough," said he favors retention of payments based on the number of dependents being supported by the injured, disabled or accidentally killed worker.

The Workmen's Compensation Study Commission report of Jan. 21, as well as Democratic-backed bills in both houses of the legislature, asks two-thirds of the worker's average weekly wage--up to $100--without considering dependents.

Romney also proposed the two-thirds benefit level but his top weekly benefit would be $90 for a man with five dependents.

Down the scale, Romney said, the injured worker with the average size family would receive $23 a week under the plan. The scale from no dependents to five he offered would be $33 to $90.

Romney said he wants to hold down the sudden payment increase because "we must not drive out expansion or discourage new investment in Michigan."

The $100 maximum across the board, he said, would mean a rise of 47.6 per cent in insuring costs to employers while his idea would mean a 35.6 per cent hike.

Other offerings made in the message, which Gov. Romney said would give "Michigan a workmen's compensation structure that is adequate, fair and in the employer, employee and public interest," included:

--Annual cost of living increases of benefit payments.
--A minimum weekly payment of $27 compared with the present $18.

--Removal of the 500-week limitation on payments except in cases of redemption (lump sum cash settlements).

--Increasing the death benefit payments from 450 to 500 weeks.

--Some deduction for retired persons who become eligible for private pension plans and a "potential earnings" consideration for persons under 25.

Police Note Quiet Week

Coming examinations have been given as one of the reasons for a very quiet week, as far as MSU and East Lansing police officials are concerned.

The only major police news this past week was a property damage accident on-campus involving non-students.

Duwayne Louis Simon, 26, of 2059 Delhi St., Holt, was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way. He left the circle in front of the Farm Maintenance Center and the University owned pickup truck he was driving collided with another vehicle on Forest Rd.

The other vehicle was driven by Joel Panetta, 24, of 6348 Rosedale, Lansing.

Damage to the two vehicles totalled about $200, University police estimated.

Aging Jim Garrett Nears 25 At NCAA Meet

Shoots For Jump Mark At Cobo Hall Saturday

By JERRY MORTON
State News Sports Writer

Spartan broad jumper Jim Garrett is 21 . . . going on 25. Garrett will celebrate his 22nd birthday a week from Saturday but this weekend he will be attempting to reach another milestone, a 25-foot jump in the NCAA meet at Detroit.

Friday he leaped 24-11 to successfully defend the Big Ten indoor crown he won as a sophomore last year.

It was the greatest jump of Garrett's career and has left fans wondering how much farther he can go.

"I seriously have no idea what my limit will be," he said.

"My conditioning is coming along real well. I know I haven't reached my peak yet."

Commenting on the Big Ten meet, Garrett said:

"I wasn't shooting for any special distance. I just wanted to win."

Garrett said he was spurred to his winning jump when Purdue's Jim Moore leaped 24-9 to take the lead.

"I felt myself doing better all the time," he said. "If I could have had a couple more jumps I think I could have gone 25 feet."

His best jump last year was a 24-7 effort which won him the league indoor crown.

Outdoors, Garrett finished second in the Big Ten but it was a remarkable feat considering the fact that he was out for spring football most of the time.

He attributes his success this season to a more rigorous training schedule than he had last year.

"Since last year was my first year on the varsity I didn't know the best way to train," he said. "I started training hard right away this season and it's helped me get a good start."

Garrett's second consecutive championship was not a surprise to MSU fans but the team performance was better than expected.

The Spartans finished second to Wisconsin, two and a half points away from the conference crown.

Tuesday only and spends the rest of his time working on speed and form. Photo by Cal Crane

What are the Spartan chances for winning the Big Ten outdoor title?

"We decided that there's no sense feeling low about the indoor meet now. We'll just work all the harder for the outdoor this spring."

There should be several 25-foot jumps at the NCAA meet this weekend.

Spartan fans won't be surprised if Jim Garrett has one of them.

These great performers are the lowest priced models at our One-Stop Shopping Center

Top to bottom: Chevy II 100, Corvair 500, Chevelle 300, Chevrolet Biscayne. All 2-door models.

Each of these beauties is the lowest priced in its line. But the ride doesn't show it. Or the interior. Or the performance.

That luxurious Biscayne is as roomy as many expensive cars, has color-keyed interiors, plush vinyls, fine fabrics, full deep-twist carpeting.

Chevelle, America's favorite intermediate-size car, has clean new styling, wide doors, roomy, tasteful interiors and Chevrolet easy-care features.

Chevy II got a lot smarter for '65, but stays sensible! Still family-size, easy to handle, economical, and the lowest priced Chevrolet you can buy.

Or get a sporty rear-engine hardtop in a Corvair Sport Coupe or Sport Sedan for fun in the months ahead.

Chevrolet, Chevelle and Chevy II are available with the Turbo-Thrift Six for fuel economy, quick warmups, quiet idling. It's light, efficient, smooth and spirited.

Corvair's air-cooled rear-mounted Turbo-Air Six delivers the best balance and traction for this size car.

'FASTEST GROWING SPORT'

Wrestling Bug Is Biting

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

There's an epidemic sweeping the country and it's not the flu. It's called "wrestling fever."

The latest statistics released by "Wrestling News" reveal that wrestling is the fastest rising participant and partisan-viewing sport in the nation. Since 1955, the number of schools with grappling teams has more than doubled.

"There's a very good reason for this sudden surge in the sport," said mat coach Grady Peninger when asked about wrestling's increasing popularity among athletes and fans alike. "Once that wrestling bug bites, you're bit for life."

Clarifying himself on the matter, Peninger explained that after a person had viewed a wrestling match for the first time, he couldn't restrain himself from seeing another. The sport reflects a basic human desire to survive in a competitive world and people can't resist watching such affairs.

"Wrestling is an individual sport," commented Peninger, "and, unlike most sports, the outcome of the match, whether it be a win, loss or tie, is solely dependent on one man."

"That's what made boxing so popular. It draws large crowds who come to see one man battle another."

Parents whose sons wrestle are usually the first to attend matches. Common opinion among most of the adults is that wrestling is too aggressive and injurious. After they've seen their son "grapple" a few times, however, they develop an interest for it and become an avid follower.

One who would agree that wrestling is an invigorating sport is MSU President John A. Hannah. Since his older son last wrestled for Yale in 1964, Hannah has attended Spartan wrestling meets quite frequently.

Probably that which differentiates wrestling from most other sports is that the fans themselves take an active interest in a grappler's performance. It is not an uncommon sight in any meet to see people in the stands twist and contort their bodies with the movements of the wrestler on the mat.

These reactions can often lead to some profoundly amusing results.

"The fans in the stands think they can help the wrestler," said Peninger, "by making movements with their body. They don't realize what their doing and sometimes they become over-exuberant."

"I know that after my wife and I attend a meet, I have to buy her six pairs of nylon. Whenever I see a match, I always seem to kick."

Washington Named MVP By Hoopsters

Stan Washington was voted the most valuable player of State's basketball team this year by his teammates. Washington will represent Michigan State in the Chicago Tribune contest for the Big Ten Player of the Year. Bill Curtis was selected most valuable player by the press and radio and received the Phillips Award. He was also elected team captain for next year.

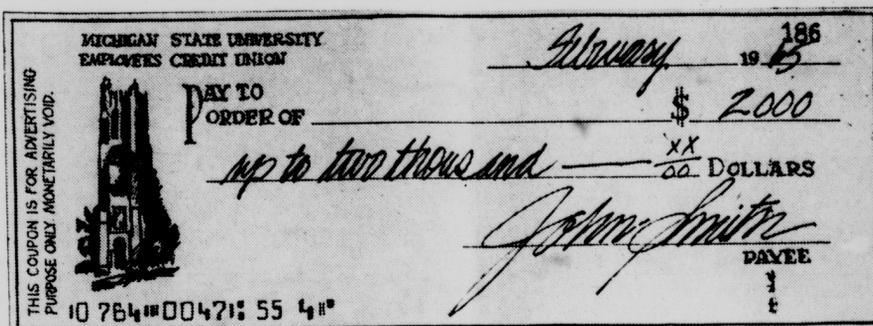

Washington was the Spartan's top scorer this season, with a 21.3 mark, and Curtis was right behind at 19.7.

Sophomore Ted Cray received the President's Award for the most improved player of the year. The 6-5 forward averaged 8.7 points per game.

Captain Marcus Sanders won the leadership award. Sanders had an 18.3 average this year to become State's fifth highest scorer in history.

Washington also won the free throw award. The 6-3 guard sank 120 of 141 free throws for 86 per cent. The mark is a new varsity record for accuracy.

Foalist Pinpoints Goals

By PHIL LOOMIS
State News Sports Writer
Bryan Kutchins wants to excel. He wants to excel in fencing and he wants to excel in life.

The Detroit senior, considered as one of the fencing team's mainstays for the past three years, has already excelled in one goal and is bent on excelling in the other two.

Kutchins' first goal is behind him. He was a top-notch swimmer at Lansing Sexton where he gained high school All-American honors.

When the sport became more work than pleasure, he dropped it. Then did he take up fencing as a sport.

With the aid of books on fencing and his sister, Kutchins began working on the fundamentals of the sport.

"I read quite a few books on the sport during my regular classes in high school," he said.

To put what he had read into practical use, he acquired the use of his sister as a "dummy." With her help he worked on his moves and footwork.

"I knew I was going to be a fencer," he said. "I bought my own equipment and when I was still in high school I took one lesson from Schmitter."

A few colleges were looking at Kutchins' pool record when graduation came around. However, his attitude towards the sport and his recent interest in fencing made him decline some scholarship offers.

For two years, beginning with his freshman year, fencing kept him in school.

"You might say that I lived nothing but fencing for those first two years. School was secondary."

"After the first two years, this changed," he added. "After one has found his goal and he matures, his attitude towards sports and its relationship with other things subsides."

"I liked the individuality of the sport and the speed and precision which it requires."

Last Saturday he bowed out of the Big Ten competition in the conference meet after carrying a collegiate record of 44-36.

His fencing will not stop here, however. Upon graduation he will enter three years of law school at Wayne State where he will pursue his other two goals, the three weapons and a life in general business.

Spartan Track Quartet In Stiff NCAA Test

Four Spartan Big Ten champions will take part in the first annual NCAA indoor track meet tonight and Saturday at Detroit's Cobo Arena.

Hurdler Gene Washington, miler Keith Coates, sprinter Daswell Campbell and broad jumper Jim Garrett will attempt to add national honors to conference laurels earned at Madison last weekend.

A total of 360 athletes from 84 colleges will compete in 14 events.

Phil Shinnick of Washington will be favored to win the broad jump with Garrett, Purdue's Jim Moore and Mike Cole of Maryland rating close behind.

Chris Johnson of Southern California and Robin Lingle of Missouri are co-favorites in the mile.

Wisconsin and MSU rate as the top Big Ten entries after finishing 1-2 in team standings at the league meet. The Badgers and Spartans led all squads in first-place finishes with four spots.

Evidence Against Generals Known For Weeks--Romney

Gov. George Romney said Thursday the basic findings of an auditor general's report that resulted in two National Guard generals being suspended "had been available for some weeks" before action was taken Oct. 8. Romney made the statement at the executive hearings into the so-called guard scandal which resumed before a full house after a three-week recess.

Engineers Set Seminar Today

Paul A. Beck, professor in the Department of Mining Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineering, University of Illinois will be the speaker at a seminar at 3 p.m. today at 146 Engineering Building.

His topic will be "The Electronic Structure of the F.C.C. of Allotment and Transition Elements." The seminar will be sponsored by the College of Engineering.

Romney is holding the hearings to determine the fate of Maj. Gen. Ronald D. McDonald, state adjutant general, and Brig. Gen. Carson Neifert, quartermaster general. They were relieved of duties temporarily when the auditor general's report disclosed alleged irregularities in the military establishment.

Robert Hovey of the auditor general's office testified that the complete audit has not been finished and the interim report which went to Romney was a recapitulation of preliminary findings.

Hovey said he was directed late in the afternoon of Oct. 6 of last year to have the report ready by the next morning.

Defense Attorney Thomas R. McAllister, Bad Axe, who is defending McDonald, brought out that Hovey and several other members of the department and two persons from Romney's office worked until 3-4 a.m. on the crash report.

Romney interrupted the proceedings and said the deadline on the report came at his request.

"My heavy schedule had made it urgent that I deal with this matter at this time. Basic findings had been available for some weeks."

"I have worked many times later than he talked about as governor of this state. If this is wrong, it's wrong. But I don't want these hearings to get sidetracked on issues that are not pertinent," the governor said.

Rand Advises Students

Get Summer Jobs Now

The best time to look for a summer job is right now, said Tom Rand, assistant director of the Placement Bureau, in a speech to students at Bailey Hall Wednesday night.

If you're interested in making money over the summer, Rand said, it is a good idea to get a job in your home town and live at home. The break between winter and spring terms is an excellent time to see employers. It is always better to have a personal interview for a job than to write a letter, Rand said.

There are many summer jobs available at camps and resorts in most parts of the country, Rand said. The Placement Bureau has catalogs containing information about these jobs.

So far about 25 camps and resorts have said that they will be interviewing for summer jobs spring term, Rand said. Students who want to interview should check the Placement Bureau bulletin that comes out every week. The State News also prints lists of interviews.

In addition, the Placement Bureau also has catalogs or folders containing information on jobs in business, industry or government, Rand said. Information on secretarial work is also available for women.

A few major fields offer special summer training programs, Rand said. The Placement Bureau has catalogs of summer jobs for hotel and restaurant majors, packaging majors and engineering majors who have completed their junior year.

Congress Approves Final $4,577 Budget

Student Congress approved a $4,577 budget at its final meeting Wednesday night.

Appropriations for the general fund are equipment, maintenance and repair, $15; telephones $445; postage, $120; labor, $1,740; supplies, $500.

Other allotments are academic affairs, $50; elections, $5; inter-university affairs, $10; International Cooperative Committee, $442; National Student Association, $80; president's business and hospitality, including a trip to the Big Ten presidents conference, $300; Spartan Spirit, $175; and student government services, $595.

Credit Union Spirit Shown

MSU employees showed their enthusiasm for their credit union not only by the record attendance at Monday's meeting, but also by volunteering 500 hours of preparation to make it a success. The 1,432 voting members attending the meeting was a success in itself compared to last year's 500 person attendance.

"The people loved it," said Bill Kenney, director of the education committee responsible for the promotion of the meeting. The entertainment and door prizes were presented this year because the board felt the 6,000-person membership merited more than the detailed business resumes presented in past annuals.

Only 1 In 25 New Products Is Success

NEW YORK--Only one in 25 new products test marketed this year will be successful, an MSU marketing expert predicted here Thursday.

Thomas A. Staudt, chairman of MSU's Department of Marketing and Transportation Administration, noted that the failure rate of new products is on the upswing, and penalties for such failures are becoming more severe.

Addressing the Columbia University Executive Development Program, Staudt noted that of every 26 new products that complete technical development, 23 will fail.

Despite this high risk, he added, business firms are relying increasingly on new products to provide corporate growth.

He reported that in 1957 about 60 per cent of American business sales came from products that were not on the market 10 years earlier.

By 1970, Staudt estimated, this nation's business firms will realize about 70 per cent of their sales from products developed since 1960.

He noted that new products are taking a heavy toll on successful businesses. Only 15 per cent of the 200 fastest growing companies in the 1940's remained on the list in the 1950's, he pointed out.

The attrition will be even higher during this decade, he said, because successful companies will move into unfamiliar fields where they "lack specialized managerial and marketing competence."

Staudt said it is becoming more risky to enter new market areas because of "automation investment requirements and the shortened lead time for competitors to match market offerings."

"The leisurely process of orderly market development based upon secure patent protection," he noted, "is no longer realistic."

He warned that having too many product development projects is as dangerous as having too few projects.

Staudt proposed that companies adopt a product review process that allows commercially unattractive projects to be killed at the earliest time possible.

He said that executives tend to "become emotionally committed" to expensive projects, and hesitate to kill them at the last hour because it implies "poor judgement" somewhere along the line.

As a result, he continued, the "action environment" in such cases is "to attempt success at all costs."

Staudt suggested that careful planning, analysis and review are essential if the uncertainty of new product development "is to be kept within tolerable limits."

Once a new product is launched, he concluded, its success will depend to a large extent on "a certain amount of plain good fortune" and the backup of a sales organization "with a deep will to win."

Harris Wires Johnson, Wallace On Selma

All University Student Government President Bob Harris has sent telegrams requesting civil rights action to President Johnson and Alabama's Gov. George Wallace in response to a special telegram from Martin Luther King.

King's telegram reads as follows: "The time is now for the nation to respond to the vicious maltreatment of defenseless citizens of Alabama, because of their desire to vote."

P.S.--Hannah Really Exists

Four freshman coeds from Fee Hall wrote a letter to the State News recently asking if there really was a President Hannah.

"We realize that it's easy to get lost in a large university, but the president...?" the letter said.

Well, the lost was found Wednesday when President Hannah treated the letter writers to a luncheon at Kellogg Center to let them know that he really did exist.

"Yes, there is a President Hannah," said one of the coeds after the luncheon, "and he's a very interesting and wonderful person."

The coeds were: Sara Clavez of Maine, N.Y., Mary Jo Martintson of Niles, Judi Roser of Detroit, and Deborah L. Roundtree, of River Rouge.

Population Problems Discussed

The complex problems of world overpopulation must not be put off, said Dr. Phillip R. Lee of the Agency for International Development.

Lee, talking before the MSU Preclinical and Premedical Society Thursday in the Engineering Auditorium said instant solutions neither exist nor are in sight.

"It is our objective to move ahead with careful and deliberate consideration of all economic, social, and human relations involved," Lee said.

However, planned parenthood is not the answer according to Lee.

"The Agency for International Development does not advocate family planning or any other method of family planning," he said.

However, in the past several years national population programs have been developed in seven Asian countries.

"In some countries major programs are carried out primarily by private organizations with government permission and support," Lee said.

AID receives many requests for assistance and has in the past contributed greatly to the institution of world health programs, Lee said.

"Since 1962, AID has encouraged the collection and analysis of population growth data and study of attitudes about family planning," he said.

Different 'Brother'

DEL AWARE, Ohio (UPI)--Two fraternities at Ohio Wesleyan University have come up with a novel idea--pleading girls to create the idea was a joke, but one fraternity wants to "force" a year-old Sandy Mollister, now a high school student, a lifetime member.

Plastic Edges Out Metal In Auto 'Body'

Technical advances, speedier production techniques and lower costs indicate plastics are on the verge of invading automotive application areas heretofore confined to metals, according to Holger Ridder, editor and publisher of automotive bi-weekly newsletter, Ridder Reports.

An example of growing automotive interest in plastics is the record number of resin suppliers and fabricators who exhibited at the annual Detroit Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) meeting in January.

Future use of plastics in the auto industry runs the gamut from today's exterior and interior trim to hub caps, rocker panels, front grilles, optic surface headlight lenses, trunk lids, trunk shell assemblies, engine hoods, body panels, fuel tanks and fender skirts, Ridder said.

Fiberglass-reinforced plastics already have gained a price edge over aluminum and steel with a steady series of price drops because of new automated production facilities.

U.S. Rubber's "ABS Kralastic" allows tooling costs as much as 70 per cent below metal. Kralastic can be painted, vacuum metalized or electroplated.

ABS parts now in production or being evaluated for 1966 and later models include door lock buttons, door handles, arm rests, lamp housings, wheel covers, gear shift and turn signal knobs, window frames, name plates and exterior and interior trim.

Plastic trunk lids, trunk shell assemblies, engine hoods, front grilles, body panels and other outside auto parts are considered forthcoming on 1966 and later models.

Rohm and Haas has developed an optic surface plexiglas headlight lens accurately controlled to reduce glare substantially. Car makers and lighting equipment suppliers are now testing the lenses.

Plexiglas rocker panels which incorporate reflective safety strips and courtesy lights have been developed.

Then there is a "wall-to-wall" tail light section, including tail lights, back-up lights, brake lights and sequential turn signals.

According to Ridder, almost every day sees news of sizeable expansion of plastic production facilities, here and overseas.

Continued expansion of plastic usage will have an impact on the metals industry, tool and die shops, metal stamping plants, body repair shops, where new techniques and new equipment needed, and changes in such items as car polishes and waxes.

Plastic tooling costs are lower than for metal and cut to about half the time required for metal.

Plastics are non-corrosive and need less maintenance.

The time schedule for styling changes with plastics is 12 weeks from drawing to the prototype.

New techniques and materials enable plating or painting surfaces the same as metals.

Owens-Corning Fiberglass says the use of fiberglass-reinforced plastics in vehicles rose 16 per cent in 1964 and will go even higher in 1965.

Widespread use of plastic bodies on vehicles is scheduled in the next two years. Development programs are now underway and the first plastic bodies will be in high-performance models such as the Corvette.

EDUCATIONAL EXPERIENCE--Lansing area high school students are learning to instruct the giant 3600 computer in classes held Thursday nights and Saturday mornings. The idea is that computer language is best learned early in life. Left to right are William Wood, Okemos High School; Mark B. Reeve, undergraduate assistant; Phil Omer, Waverly High School; James H. Davey, instructor; Phil Hopkins, Waverly; and Sandy Huntington, Waverly.

Good Program Is To Start Computing In High School

"The proper time to learn computer programming is in high school," says Charles F. Wrigley.

"Learning computer language is like learning a foreign language," according to the director of the MSU Computer Institute for Social Science Research.

"It requires no prerequisites, it is on about the same level of difficulty, and it is easier to learn early in life."

Confirming his statement are 30 Lansing-area high school students who have been taking a special Evening College course on computer programming which he arranged.

These students will be able to start computer programming at an advanced level when they start college, notes Wrigley, a professor of psychology at MSU.

Some of them could even find jobs as computer programmers without going to college, he points out.

Wrigley said the decision to offer a special course for high school students was made after a number of them showed up for a course open to the general public last summer.

"We are always short of persons who know how to use a computer effectively," Wrigley notes. "We want to teach as many people as we can because we are moving into a world where there will be tens or even hundreds of thousands of computers."

"The high school students who have taken the course have learned a powerful skill very early."

"It would be a good thing if high schools could teach computer programming but unfortunately they cannot afford the computer. This is why universities should offer the opportunity."

Graduate assistant James H. Davey has taught students enrolled in the MSU course to use the Control Data Corp., 3600, the fastest computer available on any campus, to solve a number of simple problems.

For instance, their first problem was to write a program which would enable the computer to determine the average age of four classes of 10 students each.

The programs are written by coding the information on punched cards. The information is then transferred to magnetic tape and fed to the 3600 by Computer Laboratory staff.

Another problem was to use the computer to determine the winners of elections to three offices and also check on the validity of votes cast.

The final problem was to have the computer determine the winner of a five-handed poker game.

High school students who wanted to take the course were required to write a letter explaining their reasons. One student summed up the answers when he replied:

"First, the knowledge acquired would be invaluable. "Second, I think this is a great opportunity for me to get into computers. "Last, I think that being able to write a program on a computer would be a lot of fun."

While the course is fun for many of the students, it also involves a lot of hard work. Wrigley notes that of 45 students who enrolled, only 30 attended regularly for the whole course.

However, he noted, most of those who dropped out did so because of conflicting interests rather than lack of ability.

The course has included a Monday evening lecture-discussion class and a Saturday morning laboratory session in which the students actually put their programs on cards.

The answers, neatly printed in a few seconds by the 3600, were returned on the following Monday.

Two of the students who took the class -- Thomas J. Ferris of Eastern High School and Jack H. Ford of Waverly High School -- had previous experience. They had worked for Wrigley during the summer, actually programming his studies concerning voting blocs in the United Nations.

State House Debates

Bank Holidays Questioned

A bill allowing banks to open on Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday and Veterans' Day when these legal holidays fall on a Monday or Friday is presently before the state House of Representatives.

However the bill will not force banks to open on these days. The officers of the bank itself will have the final decision.

Rep. H. Arnett, R-Kalamazoo, said that the bill protects people who have to pay bills on holidays. These people would be able to withdraw money or cash checks which they would need to pay bills.

"We like to know the bank is there to serve us when we need it," he said.

"I will vote for the bill because it does something for the public," he said.

Another argument to keep the banks open was that if banks close employees have twice as much work to do on the next day.

One reason why banks are closed on these holidays is to make people remember the significance of these days in history.

Rep. Robert Mahoney, D-Detroit, said that the employees of the banking industry want these holidays and that it is unfair to take away their privileges.

It was argued whether the bank is there to serve public interest. If the bank serves public interest, all banks would be open on Saturday, when businessmen need it most. But it serves only its own best interests in not being open. This way the bank employees don't have to pay time and a half.

It was also noted that it is an imposition for people to go to the bank expecting it to be open and find it closed.

In Michigan, also, any bill which falls due on a legal holiday is payable the day after.

Rep. George Edwards, D-Wayne County, the chairman of the Private Corporations Committee, reminded the House that the people are asking a service from the banks and that this bill is only seeking to render this service when the people need.

The bill will be debated again because Rep. Allen, R-Gratiot County, who introduced the bill, was not on the floor of the House to defend it.

Rep. Edwards said he presented the bill in a rough draft form because he knew it would need "airing" on the House floor before revision in committee.

Election Held At W. Shaw

West Shaw elected John Mungeon, Fairfax, Va., sophomore, as its new president last week in its annual winter term election.

Dave Davis, Grand Haven sophomore, is the new vice-president.

They replace outgoing hall officers Gary Salk, Rochester junior, and Bill Kaiser, Clinton sophomore.

The new officers will assume their positions spring term.

A banquet held in the small dining room of West Shaw Tuesday night honored hall manager Peer Holtkamp. He is leaving to assume a similar position at Wonders Hall.

Ray Hopper, food service manager at Owen Graduate Hall, will take over Holtkamp's position.

For the 15th consecutive term West Shaw was the winner of the All-University Residence Hall Scholastic Award. The hall average was 2.52 for fall term.

Japanese Art Dates Extended

The Japanese art collection of netsuke figurines will be on display in Kresge Art Center until March 21 instead of March 14, as previously announced.

About 40 per cent of the collection belongs to Albert A. Schulke, chief cyclotron engineer, who has spent 12 years collecting them in Japan, New York and San Francisco.

The rest of the figurines belong to Max Risch of St. Louis, Mo., who contributed them for the display.

Attorney Discusses Legislation

Employment, education and housing were the three major areas of civil rights legislation discussed by Stuart J. Dunning, Lansing attorney, at the Sigma Nu Fraternity house Wednesday night.

Dunning, a member of the NAACP and the American Civil Liberties Union, said that while disputes in employment, and education have been legally solved, the housing codes are still the main problem. These laws, which confine Negroes to "ghettos", continue to cause segregation in education. Dunning cited the Lincoln Grammar School in Lansing as an example of this.

Ship Chaplain 'Beggs' Question Of Baseball

ABOARD USS HANCOCK F -- The Protestant chaplain aboard this aircraft carrier smokes cigars and loves to talk baseball.

But because Lt. Cmdr. Wendell R. Beggs was a baseball announcer before he turned to the ministry, that's understandable.

Now his job is a different one. Ministering to men aboard this fleet carrier in the South China Sea, off Viet Nam.

Beggs, born and raised in Le Mars, Iowa, studied business and advertising at Drake University. While there he was asked to become a baseball announcer. After a short stint announcing Class B ball he moved to Sioux City, Iowa, and moved into Class A ball announcing.

At the same time Beggs had been studying for the ministry and was committed to spend some time with a seminary. The stocky announcer with a perpetual 5 o'clock shadow had to choose--baseball or the ministry.

He chose the church and spent three years as a minister at Sioux City, before taking a commission as a Navy chaplain.

Since he joined the Navy in 1956, Beggs has been home only two years, but he said he finds a challenge in being a Navy chaplain that he never found in civilian life.

Much of Beggs' time is spent in counseling men aboard the Hancock. His toughest job is acting as a liaison between the man at sea and the man's family thousands of miles away.

For the married man, Beggs said, it is a never ending problem of being away from home.

For all the men, mail from someone they know and love is vital. It is by far the biggest morale factor in the fleet.

Beggs said men come to see him nearly every day, asking why they aren't getting mail from home or discussing family problems with him. During the destructive storms and floods on the West Coast, at least 15 men were visiting him daily.

Beggs likes to get wrapped up in his memories of baseball days, when he watched sandlot rookies become stars, men like Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves and Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs.

Meanwhile, the war in Viet Nam is never far away.

Workshop Scheduled

Leadership development will be stressed at the annual Conference of the Michigan Federation of Temple Sisterhoods on campus April 26-28.

About 75 local officers, board members and potential leaders will attend. A general session on leadership will be followed by concurrent workshops on social action, program planning and working with youth.

The Conference is sponsored by the MSU Committee on Church Related Programs.

Chi Alpha Meeting

Holy Spirit Discussion Topic

The Holy Spirit will again be the topic of tonight's Chi Alpha meeting at 8 p.m. in 36 Union.

The speaker this evening will be Ronald Kangas, a Christian educator from Detroit.

Kangas was a student at Princeton University when an extraordinary moving of the Holy Spirit took place, resulting in many experiences of "glossolalia," or "speaking with other tongues" among Christian students there.

This amazing occurrence, similar to the one described in the Book of Acts in the New Testament, received nationwide attention of press, radio and magazine.

In the Biblical account of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, known as Pentecost (because it occurred 50 days after the feast of the Passover), 120 believers, among them the original 12 disciples of Jesus Christ, received the "baptism of the Holy Ghost."

After this experience, the people had power to witness for Christ, and to preach the gospel message.

Kangas received a B.A. degree from Wayne State University in 1961, graduating magna cum laude, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He then became a candidate for the ministry in the United Presbyterian Church, and in 1964 he graduated with a B.D. degree from Princeton Theological Seminary. As an undergraduate he was an honors major in literature, and in seminary he concentrated on New Testament theology.

The officers and members of Chi Alpha feel that the message of Christ is pertinent today to all who are seeking the truth. Fundamental in their belief is the role of the Holy Spirit in the life of the Christian believer. This role is that of teacher, comforter, guide and source of strength to live and work for Christ.

"We have a work to do for Christ on this campus," says Joe Burek, Dearborn sophomore and president of the group. "We are trusting God for the strength to do this work."

Each Chi Alpha meeting this term has dealt with some aspect of the Holy Spirit and His dealings with men. This theme will not end with tonight's last meeting of the term, but will continue into spring term's meetings.

The keynotes of the group will be action and assurance. As expressed in Kangas' words, "I am looking forward to speaking to your group and I know that Jesus Christ will be present by the action of the Holy Spirit."

Faith On Campus

Why I Believe In CSR

By Mary Fischer

The critics of American society have lamented loud and long the apathy that they see. They have pleaded with citizens to really care about what goes on about them, and warned them of the consequences.

"Still people continue to tighten the strings on their pocket books as time for school improvement comes around, vote for Smith because he is so handsome or Jones because he has such a nice smile and, because it rained that day, just not make it to the polls at all thinking that their one little vote 'doesn't count anyway.'"

What is true for the nation is also true, on a smaller scale, for the University, for this is where apathy, if it is going to be seen at all, begins. If we do not learn to have an interest in affairs which involve us here, there will be little difference when we take our places in the world of business.

I see in the CSR a group of students who are genuinely interested in the affairs of the University. They have found something which they believe needs correcting and, instead of complaining to their roommates about it, have gone ahead to see if anything could be done.

The process is a slow one, and there is no doubt that mistakes will be made. There is no such thing as "instant knowledge." But the important thing here is that an attempt is being made. You will find no apathy connected with the CSR, because there people care about what happens.

What, you may ask, does this have to do with "Faith On Campus?" In answer to this inevitable question, I am forced to ask, what is there that doesn't involve religion?

You have decisions to make and sides to take. In order to do these things wisely, it is necessary to be informed, and to be informed you must be interested enough to become informed.

'Never Dull Moment' Claim Belmont Nuns

BELMONT, N.D. F--Why a young girl would trade formal and football cheers for a nun's habit and the serenity of convent life still is a mystery to many on the outside.

"But to many it really isn't a trade.

"We're not morose. We're very happy," says the Rev. Mother Mary James. "There's never a dull moment around here."

A time for laughter and fun is set aside. The nightly recreation period may be highlighted by a movie, a television show or a game of scrabble.

Private swimming parties or baseball games also are not a rarity. Nuns are seen more and more at public events--even football games.

Yet a lack of understanding, shared sometimes by a nun's friends and family, has bred rumor and legend.

People have suspected nuns of trying to escape life--maybe a disappointing romance--or even of carrying on illicit activities within the walls of the convent.

Mother James, elected to her post of Mother Superior of the Sisters of Mercy, laughed when asked about the rumors.

"Yes, some think that. But we had our choice. This sinfulness could have been done on the outside," she said. "Nobody makes you go into the convent and you can always leave."

Each religious order sets its own qualifications and can ask a girl to leave if it is thought she is not suited for the religious life. In this order she takes her final vows eight years after entering the convent.

"A convent is not a place for misfits," Mother James said. "There is no disgrace at all for those who leave before final vows. They can still live full lives--some marry--after leaving us."

Yet many people cannot see the attraction the convent has. There, vows of poverty, chastity and obedience are substituted for the secular preoccupations with money, sex and individual freedom.

Then why do hundreds of young girls--some shy and retiring, others very outgoing--join religious orders?

The common answer is that they yearned to do more with their life.

Girls who become nuns do not lose their identities or personalities completely in the regulated life of prayer, study and work. They seldom miss the few things they do not have or cannot do as a nun.

Missionary From Colombia To Speak, Present Slides

Mrs. Harold Brabon, a missionary from Colombia, South America, will speak Sunday at 7 p.m. at the East Lansing Trinity Church, 120 Spartan Ave.

Mrs. Brabon is presently on a speaking tour in the United States. With a presentation of color slides, she will give an account of Protestant church progress in and around the thriving metropolis of Medellin, Colombia.

As treasurer of the Inter-American Mission, she represents the North American source of aid to local congregations in South America. In this position, Mrs. Brabon has seen great progress made by these local churches of "nationals" toward becoming self-supporting.

The Inter-American Mission provides material and financial aid to new missions works in Latin America.

The ultimate goal is the establishment of a church of trained nationals, ministering to their own people, and the establishment of an indigenous, or self-supporting, church.

Church Meetings Set

Two churches are planning conferences of ministers and laymen soon. The meetings are to discuss present points of emphasis and problems within the church.

Over 300 pastors and lay leaders of Michigan Church of God congregations will meet for their fourth annual Conference on Christian Ministries on campus Saturday.

"Christian Convictions and Christian Actions" is the theme of the sessions at Kellogg Center.

Workshops will relate Christian convictions to youth programs, work with the aged, mental health, community life, the scientific revolution, group action and legislation.

Other workshops will study pastoral counseling, church history and doctrines, evangelism, creative leadership and communication within the church.

The conference is sponsored by the Michigan State University Committee on Church Related Programs.

Over 1,000 Methodist laymen and ministers from all parts of Michigan will meet on campus April 3 for their 13th annual All-State Conference.

Delivering the laymen's address will be Alfred W. Storey, Evangelical United Brethren layman from Ann Arbor. Speaking for the ministry will be Bishop Dwight Loder of Detroit.

The Michigan and Detroit Conference Boards of Lay Activities, in cooperation with the Michigan State University Committee on Church Related Programs, will sponsor the conference.

Psychiatric Advances Aid Church

The church today looks to psychological advances for aid in helping those who come to it for help. Ministers realize that there is more to religion than the soul and the spiritual life.

The U.S. Catholic, a leading Roman Catholic magazine, quotes Father George Hagmaier, CSP, professor of religious education at Catholic University, as saying that religionists tend to think "that the higher faculties are always in control of the lower; that spiritual helps can solve all behavioral illnesses."

Because mental illness often lies in the confused emotions of a patient it is up to both religious leaders and psychiatrists to help these people become free human beings.

Group Urges Selma Action

The MSU Religious Advisors Association Thursday urged in a resolution that President Johnson do everything in his power to find solutions to the problems in Selma, Alabama.

The religious advisors also sent a letter to the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., assuring him of their "prayerful concern" for those who have been injured and for those who have inflicted injury during the Selma violence.

ARE YOU QUESTIONING YOUR religion?

If old-time creed and dogma are no longer adequate, the religious truths you seek may be discovered through Unitarian-Universalist principles.

THIS MODERN RELIGION OFFERS:

- A rational view of life that accepts truths of science and enlightened scholarship.
- Individual freedom to think out religious beliefs that will help you realize self-fulfillment.
- Ideals and goals that encourage practical brotherhood in all human relationships.

President Hannah And 'Channels'

To the Editor:

Late last week I and several other members of the Committee for Student Rights attempted to make an appointment with President Hannah, hoping to clear up misunderstandings which became apparent with the "Communist-oriented conspiracy" report.

Due to the fact that President Hannah was in Washington Thursday, we were asked to call again on Monday. At this time we were told that it might be possible to make appointments after the president had spoken with Vice President Fuzak, who was to be unavailable for several days.

Wednesday I received a letter dated Monday, which read: "Dear Miss Klugman, "Miss Jameyson has told me of your request for an appointment to visit with me about the Committee on Student Rights (sic).

"It would be inappropriate for me to discuss the Committee on Student Rights with you or with anyone else until the matter has been cleared by Vice President Fuzak and the Dean of Students' Office. They are responsible for all matters having to do with student personnel, rules governing student housing, student behavior, etcetera.

"All that I know about the Committee on Student Rights is what I have read about it in the newspapers.

"I am sure that Vice President Fuzak will be available to talk with you if you wish.

"Sincerely, (signed) John A. Hannah, President."

It appears that President Hannah is avoiding seeing members of CSR, although he was told we had questions only he could answer. CSR is interested in knowing President Hannah's concept of the role of the student in the functioning of the University.

If all Hannah knows about the Committee for Student Rights is what he reads in the newspapers, then he should know that members of the CSR steering committee, myself included, have spoken to Fuzak several times. Fuzak's views have thus become clearer, but Fuzak cannot explain Hannah's views.

It is lamentable that communications at MSU have become so poor that the president of the University can claim to know about what is going on only by what he reads in the newspapers. This makes me question all the more the adequacy of the "channels of communication" which exist.

Perhaps if Hannah were to take time to talk with members of student organizations which represent collective student grievances, perhaps if he were willing to allow student interests to dominate over some others, then true channels of communication would open and satisfactory policies could be instituted.

It is important that CSR communicate with the president of the University to clear up misconceptions which exist. CSR wishes to bring about changes in areas in which students feel change is necessary. We wish to be a constructive force at MSU, not to make "martyrs and heroes" of ourselves.

To refuse us appointments on the basis that we are not "recognized" is to refuse to recognize the fact that we are students. This tends to bear out our claim that effective channels of communication in the University do not exist.

Aid Sought For Malcolm's Kin

To the Editor:

A group of Negro women has formed the Committee of Concerned Mothers to conduct a non-political fund raising drive to aid the widow and children of Malcolm X, Negro leader assassinated in New York Feb. 21.

Headed by Mrs. Juanita Polner, Ruby Dee, Abby Lincoln and Mrs. Michael Olatunji, the group is planning a benefit to provide food, clothing and shelter for the family.

Mrs. Malcolm X, who is expecting a fifth child in November, and her daughters, Attillah, 6; Quiblah, 4; Uiyasah, 2; and Lamumbah, 5 months, are homeless and destitute. A fire bomb recently wrecked their Queens dwelling, and Malcolm had been unable to get life insurance.

Checks payable to "Concerned Mothers" may be sent to P.O. Box 1024, Church Street Station, New York, N.Y.

Regardless of one's opinion of Malcolm's politics, I feel that this is a very worthy cause, and should be brought to the attention of all Michigan State University students.

INSIDE STORY--Members of the MSU chapter of the National Association of Home Builders recently got an inside look at a test house under construction at the U.S. Steel Research Center in Monroeville, Pa. Here Robert Hossli of the firm's Applied Research Laboratory explains the advantages of the new structure to (standing) Lew Kendricks, Don Baumgartner, Kim Wilkins, Ernest Norman and Jerry Teitsma, and (kneeling) Don Kawal and Bob Hossli.

Dow And Corning Honor Department

The Michigan State University chemistry department will be honored by the Dow and Corning Corporations of Midland at an appreciation dinner next Tuesday evening at Dines Restaurant in Lansing.

The event will recognize 15 years of interest, help and participation by the MSU department in organizing and guiding the University's graduate chemistry program in cooperation with the Midland Chapter of the American Chemical Society, Midland Public Schools adult education program and the two chemical firms.

Michigan State has provided teachers for the 74 graduate courses offered at Midland since 1950.

More than 600 students have been enrolled in one or more Michigan State graduate chemistry courses at Midland since Harold Hart taught the first course in physical organic chemistry during the 1951-52 winter term.

Herber D. Doan, president of Dow, and S.L. Bass, president of Dow Corning, will express thanks to the chemistry department, representing MSU as recipients of Dow's appreciation will be MSU's President Hannah, Alexander Popov, chairman of the chemistry department and Dr. Quill.

The following chemistry department faculty members, all of whom are Ph.D.s, have taught one or more terms at Midland: R.K. Birdwhistel, Carl H. Brubaker, Frederic B. Dutton, James L. Dye, H.A. Eick, Gordon L. Goerner, Ralph L. Guile, Harold Hart, R.M. Herbst, G.L. Karabatsos, J.B. Kinsinger, Elmer Leisinger, Alexander Popov, W.H. Reusch, Max T. Rogers, Morley Russel, Robert Schuetz, Kenneth G. Stone, J.C. Sternberg, R.H. Schwendemann and Andrew Timnick.

Spartan Spirit Trophies Go To Bryan, S. Wonders

South Wonders won over West Landon for the women's residence halls Spartan Spirit trophy and Bryan has topped the men's dorms for the honor.

Until the final judging period, South Wonders and West Landon were less than two points apart. They could not have been any closer," said Jim Tanck, Spartan spirit director.

The directors gave an annual special citation to West Landon "in recognition of its outstanding contributions to school spirit."

"I have been amazed at the Spirit they have shown all year, not only in the hall but also at all-University events," Tanck said.

Wonders sponsored a Week of Spirit with activities every night including a bonfire and a pep rally, while Landon had signs on every room in the hall.

Final standings for other halls are in the men's division, Armstrong, 2; East Shaw, 3; East Wilson, 4; West Shaw, 5; West McDonel, 6; South Case, 7; West Fee, 8; Emmons, 9; Snyder, 10; North Wonders, 11; and East Akers, 12.

The women's halls standings are North Case, 3; Phillips, 4; Butterfield, 5; West Wilson, 6; West Mayo, 7; East Fee and West Akers, tie for 8; East McDonel, 10; West Yakeley, 11; East Mayo, 12; East Yakeley, 13; Rather, 14; Williams, 15; Glichrist, 16; Mason, 17; East Landon, 18; Van Hoosen, 19; and North Campbell, 20.

The trophies are based on participation in and sponsorship of all-University events.

"We have been especially pleased with the spirit the halls have shown all year and want to congratulate all of the persons who have worked so hard," said Tanck.

ZTA To Hold State Convention

Zeta Tau Alpha will sponsor a "State Day" convention for all Michigan chapters of the sorority March 26 to 27.

Activities from seven chapters will arrive March 26.

A luncheon for all actives and alumnae will be held Saturday, March 27, at Walnut Hills Country Club.

The speaker will be Laurine E. Fitzgerald, assistant dean of students and associate professor of education.

Mrs. Richard Howland is chairman of the event.

'Jet' Assistant To Speak Here

John Britton, assistant managing editor of Jet Magazine, will speak at the annual matrix luncheon of Theta Sigma Phi, national women's professional journalism sorority, April 10.

Britton will speak on the minority press at the luncheon held in Kellogg Center. Britton has been active on Jet Magazine, a Negro publication, for a number of years.
