

Test Program Approved

"NOW WHAT?"--This student is just one of the many who experience difficulty during registration. It seems as though he is plagued with the age-old problem of not being able to get a necessary class.

Students will have an opportunity to obtain a liberal education in a small college setting and still have the advantages of a large university under an experimental program approved Thursday by MSU's Board of Trustees.

The program includes the partial restructuring of the undergraduate program through identification of a new, semi-autonomous experimental college.

The Board action followed a study by a special faculty committee and unanimous endorsement of the proposal by the Academic Council.

Establishment of the new college will be accomplished through reorganization within the present university structure.

The new college will be housed in one of the existing student living units.

Size of the experimental college will be limited, reaching a maximum of about 1,000 to 1,100 students, Provost Howard R. Neville explained. The first class will consist of about 400 freshmen.

The new college will go into operation "as soon as possible," Dr. Neville indicated. "Curriculum planning will get underway immediately."

He pointed out that one of the recommendations was that the task of curriculum building and program planning should rest with the faculty who will teach in the new program.

The faculty committee suggested that the program should be committed to a broad liberal education with a study in depth in a specific field of concentration. Also, there will be a substantial core of courses required of all students.

A majority of the courses will be offered within the academic residence halls housing the new college.

However, Dr. Neville emphasized that the students will be encouraged to take elective courses and courses along specialized lines of interest in both the new college and the larger university.

The students will also be encouraged to participate in all university extracurricular affairs.

The faculty for the new college will be drawn from the existing university structure. They will be appointed on a part-time or full-time basis to the new program and will hold joint appointments in the new college and their respective all-university administrative units.

Dr. Neville noted that a number of forces, including the increasing number of students, are changing the traditional patterns of education. One of the distinct advantages of the new college, he points out, will be the opportunity for curricular experimentation to meet the students' needs.

Closer student-faculty ties will also be fostered under the new arrangement, he pointed out. Michigan State University has already made strides in this direction on a university-wide basis through the development of academic residence halls.

These units are not only living complexes but they also provide faculty counseling and some classroom and laboratory facilities. The new college will be a sophisticated extension of this program.

A.B. Shaw To Head Higher Education Dept.

A former superintendent of schools in Scarsdale, N.Y., editor of two major school administration journals, has been named chairman of the Department of Administration and Higher Education in the College of Education.

The appointment of Archibald B. Shaw, current associate secretary of the American Association of School Administrators, has been approved by MSU's Board of Trustees. Shaw's appointment is effective April 15.

late of the National Education Association.

Before joining the AASA he served for four years as editor of two professional school administration publications, "Overview" and "American School and University."

A 1929 graduate of Bridgewater, Mass., Shaw has the master's degree from Boston University and the doctoral degree from New York University. He also holds an honorary doctorate from Glassboro State College.

After teaching in West Boylston and Winthrop, Mass., he became school principal in Dudley, Mass., in 1932. In 1940 he was appointed junior high school principal in Greenfield, Mass. A year later he became a Boy Scout executive in Worcester, Mass.

In 1952 he conducted for the Carnegie Corporation a survey of faculty strengths in the Harvard Graduate School of Education. Shaw is the author of numerous articles and has written a booklet for an AASA commission on management surveys for schools.

ARCHIBALD SHAW

He succeeds Maurice Seay, who will devote fulltime to his duties as assistant dean of the College of Education and director of the School for Advanced Graduate Studies in Education.

The Board of Trustees also approved the appointment of Max R. Raines as associate professor of administration and higher education.

Raines, director of student affairs and assistant dean of students at Flint Community Junior College since 1956, will work in MSU's program to train community and junior college administrators. The program is financed by a grant from the Kellogg Foundation.

Shaw, who will also hold the rank of professor, has been associate secretary of the American Association of School Administrators (AASA) since 1963.

The association, headquartered in Washington, D.C., is an affiliate of the National Education Association.

Gifts and grants totaling $1,954,604.92 were accepted Thursday by the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

Included were two grants from the Agency for International Development. One of them is for $355,000 will be used under the direction of Ralph H. Smuckler, acting dean of International Programs, to continue MSU's program at the University of Nigeria.

The other AID grant, $288,000, will be used under the direction of Smuckler and Thomas K. Cowden, dean of agriculture, to develop the Balcarce Agricultural College and the Balcarce Experiment Station into a land-grant type college of agriculture in Argentina.

The National Institutes of Health granted $329,000 to be used for partial support of the $4.5 million Food Science Building. The major cost of the building is being born by appropriations from the state legislature, including a $750,000 appropriation made last year. Contracts for construction of the building are scheduled to be let next month.

A grant of $259,012 was received from the MSU Development Fund. The grant represents gifts made by friends and alumni of the University in 1964 and will be used for a variety of purposes agreed upon by the University and the Fund.

Max T. Rogers, professor of chemistry, will use a grant of $48,840 from the U.S. Army for basic research on chemical bonding of transition metal ions.

A grant of $36,564 from the Atomic Energy Commission will be used by James L. Dye, professor of chemistry, to continue his studies on electrochemistry and the spectra of metal-ammonia and metal-amine solutions.

Board Opens Three Seats

Three student openings are available on the Board of Student Publications for the 1965-66 academic year.

Interested students of sophomore standing or above may secure petitions in 204 Journalism Building or the Dean of Students' Office in the Student Services Building. Petition deadline is April 20.

The student board selects editors for the MSU Veterinarian, the Wolverine and the Michigan State News. It also has charge of setting policies for campus student publications.

Harry A. Eick, associate professor of chemistry, will continue investigations of rare earth borides carbides and nitrides at high temperatures through an AEC grant of $36,045.

The Gornick Fund of Dearborn made a grant of $30,000 to be used by Ronald H. Nelson, chairman of animal husbandry, to aid in the development of a hereford herd given earlier by the fund, and to support the training of students in beef cattle production.

A grant of $30,000 from the Packaging Foundation, Inc. supports construction of the new building for the School of Packaging.

Richard S. Nicholson, assistant professor of chemistry, will use a $29,891 U.S. Army grant to investigate stereospecific electrode processes.

A gift of $25,208.33 will be used by the university by an alumnus, W.F. Uhl, will be used at the discretion of the Board of Trustees for encouragement of undergraduate students of improvement of the undergraduate program.

The Federal Extension Service made a grant of $25,175 for use by William J. Kimball, associate professor of resource development, to develop an Extension Summer School in community resource development and to assemble and publish resource development information for use by extension workers.

Also accepted by the board were grants for scholarships totaling $125,000, including $39,645.55 at Oakland University.

Miller To Head Mt. Kennedy Study

Maynard M. Miller, professor of geology at Michigan State University, is deputy director of an expedition which will map and conduct scientific studies on Mt. Kennedy.

The 13,900-foot peak in north-west Canada, a few miles from Alaska, was recently named by the Canadian government for the late President John F. Kennedy. The peak was sealed for the first time by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, of New York, the late President's brother.

H. Bradford Washburn Jr., director of the Boston Museum of Science, is in charge of the expedition.

The National Geographic Society is sponsoring the expedition with assistance from the Boston Museum of Science, Michigan State University and the University of New Brunswick.

Miller, who was chief geologist on the American Mt. Everest expedition, and surveyors from the University of New Brunswick, were flown to the mountain by the Alaskan Air National Guard. They will map the mountain and study the glaciology and geology.

An advance party established a camp at the mountain a few days ago. The group was led by Barry Prather, who assisted Miller on the Everest expedition and serves on the staff of MSU's annual Glaciological Institute in Alaska.

Miller, has been conducting glaciological studies on the Juneau Icefield since 1946.

MSU Given $288,000 For Argentina Project

Michigan State University has been awarded a $288,000 grant from the U.S. Agency for International Development for an agricultural education assistance project in Balcarce, Argentina.

The two-year grant was accepted last week by the MSU Board of Trustees. It will be administered jointly by the MSU College of Agriculture and the Office of International Programs.

The federally sponsored project calls for Michigan State to assist in the development of a land-grant type agricultural school and extension service in Balcarce.

Kirkpatrick Lawton, professor of soil science at MSU, has been named project coordinator. Next month he will accompany three MSU faculty members, M. Wayne Adams, crop science; Jacob A. Hofer, animal husbandry; and Leonard R. Kyle, agricultural economics, to Argentina for a detailed analysis of the undertaking.

A chief-of-party is expected to take up the MSU post in Balcarce in mid-summer, according to Lawton.

Michigan State officials will work with representatives of the University of Mar del Plata and the Argentine National Institute of Agricultural Technology in the program aimed at improving Argentina's agricultural economy.

Research, extension and teaching functions of the Balcarce College of Agriculture and the Balcarce Agricultural Experiment Station will be integrated under the new program.

The international development project will also involve participation of Latin American agricultural students and faculty on the MSU campus.

Hughes Appointed Chairman

William N. Hughes, associate professor of German, has been appointed chairman of the MSU Department of German and Russian.

The appointment, effective April 1, was approved Thursday by the University Board of Trustees.

Hughes has been acting chairman of the department since Sept. 1964.

In this position he supervises MSU's academic offerings in German and Russian language and literature. A native of the state of Washington, Hughes joined the Michigan State faculty in 1963. He has taught at Northwestern University, the University of Michigan and Columbia University.

Hughes holds degrees from the University of Washington and Northwestern University.

State Fresh Water Shortage Forecast

Michigan may look to the tributaries of Hudson Bay in Canada as a means of coping with a growing shortage of fresh water which will eventually accompany the population explosion, according to a Michigan State sociologist.

"To be sure," says J. F. Thaden, "Michigan has 11,000 inland lakes, but its future is inextricably bound to the future of the Great Lakes, on which it has 3,121 miles of shoreline."

"Lake levels even now are at an all-time low. As water needs increase with population and industrial expansion, the Water Wonderland (Michigan) might find it necessary to join neighboring states and Canada in a project to siphon water from rivers flowing into the Hudson Bay."

"This water could be diverted into Lake Superior, and on to the other Great Lakes in order to maintain desirable water levels."

Thaden, professor emeritus, Institute of Community Development here, discusses Michigan's future in the March issue of the Michigan Economic Record, a publication of the campus Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

The water situation, Thaden indicates, is only one of the problems Michigan will have to solve as its population rises.

By the year 2010, he points out, Michigan's population may be as high as 19 million, compared to 7.8 million today.

In only 10 years, Thaden predicts, Michigan's population will be 9,660,000, an increase of 1,840,000 over the present.

"More likely than not," he says, "the additional 1,840,000 will live in the counties already most densely populated. Continued population decline is the most probable trend in a dozen or more essentially rural counties, some of which are already economically depressed areas."

This explosion, Thaden reports, will produce more ordinances and laws to govern the population.

Other changes he sees in Michigan's future involve more parking lots, meters and ramps; extension of utilities; new municipalities and annexations to older ones; high-rise apartment complexes; urban renewal and anti-poverty programs; air and water pollution control; receding water tables and lake shorelines; stricter enforcement of laws and higher penalties for violations; higher taxes and more government services and greater expenditures.

The largest change in population has occurred at the base and the apex of the population pyramid. The number of people 20 years of age and under, according to the last census, increased 44.1 per cent, and those 65 and older increased 38.2 per cent; meanwhile, the population growth in that group which is most productive economically, 20 through 64, increased only 7.9 per cent.

"In a sense," Thaden notes, "breadwinners carried a heavier load in 1960 than they did in 1950."

The changing make-up of the population, Thaden points out, will intensify some problems.

"The demand for educational facilities," Thaden says, "will continue to rise; the need for expansion at the junior college and university levels will be especially tense."

PHILIPP GERHARDT

U.M. Prof Heads 'S' Dept.

Philipp Gerhardt, professor of microbiology at the University of Michigan, has been named chairman of the Department of Microbiology and Public Health at Michigan State University. The appointment is effective July 1.

Gerhardt will succeed Jack J. Stockton, who is resigning as chairman to devote more time to teaching and research.

Gerhardt, who joined the U of M staff in 1953, is noted for his research on the physiology of bacteria, on disease-causing bacteria and on industrial fermentation processes.

In addition to his duties as a professor, he serves as secretary of the American Society for Microbiology and directs the society headquarters in Ann Arbor. As secretary, he is the main administrative officer of the 8,500 member organization.

He is a consultant to the U.S. Army Biological Warfare Laboratories and was the microbiological technical adviser on site during construction of Pine Bluff Arsenal in Arkansas. During this period, he also supervised construction and initial staffing of a $2 million laboratory at the arsenal.

Gerhardt received the Ph.D. degree in 1943, the M.S. in 1947 and the Ph.D. in 1949, all at the University of Wisconsin.

Ford Hits Use Of Sit-Ins, Urges Two-Party Balance

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, Republican leader in the House of Representatives, criticized recent use of sit-ins and demonstrations as "a means of 'fighting a war' for seeing a civil goal."

Addressing Michigan graduates of the winter term commencement exercises, the House Republican congressman said he seriously questioned the right of a "flamboyant, irresponsible mob" to "block a highway" on a public issue.

Ford received the honorary doctor of laws degree at the ceremonies at which degrees were conferred on 945 MSU graduates.

"There is a line of distinction," he said, "between an aroused public conscience and demonstrations of social revolution."

Ford asked, "Are we going to college students protesting alleged abuses of freedom of speech?"

"Does [a demonstration] by more than 100 young, charming young men and women in the Department of Public Health in Washington, D.C., constitute a means of social revolution?"

"Compare that," he said, "with the actions of a community which seeks to win an election by holding a school, or with a group of civil-civilian efforts to change national college policy."

Dealing with more issues for a better part of his career, Ford noted that "we have precedents in the course of the past, by which our country has been settled with dignity and justice."

"This should be the path taken by an aroused citizenry in search of righting a wrong or in seeking a civil goal."

"At the same time," he added, "public officials have the duty to see that laws are properly enforced. Those who are able to act in fulfilling the obligations of their office or who discharge their duties from laws and controversies are indeed citizens."

Ford said that "American democracy is to be strengthened and to be strengthened throughout the country."

Michigan State Flag Will Go 'International'

The Michigan State flag is going "international" this year. The plan to give the flag international flavor was announced by James M. Hare, director of Michigan State University's flag office.

As a preliminary step, Hare said, the flag would be changed to "Operation Europe" but "I suppose it doesn't make sense to change the flag until the group decides to go to the United Nations."

Senate Committee Rejects Request

WASHINGTON--President Johnson's request for wide authority to use emergency aid funds in South Viet Nam was rejected Thursday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

But the group approved a $100 million contingency fund as part of the new foreign aid authorization, or twice the $50 million the President had asked for this purpose. This fund is not earmarked for any specific nation and could be used in various parts of the world.

Spring Bad, And How

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta.--Prepare for a cold, miserable spring and blame the space scientists, says Chief Walking Eagle, an old Indian who gets his weather dope from nature. "White man blames me," he said of his accurate prediction of a long, cold winter. "But I only told what I read in signs (animal pelts, plant life, etc.). Maybe if white man pray more and quit shooting at the moon, the Great Manitou will let up."

Lady Churchill Is 80

LONDON--With her children and grandchildren around her, Lady Clementine Churchill celebrated her 80th birthday Thursday at a gay luncheon party. For dessert they all had Sir Winston's favorite, strawberries and cream.

The party of 20 was an exclusively family affair except for Churchill's secretary, Anthony Montague Browne. It was Lady Churchill's first party since the death of her husband in January and a rare sunny April day smiled on her.

Ex Panamanian President Dies

PANAMA--Former President Tomas Gabriel Duque died of an apparent heart attack Thursday after a long illness. He was 75. Duque, an influential publisher and businessman in Panama, served as President of the republic for a month in 1928. He was also formerly an assemblyman and cabinet member.

Duque retired last year as publisher of the Spanish-English newspaper La Estrella and Star-Herald, which he headed for 50 years. A state funeral is scheduled for today.

Man Provost Lectures

Kazin To Discuss Novelists

Alfred Kazin, critic of American literature and author, will give the Provost Lectures next week on American novelists.

The lectures will be at 4 p.m. in Fairchild Theatre every day except Wednesday. They are being sponsored jointly by All University Student Government and the Honors College.

Kazin has called the series "The Imagination of Society: American Novelists and Story-tellers."

ALFRED KAZIN

He believes modern literature's function is to preserve spiritual and moral values for a meaningful life in a technological age.

John Goss in "Encounter" says, "Kazin would rather get the best out of an author than get the better of him; his aim is to enlarge and exhilarate, and when he dislikes a book he manages to say so without doubling up in paroxysms."

Currently distinguished professor of English at the State University of New York, he has written six books and received both the Guggenheim and Rockefeller Fellowships.

He graduated from Columbia University and has taught and lectured at colleges and universities including Minnesota, California, Harvard, Amherst, Smith and City College of New York.

He contributes regularly to "The Reporter," "The Atlantic Monthly," "Harper's," and The New York Times Book Review.

His works include "On Native Grounds," a discussion of influences on American literature; "A Walker in the City," an autobiographical sketch of New York; and "Contemporaries," analyses of American writers.

Previous Provost Lectures have featured a series of lecturers on a central topic throughout the year. This is the first time that there will be one speaker on a series of topics.

MSU Students Join In Vietnam Protest

Two busloads of MSU students will join an estimated 10,000 marchers April 16-18 in Washington, D.C., to protest against the war in Viet Nam.

The MSU marchers are coordinated by the Ad Hoc Committee for the Viet Nam March on Washington, a group formed during registration to recruit marchers and plan transportation to Washington.

To keep the round-trip fare at approximately $10 per student the Ad Hoc Committee is conducting a fund raising drive. The drive includes appeals to faculty members and the sponsoring of a film and concert.

Sponsored by Students for a Democratic Society, the march will picket the White House and march on the Capitol to present a petition to Congress.

Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, and Washington news analyst I. F. Stone will address a rally during the march.

1965 Catalogs Available For $1

Students may purchase the 1965 edition of the MSU catalog at the International Center Bookstore or at the Union Concession Store. The cost of the new catalog is $1.

Concert Tickets Available

Distribution of tickets for two symphony concerts in the Lecture-Concert series will begin Monday.

Students may exchange Coupon E for a ticket to either the Toronto Symphony concert, Wednesday, or the Detroit Symphony, April 11.

There is a 50-cent charge for each ticket during advance distribution Monday and Tuesday.

Signs Block Right of Way

William K. Harmon, a candidate for municipal judge in Monday's city election, spent a lot of effort putting up 125 campaign signs throughout East Lansing.

But 100 of the signs were taken down by city workers Tuesday at the orders of city engineer Robert L. Eruck.

Most of the signs were located in private yards, but many of them were near roads on the city's right-of-way.

Bruce said the signs were in violation of a city ordinance because they constituted a "public nuisance" near the road.

Area Selma Drive Nets $3,200

MSU students and area residents have contributed more than $3,200 to pay hospital bills for Negroes who were injured by Alabama state troopers in Selma.

The funds have been turned over to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference by Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education.

RIGHT TO VOTE

Complicity during elections breeds representation by default and permits self-perpetuation in office by incumbent candidates. Student demonstrations for the right to vote are being exhibited unless those who can vote take the time to go to the polls.

Out of 1,624 registered student voters, only 31 voted in the February, 1965 primary election.

Please vote for William K. Harmon for Municipal Judge, East Lansing, April 5.

Gym Trio Guns For NCAA Honors

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

There won't be any classes for Dave Price, Tom Hurt and Jim Curzi today. Instead, they'll be trying to give their peers across the country a lesson in winning national titles.

The 23rd annual NCAA Gymnastics Championships begins its preliminary rounds today to see just who are the most physically fit in the nation. Southern Illinois, the defending national champs, are playing host to gymnasts from coast to coast.

Participants were chosen from the results of the regional meets held two weeks ago. The Mid-east Regional, held at Iowa City, saw Curzi walk off with the high bar and parallel bar titles, as well as taking third in all-around.

Price, the 1965 Spartan captain, tied for fifth in the high bar while Hurt, fresh from his victory on long horse in the Big Ten Meet, placed fifth in that event.

State placed eighth in the nationals last year but is out of the running this time around. A new rule stipulates that only conference champs and selected independents will compete for the national team title. In the conference, State placed third behind Michigan and Iowa.

Joining Curzi on the list of all-around qualifiers are Fred Roethlisberger of Wisconsin and Glen Gailis, Big Ten champ, of Iowa from the Mid-East division. From the East it's a trio of Penn Staters--Ed Isabelle, Mike Jacobsen and Steve Cohen.

The Midwest is sending Jerry Fontana of Iowa State, Terry Higgins of the Air Force Academy, and Steve Doty of Arizona, while Rick Field of California and Bob Hall and Mike Lovell, both of Washington, will represent the West.

Michigan, the conference champ, has 10 representatives entered. Headlining the Wolverine pack is the trampoline trio of Gary Erwin, John Hamilton and Fred Sanders. Erwin will be defending his national title. Charles Fuller and Mike Henderson will be competing in floor exercise. Also competing for the Blue will be Alex Freeska and John Cashman, high bar; Rich Blanton and Gary VanderVoort, rings; Ken Williams, parallel bars.

Glenn Gailis of Iowa took individual honors at the Big Ten Meet as he swept four titles. The Hawkeye star stole the thrones from under Curzi in high bar and all-around and from Mike Henderson in floor exercise, as well as successfully defending his side horse crown and taking the ring spot vacated by Dale Cooper.

THE BIG PUSH--With the outdoor track season scheduled to begin in two weeks the Spartan track team has been hampered by the recent poor weather conditions. These anxious cindermen, tired of indoor practice, are making a break for the outside.

2,200 Preps Invade Jenison For Weekend Track Tourney

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Writer

MSU will play host to more than 2,200 prep trackmen this Friday and Saturday for the second annual Lansing State Journal-Spartan High School Relays at Jenison Field House.

Some 139 high schools throughout the state will be represented at the meet, comprised of 60 Class A teams, 71 B and eight C. Last year, only 112 schools took part in the activities with 1,700 athletes running.

Returning this year are defending team champion Ann Arbor and runner-up Lansing Sexton in Class A, and defending team champion River Rouge in Class B. Jim Haviland of Waterford Kettering and Bob Johnson of Vassar, individual winners from the 1964 contest, will make return appearances at the meet. Haviland took the pole vault competition while Johnson was victorious in shot put.

Class A and B high school teams within a 150-200-mile radius were invited to participate in the relays, with the exception of the Detroit area schools. Detroit teams can only participate in state-sponsored tournaments outside of a 20-mile limit, while MSU's relays are only state-sanctioned.

"We think we'll have one of the largest and finest meets of this kind in the nation," remarked Jim Gibbard, State's assistant track coach and meet director.

"Last year, the Class A winner scored 25 points and the B winner scored 40 1/2. This time, with more entries and better balance, the total could go lower and competition figures to be tighter," he said.

Gibbard said that Roosevelt in Class A and Rouge in Class B are among the top prep teams in the tournament.

Along with Haviland and Johnson, two other outstanding athletes in the meet will be Dean Rosenberg, a miler from North Muskegon, and Arnie Williams, from Kalamazoo. Both Rosenberg and Williams are favored to walk off with individual honors, according to Gibbard.

Dean Rosenberg, a miler from North Muskegon, and Arnie Williams, from Kalamazoo Central, are favored to walk off with individual honors.

Team champions will be determined in 13 events in both classes. Five of the races will be of the relay variety, including the two-mile, sprint medley, 880, shuttle hurdle and mile.

Titles will be up for grabs in shot put, pole vault, broad and high jump. Other races include the mile, 60-yard dash and 70-yard low and high hurdles.

All events will be scored on a five point basis.

The meet will begin Friday at noon with preliminaries in Class B, with the finals slated for 6 p.m. The same schedule will be followed on Saturday for the Class A teams.

Special Class C races will be run Friday, just prior to the B competition. They will include only the 880 relays and the mile.

The tournament, which is a relatively recent innovation, is the product of the combined efforts of State's athletic department and the Lansing State Journal.

"We in the Athletic Department felt the need for the promotion of track throughout the state," explained Gibbard. "We talked to the Journal and received enthusiastic assistance from it."

Gibbard pointed to the noticeable increase in the number of teams participating in the relays this weekend, over last year, as an indication of the growing interest in the relays.

"We feel that the relays will continue to grow in both popularity and success," he said.

General admission for each of the four sessions is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Films Show 'S' Second In Track By Half Point

A Big Ten championship just about wiggled in the back door at MSU over spring break.

After a review of the Big Ten indoor track films Commissioner Bill Reed changed the order of finish in two events, boosting the Spartan point total by two. The additional points left State only a half a point shy of Big Ten winner, Wisconsin. The Badgers won the championship with 46 points, while runner-up State originally finished with 43-1/2.

The ruling came three weeks after the meet was held at Champaign, Ill. Spartan coaches Fran Ditttrich and James Gibbard had protested the placings in two events and had asked for a check of meet films.

Clinton Jones was advanced from fifth to fourth in the 70-yard low hurdles, while Jim Summers moved from sixth to fifth place in the 300-yard dash.

State's gain was Minnesota's loss. Minnesota dropped the two points that were awarded to State and slipped from a fourth place tie with Michigan to fifth.

Fencers' Last Date Saturday

By PHIL LOOMIS
State News Sports Writer

State's fencing team finally gets its chance to perform before the home folks Saturday, but it may be an anti-climatic show.

The Spartans will clash with the University of Detroit and Indiana University in the Men's IM Sports Arena, at 10:30 a.m.

The three schools were originally scheduled to meet Feb. 27, but due to a heavy snow storm the meet was postponed.

The reason for the long postponement was due to the fact that the Big Ten Conference and N.C.A.A. championship meets were scheduled for the following two weeks.

But with finals and vacation out of the way, the three schools were able to reschedule the meet Saturday.

Coach Charles Schmitter holds an indifferent attitude about the effect of the long delay on his team's performance.

"Sometimes it helps and sometimes it doesn't," he said. "It'll be hard to get steamed up, but I think we'll be reasonably competitive."

Only one lineup change will be made on the squad which has carved itself a 6-4 dual meet record in regular season matches, placed fifth in the Big Ten meet, and finished 24th in the NCAA championships.

Sabreman Clarence Chappie was ruled ineligible and will be replaced by John Cooper.

Bryan Kutchins, who finished 22nd in the NCAA meet, Steve Vore, and Ronald Macomber will fence in foil. Don Lund, Capt. Joel Serlin, and Bill Sierbert will fence in epee. Mark Haskell, a ninth-place finisher in the NCAA meet, and Mel Laska will round out the sabre contingent.

TEED OFF! The weather isn't exactly in harmony with the upcoming spring sports season. However, Ted Bazil, Dearborn Heights freshman, braves the snow and cold to get in some golfing practice.

M.S.M.E., Wayne State Univ.

At Ford Motor Company, perspective results from the necessary training, background and further education a college graduate needs to obtain the advancement he wants. Perspective, in a painting, is the illusion of depth. With us there's no illusion.

Perspective at our Company often starts with the two-year College Graduate Program. While in the Program, a graduate progresses through a series of developmental moves. He becomes familiar with our business. Takes on ever-increasing amounts of responsibility. And accelerates according to his own application and ability. We want him to succeed. Because the greater his success, the greater ours will be. One recent graduate, Carl Marcucci, typifies this success story.

Since joining us in 1960, Carl has gained wide experience in our Quality Control Office. For example: He put together a coordinated program to test a new engine... served as a liaison between one of our foundries and our manufacturing plants... and represented us with vendors who supply our manufacturing plants. In addition, through our Employee Continuing Education Plan, Carl furthered his academic accomplishments by earning his Master's Degree. Carl presently is taking a seminar course to qualify as a registered professional engineer. This added knowledge and the many work situations he encountered have greatly enlarged Carl's perspective. Make him better able to reach the right decisions in his current job--Section Supervisor of a Quality Control Department with 52 people under him. This is not an isolated case. Many college graduates have grown just as rapidly. If you want a future as big as you'd like it to be, see our representative when he visits your campus.

... And Players

Anderson Loses Post

plete the recruiting duties he began shortly after the close of this year's campaign.

The Spartan team of 1965 was hampered by lack of height, depth and experience.

Despite an overall 5-18 record, second worst in Spartan annals, Juniors Stan Washington and Bill Curtis and senior Marcus Sanders consistently ranked among the top scorers in the Big Ten.

The return of Washington and Curtis next season and several good freshman prospects caused Anderson to say late in the season:

"This is the last year we'll have to suffer."

The Spartans experienced an 11-game conference losing streak which they finally snapped with a 110-92 victory over Purdue.

Anderson's 11-year record at MSU was a so-so 125-124 but his tenure was far from average.

In 1957 he guided the Spartans to a berth in the NCAA play-off semifinals in Kansas City after the Green and White had finished in a tie for the league championship with Indiana.

At Kansas City, MSU placed fourth after suffering a 54-53 setback to North Carolina in triple overtime.

The '57 squad possessed some of the finest players ever to don a Spartan uniform—All-American Johnny Green, Jack Quiggle, Larry Hedden, Tom Rand and Bob Anderregg.

Green, Rand, Anderregg and Horace Walker paced another great Spartan team two years later.

MSU won undisputed possession of the league crown in 1959 but the season marked the turning point in the recent history of Spartan basketball.

Only the 1964 team was able to avert a second-division conference finish after that and the era was marked by a nine-game losing string in '65 and the 11-game stretch this year.

Anderson came to MSU from Bradley University. His 20-year career has also included stints at Drake and Great Lakes.

His basketball philosophy consists of a fast-break offense, when possible, which emphasizes quickness and ball-handling rather than sheer speed.

Anderson's overall coaching record shows 331 victories and 208 setbacks.

Reared in Gary, Ind., Anderson graduated from Stanford University in 1940 where he compiled an outstanding cage record and was elected to the school's athletic hall of fame.

Commenting upon his success at MSU, Anderson said:

"To the man who will replace me, I wish not only success, but good fortune as well, and I want to extend my complete cooperation to him in order to make his job a happy and healthy one."

Dobrei Hurls 4-0 Shutout At Duke

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—Left-hander Doug Dobrei allowed just two hits while striking out seven as baseball coach Danny Litwhiler's Spartans wiped out Duke University 4-0 Thursday in Tallahassee.

The win gives State a 7-3 mark in its spring training trip through the south lands.

Dobrei didn't let a man past second and looked impressive in blanking the Blue Devils. It was only the second time out for the hard-throwing senior, whose record is now 1-0.

Senior shortstop Bruce Pettibone led the nine-hit Spartan attack with three safeties to boost his spring average to a gaudy .500 mark. Pettibone has 10 hits in 32 plate appearances.

The Spartans scored twice in the fourth inning on singles by third baseman John Freidenbach and outfielder Dick Billings plus a two-run error and came back with two more in the fifth to round out the scoring. Biedenbach's triple in the fifth was the big blow in the rally.

Surgeon Served 43 Years

Tribesmen Honor Seagrave

NAMHKAM, Burma --Thousands of hill people poured into this small Burman town on the edge of Red China Tuesday to pay respects to Burma surgeon Gordon Seagrave, who died Sunday.

Shans, Kachins, Karens, Chinese and Burmese--the tribes-people Seagrave had served for 43 years--came by foot, mule and cart to attend funeral services set for Wednesday and burial in a simple grave at his beloved hospital, between his sister, who died in 1951, and his oldest son, who was drowned at the outbreak of World War II.

Despite the seriousness of his illness and a lack of modern medical equipment that might have saved his life, the renowned American missionary doctor stubbornly refused to leave the home he had carved out of the North Burma jungle.

Seagrave's staff dressed his body in his only blue suit and dark blue tie. His body was placed in a coffin in the hall of his small cottage where hundreds of those whose lives he had saved paid homage.

Among the mourners were a few who had crossed the border from Communist China, a stone's throw from the hospital.

A prayer meeting was held Tuesday evening and the hospital's nurses gathered to sing his favorite hymns.

Seagrave's sons John and Sterling and John's wife and two children, who flew here from the United States, participated in the service.

Sterling said the main cause of his father's death was overwork. His 18-hour-a-day schedule throughout his life, which often included five to six major operations daily, had finally taken its toll.

To Revise... Or Reverse?

By George Reynolds

Are the fundamental beliefs of Christianity no longer acceptable in this modern day? Must they be revised to suit more people's minds? What's more, CAN they be revised without changing the doctrines entirely?

An alarming number of influential people are proposing that the doctrine of the Christian message be radically revised to make it more plausible to modern man.

Such men as Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike of California and English Bishop John A.T. Robinson seem to think that modern man is becoming too sophisticated to hold a literal belief in God's Word any more.

Pike has written a book entitled "A Time for Christian Candor", in which he contends that the church has in some ways been obstructing man's belief by clinging to "concepts, words, images and myths developed in past centuries when men were operating under different world-views and different philosophical structures."

Robinson agrees in his book, "Honest to God," by saying that many educated people today reject Christianity "because that cannot accept certain traditional beliefs which were really the envelope in which the message was sent, rather than the message itself."

What must be done then, is to "rethink and restate the unchanging gospel in terms which are relevant to our day," says Bishop Pike.

All this sounds high and noble, but how far does one go in his revision of a gospel which has stood the test for almost 2,000 years? Exactly what does one refer to as the "unchanging gospel?"

One general trend is to move away from the concept of a personal God toward a more abstract and impersonal "Ground of Being."

This appears to me to be counter to every word I have ever read in the Bible, in both Old and New Testaments. Is this "unchanging gospel?"

In the Bible, that part of God's revelation which we have had down through the ages, a personal God created all things. He then revealed himself to Abraham in a personal covenant.

He spoke to the Israelites through Moses, saying, "I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people." God repeated this same statement 900 years later, through the prophet Jeremiah. Now men want to make a revision of this creed. A reversal is more like it.

A major pillar in the foundation of Christianity is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, and his ascension into heaven. Well, another change the modernizers seem to agree upon is to debunk any Biblical account of a physical miracle--even the resurrection of Christ.

Thus another reversal.

St. Paul said in his first letter to the Corinthians, "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins."

The New Testament contains many warnings to Christians to beware of false doctrines. These warnings apply as much today as they did then, if not more.

The apostles Peter and Paul exhorted the Christians of the young church to maintain a constant vigil and to destroy seeds of false doctrine as they arose.

One of the attributes which has been the strength of the Christian church has been its maintenance of the same basic beliefs, and its rejection of false doctrines, such as Antinomism and Manichaeism.

The new test Christianity faces is the challenge of Modernism.

Priest Warned By Churchmen

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP)--The Rev. Gommar de Pauw, leader of a movement against what he calls "efforts to Protestantize" the Roman Catholic Church, said Thursday he had been cautioned that some of his actions violate directives of Lawrence Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore.

De Pauw said in a statement that the word of caution came from the Rt. Rev. George D. Mulcahy, rector of Mount St. Mary's Seminary, where De Pauw is professor of moral theology and canon law.

He said Mulcahy claimed "to be the official spokesman for His Eminence Cardinal Shehan."

Cardinal Shehan was not immediately available for comment. De Pauw is chairman of the coordinating committee of the Catholic Traditionalist Movement which feels broad changes envisioned as a result of the Ecumenical Council meetings in Rome have generated an "erosion of Catholic doctrine."

The movement, which came to light last Saturday when the group issued a four-page manifesto setting forth its views, objects specifically to recitation of the mass in the vernacular instead of Latin.

In his bold statement Thursday, De Pauw, a Belgian-born priest, said Cardinal Shehan had scheduled a meeting with him here Wednesday, but that the cardinal canceled it at the last minute.

Teacher Marched At Selma Because 'It Was High Time'

"A Negro boy sat beside me in front of the Capitol at the end of the march. His face was frozen at first, and his eyes fled mine. Before long his face became motionless, as if he were filled with a warm glow of confidence, and I had the feeling of watching a bud beginning to flower in the sun."

These are the words of Stuart E. Bruchey, professor of history, who joined the march from Selma to Montgomery, Ala., last week.

Along with about 45 other teachers of American history from across the country, Bruchey walked the last three miles to the Alabama state Capitol.

"It was little and it was late, but at least we were there," he said. "It was high time."

Why did the history professors go to Montgomery?

According to Bruchey, it was partly because they knew this march was one of the turning points in American history, and partly because they responded with curiosity and a sense of adventure.

"But I believe I do not distort the truth in saying that the main explanation of our presence in Montgomery was a moral one. It was time to act, to come out from behind the sanctuary of words," he said.

Negroes cried, "God bless you for coming," from porches, and the orderly procession broke ranks as spectators joined them from the sidewalks, he said.

"I turned to a Negro woman in her forties who had slipped in beside me and asked if she were from Montgomery. 'Yes,' she replied, 'I work as a nurse. I know how hard this is going to be on me because I'm doing this, but I can't help myself. I have to do it. The good Lord will take care of me.'"

Bruchey told of a well-dressed white woman in her fifties who said she had publicly attacked the Ku Klux Klan. She told him her children were ostracized at school and garbage was thrown into her yard at night.

"There are dangers and difficulties ahead," Bruchey said, but it is altogether probable that these will be consumed in the spreading flame of the nation's moral indignation."

HI-HO AND UP SHE RISES--One of the latest construction projects to be started on campus is Hubbard Hall, the 12-story high-rise dormitory, which is being built on East Campus. A special 12-story crane is being used in the construction.

Bad Weather, Late Easter...

Florida Sprees Hampered

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (P)--Bad weather and late Easter holidays have spread the impact of vacationing college students on Florida this spring and helped keep the youngsters in check.

The fact that Easter comes later than usual--April 18--will cut down the crowds usually flocking to celebrate the spring recess at Fort Lauderdale, Palm Beach and Daytona Beach.

The weather at Daytona Beach has helped, too, according to police Capt. W.C. Hall, who pointed out Thursday that rain and cold on both late March weekends kept most vacationing college students inside.

"We have had only a few thousand so far," Hall said, "and I understand most of them are going back to Fort Lauderdale. Daytona Beach is hiring extra policemen and beach lifeguards and arranging to provide entertainment for the collegians."

No vandalism connected to the visitors has been reported in Florida this spring.

"This is a peculiar year and the fluctuation of dates has helped us," said Bob Bronscheuer, recreation director at Fort Lauderdale. With Easter coming late, it gives us a spread of about six weeks from the start of mid-semester vacations until the end of Easter.

Bronscheuer said the mid-semester group had just about cleared out of Fort Lauderdale. These students will have only three or four days off at Easter.

Bronscheuer has a list of college mid-semester and Easter vacation dates, and is prepared for the throngs of visitors.

Supervised entertainment extends from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. daily. In the afternoon, volleyball, basketball and touch football games, string trios and dance contests keep the restless students busy. Two bands provide music for dancing at night.

Bronscheuer estimated that 34,000 to 36,000 college students will visit Fort Lauderdale where spring weather has been fair and mild, in contrast to the cold and rain at Daytona Beach, 234 miles up the Atlantic coast.

Bronscheuer said some students also will go to Gulfport and Biloxi, Miss., and Corpus Christi, Tex., while others will go to Bermuda or the Bahamas.

"They're spreading out," he said.

A growing number of students plan to forsake the sun and surf to give their time and energy to civil rights causes in such varied places as Chicago's slums and Mississippi's back country.

"In general, the students who are going to Florida are a different group from those involved in civil rights protests," Jack Matthews, dean of the University of Missouri, said.

"The Fort Lauderdale crowd is still with us," said a pastor at the University of Illinois. "I think a certain segment of the student body will always want to get away from responsibility."

Abrams Presents Earth Pinpoint In Space

Man's efforts to understand and measure the vastness of space will be retold in the new public program beginning Friday at Abrams Planetarium.

"Pinpoint in Space," focusing on the earth's relative size and location in space, will be presented at 8 p.m. each Friday, 2:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday, and 2:30 and 4 p.m. Sunday.

It will continue through May 16. The program traces man's concept of space from the second-century Ptolemaic system to the 16th-century Copernican theory.

Ptolemy in the second century placed the earth in the center of the universe. His idea held until the 1500s when Copernicus, a Polish astronomer, laid the foundation for modern astronomy by calculating that the earth and other planets revolve around the sun.

Through slides and views of the evening sky projected on the building's dome, planetarium visitors will see and hear of the vast distances between the earth and other planets and stars.

If, for example, the earth were reduced to the size of a pinhead, the sun would be the size of a small cantaloupe about 50 feet away.

Using the same scale, the nearest star would be some 2,500 miles from the earth.

Extension Service Appoints New Home Economics Head

The new director for home economics-family living programs of the MSU Cooperative Extension Service is Lea Davis Whitfield.

Mrs. Whitfield's appointment was approved March 25 by the MSU Board of Trustees.

She will direct educational programs that reach Michigan's families through some 70 home economics extension agents working throughout the state's 83 counties.

Mrs. Whitfield believes that home economics has never before had so much to offer to so many people.

"We know more about nutrition and the use of foods, adequate housing, clothing management, personal development and other family-related concerns than we ever did before," she says of today's home economists.

She sees extension home economics programs as focusing on four target audiences in the near future: low income individuals and families, young homemakers and their families, home economics extension study groups and the elderly.

Extension home economics-family living programs will continue to be three-pronged in their objectives. They aim toward individual and family development, improvement of family planning and use of goods, services and other resources and improvement in the community.

In her philosophy of home economics, Mrs. Whitfield likes to borrow from a noted home economist, the late Hazel Kirk of the University of Chicago, who said, "The aim of home economics is to provide facts, knowledge and understanding which will help families make decisions concerning all aspects--social, physical and esthetic--of their home and family living."

Mrs. Whitfield first joined the MSU extension staff last May as a leader in special programs in the Upper Peninsula.

Prior to that, she was state leader of home economics programs for the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service for 10 years.

She received her bachelor degree from the University of Nebraska and masters degree from Columbia University.

She replaces Miriam J. Kelley, now on a two-year assignment at the University of Nigeria.

Girls trying to "get their goat" will be a feature of the 17th annual Block and Bridle Club Horse Show Friday and Saturday at the Livestock Pavilion.

A special student class has been added to the show this year--girls goat-tieing.

Spectators should get a kick out of the girls' endeavors to beat the clock in throwing and tying a mean, rank goat. Some of the contestants may get a kick out of it too.

Other highlights of the show include a special exhibition of horses ridden in native costume, a six white horse liberty act, working sheep dogs, the Michigan Bell Racers and an exhibition of cutting horses.

There are 12 student classes in the competition, and trophies and ribbons will be presented to all winners.

Judging the competition will be Richard B. Warren, professor at the University of Nebraska.

Performances will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, with a matinee Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Tickets for Friday evening, at $1 and Saturday afternoon, at 50 cents, can be obtained at 204

Seniors Of Week Favor Students Living Off-Campus

Living off-campus is great, says Mary Vornholt, of Jackson, and Bill Bremer, of East Lansing, Seniors of the Week.

Mary moved off campus this year because "it's much less expensive and gives the experience of cooking and managing a house," she said.

"I think it is good for everyone to experience living in a dorm, but I think living off-campus is a little better," she said. "I really don't think there are many inconveniences living off-campus."

Bill, who has just completed his term as president of Students Off-Campus, has naturally taken a great interest in off-campus problems. He feels the most worthwhile thing he has done for student government is to help plan and advance a new governing body for off-campus students.

Off-Campus Council, which will represent all unaffiliated off-campus students, will replace SOC on the new student government board, he said.

Mary, an English major, is a member of the Honors College. She has been accepted into many honoraries including Circle, Tau Sigma (Arts and Letters), Kappa Delta Pi (education), and Butterfield Pin Club.

Mary was a resident advisor at Butterfield four terms and was its scholarship chairman.

A member of Senior Council, she has worked on President Hannah's reception and is scholarship chairman.

"I found Senior Council to be a lot of fun and an exciting experience," she said. She is looking forward to the Senior Council-sponsored commencement activities.

"I can see from the planning stages that all of the activities concerned with commencement such as Water Carnival, President Hannah's reception and Swing Out will be a very fitting climax to our senior year," she said.

Before Bill was president of SOC, he was its executive vice president. He has also participated in Spartan Round-Table and AUSG executive board. He was chairman of independent homecoming displays.

In his sophomore year, Bill earned his letter in tennis.

A social science major, Bill hopes to attend law school at SENIORS OF THE WEEK--Mary Vornholt, of Jackson, and Bill Bremer, of East Lansing, are this week's seniors of the week. Mary is an English major and a member of several honoraries. Bill is in pre-law, with a social science major, and is the president of off-campus housing.

either the University of Michigan or Wayne State University.

Mary will go to New York this weekend for interviews. She hopes to work for either a publishing company or an advertising agency.

Both seniors are interested in the liberalization of off-campus housing policy.

Mary believes that all seniors should be allowed to try off-campus living. She suggests that senior residence halls be established for a first step toward that goal.

"It wouldn't surprise me to see the University a little more liberal on off-campus housing regulations," said Bill. "But it isn't going to come overnight."

A message of importance to sophomore men

If you've got what it takes to be an Army Officer, you may qualify for this new on-campus training program

A new Army ROTC program starts this coming Summer for sophomore men who apply prior to May 1--only 3,000 applicants to be accepted

If you're a sophomore now attending one of the 247 colleges and universities that offer Army Officer training--or you plan to transfer to one of these schools next Fall--you may qualify for the new two-year Army ROTC program.

This new program--designed especially for college men who have not taken Army ROTC during their first two years--will commence with six weeks of field training this coming Summer, beginning June 14. Then you'll have on-campus training during your junior year... six additional weeks at camp during the following Summer... and more on-campus training during your senior year. Even flight training is offered at some schools.

ROTC training is really a process of learning to organize and direct others--to be a leader. Consider how important this ability can be to you throughout life; yet, to acquire it you will spend relatively little time in the ROTC classroom. You'll obtain valuable junior management experience... a fuller and richer campus life... extra spending money ($40 per month during your junior and senior school years, and even more during Summer training)... and, when you graduate, an Army Officer's commission as Second Lieutenant. Then you'll normally spend two interesting years on active duty, often abroad with opportunities for travel.

Talk to the Professor of Military Science on your campus about this opportunity. Ask him to describe this new short program in detail.

Or send in the coupon below for complete information. There's no obligation involved, and you'll not be subjected to any "hard sell" recruiting effort. The kind of men the Army wants can decide for themselves if this new opportunity is right for them.

If you're good enough to be an Army Officer, don't settle for less. Sign up now for Army ROTC.

For more information on this new two-year on-campus Army ROTC training program or write for a free booklet on the new two-year Army ROTC program and understand there is no obligation involved.

U.S. Army ROTC, P.O. Box 1040, Westbury, N.Y. 11591

Only last week he invented the German short-haired pointer.

Meanwhile Johann Gutenberg was quietly inventing the printing press, for which we may all be grateful, believe you me. Why grateful? I'll tell you why. Because without Gutenberg's invention you would not have this newspaper to read and you might never learn that Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades are now available in two varieties -- the regular double-edge blade we have all come to know and love, and the new Personna Injector Blade. Users of injector razors have grown more in recent years, even sullen, and who can blame them? How would you feel if you were denied the speed and comfort and durability and truth and beauty of Personna Stainless Steel shaving? Not very jolly, I'll wager! But injector shavers may now rejoice -- indeed all shavers may -- for whether you remove your whiskers regularly or infrequently, there is a Personna blade for you -- a Personna Stainless Steel Blade which will give you more luxury shaves than Beep-Beep or any other brand you might name. It by chance you don't agree, the makers of Personna will gladly buy you a pack of any brand you think is better.

Yes, friends, we may all be grateful to Johann Gutenberg for inventing the means to spread this great news about Personna. The next time you're in Frankfurt-am-Main, why don't you drop in and say thanks to Mr. Gutenberg? He is elderly -- 108 years last birthday -- but still quite active in his laboratory. Only last week he invented the German short-haired pointer.

But I digress. Returning to Modern European History, let us now examine that ever-popular favorite, France.

France, as we all know, is divided into several Departments. There is the Police Department, the Fire Department, the Gas and Water Department, and the Bureau of Weights and Measures. There is also Madame Pompadour, but that is a dirty story and is taught only to graduate students.

Finally we take up Italy -- the newest European nation. Italy did not become a united state until 1848 when Garibaldi, Cavour, and Victor Emmanuel threw three coins in the Trevi Fountain. This lovely gesture so enchanted all of Europe that Mettemich traded Parma to Talleyrand for Mad Ludwig of Bavaria. Then everybody waited till dawn and then, tired but happy, they started the Thirty Years War. This later became known as Pitt the Younger.

Space does not permit me to tell you any more about Modern European History. Aren't you glad?

© 1965, Max Schulman

And aren't you glad you tried Personna® Blades? You'll be even gladder when you try the perfect companion to Personna: new Burma Shave®. It soaks rings around any other lather!

A profitable summer of study and recreation...

Indonesian Dance, Music Program Scheduled Tuesday

The studied movements of ethnic dance specialist Hazel Chung and the narration of composer Mantle Hood combine in a program of Indonesian music and dance 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in Fairchild Theater.

Miss Chung and Hood will give a comparative demonstration of dance, East and West, traditional and modern, in this, the first Asian-Latin American-African (ALA) series presentation of spring term.

The charge is $1.50 for students and $2 for the public.

Students must show identification. The only other program scheduled in the ALA series for spring term is an African folk music company from Sudan to perform April 28.

Known as the first lady of Indonesian dance, Miss Chung has also mastered European, American and African dance traditions.

A graduate and former teacher at the Juilliard School of Music, New York City, she received a two-year Ford Foundation fellowship and one from the Indonesian government to study the traditional dances of Indonesia. On President Sukarno's invitation, she performed before guests of state in his palace.

Miss Chung taught Western and Indonesian dance for six months at the University of Ghana. She made several international tours and has performed on Broadway. Since 1962 she has been teaching in UCLA's Department of Music.

Her program Tuesday will include a comparative dance of Eastern and Western techniques, a Balinese temple dance, a Javanese court dance and a Balinese hunting dance.

Hood, who received his doctorate at the University of Amsterdam, also conducted field work in Indonesia under a Ford Foundation scholarship and taught at the University of Ghana. While in Ghana he made a documentary picture on the master drum of the Ashanti.

Since 1961, the musicologist, composer and writer has been director of the Institute of Ethnomusicology at UCLA.

The quality of the fine arts programming is revealed by the highly-regarded artists the station has had in its programs.

WMSB's television program of The Congress of Strings with Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphia Orchestra; Erich Leinsdorf, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Joseph Krips, music director of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, and Robert Shaw, founder and director of the Robert Shaw Choral and associate conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra, have also been distributed by NET and duplicated for use in Latin America, Africa and the Middle East.

The Michigan State station has produced and distributed nationally recital programs by award-winning young musicians, including the Leventritt Piano finalists, a Wieniawski winner, a New York Philharmonic winner, a Dimitri Mitropoulos winner and a Metropolitan Opera Auditions winner. These artists have come to the University specifically to make the videotaped programs with WMSB.

Among the more than 90 educational television stations, similar records of fine arts program production are held by Boston (WGBH), New York (WNET) and San Francisco (KQED), which are community-operated stations in large metropolises.

The caller will be George Bublitz. Tickets are available from veterinary students and at the door.

A SONG OF SORROW--Mrs. Phyllis Rice of St. Johns sings the tragedy of a woman who has lost husband and sons to the sea to Tonya Evans, Dowling sophomore, in a scene from "Riders to the Sea." The opera workshop students will present the one-act tragedy along with one-act comedy 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Music Auditorium.

Canada Profile Opens Film Lecture Series

From Eskimo stone carvings to the celebrated Niagara Falls, photographer Willis Butler attempts to probe the personality of Canada in the travelogue "Profile of Canada," 8 p.m. Saturday in University Auditorium.

Butler, tramped over 25,000 miles of Canadian territory and shot 25,000 feet of film to complete "Profile," the first film of its kind for the American lecture platform.

Butler's photographic visit to Canada is the first travelogue in the spring term world travel series that will also include films on Mexico, Italy and the Antarctic.

To depict the over-all personality of Canada, Butler has tried in "Profile" to catch the flavor of its diverse areas. He visits one of Quebec's finest restaurants, films a day with a New Brunswick lobster fisherman, records the changing of the guard at Ottawa and explores the Canadian Rockies and an Arctic town.

His skill for realistic and intimate portrayal of family life have brought Butler acclaim for his previous travelogues. His photographic missions have taken him to Europe, Africa, the Middle East and the Orient.

Butler, who received his bachelor of science and master of arts degrees from Northwestern University, has been making motion pictures since 1940.

GM Researcher To Speak Here

Harry M. Bendler, of the Research Laboratories of General Motors Corp., Warren, will speak at a seminar today in 146 Engineering at 4 p.m. His topic will be "Observations on the Nature of Fatigue in Copper Single Crystals."

The seminar is sponsored by the Department of Metallurgy, Mechanics and Materials Science of the MSU College of Engineering.

He has produced a series of television films on Africa for NBC, a group of radio features in Europe and two motion pictures on missionary work in Africa, now being distributed throughout the United States by the United Presbyterian Church.

Following "Profile of Canada" on the spring term world travel series will be "Mexico--on the Trail of Cortes" April 10, "Italy" April 17 and "Antarctic Challenge" May 1.

Workshop To Present Comedy And Tragedy

A one-act comedy and a one-act tragedy balance the opera workshop presentation 8:15 p.m. today and Saturday in the Music Auditorium. Both operas are in English.

Gerald Humel's "The Proposal," the domestic comedy presentation, humorously considers the complications that arise when overenthusiastic parents try to match their daughter with her long-time sweetheart.

The young man arrives to propose, but he finds the parents' help a definite interference.

The other opera, Ralph Vaughn-Williams' "Riders to the Sea," like the Zwingi play on which it is based, has proved itself one of the most popular one-act tragedies ever written, Dan Wright, instructor in music, said.

The story is set in the rugged Aran Islands, located off Ireland, and deals with the futility of life where the sea so easily takes the lives of the men. "Riders" concentrates on the women who have resigned themselves to losing their fishermen husbands and sons to the sea.

The operas are conservatively contemporary, Wright said. Humel's "Proposal" was written prior to 1955. Vaughn-Williams still clung somewhat to the 19th century style when he wrote "Riders" in 1926.

The students of the opera workshop not only perform the roles but also have charge of the direction, production and conducting of the operas. The two operas, Wright said, were chosen to begin the winter term to fit the students enrolled in the course. Admission is 10 cents for students and 25 cents for adults and children.

Academy Told Of MSU's Role In Science Education

An address on the influence of geology on ancient history, by retiring President Bennett T. Sandefur was the highlight of the 69th annual meeting of the Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters held in Ann Arbor March 18-20.

Sandefur, professor of geology at MSU, presided over the meeting at which more than 60 MSU faculty and graduate student representatives presented research papers.

Sandefur remarked on the interest MSU people have taken in various programs of the Academy.

"MSU sends more visiting scientists to Michigan high schools than any other college in the state," he said.

Sandefur was referring to a program which, with the aid of National Science Foundation grants, sends professors to various high schools for talks on science.

T. Wayne Taylor, associate professor of the science and mathematics teaching center, is coordinator for the Junior Academy, and is in charge of the program.

A third MSU professor, J. Sutherland Frame, mathematics, is chairman of the Academy's administrative committee for incoming grants.

This committee, also through National Science Foundation grants, gives awards for the top research papers presented at the annual meeting of the Junior Academy.

House And Senate Differ On Tax Bill

The Michigan House of Representatives has voted to fight the Senate over the controversial Senior Citizen's Homestead Tax Exemption Bill.

The House voted by a 57 to 48 majority to reject Senate amendments to the House-passed measure.

House Taxation Committee Chairman George Montgomery, a Detroit Democrat, said the Senate amendments cause two main differences in the House and Senate versions. The first is a $5,000 family income ceiling for eligibility, and the second is the elimination of renters from the measure.

The Senate version of the bill will cost between $13 and $15 million, Montgomery said. The House version, which covers renters and has no income ceiling, has been estimated to cost anywhere from $21 to $40 million a year.

House majority leader J. Bob Traxler, a Bay City Democrat, said, in his words, "It would be intolerable and unjust to exclude renters." He urged the House to reject the Senate amendments and have House conferees meet the senators in a back room. Said Traxler, "If we can't handle them there, we'll meet them under the dome."

'S'-Banned Play Slated For Viewing

The Rev. Malcolm Boyd's "The Boy," a play banned by University television during summer term, will be broadcast on NBC Sunday and presented in the National Cathedral, Washington, D.C., this coming week.

"The Boy" had been banned because of its use of the words "damn" and "nigger," Boyd said University officials told him.

NBC will present at 3 p.m. Sunday excerpts from three of the Rev. Boyd's plays on racial problems -- "The Boy," "The Community," his plays will be acted for four nights at the Great Crossing before the altar in the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. "The Job" and "A Study in Color" will be presented Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

At all four performances of the plays, a group of Negro and white students will sing freedom songs and the Rev. Boyd will preach on the relationship of the gospel to racial problems.

The Rev. Malcolm Boyd has been chaplain-at-large to U.S. universities for the Episcopal Church since Jan. 1. Formerly he was chaplain at Wayne State University, Detroit.

State Shows

RR Interest

The Michigan Attorney General has been instructed to intervene on behalf of the State Public Service Commission in the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad's application to control the Chicago, South Shore and South Bend Railroad.

Commission Chairman Peter B. Spivak said Wednesday Michigan's interest may appear in the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Spivak said the South Shore Line parallels not only the C&O to Chicago, but also that of the New York Central and Grand Trunk Western, two substantial Michigan roads.

Ashby Cites Student Opinion Value

The University is a trinity consisting of three co-equal parts, with all three parts being taken into consideration when making major policy decisions.

Sir Eric Ashby, of Cambridge University, said that complete, co-equal student opinion should be one element in making policy decisions on the campus.

In his talk on "Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars," Ashby said that student opinion should not be the only element, but one of the three along with administrators and teachers.

Ashby emphasized that he was speaking of British universities, but felt that the same situation pertained to America.

Ashby, master of Cambridge University's Clare College, outlined four sub-cultures of the student society:

1--the student who takes advantage of athletic and social advantages.

2--the student who uses his college education as a ticket for a job.

3--the genuine academic who is willing to become involved in the university.

4--the rebel.

The first two types, Ashby said, have no real influence, but the last two do exert an important influence on the university.

The central problem with the ticket-man, he said, is one of boredom and apathy.

"The only virtue that the ticket-man has," Ashby said, "is that he doesn't cause any trouble."

"The most dangerous problem of the student in Britain," he continued, "is the lack of motivation. If a person is intelligent enough to be a student, he should be drawn to something."

Britain's number of college students is lower than that of the United States in that only one out of fifteen in the college bracket is in school.

Cambridge and Oxford, the two largest English universities, have 10,000 students each.

"The other problem that we have," Ashby said, "is the question of whether it is more important to learn rather than be taught."

"We must use propaganda to bring meaning and commitment to learning, and to do this we must put these two thoughts-- motivation and learning-in perspective."

He said that in this area he felt that Britain was farther ahead of the United States.

Ashby spoke of the rebel on the college campus:

"There is a difference between the genuine and the phony rebel. The genuine rebel is worth his weight in gold as he does not lack motivation. He must be persuaded not to withdraw from the university, but rather to participate."

"The phony rebel rejects all authority. He is constantly in a hurry and desires crash programs of change in the university."

"We can't hurry evolution at a large university. Evolutions simply do not work with crash programs," he said. "In this same sense, we cannot dwell on the trivialities of life, but must dwell on the fundamentals of life."

"The rebel must learn the techniques of successful dissent."

"This is why we must accept the co-equal partnership of the trinity, the chancellor, master, and the scholar," Ashby concluded, "and we must learn to live with an older generation."

Oversights Could

Cost Drivers Points

"A word to the wise is sufficient," says Secretary of State James M. Hare in urging Michigan motorists who have had a birthday recently or have one coming up to "quick check their driver license to make sure it hasn't expired."

In quoting the old saw, Hare said that a recent attorney general's opinion indicated that points should be assessed for all licensing violations.

"Many driver licensing violations are the result of just plain oversight on the part of the motorist," Hare said. "Now they can cost the motorist two points against his record."

Hare also reminded motorists to have their licenses with them whenever they drive. "Many persons have a valid license but are forgetful about having it on them when they drive," he said. "This can also result in a two-point infraction."

Some other areas of infraction are driving wrongfully with a restricted license or one which has been denied, suspended, or revoked.

Student Volunteers Slate Summer Appalachia Work

Appalachia will be the location for this summer's volunteer student project sponsored by a group of eastern Kentucky college students.

About 150 young people will spend eight weeks living with the people of isolated mountain areas in eastern Kentucky as members of the Appalachian Volunteers, sponsored by the Council of the Southern Mountains, Inc.

The student volunteers will spend part of their time working with children in the one-and-two-room schools, giving them individual attention and variety of subject matter they seldom get during the regular school year.

The students will also join the families with whom they live in their daily work in house and field, and will work with the adults of the community in cooperative projects of civic improvement.

Two to six volunteers will be assigned to each project, depending on the size of the community. They will be supervised by the Appalachian Volunteer staff and will work with the local teachers, and in some cases with VISTA (domestic Peace Corps) volunteers.

"Although Appalachian Volunteers work with adults, they concentrate their efforts on the children, for these can hope to take full part in the modern world someday, whereas their parents can at best learn only to cope with it," states the council.

"Much of the work will be set in a school-like situation, but teaching experience is not essential, nor is prior knowledge of the Eastern Kentucky area."

"Interest in working with people, ability to adapt to new situations, willingness to live under often uncomfortable conditions, patience in the face of frustration, satisfaction in even small victories" are the qualities the council seeks.

Volunteers will participate in a 10-day orientation and training session before they begin field work. This session will include an introduction to the history, problems and prospects of Eastern Kentucky, a workshop on group processes, and some instruction in techniques useful in their classroom work.

The orientation session will begin on June 14. The final two-day evaluation will end August 21. Responses should be directed to the Appalachian Volunteers, College Box 2307, Berea, Ky., 40403, for applications and information.

Applications should be returned before April 15. Acceptances will be announced in early May.

Business Wives Schedule Meeting

"Party Cuisine" will be the subject of the Doctoral Business Wives meeting Friday at 8 p.m. in the Teak Room of Epley Center.

Mrs. Charles Huber of Groses Pte., noted cook, hostess and professional mistress of ceremonies, will speak and demonstrate the preparation of her recipes.

Members will sample the tea, sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres prepared by Mrs. Huber.

The group will assemble in the viewing room April 14 at 8 p.m. for a tour of the Computer Center.

Mayor Stops Marchers

CAMDEN, Ala. (UPI)--More than 100 Negro demonstrators attempted to march on the county courthouse here Thursday, but were turned back.

Mayor Reg Albritton and a squad of armed volunteers met the marchers on a highway leading into Camden. He said his men would use tear gas if necessary to keep the Negroes away from the courthouse.

After the marchers reached Albritton's barricade, the mayor argued over constitutional rights for about 25 minutes with three Negro leaders.

The mayor said, "If you want to vote, come down Monday when the registrar's office is open, but don't come into the city like a herd of cattle."

The march broke up after Albritton invited one of the Negro leaders to meet with him Monday.
