

Library--Has It Kept Up With Campus Growth?

Editor's note: First of a five-part editorial analysis of the MSU Library.

By DON SOCKOL
State News Staff Writer

Students have recently been fed a steady diet of editorials and formal figures intending to point up the inadequacy of the MSU Library.

A diet of facts and figures, although filling, can often be tasteless. What do these facts and figures actually mean to members of the University community who use the library?

In 1956 the new MSU Library was officially opened. It was built to accommodate the needs of 14,000 students. It had space for 1,000,000 volumes, and study space for about 2,000 readers. It was constructed in what was then the center of campus.

During the past decade, the growth of the University can safely be said to have been phenomenal. The growth of the library has not. This creates numerous problems for the undergraduate.

Because the center of campus has been significantly altered, there is an inconvenient distance between the library and the average student's living unit. The situation is aggravated by the daytime driving ban instituted last year. The Brody complex is a half-mile from the library, as are Shaw Hall, the Case-Wilson-Wonders complex and the East Circle group (Abbot, Phillips, etc.). Fee and Akers Halls are a mile from the library.

Once the undergraduate undertakes this inconvenience, (which surely discourages many students from using the library more often), he encounters other inconveniences.

There is a critical shortage of assigned reading materials on reserve. Most students have experienced delay in doing their work because four or five students in their class of two hundred have reached the assigned reading desk before them.

According to the report of the President's Ad Hoc Committee on the Library, released in October, MSU is tenth in the Big Ten in number of library personnel.

This causes more problems for students than wounding their pride. It is not uncommon for a student to be delayed, or even completely frustrated in his search for a book because of poor cataloging.

Richard E. Chapin, Director of Libraries, reports a serious shortage of professional librarians, which bears significantly on this problem. One of the reasons for this is low salaries.

It also reports, "In recent years, there has been increased emphasis upon independent study... related, in particular, to the establishment of the Honors College."

Chapin has pointed out that more students are reading more today. For these reasons, the library has become more important to the undergraduate recently than it was 10 years ago.

Dormitory libraries are recommended by the President's Committee as part of a program to meet these needs. Also important is increasing the total number of volumes in the library. If the library continues to grow at only its present rate, by 1974, it will still be about 900,000 volumes short of the average Big Ten University.

Another annoyance to students is the time-consuming method of taking out books. Problems in circulation cause about .1 per cent error on the part of the library. When this is .1 per cent of 100,000 books withdrawn each term, the fact is worth mentioning.

A circulation system utilizing the IBM computer is being looked into now. The initial cost of putting the system into effect will be at least $40,000. It will cut down on manpower, error and student effort in the future, thus bringing a saving to the library.

The library must do something to meet the needs of undergraduates now and in the future. But the inadequacies of the library for the advanced studies of graduate students are even more critical. Our graduate school is losing not only prestige, but students as well. This will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

'THAT'S JUST DUCKY'--These two ducks seem to be discussing the crazy students that like to travel down the Red Cedar in canoes, chasing the ducks from the waters they seem to regard as their private domain.

Wolverine, State News Win High Press Assn. Awards

The MSU Wolverine and the State News won top awards for all-around best yearbook and newspaper at the 1965 Michigan Collegiate Press Association convention held Friday and Saturday at Northwood Institute in Midland.

The Wolverine came out with four firsts and three seconds in the seven categories. It had the best writing, best layout, best academic section and the best theme.

The State News won three firsts, three seconds and one third in six categories. Firsts were won for best front page makeup, the best feature picture and the best editorial.

Co-editorial editor Susan J. Filson placed first for her editorial on the first anniversary of the death of President John F. Kennedy.

John Van Gieson, State News editor-in-chief, took a third place award in news stories for a "lucid, understandable" story on the MSU Educational Development Project.

Staff writer Phyllis Helper won a second place in the features category with a story on sky-diving published last fall.

State News photographer Larry Fritzlan placed second for his picture of two football fans watching the Spartans play.

Reds' N. Viet 'Radar' Is Primitive, Effective

DA NANG, Viet Nam (AP)--U.S. planes have knocked out most of the radar installations in the southern part of North Viet Nam. The Communists, however, have devised a primitive but effective early warning system that does the job well enough.

A U.S. Air Force captain said Sunday the Communists can get from 10 to 15 minutes warning on the approach of supersonic jets by stationing men in head-high holes dug into the ground with trapezoid-shaped roofs.

Not only can the sound of jets be heard from a long distance, but the direction can be gauged fairly accurately, said Capt. Ralph Havens of Falls Church, Va., an F100 pilot.

Havens said the early warning holes account largely for the absence of people seen on the ground when U.S. planes reach their targets.

"I know they are using those holes, a primitive but effective way of coping with the jet age," Havens said.

The Communists also are trying some tricks with U.S. jets that are attacking targets in North Viet Nam almost every day.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., (AP)--Relentless Mississippi River floodwaters, which have forced more than 60,000 persons in three states from their homes, eased somewhat Sunday, but dikes were softened by steady rains.

Volunteer sandbaggers worked around the clock on the three-mile long earthen dike at Rock Island, Ill., and an observer said Sunday "so far the situation is pretty well in hand." The river stage this morning was 20.7 feet.

Paul Meeden, of radio station WHBF, manning an emergency flood news desk, said "These volunteers have averted any major disaster. Together with the men on the fire department pumps they have prevented all but minor seepages and water boils at the levee areas."

"We have had more than three inches of rain in the last day and one-half," Meeden said. "That has softened, but not broken, the dikes. We expected a crest of the Mississippi River at 22 1/2 feet Wednesday in the quad cities. That is 7 1/2 feet over flood stage."

Officials closed Government Bridge at Rock Island because the Davenport approach was flooded. Two other bridges in the area were open.

The apparent leveling of the Mississippi at Dubuque, Iowa, upstream, boosted morale. The rain-soaked Dubuque dikes held as the river reached its apparent crest earlier than expected and held at 26.6 feet, nearly 10 feet above the 17-foot flood stage. Robert Horgan, mayor of Dubuque, said "I am confident we have this thing licked. We are going to win."

Flood waters have besieged Dubuque for more than a week.

The icy flood made Fulton, Ill., across the Mississippi from Clinton, Iowa, accessible only by boat, and the threat of a dike failure brought an order for the 250 residents of tiny Gulfport, Ill., to leave the community.

The American Red Cross said Sunday it was feeding about 4,300 flood workers and housing 700 persons in Iowa and Illinois. Red Cross officials estimated that 36,000 persons had been forced from their homes in the two states.

Historical Kite Flight Hysterical

Mary Poppins and Ben Franklin weren't the only ones who flew kites.

Thirty Kappa Alpha Theta pledges, their big sisters and boyfriends (and a horde of little boys who broke-up at the girls' greenhorn kite-flying methods) flew kites in the field behind the Kappa Alpha Theta house Saturday afternoon.

The kite-flying day is traditional with the sorority, whose pin is in the shape of a kite, symbolizing aspiration.

Some girls decorate their kites with black and gold streamers and letters, but observers noticed which kites soar the highest--the plain old gasoline station kites.

IT'S AN ILL WIND--Or maybe it was no wind at all that caused this accident to happen to Sue Fortenbaugh, Birmingham sophomore. Minor tragedies of this sort were just part of the fun at the Kappa Alpha Theta Kite Day Saturday.

India Alleges Mobilization

Border Tension Tightens

NEW DELHI (AP)--India charged Sunday that Pakistan has ordered mobilization of all its armed forces in the wake of heavy border fighting in western India. A spokesman said Indian intelligence learned of an order to this effect issued in East and West Pakistan Saturday.

He said there was intermittent shelling and small arms fire Sunday along the Sind-Kutch frontier, where armed forces of the two nations fought Saturday.

In Rawalpindi, a Pakistani government spokesman denied assertions by India Saturday that Pakistani forces had penetrated deep into India and blamed India for starting the fighting.

The Indian spokesman said India has not yet ordered mobilization. His statement:

"Pakistan has ordered mobilization of her armed forces, according to Indian intelligence. Orders to this effect are reported to have gone out Saturday."

"All military leave has been canceled and those already on leave have been recalled to duty. Orders have also been issued for the recall of army, navy and air force reservists."

The Indian spokesman told newsmen no nation has come forward with an offer of mediation. India acknowledged Saturday that talks with Pakistan had virtually broken down.

India charged that a full Pakistani brigade of at least 3,000 fighting men punched almost seven miles across the frontier Saturday and was repulsed with heavy losses.

Following this action, there was a "comparative lull," the spokesman said adding:

"This lull may be either due to the need for replenishments or reformation of Pakistani forces for fresh attacks."

MSU President John A. Hannah Friday defended student rebels but cautioned that "dissent for the sake of dissent itself" cannot be permitted to disrupt the daily workings of a university.

Hannah spoke in Athens, Ga., at a testimonial dinner for University of Georgia President Omer C. Aderhold.

"No conscientious university president would refuse to give consideration to recommendations from responsible students, arrived at through careful study and serious reflection," he said.

Innovation has its values just as experience does, he said. "Dissent is a precious right in America," he said, "and we should not try to stifle it."

"But," he warned, "there is dissent for the sake of a principle, and dissent for the sake of dissent itself."

"It is against the latter we must be on guard, for those who revel in constant commotion cannot be permitted to disrupt the university in the important day-to-day work it carries on," he said.

"There is a planned movement afoot among some students in this country to discredit those responsible for the day-to-day operations of our major universities," the MSU president warned.

"Part of this movement's support comes from young people who are fighting this as one skirmish in what they choose to call a war against adults, and which others see as a widespread challenge to all authority," he said.

"It would be a mistake, in my judgement, to meet this challenge--for challenge it undoubtedly is--with stubborn refusal to listen to what they have to say, or automatic dismissal of their petitions," Hannah said.

Students are not the same as they were 10 years ago, he added.

"They are brighter, keener, more alert, possessed of more information, better prepared academically, more sophisticated than the members of any previous generation," he said.

"It is only natural for them to question old, traditional ways of doing things," he said.

"Students, despite all of their vehement protests that they are mature, responsible, independent adults, are still hungry for personal, individual attention," he said.

"Students are the university's primary concern," he said.

"Without them, the university would be no better than a research institute, divorced from the pulsing forces of a dynamic society," he added.

"At the same time," Hannah said, "it is to be hoped students will understand that the university must take the responsibility for their educations and consequently must make some decisions without undue deference to their personal likes and dislikes."

Junior Petitions Are Due Today

Today is the last day for submitting petitions for Outstanding Junior awards. The petitions may be obtained in 308 Student Services from John Miller or Frannie Frei, and must be turned in by 5 p.m. today.

State News Writer Elected

Michael J. Kindman, Franklin Square, N.Y., junior, was elected president of the Michigan Collegiate Press Assn. at its annual convention at Northwood Institute Saturday.

Kindman is editorial writer for the State News.

Marshall Matlock, of Lake Michigan College, Benton Harbor, was elected vice president. Donald Burchard, head of Northwood Institute's Journalism Department in Midland, was elected executive secretary.

The convention also elected Sally George of Central Michigan University as board member at large and Russell Herron, also of Central, as its adviser.

MSU will host the convention next year.

Greek Week Off, Running

Greek Week begins tonight with a torch run to all the Greek living units at 4 p.m., followed by the lighting of a natural gas torch on the steps of the Union.

Eldon Nonnamaker, associate dean of students, will give the kick-off speech at 8 p.m. and the outstanding senior Greek awards will be presented.

For The 18-Year-Old Vote

Most proponents of the 18-year-old vote base their case on the superficial slogan, "Old enough to fight, old enough to vote." In reality, there are several more compelling arguments in favor of extending the franchise to most of our high school graduates.

Since the state senate has passed a resolution which would place the 18-year-old vote on the ballot at the next general election, it might be well for Michigan voters to acquaint themselves with these arguments. If the house passes the resolution, Michigan will have the chance to join Georgia, Kentucky, Alaska and Hawaii as the only states which extend the franchise to citizens under 21.

Many opponents of the 18-year-old vote maintain that teenagers are too irresponsible to make an intelligent electoral choice. The very word "teen" lends an aura of irresponsibility to the 18-year-old vote proposal.

Most 18-year-olds are in no way comparable to their high school counterparts.

In Michigan, only 40 per cent of all high school graduates go on to college. The national percentage of college students drops to one-third of all high school graduates. This means that 55 to 70 per cent of all high school graduates are self-supporting.

It is difficult to understand why persons who are old enough to assume responsible positions in the workday world are not old enough to cast a ballot for their public officials.

Moreover, most high school graduates are fresh from civics and government courses. It is highly doubtful that those high school students who do not go on to college will become better informed during the years between age 18 and 21.

It is undeniable that most college students become better informed on social, economic and political questions during their college years. But the information gained during a college education has never been considered a requirement for voting in the United States.

We believe that 18-year-olds and 21-year-olds do not differ significantly in their qualifications for voting.

We urge the state house of representatives to act on this conviction and approve the senate resolution. We hope Michigan voters will follow suit in a referendum in the fall of 1966.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Israel Affront To Arab 'Rights'

To the Editor:

Former President Harry S. Truman gave voice to a point of view which has caused a great loss of moral and political prestige to the United States among foreign nations. His attitude (State News, April 13) regarding the suggestion that his remarks on Martin Luther King Jr. as a "troublemaker" might stir up controversy—Truman replying, "What the hell do I care?"—has gravely proven itself injudicious. I am here referring specifically to the creation of Israel.

It was no secret to the American government, but perhaps it was to the American public, that "Israel was born on the doorstep of the White House" according to Truman in his autobiography. Later on, he added to the effect that the greatest pressure ever exerted on the White House was that by the Zionists in their effort to establish a state of Israel.

Then, his injudicious attitude also became apparent when he submitted to such pressure despite the recommendations of the chairman of a committee which he appointed in 1947 to investigate the possibility of creating such a state in the Middle East.

The recommendations warned him of the injustice and instability that would result by such a move, yet he turned his back to it. And when asked by the chairman for the reason of his decision, Truman answered, "Show me the Arab votes in New York." Later, with the help of Truman's pressure on friendly allies, Israel was proclaimed a state by the U.N. in 1948.

Such an attitude did result in the displacement of a million people from a land they previously occupied, did result in a limited war between the migrating Zionists and the Arab people, and continues to be the most explosive issue in the Middle East today.

It is true that the creation of Israel did solve the Jewish problem to a great extent. I am merely questioning the attitude taken by a former president of the United States of America when, speaking for an entire nation, he had effectively stated, "What the hell do I care about the Arab rights?"

About Maturity--

The American student is often the first to claim that America is the No. 1 nation of the world, that Americans are the most civilized and mature. I have often wondered what rights these students have to this claim if they cannot show by their actions that this is true.

Several aspects of their behavior have justified this observation. Pick up any library book and the chances are high that pages have been torn out or that the book has been badly marked. Go to any men's room and see if you would not find all sorts of write-ups from poetry to the most obscene things you can imagine. Often these are accompanied with 'very technical' diagrams.

Some of these students are always the first to claim maturity. They are the first to cry out when some people want to tell them where to live and what to drink. They are also the first to say that anything African or Asian is uncivilized. Yet they hardly ever stop to ask whether an African student would ever stoop so low as to make pencil marks (let alone magic markers) on walls, furniture and books which belong to you and me.

To Friend And Foe Alike

LBJ Plans Too Vast?

By Susan Filson

It is becoming obvious that President Johnson's Great Society is something far more than a long-overdue program to raise the living standards of an impoverished one-fifth of our nation.

It is in fact a far-reaching attempt to raise the quality of life in every segment of the American population. If it materializes, the Great Society will include the harassed commuter and the suburban school child as well as high school dropouts and unemployed men and women on the streets of Harlem.

For better or worse, the Great Society will give the federal government vast influence over nearly every area of American life.

Extreme conservatives view the almost-certain growth of the federal government during the next decade with unconcealed alarm. These are the people who enshrine "states' rights" while men are murdered for attempting to exercise their human rights, who believe that the poor live that way because they are lazy or stupid.

I submit that extreme rightist objections to the Great Society are not worthy of serious consideration. The right wing automatically objects to any new program involving the federal government, unaware that individual states are unwilling or unable to fulfill their responsibilities in many of the most vital areas of American life.

However, the boundless enthusiasm of some liberals for unlimited expansion of the federal government also seems somewhat distasteful to me.

The federal government has an obligation to step in where state and local government have not fulfilled their responsibilities. In the South, several state governments have obviously abdicated their responsibility to protect human rights. Throughout the country, many local and state governments have shown themselves inadequate to the task of combatting extreme poverty.

But the line has not been clearly drawn between what people actually need and what they think would be nice to have.

It has not been demonstrated to my satisfaction that elementary and secondary schools in wealthy communities are in dire need of federal aid. In depressed areas and city slums, yes. But not in East Lansing, Dearborn or Grosse Pointe.

Many of our cities have tremendous transportation problems. But one of the first communities to receive funds under the Mass Transit Act was Coral Gables, Fla., a wealthy suburb of Miami. It seems that the servants who work in Coral Gables don't have adequate transportation to and from work.

It's not that I want people to get sore feet from walking an extra block to the bus. It's just that I think my tax dollar would be much better spent to feed a hungry child, teach an illiterate teenager to read or retrain a jobless worker for a useful role in society.

During the next decade, this nation must provide equality of opportunity for citizens who have never had an even chance.

But it is not the responsibility of the federal government to iron out every little problem in communities like Coral Gables.

Where Do They Go?

By DAVE HANSON

You would think with 30,000 students at MSU that sooner or later some issue would come up which might cause at least a relatively large group to rise up and strike.

When Fordy Anderson was fired there was very little protest. If students cared, they didn't care enough to say so.

We have an inadequate library. Nobody cares enough to do anything about it except the Committee for Student Rights. And how many students does that represent?

The housing office says that about 15,000 students live in on-campus, university-owned housing. Imagine a community that size. How many would you expect to turn out for a lecture in the community interest? Any crowd over 50 is big at MSU.

Where are the 30,000? They can't be all at the Gables. They can't all be at a show. Recent tests, called finals, have proved that they can't all be studying.

How many of the 30,000 can be vegetables sprawled out on a couch in their apartment or in a dorm watching the idiot box?

What are they doing? What are they talking about? There are things to do and things to talk about at MSU. There are things to fight for, things to learn, things to see. There are 30,000 citizens of this community and only a handful who give a damn that they are part of it.

Isn't enough to have a few who are willing and capable of leadership. Those types sometimes care less about the issue than themselves.

If college life means booze and broads, that's your problem. But if it means nothing to you, as seems to be the case at MSU, think about it. Think.

Many Campus Teach-Ins Are Not Serious Debates

The following is a reprint of Friday's column by James Reston, associate editor of the New York Times.

Something is happening to the process of political debate in America. It is lagging far behind the events it is intended to influence, and a good deal of the time it takes the form not of serious intellectual inquiry but of one-sided headline hunting and even of physical defiance of the law.

The debate on U.S. policy in Vietnam is a case in point. For almost a decade there was hardly any debate at all. Those of us who protested against the deepening involvement of the nation in that country during most of the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations raised scarcely an echo in the country or even in the Congress. In the early days of the first Eisenhower administration, the top officials of the State and Defense departments were on the verge of a major air strike to save the French Army at Dien Bien Phu without the nation even being aware that such a debate was going on.

President Kennedy virtually incited the Vietnamese politicians to get rid of the Diem regime — this on a television show with Walter Cronkite — without a murmur of protest from the press or the people.

The congressional resolution authorizing the President to use whatever means he chose, including military means, in all of Southeast Asia was passed in an afternoon with only the merest shadow of a debate.

Now the mood is swinging from indifference to violence. Since the U.S. bombings of North Vietnam, the protest movement against the Johnson administration's policy has swept the campuses of the country.

There was a sit-in on the driveway of the White House this week, and marathon protest meetings, usually dominated by teachers opposed to the administration's Vietnam policy, have been held all over the nation.

Some of these meetings have been exemplary. For example, at Principia College in Illinois last week, students from 60 colleges engaged in a serious discussion of the possible courses of action now open to the government.

At many other colleges, however, these nocturnal marathons have not been debates at all but anti-administration demonstrations disguised as "teaching," and in many cases backed by propaganda of the most vicious nature.

The Committee to Oppose the War in Vietnam, with headquarters in San Francisco and Berkeley, for example, circulated a leaflet with a photograph of a soldier plunging a knife into the stomach of a mutilated and half-naked man. The caption read "Getting the point: South Vietnamese rangers interrogate a prisoner."

All this is vaguely reminiscent of the anti-war movement in the British universities in the middle 30s, and, oddly, it seems to have become more intense since President Johnson offered to enter into unlimited negotiations with the Communists to bring about a peaceful settlement in Vietnam.

As an avowed protest movement it is fair enough. There is plenty to protest about, but for professors to organize it in the name of "teaching" is something else again, and for officials in Washington not to take it seriously enough to counter the campus revolt could be irresponsible.

For this is no longer a casual form of campus spring fever. The zeal of the civil rights movement is being transferred in some places into a get-out-of-Vietnam campaign, and this in turn is being widely distributed by Communist countries to the detriment of the administration's effort to force a negotiated peace.

The basic question now is not whether the administration has made mistakes in the past — it obviously has — but how it is going to make its way through the delicate process of diplomacy toward an honorable settlement.

It is a serious moment, justifying serious discussion and debate, but this is not what it is getting from many university campuses where the tradition of responsible inquiry is supposed to be strongest.

The Memory Still Lingers

By DAVE HANSON

Maybe it's respect. Maybe it's awe. Or maybe it is a lingering shock. But there is something about the memory of President John F. Kennedy that is unique and personal.

At the teach-in on Viet Nam Abba Lerner had just made a dramatic about-face, from apparently praising President Johnson to criticizing him. He had had part of the audience on his side before the change. After the change he was applauded by the other side.

He was saying that in spite of the wealth of information at his disposal, a president could make mistakes. The other side applauded. He said a president could really know less than the average well-informed man-on-the-street, applause.

Then he said that this man-on-the-street knew that the Bay of Pigs was a blunder. The applause came, but it wasn't quite the same. The other side had suddenly diminished. He went on and they were with him again, but for that one moment he had lost them.

He had touched the nerve. This example of how we are not yet ready to accept one side or the other concerning President Kennedy must be explained by the way in which he died.

Kennedy was on a downslide of popularity in the fall of 1963. He was getting ready for a campaign he would certainly have won, for above all, he was a man who knew how to win.

People were getting ready to make up their minds about him. They were preparing to decide whether he or the Republican candidate was the best man. But the decision was months away and that November he was just the President, our President, doing his job.

Suddenly he was dead. For three days and longer, maybe still now, the shock united us behind a man we had never really considered. Johnson lived in Kennedy's shadow until long after the election. An elected President, he now has to prove himself on his own. But still the shadow lingers.

Harry Truman said Monday, on the 29th anniversary of the day when he became president, that presidents are not judged until they have been dead for ten years or more. He added, typically, that he intends to keep going for some time yet.

But it will take longer than 10 years to assess what Kennedy did. It may be that the image he created will be too strong for too long in those who witnessed the precision and style of his administration.

He was something unique. He was youth in a country that wanted youth and "vigah" in a country hungry for just that.

The mention of his name still brings back what we felt that November Friday: Oh, God, No.

Most Phillips Coeds Resigned To New College

To the Editor:

We have a few observations to present in response to Tuesday's article about Phillips reaction to the liberal arts college. Jim Sterba's "recent roundtable discussion" appears to have been an informal, unrepresentative sample of opinions.

The general reaction of Phillips residents was one of resignation rather than protest. Most girls who wish to remain in the hall will have the opportunity to do so by signing up for vacant rooms this week. Of the more than 200 girls eligible to reserve the same room for next year, only 127 did.

The "Why Snyder-Phillips?"

question was answered by the residence hall programs staff: the halls house approximately the desired number of students, are conveniently located and have larger "public" facilities than Mason-Abbott.

The "sorority atmosphere" attributed to Phillips by a girl quoted exists there as it does in any hall: in small, closely-knit groups of friends.

The hall's high academic standing is hardly the result of freshmen who are expected to meet hall standards, but is rather the result of an average between very high grades and some very low ones. Like it or not, Phillips houses a number of students on academic probation as well as students with high averages.

Present residents have a contribution to make to the success of the new college by perpetuating hall traditions and helping new residents make Phillips their second home. The college is an attempt to avoid the impersonal atmosphere disliked by many students. Phillips residents, by fostering a friendly attitude rather than a resentful one, can be of great help. Our guess is that they will continue to be cooperative in carrying out plans for the college, contrary to the one-sided picture presented in the State News.

Dirksen: Hanoi Raids Possible

WASHINGTON--Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said Sunday that if it becomes necessary the United States should bomb military installations in North Viet Nam's capital of Hanoi.

Dirksen said he supports the intensified air strikes against Communist territory ordered by President Johnson. But he called Johnson's offer of a $1-billion U.S. contribution to a proposed International Southeast Asia Development Fund "A kind of polite, courteous bribe" for peace negotiations.

Dominican Government Upset

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic--The U.S.-supported government of junta chief Donald Reid Cabral fell Sunday after a military coup by supporters of exiled former President Juan D. Bosch. The rebels vowed to return Bosch, a liberal, to the presidency. The first popularly elected Dominican president in more than a generation, Bosch was overthrown Sept. 25, 1963 by military chiefs who accused him of allowing Communists and followers of Fidel Castro to infiltrate the government.

Gromyko Meets With DeGaulle

Gromyko

PARIS--Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was warmly welcomed to Paris Sunday for an official, six-day visit which is certain to stir high interest in capitals around the world. Gromyko, his wife and aides arrived aboard a special airliner from Moscow. He was greeted in the flag-decked Salon D'Honneur, built especially for the arrival in 1960 of then Premier Nikita Khrushchev and President Dwight D. Eisenhower who came to Paris for a summit meeting that was cancelled in the furor of the U2 spy plane episode.

That was the last time a top-ranking Soviet official had paid a visit to Paris.

Steel Talks Continue

PITTSBURGH--Steel union and management negotiators mulled over their deadlocked contract talks Sunday, waiting for the federal government's next move to head off an onrushing strike deadline that would take the bounce out of the nation's economy.

With time rapidly slipping away, chief federal mediator William E. Simkin clung to his hope for a strike postponement before the deadline at 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

But so uncertain is the outlook, Simkin could not say when he will bring industry and United Steelworkers representatives back to the bargaining table.

Walker Hopeful For Viet Nam

SAIGON--Patrick Gordon Walker, Britain's special envoy to the Far East, said Sunday he is more hopeful now of a negotiated settlement of the Viet Nam war than when he left London. In talks here with U.S. and Vietnamese officials, "The possibility of some kind of talks has come more and more to the fore," the British Labor government foreign minister said.

"There's many a slip in this kind of thing, but I'm rather more hopeful than when I left London."

More Bombing In Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam--U.S. and South Vietnamese planes hit road and rail communications in Communist North Viet Nam again Sunday, bombing a bridge with moderate success and heavily damaging a ferry station.

On the ground inside South Viet Nam, Communist guerrillas slipped out of the darkness and attacked a U.S. marine outpost 40 miles north of the vital U.S.-South Vietnamese air base at Da Nang. Two marines were killed and four wounded, two of them critically. Officials in Saigon said two guerrillas were believed killed and two or three wounded.

Graham, On Alabama

DOTHAN, Ala.--Billy Graham held steadfast Sunday to his policy of preaching the Gospel without mention of race, but he had encouraging words nonetheless for Alabama.

While he avoided any reference to racial problems in his sermons, he told radio listeners throughout the nation that Alabama will find a solution if extremists on both sides permit it.

Mariner May Make Communications Record

PASADENA--The U.S. Mars-bound Mariner 4, with a radiating less power than a 10-watt night light, will break the Russian record for long distance communication at 1 a.m. (PDT) Thursday--if it still is working.

At that hour Mariner 4 will be just a little past 66 million miles from earth on its way to a photographic rendezvous with the mysterious red planet July 14.

The Soviet Mars 1 spacecraft stopped sending back signals when it reached that distance March 21, 1963.

Gifts, Grants Total $690,370

Gifts and grants totaling $690,370.33 were accepted Thursday by MSU's Board of Trustees meeting at Oakland University.

The total includes a $93,600 grant from the National Science Foundation to support research by Robert S. Bandurski, professor of botany and plant pathology, to investigate the metabolism of microorganisms and higher plants with special attention to sulfate reduction.

Another NSF grant, for $90,000, will aid continuing studies by Milton Rokeach, professor of psychology.

Rokeach's work is in five areas: the organization of belief systems; relationships between attitudes and behavior; relationships between attitudes and values; relationships between open- and closed-mindedness and receptivity to programed instruction; and studies of attitude measurement.

The Inter-university Research

Program in Institution Building of Pittsburgh has awarded $34,080 for a study of the institutionalization of the University of Nigeria's professional education program. The study will be directed by John E. Ivey Jr., dean of education, and Ralph H. Smuckler, acting dean of international programs.

Leo Katz, professor of statistics and director of the Statistical Laboratory, will continue research in probability and statistics under a $32,300 NSF grant.

The Board accepted a $28,915 grant from the National Institutes of Health to support research by L. R. Dugan Jr., assistant professor of food science, aimed at developing improved methodology for detecting lipids (fats) and determining the role of dietary lipids in influencing composition of specific phospholipids.

NIH also has granted $20,564 for continued research by S. Howard Bartley, professor of psychology, and R. J. Ball, lecturer in physiology, concerned with the bodily processes involved in color perception.

A National Institutes of Health grant for $20,474 will support investigation of an enzyme called AMP deaminase. Clarence H. Suelter, assistant professor of biochemistry and director of the study, hopes to determine whether the enzyme is involved in controlling metabolic processes in muscles and how these processes are related to muscle contraction.

Sverker Persson, an associate professor of agricultural engineering, will direct research of the engineering properties of soils. The work is supported by a $17,900 grant from the U.S. Army Tank-Automotive Center of Warren.

A grant of $50,000 was made by the Kresge Foundation of Detroit to Oakland University for the purchase of 2,200 permanent seats for the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

The Board also accepted $63,768.83 in scholarships, including $32,122 for Oakland University. The Oakland total includes $31,968.59 from the Oakland County Scholarship Committee. It represents proceeds from the 1964 Meadow Brook Ball.

SPONGE Scraps With CORE Pickets

NEW YORK P--Fists flew briefly at the World's Fair Sunday between Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) pickets and a group of young counterpickets calling themselves the "Society for the Prevention of Negroes Getting Everything" (SPONGE).

At least one bloody nose resulted.

Irving Barton, a Negro youth in his late teens, tried to get one of the SPONGE youths to move out of his way and pulled back his fist in a threatening gesture. The SPONGE youth hit Barton in the nose and made it bleed.

A few other blows were thrown before the fracas was subdued.

At 2 p.m., the CORE demonstrators sang "We Shall Overcome," the civil rights movement anthem, and ended their picketing for the day.

The New York City pavilion is adjacent to the fountain-encased Unisphere, the fair's chief symbol and hallmark of its theme, "Peace Through Understanding."

Racial Ills Cure

Aid Necessary

Barring a "miracle in human relations," continued federal aid to poverty-stricken urban areas is the only solution to the nation's racial ills, said MSU historian John J. Appel, assistant professor of American Thought and Language, in Kansas City Friday.

"Nothing else will do the job," he said, not even preferential treatment of the Negro, enforced antidiscrimination laws or better home financing and urban planning.

Appel summarized historical similarities and differences between Negroes and immigrants in a paper delivered before the 48th annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Historical Association.

Although most 19th century immigrants received little special help, they did benefit from various national, religious and labor organizations. This assistance attracted little notice, while "salvage operations for Negroes have generally been undertaken in full view of society," said Appel.

He suggested that once Negroes are within reach of "basic job and educational rights," they can draw upon the immigrants' experience.

Someday, according to Appel, we may see a pattern of life and organization (among Negroes) resembling the pattern of American immigrant communities prevalent in the days of mass migration.

'Wipeout' Honors Six

Trophies were awarded to six team winners in the Wilson Wipeout car rally at a dance in the Wilson Hall Cafeteria Saturday night.

First-place trophies went to two non-students, John Davis and his navigator, Wayne Zitkus, in the sports car division and to non-student Gary Summer and his navigator, Dick Cromwell, East Lansing sophomore.

Second and third place winners in the sports car division were the teams of Don McMillan, Ferndale junior, and Anita McMillan and of Robert Wolfe, Newton, Mass., freshman, and John Ladd, St. Louis Park, Minn., sophomore.

Sam Viviano, East Lansing junior, and Gerry Yablonsky, Jersey City, N.J., junior, took second place in the American division. Third place in that division went to Ted Linder, East Rockaway, N.Y., graduate student, and Ellen Kolemmainen, East Lansing sophomore.

Batsmen Skin Wildcats, Split With Badgers

By DUANE LANCASTER
State News Sports Writer

The old joke about the elevator operator with his ups and downs could well have applied to Michigan State baseball this weekend as coach Danny Litwhiler's squad opened the Big Ten season at home.

The Spartans looked impressive bombing Northwestern 10-1 Friday, were a bit flat in dropping the first game of a twinbill against Wisconsin Saturday 5-4, but bounced back to clip the Badgers 5-1 in the nightcap on the tight pitching of John Krasnan.

The home performance put State in a tie for second place at 2-1. Wisconsin is 1-2 having lost to Michigan Friday and Northwestern is 0-3 after losing two to the Wolverines Saturday.

Left-hander Doug Dobrei stopped the Wildcats cold for seven innings on just two hits as shortstop Steve Juday supplied the hitting with a two for three performance and four runs batted in.

Northwestern scored its only run in the ninth inning on a home run by Walt Tiberi off reliever Rollie Walcott after the Spartans had amassed a comfortable 10-0 lead.

Juday broke open a 1-0 ball game in the fourth on a bases-loaded triple and from then on the Spartans coasted to their first conference win of the season.

Centerfielder Bob Maniere had three singles in five at bats and junior third baseman John Biedenbach chipped in with two to lead the 10-hit Spartan attack.

State opened the first game Saturday by scoring three runs in the first inning, but the Badgers kept picking away at the Spartan lead until Rick Hense finally tied the score, 4-4, in the eighth inning on a home run off losing pitcher Fred Devereux.

Wisconsin scored the winning run an inning later on a single by Joe Romary, a wild pitch and another single by Gary Pinnow.

Jim Goodrich started for the Spartans but was relieved by the fifth by footballer Dick Kenney after his arm tightened up from the cold weather. Lance Tolbert went the distance for the Badgers to get credit for the win.

Dick Billings tripled in the big first inning, driving in two runs and scored a moment later on a single off Howie Miller's bat. But after that the Spartans were unable to get to Tolbert until the seventh when they scored their final run of the game.

Tolbert set State down on eight hits and received hitting support from Romary who had four singles and Pinnow with two.

Krasnan allowed his first run of the season in 18 innings of work, an unearned tally in the sixth, but the junior left-hander allowed just three hits to give the Spartans a split for the afternoon.

The Spartans provided Krasnan with all the runs he needed in the third inning. Second baseman Jerry Walker, who had four hits in the twinbill, led off with a single, moved to third on a single by Krasnan and a fielder's choice, and scored when Maniere was safe on an error. Biedenbach followed with a single driving home Bruce Pettibone who was on base on the fielder's choice.

State picked up two more in the fifth on four singles by Krasnan, Maniere, Biedenbach and Billings and scored the final tally an inning later when Pettibone singled home Walker. Walker singled and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt before Pettibone drove him home.

MSU Paces Drake Relays With Shuttle Hurdles Mark

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa--Running on a rain-soaked track, the Spartan cindermen proved to the other entrants in the Drake Relays, held here Friday and Saturday, that the power is still in the hands of the big schools.

State, the only Big Ten representative at the meet, wound up the two-day competition with a first, two seconds and a third. Coach Fran Dittich, extremely satisfied with his team's showing, rated the field as some of the best he's seen to date.

The Spartans, who made record-breaking a habit during the indoor season, kept their streak going here as State's quartet of hurdlers--Clint Jones, Bob Steele, Fred McKay and Gene Washington--picked up a first in the 480-yard shuttle hurdles relay with a time of 57.9.

That clocking was a tenth of a second under the mark set at Drake last year, as well as a new MSU varsity record, erasing the :59.5 running of 1949.

In Friday's competition, Jim Garrett took second in the broad jump with a leap of 24' 4 3/4" behind New Mexico's Clarence Robinson. Robinson's 26' 9 1/2" jump erased the old Drake mark of 26' 2" set by Gayle Hopkins of Arizona last year.

The 120-yd. high hurdles was a true race to the wire, with the first three men clocked at :14.1 and the next two at :14.2. Washington was second behind Dave Dick of Air Force, with Jones rounding out the field to take fifth.

"Everyone ran well at least once during the two days," Dittich said. "Our 3.25 clocking in the sprint medley was our best to date. We just missed qualifying in the 880-yd. relay with a time of 1:27.2."

Netters Top Illini In Tri-Meet

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.--After dropping two straight matches to Indiana, defending Big Ten champion, and Northwestern, Michigan State's tennis team bounced back to defeat Illinois 5-4 Saturday in the final match of a tri-meet held here this weekend.

The Spartans are now 5-4 in dual meet competition and 10-17 in Big Ten match play.

MSU was forced to win all of its doubles matches against Illinois, after losing the singles matches, 4-2, to pull out its lone victory of the weekend.

Illinois' Steve Simon defeated Dwight Shelton in first singles, 2-6, 6-3, and 6-3. Illinois Tom Bauer beat Captain Charlie Wolff, 6-4, 6-3 while State's Laird Warner stopped Rick Wertzel, 6-2, 6-3.

Illinois' John Sisson beat Jim Phillips, 2-6, 6-4, 6-0, and Jerry Johnson topped State's Vic Dhooge by the identical scores of 6-4, 6-4. Mike Youngs grabbed the other Spartan singles victory from Bob Leuke, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

State then came roaring back in doubles as Shelton and Wolff defeated Bauer and Simon, 6-2, 6-2 in first doubles, followed by Phillips-Dhooge over Sisson-Leuke, 6-2, 7-5 and Warner-Youngs over Johnson-Bill Hall, 7-5 and 6-2.

State opened the meet Friday against powerful Indiana and came out on the short end of a 7-2 score. MSU's only two wins were gained by Wolff, who beat Rod McEnerney, 7-5, 6-4 and Dhooge, who defeated Mike Nolan, 6-3, 6-4.

The Spartans didn't fare much better against Northwestern, losing the contest 6-3.

Dhooge again figured in State's win column, beating Jerry Riessen 6-0, 3-6, 6-2. Youngs followed with a victory over Roger Freeman, 6-2, 6-2.

The combination of Warner and Youngs was good enough to earn State's only doubles victory, 6-0, 6-1 against the team of Riessen and Freeman.

"We had ups-and-downs performances from the players," explained Coach Stan Drobac. "If they were all up at the same time, we could have given Indiana and Northwestern a run for their money."

Drobac was pleased with his team's comeback against Illinois. "After losing to Indiana in the opener and then dropping one to Northwestern, we were very discouraged," he continued. "But when we came from behind, winning all the doubles matches and beating Illinois 5-4, it gave me some encouragement."

The Spartans will begin preparations immediately for the coming week's competition.

A NEW PROGRAM OF INTEREST TO MEN

It isn't easy to become an officer in the United States Army. Only the best young men are selected. The training and course of study are demanding.

But if you can qualify—and you should find out if you can—you will receive training which will put you a step ahead of other college graduates. Army ROTC training will give you experience that most college graduates do not get—in leading and managing other men, in organizational techniques, in self-discipline and in speaking on your feet. This kind of experience will pay off in everything you do the rest of your life.

Army ROTC has a new program designed specifically for outstanding men who already have two years of college, and plan to continue their college work. During your junior and senior years in this program, you will receive $40 per month. Want to find out more about the program? Simply send in the coupon below, or see the Professor of Military Science if you are now attending an ROTC college. There's no obligation—except the one you owe to yourself.

If you're good enough to be an Army Officer, don't settle for less

S.O.S. ANSWERED AT SCRIMMAGE

Rookie Is 'Raye Of Light' After Injury Sidelines Mullen

By JERRY MORTON
State News Sports Writer

Next Saturday is May Day but last Saturday could have been called "Raye Day" as far as the Spartan football team is concerned.

Freshman quarterback Jimmy Raye was the center of attraction as the Green and White closed out their third week of spring practice with a scrimmage at Spartan Stadium.

The two and a half hour workout was the longest scrimmage of the season and it featured everything from a double quarterback role by Raye to a kicking demonstration by Lou Groza of the Cleveland Browns.

Raye began the afternoon as understudy for John Mullen of the Green (first team) unit. When Eric Marshall of the White team suffered an ankle sprain on the first play of the scrimmage, Raye took over his duties.

Later on, Mullen received a shoulder injury and Raye assumed signal-calling duties for both teams.

Raye showed excellent running ability by making several fine gains including a 14-yard run to account for one of the Green's four touchdowns.

He also threw a 12-yard pass to halfback Bob Lange for another score.

"We had to overwork Jimmy because he was the only quarterback we had left," said coach Duffy Daugherty. "His running ability has always been his strong point so we let him run a lot today."

Steve Juday, the Spartans' top quarterback, was absent from the scrimmage. He was playing shortstop for the baseball team.

Mullen's injury proved to be slight and he returned to action late in the workout. Marshall, however, will remain on the sidelines for the remainder of spring drills.

Groza's appearance was intended to aid Spartan booters next fall. The National Football League veteran has paid regular visits to the Spartan spring camp in recent years.

He worked with Larry Lukasik and George Chatlos Saturday, and Dick Kenney joined the pro for a Sunday workout at the Stadium.

Groza had little trouble putting the ball through the uprights from 25 yards out and then gave instructions on kickoffs.

Daugherty pointed out that the Spartans will be needing a kickoff man to replace Lou Bobich whose soccer-style kicks became an MSU trademark for the last two seasons.

"Kenney is a good kicker," Daugherty said, "but we won't use him on kickoffs. How can he cover the kickoff with a bare foot?"

Besides the work of Raye and Groza, there were other notable happenings.

Rover back George Webster performed the most outstanding defensive play of the day when he intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards for a Green score.

Freshman halfback Mitch Pruett, largely a defensive player last fall, ran well in his first major opportunity with the offense.

Pruett caught a 10-yard pass from Raye to set up a Green touchdown at the five. He then ran three yards on the next play with Eddie Cotton eventually scoring from the two.

Freshman backs Dwight Lee and Bob Apisa also saw considerable action with the first team.

It has been difficult for the Spartans to exhibit their top offensive effort this spring with halfback Clint Jones and end Gene Washington out for track and Ju-day playing baseball.

"This was strictly a training scrimmage," Daugherty said. "I'm glad we have a chance to let so many show what they can do."

Workouts will resume Wednesday afternoon with another scrimmage slated for Saturday afternoon at the Stadium.

TOE BUSINESS -- Lou Groza of the Cleveland Browns exhibits the form that has made him one of the best kickers in pro football history. He visited the campus over the weekend to teach Spartan booters the art of putting the ball through the uprights.

Geographer Maps Strategy For Stadium Grid Defenses

By JERRY MORTON
State News Sports Writer

Larry Onesti came to Michigan State to do graduate work in geography.

Football fans agree, however, that he's already an expert on the territory behind the defensive line. Onesti played college football at Northwestern and has been a linebacker with the Houston Oilers since his graduation in 1962.

Now the one-time Wildcat has turned Spartan and is helping coach MSU linebackers as they run through their annual spring drills.

"A linebacker is a special breed of person," he said. "He has to have a special feel for the game that can't be taught. A linebacker either has it or he doesn't have it."

This is Onesti's second term at MSU. He is working toward a master's degree in Russian geography and hopes to eventually teach on the college level.

The Spartan defense made things rough for Northwestern when Onesti was playing as MSU defeated the Wildcats in each of his three seasons on the varsity.

Onesti said he thinks the Green and White could cause plenty of trouble for opponents this year.

"I think the team looks real good so far," he said. "The defensive line looks especially strong. I'm particularly impressed with Claude Thornhill and Ron Goovert. That Thornhill could really be a great one."

He is aware of the conflict of interests that will face him when MSU plays Northwestern next fall, but doesn't consider it to be much of a problem.

Onesti is one of many former college players who have worked out with the Spartans this spring.

Although he's never played against National Football League teams, Onesti said he thinks games between the leagues is inevitable. "It's just a matter of time," he said. "The players want it but the public wants it even more. I think the AFL will be playing the NFL within two years."

Onesti said he thinks the American League will become even more popular when it fields its first team in the Midwest.

GROUNDING--John Denison applies a tackle on quarterback John Mullen during Saturday's scrimmage at Spartan Stadium. Mullen, understudy for Steve Juday, received a shoulder injury early in the workout but returned to direct the Green squad later on.

Everywhere A Water Hole!

EVANSTON, Ill.--Rain fell here Saturday afternoon on the Northwestern University campus, washing out the first leg of the Spartan golf team's weekend jaunt to Big Ten schools.

Coach John Brotzmann's swimmers were to meet Wisconsin and Southern Illinois in Carbondale, Ill., today with hopes of securing their first spring victory. Last weekend the Spartans finished last in a quadrangular meet at Ohio State.

Heading the golf contingent is junior Doug Swartz, who is averaging 78.5 strokes per round. Ken Benson is second to Swartz with 79 strokes average.

Local U.N. Vetoes Plebiscite For Africa

An executive action by the secretary-general turned the Campus U.N.'s General Assembly Friday into a Security Council meeting. The action was the result of low attendance.

The question of the status of the Portuguese African provinces of Mozambique and Angola was acted upon by the Security Council.

The resolution asked the Trusteeship Council to set up a plebiscite and to determine the possibilities of independence for the provinces. It was defeated, with three in favor, four against and four abstentions.

the International Relations Club and Orchard Lake sophomore, reported on the MSU-Vietnamese Village project.

The new system of proxies which was to be explained at Friday's meeting will be used at the next meeting, May 7, being held in conjunction with International Week.

Four Debaters Picked For Two-State Tour

Four MSU debaters will tour Wisconsin and Minnesota high schools and colleges this week as guests of Wisconsin State University at River Falls.

Squad members selected for the assembly program tour are Richard Brautigam, Albion freshman; James Hudek, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, junior; Kenneth Neaton, Trenton, N.J., sophomore and Kermit Terrell, Colorado Springs, Colo., junior.

The Michigan State and Wisconsin State teams will debate the proposition: "Resolved, That the U.S. Should Significantly Reduce Expenditures in Its Outer Space Program." A series of 16 audience debates will feature

Social Work

More Jobs Open

Members of the Social Work Club at MSU were told last week that there were many job openings in their field throughout Michigan.

Thomas W. Cook, superintendent of program operations for the state department of Public Welfare, said that job opportunities had risen in the past year.

Lucille Barber, coordinator of the undergraduate curriculum in social work and faculty advisor for the club, agreed with him. Between 400 and 500 new positions were added in Michigan in the past year, and many of these are still open.

Michigan is looking for two kinds of people with degrees in social work—those capable of future advanced degrees and also those who can move into supervisory positions, he said.

One area where workers are always needed is in Detroit. "We always have a vacuum in Detroit," Cook said. "Of course, this is true of any large city." People with M.S.'s are particularly hard to find, Cook said. Most already have some type of commitment by the time they graduate, he said.

Senger Attending Trucking Meeting

Frank Senger, chairman of MSU's school of journalism, will participate in the annual spring meeting of the Sales Council of the American Trucking Association.

He will present awards in the 1965 advertising competition designed to recognize trucking firms for outstanding advertising achievement. The meeting will be held in Biloxi, Miss., today through Wednesday.

Spartan Helots Sponsor Meals

Spartan Helots sponsored a spirit dinner Thursday for residents of Fee Hall.

Besides carrying trays, Helots, in green and white apparel and green spirit hats, renamed all the food to coincide with the theme of spirit.

Helots will be carrying spirit from dorm to dorm for the next few weeks. All residence halls have been invited by Bob Amsler to have a spirit dinner put on by the Helots.

National Book Drive To Benefit Appalachia

An estimated million books will be collected this week and sent to rural school libraries in Appalachia under a national Parent-Teacher Association anti-poverty program.

The East Lansing Public Library will serve as the area collection center.

The books will be distributed to 44 Kentucky Colleges and the University of Kentucky.

The program will be broadened later to include the entire Appalachian region.

Only certain titles are sought for the project. Librarians in the Appalachia area have made up a list of the 100 most-wanted books and a supplementary list of 300 titles. Both lists are posted at the East Lansing Public Library. A collection box will be there through May 1.

Further information may be secured from the East Lansing Library, from Mrs. James Meulendyke at 332-0338 or from Mrs. Robert Sweetzer at 332-3842.

Liquor Bill Is Defeated

The Michigan House of Representatives Thursday defeated a bill that would have allowed local communities to decide whether or not to sell liquor on Sunday.

In all, 39 lawmakers voted for the bill and 60 against.

Opponents of the bill, especially Rep. Albert E. Horrigan, D-Flint, argued that the question should be sold on Sunday, but of local self-determination.

Rep. Edward K. Michalski, D-Detroit, and sponsor of the measure, served notice that he would move to reconsider the vote.

Legislator Sets Welfare Talk

Rep. Tom White, a member of the state legislature from Detroit, will speak at a meeting of Phi Alpha Monday in 31 Union. He will talk on social welfare issues before the legislature.

A former caseworker with the Wayne County Bureau of Social Aid, White is now a member of the House Social Aid and Welfare Committee.

His talk will be preceded by the initiation of new members. Phi Alpha is a national social work honorary society and invites all social work majors to attend.

O'Neill Play Discussion Slated

John Waite, associate professor of comparative literature, and Robert Richards, instructor in Social Science, will lead a discussion of O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night" at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in 108 Kresge.

The informal discussion will cover both the literary and technical aspects of the University Theater production.

Rifle Range Open

The MSU rifle range in the basement of Dem Hall will be open to shooters this term on Mondays and Wednesdays from 4 to 5 p.m. and on Fridays from 1 to 3 p.m.

Press Involvement Urged

A call for more concern on the part of journalists for the nation's moral and social problems was sounded by David Duncan, chairman of the Greater Lansing Coordinating Council, a civil rights group, on campus Thursday night.

Duncan spoke at the 1965 initiations of the MSU chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional society for men in journalism. Five journalism students--Richard Hansen, East Lansing sophomore; Kyle Kerbaw, Bloomfield Hills sophomore; Michael Kindman, Franklin Square, N.Y., junior; Hugh J. Leach, Sparta senior; and James Sterba, Owosso junior--were initiated.

Duncan said "American's social revolution of the '60's," the internal changes being brought about by the civil rights movement, are more than a Southern phenomenon. Social changes are needed to cure all degrees of "sickness," in all areas of the country, he said. News men have a responsibility to provide the spark that will rekindle the flame of social conscience, he said.

The experiences of the last 30 years of domestic conflict, international tensions, population increase and expansion of social awareness, Duncan said, have shown that new answers must be found.

"The only thing that we really have left to do is concern ourselves with the development of all the people in this country and ultimately of all the people on this planet," Duncan said.

VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE BARREL

As everyone knows, thirteen-twelfths of the earth's surface is water. Thus we can see how important it is to know and understand our oceans. Toward this end American colleges last year embarked on a program to increase enrollment in oceanography. I am pleased to report that results were nothing short of spectacular. In one single semester the number of students majoring in oceanography rose by 100%—from one student to two!

But more oceanographers are still needed, and so today this column, normally a vehicle for slapdash popularity, will instead devote itself to a brief course in oceanography. In view of the solemnity of the subject matter, my sponsors, the Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blade Co., makers of Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades which give you more luxury shaves than Beep-Beep or any other brand you can name—if, by chance, you don't agree, the makers of Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades will buy you a pack of whatever brand you think is better—my sponsors, I say, the Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blade Co. will today, because of the solemnity of this column, forego their usual commercial message.

We begin our study of oceans with that ever-popular favorite, the Pacific. Largest of all oceans, the Pacific was discovered by Balboa, a Spanish explorer of great vision. To give you an idea of Balboa's vision, he first saw the Pacific while standing on a peak in Darien, which is in Connecticut.

The Pacific is not only the largest ocean, but the deepest. The Mindanao Trench, off the Philippine Islands, measures more than 5,000 fathoms in depth. (It should be pointed out here that ocean depths are measured in fathoms—lengths of six feet—after Sir Walter Fathom, a British nobleman of Elizabethan times who, upon his eighteenth birthday, was given a string six feet long. Many young men would have sunk in a funk if they got for their birthday was a string six feet long, but not Sir Walter! String in hand, he scampered around the entire coast of England measuring seawater until he was arrested for loitering. Incidentally, a passion for measuring seems to have run in the family: Fathom's grandnephew, Sir John Furlong, spent all his waking hours measuring racetracks until Charles II had him beheaded in honor of the opening of the London School of Economics.)

But I digress. Let us, as the poet Masefield says, go down to the sea again. (The sea, incidentally, has ever been a favorite subject for poets and composers. Who does not know and love the many robust sea chantees that have enriched our folk music—songs like "Sailing Through Kansas" and "I'll Swab Your Deck If You'll Swab Mine" and "The Artificial Respiration Polka.")

My own favorite sea chanty goes like this: (I'm sure you all know it. Why don't you sing along as you read?)

O, carry me to the deep blue sea,
Where I can live with honor,
And every place I'll shave my face
With Stainless Steel Personna.

Sing hi, sing ho, sing mal-de-mer;
Sing hey and nonny-nonny,
Sing Jimmy crack corn and I don't care,
Sing Stainless Steel Personna.

I'll harpoon whales and jib my sails,
And read old Joseph Conrad,
And take my shaves upon the waves,
With Stainless Steel Personna.

Sing la, sing lo, sing ole-a-lay,
Sing night and noon and morning,
Sing salt and spray and curds and whey,
Sing Stainless Steel Personna.

The landlocked makers of Personna® and Personna Injector Blades wish you smooth sailing and smooth shaving—with Personna and Personna's perfect partner: Burma Shave®, regular or menthol. It soaks rings around any other lather!

Area Filipino Dancers Appear On 'Polygon'

The bare feet of Filipino dancers will beat out an island rhythm on a segment of "Polygon" at 8 p.m. tonight on WMSB.

The dancers are members of the area Filipino club, composed of University students from the Philippines, Filipino Lansing-area residents and several Americans adopted by the club.

Filipino farmers originated the bamboo dance the club will present as a game of relaxation and sport. Resting at harvest time, the farmers used bamboo poles to catch the long-legged Tinkling birds searching for food in the fields.

Delt House Set For 1966

The men of Delta Tau Delta fraternity will have a new house by spring term, 1966.

The 48-man house will have ski-lodge architecture, an exposed-beam ceiling and an open-hearth fire pit.

The new Delta house will be located just south of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority house on Harrison Road.

Steve Powers, Livonia junior and president of the chapter, said: "Problems in securing adequate financing have postponed building until this time, but operations are now in full swing. 'We will break ground no later than July 1, and plan to be in the house by the following spring.'"
