Protestors Stand Mute In Court

Four MSU students and one other person arrested in the Union Tuesday afternoon stood mute before Judge George J. Hutter Wednesday as they were arraigned in Lansing Township Justice Court.

Trial date was set for Dec. 17. Arraigned were: Howard E. Harrison, 23, address listed as 217 Center St., East Lansing; Albert Halprin, 17, of 322 West McDonel Hall; Peter Hornbeck, 19, of B-10 Mobile Home Manor in Meridian Township; James J. Dukarm, 19, of 120 Center St., East Lansing; and Fred Janurin, 22, of 523 Charles St., East Lansing.

Judge Hutter set bail for Harrison and Halprin at $200 each and $100 each for Hornbeck, Dukarm and Janurin.

The five are charged with: trespassing on university property; assembling and obstructing business; and displaying signs and posters without permission.

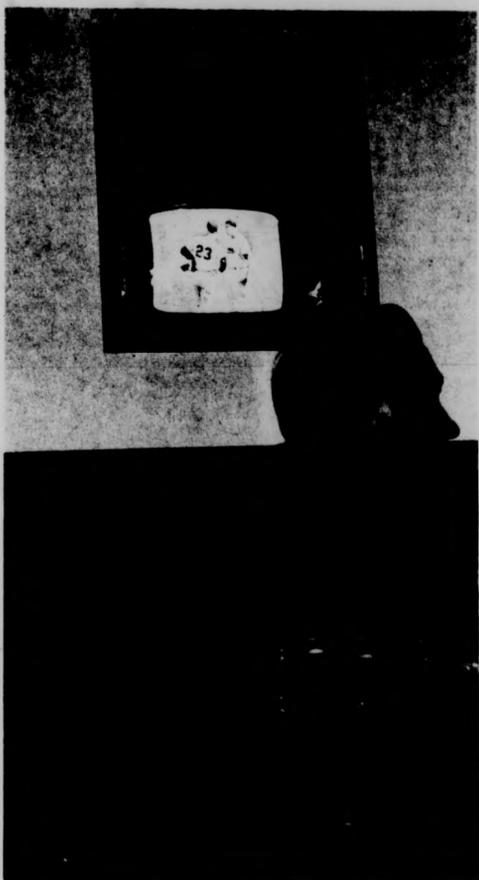

The arrests were made when the five, distributing literature condemning U.S. policies in Viet Nam, refused to leave when asked by Placement Bureau Director Jack Shingleton.

Union Arrest Prompts Rally

About 300 students gathered at Beaumont Tower Wednesday to protest administration policy regarding student freedoms.

The rally was prompted by the arrest Tuesday of five students in the Union distributing pamphlets against U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Committee for Student Rights (CSR) sponsored the rally which lasted about two hours.

NUMBERS GAME--The Dodgers may not have had yesterday's game in the palms of their hands, but L.A. Manager Walt Alton did have the winning runs on his back. The Twins tied the Series up on the pitching and three-run homer of Jim "Mudcat" Grant to claim a 5-1 victory and clinch a playoff this afternoon. See story on page 4.

Student Policy Views 'Won't Work'--Neville

By DAVE HANSON
State News Staff Writer

Administrators constantly have to face the problem of how much freedom students should have.

Provost Howard R. Neville represented MSU last week at the American Council on Education (ACE) annual meeting in Washington, D.C., where the question was given a new twist by one of the speakers.

Edward D. Eddy, president of Pittsburgh's Chatham College, said that college and university administrators must begin giving students a voice in shaping policy.

"The time is ripe for all American colleges and universities to allow students a strongly contributing role in the shaping of educational policy," said Eddy.

He expressed the view that students should have as much voice in school affairs as faculty and said college committees should have voting student members. "It wouldn't work," said Neville Monday. "Students do not have the experience to make decisions. They don't have to stay here and live with the decisions. It has to be the responsibility of the faculty and administration."

Neville said that students have the ultimate power to influence the University--they can choose not to attend.

"They can change curriculum by not taking courses," he said. "They have a very powerful voice."

Neville said that student government can be an important factor in influencing the University. "It can be done, but it takes time to develop an effective voice. How much history does ASMSU have?" he asked.

Neville said that students may go too far when given some powers. He said student judiciaries are almost always harder on their fellow students than the University would be.

Neville was among 9,600 administrators from 1,400 colleges and universities attending the ACE meeting. The theme was "The Student in Higher Education."

One researcher offered the opinion that the present student college system can create a "docile" student body. Joseph Katz, who is conducting a student development study, at Stanford told the group that he feels the necessity of going to college prohibits students from challenging institutional change.

Katz said that pressure on students from home, school and society makes them accept a situation. But personality development depends on the freedom to try out different patterns of behavior.

U.S. Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, speaking at the ACE banquet, criticized the objects of campus protest demonstrations.

"However deeply felt, such vaguely expressed grievances are so pallid by comparison with those of the Negro that to demonstrate over them can be to dilute and debase the moral significance of demonstrations for civil rights."

Katzenbach said the validity of their causes cannot be questioned, but the students do not seek the proper recourse--through the administration, their parents and the community.

TSHOMBE DISMISSED IN CONGO SHAKEUP

Premier Replaced By Old Associate

LEOPOLDVILLE. The Congo's--Moise Tshombe is out and one of his old associates in the Katanga secession is in as Premier of The Congo by decree of President Joseph Kasavubu Wednesday.

Kasavubu dismissed Tshombe's 15-month old government as not conforming to the Congo's "constitutional norms, the election results of the imperative political equilibrium" and named Evariste Kimba, 39, to form a new one.

This settled at least temporarily a difference between the chief of state and the chief of government of this troubled African nation as to tenure.

Tshombe, who was brought back from exile in July, 1964, to help cope with rebellion, popular unrest and financial difficulties, had said he should remain in office as long as Kasavubu did. Kasavubu said Tshombe would stay only as long as he wanted him to.

Kimba is a deputy from North Katanga who was a founder member of Tshombe's Conakat political party and his foreign minister during the Katanga Province fight for independence from Leopoldville rule that was finally crushed by troops of the United Nations Jan. 1, 1965.

He has since founded his own party, the Balubakat. He is a one-time foreman on the cross-Congo railroad who studied law, sociology and political economy as avenues into politics. His working relations with Tshombe were long close, despite the fact they are from traditionally hostile tribes. Tshombe is of the Lunda tribe; Kimba is a Baluba.

Senators of Kimba's Balubakat party have aligned themselves with Tshombe, but he has chosen to remain independent since he was elected to the National Assembly last April. In fact he was not present Wednesday.

The shakeup came after a period of intense rivalry between Tshombe and his interior minister, Victor Nendaka.

Nendaka, for five years head of the National Security Police, has emerged as one of the most powerful Congolese politicians since he resigned that post to win election as a national deputy.

There had been speculation that Kasavubu would dissolve the government and then call on Tshombe to form a new one with the understanding he would include some men from Nendaka's "Congolese Democratic Front."

BRESLIN SUGGESTS:

ASMSU May Tell What To Distribute

Secretary Jack Breslin recommends ASMSU take over power to decide what materials should be distributed on campus.

Breslin said Wednesday he made the recommendation to President John A. Hannah.

Distribution of pamphlets, erection of posters and soliciting on campus must now be approved by the secretary's office.

"We only get into the act when someone comes here and asks to do something," Breslin said. "We then have to decide whether to let them or not."

"It's hard to be fair to all groups when some of them act the way they do."

"The group Tuesday had not applied for distribution (at Career Carnival). It was a planned event for the benefit of students and this group was a disruptive influence."

Breslin said the Committee for Student Rights (CSR) did apply for permission to distribute in or outside the Union Wednesday and permission was refused.

Many groups, even those which did not receive approval from the University, distributed information and solicited from students outside the Men's Intramural Building during registration.

Breslin said distribution was not stopped at that time because some groups have traditionally set up booths at registration and accept the idea that they are allowed to do so without asking.

Among those who distributed without permission are Wolverine, Sailing Club and CSR.

Breslin said he thinks the decision on who should be allowed to set up booths at such events could be handled by ASMSU.

Other problems arise with door-to-door salesmen in married housing, he said. In most cases, they are not allowed to solicit.

Breslin said that when permission is granted to such projects as the Ingham County X-Ray Unit to set up on campus, the question arises of who shall not be allowed similar permission.

The present ruling says: "No person shall erect or otherwise display any sign or poster or distribute handbills upon property governed by the Board (of Trustees) which advertises or otherwise calls attention to any product, service, or activity."

Exceptions to this rule are made by the secretary's office.

COMPLAINTS RECEIVED

Check That Horn, Gabriel--Biggie

Athletic Director Clarence "Biggie" Mann Wednesday blew the whistle on horns at football games when he banned the use of them at all future games in Spartan Stadium.

"The continuous din was a serious nuisance for spectators. It interfered with their hearing of the public address announcements, the cheerleaders and the bands."

"The same problem arose at other universities in recent years and resulted in banning of the horns from athletic events. We feel some action has become necessary here."

"Horns no longer will be sold at the stadium. People now possessing them are requested not to bring them to future games. We love spirit, and we have it, but the use of horns is not a proper way of expressing it."

Hannah, Radio Men Refuse Comment After Meeting

President John A. Hannah and areas radio station managers had no comment after their meeting Wednesday morning to discuss the proposed ASMSU all-campus radio project.

John McGoff, manager of WSWM, said he had "nothing at all to say about the meeting. You'll have to get any statements from Mr. Hannah."

Harold Gross, general manager of WJIM requested the meeting to discuss the campus radio system, which he says would compete with commercial outlets for advertising as well as for listeners.

Charles Mefford, general manager of WITL, said these meetings are held periodically to discuss matters of interest to the community and the University.

John Sowers, general manager of WKAR, did not attend yesterday's meeting because, "I was not invited."

He said he could not understand what such a station could provide that was not now being offered.

"Lansing has a wide diversity of stations and types of programming," he said. "I don't see what a campus station could hope to add."

"We base our programming on Billboard and local sales," said Sowers. "That's what people are listening to."

"I think we fill the void between the infantile prattlings of rock-and-roll, and the dreary drabness of classical music."

Jim Tanck, ASMSU cabinet president, said the campus station would provide services to students that are not now provided by local stations.

"WJL has a high-school night," he said, "but none of the stations have programming aimed directly at the MSU students."

Tanck said the station would not have to get a license from the Federal Communications Commission and it would not be intended for off-campus broadcasts.

"Most of the Big Ten schools have some kind of campus station that is run by students," said Tanck. "They are usually commercial, but this would be about the only non-commercial, student run station in the Big Ten."

Tanck said an ASMSU survey indicated many things with which students here are dissatisfied.

WKAR, he said, is not student-run and is not programmed for students.

Schiff Hearing To Begin

The hearing on Paul M. Schiff's suit against the University is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. today in Grand Rapids District Court.

President John A. Hannah and John A. Fuzak, vice president for academic affairs, were served subpoenas earlier this month to appear at the hearing.

Schiff is charging that the University denied his readmission because of his protest activities and the distribution of the Committee for Student Rights (CSR) newsletter "Logos."

He will be counseled by the American Civil Liberties Union. Fuzak was released from Edward W. Sparrow Hospital Tuesday, where he had been under observation since Oct. 3.

Arts 'vs.' Sciences: The Gulf Narrows

THE TWO CULTURES. That's the problem: modern culture is divided into two worlds--the arts and the sciences. Those who study the arts deride those who study the sciences. Those who study the sciences abhor concentration on the arts.

Or so it seemed when C. P. Snow wrote his famous essay deploring the dichotomy. He has since changed his mind, and so has about everyone else.

NEVERTHELESS, SCIENTISTS still have most of the money for research and most of the attention from government, business and universities. The artists and humanists still have most of the poetic dedication and most of the enforced poverty.

So, President Johnson has had Congress pass legislation providing $21 million a year for subsidy of arts and humanities, including $5 million a year for a National Endowment in the Arts similar to the National Science Foundation.

We guess this is a good thing.

MANY NATIONS have long-standing policies of special treatment for artists, writers, etc., and are used to spending some tax money on cultural projects. But the United States rarely acts just the way other countries do, and this is one of the areas in which it is different.

Americans have long feared a national culture, that is, a culture with nationally determined patterns of good and bad, with censorship problems and all the other possible evils of endowed art.

Other Americans have long wondered why there hasn't been more creative American culture in the first place.

It is to these two questions that the arts and humanities endowments must address themselves, and on these two problems that their "hang-up" could develop.

FEDERALLY ENDOWED ART must at all costs be allowed complete freedom to develop as it will, as federally endowed research in the humanities must be allowed freedom to reach conclusions independent of anything except its source data.

At the same time, federal endowments in both the arts and humanities must be administered in such a way that creativity will be encouraged. Grants must be not awarded earned for a creation that "passes," but rather incentives offered to anyone with the dedication to develop a work of art or a research study.

GREAT SOCIETY ART, if it follows the pattern of too much of Johnson's legislative utopia, could be a memorial to tastelessness and conformity. But it needn't be, and mustn't be allowed to become that.

Schiff Case May Be A Second 'Berkeley'

Michigan State is hardly the place one would expect "another Berkeley" to develop. And that is not quite what has been developing in a lawsuit whose preliminary hearings will be heard today in U.S. District Court in Grand Rapids.

Paul Schiff's suit for readmission to MSU could set legal precedents providing nationwide justification for the principles for which the Berkeley Free Speech Movement and its counterparts around the nation have fought. If Schiff wins his case--he is suing because he and the American Civil Liberties Union believe his civil rights have been violated by the University--there will probably be federal court backing for any student accused of abusing rights of political advocacy on campus.

As everyone including Schiff realizes, the question of whether Paul Schiff ever earns his masters in history from MSU is not the important thing. What is important is that his case just could go against the University.

Schiff just could be the man to prove the point the FSM wanted to prove--that it doesn't matter that you're a student if you want to take an unpopular political position, and the University has no right to tell you not to do it, even if you violate University regulations.

Today, Judge Noel P. Fox will hear two conflicting motions, from Schiff and the University, preliminary to the actual trial of the suit. There are three possible outcomes of today's hearing: --The University's motion for dismissal of the case could be upheld. In this case it appears likely that Schiff would appeal and attempt to force a trial anyway.

--Schiff's motion for an injunction to the University to admit him until a final settlement is reached could be upheld. This would mean that Schiff would be allowed to study at MSU pending a settlement on his eventual status, possibly a year or two from now.

--Both motions could be denied. This would mean that the case would proceed to a full trial, but Schiff would not be in school for the duration of the legal process.

In any case, today's hearing is not likely to be the last we will hear of the case of Paul M. Schiff vs. Michigan State University.

The evidence presented by each side will give an important clue to the way the decisions are likely to run, both today and in the trial which is to follow.

Schiff's claim could be based on technical grounds, such as that he was never given a warning or faculty hearing before his dismissal. Or it could concentrate on the higher-level argument that his activities--in the MSU Socialist Club, the Committee for Student Rights and ad hoc committees in favor of open housing and against the war in Viet Nam--are not relevant to his qualifications as a graduate student.

The University administration could defend itself on the basis of its autonomy under the state constitution and what Kenneth Lang, Schiff's lawyer, calls its "general authority to regulate the University." Or it could defend itself with more complex arguments centering on Schiff's purported pattern of disruptive behavior as regards adherence to University regulations.

It is probable that the discussion at some point in the case will shift to high gear, and we will see full presentation of both sides of the debate.

This discussion could be the "other Berkeley" which will begin defining the courts' view of students' citizenship.

ARMY ECLIPSES SUKARNO

Indonesian Politics Shift

By WILLIAM L. RYAN Associated Press

Moving cautiously, but with evident confidence, the Indonesian army is out to destroy the effectiveness of the Communist organization in this nation of 103 million, say sources in close touch with the situation there.

These sources report: --President Sukarno remains as leader but has lost his authority. His deputy, the violent anti-American Subandrio, may be headed for a showdown with Sukarno's liaison between the Presidential Palace and the armed forces has been eliminated. He retains the title of armed forces Commander-in-Chief, but the army generals call the shots.

--The army still regards civil war as possible, but if this fear is dissipated and there is reasonable stability, the generals will lead Indonesia back into the United Nations, which Sukarno deserted early this year.

--Sukarno is in dangerous health. A rumor that he soon would die triggered an attempt by Lt. Untung, an Air Force officer in the Presidential Guard, to annihilate army leaders and prepare for the succession. The sources identify Lt. Untung, now reported in custody, as a Communist.

--The army hopes to demonstrate that the picture of Communist mass support -- 3 million members and 10 million sympathizers -- will fade swiftly as the hard core is rounded up.

The sources insist the PKI (Communist Party) strength is on paper, that Red Chinese money permitted it to produce huge membership rolls. Peking evidently spent lavishly in Indonesia. The sources say also that Red Chinese embassy personnel used blackmail and extortion tactics to force the big Chinese community in Java to swell Communist Party coffers.

Jakarta Radio has reported the army command demanding payoffs of mass organizations. Many hundreds of key Communists in those organizations already have been arrested. The army seems to encourage non-Communist parties, led by Moslem groups to demand dissolution of the PKI and units it controls.

This seems to indicate a loss of authority for Sukarno, who habitually used Communist political strength to counterbalance army influence.

The orders seem to come, instead, from Maj. Gen. Suharto, commander of the army strategic command, supported by the Armed Forces chief, Gen. Abdul Harris Nasution, Nasution, who was an assassination target and lost a young daughter during the Sept. 30 events, is pictured as determined to wipe out Communist influence.

The army still permits use of "anti-imperialist" cliches coined in the long Sukarno flirtation with Red China, but sources close to the situation say this should not be taken too seriously.

African Reporting Facts And Fictions

To the Editor:

As a recent returnee from Africa, it was with considerable interest that I read Professor Hooker's timely letter Monday deploring the lack of American press coverage of the Tanzanian elections. I share his concern over what is perhaps fairly characteristic of African reporting in this country.

While one might legitimately lament over this abysmal lack of information, of no less concern and consequence is the credibility of the little information which does filter through. For example, while portraying as "humanitarian" the decision of the U.S. government to airlift white mercenaries into the Congo, the press failed to report that several hundred innocent black Africans were killed in the process of "rescuing" 30 white missionaries.

Even granting the fact that in our country the question of whether one white person is worth ten black remains considerably less than rhetorical, this does not vindicate the press' failure to make it clear to the American people that their government has acted on this option.

With such (hardly isolated) instances of African reporting in this country, one wonders if perhaps Hooker's chagrin is not a cause for rejoicing.

Perhaps we are now witnessing the dawn of a new era in African reporting; i.e., the present minimal coverage might turn into none. Perhaps no information is superior to misinformation.

The Long Walk Home

To the Editor:

The wintry blasts will soon be upon us and the students of McDonel and Holmes dormitories will soon have to brave the rigors and perils of the cold journey to parking lot X.

The distance to this lot is about three-quarters of a mile--a long cold walk on a Michigan winter day. Of course, this distance may be shortened by about one-quarter of a mile by jumping ditches, climbing fences, and crossing railroad tracks.

It does not seem right that the residents of these halls, who have reserved cars, should have to walk this far to use them.

If Michigan State University can feel free to accept our money for registering a car for us, it can also feel obligated to give us a place to park within reasonable walking distance from our dormitories. We pay the same amount of money to park our cars as the men of Shaw Hall, who have a closed parking ramp directly across the street available for their use, so why must we have this inconvenience forced upon us?

I am sure the men who decided upon this parking situation for us do not walk three-quarters of a mile from where they park their cars to where they live, for if they did they would realize just how inconvenient it is.

We do not ask for a closed parking ramp. We simply want to be permitted to park in the dirt lot south of McDonel and west of Akers. This is or now this lot is not being used and I am sure a parking lot close to Shaw Lane will not interfere with the future plans for the lot.

LETTERS

Two Extremes Of 14-B

To the Editor:

In reference to the statements of Lyle Wilson concerning Taft-Hartley, section 14b, which appeared in a recent issue of the State News, there appears to be no small controversy over the effects of this legislation.

As I see it, there are two extremes involved. On the one side stand those who seem to favor universal unionization of the civilian labor force and on the other stand those who seem to feel that organized labor is inherently coercive.

Walter Reuther, at a recent Skilled Trades UAW conference, suggested an equitable solution. He proposed that anyone who wished to join a union ought to be able to do so. Further, anyone who does not wish to join ought to be able to exercise that option.

However, if an individual does not wish to pay his freight at the bargaining table then he should not share in the benefits gained at the bargaining table (such as group insurance, pension plans, paid vacations, better wages, better working conditions and the like).

It seems to me that if we are to accept the concept of collective bargaining, then we cannot tolerate the use of 14b to combat organized labor.

What's So New In ASMSU?

To the Editor:

Webb Martin may soon be eating crow. He implies that only "freshmen or uninterested upperclassmen would fall to realize that the mishandling occurred under a completely different student government." He may soon find the ASMSU tax raise defeated by such "uninterested" students.

For all we "uninterested" students can smell a skunk. And that skunk goes by the name of ASMSU.

It is NOT a "completely different student government." Many of the very "representatives" that entertained, amused, and yet angered us with their boondoggling are back with us once more.

If students enjoyed last year's performance, which was topped off by a mishandling of our funds, take heart--many of the old guard are back again. Webb Martin, Jim Graham and John McQuitty all served AUGS last year.

As far as the tax goes, almost everyone can afford the raise, but we don't want to give a 100 percent increase in funds to an unproven government composed of many carry-overs from the old one.

We simply don't feel that the ASMSU is worth another two-bits.

Hup-2-3-4... You're In The Movement Now

Campus organizers and peace groups laid plans Wednesday for a nationwide series of demonstrations this weekend to protest U.S. involvement in the war in Viet Nam.

Protest leaders said they hoped to enlist thousands of persons--including college students and union members--for teach-ins, "speak-outs," and marches scheduled mainly for Friday and Saturday.

The Detroit committee to end the war in Viet Nam said demonstrators would picket an Army induction center for two hours Saturday and a teach-in would be held Friday at a Wayne State University auditorium.

In Madison, Wis., demonstrators will attempt a citizens arrest of the commander of Truax Air Force Base. A 35-hour teach-in is scheduled at the University of California. An estimated 15,000 persons will march on New York's Fifth Avenue.

At last count, demonstrations were expected in 71 cities in 28 states, and the list was growing. Leaders said demonstrations also were planned in 13 foreign countries.

The steering committee of the National Coordinating Committee to end the war in Viet Nam laid plans for the demonstrations during a meeting in Ann Arbor last month.

"The American South, Viet Nam--there have been too many killings," the Coordinating Committee said in its publication, Peace & Freedom News. "We must say something about this and do something about it. Now."

The National Coordinating Committee has a national clearing house in Madison, Wis. There, plans were made to attempt to enter the Truax Air Force Base at noon Saturday and try to make a citizens' arrest of the commanding officer, Lt. Col. Lester Aramsmith, on charges of "accessory to murder, violation of international law and crimes against humanity in relation to the war in Viet Nam."

The University of Wisconsin committee to end the war in Viet Nam said the plans were announced by 12 dissident members of the group and that the attempt did not have the committee's endorsement.

At Northern Illinois University at De Kalb, Ill., an unrecognized chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) planned to have a vigil at a World War II memorial tank in De Kalb.

Thomas Getts, Northern student and a member of the SDS Coordinating Committee, said two men came to his residence, identified themselves as members of the American Legion, and said "there could be some skulls cracked" if the demonstrators halted at the tank.

In Chicago, a morning program was scheduled at the University of Chicago, a rally at Buckingham Fountain, and a march through the Loop. A program also was scheduled for the McCormick Place Little Theater Sunday.

At the University of California's Berkeley campus, the teach-in was scheduled to begin with three hours of folk singing and talks in the Sproul Hall Plaza, scene of the free speech demonstrations last year.

The Viet Nam Day Committee (VDC) predicted 5,000 to 10,000 demonstrators would listen to speeches on the campus Friday and then march 7-1/2 miles to the Oakland Army terminal in a torchlight "peace march."

Scores of University of California faculty members signed petitions condemning the VDC and its tactics. Other citizens promised a teach-in of their own at the Oakland terminal in support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Rebel Forces Leave Dominican Capital

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)--Rebel forces were evacuated from downtown Santo Domingo Wednesday. It was a major step toward reunification of the divided city and pacification of the country.

Some 1200 rebel combatants, under the personal command of Col. Manuel Ramon Montes Arache, moved in truck, jeep and passenger car convoy to an abandoned military camp across the Ozama River east of the city.

For most of the rebel forces it was their first time outside the downtown area since the outbreak of the April 24 revolution.

Once during the evacuation a small group of armed rebels riding a captured U.S. army jeep was halted by 82nd Airborne rangers and for several minutes the two armed groups glared angrily at each other across the vehicle while a ranger lieutenant obtained radiotelephoned clearance for the jeep to proceed.

The jeep had been captured and its ranger occupants killed or wounded in a brisk clash downtown last May. The rebels also had captured American weapons with them.

The evacuation was carried out under heavily armed guard by the 82nd Airborne which also provided escorts through streets packed with hundreds of rain-soaked people cheering the rebels as they sped by.

What remains of the Civilian-Military Rebel Army will be lodged at the old 27th of February military camp, until they are reintegrated in the Dominican armed forces.

The 82nd Airborne cleaned up the camp and is providing clothing bedding and rations. The rebel camp is hemmed in on one side by an Airborne unit further down waterfront business enterprises and a new housing development.

and pounding artillery, managed to drive them off.

At times, the Americans were calling in artillery barrages as close as 200 yards from their own lines.

On two other sectors north-west of Saigon, U.S. paratroopers and infantrymen pushed ahead on two jungle sweeps against Viet Cong hideouts.

The U.S. 1st Infantry Division operating 35 miles northwest of Saigon uncovered a heavily camouflaged Viet Cong munitions factory with equipment for making mines and hand grenades.

One U.S. "Medivac" helicopter flying up the valley to take out American dead and wounded was struck by Red ground fire. The pilot was killed at the controls, but his co-pilot managed to take over and fly the craft back. There was a crew of four aboard at the time.

In Saigon, U.S. officials announced that an overall total of 49 American soldiers were killed in action against the Communist Viet Cong last week. They said 113 other Americans were South Vietnamese government troops lost 174 killed, 550 wounded and 115 missing or captured during the week ending Oct. 10. Communist killed and 84 captured.

5-1 VICTORY TIES THINGS UP

Twins 'Grant'ed Series Reprieve

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Jim (Mudcat) Grant evened the World Series at three games apiece for the Minnesota Twins Wednesday by paralyzing the Los Angeles Dodgers with his pitching and murdering them with his bat for a 5-1 victory.

Pitching with only two days rest, a slight cold and all the Twins' hopes of staying alive in the Series, the husky 30-year-old ace of the Minnesota staff checked the Dodgers on six hits and walloped a three-run homer to clinch the game in the sixth inning.

Bob Allison also connected for a two-run homer which put the Twins in front to stay in the fourth but there was no question among any of the record 49,578 fans at Metropolitan Stadium that the cool, sunny day belonged exclusively to Grant.

His three-run wallop off Dodger reliever Howie Reed, which traveled 392 feet and rattled around in the lower left-center field pavilion marked the first home run hit by a pitcher in a World Series since 1958 when Lew Burdette of the Milwaukee Braves belted one against the New York Yankees.

Grant, who never hit a homer during the regular season and wound up with a sickly .155 percentage, was all grins after his shot off Reed.

He laughed all the way around the bases and clapped his hands in excited jubilation as he stepped on home plate following his smash, which scored Allison and Frank Quilici ahead of him.

Allison set up the decisive rally with a one-out walk and stole second as Don Mincher struck out. Quilici was walked intentionally, so Reed could get at Grant.

JIM GRANT

Minnesota's 21-game winner, who won the opening series game for the Twins and lost the fourth one, considered it an insult.

"Why, I always felt I was one of the best hitting pitchers in the American League," he quipped in the clubhouse following the game.

The victory by the Twins not only squared the Series but also evened them with left-hander Claude Osteen, who beat them in the third game.

The defeat for Osteen, who left after giving up four of the Twins' six hits and two of their runs in five innings, was his first ever at the hands of Minnesota.

He had beaten the Twins five straight times while he was with Washington and then tacked on his sixth win over them last Saturday at Los Angeles.

Grant struck out five, didn't walk a batter and made his only serious mistake in the seventh, after the outcome already was decided, by throwing up a home run ball to Ron Fairly.

John Roseboro later singled in the same inning with two out and Lou Johnson collected another single in the ninth but that was all from the Dodgers, who had won three straight in Los Angeles.

Osteen, nowhere near as sharp as he was in the third game when he blanked the Twins on five hits, was in trouble from his opening pitch but managed to get by unscathed through the first three innings, even though Minnesota left four runners on the bases.

Zoilo Versalles hit his first pitch past second baseman Dick Tracewski for a single and Joe Nossok followed with a one-hopper back to Osteen, which the Dodger lefty turned into a double play. Tony Oliva then singled to left but never got any farther as Harmon Killebrew rapped into a force play.

Again in the second, Osteen pitched his way out of trouble after Earl Battey opened with a triple that eluded the diving Willie Davis.

Allison struck out for his seventh time in 10 trips but Don Mincher walked on a 3-and-2 curve to put runners on first and third with one out. Osteen got Quilici on strikes and Grant opened to Maury Wills, leaving Battey with his tongue hanging out on third and ending that threat.

A walk to Versalles starting off the third gave Osteen a few more anxious moments although he appeared to be settling down when he retired the next three men easily enough.

The Twins finally got to him in the fourth, however, when shaky Tracewski booted Battey's routine roller for an error and Allison lit into an 0-and-2 pitch and drilled it deep into the lower left field pavilion for a 373-foot two-run homer.

Mele Picks Kaat; Koufax, LA Choice

By LARRY MOGG State News Sports Editor

Many thought it impossible, but the 1965 World Series is down to the seventh and final game today.

Manager Sam Mele of the Minnesota Twins will return his 18-game lefty Jim Kaat to the mound for the sudden-death showdown in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minnesota.

In Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minnesota, Grant, found new life Wednesday by whipping the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1.

Dodger manager Walt Alton is hesitant about his pitching choice, but will probably lean toward his ace southpaw Sandy Koufax.

Kaat and Koufax have faced each other twice before in the series, each sporting a 1-1 record for their efforts. Kaat bested Koufax in the second game of the series, 5-1, but Koufax came back in the fifth game to shut out Kaat and the Twins 7-0.

Both teams will go with the same lineups they employed in most of the prior games.

While Mele is certain to use Kaat, Alton isn't sure whether he'll start Koufax or his tall right-hand ace, Don Drysdale.

Drysdale hasn't pitched since the fourth game of the series Sunday. Koufax, on the other hand, pitched just two days ago.

Alton indicated to the United Press International Wednesday night that Koufax would be his probable choice. He said, however, that he would not make his decision until this morning.

"I'd much rather pitch a left-hander," he told UPI, "and if it rains like the weatherman says it might and the game is

ANATOMY OF A X-COUNTRY COURSE

Over The Hills And . . .

By JOE MITCH State News Sports Writer

Cross-country courses are like people--no two of them are alike.

But you ask, aren't all athletic fields similar in layout? Football, baseball, track--yes. Cross-country, no.

"In all my years as a runner and coach," said Spartan harrier mentor Fran Dittrich, "I've never found one course to be the same as another. They vary from one extreme to another."

Dittrich slipped on his green windbreaker and "S" baseball cap when distance runner Paul McCollum, exhausted from his four-mile excursion around Forest Akers Golf Course, stopped and quizzed Dittrich about Saturday's meet with Minnesota.

"Say coach," said McCollum in a weak voice, "will these guys from Minnesota be used to running up and down hills?"

Dittrich nodded, then told McCollum and the rest of the squad to put on their sweat clothes and trot back to Jenison Field House, a mile and a half from Forest Akers.

"The boys are always concerned as to the type of course they run on," said Dittrich. "Not having had experience on a course that is unique in layout can have noticeable effects on a boy."

Dittrich said that most cross-country meets in college and in high school are run on golf courses, like at MSU, but, that each course has its own marked trail.

"The experts generally rate State's course as the toughest in the Midwest," said Dittrich. "We have two hills (on the fifth and sixth green) that are unmatched in the Big Ten."

"Each hill or cataraft, as we call them, is 100-150 yards long and offers quite a challenge to runners."

Until this year, State has had the honor of entertaining the NCAA championship since the national meet was begun 28 years ago. This season the meet is to be held at Lawrence, Kansas.

While most courses are marked with some hills, there are others which are simply flat. Notre Dame and Illinois have such courses, and Dittrich admits he doesn't like them.

"The times are much faster, I know," said Dittrich, "but it's too monotonous to run four or five miles on flat ground."

"The boys usually get tired faster running on hills which makes for a better race."

Opinions from members of the Spartan squad varied considerably. McCollum and teammate Art Link agree completely with Dittrich, but George Balthrop has his own views.

"I like the flat courses better," he said, loosening up his legs with a few quick knee-bends. "For my size, I can get a quick start and then maintain my pace better than on a hilly course."

CHARLIE (BIG DOG) THORNHILL

Thornhill Ready For Takeoff

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Writer

Linebacker Charlie Thornhill hopes to do some flying this Saturday when the Spartans play Ohio State here, but on the whole he would prefer to keep his aerial maneuvers within the confines of Spartan Stadium.

For Thornhill is one of those unfortunate victims of flight-fright. This creates a minor problem whenever the Spartans travel to other schools by chartered plane.

Thornhill, who is called "Big Dog" by his mates, is often kidded about his fear of flying. Like the time he and fullback Eddie Cotton were sitting together in a plane which was scheduled to fly the team home from Penn State.

Thornhill happened to gaze out the window and suddenly noticed smoke and flames coming from the engine. He jumped up and started running for the exit-ramp, with Cotton close behind him, yelling that the plane was on fire.

It took a while for the other players to calm him down and to explain that there was nothing wrong with the engine—that it was merely warming up.

"I stay on the ground as much as possible," Thornhill explained. "If there's any flying to be done, I'd rather do it on the playing field."

His major problem this season is that he has been literally "grounded" by an ankle injury. Thornhill, a Roanoke, Va., junior, made a name for himself at State last season with his sensational speed and agility in defending on passes and cutting short the opposition's running threat.

But he injured his left ankle in the Penn State game this season, and has been hampered by it ever since.

"Ever since I got hurt in the Penn State game, it slowed me down a lot," Thornhill explained. "I was okay in the Michigan game until I hurt my ankle again, during the second quarter."

He said that he feels "real good" now, and that he'll be ready for this Saturday's game. His performances in practice this week appear to substantiate his claim.

Head Coach Duffy Daugherty recently said that "complacency would make us a very average football team." Thornhill has the drive and determination of the type of player that makes State's otherwise "average" team the fourth-ranked team in the nation.

"He's a fine player with a lot of spirit," said Daugherty. "Having him back in the lineup, at full strength, will give our defense a big uplift."

Thornhill started his sophomore season at fullback, but did little in the first four games. Then he filled in at guard at practice and did well enough to earn a starting assignment against Wisconsin.

He was moved to linebacker this spring and was counted on to play an important part in State's defense.

Thornhill is popular among the rest of the players and has a good sense of humor, although he doesn't quite rival offensive halfback Drake Garrett, who is the unofficial team comedian.

But the joking doesn't come as often as it did last season, for Thornhill is too busy concentrating on regaining his past stature.

"You know, it's hard to be funny when you're hurting," added Daugherty.

PROSPECTS HOMEGROWN

Frosh Grid Talent Galore

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

If it's speed in the backfield, size in the line and an overall bright football outlook you're searching for, take a gander at Ed Rutheford's promising crop of freshman gridgers.

"I think the football staff has done a real good job recruiting this year. They have come up with some very promising players from the state of Michigan and some as far away as Texas and Hawaii." So stated an optimistic Ed Rutheford, freshman football coach, when reviewing a list of frosh grid prospects.

Rutheford is in his first year as State's freshman mentor after a successful 14-year tenure at Detroit Denby High. A number of injured varsity gridgers serve as assistant freshman coaches.

Fifty-five candidates qualified academically and were issued suits.

Rutheford is quick to point out that all are given an equal chance to prove themselves.

"One of the objectives of our program is to prepare and equip all of the frosh football players with the proper skills and knowledge through drills and blackboard sessions. To prepare them so that they have the best possible chance to display their talents in spring practice. . . We don't cut anybody," is the way Rutheford phrased it.

The newest addition to State's coaching staff never seems to run out of superlatives for his freshmen, referring to them as "the cream of the crop throughout the country."

There are more players from Michigan on the '65 frosh squad than there have been in several Ferndale is a 6-2, 195-pound signal-caller, Bill Feraco, 6-0, and 185, and Matt Mazza, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., have been coming along in practice sessions.

Other promising backfield candidates are: Reggie Cavender, 5-11 and 195; Jim Ruschak, 6-2 and 200; Frank Waters, 5-10 and 180; Clinton Harris, 5-10 and 180; Paul Lawson, 6-2 and 180; Gary McGaughey, 5-10 and 165, and "another Hawaiian hopeful," Charles Wedemeyer, 5-10 and 180.

Rutheford's corps of promising linemen is led by high school All-American Roger Ruminski, 6-1 and 260, from Walled Lake. Don Warnke, 6-2 and 195, played under Rutheford at Denby and is a top prospect at end.

Other big and talented linemen include: Dwight Romognoli, 6-4, 240; Ted Bohn, 6-3, 215; George Bronson, 6-2, 225; Terry Lewis, 6-2, 225; and Duane McIver, 6-5, 215.

years, but the seasoned coach wanted to make it clear that, "We're interested in good football players—no matter where they're from."

Speed is one of the strong points of this year's freshman contingent, and topping the list of swift runners is Bill Ware, 6-0, 185 pounds, from Beaumont, Texas. Dick Berlinski, 5-10, 170, starred at Kingsford in the Upper Peninsula and has shown signs of developing as a college runner.

Club Owners Eye MacPhail

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Lee MacPhail, the president of the Baltimore Orioles, suddenly has emerged as the No. 1 candidate to succeed Ford Frick as baseball commissioner, United Press International learned Tuesday.

The 20 major league club owners still are short of agreement, but the faction insisting upon a baseball man for the post, has gained ground over those who want a personality outside the game to take over the top administrative job in the sport.

MacPhail, the 47-year-old son of the man who introduced night baseball to the major leagues, Larry MacPhail, has not campaigned for the commissionership but became the top candidate of those club owners convinced they should keep a baseball man in the job.

A hard core of club owners led by Detroit President John Fetzer has supported a non-baseball man, preferably a well-known politician or attorney, to take over the chores of keeping baseball the nation's No. 1 sport.

MacPhail is one of 18 candidates the major league club owners nominated to succeed Frick, who was scheduled to retire at the end of the present season. Frick, however, has agreed to stay on until his successor was chosen.

Some American League club owners still are holding out for American League President Joe Cronin as their candidate and others in the Fetzer camp are insisting upon a non-baseball man for president. But it looks like they are fighting a losing battle.

Alston announced that there wouldn't be any other lineup changes, although Dick Tracewski will stay at second base, because of the injury to Jim Lefebvre.

Both managers are expected to go to their bullpens if an emergency arises. Mele will have Cuban ace Camillo Pascual and Jim Perry ready for early duty. Alston will counter with either Drysdale or Koufax in relief, depending on who starts.

Group Organized To Oppose ASMSU Affiliation With NSA

Opposition to the affiliation of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) with the National Student Assn. (NSA) has been organized by Jim Sink, vice president of Men's Halls Assn. (MHA). Sink opposes affiliation on two grounds:

--that NSA's concern with political issues has no direct benefit for the student body;
--that ASMSU convention delegates cannot represent the political viewpoints of 35,000 MSU students.

NSA, a liberal-dominated association of over 350 college and university student governments, convenes annually to debate and pass resolutions on student, national and international issues. Objections to NSA in the past have centered around its concern with political issues, according to Webb Martin, vice chairman of the Student Board. Sink said he feels that NSA conventions and consequent resolutions have no direct benefit for the student body. He said that ASMSU funds should be used for services related to the students directly.

Sink and his group, called Students to Oppose Participation in NSA (STOP-NSA), urge students to express their opinions about NSA to Student Board members this week. "This will help the board members vote intelligently on the issue," Sink said. If the Student Board fails to withdraw from NSA, Sink said he will take action to have an all-University referendum. He would need the signatures of 10 per cent of the eligible voters in the undergraduate student body before he could seek a referendum. The motion to renew affiliation with NSA, to be made by Jim Graham, Detroit junior and member-at-large, was postponed until after the convention of the Association of Student Governments (ASG) at Purdue Thursday through Saturday. Seven delegates from the Student Board will attend the convention as observers.

FACULTY FACTS

Leeds, England is the new address of Gordon Gray, associate professor of TV-Radio faculty member, and his family. Gray was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship which included a teaching position at the University of Leeds.

Gray's curriculum for his English students is, "Instructional Television and Its Utilization by the Classroom Teacher."

He will return to MSU in July. He has taught at MSU for 12 years.

Eugene Jacobson, MSU's associate dean of International Programs, began a month-long tour of eight African nations Friday. His tour, sponsored by the Midwest Universities Consortium for International Activities, is designed to enrich MSU's international activities and to provide research for educational projects in Africa.

John L. Hazard, professor of marketing and transportation, has been named to a transportation research committee by the American Academy of Transportation.

Hazard, a specialist on the St. Lawrence Seaway, will help gather and correlate information in the transportation area and related fields.

The committee is composed of representatives from five Michigan universities.

Karl T. Hereford, assistant director of the School of Advanced Studies in the College of Education, presented a paper recently at a world conference in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Interesting Area Work Available

A wide variety of jobs are available to interested students who can work on campus or in the Lansing-East Lansing area.

Jobs for males include cleaning and installing storm windows, an assistant physical education instructor, journalism or communications major to write a daily report on local road conditions in the Lansing area, a student manager to work night shift for on-campus cafeteria and an accounting major for part-time, on-campus work.

Girls are needed for housework jobs in the East Lansing area.

A botany major, either male or female, is needed to work with sterile culture, to make up and sterilize nutrient media, transfer orchid seedlings to culture flasks and assist in recording data. Other majors may apply if qualified and must be able to work 20 hours per week.

Students may check on these and other listings in the Office of Student Employment, Placement Bureau on the first floor of Student Services Building.

Fashion Show

Nine East Lansing stores will participate in a fashion show tonight depicting proper attire for events prior to and during Homecoming.

The program, sponsored by Union Board, will be at 8:15 p.m. in the Union Ballroom with no admission charge.

Career Carnival Called Big Success

By JOAN SOLOMON
State News Staff Writer

Jack Shingleton, Placement Bureau director, could only use superlatives to describe "Suit Yourself," the 17th annual Career Carnival held Monday and Tuesday in the Union.

"It was the biggest and the best we've ever had," he said. An actual count of 16,800 students attended the two-day vocational information service, nearly 4,000 more than attended last year.

Eighty-one organizations with over 250 representatives participated in the carnival, Shingleton said.

"We had to turn down 21 companies that wanted to come due to lack of space," he said.

Heaviest crowds were at night, Shingleton said, although the traffic was steady all day.

Representatives, especially those here for the first time, were enthusiastic about both the carnival and the students who attended.

"I was very impressed by the intelligent questions students asked," said a representative at the Aetna Life Insurance Co. booth. This was the first time the company was represented at the carnival.

"We were able to clear up a lot of misconceptions," he added. United Air Lines representatives said they were surprised that such a great number of students showed so much interest in careers.

"We came here to feel the pulse of the student body," one representative said. "We found it very enlightening."

One criticism of students came from the representative of Prentice-Hall Publishing Co.

"Many students just seem to be collecting brochures that they will never read from companies they are not even interested in," he said.

Also a newcomer to the carnival, he said he enjoyed it and that it is a great opportunity for students.

Representatives from the Boeing Co., which has participated in the Career Carnival nearly every year, said the firm had over 1,000 openings for college graduates and that MSU students were in great demand.

"The carnival offers us an opportunity to talk about our company, which is not often possible during a 30-minute interview," one representative said.

"We have found that many students follow up an informal talk at the carnival with an interview at the Placement Bureau," he said.

A representative from Dow Chemical Co. said he often wrote down the names of students he talked with at the carnival to see how many resulted in a formal interview.

"Students are not only asking questions about job opportunities," a Dow representative said, "but they are also seeking career guidance."

Nearly all of the new companies said they wanted to come back next year.

Candidate Raises Sights

A petitioner for the office of senior class vice president changed his mind.

John Miller, Banger senior, was approved as a candidate for senior class president, instead of vice president, by student board Tuesday.

Miller said he decided to run for president when he found that there was only one petitioner for the office. He said his friends encouraged him to run saying he was well qualified for the office. Joel Higgins, Dayton, Ohio senior, is the other presidential candidate. Paul Smith, Cheyenne, Wyo., senior and Mike Walsh, Lansing senior, are the vice presidential candidates. Elections will be held Tuesday.

APPROVED FOR U.S. JUDGE

Judiciary Committee O.K.'s Morrissey Nomination

WASHINGTON F--The Senate Judiciary Committee voted, 6-3, Wednesday to recommend Senate confirmation of Francis X. Morrissey's nomination to be a U.S. District Judge in Massachusetts.

The committee acted after Morrissey, a Boston Municipal Court judge and an old friend of the Kennedy family, was called back for further questioning after an initial hearing yesterday.

Morrissey was questioned behind closed doors for about an hour and five minutes.

A subcommittee hearing yesterday ended in a dispute over Morrissey's attendance at a now defunct Georgia law school after he flunked the Massachusetts bar examinations.

Opponents of Morrissey's nomination claimed he was not qualified and the appointment was a reward for long service to the Kennedy family.

Speaker of the House John McCormack and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., led witnesses who claimed Morrissey, 55, is well qualified to serve on the federal bench.

Akers Flame

Students living in East Akers were awakened about midnight Tuesday by fire engines and rescue squad cars outside the dorm.

Flames were sighted by students in Holmes Hall and the fire department was summoned. The cause for alarm was an overactive incinerator.

Those are the times when the lowest station-to-station Long Distance rates are in effect. They never get any lower!

By the way, station-to-station calls between points in Michigan always cost somewhat more when you call "Collect." But, you don't have to wait 'til 8 P.M. to phone because the lowest rates for "Collect" calls start at 6 P.M. week nights. And they are also in effect every weekend—all day Saturday and Sunday.

Concerts Of Brisk Melody Please Two Full Houses

Those who attended Mantovani's two sold-out concerts Monday and Tuesday found them to be a great deal like his recordings—a series of familiar melodies, imaginatively orchestrated and played by a group of outstanding musicians.

The identical concerts consisted of a wide variety of well-known selections, ranging from Strauss to Loewe to Mancini. With the possible exception of a Tchaikovsky waltz, none of them could be considered serious classical music. But, then, Mantovani's purpose was to entertain, not to educate.

And it was a thoroughly entertaining evening in most respects. There was none of the sticky sweetness usually associated with the English orchestra. Rather, the music moved along briskly, with only an occasional lapse into the land of schmaltz. For example, the curtain-raiser, Meredith Willson's "Seventy-six Trombones" didn't come off too well. Mantovani's small brass section was not big enough to give this selection the rousing rendition it needs to be effective.

The numbers which fared best were those that were played almost entirely by Mantovani's crack string section. Those that stood out were "I Could Have Danced All Night," "Swan Lake Waltz," and a shimmering arrangement of "More".

Concertmaster David McCallum was a disappointing soloist, partly because of his tendency to slide into the proper note and partly because of his selection. "Fascination" is not a concert showpiece—any competent violinist can play it well. More pleasing was Harry Swift's fine trumpet solo in "Around the World".

The second half of the concert included selections from the light classical field. In addition to "Piccolo Bolero," a scaled-down version of Ravel's well-known suite, the orchestra performed Strauss's "Tritsch Tritsch Polka" and "Blue Danube". Usually hackneyed, this time they sounded fresh and alive again.

There was also a liberal dose of modern songs, "Dear Heart" and "Do Re Mi" showed the string section to advantage, but "Climb Every Mountain" was marred by a syrupy, waltz-like introduction.

The enthusiastic audience awarded Mantovani a standing ovation, to which he responded with two encores—his theme song, "Charmaine," and "The Canary," an amusing little selection in which the musicians sounded like their instruments were being taken over by songbirds.

On the whole, it was an enjoyable evening, made none the less so by Mantovani's podium manner. Unlike many conductors who scowl and grimace while "feeling" the music, here's one maestro who looks like he really enjoys his work. He smiles broadly while he conducts, occasionally singing along or taking a few slight dance steps. His gestures seem to show that here is one artist who really enjoys presenting good music to the public. Almost as much as this audience enjoyed hearing it.

EVENTS CROWDED

Need Two New Auditoriums

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

So many events have been scheduled for the Auditorium the first four weeks of classes there is barely time to clean the floors.

"If we had two new auditoriums and a new theater, they would be fully booked and the present auditorium would still be in full operation," Wilson Paul, director of the Lecture-Concert Series, said.

From ranking high among the Big Ten schools for auditorium facilities in 1956, MSU has sunk to near the bottom, he said. The Department of Speech needs its own theater, equipped with rehearsal space, a scene shop, studio, costume shop, arena theater and classrooms, said Frank Rutledge, director of theater productions.

Presently the Lecture-Concert Series, the International and the World Travel Film series, University Theater, the Asian-Latin American-African Series, the Department of Music, all-University dances and countless conferences use the Auditorium stage.

If Fairchild Theater is in use, the Auditorium cannot be used. They share the same stage.

The campus needs one theater for dramatic productions, one auditorium designed for concerts and one auditorium for lectures and chamber music, Paul said.

The Auditorium is free only four nights this term. The administrative office handling auditorium scheduling receives up to 15 requests for the auditorium in a single night.

University Theater gets an early claim on Auditorium time by scheduling plays two years ahead of production, but the Performing Arts Company still gets no more than four technical rehearsals before the show.

"What the audience sees opening night is a highly polished technical rehearsal," Rutledge said. "We don't really settle in until the weekend."

Because the noise from scene shop construction disturbs movies, conferences and concerts held on the stage above the shop, the crew loses one-third of its working days, he said.

The crew starts setting up scenery the Wednesday before a show opens. Occasionally it is moved off stage for a meeting before a show can open.

Paul gets the schedule for the Auditorium later. He said he has four clear weeks each term in which to schedule 10 events.

Major performing and concert companies have rerouted their tours to fit the University schedule, he added.

What facilities do other Universities have?

The University of Michigan has three auditoriums and is completing a music auditorium and a theater.

Indiana University has an auditorium and a theater built together but they do not share the same stage. In addition Indiana has an auditorium for her operatic and musical productions.

Not all Big Ten schools have major auditorium facilities, Paul said, but MSU is one of the few that uses its auditorium for so many other than auditorium purposes.

"If we expect to give first class quality concerts, theater and lectures then we need two more auditoriums and a theater," Paul said.

Pop Entertainment Sales Going Faster Than Ever

Tickets for the popular entertainment series are selling at a faster clip than ASMSU officers expected. Over 2,000 tickets have been sold for the Serendipity Singers concert Saturday.

By Monday morning over 1,500 season tickets had been sold for the trial fall series, which includes, beside the Serendipity Singers concert, performances by Dave Brubeck (Oct. 29) and the Kingsmen (Nov. 12).

Individual ticket sales for the Serendipity performances have now hit 700.

"By comparison with advance sales for other campus events the popular entertainment series is way ahead," Paul Matcha, ticket chairman, said. "If we sell over 4,000 seats for each of the first two shows, we can start booking a winter series."

The fall term series cost the student government $15,705. Before they can book a winter term series and work toward a permanent series they must build up a contingency fund.

The Serendipity Singers, who will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in Jenison Field House, are the folk, jazz group that recorded "Don't Let the Rain Come Down." Through Friday tickets are available 8-5 at the Union ticket office, between 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. at the International Center, 10:15 to 11:15 a.m. and 1:30 to 2:45 p.m. across from Bessey Hall.

L-C Ticket Deadline Set

Tickets for all remaining fall term Lecture-Concert performances can be reserved through Oct. 22 at the Union ticket office.

Students must exchange 50 cents and an activity book coupon for each ticket. Any tickets remaining on the day of a concert can be exchanged for activity book coupons alone.

Tickets for several performances are approaching sellouts, Wilson Paul, director of the Lecture-Concert Series, said.

Performances remaining in fall term are the Royal Danish Ballet (Oct. 25 and 26), the Czech Philharmonic (Oct. 31), the Moscow Philharmonic with David Oistrakh, violin soloist, (Nov. 18) and the New York City Opera (Nov. 22 and 23).

Series coupons are $5 and Serendipity tickets, $2.

The Serendipity Singers made their first major night club appearance as headliners at New City's "Bitter End," the coffee house from which Woody Allen, Bill Cosby and Peter, Paul and Mary made their start.

The group's first recording, an album for Philip Records, became a national hit. From it came the single "Don't Let the Rain Come Down," a record that rose to the No. 5 position nationally in a few weeks.

Since their first recording, the singers cut two more albums, appeared on Hootenanny and the Jack Parr Show and traveled with the Ford Caravan of Music.

The singers compose 90 per cent of their own music. They are building an act which will one day use the musicians' individual talents in comedy sketches and dramatic blackouts.

Prof Edits Dictionary

What's new about a dictionary? The words that are in it. "Out of the thousands of words that are candidates for the dictionary each year, only a few can be chosen," said Frederic Reeve, associate editor of Webster's New World Dictionary.

Reeve, professor of American Thought and Language at MSU, worked on the dictionary for three years. The dictionary, which was in process for over 10 years, was published in 1953 and has been revised every year since then.

"New words are constantly being added to the language, and the meanings of old words change," Reeve said. "This year a new meaning was added for 'escalate,' for example."

Dictionary editors are usually conservative about putting popular words in the dictionary.

"We wait to see if writers are using the word," Reeve said. "You have to guess whether or not the word is likely to last. You have to be a prophet."

The dictionary was designed for the college student and was designed to follow the best language theories of the 20th century.

"The meaning of the word is determined by studying how it was used in the past, and how it is used in contemporary speech and writing," Reeve said.

Reeve first started to work on dictionaries while teaching in the Army during World War II. At that time, he earned extra money by revising meanings in older dictionaries.

NO TOLL CUT

Mackinac Bridge Bill Killed

The controversial Mackinac Bridge refinancing bill died on the floor of the Legislature Tuesday night.

The bill, which would have reduced the toll on the bridge from $3.75 to about $2.35, did not receive enough support to pass the Senate in the current session. Supporters of the bill, including Gov. George W. Romney, will have to wait until January, when the legislature next meets, to try to pass the bill.

The core of the controversy centers around the refinancing of the bridge. Presently, the bridge is owned by the Mackinac Bridge Authority, which sold the refunding bonds to finance the bridge before it was completed. The state set up the authority to sell the bonds in two groups.

The first group, worth $79.8 million, carries an interest rate of four per cent. The second group, worth $20 million, carries an interest rate of 5-1/4 per cent. Had the bill passed, the state would have bought up the old bonds and issued bonds of its own.

With the credit of the state behind the new bonds, they would have carried an interest rate of only 3-1/4 per cent. The savings in the interest rate would have allowed the state to lower the toll rate on the bridge.

The current interest rate costs the state $4.26 million per year. The present interest rate was only enough to pay for the maintenance and operation of the bridge plus the interest rate. Nothing was paid on the $100 million principal on the bridge.

The new rate would have allowed the state to pay the bridge costs and the interest rate and begin reducing the principal.

Opposition to the bill came mainly from two sources. Sen. Garland Lane (D-Flint) and a group of Democrats who wanted to let the bill ride.

REPRESENTATIVE SPEAKS

Big Government Criticized

"You are the generation that can control your own destiny," State Representative Joseph P. Swallow (R-Alpena) told an audience of 100 young Republicans Tuesday.

Speaking at the organizational meeting of the Michigan State University College Republican Club, Swallow emphasized that there are 50 million college-aged young people in this country, a larger number than voted for either candidate in the last presidential election.

Speaking about the federal centralization of governmental power, he said, "We have too much government in the wrong place today." Continuing, he claimed this has happened through the failure of the state and local governments to adequately meet the needs of the people.

As an example of this failure, he pointed to the Michigan State Legislature, which neglected to consider fiscal reform at its most recent session even after a resolution from the American Conference of Mayors calling for such reform was published.

To have an efficient state government, Swallow said, the state needs a full-time legislature with full-time responsibility.

Comparing the major issues of today with those of the 1860s, Swallow pointed out the necessity to continue the Lincolnian virtues of facing the issues and inflexibility of purpose. He called upon the young Republicans to make the nation aware of the Republican position on government control and individual freedom.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO READ 1000 to 2000 WORDS A MINUTE

WITH FULL COMPREHENSION AND RETENTION EASE PRESSURE - SAVE TIME - IMPROVE CONCENTRATION

You can read 150-200 pages an hour using the ACCELERATED READING method. You'll learn to comprehend at speeds of 1,000 to 2,000 words a minute. And retention is excellent.

This is NOT a skimming method; you definitely read every word. You can apply the ACCELERATED READING method to textbooks and factual material as well as to literature and fiction. The author's style is not lost when you read at these speeds. In fact, your accuracy and enjoyment in reading will be increased. Consider what this new reading ability will enable you to accomplish--in your required reading and in the additional reading you want to do. You'll save many hours.

No machines, projectors, or apparatus are used in learning the ACCELERATED READING method. Thus the reader avoids developing any dependence upon external equipment in reading.

Afternoon and evening classes in ACCELERATED READING will be taught adjacent to the MSU campus, beginning on October 28.

Be our guest at a 30-minute public demonstration of the ACCELERATED READING method, and see it applied by college students who have recently completed the course.

BRING A BOOK

Demonstrations will be held at the INN AMERICA (2736 East Grand River Ave. in East Lansing) MONDAY, October 18 at 7:30 P.M., THURSDAY, October 21 at 7:30 P.M.

More Self-Teaching In Store

The ABC's Of EDP (last of a series)

By CHAR JOLLES

Students of the near future will have more contact with technological self-teaching devices. John E. Dietrich, assistant provost, said.

They will be assuming more and more responsibility for their education, he said, learning to teach himself through programmed materials, automated laboratories and computer-assisted instruction.

The teacher, in his new role as facilitator of knowledge, will provide the means and methods for learning, Dietrich said. "In addition to being a teacher in the traditional sense."

Supporting and coordinating experiments on new means and methods learning is the Educational Development Program (EDP), directed by Dietrich.

Research on teaching college algebra and psychology via computers is underway under a joint project with IBM. M. Ray Denny, professor of psychology, is responsible for much of the study here on computer-assisted instruction.

Programmed learning, already an integral part of the required natural science sequence, is now being used in the Psychology and Music departments, Dietrich said.

Honors College students were hired to write the frames for the programmed learning materials, and to date have written over 1,000 frames for both college algebra and basic psychology.

"The technique of using Honors College students seems to be a feasible one," Dietrich writes in the proposal to the Ford Foundation.

Automated programmed materials have been used in two terms of basic music harmony. Each section of the course has 150 students. Formerly, 20 students made up a section.

"Students score higher on the large lecture sections with automated materials than they did in smaller sections using comparable examinations," Dietrich said.

An experiment with the automated laboratory may be started soon with the College of Agriculture, he said.

The automated lab would contain slides, tapes, films and other audio-visual materials that the student would operate himself.

He might be required to spend a certain number of hours a week in the lab where he would find a carrel reserved for him.

The lab would also be "open," Dietrich said, to allow students to come at their convenience.

ASMSU Names 11 To Rights Commission

By CHAR JOLLES
State News Staff Writer

Eleven students were selected Tuesday to man the new Human Relations Commission of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU).
Student Board changed the number of members from 9 to 11 to model the group after the East Lansing Human Relations Commission, according to Gary Steinhardt, commission chairman and board member-at-large.

A broad spectrum of race, religious and political beliefs and experience are represented on the Commission, he said.

Selections were based on open petitioning and interviews.

"There'll be enough work for everyone," he said.

The new members are: Richard W. Joho, Erie, Pa., sophomore in pre-law, and Honors College member who has held dormitory offices; James Lancaster, St. Johns senior in pre-law who has also held dorm offices; Roger Jonas from Grand Ledge, who has been industry consultant for Marketing Club and National Intercollegiate Marketing Competition and Conference and works for the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce.

Hartford Jennings, Greenfield senior in political science who has been secretary of Green Helmet, Kappa Alpha Psi colony and house president in Bryan Hall; Lewis Charles Rudolph, a political science major who has been house president, resident assistant and scholarship recipient to attend a political science seminar in Puerto Rico.

Arthur Tung, Midland sophomore, editor of Impulse, the northeast complex paper, member of the Abbot Hall General Council, the MHA Student Judiciary and Abbot Hall activities chairman;

David Burke, Interfraternity Council Greek page editor and member of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity; Cindy Whitley, who has held official positions in South Wonders; John Angell, East Lansing senior in police administration who was on the Commission steering committee this summer; Megan Ellen Dehn, Honors College, Union Board and International Club member.

is a meeting with the East Lansing Human Relations Commission and discussion of sending delegates to a human relations conference in Detroit.

Block 'S' Reminder

Block S members unable to attend the Ohio State game this Saturday are asked to turn in their Block S passes to 325 Student Services before 5 p.m. today so that there will be a complete block for the Saturday's game.

Owners' names and addresses should be on the back of the pass to insure proper return. Those who plan to perform in the block are asked to be in their seats by 12:30 p.m. Saturday. Gate 8 will open at noon to accommodate members of the card section.

Persons not in the block, but wishing to sit in the block for the Ohio State game, may inquire at 325 Student Services today or call 54605.

Farm Capital On Upswing

Michigan farm capital will increase nearly $1 billion by 1980, an MSU agricultural economist predicted Tuesday.

"By 1980, you will be serving an industry that represents a $6.5 billion capital investment," John R. Brake, associate professor of agricultural economics, told a conference of Michigan credit specialists at Kellogg Center.
