'Eyes' Have It? Not The Buck Variety: -22 Yds.

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Writer

Michigan State's explosive second half performance Saturday which crushed Ohio State's Buckeyes, 32-7, and notched the fifth consecutive Spartan win this season, sets the stage for the Purdue game next week to determine leadership of the Big Ten.

More than 75,000 watched the Spartan offense sputter to a flimsy 7-0 halftime lead and then strike for 25 points in the second half: three touchdowns, a safety and a field goal.

State's defensive line was so tough in the first quarter that the Buckeyes were forced to quit their rushing game and switch to an aerial attack for the remainder of the game.

The Spartans duplicated last week's defensive feat against Michigan by holding the Bucks to a minus 22 yards rushing.

Offensively Clinton Jones, State's right halfback, scored two touchdowns -- one coming on a dazzling 80-yard run and the other on a 12-yard pass play.

Spartan fullback Bob Apisa dived one yard for a touchdown and fourth-string quarterback Charles Lowther scampered six yards around left end for another score.

Dick Kenney, State's field-goal specialist, booted a 35-yard field goal in the third quarter and converted three of four extra points.

Left linebacker Ron Goovert and defensive tackle Buddy Owens nailed Buckeye quarterback Don Unverferth in the endzone for a two-point safety in the third quarter.

Ohio State scored its lone touchdown in the fourth quarter, following fullback Tom Barrington's brilliant 62-yard kickoff return. Unverferth passed to Arnie Fontes for a 36-yard touchdown on the next play.

Spartan defensemen Harold Lucas and Don Bierowicz each received game balls. The two were instrumental in halting Ohio State's inside running game.

George Webster gave his usual fine performance at rover back. "I can't see how there could be a better defensive back in the country," said Head Coach Duffy Daugherty, following the game.

State played a careless first half, fumbling the ball twice. Left halfback Dwight Lee fumbled the ball on his own 20-yard line, where it was recovered by the Buckeyes.

But Ohio State was unable to move against State's staunch defensive wall, and then missed on a 20-yard field goal attempt by Bob Funk.

Sukarno addressed "the International Conference for the Liquidation of Foreign Military Bases."

Archimedes Tomb Believed Found

SYRACUSE, Sicily (AP)—Italian archaeologists said Sunday they believe they have found the tomb of the Greek mathematician and scientist Archimedes, lost more than 2,000 years.

Salvatore Ciancio, inspector of antiquities, said workers excavating for a new hotel made the discovery. He said he is convinced it is Archimedes' tomb.

The workers uncovered a 160-foot-square of large marble blocks with a lead coffin under the two center blocks. The coffin, bearing a golden crest set with precious stones, contained the ashes of a human being.

TRUCKS USED IN WAR

Marchers Picket Lansing Plant

By DAVID HANSON
State News Staff Writer

Fifty marchers assembled in front of the State Capitol Saturday and marched through Lansing to the Reo division of White Motor Company.

They were protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam and the manufacture of trucks at White Motor that "will be used against the Vietnamese people."

Along the way they were called cowards, heatniks, goofies, screwballs and nuts by spectators.

"We are demanding two things," said group spokesman Brian Keleher, Spring Valley, N.Y., senior. "The bombing of North Viet Nam must stop and U.S. forces must be withdrawn from South Viet Nam."

Keleher said that the U.S. is violating the Geneva convention with its presence in Viet Nam and is committing war crimes in violation of the Neurnberg agreement.

"On the side are crossed white hands and the words 'A gift to the people of Viet Nam,'" he said.

The trucks were not on display in front of the building when the marchers completed their walk down Washington Avenue and began to picket the plant. A spokesman for the company said that the trucks are usually moved on weekends.

Lansing police accompanied the marchers, asking them if they knew the rules and clearing traffic along the way.

One of the policemen looked at a group of spectators and said, "You're paying for this."

Marchers carried signs that read: "Buy Johnson's Creme of Mushroom Soup," "Draft I.E.J.," "Make Love, Not War," "Stop U.S. Support of Fascism in Viet Nam," "America's Neutral, We Kill everywhere."

Three anti-protesters, who said they were all students who "just don't like the goofies," carried signs like "Same Students Protest Against Screwball Movements," and "This space for rent."

One protester said he didn't think the march had accomplished anything.

"The only way you can get results is to go and talk with people," he said.

THE LONG WALK--Protesters against the war in Viet Nam carried placards through Lansing Saturday to the White Motor Co. in Lansing. Some 50 marchers were jeered by spectators but the march was protected by police and no trouble occurred.

Viet War Protests Varied

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—About 700 police-escorted marchers protesting U.S. military action in Viet Nam hiked without incident Sunday over a two-mile route from Golden Gate Park to San Francisco's Civic Center.

A few small groups opposing the Viet Nam protest were gathered along the route. But they engaged in no exchanges with the marchers.

The demonstrator march fell short of the 2,000 turnout predicted.

Across the bay two similar marches Friday and Saturday by up to 5,000 demonstrators were stopped by Oakland police. A Berkeley police officer suffered a broken leg during a scuffle when a Hell's Angels motorcycle club group rushed the marchers and grabbed their banners.

Saturday's largest demonstration in the United States took place in New York where 10,000 persons marched down Fifth Avenue to dramatize their protest against American policy in Viet Nam.

They were met by hecklers who splattered the marchers with red paint and eggs and shouted, "Treason!" Several scuffles took place but police prevented major violence.

In Rochester, N.Y., on Saturday night, a veterans organization leader said that unless authorities take action within 24 hours, he would make a citizen's arrest of David Miller, 22, who publicly burned his draft card Friday night in New York.

The statement was made by Vincent J. DiMatina of Brooklyn, New York State commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Destruction of draft cards recently was made a federal offense.

Miller, of Syracuse, burned his card during a Viet Nam protest demonstration outside New York's Armed Forces Induction Center.

"We feel that by allowing Miller to continue and walk the streets that we are allowing the seeds of dissension to be sown in the minds of Americans," said DiMatina.

Car Uninsured? It'll Cost $35

By BILL KRAEHN
State News Staff Writer

A bill was passed by the Michigan Legislature Friday affecting most of the 15,000 Michigan State students who have registered their automobiles with the University.

The bill, called the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Act, will go into effect on Jan. 1, but Michigan drivers will feel it once the Nov. 1 sale of license plates begins.

Essentially, the bill will establish a fund through a fee added to all license plate costs.

This fee will be placed in the fund to protect insured drivers involved in accidents with uninsured drivers.

Beginning Nov. 1, anyone purchasing license plates in Michigan will have to show proof of insurance--liability insurance, which covers both bodily injury and property damage--when buying the plates.

"Every student who registers his car with the university," said Richard O. Bernitt, director of public safety, "signs his name to a statement that says he carries liability insurance."

"So theoretically," Bernitt said, "every student falls under the class of drivers protected by the new law."

When Michigan drivers purchase their 1966 license plates, those who can prove that they have liability insurance will only have to pay an additional fee of $1. This dollar is placed in the fund.

If a driver does not carry the proper insurance he will have to pay an additional $35 into the fund.

Consequently, when an insured driver is involved in an accident with an uninsured driver, the insured driver is guaranteed to have the damage paid for providing that the claim amounts to at least $200. Claims under $200 are not covered by the fund.

If such an accident occurred before the act was passed, the insured driver often had to pay the damages even though it was not his fault.

The Financial Responsibility Act, which has been in effect in Michigan since 1933 covered such accidents. The act didn't provide for payment of damages and injury to the insured driver, but it did call for the state to remove the driving privileges of the uninsured motorist. In such a case the uninsured driver was restricted in his driving for a specific period of time.

But the drawback to the Financial Responsibility Act was the difficulty of enforcing the restriction.

"The fund," said Secretary of State James M. Hare, "provides excellent protection on accidents with uninsured motorists here in

Congress To Begin Klan Probe

Wilkins Faces Murder Charge

United Press International

The trial of a Ku Klux Klansman for the murder of a white civil rights worker will be reopened in Hayneville, Ala., today as the House Committee on Un-American Activities prepares to launch an investigation of the Ku Klux Klan Tuesday.

In a green-shuttered, century-old courtroom, state's attorneys will ask a jury for the second time to send Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 21, to the electric chair or to prison for life for the death of a Detroit housewife, Viola Liuzzo. The first trial ended in a hung jury.

Alabama Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers said Sunday he plans to take over prosecution of the case because he would not be subject to "local political pressure."

Flowers said if the people of the area and the jurymen "divorce from their mind their almost personal hatred of me," the jury "can, should and must return a verdict of guilty."

The attorney general, who said he had received threats to his life because of his stand for moderation in racial conflict, announced his plans on the CBS radio-TV program "Face the Nation."

Flowers said he would present the facts in the trial straightforwardly.

Then, on Tuesday, hundreds of miles away in the nation's capital, the House Committee on Un-American Activities will open public hearings in its inquiry into the secret organization which President Lyndon B. Johnson has called "a hooded society of bigots."

It was the slaying of Mrs. Liuzzo, 39, mother of five children, which brought the President's public denunciation of the Klan and led, a few days later, to the House committee's decision.

Distribution Policy Gets New Rule

The long confused University rule took a new twist Friday when CSR was given permission to distribute "Logos" on campus.

The permission was granted after a series of meetings between CSR members and Union Manager Michael Dmochowski on Thursday and Friday.

University officials conferred with Dmochowski, Director of Public Safety Richard O. Bernitt and others before the decision was passed on to CSR members.

Under the new ruling, non-commercial material may be distributed any place on campus. Commercial matter includes advertising and announcement of activities.

Door-to-door distribution is still prohibited.

CSR said that it still seeks free distribution on campus under the first amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

The Traffic Safety Department has the responsibility in distribution matters and has arrested or stopped those handing out matter in the past. The Secretary's office, however, must now decide what may be distributed.

Just One Complaint About Schiff Compromise

JUST ONE COMPLAINT about the decision handed down Thursday by three federal judges in the first court encounter in Paul Schiff's suit against the University.

That is, that the decision opens the way for an out-of-court settlement, and thus could remove the need for a definitive court statement on students' rights.

This is a major defect, but about the only one.

BOTH SCHIFF AND THE UNIVERSITY expressed pleasure with the decision. This is, we all noticed, somewhat unusual, and is testimony to the excellence of the compromise which the panel of judges devised.

Schiff will get his list of offenses and a hearing from the University, and a chance to apply again for readmission. The University will get a chance to talk to Schiff and possibly to readmit him quietly without too much loss of face.

THE DECISION RUNS a good middle course. It favors neither the University's attempts to take the case out of court altogether nor Schiff's attempt to embarrass the University.

In addition, the attitude of the court clearly reflects our opinion that the outcome of this case could prove extremely important in future questions of academic freedom and political involvement.

We suspect that a decision administered by Judge Noel P. Fox will in the end vindicate Schiff.

The University has claimed that if Schiff wins his suit, then all students who are rejected by colleges will be tempted to sue for admission on the basis of this case. This is unlikely, and a serious misinterpretation.

SCHIFF'S SUIT is based on defense of his political activities. He claims that his civil rights—that is, the right to a fair hearing and to an education—were denied as a result of these activities.

If he wins his case, the "flood gates" of student suits against universities will not open, as President John A. Hannah has warned. Students who are rejected on purely academic grounds will have no case to take into court.

But if Schiff wins his case, there will be a precedent for all students or faculty who feel their political rights are jeopardized.

If an eventual victory for Schiff comes in court, rather than out of court by the "good graces" of the University, an even more important judicial defense of political rights can probably be expected. Thus, the decision Thursday may have been a little too pleasing to both sides.

Arrests Of Protesters Defended Majority Rights

The four students and one non-student arrested at the Union Tuesday, seem to be clearly out in left-field in regard to the methods they used to call attention to their thoughts on the Viet Nam war and University regulations.

They seem to have disregarded other individuals' rights to carry on other activities at this University. Their individual rights, obviously, seem most important to them. They seem to care little for the rights of others.

A professor on this campus has a right to conduct a class without interruption from without. The football team has a right to play ball in Spartan Stadium without other persons running around on the playing field. The MSU Band has a right to practice on a University field without interference.

And any political, social or religious group on this campus should have the right to conduct its own business without outside interference.

But an insurance salesman does not have the right to start hawking during a history lecture. A group of lacrosse players does not have the right to use Spartan Stadium during a regularly scheduled football game. An ROTC Drill Team does not have the right to use a field designated for a band practice.

Most of the groups on this campus have sense enough to recognize that they would be stepping on someone else's toes to do these things.

However, the arrested students, professing some "higher moral issue," seem to lack this fundamental sense. They chose to establish their cause during a regularly-scheduled event, the Career Carnival, which is not unlike those mentioned above.

They could have chosen infinite other places and times. They could have distributed materials outside the Union and reached the same audience. They could have passed literature outside Spartan Stadium and reached a bigger audience.

They could have set up a booth in the Union during numerous other times when military recruiters were on hand, but not when 21 companies had been denied booths because of the space shortage.

And what of the actual arrests, which they are using to test what they call unjust laws.

It takes only one person to test the justness of a law. One arrest. And after that one arrest has been made, the justness of the law can be aired in court. So why all the lack of cooperation from the time of the arrest until the time of the court judgment?

In a free society, an individual should be allowed to do anything he chooses as long as he doesn't interfere with the rights of others to do what they choose.

Open Letter To Jim Sterba (Who, Methinks, Doth Protest Too Much)

Dear Jim,

According to your column last Friday, you're really worried about the domination of American males by women, and you say a certain section of the Civil Rights Act isn't helping the situation.

Recently the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission ruled that businesses covered by the act, or the newspapers in which they advertise, must specify in want ads that either men or women applicants are acceptable for job openings.

The exception: when "a bona fide occupational qualification makes it lawful to specify male or female."

Unfortunately, however, the commission did not say what constitutes "a bona fide occupational qualification."

So, in order to comply with the regulation, the New York Times, for example, ran a classified ad for "male or female to model maternity clothes."

Reported as a major loophole in the implementation of the act is what's called the Bunny Problem—night clubs hiring women dressed in scanty costumes to wait on tables. Sure, men could do the work, but chances are pretty good that they wouldn't attract the customers.

Under the act, would such clubs be required to hire (Good Grief!) male bunnies?

I'm sure you can see, Jim, that women have just as much to worry about as men do. For every woman who wants to operate a bulldozer, there must be at least one male who wants to be a bunny.

If non-discrimination because of sex were taken literally, can you imagine the implications it would have here at MSU?

Would fraternities and sororities be required to pledge members of either sex?

Would the small squares marked "M" and "F" have to be removed from exam score-sheets?

Would the Men's Club be forced to permit a female State News reporter to cover its meetings?

Anyway, you'll be glad to know that at least one man is on your side. FBI director J. Edgar Hoover is determined to keep women in their place; the FBI employs no female agents.

"A woman simply wouldn't be hired as a special agent," a spokesman was quoted as saying. "Women are just not built like agents."

Of course women aren't built like agents—all the agents are men.

So, don't sweat it, Jim. Men still have a small margin of superiority over women, at least until the commission clears up some of the trouble spots.

But in the meantime, do you really mind being "hipsticked, powderpuffed and winked at"?

As ever,
Joan

Two Easy Answers To Drinking Problem

To the Editor:

Having read your editorial concerning minors and liquor, I find that I can keep silent no longer. Practically every day I hear college-level gripes about police brutality and injustices connected with the apprehension of a student for the violation of a well-known state law.

We bitch at the law, yet make no organized attempt to have it changed.

We bitch at the law enforcers, yet make no real attempt to remedy their own well founded gripes.

Are "tomorrow's leaders" going to follow the path of many of today's? Are we going to be all bitch and no action?

Assuming that no real change will be made in the near future, what should today's drinking minor do?

I drink, I bitch, but I don't try to flatter myself with the idea that the law and its enforcers are in the wrong and I am in the right.

LETTERS

But I do believe that if I act in a mature way after drinking, don't become riotous or obnoxious, that although I am still legally wrong, I am not morally wrong.

If more minors who insist on drinking tried to act this way I guarantee we would get things our way, either through relaxed law enforcement, or change in laws.

How To Plan An Ivory Tower

To the Editor:

I would like to suggest that Mr. Conlisk, East Lansing's planner, come out of his imaginary room in the ivory tower and face the real and practical problems of the world. It's quite apparent from the statements he made in the State News that he knows very little of what it takes to run a city.

Does he honestly expect the University to prohibit all students from owning cars? How does he expect the University to enforce this regulation, especially with 16,000 students living off-campus?

Maybe he would like to appear before the state Legislature on behalf of the University, to appeal for additional money so the school can hire an army of "See If the Off-Campus Student Owns a Car Inspectors."

Then again, I really shouldn't underestimate Mr. Conlisk, he might just appear before the City Council to urge the immediate adoption of an ordinance banning student parking and driving in East Lansing. After all, this measure would solve the parking and traffic problem!

Mr. Conlisk should at least consider the following facts before making irrational statements (which I'm certain he has spent many hours of city time thinking of) concerning the city's parking and traffic problem:

1. The University is here to stay.

2. The off-campus student is here to stay.

3. The automobile or modified form of it is here to stay.

Although these aren't earth-shattering facts, they seem to be quite obvious to the well-informed people. I think Mr. Conlisk has overlooked them, and, as a planner, should attempt to consider them, no matter how unreal they appear to him.

The LBJ Pajama Game Has Meaning In History

Two students, overheard by this eavesdropper were laughing at recent reports from Bethesda Naval Hospital on President Johnson's condition. The reports concerned Johnson's first stroll after his operation.

"I suppose he was still wearing those gold colored pajamas the newspaper informed us about yesterday," one quipped sarcastically.

"No," lied the other. "I heard last night that his team of physicians helped him change into a red pair."

Much has been written and said in criticism of Johnson and the detailed coverage he has allowed the mass media to give his recent gall bladder operation.

The more conservative British, for example, believe in the privacy of their government heads. Something too personal as an operation, they reason, is a matter of private concern, not to be splattered in detailed accounts over every newspaper's front page.

Other critics are simply fed up with Johnson's domination of this country, its senators, business and labor leaders, and in general, the Great Society.

But in all these verbal and literary assaults, the populace has forgotten one thing that Johnson hasn't: history.

The importance of the president to the nation and the world cannot be minimized. Politically, and economically, the president is the leader and symbol of freedom, progress and stability in the free world.

And Lyndon Johnson knows this. He knows also that news (or rumors) of a presidential illness or injury can set off shock waves of political and economic consequence around the world.

He learned this lesson, in part, first hand. He was handed the presidency as just such news took place.

Memory brings back the sharp decline taken by the stock market on Nov. 22, 1963. Stock prices fell so quickly in reaction to news of John Kennedy's assassination that officials closed the exchange.

Further perspective is added by looking at the impact felt both here and abroad by Dwight Eisenhower's heart attack in 1955 and his stroke in 1957.

National and international tension ran high as doubts and questions on the president's heart condition increased in number. Some analysts even credit the 1957-59 recession to uncertainty over Eisenhower's condition.

Even in 1893, national tension rose when word of Grover Cleveland's operation for jaw cancer leaked out. Cleveland, who was then embroiled in a bitter battle with Congress over the gold standard, chose to keep the operation secret even from his close friends. The operation, which removed the upper part of Cleveland's jaw, was performed on a borrowed yacht, the Onelda.

Not until nearly two months later, when E.J. Edwards wrote a sketchy report of the operation, did the public know something of Cleveland's problems.

And the country was tense. Even so, the president and those close to him lied about the events aboard the Onelda and it was years until the whole story was known.

Fear is a funny phenomenon. Its effect on national and international politics and economics is disheartening. President Johnson has learned the lessons fear has taught.

He chose to inform the public completely of his operation. He sought to quiet fears and dispel tensions that historically arise with a presidential emergency. He wanted to prevent the waves of shock over his illness from ever forming.

Soap Opera At Union: Mr. Clean Fights Grime

Three persons were arrested Friday for attempting to distribute soap at the first annual Protest Carnival in the Union.

Arrested after picketing the "End the War in Viet Nam" booth for several hours, were: Mr. Cleo Clean, of 217 Ivory Road; Handy J. Andy of 894 Bleach St.; and another who wore a helmet and would only identify himself as the "White Knight" of 1849 Ajax Court.

The three, who fell limp when informed of their arrests, were carried out in bathtubs.

Soon after, several hundred gathered at the IM showers to protest the arrests.

"From the smell of things," Mr. Clean said, "they were attempting to whitewash the whole matter. There's something dirty about the deal we got. I can't see what the big stink was about."

"It's gutterly ridiculous," Mr. Andy told the gathering. Hoisting himself atop a makeshift soapbox, Andy related the perils protesters present to the soap industry.

"In its purest sense, ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths per cent of the American public take baths and showers. The other fifty-six one-hundredths per cent are fighting in Viet Nam."

"We know it's a dirty war in Viet Nam, but that's why we're in it," he said. "How would we ever know the sweet smell of success without the McKong River full of soap suds?"

"It's not that we're unpatriotic," the Knight explained. "But if we were ever to end the war, we wouldn't be able to pack soap in our CARE packages to refugees."

"Our big beef is not with the generals who want to end the war. It's with the protesters. The generals take baths."

Senior Candidates State Class Plans

ELECTION SPECIAL

EDITOR'S NOTE: On this page appear the platforms of the candidates for senior class president and vice president. Elections will be held Tuesday for the first class officers to be elected under the new ASMSU structure which abolishes all class governments except for the senior class. This will be the first set of officers in the two-year trial period after which senior class government will again be reevaluated.

Joel Higgins (Pres.): 'A Crucial Year'

This is a crucial year for class government. The office of president and vice president of Senior Class are on trial. The worth of the offices will be reviewed in the spring of 1967 and if not proven necessary they will be abolished.

I feel very strongly that the unique activities of a Senior Class necessitate specific leadership. With this thought in mind, the job will demand time and understanding.

But more than these, it will demand perseverance. Since this is the only position I am seeking and hope to hold, I am willing to devote all my time to its purpose.

The duties and activities of the class of 1966 are explicit as set down by the student board. Among these are: the Development Fund, Swing-Out, commencement, Senior of the Year.

To these already implied, I would ask for the addition of a planning committee to evaluate new areas of senior participation.

The way to approach these activities is threefold.

—Coordination. For each of the activities there will be a chairman and committee chosen by open petitioning held the first week of office. These committee chairmen with the president and vice-president will comprise the executive board, somewhat analogous to the Senior Council in past years.

—Cooperation. The president will also hold a vice presidency on the cabinet of ASMSU, wherein he must present the viewpoint of the senior class to the student board. The class must also work closely with the Alumni Relations Office in those matters especially pertaining to commencement and the Development Fund.

Since I am presently the interim Development Fund chairman, I have already begun work in this area.

—Communication. The most important job of the officers will be keeping in touch with each member of the senior class in order to be attuned to their sentiments and keep them posted as to their activities.

This I will accomplish through a newsletter to be sent to each senior, alerting him of forthcoming events and the approach to take.

JOEL HIGGINS

JOHN MILLER

John Miller (Pres.): 'A Challenge'

Tuesday marks the beginning of a new era in student government; but with this election of Senior Class president and vice president comes a challenge.

Last spring, the ASMSU student board passed Directive 23 abolishing sophomore and junior class officers and councils, and set up the present structure for Senior Class elections. It did so with the stipulation that in the spring of 1967 this structure would be reevaluated.

Therefore, we are challenged to prove that the tradition of Senior Class officers will depend upon how this structure works during the next two years.

As a candidate for senior class president, I accept this challenge. As a member of the student board, I worked with Frannie Frei to formulate Directive 23. Therefore, I am familiar not only with the duties of the position, but also with the reasoning which went behind its formulation.

There is a dual role in the position of Senior Class president: that of representing the class during the year, at commencement and afterward, while at the same time working under the student board in coordinating the new senior activities mentioned in the directive. I realize this and am willing to fulfill the duties to the best of my ability.

I feel that my experience in leadership positions in the past, and especially as president of the junior class last year, gives me an insight into the problems which lie ahead and will enable me to accept the challenge and carry it through.

I urge you to look at the candidates and their qualifications for both offices and choose those which suit your need. But most important, support your class and vote.

Qualifications: junior class president, former student board member-at-large, Mr. MSU finalist, Blue Key, Excalibur, Career Carnival publicity chairman, Union Board, frosh-soph council publicity chairman, AUSG special projects chairman, Water Carnival public relations and awards, Outstanding Junior award.

Paul A. Smith (VP): 'A Dual Role'

The vice president of the Senior Class must work closely with the president to organize the various functions of the class as authorized by Directive 23.

This year the president and vice president must play a dual role: that of representing their class and working with ASMSU, of which they are a part.

The Senior Class Council is on a trial basis for the next two years. Since this is the only remaining class government at MSU, the 1966 class officers will have to prove its right to exist at this University.

I am sure I am speaking for the class of '66 and all future senior classes when I say that Michigan State University cannot afford to lose its Senior Council or representatives.

The three basic requirements for the office of vice president are time, interest and understanding of the position. Not only do I understand, but I have the qualifications for vice president of the Senior Class.

PAUL A. SMITH

Michael Walsh (VP): 'Unify The Class'

I. Four classes graduate from MSU each year—winter, spring, summer and fall terms. I hope to unify the class, make everyone who graduates in the Class of 1966 feel a part of one class.

II. If elected I will work for a closer relationship between the Senior Class officers and the class members. Class officers should not be an aloof group, but working representatives of their classmates.

III. I hope to improve communication between the Senior Class and faculty members after graduation, especially in reference to recommendations for jobs. There should be better channels for handling this matter.

IV. Because of my background in student government and my experience in social and political organizations, I feel that I am familiar enough with the workings of the University to do a good job of representing the Senior Class.

V. I pledge my full support to whoever wins the election for president of the class. The officers of any organization must work as a team if the best interests of the group are to be served.

Qualifications: 24 years old; veteran, served two years in the Army; president of Students Off Campus and Off-Campus Council; member of ASMSU student board; member, student-faculty committee on social affairs; chairman of ASMSU committee on the library; two years vice president of Students Off Campus; business law major, plan to attend law school.

Flowers' report termed the Klan "at its best it is intolerant and bigoted. At its worst, it is a foul pollution in the body politic."

The attorney general, who said exposure of the Klan's true picture would cause it to wither, said his report is designed to educate the people of Alabama who, he said, often are apathetic about the hooded order.

"Because of this apathy, an effective education program is absolutely necessary to inform the responsible citizens of our communities as to just what kind of vicious, perverted organization the Klan really is," his report said.

The House committee has not made known its procedures for the hearing and following the group's long-established policy, Chairman Edwin E. Willis, D-La., is keeping secret the names of witnesses until the day they appear.

Reached by phone at Tuscaloosa, Ala., his home town, Shelton confirmed he's been subpoenaed to appear Tuesday.

Just before leaving for Washington, he told a reporter: "I'll be there with boots on. It's going to be quite interesting. We're going to do a little digging into Bobby Baker, LBJ, Jenkins. There's going to be some questions we want to see answered before we answer some."

Buckeyes Battered

Juday missed on a scoring opportunity in the second quarter, when he fumbled on Ohio State's 16-yard line, after running for a 10-yard gain.

State's potent running attack netted 387 yards. Juday was on target with his passing, connecting on 11 of 19 attempts for 151 yards. End Gene Washington caught six of those passes for 83 yards.

Unverferth attempted 29 passes and completed 14 for 174 yards.

When Dwight Kelley, the Buckeyes' ace linebacker, was injured near the end of the second quarter, Bob Johnson, an inexperienced sophomore, filled in for Kelley, but couldn't contain the Spartans who concentrated their running attack on his side.

Clinton Jones, sparking the Spartans to an early first-quarter lead, took a Juday pitch-out, tried running to the right, reversed his field and followed his blocking down the left sideline for an 80-yard touchdown run.

Kenney kicked the extra point and score remained 7-0 until the third quarter.

Drake Garret, State's defensive right halfback, took a 49-yard punt by Tom Barrington, in the third quarter, and returned it to the Spartan 45. The ball was called back, however, and State was penalized to the 13 yard-line for a personal foul.

Nine plays later, including a determined 39-yard effort by Bob Apisa, Kenney booted a 35-yard field goal, making the score 10-0.

Less than a minute later, Goovert and Owens caught Unverferth in the endzone for a safety. Ohio State was forced to free-kick from its own 20-yard line. The ball was taken by Garrett on State's 33 and returned to the Buckeye 38.

A penalty for illegal use of the hands pushed the Spartans back to Ohio State's 46. Juday's 15-yard pass to Washington, coupled with the running of Jones and Lee, set up State's second touchdown.

Juday passed to Jones, who ran 12 yards for the touchdown at 3:20 in the final quarter. The try for extra point failed.

Ohio State scored its only touchdown on the next set of downs, but the Spartans came right back with a 72-yard drive in 14 plays.

Apisa spear-headed the attack with runs totalling 36 yards, and drove the final one yard for the touchdown.

With only minutes remaining in the game, State's defensive halfback Don Japings picked off an Unverferth pass on State's 39-yard line and returned it to the Ohio State 46.

Daugherty then let his second, third and fourth-string quarterbacks run the offense, under instructions to keep the ball on the ground. Quarterbacks Jimmy Raye and John Mullin took turns running keeper plays until they had moved the ball to the six.

Charles Lowther, a junior, then came in and ran the final yardage for a touchdown.

ASMSU Makes Plans For Purdue Trip

ASMSU has made plans to sponsor an excursion to Saturday's State-Purdue clash, pending final approval by the Student Board late Sunday night.

Between 250 and 300 students may take advantage of a package plan, which includes game ticket, transportation and three meals. The $13 package offer is open to all MSU students.

Tentative departure time is set for 6 a.m. Saturday. Dinner will follow the game's completion, after which buses will return to East Lansing.

"It seems certain that the proposal will be approved by the board," said Spartan Spirit Director Glen Harmon. Final details of the trip will be announced later this week.

NIP MICHIGAN, 17-15

Boilermakers Spoiling

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

It's halftime in the Big Ten. With the fifth week of football neatly wrapped up, the respite will be a short-lived one. There are 23 conference games on tap before the Big Ten champ is crowned, and if the race for supremacy was ever a lax one, the pressure will be on full blast now.

Saturday's games saw a standings shake-up run rampant over the league. Michigan State retained its conference lead, boosting its record to 3-0. Minnesota, Purdue and Wisconsin have a tie for second at 2-0.

But while the Spartans were winning, Ohio State was brought down a few notches, as the Buckeyes evened their score to 1-1. Tied with OSU for the fifth spot is Northwestern, another loser.

The rest of the league is on the minus side. Illinois has a 1-2 mark, while eighth-ranked Michigan stands 0-2. Along with the Wolves, Indiana and Iowa have yet to notch their first Big Ten wins, with identical 0-3 records to hold down the cellar.

Purdue just barely kept its conference hopes alive as it edged Michigan, 17-15. After the Wolves had kept Boilermaker receivers Bob Hadrick and Jim Finley in check for the first half, quarterback Bob Griese used some reverse psychology to eke out the win. Faking to his left, he fired passes to Jim Bierne on his right.

That drew the Wolves to Bierne and opened the way for Griese to hit his two favorite receivers. And hit them he did. With the score 15-14 in the final period, Griese pulled the game out of the fire with another neatly-placed field goal. The 35-yarder did the trick, just as it had the week before against Iowa.

Wisconsin notched its second Big Ten win as sophomore back Dennis Lager scored two touchdowns to insure a Badger victory over Northwestern, 21-7. The Badgers were minus their two top offensive men, Gary Bandor and Gale Bucciarelli, but their absence was never felt.

Luckless Iowa, still trying for its first conference win, couldn't top a third-period Minnesota scoring barrage and lost to the Gophers, 14-3. Within 22 seconds, Minnesota's John Hankinson passed 54 yds. for one score, and Dave Colburn ran 30-yds. to score.

Jim Graboski led the Illini charge, running over Red Grange's career rushing record, establishing two other marks and scoring two touchdowns in the process, as Illinois crushed Indiana, 34-13. The fullback powerhouse bypassed Grange's mark as he racked up 2,071 yds. rushing for three seasons, as well as setting new ones for total offense and most rushing attempts.

the Sporting Game

Groundhogs
Run AmokBy LARRY MOGG
State News Sports Editor

Woody Hayes, the not-so-mild-mannered Ohio State head coach, wasn't exactly in one of his better moods.

Those splendid Spartans, who have escalated to unsuspecting heights in the last couple of weeks, had just buried his Buckeyes under a fourth quarter avalanche, and they performed the burial rites in a brutal, embarrassing fashion.

The pot-bellied, poker-faced Buckeye boss faced a deluge of reporters after the 32-7 slaughter, and somehow he didn't remind one of "Gabby" Hayes.

His pride punctured, the subdued Hayes mumbled a few words and made a hasty exit. Reporters timed his conference at 80 seconds.

"Fellas, we were just beaten by a team that is a whole lot better than we are," he paused and fingered his dark-striped tie. "That's about it. They seem to gather momentum as they go along in a game. And they're gonna get better during the season."

Hayes edged toward the doorway. A Cleveland reporter asked him why he had passed so much. "We began passing when we knew we couldn't run against them. It's that simple."

Head down, Hayes retreated. He offered one parting comment, as he shook his head from side to side. "Let's face it, they just have a better team than we do."

The Spartans worked over the Buckeyes like a has-been sparring partner. But the loss obviously pained Hayes more than his team.

In the final period the Spartans got Hayes over a barrel and laid it on extra thick. Three times the Green and White got their hands on the ball, and three times they stormed into the Buckeye end zone. Each time Hayes, who normally stomps up and down the sidelines berating his players and the officials alike, stood dumb-founded.

The humiliation came when State's second and third stringers marched for a game-ending score. By that time Hayes was in no mood to strike up a post-game conversation with Daugherty. He hurried across the field for the traditional handshake, grabbed Duffy's hand for an instant, and hot-footed it for the locker room.

It was the worst conference defeat ever handed a Hayes' team. In the Spartan dressing room Daugherty was asked if he hadn't "laid it on" a little bit. The question didn't faze him.

"On the last touchdown we had all second and third stringers in there. I told them not to pass, but subs want to score, too. I couldn't very well tell them not to score. Besides, there have been plenty of years when we couldn't score at all."

State's defense was once again un-budgable against rushing. The Buckeyes pounded at the forward wall a couple of times in the early going, but they came away with dented fenders. Power runners Tom Barrington and Willard Sanders carried the ball ten times in the first half, managing to squeeze out 6 yards between them.

Hayes let them have the rest of the afternoon off, as neither were called on to risk their life against State's monsters.

State's defense rationed out deficit yardage for the second straight game. The usual bruising Ohio State ground-hogging attack gained a negative 22 yards in 17 carries.

"We wanted to take the first down play away from them," Daugherty said, "so they would have to pass. This meant, we couldn't be faced with a second and four or five situation. We moved Lucas and Bierowicz into the middle and split our tackles out wider to stop their ground game." They stopped 'em cold.

Purdue is next, and your roomie can tell you that they ain't gonna be easy.

Harriers Taste First Defeat; Booters Win Fifth

Gophers' Balance Tumbles 'S'

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

History. It has been said, will repeat itself. If it does, then the Spartan cross-country team is in luck.

But if it doesn't, then the harriers' hopes of regaining the Big Ten Conference title are worth about two cents.

As a result of Saturday's meet with defending league champion Minnesota on the Forest Akers Golf Course, the Spartan long-distance men did not exactly display the form that will enable them to snatch the conference championship from the Minnesotans.

Coach Fran Ditttrich's runners were only able to take five of the 12 possible places in the meet and fell to their first dual-meet loss in three starts, 27-30.

But, according to last year's meet between the two schools, the Spartans should not be even the least concerned as to who will be the conference king. In the regular season clash, State came off with a narrow 27-28 victory, but had to settle for second place behind the Gophers in the conference meet.

But, words and statistics have yet to win a cross-country meet and Coach Ditttrich is the first to recognize this fact.

"You must have your best runners finishing in those first five places," said Ditttrich. "One or two men can't do it while the rest tag along near the end of the pack."

Possibly, Ditttrich was speaking of Dick Sharkey and Art Link when he mentioned "one or two men." Had it not been for those two boys, State would have fallen victim to a greater difference of points in the final score Saturday.

Sharkey alone held the attention of the crowd that was scattered in all directions on the Forest Akers Course. The former Detroit Redford prep star, who runs as fast and as sleek as an African gazelle, was never once challenged for first place.

He zipped around the first mile with a lightning like time of 4:51. He finished the four-mile race some 35-yards in front of his nearest competitor, Minnesota's Tom Heinonen, with a time of 20:57.3. This was a new meet record between the two schools and was eight seconds less than the varsity record established by Paul McCollum and Eric Zemper in 1964.

Link, a sophomore, kept up with his performances of previous meets as he finished fourth with a 21:21 mark. He held down the second and third place positions for three miles, but faltered in the end and narrowly edged out the Gophers' Dave Wegner for fourth.

Obviously, it was the Gophers' dominance of positions that enabled them to capture their third consecutive victory. Besides Heinonen's second place, Minnesota had men in the third, fifth, ninth, 10th and 11th places.

After Sharkey and Link, the best the Spartans could do was a sixth by George Balthrop and a seventh by Paul McCollum.

2 For Hens, 3 For Busch; 2 For Zips

By BOB HORNING
State News Sports Writer

AKRON--MSU's steamrolling soccer team continued its winning ways with a 5-2 win over Akron Friday.

Sophomores Pete Hens and Guy Busch paved the road to victory as they accounted for all the Spartan scores. The pair tallied once in each of the first two periods and Busch added the last goal in the fourth quarter. It was State's fifth victory in as many tries.

Spartan Coach Gene Kenney said his booters didn't play particularly well, but called Akron one of the better clubs they have faced this year. "We had the rough and tumble type of game we always have down there, and Akron was just as tough as we expected."

With center forward Busch scoring his first goal after 16 minutes of play, State took the lead and never was headed. Five minutes later Hens made the score 2-0 from his inside left position.

At 13:45 of the second quarter, Hens, who has been showing his scoring ability since being switched to his forward position, upped State's lead to three.

Hens moved into forward spot just outside the penalty area. Although some of the boys played fine ball, Kenney said the team will have to look better than it did at Akron if they want to go anywhere. "We haven't really played as good this year as I had hoped."

Only 20 seconds remained in the half when Busch kicked his second goal, and the halftime score read 4-0.

Akron got onto the scoreboard early in the third period as inside left Joe Queiroga scored on a penalty shot. Busch got that goal back at 2:07 of the fourth period, putting in his third goal and 13th of the year.

The scoring ended at 12:48, Jim Fonte counting the Zips' second goal on a direct shot just outside the penalty area. Although some of the boys played fine ball, Kenney said the team will have to look better than it did at Akron if they want to go anywhere. "We haven't really played as good this year as I had hoped."

7 Trapped In Coal Mine

CLARKSBURG, W. Va.—(UPI)—Rescuers battling heavy smoke and flames Sunday tried to reach seven men trapped deep inside a nearby coal mine when fire broke out shortly after midnight. It was not known whether the trapped men were dead or alive.

Veteran miners on the scene, held out little hope for the families of the men waiting silently at the entrance of the Clinchfield Coal Company's Mars No. 2 pit.

Ventilation shafts in the mine were pouring out a steady stream of coal dust and smoke. One rescue worker admitted the situation "doesn't look good."

"I still have hope," said

Clinchfield President George L. Judy, "particularly if they have barricaded themselves." Judy said barricading a passage would keep the fire from eating up available oxygen.

The trapped workers, whose identities have not been released, were believed to be about a mile inside the mine which was described as "honey-combed with passages." Rescuers were not certain which passage the trapped men were in.

The mine, about 100 miles south of Pittsburgh, is eight miles from the entrance to Clinchfield's Dola mine where a methane gas explosion claimed 22 lives April 26, 1963.

Like the Dola disaster the Mars fire was blamed on a spark from a continuous miner. Three members of the 10-man crew working with the machine were able to escape from the mine's only entrance.

More than 36 men, many from nearby coal mines, were taking part in the rescue operation. The rescuers were sealing up passages as they plunged deeper into the shaft battling the flames.

The mine was literally choked with smoke.

Clinchfield officials said the trapped men started moving the continuous miner into Mars early Sunday to set it up for Monday's work. One source said the machine cut a wire shortly before the blaze broke out.

There were conflicting reports about whether an explosion accompanied the fire. One official said there was no explosion, another said a blast preceded the blaze.

State and federal mine inspectors including state Mine Director W. F. Eigenbrod arrived on the scene Sunday.

The Mars mine is a relatively new operation, employing about 175 men with an annual production of about one million tons.

Cyclist Injured In Crash

Campus police reported that a motorcycle collided with a truck Friday night at Shaw Lane and Science Road.

The cyclist, Robert H. Lyons, Pittsburgh, Pa., sophomore, was taken to Olin Memorial Hospital and treated for leg injuries. The truck driver, Lawrence R. Pulver, 48, of 1364 Lansing Ave., was uninjured.

Gottlieb Considers Job Corps A Success

By RICHARD SCHWARTZ
State News Managing Editor

America's year-old Job Corps is getting "the cream of the crop" when it should be getting more of the curd, its director for development and evaluation feels.

"Maybe I shouldn't use such an expression," said David Gottlieb, associate professor of sociology and education on a two-year leave in Washington, D.C. "But it's an accurate reflection of the situation we face."

While the program has found favorable reception with those aboard the school drop-out boat, Gottlieb said, it has failed to bail out those clinging to the hold.

"By any measure, the program has been a success," Gottlieb said. "With only 14,000 positions available in the first year and 40,000 anticipated by next June, we have been swamped with more than 250,000 applications."

"But it's my feeling that we're only scratching the surface of the lower class youths and failing to reach even greater numbers of those less motivated to apply to the corps."

For those who have signed up, however, the program has been a surprising success, according to Gottlieb.

"We're not talking about the underprivileged in Pakistan or China," he said, "but rather in America. These are kids right out of the streets of Detroit, Cleveland, New York—kids who may never have stepped six blocks from their ghettos."

"The youngsters that come to us don't have fractured teeth. They have fractured mouths. Many have never seen the likes of a dentist or doctor before in their lives."

The Job Corps is not in the business of changing their attitudes, Gottlieb explained. The basic concern is with their behavior.

"Many a kid comes to the Job Corps who hates his father—this because the father ran away or is perpetually drunk. Well, we tell the kid, 'Fine, hate your father.' Then we go about trying to get the kid to make something of himself."

"Often, you can't help but feel how many of these kids would be O.K. if just someone in their home town would have taken a half-hour to talk to them," he said. "Or is it the father who should have been spoken to?"

While the kid may hate his father, the same feeling doesn't exist toward the program, Gottlieb claimed, despite several reported disorders at work sites.

"The record is this: we've had some sodomy, two rapes, a couple of corpsmen in Texas involved in a shooting and what the press termed a 'riot' in Kentucky."

"The 'riot,'" Gottlieb said, "is more what I would call a 'group rumble'."

But with 14,000 corpsmen, Gottlieb said he doesn't feel this represents any great problem.

"If you'll notice," he said, "we have the corpsmen suited up in a blue blazer with special crests on the front, button-down blue shirts, tie—the whole works. This isn't done to disguise the fact that most of them are lower class Negroes, rural southern whites, Puerto Ricans, Indians and Spanish-speaking Americans, although I will admit it changes the public's perception perhaps 50 per cent."

"Rather, it underscores a basic philosophy I have and others on our staff share: simply, it's that kids dressed in sports jackets and ties usually don't get into rumbles."

Harvard Costs Less, But...

It costs more to train and educate a youngster in the Job Corps than it would to put him through Harvard.

The only hitch is: Harvard won't accept him.

To qualify for the corps, according to Development and Evaluation Director David Gottlieb, a youngster must "have going for him... the military and no local agency exists to train him."

"This may not be as simple to determine as it would appear," he said. "Many of the tests we first used were frankly poor. I recall one fellow whose scores showed him to be illiterate who was reading a newspaper before the exam began."

"What we now do is put them through basic arithmetic and reading tests followed up by individual interviews," he said.

"Going for him" must be the fact that he is unwanted at his neighborhood school, that he is "unacceptable to the military and no local agency exists to train him."

If accepted the youngster is usually assigned to a conservation center where initial stress is put on minimizing his educational deficiencies.

"The average level of schooling is around the fifth or sixth grade," Gottlieb said, "although third grade might be a more accurate evaluation. An ironic note is found in the eight per cent or so who have graduated high school but who, as a group, average below the others in the corps."

"This could only mean that some of our high schools are

McDivitt Thanks Michigan

"I learned how insignificant a single person might be on earth," Gemini 4 Astronaut James McDivitt told a joint meeting of the Legislature Friday.

McDivitt, who flew on the four-day mission June 2-7 in which Astronaut Edward White walked in space, took time out from a visit to his parents in Jackson to address the Legislature on its closing day.

"From space I saw just the earth. Although I took pictures of an area where I knew there were 23 million people, it was only a small part. I couldn't see a single person," McDivitt said.

Saying he never forgot the people from his home during the flight, McDivitt presented a small American flag, which he had carried into orbit, to the state of Michigan.

"I want to thank you people for supporting the program the way you have," he said.

He told the Legislature that he realized the responsibility involved in representing the United States and Michigan.

"I hope I can continue to always do my best to represent you," he added.

McDivitt said that his words could not compare in importance with the daily discussions of the Legislature.

Refugees Pour Out Of Cuba

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—More refugees from Fidel Castro's Communist island, the first of a "freedom flotilla" expected this week, arrived Sunday with stories of a worsening "reign of terror" in Cuba.

More than 400 persons have fled Cuba since Castro officially threw open the door to departures a week ago.

Thirty-eight refugees who arrived at dawn Sunday aboard the 40-foot fishing boat King Ping ranged in age from a six-month-old baby to an 84-year-old woman who was carried from the boat in a litter basket.

Shortly before noon the Coast Guard said the cutter Diligence dispatched a helicopter with a salvage pump to try to help a refugee boat reported sinking 40 miles south of Key West. Further details were not immediately available.

A 70-year-old man, sickly and shoeless, was helped down the King Ping's gangplank at the Coast Guard base here by immigration agents.

The old man, Manuel Blanco Serrano, managed to whisper "of course" when asked if he was happy to be out of Cuba.

The refugees, mostly women and children, said the Castro regime's "reign of terror" is getting worse every day.

A 61-year-old man, who asked that his name be withheld, said, "You can be standing on the corner talking with a friend and if the secret police don't like your looks, away you go to prison. How long you stay is anybody's guess."

A woman commented that "it's reached the point now that if they don't like the way you smile you wind up in prison. Everybody who is not with Castro shakes in his boots day and night." She declined to give her name.

There were 20 women, 10 children and 8 men in the refugee group brought out by four exiles from Miami in the battered fishing boat that ran line of Coast Guard boats to get to Camarioca, the departure point in Cuba.

Captain Manuel Franco, wearing a black leather flight man's cap, said he was stopped three times by Coast Guard vessels.

"But, hell, I had to get these people out," he said.

The refugees said that Castro's decision to permit free exodus is still an enigma to most Cubans, but they said a food shortage undoubtedly was a prime reason for the open door.

Thousands Present On Fair's Last Day

NEW YORK (AP)—Hundreds of thousands surged into the New York World's Fair on Sunday to get one last peek before the giant exposition closed out its two-season run.

The gates were to close to the public forever two hours after midnight. Dismantling of most of the 150 buildings begins today.

In many areas, rows of flower beds were picked clean as souvenir hunters prowled through the 646-acre fairgrounds.

Priests Buck Catholic Bishop

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The ancient and awesome authority of a Roman Catholic bishop, anchored in tradition and nourished by faith, has been challenged by a band of priests and nuns supporting a civil rights boycott of Milwaukee public schools.

About 50 priests and nuns issued a statement Saturday night brushing aside a directive issued by Auxiliary Bishop Roman R. Atkieski, acting head of the Archdiocese of Milwaukee. His directive prohibited the use of parish facilities in support of an indefinite school boycott scheduled to start Monday.

U.S. Jets Hit VC Missile Unit

SAIGON (AP)—Slipping in from the sea with eight tons of bombs, five U.S. Navy jets demolished a mobile surface-to-air missile unit in North Viet Nam on Sunday, a U.S. spokesman reported. Pilots said they left a missile, launchers and trucks in flames.

The missiles, called SAMs, are supplied by the Soviet Union and are believed accompanied by Soviet technicians. The U.S. spokesman made no mention of personnel casualties at the site.

Wild Cherry Edges Out Burgundy

CASUAL WEAR--These are some of the fashions modeled at Thursday night's style show in the Union. Outfits of all types were shown and the "ins" and "outs" for 1965 were discussed.

By JAN TARACKS
State News Staff Writer

Wild cherry has stolen part of the fall fashion spotlight from burgundy, according to the fall fashion show, sponsored by Union Board Thursday evening.

Using the theme of homecoming week, the latest styles were shown by nine East Lansing merchants. Participating were Campbell's Suburban Shop, Jacobson's, Knapp's, Ramsey University Shop, Redwood and Ross, the Scotch House, the Style Shop, the Tog Shop and Wanda Hancock.

Wild cherry, best described as a dusty rose, is featured in sweaters, skirts, jumpers and is also plaided with burgundy. Burgundy is, however, holding its own and is also being shown with navy blue.

The heather look is being popularized in blues, browns and greens. It is used effectively when combined with matching knee socks, to provide the total look. Jersey knit turtle neck tops are high on the list of fashions, especially when worn with matching over-the-knee hose.

Front pleated blouses are being introduced this fall and cable knit sweaters, whether V-neck, cardigan or crew neck, are gaining new popularity.

Unique zipper detailing will highlight many casual skirt and sweater ensembles, as will knit designs.

For evening wear, simple-lined, velvet floor-length gowns will be seen. Some will feature crocheted trim. Lace cocktail dresses and skimmers will also be seen whirling on the dance floor.

Men's sweaters are being shown with cable knit stitching in V-necks and crew necks. Burgundy and navy blue are the most popular colors.

In addition to white jeans, wide-wale corduroy will be featured in the men's casual wear department.

Sports jackets are primarily herringbone tweed or checked. Campus jackets will include wool skirt jackets and smart, fleeced-lined rawhides.

Ponchos will lead the coat and jacket fashions for women. Fur jackets will also be seen with increasing frequency as the mercury drops. High boots with side zippers will make their appearance when the snow begins.

FORMAL WEAR--Clothes shown at Thursday night's style show in the Union were contributed by local merchants who also took part in the displays. New colors and fashions like wild cherry and crocheted lace were modeled by MSU students.

'Oh Dad' Funny, Grotesque Play

Madame Rosepettle, the insane widow of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad," kicks sand at lovers at the beach, locks her 19-year-old son in a room and peeks in keyholes. "Oh Dad, Poor Dad," with Ann Matesich, Zanesville, Ohio, graduate student in the role of Madame Rosepettle, opens the 1965-66 University Theater season at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Fairchild Theater.

Madame Rosepettle keeps the corpse of her dead husband with her. She allows her son to collect stamps, books and coins but he cannot leave his room without Mama.

"On the surface 'Oh Dad, Poor Dad' seems like a farce," Miss Matesich said. "You start laughing, but then you stop and wonder why, for the play is a grotesque image of the way people destroy each other with possessive love."

University Theater sold out its season tickets to the limit of Fairchild seating capacity. The theater added a 2 p.m. matinee Saturday to its already scheduled run at 8 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

The possessive Rosepettle can melt a person into the floor with her controlled, cool dominance, Miss Matesich said. Miss

Arts Contests Open

Students can now enter the $1,600 Kansas City poetry contests and apply for the $2,500 Grinnell Foundation of Music opera scholarship.

In the third annual Kansas City poetry contests, the Edward A. Devins Award offers a $500 advance for a book-length manuscript to be published by the University of Missouri Press. Hallmark Cards Inc. is offering six $100 awards for single poems.

Submission of entries for the Hallmark and Devins awards closes Feb. 15. Rules can be obtained by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Poetry Contest Directors, P.O. Box 5335, Kansas City, Mo., 64131.

Applications for the $2,500 opera scholarship are available from Mrs. Sam E. Williams, Scholarship Chairman, Detroit Grand Opera Association, Ford Auditorium, Detroit, 48226. Deadline for applications is Dec. 1.

The scholarship provides for advanced study in voice and opera training under supervision of the scholarship committee of the Detroit Grand Opera Assn.

Applicants must be in the following age brackets: sopranos, 19 to 30; altos, 19 to 32; tenors, 20 to 32; baritones, 20 to 32; basses, 20 to 35. The first audition will be Dec. 4 at the Masonic Temple in Detroit. Final auditions are Feb. 10.

Serendipity Singers Lost In MSU 'Blimp Hanger'

By DAVID HANSON
State News Reviewer

A standing-room-only crowd was on hand in Jenison Fieldhouse Saturday night to kick off the ASMSU Popular Entertainment Series with the Serendipity Singers--mainly because there were too many people and not enough good seats.

Individually the Serendipities are not great. Together they make a commercial sound that doesn't have a lot of variety.

Most of their material was familiar, which is fortunate, because a blimp hanger is not the best place for a concert. When the words count, Jenison has a tendency to absorb most of what's being sung.

The field house may hold more but that asset becomes a disaster when most of the people are lost in the crowd. Jenison holds more but doesn't have as many good seats as the Auditorium.

But the audience seemed to enjoy the show all the same. The seven guys and two girls in the group sang old songs, told old jokes and hammed it up. They even sang their single hit record, "Don't Let the Rain Come Down."

Concentrating on folk, they sang each song with their distinctive if not imaginative style--their sound. It's sort of like the New Christy Minstrel's second team.

In striving to sing songs that other groups are doing, the Serendipities weaken the arrangements.

One such try is their rendition of Shel Silverstein's new arrangement of the old "Frankie and Johnny." Rather than boldly imitate the Minstrels' popular arrangement, they add some fluff and pauses that don't help a bit. It comes off badly.

Sometimes their introductions have little to do with what they end up singing. But you have to introduce a song some way and this is excusable; boring, but excusable.

If ASMSU wants its entertainment series to be a success, it will have to solve some problems.

First of all, Jenison is not the place. Dave Brubeck will not go well in the barn. People are not comfortable, the lighting and sound is bad and things never settle down. The first part of this first concert was interrupted by the sounds of the shuffling feet trying to get better seats.

If ASMSU hopes to attract patrons, it will have to do better with the talent. If it wants thousands of customers, it should be willing to bring in the best groups. Why not the New Christy Minstrels instead of the Serendipities?

ties? Why not the Beatles instead of the Kingsmen?

If ASMSU keeps the shows in Jenison, it had better do something about the stage arrangement like putting it in the middle. The stage is too far away from the customers now, and you could see it better on TV.

Professor Describes Far East Impressions

American interference in the internal affairs of strategically located Asian countries is backfiring into a barrage of anti-American sentiment, Lawrence H. Battistini, professor of social science, said as he reported on his tour of "Asia 1965" at the Union Thursday evening.

On his trip to the Far East, Battistini visited Japan, Taiwan, Hongkong, South Viet Nam, Thailand and Cambodia.

In Japan, he said he found the gross national product very impressive, but said a steep inflation is eating away many of these economic gains.

After touring Japan, Battistini went on to Taiwan, which he described as a "captured island." For the most part, the people are not happy, and politics is not openly discussed by the natives. This latter fact, concluded Battistini, "is indicative of the dictatorial conditions prevailing on the island behind the facade of Chiang Kai-shek's democracy."

In Hong Kong Battistini noted the increase in economic development since his last visit there in 1956. New buildings are going up everywhere and the population is on the rise.

Battistini described Hong Kong as a "city without a soul." He said that he talked with many of the middle-class citizens there and found that a considerable majority were very proud of the achievements of Communist China and the prestige it has been acquiring internationally.

South Viet Nam reminded him of Japan after World War II, a city of American military occupation.

Battistini reported that there was almost a total disinterest on the part of the South Vietnamese in the war which has infested their country.

"The overwhelming mass of people not only are not involved in the war," he said, "but also feel, in their hearts at least, that this is not their war, that it is America's war."

"Walking around the streets of Saigon, by day and by night," Battistini continued, "one would never know that South Viet Nam was a nation at war, except for the large numbers of military personnel, mostly U.S., which one sees everywhere, and the barricaded hotels."

In Bangkok, the capital of Thailand, Battistini saw a very impressive city, but he added that economic improvements were not being shared by the masses of the people.

Of his trip to Cambodia, he said, "nothing was concealed from me." His overall impression was that Cambodia was a land of peace, progress, and happiness.

During his stay in Cambodia, Battistini had an interview with the top government official, Prince Sihanouk, and was told that Cambodia's foreign policy is based on the principle of reciprocity. In other words, Cambodia will react to foreign nations exactly as they treat Cambodia.

It was for this reason, he was told, the Cambodia's relations with France, the Soviet Union, China and the socialist states of Eastern Europe are so cordial. It was for this same reason, they told him, that Cambodia expelled the American ambassador, cut off all American aid, and expelled all American journalists.

"That is to say," he explained, "that the United States, through its foreign aid and the machinations of the CIA, was intervening in the internal affairs of Cambodia—something which the Khmer people could not and would not tolerate."

Michigan, but does not apply outside of Michigan.
"Consequently," Hare said, "it is not wise to cancel any private insurance assuming that the fund will pay for any accident."

Hare estimates that one half of the 600,000 uninsured drivers in Michigan will get into the insured category to avoid paying the extra $35.

"This leaves about 300,000 uninsured drivers," Hare said. "Couple this with the 3.7 million insured drivers and it adds up to about $142 million to start the fund."

Hare has chosen Robert E. Hall, a legal and insurance expert, to head the organization of the fund's operation. He has taught insurance subjects at MSU.

Insured motorists, Hare adds, should receive a certificate of insurance from their insurance company. This certificate serves as proof that the driver does carry the proper insurance.

"This holds for all Michigan-based companies," Hare said, "but there are some out-of-state insurance companies that we are not too sure of. We're hopeful that they will provide their customers with the certificates."

Hare said that the certificates should be available by the Nov. 1 deadline.
