MSU Back In NSA By 7-6 Board Vote

May Force All-U Vote

Student opposed to affiliation of Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) with the National Student Assn. (NSA) may try to get an all-University referendum on the issue.

Jim Sink, vice president of Men's Halls Assn. (MHA) and leader of the opposition called STOP-NSA, said that his committee will consider circulating a petition to bring the NSA issue to a vote by the student body at large.

He will need signatures of 10 per cent of the eligible voting undergraduate students.

Sink attended the Student Board meeting Tuesday night where re-affiliation with NSA was approved, 7-6.

"The members-at-large who voted to stay in NSA were not adequately representing the students of this University," he said. "We see no evidence that they made any attempt to seek or acquire the students' opinion on this issue."

He noted that representatives from major governing groups on campus voted against affiliation with NSA.

"If the students vote to withdraw, NSA will give us a seven-month grace period. If NSA proves its value during this time, we can re-affiliate," Sink said.

By CHAR JOLLES
State News Staff Writer

Student Board voted 7-6 to re-affiliate with the National Student Assn. (NSA) Tuesday night after more than two hours of polemics and cross-fire questioning.

A quasi-formal debate ensued between Jim Johnson, vice president of the national branch of NSA and a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and Jim Sink, vice president of Men's Halls Assn. (MHA) and leader of the organized opposition on campus.

Sink objected to affiliation with NSA for three reasons: its programs, its politics and cost. On its programs, Sink said that only a small minority of individual students benefit from NSA's services.

Supporting Sink's objection were board representatives from Interfraternity Council (IFC), Panhellenic Council, Women's Interfraternity Council (WIC) and (MHA).

Johnson pointed out the several programs offered by NSA for individual students as well as student governments. These programs included:

--Domestic discount cards. Johnson said that NSA helped set up discount services at other Big 10 universities, for example, the University of Minnesota.

--A student life insurance program, $10,000 worth of life insurance sells for $20 a year, he said. "We sell between 8 and 10 per cent on the mailings we send to students on campus," he added.

Liuzzo Trial Gets Underway

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (UPI)--An all-white jury was selected quickly Wednesday for the murder trial of Ku Klux Klansman Collier Leroy Wilkins and testimony began after the prosecution failed in efforts to bar white supremacists from the jury.

The trial resumed shortly after the Alabama Supreme Court rejected a plea that 11 men who believed whites are superior to Negroes be stricken from the list of prospective jurors.

State Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers had argued that the prosecution couldn't get "a fair trial" with any of these 11 men on the jury because of their racial feelings.

But the Supreme Court, after hearing Flowers' plea in a 50-minute session in Montgomery and then deliberating for one hour, rejected the plea because to interrupt the case now would "establish a precedent which would in the future impede the progress of all criminal trials."

Four of the men to whom Flowers objected in his plea were seated among the 11. All four had testified in questioning Tuesday that they thought Negroes were "inferior" to whites, and also that they thought white civil rights workers are "inferior" to other whites.

Among the last 18 eliminated were the last three remaining Negroes on the panel. The defense was allowed to eliminate 12 and the prosecution six.

The final jury was composed of six farmers, a timber buyer, two men in the pulpwood business, a construction worker, an automobile salesman and a county employee.

Although he had contended in his plea that failure to bar the white supremacists from the jury panel "placed the state in an untenable position of not being able to get a fair trial," Flowers began immediately to present the prosecution case.

His first witness was State Trooper H.L. Burgess, who testified how he found the body of Mrs. Liuzzo in her car on the night of March 25--the night that the Selma-to-Montgomery

College Bill Needs Senate Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)--A three-year program of support for higher education costing $2.3 billion was passed Wednesday by the House.

Senate passage is still needed to complete action on the bill, a compromise between versions approved earlier by each chamber.

The far-ranging legislation would provide federal scholarships for needy college students, help pay interest on college loans, build laboratories and equip them and strengthen college libraries and teacher education.

It also would establish a corps of specially trained teachers that would be available to local school districts for use in overburdened elementary and secondary schools in low-income areas. This provision touched off the only fight Wednesday as Republicans tried in vain to knock it out. They charged it would lead to federal control of local schools.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., who led the fight against it, said the proposal is a dangerous threat to the continued independence of local schools.

"We've already made such a large leap toward federal control that we had better stop, look and listen before we add this step," Quie said. His motion to strip the provision from the bill was defeated 226 to 152, and the House went on to pass the bill by a 312-63 vote.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., manager of the bill, said local school authorities would have the power to hire and fire members of the teacher corps and assign them subjects to teach. "There is no federal control whatsoever," he said.

The sensible over the teacher corps, which would cost only $36.1 million of the first-year cost of $852 million, overshadowed other provisions in the bill.

Chief among them are two new forms of student assistance--

Budget Gets Board OK

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Editor-in-Chief

MSU's budget recommendation to Gov. George W. Romney for the 1966-67 academic year was approved Wednesday by the Board of Trustees.

However, budget details will not be made public until President John A. Hannah returns from a trip to Nigeria next Thursday. Sources indicated the Board of Trustees made several changes in the tentative budget made up by University administrators.

Hannah left Wednesday noon by air immediately after the board meeting. He is scheduled to address the Council of the European Language Education Centers Thursday in Zurich, Switzerland, and will leave Friday for Lagos, Nigeria.

In Nigeria he will attend a conference of the presidents of the 11 universities having assistance programs there. He will also spend several days at the University of Nigeria at Nsukka.

Commenting on the budget recommendation, Philip J. May, vice president for business and finance, said:

"The Board of Trustees have made all policy decisions on the budget and it will be announced when President Hannah returns."

The budget request will be sent to State Comptroller Glen Allen, Jr. who will prepare the governor's recommendation to the legislature. The higher education budget request is expected to be made to the Legislature in January.

Gov. Romney has requested all major Michigan universities to "hold the line" on their budget requests. Michigan universities received substantial increases last year and their requests this year should reflect this, he has maintained.

"MSU will not be able to follow the governor's recommendations on this," May said. "Our budget request is substantially higher because of higher enrollments projected for next year."

MSU's projected student enrollment for 1966-67 will be 38,776 or about a 10.7 per cent increase in this fall's total of 35,570.

May indicated the only way that MSU can hold the line on its budget request is to hold the line on enrollments. And this would conflict with MSU's announced policy of "taking its fair share" of the Michigan student load.

This year's budget was $51,973,720, about 19 per cent higher than the 1964-65 budget. The Agricultural Experiment Station received a nine per cent increase last year and the Co-operative Extension Service a four per cent increase. Oakland University, MSU's affiliate near Pontiac, received a 25 per cent increase.

The auditing firm of Ernst and Ernst reported to the board that MSU's financial operations are in good order.

During discussion of the audit, Board Chairman Warren M. Huff, D-Plymouth, said he was glad to see that dormitory and food costs will not increase this winter.

Another action the board approved the name of the Department of Statistics to be changed to the Department of Statistics and Probability.

Hoffa Used Union Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)--Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa tapped the union's treasury for $570,396 to pay his lawyers in three criminal trials in the past three years, the Labor Department said Wednesday.

"That's only the top of the iceberg," said Seymour Spelman, attorney for a group of anti-Hoffa Teamster suing for restitution of the funds. Spelman claimed the total is probably closer to $1 million for Hoffa's numerous criminal cases since 1959.

KKK Wizard Takes The 5th

WASHINGTON (UPI)--The House Committee on Un-American Activities threatened Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton with contempt of Congress Wednesday after he took the Fifth Amendment 156 times in refusing to divulge details about the Ku Klux Klan.

In addition, a member of the committee, Rep. Joe Pool, D-Tex., accused the wizard of using dues collected from Klan members for his personal "traveling money, diamonds and groceries."

Although Shelton clammed up inside the committee room, he stood outside the door when finally excused from the hearing and read a statement saying he "trembled for the future of America."

The committee's investigation into the Klan, he said, was dictated by "a political desire to win favor with a minority group." He called the caucus chamber where the hearings are being held the "committee inquisition room." But he said he bore no ill-will toward any committee member.

Activities Carnival Tonight

It's What's Happening Activities Carnival '65' is what's happening tonight 7-10 p.m. at Spartan Stadium.

Representatives from more than 31 student organizations, a 20 per cent increase over last year, will sit behind booths and displays to acquaint freshmen, transfer students and even outsiders with the extra-curricular side of MSU.

At one end of the stadium carnival a folk-singing group will make its debut. Roadside Table and the Litter Barrels--that's their name--consists of Delta Chi fraternity members.

A jazz group from the West Circle Jazz Society, a student organization itself, will play at the other end of the Carnival while recruiting jazz enthusiasts at the same time.

"They are upholding an oath just as I am," he said.

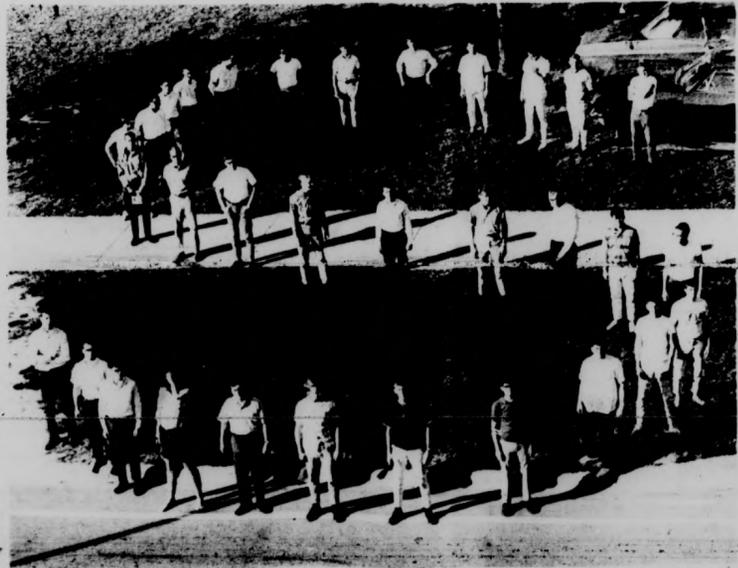

The halfway statement by the head of the United Klans of America, the nation's biggest, was in sharp contrast to what went on inside the hearing room Tuesday and Wednesday. To all questions inside, he invoked constitutional guarantees against self-incrimination.

Shelton was threatened with contempt by Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., chairman of the committee, after the Klan leader refused to turn over subpoenaed documents to investigators.

The Louisiana Democrat gave Shelton 10 minutes to reconsider his refusal, but at the end of that time he returned to the committee room and declined to turn over the records.

Willis told newsmen later he was considering asking Congress to cite Shelton for contempt. But he said no decision has been made.

Shelton also refused to answer any questions about an Alabama radio network that committee investigators said was set up by the United Klans.

S-SPECIAL -- A spirited group from West Shaw got together Tuesday and a large "S" was the result. This group wanted to show the football team that, though it's an away game, the support of the school is with them.

Atomic Sales Welcome, But Who Knew?

IT IS WRONG when an occurrence as major as the allied decision to sell atomic power plants to Eastern European countries is hushed up by Western governments.

The Associated Press in its story Monday on the possible sale of such power plants attributed its information to "diplomatic sources and British informants." It is nothing short of disgraceful that news management goes on which makes this sort of thing necessary.

The DECISION by a coordinating committee, including 14 or the 15 NATO nations and Japan, to consider the Romanian request for power plant aid was a major breakthrough.

It opens the way for increased trade in specific areas with Communist nations attempting to break their ties to the Soviet Union. It demonstrates the West's contention that the main reason for atomic research is for peaceful uses; this is a contention that has not always been backed up.

BUT THERE IS NO REASON for the decision to allow such sales, to all nations willing to go along with certain safeguards, to have been kept from the public for months.

Even in a time of international tension caused by the Viet Nam war and other events, any improvements in international understanding and cooperation demand the highest priority news coverage. We may as well give up on our job of "covering" the news if this is not to be the case.

State News Charged With Spreading A Lie

To the Editor:

I question your judgment in printing the letter quoted from Liberation in Friday's State News.

There are no corroborating facts in Liberation to indicate that it was really written by a soldier in Viet Nam. For all anyone could determine, the letter could have been written by the editor of Liberation.

I am surprised that you would reprint so inflammatory and controversial a letter without some proof of authorship.

I have contacted the State Journal and ascertained that no reputable newspaper will print an anonymous letter, which in its origins, this certainly was. The fact that an MSU student pointed out the article in Liberation does not remove its essential anonymity.

LETTERS

Furthermore, while no one could prove that an incident so anonymously reported really did not happen, the material within the letter creates a fairly strong circumstantial case against its own veracity.

I have belonged to several of the most professional combat units in the Army (including the Special Forces and the Paratroops) and have also worked in intelligence, so that it should be evident that I have some basis for my observations.

First, I have never encountered any policy or any officers that would condone actions of the type described in the letter. Secondly, if individuals so motivated did exist in positions of authority they would hardly commit their acts in front of a group of strange soldiers, but would take their victims to a hidden place.

Incidentally, military interrogators do not question their subjects in public. Consider the case of the officer who used unauthorized tear gas last month. If he was reprimanded, what would happen to an officer committing the kind of public tortures which the "letter" describes?

The officer would have more sense than to risk his career by such public acts. On this basis alone, the "soldier's letter" is unbelievable.

Thirdly, the soldier's assertion that he took the torture gadget and struck the interrogator with it is unbelievable for the following reason: The soldier would have been court-martialed or possibly shot immediately for this assault in the face of the enemy, and his letter clearly implies no such thing.

Also, Liberation asserts that the letter was written piecemeal by 20 men to avoid identification of the writer by handwriting analysis. If the event really occurred, the letter could easily be traced by examination of the contents.

Thus, the reason given for the very convenient anonymity does not hold water either.

If any doubters remain, I suggest they check a few copies of Liberation to determine its reliability as an information medium. Evidently, the whole letter is a vicious fake, and the State News has assisted in its perpetration.

War, Peace And LBJ

To the Editor:

The date was October 19, not April 1.

The byline was A.P., not Don Sockol.

It was a page one news story, not a humor column on the editorial page.

But here is what it said: "President Johnson, federal officials, and a dozen senators voiced concern Monday that antiwar and antidraft demonstrations across the country may undermine peace efforts in Southeast Asia."

Let's try it once more, paraphrasing this time: Johnson et al. are concerned that antiwar efforts might undermine peace efforts.

I'm confused. All along I have been thinking that peace was the absence of war. But apparently "peace" has a different meaning in The Great Society.

Let's Set An X-ample

To the Editor:

This letter is a complete agreement with James Kurlik's letter of Oct. 14, regarding the gross inconveniences of parking Lot X.

I would like to further add that I think it is time we students got off our "duffs" and quite complaining to each other and made our complaints heard in the right places. Letters and petitions are needed to make our desires known.

I think the results of an opinion poll would show that the majority of the residents of McDonel, Holmes, and Akers would prefer to have a parking lot in the field south of McDonel and west of Akers, rather than the IM Field proposed there. (Possibly both a parking lot and an IM field could be fit into the area bound by Shaw Lane, Bogue St., Wilson Rd. and Conrad Hall.)

We bring our cars to campus for the sake of convenience; we pay for this privilege; then, in a sense, we have this privilege taken away from us by having to park so far away that it is closer to walk to where ever we are going than to walk out to our cars.

Also, our cars are out where we can't keep an eye on them; thus they are targets for theft and vandalism. Lot X is out far enough that it doesn't get the adequate police protection that a lot closer to campus would.

It is time we stood up and pushed the issue in numbers so we can get something done before that long wintery walk becomes a reality.

An Observation On An Operation

(Or: Much Ado About Nothing)

By MIKE BROGAN

We are here on the third floor of Bethesda Naval Hospital awaiting President Johnson's emergence from his suite on an operating table that will be wheeled down the hall approximately 30 feet to the elevator that will carry him to the main floor. He will be wheeled approximately 50 feet to the operating room wherein a team of surgeons are waiting to remove his gall bladder.

Earlier this morning we were able to talk to Bill Moyers, the President's Press Secretary. Here are some excerpts from that interview via tape.

"Mr. Moyers, did the President spend a restful night, and what were his activities before he went to bed?"

"Well, the President called his younger daughter, Luci, long distance, and assured her that he was fine and that she need not leave her nurse's training after all, that the hospital is in fact well staffed and has no need for extra nurses. After that he and Mrs. Johnson rearranged some of the furniture in the suite. After that in experimenting with Jenison, we have tried three different seating arrangements and sound systems (for the two concerts last year and the one Saturday night), hoping to obtain the best possible conditions. We are fortunate to have even Jenison for our use, thanks to the generosity of Mr. Munn.

Finally, one can not criticize the talent unless he has an alternative method of financing such a program. Bigger names require bigger budgets.

As it is, ASMSU is taking a great financial risk of over $15,000. Hopefully with the passage of the increased student tax, we will be able to bring in "bigger" names.

Popular entertainment is not stagnant. It is, rather, steadily growing. I encourage students' suggestions, not just criticisms, but alternative solutions as to how we can provide a better show for all.

They Don't Make Laws Like They Used To

A letter was published in the State News Tuesday pertaining to demonstrators. It said, in part:

"If these 'intellectuals' know as much as the President then they are wasting their time at MSU. If they truly believe he is 'selling us down the drain' then they're wasting their time in this country."

For God's sake, somebody has finally had the courage to say it.

For years I have fought a lonely, unheard battle for the reinstatement of the Sedition Act of 1798. I was a small, but dedicated, group. Finally people are beginning to see the light.

The Sedition Act of 1798 was passed during another troubled time in our history. Thomas Jefferson and his band of radicals were viciously attacking the policies of none other than George Washington, John Adams and Alexander Hamilton.

As if George Washington didn't know what he was doing, Washington served his country in a very unstable period. So did Adams.

Washington specifically warned Americans against the dangers of factionalism and political parties. It opened the country to domination by foreign influences, he said. And how prophetic his warning was.

Jefferson and his "intellectuals" actually thought they knew better than the President. They believed the Federalists were "selling us down the drain."

The Sedition Act prescribed penalties of fine, and/or imprisonment for those who spoke maliciously against the government.

A Connecticut editor was imprisoned because he criticized the Army and the military policies of Congress. A New York editor wrote an uncomplimentary article about the President and was promptly imprisoned.

Imagine! They actually attacked the government at the very time we were virtually at war with Britain and France.

After two years, unfortunately, the act was repealed. The country managed to pull through, however--no thanks to Jefferson and his radicals.

Don't misunderstand me. I don't mean to compare Thomas Jefferson and the Anti-Federalists with modern-day protesters. The latter are certainly not as dangerous to the stability of their country as the former were in their time. But the principle is the same.

And never forget--the founding fathers built this country on principle.

ANTI-WAR--Howard Harrison, an East Lansing resident, distributes pamphlets in the Union Tuesday protesting the United States' involvement in Viet Nam. But an anti-anti sentiment is beginning to appear across campus (see next picture). Harrison is one of the three students arrested last week. Photo by Jonathan Zwickel

The Union's main lobby has been all but overwhelmed by causes in the last two weeks. First there was the Career Carnival which was picketed by students protesting U.S. policies in Viet Nam.

Next the Committee For Student Rights distributed its "Logos" in the lobby.

Now the Ad Hoc Committee to Support U.S. Policy in Southeast Asia is circulating petitions in the Union lobby supporting President Lyndon B. Johnson's Asian policies.

MSU students started signing the petitions supporting U.S. policy in Southeast Asia at 10 a.m. yesterday.

By 3 p.m. an estimated 3,500 students and faculty had signed copies of the petition in four main polling stations set up in the Union, Berkey Hall, Bessey Hall and the International Center.

A spokesman for the Ad Hoc Committee said other polling stations would be set up in all residence halls during the evening dinner hours.

In the "command post" set up in 327 Student Services, Robert Kolberg, committee coordinating chairman, said the four main polling stations will be manned from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday.

He said the Ad Hoc Committee was open to any campus organization that wanted to help.

William K. Webb, Detroit junior majoring in political science, kicked off the signing campaign at a 10 a.m. press conference in the Union lobby.

He said the committee hoped to see 15,000-20,000 names on the petitions by 4 p.m. Friday.

Webb told reporters that he believed the committee represented the true majority opinion held by the students and faculty of Michigan State University.

PROTEST THE PROTEST--With the rise of anti-war feelings on campus comes a counter movement in support of the United States' involvement in Viet Nam. Several petitions are now being circulated to get at least 15,000 signatures of students who support the President's policies. The petitions will be sent to President Johnson. ### LUCAS LEADS LINE CHARGE

Defense Takes Aim At Boilermakers

Harold Lucas, the Spartans' 6-2, 286-pound middle guard, was named United Press International's Lineman of the Week Wednesday for his part in throttling Ohio State's famed ground attack.

Lucas and the four other linemen who comprised State's rugged defensive line, have held MSU's first five opponents to a meager average of 60.2 yards on the ground.

But Lucas and his defensive pals have turned their attention to Saturday's date with Purdue.

Lucas and the rest of State's squad stormed through an intensive 1 1/2-hour practice session Wednesday afternoon.

"No mistakes now," cried assistant coach Dan Boisture, "It's Wednesday."

The defensive unit, which will face its toughest passing opposition of the season, has one major goal in sight -- nail Boilermaker quarterback Bob Griese.

Griese poses a dangerous threat both as a passer and field-goal kicker. Griese's primary targets are ends Jim Beirne and Bob Hadrick and halfbacks Jim Finley and Gordon Teter.

Hadrick, 6-2, 195-pound senior, was a 1964 All-America choice of the American Football Coaches Assn.

"They've got so many good ones," said coach Duffy Daugherty,

HAROLD LUCAS
(UPI Lineman of the Week)

"that we can't afford to double cover any one of them."
Jack Mollenkopf, Boilermaker head coach, knows he can't beat the Spartans with a passing game only.

Ohio State proved that. Mollenkopf is reaching into his defensive unit for John Kuzniewski, a 213-pounder, to back up halfback Teter and fullback Randy Minniear, Purdue's offensive starters.

Kuzniewski, as a sophomore, was Purdue's leading ground gainer, averaging 3.6 yards a carry as both a halfback and fullback.

Mollenkopf, in a wire story, called the Spartans "the best football team in the United States."

"Any team that can stop Ohio State's running and run over them (32-7) like the Spartans did must be the best in the U.S.," he said.

Making statements like that might be good strategy, in hopes of giving the Spartans undue confidence, but it didn't appear to affect Daugherty.

"We're facing a tough Purdue team, and we're all well aware of it," Daugherty said. "We've been improving every week and there hasn't been a let-down yet."

Dick Tiger, Giardello In Garden Title Fight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joey Giardello, one-time "Peck's Bad Boy" of the ring, remained the underdog Wednesday for his defense of the world middleweight title against muscular Dick Tiger of Nigeria tonight at Madison Square Garden.

The odds favoring Tiger, who lost the 160-pound crown to Giardello at Atlantic City, N.J., 22 months ago, remained firm at 8-5.

Giardello, the pride of south Philadelphia's Passyunk Avenue, was born and raised in Brooklyn. He hasn't fought in the Garden since 1954, being persona non grata in New York for most of that time because of what the state athletic commission termed "undesirable associates."

When Pal Joey was granted a new license by the commission this summer, he immediately agreed to stage his rematch against Tiger in the Garden.

It's been a long wait for Tiger, who still claimed he was "jobbed" at Atlantic City on Dec. 7, 1963, when referee Paul Cavalier, the only official, gave the fight--and the title--to Giardello on an 8-5-2 vote.

"I'm going to be fighting from the first bell this time and I hope to increase the pressure as the bout progresses," said Tiger. "I want that title back."

Giardello was just as insistent he would win the 15-round rematch, and he didn't give a hoot that the odds were against him.

In their last meeting, Giardello was a 3-1 underdog, yet he laughed at the odds, and Tiger, by keeping the Nigerian off balance and effective while employing alert counterpunching,

FALL BASEBALL PRACTICE ENDS

Spring Scoop--Sluggers Shaping Up

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

Football season is just half-spent, but if sports campaigns were identified by meteorological conditions, you'd never know it.

Michigan weather--as changeable as a woman's mind--it seems more likely that Old College Field would be the center of athletic attention.

As of last week it was. Fall baseball practice concluded for the Spartans last Friday, and Head Coach Danny Litwhiler was pleased with the early sessions showed.

"On the average, there were only about two times a week that we could work outside," he noted.

Fall baseball practice originated in 1953. It's designed to give the coaches a look at returning lettermen, junior college transfers and sophomores who've moved up from the frosh squad.

These drills allow players to demonstrate their skill in the outdoor diamond before it's decided as to who will make the annual trip South in March.

Schoendienst approved the trade of Boyer, saying "we hate to see a player of Ken's caliber go, because he has been great in his 11 years with the Cardinals."

"But we had a chance to get a man in Smith who is a power hitter and a good fielder and a fine starting pitcher in Jackson," said Schoendienst.

"We felt we couldn't pass it up," Schoendienst said. After hitting .295 with 119 runs batted in and 24 home runs in 1964, Boyer slumped to .260 this past season, had 75 runs batted in and 13 home runs.

Smith, younger by six years, hit .244 this past season for the Mets, had 62 runs batted in and 16 home runs, although he came to the plate 36 fewer times.

Smith, who lives in Sparks, Nev., also had the edge in doubles, 20 to 18, and triples, 3 to 2, and his slugging percentage was .393 to Boyer's .374.

Apartment Noises Vex City

By MARGIE MARSH
State News Staff Writer

Complaints from East Lansing residents about noise and crowded parking at student apartments are headaches for city officials.

Quiet supervised housing is the aspirin.

"I would certainly like to see more supervised housing," said G. Michael Conlisk, East Lansing planning director.

Judging from the lack of complaints the city receives about such supervised housing as co-ops, fraternities and sororities, he said that more supervised housing would be welcome.

Conlisk listed several problems with student apartments seen by the residents of East Lansing and the Planning Commission:

- Overcrowding of buildings and cars.
- Lack of open space and recreation area.
- Complaints from adjoining houses about noise from parties and cars leaving late at night and early in the morning.
- Part of the crowding problem stems from the recent boom in student apartment construction. Developments came so fast that the city has not been able to anticipate problems and keep city ordinances up to date.

More apartment units were built in East Lansing in 1963 and 1964 than all those built here before 1963, Conlisk said. Most of the new buildings were for students.

A city code establishing one parking space per bedroom went into effect in late 1963 for apartments built after that date.

The section of the city code governing the number of apartment units per acre sets a maximum of 43 for multiple unit dwellings. This compares with three to five units per acre for single family dwellings.

The Planning Commission is now restudying the sections of the city code covering parking, density and open space requirements to bring them up to date as soon as possible, Conlisk said.

The residents of East Lansing are concerned about the quality of apartment buildings, according to Mary Sharp, East Lansing councilman.

Construction of the buildings should adequately insure privacy between apartments to keep noise from carrying, she said.

There is a lot of concern about parking in areas not meant for it, Mrs. Sharp said.

The parking problem will start to correct itself, Conlisk said. Students will go first to apartments that offer ample parking.

Conlisk said he was enthused about some developers who have brought their site orientation plans to the City Planning Commission for approval before building. The commission reviews the plans, suggesting ways to make the site more pleasing in appearance.

Problems of student apartments can be minimized before construction starts, Conlisk said.

ASMSU Will Listen

Complaints about student apartments will be handled by the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) Off Campus Housing Commission.

Petitioning is now open for members. The commission will act as a clearing house for students with problems concerning off campus housing, said Chuck Stoddard, East Lansing junior and Student Board member at large.

Stoddard suggested the commission plan a booklet explaining the responsibilities involved in apartment living similar to booklets prepared by other Big Ten schools.

Petitions are available in the ASMSU office and should be returned in to Stoddard or 308 Student Services.

Three Buses To Be Added

The Board of Trustees approved a proposal Wednesday to purchase three new buses for on-campus service.

Treasurer Phillip J. May said he hopes the buses can be in use by winter term.

There are now 16 buses in the MSU campus fleet. Seven new and four used buses were purchased for the fall of 1964, and during the year, two more new buses were added. Three more were rented for last winter and again for this fall.

The new buses will cost $25,000 each and will be of the same General Motors Corp. model as its now in use.

May said that there are twice as many riders using the buses this fall as last. This is about the same amount as there was during last winter term when the heaviest loads were reported. He said about 6,000 full-ride and 1,000 commuter passes have been issued this fall.

The purpose of buying the buses at this time, he said, is to upgrade the existing equipment and to take off old equipment roads.

May said he did not know if there would be another surge in the number of riders this winter term, but the extra buses would be put to good use if this did happen.

Cal-Poly Gets MSU Ag Expert

California State Polytechnic College is finding the MSU campus a fertile recruiting ground for its top administrators.

Robert C. Kramer, director of agricultural marketing and utilization center and assistant director of the Cooperative Extension Service, has resigned effective No. 1.

Kramer will become vice president and administrator in charge of the Kellogg Campus of the California State Polytechnic College at Pomona, 39 miles east of Los Angeles.

KRAMER

Kramer is the third MSU professor to leave for that California institution. Within the last two years, Walter Schroeder, MSU professor of education, and Harold Hansen, professor of engineering, have been hired by Cal-Poly. Schroeder is in the education department there and Skamser is dean of their engineering division.

The college has two campuses, one at Pomona, built in 1957 on land given by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, and one at San Luis Obispo. With an enrollment of 5,000, the college will have 10,000 by 1971.

At MSU, Kramer was director of Agricultural Marketing and Utilization Center since it was organized in 1960. He has been leader for all marketing work in the Extension Service since 1958.

Coming to MSU in 1948, he was named assistant professor of agriculture in 1952, associate professor in 1953 and professor in 1956. He has been chairman of the North Central Regional Extension Marketing Committee since 1960 and chairman of the National Marketing Extension Committee.

Last April, he was named "Farm Marketing Man of the Year" by the Farm Marketing Seminar in Chicago. He has served as a member of the Faculty Committee on Athletics and the President's Committee on Tenure.

His most recent project was heading a training course for marketing officials from 18 European nations held in Newcastle, England. This was his fourth trip to Europe in three years in connection with the International Programs for Marketing authorities.

ACTING IS POOR

Film Features Good Opera

By BOB ZESCHIN

LA BOHEME

It would be very easy to praise "La Boheme", which has two remaining performances at the Campus Theatre, for there are a lot of good things in it. It would be equally easy to lambaste it, for the film also has a good share of faults.

The film of Puccini's opera is a combination of the very good and the very bad. Musically, it is outstanding--the singing and conducting are superb. It is also poorly directed, has bad sound, and features some of the worst acting on celluloid.

Opera buffs will contend that singers should only be concerned with producing beautiful music. Acting ability comes in handy but is not really necessary. If these are your standards, the film is worth seeing.

Principles Mirella Freni and Gianni Raimondi sang gloriously. Raimondi's ringing, mellow tenor and Miss Freni's sparkling soprano blended perfectly. Young and extremely talented, they are singers of great promise.

Unfortunately, neither of them could act their way out of Acting 243. For that matter, neither could anyone in the whole picture. Not a single one of them departed once from the traditional wave-your-arms-around school of operatic acting.

Franco Zeffirelli's staging was designed for the opera house, and the singers make too many unnecessary gestures. With the camera instead of an audience, a more intimate, less exaggerated approach would have been better.

But the film's worst offense is its ghastly sound. For some reason (probably high costs), the film was not made in stereophonic sound. The singers, chorus and civil rights march led by Dr. Martin Luther King ended.

Mrs. Luizzo was killed along a lonely stretch of U.S. Route 80, path of that march. The prosecution contends that Wilkins and two other Klansmen killed her with shots fired from another car.

Burgess testified routinely that he was called to the scene and arrived about 8:30 p.m.

An investigation of the car produced a "battered" .38 caliber bullet which he assumed to be the cause of death, the trooper said.

Hanes apparently hoped to use the trooper's testimony later in an effort to show that if the woman was shot by someone riding beside her, the body would naturally fall toward the window on the driver's side.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Joe Gant said the prosecution will press for a verdict of guilty of first-degree murder, a sentence that could send Wilkins to the electric chair or to prison for life.

Seek Jazz, Writing Talent

Awards totaling $1,000 and appearances on national television shows await the college students winning a documentary writing contest and a jazz contest.

WWJ-TV and radio are offering cash awards totaling $1,000 for a half-hour documentary written by a college student for either radio or television. Final date for submitting scripts is Feb. 25.

First award is $500, second, $300 and third, $200. The WWJ stations plan to produce and broadcast at least one of the award-winning scripts. The author will assist a WWJ staff producer in broadcasting the program.

Winners at the first annual Mobile Jazz Festival will appear on national television shows. Applications for the jazz contest, to be held April 2 and 3, can be obtained by writing Mobile Jazz Festival, P.O. Box 1098, Mobile, Ala.

Winners will be chosen in four categories: vocalists, instrumentalists, combos and bands.

Those entering the documentary contest must be regularly enrolled, full-time college students in the areas served by WWJ-Radio and TV, Detroit.

Entry forms are available from Documentary Writing Awards, the WWJ Stations, 622 Lafayette Boulevard, Detroit, Mich. 48231, Ala.

The documentary script must be written on an issue of local, national or international importance and must be thoroughly documented.

Judges in the documentary contest include Lou Hazam, producer of the 1962 Emmy Award-winning "Vincent Van Gogh: A Self-Portrait," Van Wolper, producer of "The Making of a President: 1960," and Donald B. Hyatt, director of special projects for NBC.

ABSURDITY FOR ITS OWN SAKE

Plotless Farce Sneers At Morality

OH, DAD! OH, DEAR!—Commodore Roseabove, played by J. Michael Bloom, tenderly places his arm around Mrs. Rosepettle, played by Ann Matesich, in a scene from the Performing Arts Company's production of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad." Photo by Ken Roberts

By ROGER LEAVENWORTH
State News Reviewer

The full title of Arthur Kopit's play sounds like a college student's joke played on an unsuspecting public—"Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad."

The play also has many elements of the college intelligence—such as the over-obvious moral lesson and absurdity for absurdity's sake.

And, probably, Kopit himself had no idea his short (two-hour) play would go as far as it did when he won a Harvard play-writing contest with it in 1960. From Harvard, it went to Broadway for 13 months and is currently one of the more popular offerings on the college-community theater circuit.

At Tuesday night's opening in Fairchild, MSU's Performing Arts Company did Kopit's mad comedy justice with only a few rough spots certain to be ironed out before the run is over.

There's really not much point in dwelling on the plot of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad" since what there is of one is totally absurd.

Briefly, though, Madame Rosepettle and her sheltered son Jonathan have come to stay in a hotel somewhere in the Caribbean. Traveling with them is the body of Mr. Rosepettle, a piranha fish that dotes on Siamese kittens and two snapping Venus fly-traps.

Jonathan, in his effort to break away from his mother's moral stranglehold, makes some semblance of a human contact with Rosalie, a little girl-woman living across the courtyard. Mrs. Rosepettle, too, snares a human—the romantic and bumbling Commodore Roseabove.

"Oh Dad, Poor Dad" is a perverse piece of work, a sneer at conventional morality. Both the comedy and serious parts of the play are saturated with a deadly acid of invective and spiritual torture.

Many times opening night, the audience was in doubt as to the "correct" places to laugh since the mood between black comedy and serious moralizing switches back and forth constantly.

Ann Matesich played Madame Rosepettle, a stage mother to end all stage mothers. Miss Matesich carries herself with the proper air of haughtiness and delivers her venomous lines with vigor. She slips only a few times throughout the play in completely sustaining the character but it would be hard to fault an actress here since Kopit has written one of the most demanding female roles in modern theater.

Anthony Heald plays the stuttering son, Jonathan, with an intensity of characterization rarely seen in University productions. At one point, when he is stammering and grasping at the air trying desperately to explain why he spies on airplanes flying overhead, Heald reaches the actor's goal of complete rapport between the character and his audience.

The opening scene of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad" is busy with characters and exposition, and much of the business on opening night failed to register properly. The timing in comedy is all-important and the first night's tempo in this scene was a trifle sloppy. Later performances should smooth this out, though.

Undoubtedly, many in the audience, thinking over the play afterward, will most likely echo Mme. Rosepettle's last belting line: "What is the meaning of all this?"

Kopit, presumably, meant this question to be answered by each viewer.

'Gut' Film Farce: Sex(?) & Suckers

DOWNTOWN ART

By DAVID HANSON
State News Reviewer

A 15-year-old kid with a bad case of acne covers in an entranceway as he and his fat buddy clutch their dollar bills and look up and down the "gut"—Washington Avenue.

Finally one punches the other and they head straight for the ticket window. They are in easy. The fat one grins as they enter the back of the theater and wheezes, "We got in!"

Lights out. The film track sputters and starts, then quits, and starts again. Coming attractions. Naked ladies. You don't dare miss it. See this one. Never before shown. Hollywood was afraid. They said it couldn't be done.

Feet shuffle. Some wino in the back clears his throat for the 20th time. A tattered old man nods and goes to sleep.

The feature starts. A guy comes down the aisle with a frizzy blonde and every head turns from the preliminaries up front to check her out. But back to the screen.

Up there a bunch of broads are pantomiming and trying to make it look like a movie and not an excuse to take off their clothes. Somehow they don't succeed in the first part. The second they manage like pros.

There is a narrator to tell us what is happening, but unfortunately, he thinks he is dubbing a travelogue. And maybe it is a travelogue. We travel from girl to girl and scene to scene without any real meaning or explanation.

You look around the theater and see people with looks of bored expectation. It's like they all know they're wasting time but don't have anything better to do.

Sometime during the first or second feature—there's always two—the athletes come in. Heading straight for their usual seats, they immediately get straight to the heart of what's going on in the film.

They see through the flimsy dialogue and read their own interpretation, throwing in choice comments for the dearest of their companions.

Viewing the "actresses", the muscled-ones see how really ugly they are and don't hesitate to belch their disapproval. They hush for those tender scenes and then boo when the censor's scissors cause a break in the action.

Though athletes have not been renowned for their mental prowess, they are able to see through the false front put up by the people who make these flicks. They know they're being made fun of and love it.

They know they're suckers. But they have to go somewhere for a good laugh and the Downtown Art has the best satires on reality in town.

It's like that man from the circus once said: "There's one born every minute."

Rare Is The Rich Artist

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

The student is an actor, an artist or a writer. He attends MSU four years and then tramps the country on summer stock, paints, or pounds the typewriter ten more years. He works at an ordinary job. He keeps training.

In fifteen years someone remembers his name and he takes another step up.

"The star who was discovered working as a car hop is rare," John Baldwin, professor of speech, said. "Actors get jobs because they have talent. They keep jobs because they discipline themselves and devote themselves to the theater."

"The chances of being a successful, well-paid painter are meager," James H. McConnell, professor of art, said.

"There are those artists who dream of getting a spread in Life, if that is any indication of success, and there are those artists who are driven to paint regardless of circumstances," he said.

The painter should be prepared to teach, he continued. It may be one of the few ways he can support his career.

Those students who work as industrial designers for an industry are well-paid, but the field is small and demands a peculiar imagination and feeling for design, Joseph Kuszal, assistant professor of art, said.

The universities are playing a more prominent role in making the arts a rewarding career. By offering teaching jobs to the talented, the universities give artists a steady income and students the opportunity to study under young artists.

The university market demands many more directors, designers and costumers, Baldwin said. Actors who have long relied on summer stock can now turn to teaching as well.

Many would-be actors do not have the discipline to reach the top, Baldwin said. The actor must practice like the musician and ideally he should practice voice, give up smoking and drinking to save his voice, and keep in top physical shape.

Knowing people important in the theater helps an actor or director advance simply because a producer or director finds it easier to work with someone known, he added.

Opportunities for the businessman are opening in the theater as well. Ford Foundation now manages an apprentice program to train business managers for theatrical shows and companies.

In industrial design, the designer makes it or he doesn't, Kuszal said. There is no holding in between. Those students who do not have the imagination to become industrial designers often enter industrial sales.

The industrial designer designs products to be produced and sold in mass. He combines the fields of art, engineering, psychology and business to turn out a product that will be easy to make and appealing to the mass.

In its emphasis on pleasing the mass industrial design differs from related art forms that strive to express the artist, Kuszal said.

$125,000 Will Finance Minor Building Changes

Minor alterations worth about $125,000 are underway on campus buildings in addition to major construction projects.

Work on the upper decks of Spartan Stadium this spring will cost $44,300 and will include sandblasting, priming and painting. Dalman Construction Co. of Grand Rapids was awarded the contract.

Division of Research offices will be moved from the fourth floor of Epley Center to the basement. A lounge and a machine room will be converted for the additional office space at a cost of $6,400.

Offices for the School for Advanced Graduate Studies in Owen Graduate Center will be altered to provide more office space at a cost of $2,975.

The Geology Museum will be moved from 154 Natural Science to provide additional office space for Richard U. Byerrum, dean of the College of Natural Science. This will cost $1,900.

About $1,150 has been allocated to install partitions for a cloak room and a bulletin board in the lobby of the Student Services Building for the Placement Bureau.

To cut down on poisonous fumes and vapors a door has been installed in between 106 Horticulture Building and an adjacent room. Also included in the $1,150 project is the installation of a door to prevent unauthorized personnel from coming into an area where radioactive isotopes are used.

Telephone and electrical outlets are being installed in 6, 7, and 14 Epley Center for $450 for the Bureau of Business and Economic Research. Audiovisual outlets are also being installed in 275 Giltner at a cost of $400.

Room 128 Music Practice Building will be converted from a practice room to a studio at a cost of $260. Additional faculty office space will be added to 4 and 4A Journalism Building for $260.

The kitchen in one of the Dairy Farm residences is being remodeled for $1,975 and $1,000 is being spent to alter 59A Kellogg Center to provide added office space for the Office of International Extension.

Group Action's Topic Is Law

Law enforcement will be the topic of discussion this weekend when the MSU Forensic squad hosts teams from 11 colleges and universities in a group action tournament.

Teams of four to six persons each will prepare papers on the topic and then defend their positions before a panel of judges.

The group action contest was originated by William Lashbrook, assistant professor of speech, in his master's thesis.

(UPI)--Campaigns pledging support of American involvement in Viet Nam and reassuring GI's overseas of home front loyalty mounted across the nation Wednesday.

Campus groups, veterans organizations, civic clubs and government officials rushed to counter the effect of last weekend's coast-coast round of anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations.

Many leaders of the pro-administration drives had harsh words for a beat-the-draft campaign sparked by Students for a Democratic Society, SDS, a Chicago-based organization that claims it has 10,000 persons in its "orbit."

A MSU student group pressed a campaign to get 20,000 signatures by Friday on a petition to President Lyndon B. Johnson assuring support of the U.S. policy to press the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

Students at Marycrest College, a Catholic girls school in Davenport, Iowa, voted, 512-31, to back American foreign policy; A school spokesman said 100 other Catholic colleges would be asked to approve the resolution.

Washington State University students conducted a blood donation campaign for GI's in Viet Nam.

Students at Rutgers College of South Jersey sought to "adopt" a 1,000-man U.S. combat unit to which the collegians would send token Christmas gifts. Villanova University students planned to send 20,000 Christmas greeting cards to servicemen in Viet Nam.

An American Legion chapter in New York suggested police deny parade permits to demonstrators and urged the FBI to step up its investigation of demonstration leaders. A Jewish war veterans member called draft card burners "irrational, misled young men."

Mayor Gerald Bates of Deep River, Iowa, a town of less than 400 persons, proclaimed Saturday a special flag day for "Americans to show their colors" and counter anti-war advocates who "gave anti and comfort to the enemy."

The Northwestern Pennsylvania mining community of Tionesta, which has lost several native sons in the Viet Nam fighting, flew American flags.

MISC.

The board approved these changes: David L. Olsson, from research associate to instructor, forest products, Oct. 1 to June 30; William B. Hawley, from coordinator to consultant, University of Nigeria Program, Nov. 1; Irving R. Wyeth, from associate coordinator to coordinator, Nigeria Program, Nov. 1; and Gwen Andrew, associate professor, from Social Science Research Bureau to Social Science Research Bureau and social work, Oct. 1 to June 30.

New designations were approved for: Alvin C. Gluek Jr., as associate professor of history in addition to assignments in the College of Arts and Letters and Continuing Education, Sept. 1; and Jan A.D. Zeevaert, as associate professor in the MSU/Atomic Energy Commission Plant Research Laboratory, botany and plant pathology and horticulture, July 1.

The board reinstated Ralph W. Nicholas, assistant professor of anthropology, effective Sept. 15; and Paul J. Hiniker, assistant professor of political science and communication effective Sept. 1. Both had been granted leaves from Sept. 1 to Aug. 31.

Pacifists Challenged By Marine

WASHINGTON P--The nation's top Marine challenged those who demonstrate against U.S. policy in Viet Nam to "prove their sincerity" by volunteering for Asian humanitarian programs in Southeast Asia.

"Let them prove themselves as good samaritans by crossing the road to lift up their brothers, to tend the sick, to feed the hungry, to clothe the naked, to shelter the homeless," said Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., the Marine Corps commandant.

"Let them do this first rather than pass by on the other side of the street with a placard on their shoulder, a song on their lips and hypocrisy in their hearts."

Greene discussed the recent wave of demonstrations--"the modern version of youthful protests" he called them--in a speech prepared for the Defense Supply Association's national convention Wednesday.

Describing the demonstrations as "this ranting and raving," Greene said:

"This youthful action is to be expected and while it must be kept within bounds, it also must be endured whether we like it or not."

The Marine chief said a handful of hard-core Communist card carriers among the student demonstrators "is well-known to the authorities."

He predicted that any effort by "this lunatic and dangerous fringe to create a real fire among the majority of our young people is bound to fail."

Greene indicated he is more concerned about the attitude and degree of understanding of U.S. policy among some of the elders of the young demonstrators.

"I am amazed, as I travel around the country, to see how many of these people do not realize what the stakes are," in Southeast Asia, Greene said.

World Law TV Contest

The need for a system of enforceable world law to eliminate war as a social institution is the topic of the World Law Television Script Contest. Sponsored by the World Law Fund and TV personalities such as Steve Allen and Dore Schary, awards for the best scripts will be cash prizes from $100 to $1,000.

The contest will be open to most college students. For information on contest rules contact Roderick Rightmire, Television-Radio Department, Journalism Building,

If everybody and his duck-billed platypus phones Long Distance at 9 P.M. Why don't you phone earlier--or later?

Like, say, anytime between 8 P.M. and 4:30 A.M. week nights, or anytime (day or night) on Sunday.

Those are the times when the lowest station-to-station Long Distance rates are in effect. They never get any lower!

By the way, station-to-station calls between points in Michigan always cost somewhat more when you call "Collect." But, you don't have to wait 'til 8 P.M. to phone because the lowest rates for "Collect" calls start at 6 P.M. week nights. And they are also in effect every weekend--all day Saturday and Sunday.

So avoid the rush. There's plenty of time to call Long Distance and still get the lowest rates. Long Distance is the next best thing to being there.

--International ID card allowing students a break on expenses in Europe and elsewhere. Johnson noted that about 300 ID cards were sold at MSU last year at a cost of $2 per card. Cost per card for students at non-member schools is $4, going up soon to $5, he said. Sink said that only one per cent of the MSU student body took advantage of the ID card.

formation service providing a library of material on student government issues such as housing problems, parking problems and judiciary procedure.

Andy Kramer, president of the IFC, felt that NSA's programs for the individual student, such as insurance, duplicated programs already offered or in the planning stages by ASMSU.

Chairman of the Board, John McQuitty gave strong support to NSA's programs. He said that in the past MSU hadn't taken full advantage of these programs and on that basis, should not make any judgements about the worth of NSA's services.

Besides contending that NSA's programs are not beneficial for MSU, Sink objected to "pouring thousands of dollars into NSA" for merely "promises and guarantees."

Member-at-large Graham noted that NSA's national dues were $198, and its regional dues, $79.20, and adding that to convention expenses for two years, the total amount spent on NSA didn't exceed $2,000.

Sen. Philip J. Hart, Dean Rusk and Gov. William Scranton.

NSA representatives, he said, are the only students asked to sit on such national councils as the American Council on Education, the National Education Assn., Association for Higher Education, National Scholarship Service, U.S. Youth Council, U.S. Commission for UNESCO, and the American Association of University Professors.
