$1 MILLION FOR MSU STUDENTS

15,000 TICKETS ALLOCATED

Bowl Balloting Nov. 20

Final commitments concerning Rose Bowl arrangements cannot be made until the wind-up of the conference season and the balloting among Big Ten athletic directors has been completed.

John A. Fuzak, vice president for student affairs and State's faculty representative to the Big Ten, said that work has begun in screening various possibilities concerning the trip, but nothing definite can be determined until the votes are in.

At the close of the final conference game, Big Ten athletic directors will submit ballots as to whom they feel should represent the conference. Announcement of the representative will be made either that night, Saturday, Nov. 20, or the following morning.

All that remains then is for the Athletic Council to vote acceptance of the invitation and notify the commissioner.

A total allocation of approximately 17,000 tickets will be available. Of that number, a certain allotment must be, according to Big Ten rules, distributed to other conference schools, the Big Ten office and the official party.

A remainder of 15,000 is expected. Bill Beardsley, ticket manager, said that students and faculty will get first priority of those seats.

Tickets will be included in an official tour sponsored by the University, consisting of round-trip transportation to Pasadena, hotel accommodations, meals, transportation to the Rose Parade and game, and perhaps several entertainment attractions.

Costs will vary depending on the method employed, but it is expected that planes, trains and buses may be used. Fuzak gave $215 as a rough estimate for plane travel, citing train and bus transportation as slightly less, although their rates will not include meals.

Bill Signed At LBJ's Old School

May Replace NDEA Program

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (F)—President Johnson signed a $2.6-billion education bill at his old college here Monday and said it will help a million more students go to college each year.

Johnson said scholarships, federally financed part-time jobs and interest-free loans will benefit those who otherwise might not be able to go to college.

He said the scholarships will go to 140,000 students next year. Johnson signed the legislation in the gymnasium of Southwest Texas State College where he got his degree in 1930.

A heavy rain with high winds washed out plans for an outdoor ceremony.

Johnson, who once was a school dropout - briefly - gave this assessment of the new law:

"It means that a high school senior anywhere in this country can apply to any college or university in the U.S. -- and not be turned away because his family is poor."

A key feature of the law he signed will provide federally-financed scholarships for the needy.

Johnson flew to San Marcos by helicopter from his ranch near Johnson City, 40 miles away. His first stop was at the Gary Job Corps Camp on the outskirts.

A presidential question-and-answer session with Isaac Dillon, a young Negro from Bogalusa, La., was typical.

After Dillon said he was getting a lot out of his training, Johnson asked: "Are you willing to pay taxes to support it when you get out and go to work?"

"Yes, sir," said Dillon. Why then, asked Johnson, have a goodly number of trainees dropped out of camps across the country.

Arts And Letters Cancels Classes

Classes in the College of Arts and Letters have been cancelled today so that students may see their advisers to plan winter term programs.

Paul A. Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, said that all students except first term freshmen may meet with their advisers at this time.

Pub Board Approval Scorned By Zeitgeist

By DAVID HANSON State News Staff Writer

Zeitgeist, the off-campus literary magazine, decided not to seek approval by the Student Board of Publications last Thursday because "We didn't want to become typical of those publications which are approved," said faculty adviser William Groat.

Groat and Zeitgeist editor Michael Williams met with the board last week to seek the approval to sell the magazine on campus.

After some discussion, Groat was asked if Zeitgeist were seeking approval at the present time and Groat said no. "We felt it was too dangerous for the survival of Zeitgeist to get approved by a board without clear lines of authority," he said.

Frank Senger, chairman of the "pub board" and chairman of the School of Journalism, said Monday that the duties of the board are definite.

"We must determine whether the publication is financially responsible--whether it will pay its bills, and check on the rates and contracts they use in their advertising," he said.

"We attempt to establish a continuity through the appointment of editors and advisers. "And I think that another important function is just the fact that we approve publications. Businessmen always want to know if a publication is approved before they consider placing ads. Approval carries prestige," he said.

Senger conceded that the lines of authority in distribution on campus are not clear. "But it is not the job of the pub board to rule on distribution," he said.

The board is made up of Senger, three faculty members, three faculty representatives and three students.

Groat, an ATL instructor, said that he felt the board practiced a form of censorship in choosing the student members because they cannot be in editorial positions on student publications.

"A few years ago the editors of Wolverine and the State News sat on the board along with one other appointed student," Senger said.

"This was changed because they seemed to be passing on their successors. If the editor didn't like you, you didn't take his place," he said.

3 Students Named To Pub Board

Three vacancies on the Student Board of Publications were filled Monday when it was announced that two sophomores and a junior have been named to two-year terms.

Art Tung, Midland sophomore in pre-med, Beverly Lynn Hall, Jackson junior in English and Dirck Terwilliger, Lansing sophomore in journalism, will take the places of the three student members of the board whose terms ended spring term.

Tung has been the editor of the Northeast Complex magazine "Impulse" and a staff photographer for Wolverine.

Miss Hall worked on the State News, Union Board, International Club and the Student-Faculty Committee on Social Affairs.

Terwilliger applied to the board for membership last spring. Tung gave up his editorship of "Impulse" to accept the board position because of the rule that members may not be in editorial positions on campus publications.

Huge Loan Total In Education Act

Banks, State Agency To Administer Program

By JOAN SOLOMON State News Staff Writer

Up to $1 million in additional loans may be available to MSU students as a result of the $2.6 billion Higher Education Act signed Monday by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

"This new bill could very well become the No. 1 loan program here, eventually replacing the National Defense Educational Assistance (NDEA) program," said Henry Dykema, director of financial aids.

Dykema recently attended a meeting of midwest financial aid administrators at Ohio State University, where officials from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) explained provisions of the act.

The new bill offers two separate programs of importance to students, Dykema said.

The first is a program of government-guaranteed, interest-free loans operating through state banks.

Each state will be required to designate an agency to administer the program within the state. "In Michigan, this agency will probably be the Michigan Higher Education Authority," Dykema said.

The authority currently administers a state loan program in cooperation with Michigan banks.

Dykema said the act will probably encourage the establishment of such state loan programs in states that do not now have them.

The federal government will allocate credit to the states, against which the university can draw.

"The idea behind this program," Dykema explained, "is that the government will help guarantee loans by banks and will pay the interest on the loan while the student is still in school."

When a student leaves school, he pays only three per cent interest, he added.

Banks supplying collateral may decide whether or not they want to participate in the loan program and the extent of participation.

"Banks are often unwilling to participate in such loan programs," Dykema said, "because they can make more money from the interest on an auto loan than they can from a student loan."

The second program under the new bill is related to the government's war on poverty.

It is a grant program which provides a minimum of $200 and a maximum of $800 per year and which does require the university to put up matching funds.

"The government is encouraging university administrators to go into the high schools and find students of college ability who are not considering applying because they lack funds," Dykema said.

"We will tell them that if they can make it to a university, and stay in, the government will provide the funds."

A $200 bonus is awarded if a student is in the upper half of his class, Dykema said. He emphasized, however, that the grant plan is not based on scholarship.

"Students are required only to maintain the standard set by the university, which at MSU is a 2.0," he said.

The fact that the bill was set up for only three years could

Schiff Faces Faculty At 7

A hearing between Paul M. Schiff and the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs will be held in the Heritage Room of Kellogg Center at 7 tonight.

The closed meeting will consider Schiff's charges that the University denied him re-admission last spring.

This is the third and last step in procedures set down by District Court Judges in Grand Rapids Oct. 14. If no agreement is reached, the matter may return to court, which retained jurisdiction over the matter for 90 days.

70 Feared Dead In Plane Crash

CINCINNATI, Ohio, (AP)--An American Airlines jetliner crashed in northern Kentucky Monday night. Early reports estimated at least 70 persons were killed.

at least five survivors. The plane, American's flight 383 from New York, crashed on a hillside in a rainstorm near Constance, Ky., about 1-1/2 miles from the Greater Cincinnati Airport.

Deadlock On Rhodesia

LONDON (F)--Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia told Prime Minister Harold Wilson Monday night that independence talks are back where they started. He refused to consider re-opening negotiations on any terms offered so far.

The deadlock contains the built-in threat that white-governed Rhodesia is determined to break from Britain, declare its independence, and take its chances on economic survival.

The Rhodesian leader, Ian Smith, is in Salisbury, where in effect he rejected Wilson's proposal for a new meeting on the island of Malta in search of agreement.

Asked if he would be going to Malta, Smith told newsmen:

"There wouldn't be much point, would there?"

What he meant was more clearly spelled out in his letter to Wilson made public in London. Smith put the blame on Wilson.

He said the British demanded that a royal commission to determine the views of the 225,000 whites and the 3.8 million largely voteless blacks in Rhodesia on independence. The commission would consist of a Briton and two Rhodesians. He also complained that Wilson refused to give the blacks a fair hearing of their commission.

The battle basically is over what voting rights and political power the Africans would have in the colony. Britain wants the Africans ultimately to rule.

WASHINGTON (UPI)--The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide this session whether "Fanny Hill," the racy 18th century novel about a prostitute, is obscene.

Little Miss Muffet Would Flip Her Tuffet

Getting through a meal of curds and wheys, ala wee Miss Muffet, might be something of a problem in five Northern Michigan counties.

The five counties -- Grand Travers, Kalkaska, Wexford, Crawford and Otsego -- have enough Black Widow spiders to make anyone frantic.

Large numbers of poisonous Black Widows have been found in many plantations by Louis Wilson, forest entomologist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. "We don't know why they're so plentiful," he said, "but we don't advise anyone to go around picking up old fence posts or handling pruned pine trees with their bare hands."

Generally, said Wilson, Black Widows are not dangerous unless they come in direct contact with soft skin. Their fangs cannot penetrate most clothing or even a calloused hand.

"The Black Widow is shy, sedentary and does most of its web-building at night," explained Wilson. "It rarely leaves the web and feels out of its element when not in contact with web threads."

"The male moves about more than the female, but males have never been known to bite."

"The female, however, has a deadly bite--15 times more venomous, on a dry weight basis, than a rattlesnake. But the Black Widow injects such a small amount of venom that only 55 persons have died out of the 1,300 cases reported from 1726-1943. On the other hand, rattlesnakes inject so much more venom that five per cent of their victims die each year."

Wilson has been uncovering Black Widows while working in cooperation with Michigan State University and the Michigan Conservation Department to control the pine root collar weevil, an insect which kills red, Scotch and Jack pines. In one instance he found Black Widows on seven out of the first ten trees he checked in a pine plantation near Williamsburg.

"The Black Widows we've been finding seem to be of a variety not usually seen this far north," he said. "Some of the adult females are dark brown instead of black. They have an abdomen about 5/16-inch in diameter with two red triangles on the underside and, usually, red marking on their backs."

"The younger spiders are usually brightly colored with red, yellow or white spots or bands. The adult male usually retains most of these markings."

"If you're bitten by a Black Widow," said Wilson, "call a doctor as soon as possible. He'll usually inject calcium chloride or gluconate for a remedy. Serums or antitoxins may also be used."

The Black Widow gets its name from the popular, but erroneous, belief that the female invariably kills the male after mating.

"While Black Widows are timid and not prone to biting except in defense, definite precautions should be taken to prevent bites," Wilson contended. "These would include avoiding natural habitats, particularly dark places beneath fence posts or pruned tree branches. Gloves should be worn while working in these areas, and bedding should be examined for spiders."

The symptoms of a Black Widow's bite are readily identified. Pain from the bite is rather trivial--like a needle prick.

E. Lansing Bond Issue Vote Today

East Lansing voters will decide today on two East Lansing School District bond issues.

An estimated 9,000 residents are eligible to vote on a $6.7 million general education facilities bond and a $615,000 bond to construct two swimming pools.

The bond elections are set up so that if the swimming pool issue passes and the facilities bond fails neither issue will be passed, however, if the facilities bond passes it will stay passed even if the swimming pools fail.

Registered voters who have assessable property on current tax rolls and their spouses are eligible.

Polling places opened at 7 a.m. and will close at 8 p.m.

The pain moves gradually from the wound to other parts of the body and finally concentrates in the victim's abdomen and legs. The pain becomes intense and is accompanied by fainting, dizziness, tremors, shock and loss of the venom on the nerve centers. Consuming alcoholic beverages either before or after being bitten accelerates the action of the venom and can be extremely harmful.

"Black Widows don't make a habit of looking for people to bite, and their bites are seldom fatal," he concluded. "But that doesn't mean you should invite trouble by antagonizing them or being careless while they are around."

FEDERAL STOCKPILE RELEASED

Aluminum Controversy Gets Hotter

WASHINGTON (AP)--The aluminum controversy grew hotter Monday with industry spokesmen defending their price increase and Democratic congressional leaders attacking it as inflationary.

L.E. Hickman, executive vice president of the Aluminum Company of America, said Alcoa has no intention of cancelling its one-half-cent-a-pound price increase but he added:

"Every price increase must be tested in the market place."

In a flurry of statements from Democrats, party leaders of the House and Senate lined up behind the Johnson administration's decision to release 200,000 tons of stockpiled aluminum and most of them endorsed the administration contention that the boost is inflationary.

A young Republican leader, on the other hand, accused President Johnson of "blatantly blackmailing" the aluminum companies in an effort to control prices in all industry.

State Sen. Tom R. Van Sickle of Kansas, chairman of the Young Republican National Federation, said the President "is now plunging his powerful hands into the pockets of private industry."

In announcing the government's decision to dispose of the 200,000 tons, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler have insisted that the move was not prompted by the industry price boosts.

McNamara acknowledged, however, that the government sales are "bound to relieve some of the pressure on prices."

House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts and other Democratic leaders cited defense needs and the war in Viet Nam as reasons for holding the price line.

"There is a serious moral issue here," McCormack said in a statement.

ONCE HAD DOUBTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Pass-Snatcher Washington Catches Record

By RICK PIANIN
State News Staff Writer

It was a quiet, almost sedate Monday afternoon in the Spartan locker room. A weekend of celebration made way for the serious business of football practice.

Spartan end Gene Washington sat on a bench in a corner of the room, carefully wrapping long strips of tape around his ankles for support, while discussing his career at MSU.

Last Saturday, Washington, a junior, surpassed by two Spartan Bob Carey's career record of 65 pass receptions set in 1951.

"You know, I used to think that I was too small to play for MSU," he said. "During high school, I got this image of how big the Big Ten players were, from watching TV and didn't think I had the size to compete with them."

Washington, who graduated from George Washington Carver high school in Baytown, Texas, stood 6-2, 200 pounds when he joined State's freshman squad. He has gained an inch and added 15 pounds since then.

"I always wanted to play in the Big Ten," he continued. "I played against Bubba (Smith) in high school, and his father, who was a coach and scout for State, spotted me," he said.

Dan Boisture, Spartan assistant offensive coach, also figured in Washington's decision to play for State.

Wisconsin and several other smaller schools, including Texas State, West Texas, Oklahoma State and Colorado all offered him scholarships, but none were as attractive to him as State's.

Washington said he received more offers for track and basketball scholarships than for football. As a prep, he played offensive end during his junior year, and captured the state championship. He played quarterback in his senior year.

"Blocking is probably the most difficult part of playing end," he explained. "If you're small, you've got problems."

"The toughest defensive end I've ever come up against was that No. 88 on Iowa's team (David Long). He's about as tough as (Bill) Yearby of Michigan."

Spartan defensive end Bob Viney suddenly stroled into the room and poked his smiling face into the conversation.

"Oh, wait a minute," chuckled Washington. "I forgot to mention Viney. He's just got to be the toughest man I faced during my freshmen year."

The discussion soon turned to State's phenomenal success this season.

"We've got a lot of balance this year," Washington said. "In the games we lost last year we had to pass alot. This year we've got good running power and a fine defense."

"The overall equal balance of the team is more important than any one individual player," he said.

Head Coach Duffy Daugherty said his team's success is due mostly to its enthusiasm and "intensity." Washington had a slightly different explanation.

"Last season, the team did real bad and lost most of its games," he said. "Most of the guys on this year's team played last year and they know how crummy it feels to be a loser. "We just can't lose now," he said.

Washington concedes that a possible trip to the Rose Bowl excites him and often disrupts his studies. He has no delusions, however, about his success or stature.

"I've lived with this athletic 'fame' most of my life and I've gotten use to being sort of 'on display' in classrooms," he said. "Some people get a fat head about how good they are, but maybe they're not as good as they think."

"I've never been satisfied with my performances. I just try to help the team any way I can."

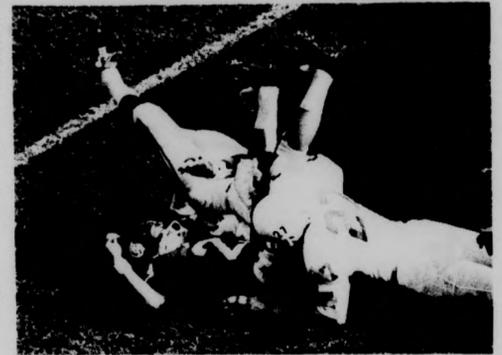

SITTING PRETTY--Gene Washington, now the king of MSU receivers, sits atop his throne. Gene earned his title by surpassing Bob Carey's career pass-catching record of 65. The Texan junior has caught 67 passes so far and should add to his varsity record before his career ends.

The Making Of . . .

. . . An All-American

the Sporting Game

Punch & Juday

By LARRY MOGG
State News Sports Editor

Anybody who has watched Steve Juday perform on the gridiron can tell you that he ain't no fancy-dan. The standard remark most often ho-hummed his way is an "well, he gets the job done anyway."

Steve Juday will never be a fancy-dan. He'll never be offered $400,000 to throw the pigskin around with the professional boys. In fact, many doubt that he will even be drafted by the pros. They say he is too small to make a pro quarterback, and they are probably right.

Steve Juday was stereotyped as "nothing special" by State football fans from the time his first college pass was batted back into his face in 1963.

He tried to prove himself that year. Under his leadership as a sophomore, the Spartans only lost one game. But he was hurt midway through the season, and a conference title that seemed so near, slipped away.

You didn't find too many fans saying, "well, we might have won it, if it hadn't been for Juday breaking his shoulder."

The Spartans were miserable in 1964, but Steve Juday was even more miserable. For the first time in his life he experienced losing. Juday was on target with his passes (79 completed in 148 attempts for 894 yards and 10 touchdowns), but the team lost more games than it won. The cool atmosphere between Juday and the fans didn't improve.

The Spartans have been unbeatable this season, but it has been Clint Jones, Bob Apisa and the staunch defensive unit which have been credited for State's success. Overlooked again has been one Steve Juday. Oh, he's all right. But boy can Apisa and Jones hit.

Duffy Daugherty hums a different tune whenever he is coaxed into talking about Juday.

"The whole squad and all the coaches have the utmost confidence in Steve Juday," said Daugherty. "He does a masterful job of utilizing our offensive weapons."

"We have had quite a few quarterbacks who made All-American (Earl Morrill, Al Dorow, Jim Ninowski, Dean Look), but Juday has broken all their records," Daugherty continued. "I've said

Harriers Falter As Wildcats Nab Big Ten Title

Sharkey Sparks 'S' For Second Honors

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—It was the same old script for Michigan State's cross-country team here Monday morning in the 51st running of the Big Ten championship meet.

The Spartans jammed four runners into the first 11 finishers, but the all-important fifth man was at the tail end of the pack.

For the second straight year the harriers had to settle for the runner-up spot, this time behind surprising Northwestern.

The Wildcats had the low total of 40 points, while State garnered 65. As was the case during the dual-meet season, Coach Fran Dittrich's team failed to come up with a strong fifth runner. Spartans finished in third, sixth, eighth and 11th places.

Lee Assenheimer of the 'Cats retained his individual title with a lightning time of 20 minutes and 5.2 seconds on the Minnesota four-mile course. His time set a new course record.

Minnesota, the pre-meet favorite, finished a disappointing third with an 82-point total.

Wisconsin, who was the last team to finish with a score under 100 points, had 94 for fourth place. Next in order were: Iowa, fifth, 107; Ohio State, sixth, 132 points; Illinois, seventh, 154; and Indiana last with 179 points.

Despite a 26-mile-an-hour gale and temperatures in the low 30s, the Northwestern harriers had a fairly easy time gaining their first Big Ten championship since entering the league meet six years ago.

Coach Bob Erhardt's runners, gigantic in size in comparison to the other teams' individuals, had less difficulty in resisting the strong wind than their smaller competitors.

Northwestern finished four of its six distance men in the top 10, including Assenheimer, the top finisher, and a second by sophomore John Duffield. It also took the fifth, ninth and twenty-third spots.

DICK SHARKEY

Big Ten

The best performance by a Michigan State runner was turned in by Dick Sharkey. A second-place finalist as a sophomore in 1963 before taking absence from last year's meet with a knee injury, the Detroit Redford prep star finished third with a time of 20:10.0, five seconds slower than Assenheimer's record-breaking time.

Following Sharkey for State was senior Captain Paul McCollam, who kept up with the front runners for three miles but tired in the end and settled for sixth with a time of 20:28.

The Spartans eighth-place finisher was junior George Balthrop. A native of Virginia, Balthrop ran his best race of the season, recording a time of 20:33.

The only other Green and White runner to cross the finish line under 21 minutes was sophomore Art Link in 11th place.

it from the beginning of the season and I'll say it again, I wouldn't trade him for anybody in the nation."

"He's not so much interested in making an All-American, as he is keeping the team winning. Heck, if he wanted to just throw touchdowns, look at all the times down on the goal line he could have thrown some of those short bootleg passes."

Duffy didn't let up. "He's absolutely the boss out there on the field. He won't tolerate any interference with his running the team. He always thinks of the team first."

"If you want an insight into the character of Steve Juday, here is what kind of guy he is," said Duffy. "He came up to me at halftime of the Iowa game and told me that a run off the bootleg pass play would certainly work in the second half. But he wanted me to send in Jimmie Rave because he could run better. I asked him why didn't he run it, because he was a pretty fair runner too. He just said, 'He's a great quarterback, he could do the job better.'"

"You don't have to tell me that he's an All-American," Duffy said. "He's a great quarterback."

If winning is the sign of an All-American quarterback, Steve Juday is one twice-over. More than anything he likes to win.

PAUL McCOLLAM

6th Place

Big Ten

Keith Coates, the team's fifth man, was in 37th place, followed by senior Paul Bryan in the 43rd spot.

Minnesota, rated along with State to take the conference crown, was considerably hampered by the loss of the full-time services of Tom Heinonen. Injured two weeks ago, Heinonen limped his way to 18th place.

The Gophers did exhibit the team balance which was deemed the best in the conference, but it came with five of its six runners placing between 12th and 20th positions.

Wisconsin had two runners in the top 10, Bruce Frazer, fourth, and Ken Latigoal, 10th.

Ohio State's best runner, Dave Smith, finished seventh, while Minnesota, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa failed to finish men in the first 10 places.

State's Head Coach Fran Dittrich did not rely on any excuses for his team's failure to win the title.

"Northwestern just withstood the wind better than we did," he said. "Sharkey was really tired when he finished."

"We were depending on our No. 5 man," he continued, "but he didn't come through for us."

Rugby Club Whitewashed

The Michigan State rugby club faded out of the picture in the Ontario-Michigan League championship race after suffering an 11-0 whitewashing at the hands of Windsor City Saturday afternoon.

The loss squelched any hopes of a title berth for the Spartans, who were leading the league previously.

COLTS' NFL LEAD IN DANGER

Johnny U. Aggravates Back Injury

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Johnny Unitas was under treatment Monday for a back injury that could leave the Baltimore Colts without their ace quarterback just when they finally gained the Western Division lead in the National Football League.

Unitas aggravated a muscle pull in practice last Thursday and suffered a back spasm Sunday as he successfully barged into the line for a key first down in Baltimore's 26-21 victory over the Chicago Bears.

The 10-year veteran of the pro wars will receive further treatment from the club's medical staff Tuesday and will try to throw during Wednesday's practice session.

Colt Coach Don Shula probably will not make a decision on Unitas' availability for next Sunday's game at Minnesota until Thursday or Friday.

The Colts' dressing room Monday looked like check-up time at a dispensary. Safetyman Wendell Harris, tackle Guy Reese and fullback Tony Lorick suffered minor injuries in the Chicago game, but are expected to see action against the Vikings.

Veteran linebacker Don Shinnick, however, will be sidelined for five weeks with a fractured right forearm.

In addition to taking over first place, the other bright spot of the day in Chicago was the performance of young Gary Cuozzo, who has to have the most awesome job in pro football as a backstop to Unitas.

"I'm very proud of Gary. He made very few mistakes," said Shula.

AFTER 2500 YEARS

Parthenon Suffers Ravages Of Modern Industrial World

ATHENS 4--The Parthenon, symbol of Greece's glorious history, is sick. Cause: air pollution, airliners and women's high heels.

Archaeologists examining the 2,500-year-old monuments on the Acropolis above Athens discovered the white pentelic marble of the Parthenon temple is affected by the growing industrialization around the Greek capital.

A high degree of air pollution is causing corrosion of the honey-colored marble from which ancient Greeks constructed the Parthenon to the glory of the goddess Athena.

Another danger, a private study of Athens architects and engineers found, are the jet planes using Athens Airport, eight miles away. Though it is illegal to fly near the Acropolis, visitors to the famous rock claim they can feel slight vibrations from passing jet airliners.

The study also discovered that women's high heels are chipping away the Parthenon temple's flooring.

Several measures have been proposed. One is to follow the example of the Louvre in Paris, which admits only persons in low heels or sandals, or close the Parthenon temple--but not the Acropolis--to visitors.

A German archeologist, Dr. Ernst Langlotz of Bonn University, says the Parthenon is suffering from another, more serious ailment, sea breezes. He reported the marble columns of the Parthenon that face the sea three miles away have been badly corroded.

He proposed several measures to the Greek government to preserve the 46 outer columns. A short-term measure would be to spray the marble with a special chemical. The long-term approach, which is being considered by the government, is to enclose the Parthenon temple in a glass or plastic case.

The case should be glitter-proof, smear-proof and easily washable. Air circulating through the case would be filtered, and traces of humidity and industrial pollution would be removed by filters.

The government has taken no action, presumably because of lack of money. A popular Greek magazine has proposed making a worldwide appeal for funds.

The monuments on the Acropolis have withstood sieges in ancient times. Barricades were erected on the Acropolis during the Greek war for independence in 1821. British paratroopers set up a battery of guns in the Parthenon's thick columns at the time of a Communist uprising in 1944.

High Cost In Time, Money Concerns Many Rushees

By MARY ULLRICH State News Staff Writer

Cost in time as well as money concerns many rushees, who want to know just how Greek fees stack up against the amount currently paid for residence hall housing.

The active sorority member can expect to pay approximately $50 more per term than she did while living in a dormitory. The same figure for fraternity members runs about $100.

Although sororities usually do not charge more for room and board than the flat $275 rate standard to the University, fraternities assess anywhere from a low of $190 to a high of $315 per term, with the average fee about $265.

Social taxes are not adopted by all 21 sororities, but the 13 houses which do have this fee charge an average of $12 per term.

The same fee for fraternities runs from a low of $10 to a high of $85, with the average tax approximately $35.

Pledge fees for sororities average about $20, with the same figure holding true for fraternities. However, the amount charged at sorority initiation ranges from $40 to $120, with the average cost running about $60. The fraternity average in the same category runs about $120.

Many fraternities include in their initiation fees the cost of their pins and subscription to the chapter's national magazines, as well as individual dues to their national organizations.

Sixteen sororities charge separately for their pins, which may be purchased in several price ranges. Minimum cost for a standard badge averages $10.

In many cases, the active member must contribute a set amount to the chapter's building fund by the time of graduation, although there is wide variation in individual house policies.

Sorority dues run from a low of $9 to a high of $25 per term, with the average figure about $25. Fraternities charge approximately the same amounts.

The unaffiliated student has much more free time than the average fraternity or sorority member.

Weekly chapter meetings and house meetings take up at least one evening per week, while house duties, phone duties and related obligations also command a percentage of the student's free time.

Not Enough Is Known Of Goals -- Hibbard

By MARGIE MARSH State News Staff Writer

"Too many people know too little about the goals and operations of fraternities," said George Hibbard, Inter-fraternity Council adviser.

Fraternities should inform others about their organization and operation, Hibbard said. "Many undergraduate fraternity men see little relation between the idealistic purposes of fraternities and the day to day progress of their chapters," Hibbard said as a result of his partially completed survey of national fraternity officers.

Fraternities will have to face challenges of making their programs meaningful in the future, Hibbard said. As universities experience an accelerated rate of growth and change in structure because of that growth, fraternities will have to adjust their programs, Hibbard said.

Hibbard stressed two areas which fraternities will have to consider in the near future: academics and housing.

"The anti-intellectual concept of a fraternity is a thing of the past," Hibbard said.

Fraternities are in, but not a part of, the university, he said. By sponsoring speakers of an academic nature, fraternities could become more a part of the university.

Hibbard would like to see a "pulling together of fraternities and sororities" to sponsor cultural events for the entire campus. By establishing their "academic identity" Hibbard feels fraternities can broaden their appeal from undergraduate to graduate students.

By pledging graduate students, fraternities may be able to solve their problem of loss of senior membership, he said.

Seniors move out of the house and into apartments, and present some problems of keeping the house full, Hibbard said.

A possible solution to the problem of keeping the houses full is to pledge and initiate students on the same term's grades so they are eligible to move into the house sooner, Hibbard said.

During the past 15 years there has been a greater total expansion of fraternity chapters across the country, than in all the years previous to 1950, Hibbard said.

The expansion is due to increased enrollment and colonization of chapters at such schools as Ferris State, General Motors Institute and teachers' colleges, Hibbard said.

Long History Behind --Long Trip Ahead

Many students have visited the Delta Upsilon fraternity house in search of the history behind the victory bell.

The answer lies in a tradition that dates back to 1956 when the brothers thought it high time to stop the ringing of cow bells to mark the points and replace one large loud bell for the same purpose.

DU's first bell rang for a number of years until it was stolen and damaged beyond the point of active duty. It now can be seen on the front lawn as a lasting reminder of the spirit to which it once gave rise.

A new bell was quickly found to take the place of its one-ton predecessor and is the same bell now being used. This bell has also had a hard life for it was stolen last year by Oakland University students to use at a birthday party. It was, however, returned before the Saturday game but with a fresh coat of Oakland U. colors.

With the trying moments that the bell has suffered, it has always managed to make its spirited resounding sound after each MSU point.

AFTER HELL WEEK

Varied Social Fare Offered

By DON SOCKOL State News Staff Writer

Hell week is over. The "its," "scummys," "pledges," or whatever they are called in a particular Greek unit is transformed into a brother or a sister.

Changed, as if from an ugly caterpillar to a lovely butterfly, the new member is ready to take part.

Fraternities and sororities offer many social opportunities to their members. Social chairmen of the various houses agree that the Greek system offers advantages to the social life of an individual that cannot be gained elsewhere on campus.

For the average social dues of $25 per month for fraternities and the same amount per term for sororities a varied program of social activities is provided.

The social fare differs between the fraternity and sorority system. A fraternity offers more weekend parties, but the average sorority has more term parties.

The average sorority has three term parties a year, while the average fraternity only has one. However, fraternities hold semi-formal rush parties every term, which the sorority does not do.

One fraternity gave its social calendar as: a rush party each term; about four hall parties a term; an exchange dinner; a brunch and an after dinner social gathering called a dessert, with different sororities, each term; two term parties a year; a Christmas party; stag parties for each of the three initiations a year; and a theme party, their big event for the year. Most fraternities follow, more or less, a similar program.

Sororities have three term parties a year, one of which is usually formal.

Desserts and brunches with fraternities are old stand-bys for sororities. Serenades, in which a newly pinned or engaged girl is sung to by her beau's fraternity are a special occasion. They are usually in the spring.

It is a common fallacy that Greeks prefer to date within the system. Fraternity and sorority social chairmen concur that the average membership dates indiscriminately, about half the dates being Greek and half independents.

Deferred Rush Poses Problems And Profits

By WILLIAM PRITCHARD State News Staff Writer

The deferred rush system used by the MSU fraternities poses both advantages and disadvantages for the Greeks, said Jim Halverson, member at large of the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC).

Deferred rush, by which a first-term freshman cannot pledge a fraternity until winter term, allows the potential pledge to make the 2.2 grade average required for pledging.

The system also includes a spring rush for those who either do not make the grade in winter or have put off pledging for some other reason, Halverson said.

By giving freshman a chance to obtain a 2.2 the fraternities can maintain the high academic standing they have traditionally maintained, he said.

Halverson said deferred rush was established in 1960 to aid the fraternities in clearing away, the strictly social image they present to the general student body for a more scholastically oriented image.

However, many first-term freshmen become dorm oriented and often anti-Greek through talking to older anti-Greek students, he said.

Because of this MSU has only 34 fraternity houses to the University of Michigan's 55, Halverson said. U of M Greeks allow first-term freshmen to pledge.

He said despite the apparent drawbacks, however, the national trend is toward deferred rush.

Also, he added, IFC is working on several proposals to remedy the loss of freshmen.

One of the proposals calls for fall rush sponsored by the entire Greek system instead of individual fraternities.

Popular Entertainment Series Called Financially Successful

From here on the popular entertainment series is on good financial ground, said Rick Hollander, Wilmette, Ill., senior and series comptroller.

The series has earned $3,500 to date. It should total $7,000 profit for the contingency fund if 2,000 individual seats are sold for the Kingsmen show Saturday.

Money earned by the series goes into a contingency fund to back up future shows in the series. As the fund grows, Associated Students of MSU can bring in more expensive shows without increasing the admission charge.

The Kingsmen show Saturday has already sold 1,260 seats, 740 short of the number needed to reach the expected profit. About 2,000 seats are still available at the Union ticket office. The other 2,136 seats needed to fill Jenison belong to season ticket holders.

With permission to go ahead in planning a winter term popular entertainment series, ASMSU is considering booking Harry Belafonte, the Supremes, Nancy Wilson and Johnny Mathis.

"The series is quite obviously a financial success," Hollander said. "Students are more than ready to support it."

The University asked that ASMSU show it could build up a contingency fund before it gave permission to continue with the winter series.

"Our contingency fund should soon be large enough to cover the complete flop of one show," Jim Tanck, Waterford, Wis., senior and cabinet president, said.

Expenses for the fall series should total $17,700. The income should total $23,500.

The popular entertainment executive committee will need $1,400 more in the fall series budget of $16,000 to cover the cost of the Serendipity Singers, the first show in the fall series.

The contract with the singers called for paying them $3,500 or 60 per cent of the gross profit, whichever was greater. The $1,400 is needed to reach the 60 per cent fee.

The Serendipity Singers and Dave Brubeck together brought in $21,700 with both individual tickets and coupon sales. Individual tickets for the Brubeck show brought in $6,530. With the Kingsmen sales recorded Monday, total income for the series so far is $24,220.

MSU Crime Rate Exceeds National

By DON SOCKOL
State News Staff Writer

Property value of more than $100,000 was stolen or maliciously destroyed on campus last year according to statistics submitted to the FBI by the Department of Public Safety.

An annual FBI report released in July contained the statistics on crime at MSU, along with those of law enforcement agencies covering 97 per cent of the total population in the nation. Michigan State and the University of Maryland are the only universities included in the comprehensive report of the country's crime picture during the 1964-65 calendar year.

"MSU is remarkably free of crimes of violence, but crimes against property are abnormally high," said Richard O. Bernitt, director of public safety.

There have been three murders, one manslaughter by negligence, two forcible rapes and two assaults with attempt to commit rape on campus since 1946, Bernitt said.

All together, 2,765 reported criminal activities came to the attention of the campus police last year.

Of these, 591 arrests cleared up 461 of them, Bernitt said. $36,248 of the $101,504 worth of property stolen or vandalized on campus between July 1, 1964 and June 30, 1965, was saved by the department's police force, Bernitt said.

There were 399.4 larcenies of under $50 per 100,000 in the national average. MSU had a total of 520, three times the national average.

Larcenies involving over $50 totalled 1,209 at MSU last year, while the national figure was 1,100 per 100,000. This makes the campus rate almost twice the national.

Cases involving breaking and entering totalled 624 per 100,000 nationally, while 582 crimes of this nature were reported here. Here again, the campus rate is almost twice that of the nation.

The rate of increase of crime nationally is four times the rate of growth of population, according to the FBI report. The 21.9 per cent increase in crime at MSU is, in contrast, only about 25 per cent greater than the increase in population.

MSU's rate of crime solution, on the other hand, is only about one half of crime solution nationally. This is largely due to the many crimes of petty theft in which there are no clues.

The Campus Police force also has only about one half the number of officers per thousand in the population that the figures indicate for the national average. Unlocked dorm rooms and carelessness with wallets and other valuables renders the community very susceptible to crimes of theft, Bernitt said.

But not all crimes reported to the Campus Police involve students, Bernitt said.

"I can't give the exact figure, but probably about half the criminal activity on campus involves persons with no connection with the University," he said.

Many campus crimes are committed by persons who travel from as far away as Detroit, he added.

A subject on which information is not usually available is campus suicides.

There were 11 unsuccessful attempts at suicide on the campus last year, Bernitt said. Most of these involved an overdose of drugs, such as aspirin, but only succeeded in making the persons involved very sick.

There have been four suicides on campus since 1960. There were three during the 1961-62 academic year and one in 1962-63.

The figures on crime released by the campus police do not indicate all crimes involving students or even crimes committed on campus.

The Department of Public Safety has a record of only those crimes that are actually reported as having taken place on MSU property.

SAYS YALE PROF

Should Educate Innovators

More emphasis must be placed on education if backward areas are to take advantage of technological innovations, Edmund S. Phelps, Yale University economist said here last week.

Less money has to be spent on the production of capital, Phelps said, and more should go into the education of innovators. He said that the gap between theoretical technology--the greatest knowledge available today--and the technology which is in use can be greatly lessened by this education.

However, education is relatively useless, Phelps said, unless technology also continues to progress. He said that conventional thought implies that education is a positive factor even if innovation is at a standstill.

In large industrial corporations, the innovations are functions assigned mainly to scientists, Phelps said, and this is highly inefficient. He suggested that management be educated to innovate and therefore aid both technological and educational advance.

Phelps, who joined the Yale economics department in 1960, is associated with the Yale Economic Growth Center. He has published a book and several articles in the economics field.

Card Burners To Be Arrested Quietly

WASHINGTON (AP)--Men who burn their draft cards in public are likely to be arrested--if they are arrested at all--far from the cheering crowd.

FBI agents are under informal instructions not to lend themselves to public spectacles by making arrests on public platforms, it was learned Monday. Officials feel that to do so would multiply the publicity the protesters seek and make them martyrs in the eyes of their friends.

The FBI refused to comment on its policy on arresting destroyers of draft cards--who, under a new law, face penalties of up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

But five self-proclaimed pacifists who burned what they said were their draft cards in New York City Saturday left their Union Square platform as free men.

And David Miller, 22, the first to be arrested under the new law, was free for three days before FBI agents seized him on a quiet street in a little New Hampshire village. It was a far cry from his nationally televised act of burning a card from atop a sound truck at a noisy Manhattan rally.

In Miller's case, the FBI had to verify that it was indeed his draft card that he set afire. But a source close to the FBI said agents have been told "not to help make martyrs out of these people by grappling with them in the public spotlight."

Suspects may be arrested, the source said, after they have left the scene--preferably in the seclusion of their home.

Another reason for the delayed arrests is that the decision on whether and when to make the arrests is to be made by the Justice Department here. One of the considerations in making the decision is the draft eligibility of the draft-card burners.

In Saturday's incident, only one of the five men involved is eligible for the draft; the others are either too old or classified 4F.

Education Loans

present a problem regarding the grant program, Dykema said, because if Congress does not renew it, students who start with the program may not have funds to continue their education.

How soon the new act is administered at MSU depends on when HEW sends the requirements and application forms, Dykema said.

"If they are received this term, we will probably be able to administer the program by winter term," he said.

Dykema called the guaranteed loan program essentially the same as the NDEA, traditionally the top loan program administered here.

"Michigan State has one of the largest NDEA grants in the country," he said. "Total available funds--approximately $1,380,000--are already obligated for the academic year."

"The new act could be very promising to those students who could not receive an NDEA loan," he added.

Dykema said HEW officials gave several reasons for the eventual replacement of the NDEA program.

First, collection of repayments is a problem for many universities. Under the new program, the banks act as collectors, not the university.

Second, many influential congressmen are opposed to the cancellation feature of the NDEA program.

Cancellation applies to education majors who teach after they leave school and provides that for each year they teach up to five years, 10 per cent of the loan is cancelled.

Finally, a limiting factor of the NDEA program is that $9 federal money must be matched with $1 of university money.

Debaters Rank 3rd

Michigan State debaters won third place in their first varsity debate tournament of the year at Northern Illinois University last weekend.
Representing MSU were Richard C. Brautigam, sophomore pre-law student from Albion, and James R. Hudek, senior economics-pre-law student from Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
Brautigam and Hudek won six of eight decisions in debating both sides of the proposition, resolved: That law enforcement agencies in the U.S. should be given greater freedom in the investigation and prosecution of crime. Hudek was awarded the second place speaker's cup with Brautigam finishing sixth in speaker's points.

proved, the staff members should be eligible.
Groat said that the board seemed more concerned at last week's meeting with the content of Zeitgeist's first issue than with how well it met the ideals it set.
"Content is a civil issue that should be solved in the courts," said Groat. "A university should be eager to protect freedom of the press rather than be concerned with prior censorship."
"I think there is something wrong when you see people hawking football programs outside the stadium and a magazine of poetry can't be sold anywhere on campus," he said.
Senger said that the board must approve all publications which seek to sell subscriptions or advertising. Those published by dormitories, clubs or for class use that do not seek to make money are not considered.
