Campus Reacts To Revolt

By DAVID HANSON
State News Staff Writer

There were on-campus reactions both for and against the declaration of independence by Rhodesia's white government Thursday.

James R. Hooker, assistant professor in history and in the African Studies Center, said Britain's initial reaction seemed weak. He said an economic boycott rather than direct military action indicated that the Rhodesians "might get away with it."

The African Studies Assn. of MSU called on "the U.S., Britain, the Soviet Union, the African States and all God-fearing nations of the world to do all they can to end this independence."

An ASA spokesman condemned what he called "the monstrous action of the whites of Rhodesia."

"This type of action," he said, "designed to perpetrate the ungodly belief of white superiority over the Black majority cannot but be condemned by all the right-thinking people of the world."

Hooker said that the declaration, at a time while the cabinet was in session in Britain to consider the problem, "is a gratuitous insult."

He said Britain seemed to be going slower than they said they would because of the planned economic boycott rather than doing something like freezing all the sterling assets of the country.

This, said Hooker, would set a precedent and make other countries act more cautiously in the future.

He said he would be interested in the reaction of France and South Africa.

"South Africa will probably be embarrassed," he said. "They would like to support Rhodesia but they don't want to take on the whole world on this thing."

Hooker said the buildup of troops on the Zambian border could lead to a skirmish that

1st British Colony Break Since 1776

Smith Leads White Govt.;
Wilson Roars In Commons

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP)--President Kenneth Kaunda declared a state of emergency in Zambia following Rhodesia's declaration of independence Thursday. He charged there was a major buildup of white Rhodesian troops along the Zambezi River between the two countries.

In a nationwide broadcast after an all-day emergency cabinet session Kaunda said: "Let me warn Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia and his fellow traitors that if Zambia is invaded or our territory violated in any way, we will not hesitate to meet force with force."

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)--Rhodesia declared its independence Thursday in an act of defiance that brought immediate retaliation from Britain.

The declaration made Rhodesia the first colony to seize independence from Britain on its own terms since the American Revolution of 1776.

In a flat, unemotional voice, Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith broadcast the declaration that began almost as a word-for-word adaptation of the United States Declaration of Independence. But there the similarity in the colonial rebellions ended.

Britain had been willing to grant independence but only if Rhodesia agreed to drop its policy of white supremacy to permit majority rule by the black African majority within a few years. Rhodesia has 200,000 whites and nearly 4,000,000 Africans.

The British reaction was swift and positive. Prime Minister Harold Wilson, who had sought to stave off the break by a pre-dawn telephone call to Smith, stood in the House of Commons and ticked off the sanctions that Britain intends to impose on its former colony.

He declared Rhodesia in treasonable rebellion, dismissed Smith and his ministers from their posts, recalled the British high commissioner from Rhodesia and ordered the Rhodesian commission out of London.

Wilson also said Britain would strike back by banning purchases of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar, cutting off British aid, freezing Rhodesian assets in Britain, and ejecting Rhodesia from the sterling area.

The prime minister said Britain did not plan military intervention.

Red China Pictured As Outlaw

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)--Niger, a former French African territory, today pictured Communist China as an outlaw regime seeking to spread subversion and revolution throughout the African continent.

Niger's delegate, Amadou Hassane, offered that description of Peking on the fourth day of debate in the U.N. General Assembly on the question of whether the Communists or the Nationalists should represent China in the United Nations.

By its statements and its campaign of subversion against Niger and other African states, Peking's rulers have shown they do not deserve admission to the United Nations, Hassane asserted.

The strong declaration by the small landlocked African state showed the continued split on the China question among former French territories. Several have refused to follow President Charles de Gaulle's lead in recognizing Peking.

Another Build-Up Ordered To Bolster Viet War Effort

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)--President Johnson authorized the sending of additional U.S. troops to fight in South Viet Nam Thursday.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara was instructed to meet the requests of U.S. commanders in Viet Nam. McNamara would not estimate how many more troops would augment the 160,000 already there.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)--U.S. and Vietnamese planes disrupted the Viet Cong ambush of a government detachment Thursday 35 miles east of Saigon, and a military spokesman said 130 of the Red guerrillas were killed.

The fight developed five miles west of Barla on the Saigon-Vung Tau Highway, the road on which the Viet Cong kidnapped four planes over North Viet Nam for a raid on a military storage area 65 miles south of Hanoi, heavily damaging railway tracks, two locomotives and four boxcars.

Mingled with this was another propaganda raid. U.S. Air Force jets dropped 340,000 leaflets over Dien Bien Phu, site of the decisive French defeat in the Indochina war.

U.S. Air Force servicemen Oct. 31.

The spokesman said the planes killed 100 of the ambushing detachment and the Vietnamese troops accounted for 30. He had no information on government casualties.

Far up the coast, a large task force of U.S. Marines and Vietnamese troops pressed a search-and-destroy mission in sandy, rolling country 18 miles north of Chu Lai under the command of Col. Theil Fisher of Springfield, Va.

But results of the operation, launched Wednesday from U.S. 7th Fleet landing craft, remained meager. A spokesman said two Viet Cong were killed and 18 suspects detained. No allied casualties were reported.

Allied forces in other coastal areas told of killing 14 Viet Cong and capturing 17.

--Explosion of a Viet Cong booby trap inflicted light casualties on a U.S. Marine patrol near Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon. Other patrols killed two Viet Cong.

--Vietnamese troops killed nine Viet Cong and captured 16 in a sweep completed Wednesday.

Ted Kennedy Lansing Bound

Ted Kennedy, junior senator from Massachusetts, will be in Lansing today to participate in dedication ceremonies for "The Kennedy House," the Democratic State Central Committee's new office building, at 900 W. Michigan Ave.

Kennedy will speak at the 3 p.m. ceremonies with Michigan senators Patrick McNamara and Philip Hart, and will attend the committee's reception following the program.

Aluminum Price Hike Withdrawn

NEW YORK (AP)--The aluminum industry rolled back prices Thursday, frustrated by a government threat to release stockpiled aluminum.

In private, businessmen made no bones about their unhappiness over the outcome of the two-week aluminum price struggle with the Johnson administration.

It began when a small producer, Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., raised prices two weeks ago.

It ended Wednesday night when Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced that the largest producer, Aluminum Co. of America, had decided to rescind its increases. The roll-back is retroactive to Monday, when the increases went into effect.

McNamara called it "a patriotic act." He said President Lyndon B. Johnson had asked him to congratulate the company "for an act of industrial statesmanship."

Then Reynolds Metals Co., Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. and Olin Mathieson also agreed to cut back their price boosts.

Five minutes after McNamara's announcement in Washington, Alcoa released a statement saying it felt the price increases were justified, but that it felt compelled to cancel them "because of the insistence of the government."

Rose Bowl Agent Picked

An official agent to handle university sponsored tours, if and when MSU is chosen to go to the Rose Bowl, was selected Wednesday night by the administration.

International Travel, Inc., of Chicago, Ill., was chosen to handle all the official tours for both students and alumni.

The Vice President for Student Affairs' office and the Division of Student Activities will act in an advisory capacity to ASMSU which will work with the agency in arranging the official student Fuzak, vice president for student affairs, said Thursday.

"International Travel, Inc., is a large agency with plenty of staff members who are all willing to be committed to the operation of moving MSU students west for the game," Fuzak said.

John Winkiejohn, the representative of International Travel, Inc., said the detailed plans for the possible Michigan State trip, is a 1954 graduate of MSU.

"In 1954 when State went to the Rose Bowl for the first time, Winkiejohn was student chairman for the student trip to Pasadena," Fuzak said.

The agency also has plans for the trip were turned over to a travel agency. Winkiejohn, who was working for the agency, once again was assigned the details of planning.

Since that time Winkiejohn has had his own consulting firm in Chicago and is now an employee of International Travel, Inc. He has handled university sponsored Rose Bowl trips for the University of Wisconsin and Ohio State.

Plans have not been finalized, and in fact are just getting off the ground. The types of tours offered and the prices, plus ticket allocations, will be worked out in the coming weeks, provided State is chosen as the Big 10 representative to the Rose Bowl, Fuzak said.

"Like most other schools that have been in the competition this year," Louis F. Hekhuis, director of the division of student activities, said, "State has chosen to begin preliminary planning if we should go."

Hekhuis said Purdue committed itself to an agent about three weeks ago, and Ohio State chose an agent about a week or two ago.

SON MAY SUCCEED HIM

Byrd Resigns Senate

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)--U.S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., who earned a reputation as the watchdog of the nation's pursestrings, has resigned to make way for a younger man--possibly his son.

Byrd, 78, powerful chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, quit his post one week after state elections and thus assured his successor who will be appointed by Virginia's Democratic governor at least one year in the office before a special election next November.

He listed pains of arthritis as a main reason for his decision and said he found himself tiring during lengthy committee meetings. Byrd, in a fashion as conservative as his reserved views on taxes and spending, announced his resignation in a letter to Gov. Albertis Harrison.

Teacher's Hard Life Merits Reverence

OPEN FORUMS WILL be conducted by Student Board during the next two weeks to consider the validity of the proposed policy. Students who have opposed and especially those who have violated existing policies now have their chance. If they send strong support to the forums and the consensus favors the new policy, Student Board should vote to adopt it.

To my fellow colleagues in this university or outside I want to make clear that unless one has an implicit faith in one's teacher and his attainments, one can hardly learn all he has to give you. By this I don't mean that you don't discuss with your teachers the subject matter or question if he makes a mistake. After all he is a human being and every human being is fallible. But at the same time students should develop an attitude of reverence to their teachers. Probably this is the only right attitude. Students as a class all the time receive from their teachers and I wish they could be given in turn reverence.

Philippines To Have New Chief

MANILA (AP)--Sen. Ferdinand E. Marcos, with a lead of half a million votes in the Philippines presidential race, appeared assured Friday of victory. Intimates of President Diosdado Macapagal privately conceded defeat and the presidential palace announced a news conference, arousing speculation that Macapagal would acknowledge Marcos' victory. Marcos, 48, claimed he had won by more than a million votes and said the result could be changed only by "massive and unthinkable fraud."

CAB Probes Crash Witnesses

CINCINNATI (UPI)--Civil Aeronautics Board investigators began today interviewing most of the 70 persons who reported seeing an American Airlines jetliner go down during an approach to the Greater Cincinnati Airport Monday night. The CAB said about 50 people who volunteered information about the crash will be interviewed. The others apparently did not see or hear enough to aid in the investigation.

The crash killed 58 persons, but four others survived and all were hospitalized. The Greater Cincinnati Airport is located across the Ohio River in Kentucky.

Martial Law Lifted In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)--President Sukarno announced Wednesday he has lifted martial law imposed on Jakarta and surrounding territory Oct. 2, a day after the Communist-inspired coup had failed. Sukarno said in a speech at the presidential palace commemorating Indonesia's Heroes Day that he also hopes to lift the martial law imposed on Central Java, where the security forces now are chasing Communist rebel terrorists.

Maj. Gen. Umar Wirahadikusumah, Jakarta military commander, who declared the martial law, said in another speech that the army had achieved "physical victory" over the Communist rebels.

Rhodesia Break Blamed On Wilson

MOSCOW (UPI)--Moscow radio charged today British Prime Minister Harold Wilson personally forced Rhodesia to declare independence and create another "fascist" state in Africa.

"The responsibility for the extremely serious situation which has arisen in central Africa lies completely with the Labor government of Britain and personally with Wilson, the premier," a broadcast said.

"By its policy of concessions and connivance with the Southern Rhodesian racists, London itself has, in fact, pushed Smith to the decisive action," it said.

Council Passes Church Proposals

VATICAN CITY (UPI)--The Ecumenical Council voted Thursday in favor of proposals for an important decree aimed at boosting missionary work and ending the fierce competition among missionaries for converts.

The 20 ballots by the council on the decree paved the way for drafting of its final version, on which the assembly will take a conclusive, overall vote in early December.

The decree is outspoken in urging that Christians, instead of campaigning in mission territories to win converts for their particular churches, should try to give a brotherly witness to Christ.

would give Britain and then the United Nations an excuse to impose military sanctions that could end the power of the newly independent government.

"Britain would like to get out from under and take this to the United Nations," Hooker said. "The U.S. has said it will back Britain in any action, which means we are behind them in not doing anything meaningful."

Hooker said Rhodesia's main problem in maintaining independence would be economic.

"They will have to find new markets for their products if the boycott works," he said.

"The U.S. can probably do without Rhodesia's tobacco, its main export, but we could continue to buy their ores," he said.

"The Pentagon," he said, "could step into the matter because of its needs and take the problem out of the world of politics."

Literature Distribution Policy

room near the exit to the Men's IN to allow everyone to distribute there.

"Our first obligation, then, is to recognized organizations," he said.

He emphasized that the proposed distribution policy was only a tentative proposal "to stimulate thought that will help us develop a policy acceptable to the majority of the university community."

Strange said he hopes the final board-approved draft would become "an all-university policy superseding all other policies to date."

Other proposed additions to the current policy are as follows: --that material may be distributed at a regularly scheduled event only with the consent of the sponsoring party;

--mass distribution is permitted only in the first floor lobbies of the Union Building and the Ballroom;

--hand-to-hand distribution is permitted outside campus buildings;

--hand-to-hand distribution is not permitted in residence halls;

--individual students may not sell literature on the campus. Strange felt that the "freedom of expression given to the individual" was the most significant change in policy.

"We didn't have the problem of individuals wishing to distribute literature until recently," he said.

The individual had not been covered under old policies drawn up by the administration, Men's Halls Assn. (MHA) or Women's Interresidence Council (WIC).

A clarification of policy was needed after members of the unrecognized May 2nd Movement distributed at registration this fall, and members of the unrecognized Committee on Student Rights (CSR) distributed in the residence hall dinner lines, Strange said.

Under the new policy, "Individuals from the May 2nd Movement, CSR and the like will be able to express themselves," he said.

He urged these individuals to "critically analyze the proposed policy, not as unrecognized groups, but as concerned students."

"If they are truly committed to the issue of civil rights, they will come through and help us build this policy," he said.

Student Board will hold open forums on the new policy at a date to be announced.

Off-Term Commencements
Worth National Speakers

"There is more interest in the Rose Bowl this year than commencement," said commencement committee chairman, Herman L. King this week.

He said that except for the day the speaker is announced and the few days before graduation, there is little interest in commencement.

Last week he said the committee was considering not having a graduation speaker beginning fall term, 1966.

He and the other members of the committee had gotten little response on the proposal, and that was favorable.

The committee meets once a term, sometimes twice if there is a problem. Its function is to work out the internal mechanics of the graduation program.

Each fall the committee prepares a list of potential speakers and sends it to President John A. Hannah. The Senior Council may also recommend speakers. But the choice and arrangements concerning the speaker are up to Hannah.

The Board of Trustees may also nominate speakers and it usually approves or endorses the speaker, King said.

"Hannah, through his contacts in Washington, may be able to get someone we hadn't thought of," said King. "He doesn't have to choose from the list."

"We aren't going to worry about who the speaker is as long as we know we've got one," he said.

King said that the important thing in commencement is the granting of degrees and the time it takes for a speaker to talk could be spent in matters of more concern to the graduate and his family.

About 820 undergraduate, 350 masters and 100 doctoral degrees will be awarded this term.

Fall and winter term graduation ceremonies used to be small, King said, and the speaker was usually someone from within the state--such as the presidents of the other state universities.

"It is big enough now to merit someone known nationally," he said.

"When we have a well-known speaker, people will come to hear him even though they are not involved with graduation," King said. "This used to be a way to gain prestige for the University, but MSU is well known enough now so that we should concentrate on what graduation really is--the awarding of degrees."

"Some Eastern schools have dropped graduation speakers," he said. "So this is not a new idea." There has also been a drop in attendance at eastern graduations, and I don't know if these two things are related.

He said that parents would much rather hear someone like Hannah talk about the institution their sons and daughters attended than some outside speaker.

The nine-member committee has the responsibility to see that everything works smoothly at commencement.

Kermit Smith, assistant to the provost, takes care of faculty attendance. King said there would be a seating problem if faculty showed up for graduation and it would not look good if not too few attended.

Each college, therefore, has a quota for attendance to provide a fair attendance.

The student representative is Paula Parker, Clarkson senior. She attended commencement as a junior and acts as an advisor to the Senior Council. King said the committee tries each year to recruit a junior to serve on the committee.

This term's commencement will be held on the Saturday afternoon before the Christmas concert in the Auditorium.

King said the physical plant staff will have to work through the night to put up the seats for the concert.

Asia On Upswing

By BETTY LITTLE
State News Staff Writer

By the year 2000, the U.S.S.R. and western nations will have joined together against Asia, which will be the biggest power bloc in the world.

C. Northcote Parkinson, satirist, historian and author of "East and West", made this prediction Wednesday night at the 2nd Forum Committee lecture.

"An Asian renaissance which began in 1905 is growing in intensity," Parkinson said, "while the West's momentum has begun to die and its impetus is nearly spent."

There has always been this pendulum movement of power between the East and West and this pendulum continues to swing today, he said.

"When the Roman empire fell, China and India grew and had technical superiority," said Parkinson.

He pointed out that during the Dark Ages, the medieval scholar looked to the East for his math, his religion and other developments.

When North America grew and projected their culture into China through missionaries, Parkinson said, the East was on the defensive.

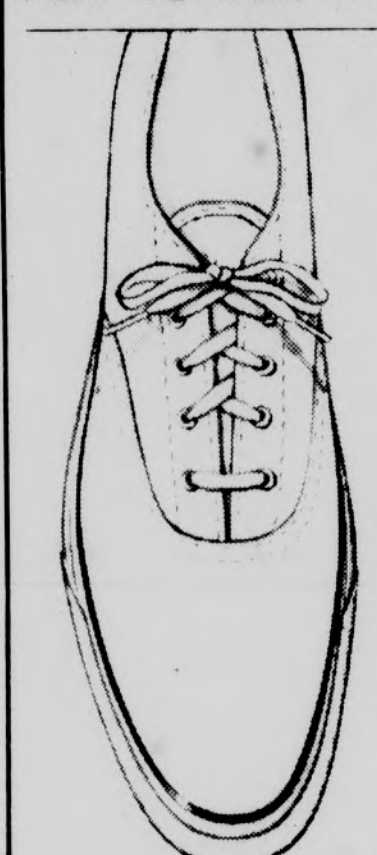

"The pendulum of initiative swings by the pressures of one society touching off a state of tension in another civilization causing them to give a vigorous thrust in the opposite direction.

Revolt from these pressures means sudden expansion of force and the power of the revolver increases," said Parkinson.

Heston Seeks Modern Roles

DETROIT—Any actor who thinks he can make a living when he starts out is disillusioned, said Oscar winning cinema star Charlton Heston here Wednesday.

Heston was here for the world premiere of his new movie, "The War Lord," currently playing at the Gladmer in Lansing.

Heston has appeared in movies as everything from cowboy to prophet. He says diligent research is necessary for movies in which historical context plays an important part. "Education teaches one how to do research," he said.

Band Salute To TB Seals

In a pre-game performance Saturday, the MSU marching band will salute the 59th annual Christmas Seal campaign which opens Tuesday.

The seal is to be used this year in the long time battle against TB, will feature the familiar double-barred cross and a little girl feeding birds.

Leonard Falcone, director of the band, said he plans a formation of the double-barred cross while band members release dozens of homing pigeons.

The pigeons are loaned to the band by Ed LaBode, 624 E. Holmes St.

But Heston said an actor's ability to take on the personality of the person he is portraying is the most important factor, and this ability cannot be taught.

Heston has often been cast as historical figures. These include Moses in "The Ten Commandments" and John the Baptist in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." He said that the primary function he has as an actor is to make real men out of these somewhat mythical figures.

Heston said that his favorite role is Macbeth. It is also the role he has played most often. He resents being considered a biblical actor, and says he would like more modern roles in the future.

"I started when I was a kid, and I've been acting all my life. I just started making money at it recently," Heston said.

Heston spent his early life in Michigan. His father was a mill operator in St. Helen, a tiny town in the northern part of the state. It was there that Heston began his career in elementary school shows.

"Since the school was a one-room affair with a total enrollment of 13, I doubt landing a role was due to any unusual childhood talent on my part," Heston said.

The Hestons later moved to Illinois where Charlton (that's his real name) went to high school, and then Northwestern University where he majored in speech.

However, Heston does not feel that education prepares an actor for acting. "Scholarship can only play a partial role," he said.

Shaw Teams Await 'Little Rose Bowl'

A brilliant gold toilet bowl filled with artificial roses will be presented to the team which wins the "Little Rose Bowl" game Sunday.

East Shaw and West Shaw have chosen teams consisting of two men from each precinct to play at Landon Field at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

Campbell Hall residents have chosen five girls from each North and South Campbell to reign as the Little Rose Bowl courts of East and West Shaw. Each team will choose a queen.

The courts will be introduced at halftime and the Little Rose Bowl Queen, the queen of the winning team, will be crowned after the game.

She will be presented with a trophy and a bouquet of roses. The winning half of Shaw Hall will get double desserts at Monday dinner. The losing half will get none.

Cheerleaders at the game will be South Campbell coeds. A rock and roll band, The Shawmen, will perform at halftime.

A pre-game contest pitting the East Shaw staff against the West Shaw staff was canceled when West Shaw turned down a challenge from East.

ENTERTAINMENT THIS WEEKEND

MARY ULLRICH

ASMSU hosts the Kingsmen Saturday evening in the third stage of its Popular Entertainment Series. Tickets for the 8:00 p.m. performance, which will have courageous Dave Hanson on hand to review, were sold out Thursday.

The event should be a fitting climax to MSU's expected 18-point victory over Indiana in the afternoon, and a prelude to the evening's postshow victory parties.

Rivaling the Kingsmen for a student audience are the New Christy Minstrels, currently without the services of gravel-throated Barry McGuire, who deserted to "The Eve of Destruction."

Tickets for the 8:30 p.m. performance at the Lansing Civic Center can be purchased at the Paramount News Center in East Lansing.

The MSU Folklore Society's annual "Big Sing" is usually very good. It's at 8 tonight in the Union Ballroom.

GOOD: The Charles Dickens classic "Great Expectations," will be presented by MSU's International Film Series at 7 and 9 tonight in Fairchild Theatre.

The film tells the story of a 19th century English orphan in a tale billed as "thrilling, understanding and distinguished."

MSU's World Travel Series is sponsoring Romaine Wilhelmsen's "Yucatan Trails," at 8 p.m. Saturday in the University Auditorium.

The Richards Quintet, a chamber music group composed of Michigan State faculty members, will present a program of woodwind music at 8:15 tonight in the Music Auditorium.

ALSO GOOD: It's the second time around for Academy Award winning "Zorba the Greek," but if you haven't already seen it, it's a good bet at the Starlight Drive-In. Comedian Peter Sellers stars in two of his early pictures, "Heaven Above" and "I'm All Right, Jack" at the Campus Theatre, and Charlton Heston is featured in "The War Lord" at the Gladmer in Lansing.

Topping the list for coed movie fans is the news that Steve McQueen is outdoing himself in "The Blob" at the Crest Drive-In.

LOAN DISPLAY

Planetarium Exhibits Five Optical Antiques

A new set of astronomical, navigational, and optical antiques has been put on exhibit at Abrams Planetarium.

The five pieces include two telescopes, a magnifying glass, a sundial and a navigational celestial globe.

On loan from the James Cusick Nichols Art Studio in Kalamazoo, they will remain on view until the first of the year.

The larger telescope is a four-stage spy glass made in London about 1800. Its brass and mahogany tube has sliding lens covers at both ends. It has a sun shield for daytime viewing, but the lenses are not tinted so it can also be used for nighttime work.

Much smaller is a surveyor's telescope from Germany. Probably from the late 1800's, both the tube and the mount are brass.

The magnifying glass was made in England in the late 1700's. It is mounted in wood and is about five inches in diameter.

Oldest of the items is a 1712 garden sundial. Made in England, it is bronze and almost a foot in diameter.

The newest item is from 1920, showing navigation stars on a white ball in a brass and wood case. Also English, it was made in London. The original instructions are still in the case.

The exhibit will be on view for people attending the remainder of the "Discovering the Moon" series at Abrams and those going to December's "Star of the Magi" shows.

Memorial Planned

A memorial service is planned for two botany research technicians who were killed in a Monday morning automobile accident.

Bert and Wilhelmina Winter, originally from Amsterdam, The Netherlands, had worked for the University for two years.

The Rev. John Hofman will perform the service at the Christian Reformed Church, 240 Marshall Ave., Lansing, at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Rally At Brody

Brody Group will mark the departure of the sewage plant with a "smellebration" today.

Starting the activities will be a pep rally at 7:30 p.m. with the MSU cheerleaders and the Singing Statesmen.

Bailey Hall will then sponsor a dance in the Brody Multipurpose Rooms featuring the music of the Sounds.

Doctors Concerned Over Ike

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Doctors said Thursday former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is in satisfactory condition but warned he could have repeated seizures of chest pain and lapse into a full heart attack.

Such a course is "not uncommon for patients with known coronary disease," experts said. Eisenhower suffered a severe heart attack in 1955 during the third year of his presidency.

His current difficulty has been diagnosed as angina pectoris, severe pains of the chest caused by an inadequate blood supply to the heart. Physicians say the pain does not constitute a heart attack, in the usual sense of the term.

The 75-year-old five star general suffered a 30-minute seizure of chest pain early Tuesday morning at the Augusta National Golf Club, where he had been vacationing. He appeared to be making a good recovery from the attack until Wednesday afternoon when the pains hit again with greater intensity and for a longer period than before.

THE WINNER of this year's Turkey trot, Dick Newton, Flint senior, and representative of Bailey Hall, seems to have a turkey on a string for his winning efforts. The men of Bailey may enjoy a Thanksgiving feast ahead of time this year.

ARMY MAJOR GIVES VIEWS

Viet War Called 'Drawing The Line'

A 1952 MSU graduate, Army Major Ralph C. Waara said the United States Viet Nam policy is "simply a case of drawing the line against Communist encroachment in Southeast Asia."

Waara who received his commission in MSU's ROTC program made the statement during a ceremony Wednesday in the ROTC offices where he was awarded the Air Medal and Bronze Star for "outstanding meritorious service in operations against hostile forces in the Republic of Viet Nam."

Waara served in Viet Nam from September, 1964 to September, 1965 as military, economic and political advisor to a Vietnamese district chief on the Mekong Delta.

He said that a solution of the war will allow the South Vietnamese self-determination which they would not have under Communism.

The Viet Cong cannot offer the Vietnamese any sort of community development program except in areas they have controlled for many years, Waara said. The people are working hard to improve their communities and schools.

Waara referred to an apparent tone of greater political stability in South Viet Nam and said the South Vietnamese are realizing they will gain nothing from further governmental turnovers in Saigon.

Turning to anti-Viet Nam policy demonstrations in the U.S., he said the demonstrators were badly misinformed and are probably prolonging the war by giving Hanoi the wrong impression about American civilian attitude.

Waara said he could not believe it when he heard about threatening phone calls made to next of kin of soldiers killed in Viet Nam.

"There appears to be some sort of social insanity going on in the U.S.," he said.

The major flew more than 25 missions over Viet Cong-held territory in helicopters and light observation planes for which he received the Air Medal.

Waara, a veteran of 15 years, is currently working on a master's degree in business and distributive education.

New Colleges To Get Representation

Academic Council added an interpretation to its by-laws Tuesday to clear up the problem of representation by new colleges with no or little faculty.

Justin S. Morrill College and the College of Human Medicine have no full-time faculty at the present time but are represented on the council by their deans. There was a question as to the proper representation once faculty were assigned to the two colleges.

The interpretation accepted Tuesday reads:

"That a newly-established college shall have the normal representation on the council, namely, the dean of the college and two faculty members as it acquires them, but that in every case it shall be represented only by persons who are appointed in primary status to that college."

Justin Morrill faculty are assigned to the college on a part-time basis and are paid through other colleges. Since the student body of the medical school will be about 20 to begin with and will reach a high of about 60, the faculty will remain small.

Big Sing At 8 In Ballroom

The Michigan State Folklore Society will present the third annual Big Sing at 8 tonight in the Union Ballroom.

The sing will feature the Woolies, recorders of "Black Crow Blues," and the Glad Dog Jug Band with vocalists Earlene Bates. The jug band combines a guitar, banjo, mouth organ, washboard and a wash tub base for a blues-ragtime sound.

Other entertainers will be: Jim Frank and Jean McIntosh, "Jim and Jean"; Al Finney; Tom Clark; Tom Sharrard; and Dennis Stoffer.

Admission is $1.

Club Chartering Policy Attacked

By CHAR JOLLES
State News Staff Writer

The proposed club chartering policy being considered by the Student Board of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) was stamped "the dying gasp of a moribund group" Wednesday night by Brian Keleher, East Lansing senior.

Keleher, along with Martha Aldenbrand, East Lansing graduate student, attacked the policy at the first of two open forums held by the Student Board.

"An organization should have the right to exist without asking consent from an advisory board," Miss Aldenbrand said. She called the procedure of chartering an organization unconstitutional, according to freedom of assembly guaranteed by the Bill of Rights.

The board will vote on the proposed chartering procedure at its Nov. 23 meeting. The procedure must then be approved by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

Under the proposed chartering policy, students wishing to form an organization must submit a constitution, a membership list and a letter from a faculty advisor. The group must adhere to specific rules governing such things as number of members and external affiliations.

The student-faculty committee on Student Organization then grants a charter which must be reviewed by the Student Board and the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs at the end of one year.

Miss Aldenbrand suggested that "at the beginning of the year, each group submit its name and say, 'we exist,' and no more would be required for a charter."

Chartering, as it stands, she said, is "control" of organizations, a "statement that says

"you can exist if we approve what you believe and what is stated in your constitution."

"A group forms to discuss common interests," she continued, "and as long as the interested people discuss those interests, there is no need for any board of judge whether they should or should not exist."

If the group in question breaks a state or federal law, or a rule specifically stated by the University, that group should be responsible to those authorities, she said.

She said she feels there was "no logical reason" for an organization to have a constitution before it may have a charter.

"It should be up to the group whether they want to submit a statement of purpose," she said. "The board has no right to be interested in the ideas of the group."

"A university is based on education, intellectual communication and inquiry," she added. "It is not based on restriction of thinking about certain things. That is defeating the ideal of the university."

Keleher also attacked the clause requiring a constitution. "You wish to pass judgement on the terms under which a group wishes to associate itself," he told board members. "That's a direct violation of freedom of association."

He criticized the membership clause, which states that members should be regularly enrolled students and number at least one-tenth of one per cent of the total undergraduate fall term enrollment.

Keleher noted that the ruling, one-tenth of one per cent was made in 1958 when MSU was much smaller.

The requirement is impractical now, he said, and will become more so as the university grows.

He felt it was almost impossible for an organization just beginning to have that many members anyway.

"The value of an organization does not depend on the number of people in it," he said.

He said that membership should be open to anyone "in the university community," which encompasses more than students.

On the ruling that organizations must present for approval the name and constitution of national groups with which they want to affiliate, Keleher said:

"You are going to judge what national groups with which one will associate oneself. It would follow logically that each time a national organization like SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) wishes to amend its constitution, it would have to wait for the last word from third floor Student Services."

On the ruling that only chartered organizations may hold all-university events, Keleher asked, "What is an all-university event? I have been asking administrators for two years."

In his closing remarks, Keleher charged that the Student Board was "irrelevant to what people are doing."

Unchartered groups are functioning effectively without ASMSU, he said, like the May 2nd Movement, Committee for Student Rights (CSR) and the Committee for Peace in Viet Nam.

He charged that the board was "not authorized by the students but by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs."

"ASMSU," he concluded, "is an anachronism in the times of a student revolution."

LAST CALL! Two months ago we ran an ad and hired eleven men. Nine of them had no previous direct sales experience and none of them were experienced in our field (three left $15,000 or over yearly salaries to come with us). As of this date, ten are still with us. Last month these ten men averaged $1,814 (high man $3,871-low man $1,242). Two of them are now district managers. Average earnings for all men: last month was $2,081. We are a multi-million dollar company currently expanding in Michigan with a prestige program of unbelievable sales appeal. Men selected will be completely trained at our expense. They will do no traveling or cold canvassing. To be considered, must have some sales or public contact experience and be above average in personality and appearance. If selected this should be the last ad you ever answer, as this is truly a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. For all the facts, see Martin Schlissberg, November 15 or 17 by appointment in Student Placement Bureau. 32-3

Pastors Deplore Poor Church Ads

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

Long live church advertising. But down with blatant billboards. Students and campus ministers support public service church advertising, but for the most part, they spoke out against the Madison Avenue and brother-are-you-saved campaigns.

Churches today use every type of advertising technique from service announcements in newspapers to Stan Freberg radio commercials with a Broadway stage touch.

"Some church advertising looks more like advertising for a three-ring circus than for a church," the Rev. Ernest Dunn, minister for Wesley Foundation, said.

"Churches should advertise, but I'm leery of advertising that presents the church on the same level as the latest hit movie," he said.

Large, splashy billboards, church or not, are an eyesore on the highways, the Rev. James Didier, minister for the American Baptist Student Foundation, said.

Both he and several students said the billboards could be distracting and dangerous for drivers.

Churches should use the medium with the widest audience to advertise the place and time of services, meetings and lectures, the Rev. Dunn said.

"If we don't advertise, many students never know we're here," he added.

Newspaper ads and ads in the yellow pages of the phone book pay the biggest dividends, the Rev. Leo Tomko, minister for the Assembly of God, said.

"Radio works efficiently only if the church floods the air waves, and that is too expensive," he continued. "TV is the ideal, if you've got the money."

The Rev. Mr. Tomko said he finds no paid church advertising offensive.

"I don't have to look at an ad in the paper if I don't want to," he remarked. "I can understand that an 'are-you-a-born-again-Christian' ad might offend a non-Christian, but then his not being a Christian might offend me."

Most students and pastors object to some of the appeals used in church ads.

"Announcing times and places of meetings like any civic group is fine, but I don't like to see Jesus Christ put up like a saleable product," Sue Swiss, Grand Rapids freshman, said.

"I object to selling a religion itself. Church literature passed out on the streets or left at my door repulses me," she continued. "Religion is a personal thing. I don't like to see it shoved in a mass appeal."

The church exists to attract people, and church advertising aimed at attracting people need not be offensive in itself, Chet Tomczyk, Jackson sophomore, said.

"I like the off-beat Stan Freberg ads the National Council of Churches uses," he said. "They make you stop and think."

"I do not approve of selling religion by a Hollywood character appeal as some evangelists tend to do," the Rev. Mr. Didier said. "And I object to church advertising with a come-on hooker that offers you something for nothing."

Value Conflicts Threaten Student

No conflict exists between science and Christianity or between education and Christianity.

But a conflict of values threatens the student immersed in the University, said Ted Ward, director of the learning systems institute in the College of Education.

Ward will moderate a panel on "The Nature of the Christian Student" at 7:30 tonight in 31 Union for the Spartan Christian Fellowship. Last Friday he spoke to the same group on values in Christianity and education.

"The student finds it difficult to know when his values are really threatened," Ward said. "He finds it difficult to maintain his independence from conformist pressure."

Examining beliefs is a good thing, he said, but its problems create pressures we find difficult to live with.

Ward brought out the similarities of basic values between the American educational system and Christianity in last Friday's talk.

Both stress the value of the individual and show concern for the welfare of people, he said. Both teach that more knowledge can help man operate at more effective levels.

"A common thread in the Bible urges a person to be inquiring after knowledge," he continued.

Ward works with man-machine systems for instruction in the learning systems institute. He is advisor to the Chinese Christian Fellowship on campus.

"More education does not make Utopia," Ward said. "The German intelligentsia fell under Nazi influence."

Ward challenged the humanist stance that makes man the measure of all things.

"Making man the measure makes him less than a man because this rules out the spiritual dimension," he said.

No necessary argument exists between science and religion, he said. Nature is one of the two basic revelations of God.

"But 'scientism' that becomes an end in itself and elevates itself to the level of God disallows any other revelation of God," he said.

Both science and Christianity demand honesty, humility, courage, respect and selflessness, he added.

PEACE CORPS SAYS:

No Specific Skill Required

Students do not need any particular skill to qualify for the Peace Corps, representatives said at a discussion in the Union Wednesday night.

A Peace Corps recruiting team is on campus this week.

"Thirty to forty per cent of our volunteers go to work in foreign countries without having any special skills," said Albert Galves, a former volunteer in Peru.

Quite often students with a liberal arts background work as teachers once they are in the country, he said.

Nor must volunteers be fluent in a foreign language. A 12-week training period is given in which the volunteer takes four hours of a language a day, he said.

And usually during the first two or three months in a country volunteers have time to further develop their language skills, Galves said.

Volunteers do not have to be college graduates. The minimum age requirement is 18. High school graduates with abilities in any particular area, such as auto mechanics, are needed.

Albert Galves and his wife, Nancy, both worked in Peru. They met there and were married a month after they got back to the U.S. Nancy, a liberal arts graduate from Berkeley, Cal., worked on a Community Development Program. Albert, a government major from Cornell, helped organize and put out a newspaper. They are continuing their Peace

Corp work by training recruits in Puerto Rico.

Being married can have its advantages in the Peace Corps, Nancy commented. First of all you have each other to depend on and can offer each other moral support. Second, if you have training in the same area, you can work together on projects. And third, often married couples are more readily accepted in a village, especially when they are dealing with family and family problems, she said.

No Language In Comm Arts

The College of Communication Arts has dropped its foreign language requirement, John Marston, assistant dean, announced Thursday.

Only first-term freshmen will be affected by the change, however, he said, since students are subject to the requirements stated in the catalog issued the year they were admitted.

The new plan leaves departments free to adopt their own requirements, Marston said. The School of Journalism is planning to adopt a two-year college-level foreign language requirement next year, he said. The other departments are not planning to change, he said.

it's what's happening
