Parking Isn't Growing As Fast As Campus

A PROPOSAL TO BUILD two additional parking ramps on campus makes us even more aware of the ever increasing size of our University. The University is growing, new buildings are springing up, but parking facilities don't seem to be growing at the same rate.

The need for additional parking space was pointed out to the MSU Board of Trustees by Harold W. Lautner, director of campus planning. He has proposed two new ramps with a capacity of 2,300 cars.

ONE SITE WOULD BE in the Bessey Hall parking lot and the other would be constructed in the parking lot north of the Engineering Building. There is a definite need for further parking facilities all over the campus and it appears that the two proposed ramps will go a long way towards solving the problem.

University planning surveys have shown that parking should be provided for about 85 per cent of the faculty and staff cars. The surveys have also shown that about 15 percent of the faculty and staff are away from campus at any one time. It seems then that with the addition of these new ramps, the parking problem in the Bessey Hall area and the Engineering Building area will be pretty well solved.

WE WOULD URGE the Board of Trustees to approve the proposed parking ramp expansion plan. Not only will it solve the immediate problem of parking, but it will also improve faculty and staff morale. There is nothing more exasperating than to have to hunt for as long as 15 to 20 minutes just to park your car.

If the University can solve the parking problem for faculty and staff members, it would eliminate at least one reason for dissatisfaction with working conditions. And it is often the daily irritation of trying to find a parking space that causes an employee to find a better work environment.

Some 35,000 smiles for 10 victories-- that's a lot of happiness for 600 minutes of football... Years from now, when State's team is one of the also-rans, you will remember fall term 1965-- the time when we were number one.

While drunken Cedar Waxwings died by the dozens against windows and walls, thousands of frantic students were on the phone: "Dad, do you think it would be all right if..."

Everyone was jubilant because Notre Dame was not. And everyone in the State News office was asking everyone else how to spell "Pasadena."

Maybe you recalled then the girl who sat in front of you at the Illinois game and how you had laughed at her naivete when she had said "I smell roses."

But soon even the most skeptical pessimists were smelling them.

And everyone suddenly became an expert on rushing yardage, player history and assorted statistics.

Apisa's knee was of greater concern for most than the resignations of four State News editors.

The good pros were saying "no class Wednesday" and the really bad ones were saying "double cuts."

And, of course, we still had a few more "Duffy" shows to look forward to on Sunday evenings.

"Are you going?" was the question you either asked or were asked.

The only two possible answers were "YES" or "I hope so." Nobody was really excessively worried about anything. Pasadena was, after all, a lot closer than Viet Nam.

And New Year's day seemed, at least, a lot closer than finals. Thanksgiving was right away; the papers due after Thanksgiving were a long way off.

These are the "good old days."

LEFTIST MISSING

Anyone Seen Big Ben?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

A mystery rivaling the disappearance of Cuba's Ernesto Guevara will haunt the hall next month when Fidel Castro plays host to an "anti-imperialist" meaning anti-United States--meeting of leftists from Asia, Africa and Latin America.

This "tricontinental conference of solidarity" is evidently in the minds of Arab and North African leftists--aims to promote revolution everywhere in the underdeveloped world. No delegate will be admitted unless he is "anti-imperialist and consistent in the struggle against imperialism."

The conference faces difficulties spawned by the Soviet-Chinese fight for leadership of world communism. It likely will also be plagued by the baffling mystery of what happened to its original preparatory committee chairman.

El Mahdi Ben Barka, a Moroccan politician twice sentenced to death in absentia for alleged plotting against the Moroccan crown, was the brains behind the conference. He has vanished without a trace.

Here is how the story developed:

Last summer, leftists in Arab countries made contact with Castro and Mexican leftist leaders on a proposal to prepare for a tricontinental conference. A Cairo meeting was held in early September.

Castro snapped at the idea. It seemed an opportunity to repolish his prestige as a Communist leader. He offered Havana as the site, and the date was set for Jan. 6, to coincide with celebrations marking the seventh anniversary of the Castro takeover in Cuba.

Late in September, Ben Barka arrived in Havana to sign invitations as chairman of the preparatory committee. He talked with Castro, and told the Cuban press the conference should result in "a new global strategy, on the scale of three continents, since North American imperialism has adopted a global strategy in its aggressions."

Ben Barka returned to Paris. On Oct. 29, a man who accompanied him to a restaurant reported Ben Barka was shoved into an automobile and spirited away by two men posing as police officers.

LACK INFORMATION

Questions Schiff Case

To the Editor:

Paul Schiff applied for, and was admitted to graduate school in the History Department only to have his application denied for non-academic reasons by an administrative office. His last appeal was held in closed session (for reasons we do not understand) and hence the only available record of the proceedings is that appearing in the State News. On comparing the scanty Official Document of the Faculty Committee with the defense given by Mr. Schiff, the reasons for his being denied admission which were presented by Vice President Fuzak seem to be backed up by little concrete factual information.

The two most significant charges are worth consideration: namely, the "violation" of the University regulation on passing out literature on campus and the "public ridicule" of a member of the faculty.

Schiff Ruling Is Protested By Coed

To the Editor:

I strongly disagree with the faculty committee's ruling to deny Paul Schiff readmission to MSU. I see little intelligent reasoning behind their criticism. The denial seems to be centered around the protection of administration and faculty self-interest rather than the interest of the student body which they supposedly represent. If the committee's interest be education, Schiff has brought issues of utmost significance to the forefront of the student body.

By stimulating discussion he has promoted a revival of alertness, a search for foundation and meaning and a promotion of democratic principles. Even if Schiff's ideas were in opposition to our Constitution, the University has little jurisdiction to prevent his comments. If state and federal officials did not find his actions or beliefs offensive and necessary of regulation, should the University?

If the University has a personality of its own supported by the students (beyond the Rose Bowl) that feeling should overcome any non-legitimate criticism or beliefs. If the rule of the majority persists, and the majority's standards and beliefs are firmly based, a "Paul Schiff" could do little to rock the boat.

By asking the University to reevaluate the Schiff case with a focus upon the students' welfare and education as future members of society. Their decision to me is incongruent with the goals of education. If we are learning citizenship, how can this nine-man committee deny our rights to express and experience criticism? Are we to be puppets held up by strings? A government with few leaders and many followers? I request the right to know and understand why I support the principles I am taught.

Betty Watson
North Branch Junior

suspects that his accusation may bear more than a grain of truth.

A headline in the Lansing State Journal reads: "MSU Faculty Backs Schiff Case Action." As far as we are concerned, and many other faculty members with whom we come in contact, the evidence presented so far would hardly lead us to back this action. If the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs is truly a faculty committee with faculty backing, the entire faculty is entitled to a complete transcript of the testimony given at the closed session.

It will be a pathetic day, indeed, when a university faculty passes on to the Federal Courts its responsibility for safeguarding the individual rights of any member of the academic community, be he student or teacher.

Status Quo In Rhodesia

The question of what is going to happen to Rhodesia's self-declared independent government appears to be answering itself. The answer is "nothing."

British intervention appeared likely at first. However, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson settled this almost immediately after Rhodesia's Ian Smith made his independence declaration. Wilson said weak economic sanctions would be imposed at first and sterner ones applied later.

Sanctions have been applied and it looks like stronger ones are in the offing. Perhaps it might lead to an ending of the oil imports into Rhodesia from British and American companies, but nothing concrete has evolved on this yet.

Monday Britain decided to send Royal Air Force units to neighboring Zambia to patrol the Rhodesian frontier. These units will be used mainly to protect the key Kariba hydroelectric dam which spans the Zambezi River.

But the real fact of the matter is that Great Britain is not strong enough militarily to force Rhodesia back under the crown. Since World War II, Britain's military manpower has skidded from two million to about 150,000 men. British forces are committed in other areas of the world, particularly to treaty alliances like NATO. The British are also too spread out to be able to effectively concentrate on supplying a force in a single area like Rhodesia.

Massive intervention by neighboring Black African states was also predicted and this hasn't come true. The Organization of African Unity met several weeks ago in Accra, Ghana, and came up with only a weak declaration on the Smith government's independence move.

African states just don't have the military capability to intervene in Rhodesia. Hastings Banda, president of Malawi, has been quoted as saying:

"Don't be silly. Military intervention just couldn't be done-- African states don't have the means."

Both Banda and Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda fear Rhodesian retaliation if they openly support the overthrow of the Smith government.

In many ways these Rhodesian neighbors are hostage states. Zambia's largest dollar export--copper--must be shipped by rail through Rhodesia to get to other world points. Both nations, but particularly Malawi, have nationals working in Rhodesia. An estimated 175,000 Malawi nationals are employed in Rhodesia.

Another factor which probably has some effect on the other African nations' stands on the Rhodesian question is that many of them get large amounts of consumer goods from Rhodesia. Some of Rhodesia's exports to other African nations include corn, frozen beef, radios, sewing machines, clothing, shoes and other manufactured goods.

Another alternative which has been suggested to achieve equal government for Rhodesian Negroes is to have the United Nations intervene and expel the racist Smith government. But this is unlikely because the great powers are not going to get involved in another Cold War confrontation--particularly over Rhodesia.

About the only alternative left is for Rhodesian Black nationalists to oust the Smith government. And this will be difficult for them to do.

There are two groups of Black Nationals pushing for equality, and all their leaders are in prison. These groups are also badly divided--even the Organization of African Unity has not been able to get the leaders together.

Besides being poorly organized, Rhodesian Black nationalists are at the hands of the unmerciful Smith government. Many of them are afraid to organize because the Rhodesian police force has infiltrated their ranks with spies.

Communist Infiltration Triples

WASHINGTON (UPI)--Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said today on his return from a quick inspection trip to Viet Nam that North Viet Nam was tripling its infiltration of men into the south. In a planeside talk with newsmen at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., the secretary said the Communists were sending men south at a rate of 4,500 a month with the return of dry weather. During the summer monsoon season the infiltration rate was 1,500 a month, he said.

DeGaulle Requests Re-Election

PARIS (UPI)--President Charles de Gaulle called on French voters Tuesday night to re-elect him for a second seven-year term Sunday and to make his "strong man" Fifth Republic a permanent institution.

In a 15-minute radio-television broadcast appeal to the nation, De Gaulle said if any of his five opponents was elected it would mean a return to "the hateful confusion of the past."

Cost Of Living At New High

WASHINGTON (UPI)--The cost of living rose to a new record high in October, the Labor Department reported today. The consumer price index hit 110.4, up two points from September.

The increase boosted the cost of living 1.8 percent above the level of a year ago--far above the 1.2 percent level considered non-inflationary by President Johnson's economic advisers.

Cut California In Two?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)--A state senator has renewed the old argument on splitting California into two states. This time, he says, the people want the state divided.

County, near San Francisco, says California is just too big.

"We have a population of 19 million, and this single state is now larger than about three-quarters of the governments of the world," Dolwig said in an interview Tuesday.

JFK Saw Venezuela As Cornerstone

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)--President John F. Kennedy always regarded Venezuela as the cornerstone of the Alliance for Progress, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said on his arrival Tuesday from Brazil. "This is where President Kennedy came to see a working experiment in progressive democracy, an experiment which inspired and proved the workability of the Alliance for Progress," he told a Venezuelan committee that welcomed him at the airport.

Rhodesian Status Quo

The organs of dissent against the government are being limited. Newspapers are operating under strict restraint and one editor has been imprisoned for his beliefs about racial equality.

Some of the laws against Blacks are worse than those in South Africa. For example, there is a law calling for a mandatory death penalty for Rhodesian Blacks caught throwing stones.

So the possibility of Rhodesia's white racist government "promoting racial equality for all Africans," as Ian Smith has said, is indeed remote.

Perhaps the Blacks' abortive general strike Monday is an indication that violence will be the only way Black nationalists will ever free themselves from bondage.

Refugees

2,000 more. Like those arriving in the sea-lift, the first refugees to be flown to this country will be Cubans with relatives already in the United States.

The refugees will be processed on the planes and questioned further at special immigration offices at suburban Opa-locka, a World War II Marine base.

The government says most of them will be resettled almost immediately in other parts of the United States so they will not be a burden on the economy of south Florida.

More than 300,000 already have arrived in the six years since Castro came to power in Cuba.

Families will be given $100 by the U.S. government to help them get settled. Single persons will get $60. Those who choose to leave Miami will be flown to their new homes at government expense.

CONFERENCE ENDS

OAS May Face Changes

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)--The Inter-American Conference ended Tuesday after preparing the way for far-reaching changes in the structure of the Organization of American States.

It left open, however, the question of an inter-American peace-keeping force and the role to be played by the OAS in dealing with hemisphere peace.

The peace force, a pet project of the United States, was swept under the diplomatic rug after Secretary of State Dean Rusk found he could muster only a bare majority for its approval. And this would come at the cost of a deep political rift.

Brazil, a backer of the peace force idea, brought it up at the closing session.

Foreign Minister Vasco Leito da Cunha of Brazil, who presided, said "democracy can never let up on vigilance."

To those Latin-American nations opposing the force, he said there was no intention of violating the principle of nonintervention.

"On the contrary, the intention is to resort to collective action, if this is called for."

The OAS council's peace-keeping role was included in a section of the Act of Rio de Janeiro, signed by the assembled delegates, setting up guidelines for amendments to the OAS charter.

The reference provoked the only bitter debate of the conference and a vote of 10-8 in which the United States and nine other countries beat off an attempt by Chile and Uruguay to have the reference deleted.

At the end of the debate, Mexico, Chile, Uruguay, Colombia, Peru and the Dominican Republic added a reservation to the act, stressing their position that approval of the plan to strengthen the OAS did not grant the organization new powers until the charter amendments have been approved.

Approved recommendations for strengthening the 17-year-old OAS included: holding of annual inter-American conferences; setting up political, economic, social, and educational-cultural councils, and strengthening the organization's human rights commission.

Amendments to the OAS charter will be drafted by a special conference to be held in Panama in February or March. They will go to a foreign ministers' conference in Buenos Aires in July for approval. Then they must be ratified by each country.

Baby Boom Sought

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)--A South African deputy minister has appealed to white married couples to celebrate South Africa's fifth anniversary as a republic in a special way--by having babies.

"You cannot celebrate the republic festival better next year than by giving a white child to this wonderful country of ours," said Michiel Botha.

According to the South African Press Association, Botha, speaking at a white men's club, added: "I would like to ask all white couples who can to give a white child to the republic.

"We must all help build.

"Our country needs more of us. Our population can increase in only two ways--by immigration and by births. Let those who can, help in this way."

Statistics show there are 427,000 white couples aged between 20 and 45 in South Africa, yet they had only produced 69,000 babies in the last statistical year, he said.

Latest statistics give South Africa's total population as almost 18 million, of which only 3.5 million are whites.

Jacobson Loss 'Chills' Icemen

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

Spartan hockey hopes were given a sudden jolt this week when it was learned that star left winger Mike Jacobson has been sidelined with a shoulder separation.

Jacobson, a junior letterwinner from Copper Cliff, Ont., suffered his injury in the Spartan's first victory of the season last Saturday night over St. Lawrence, 5-3.

Coach Arno Bessone, who felt the right-hand shooting performer was a vital factor to State's success this year, said that Jacobson might be out for the remainder of the season. It is definite, according to Bessone, that Jacobson will be absent from the Spartan's next four games. Jacobson, who had been slowly regaining his strength after injuring the same shoulder early in pre-season practice sessions, is now immobilized with a brace. He will take daily exercises and if he responds to treatment, he could possibly be back in uniform after the term break.

"It will be tough for him to regain full shooting power," said Bessone. "He shoots right handed and the right shoulder is the one that's injured."

The Spartans, seeking victories this weekend with home games against North Dakota, will definitely be hindered by the loss of Jacobson.

He was the team's second leading scorer last year behind All-American Doug Roberts. He netted 29 goals and assisted on 15 others for a total of 44 points. In addition, he had two hat tricks, one in less than a minute.

"Jacobson's the mainstay of our first line of offense," said Bessone. "He was our top goal getter last year."

Jacobson was a part of the "Copper Cliff" line composed of center Tom Mikola and right wing Sandy McAndrew. Last year the three combined for 65 of State's 165 goals.

Bessone, who juggled his lineup in the St. Lawrence victory, said that he'll do more of the same against North Dakota, last year's WHCA champion. In place of Jacobson, Bessone will use sophomore Nino Cristofoli, a rugged wingman from Trail, B.C. Cristofoli scored one of the Spartan's goals in the 4-3 loss to Colorado College.

With Jacobson out indefinitely, Bessone will have to rely more on Doug Volmar to provide the needed scoring punch.

Japanese Champion Retains Title

TOKYO (UPI)—Masahiko (Fighting) Harada battered Alan Rudkin relentlessly in the last nine minutes Tuesday night to successfully defend his world bantamweight championship with a unanimous 15-round decision over his English challenger.

Harada, making the first defense of the 118-pound crown he won from Eder Jofre in Nagoya last May, scored repeatedly with vicious rights to Rudkin's head and body in the 13th, 14th and 15th rounds to take a commanding edge on all three official scorecards.

STAN WASHINGTON'S RISE

Grade 'A' Success Story

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

The Stan Washington story is the type you often see portrayed on TV or in the movies. However, the story of State's star senior forward is true, and not even the names have been changed.

Washington recalls a childhood scarred by disciplinary problems on the streets of Detroit. "I was a little on the bad side," is the way he described it.

It was Washington's mother who both saved the day and the future of a fine basketball player. "She kept me from getting in a lot of trouble. She has been a great help to me," Washington explained.

"Of course I'm playing this year for the school, but I'm also playing for my mother and family," he said. State's 6-3, 175-pound forward wants a chance to play professional basketball. "I want to play pro, especially for my mother. I'd like to be able to buy her a new home."

Washington is dedicated to his team as well. "Everything I do is concerned with the team. I have no specific personal goals," he said.

Washington is looking forward to a big year for the Spartan cagers. "I am very optimistic about the team's chance. I think we have just as good a chance as any team in the Big Ten this year," he said.

A change in coaches is sometimes a big adjustment for a star player to make. However, the former all-stater from Deport is necessary for a successful team. "The football team got support this year. This means a lot to the players."

Benington moved Washington from guard to forward for this troit Northwestern is enthusiastic about playing for head coach John Benington.

"From what we have seen of him, Benington is a good coach. All of the fellows are putting forth their best effort for him. We are putting last season in the past and starting anew," he said.

Washington's sights are set high for this, his last season as a Spartan. "Basketball, this year, involves a lot of hard work, but we hope the final product is the national championship."

"Some think this is impossible—but I don't see it that way. I want to accomplish this and do my part. If I have to jump to the moon to get the national championship, I'll do it," he said. This is indicative of his excellent attitude.

Washington said student supseason. "It's best for the team," Washington said.

It's enjoyable to watch a college athlete have fun playing his chosen sport. "I think this is the only way to play. I like to have fun, but I always get up for the game—especially the Michigan game," he said while rubbing the palms of his hands together.

"Stan is probably the quickest kid I have ever coached, as well as being the best 6-3 jumper," Benington said. "He's small for a forward, but I don't think anyone will outjump him."

"He has the possibilities of becoming the best defensive man in the conference," Benington added.

"Washington's biggest problem is that he worries too much about pleasing those who are watching him," he said.

Washington's first chance "to please" will come in Saturday's opener against Western Michigan, which will be another episode in the "Stan Washington Story."

Washington's fellow coaches as having the nation's outstanding team," Daugherty said. The Spartans were picked by a United Press International board of coaches as the 1965 football season's top team.

"We will try hard to perform as a team on Jan. 1 in a manner that will reflect favorably on the judgment of those who selected us as National Champions," Daugherty said.

Lacrosse Club Opens Practice With Four All-Midwesterners

The MSU Lacrosse Club has begun practice this term in hopes of another winning season next spring.

Besides boasting an 8-4 record last year in its first season with a regular coach and third year of existence, the club had four players chosen for the all-midwest team.

Goalie Don Fouracre; Steve Herrington, attack; Bill Muir and Jim Robinson, mid-fielders, were selected for the team.

Coached by Herrington, the club has already won two exhibition games this term against Michigan. On Oct. 9 the Spartans defeated the Wolves, 6-3, in Ann Arbor and then again on Oct. 24 in Birmingham, 12-3.

Leading scorers were Muir, Fouracre and Dave White.

"The team looks pretty good for so early in the season," Fouracre said. "We have depth and scoring power at every position."

State's spring schedule includes games against U-M, Kenyon, Ohio State and Notre Dame. Lacrosse is very similar to ice hockey in principle. It is played outdoors on a field slightly larger than a football field. A small, hard-rubber ball is carried or "cradled" in the lacrosse stick. The stick is also used for throwing and catching the ball in addition to being a defensive weapon. A goal is made when the ball passes into the goal cage.

The MSU Lacrosse Club was organized three years ago when a few players from the East thought there would be enough interest to make it worth while.

"We've come a long way very quickly in three years," Bill Muir explained. "We were third in the Midwest last year and we hope to do even better this year."

Most of last year's team is back plus a number of new members. Interest is growing throughout the Midwest with more and more men wanting to play this unique sport.

The club will welcome all interested students.

Cagers Are 'Spirited' --Benington

MSU cager coach John Benington, for lack of a better description, labeled his team "interesting and spirited" in a speech delivered to the MSU Men's Club at the Union Tuesday night.

Benington, who came from St. Louis to replace Fordy Anderson this season, compared coaching with teaching. "When teaching you realize your mistakes and perhaps your 25 students do also," he said. "When coaching, perhaps 14,000 people watch you teach your team and thousands see your mistakes."

Benington discussed recruiting, academic minimums for players and the recent NCAA ruling which set a minimum grade point for players to maintain.

Most of the coaches are in agreement with the new rule, Benington said. Players can no longer attend school just to play basketball without gaining an education, he said.

Benington said he had six scholarships to award yearly. "If I invest scholarships in the players, I want them to make it. If they flunk, the scholarship could be lost for four years," he explained.

"When recruiting we talk to them as future college students," he said.

Benington said that it was both an honor and a boost to "follow" the Spartan football team's performance. He felt that the basketball team had certain things in common with the football team such as "fine spirit".

Benington realizes that his team will be up against a rugged schedule this season, but is confident that the team "won't embarrass the school this year."

Benington, who has a bachelor's degree in accounting and a master's degree in guidance and counseling, has been a head coach for the past nine years. He spent two years at Drake and seven at St. Louis.

State will be playing at an invitational tournament in Hawaii during the Christmas holidays and will stop off at the Rose Bowl to cheer the football team to victory before returning home.

Services Set For Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Funeral services will be held here Wednesday for Stanley Woodward, 71, former sports editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

Woodward died in White Plains, N.Y., Monday after a long illness.

New Art Gallery To Open Sunday

The Lansing Community Gallery, first of its kind in Lansing, will hold an open house from 5 to 7 p.m. Sunday.

The gallery is located at 124 W. Ionia St., the former location of Lansing Business University. Two first prizes have been awarded for the first showing. Jens Plum, assistant professor of art, took one of the first prizes with his painting "Child with Middy Blouse."

Stacy Proffitt, instructor in art, took the other with his painting "Alert Orange."

The gallery will have a rental room open between 1 and 5 p.m. Sundays. Rental fees will range from $5 to $15 for three months' possession, depending on the value of the work.

A group of businessmen, teachers and artists started the gallery under the urging of Mrs. Judith Leeper, an art teacher at J.W. Sexton High School.

The first show will run through Jan. 12. Regular hours are 1-5 p.m. Saturday, Sunday, and Wednesday, and 4-10 p.m. Friday.

Starting Dec. 12 two rooms of the gallery will be devoted to an exhibit of children's art from Saturday classes sponsored by the Junior League in cooperation with the Lansing Public Schools.

Thumb Aid For Bowl Travelers

If your trip to the Rose Bowl can't go off without a hitch, there are some good signs in sight.

Signs for hitchhikers to and from Pasadena, called "Hitchin' Posters," are the brainchild of a Michigan State trio.

Mrs. Kathryn E. Perry, head of the MSU Library circulation department, said she and her son, Dennis, 22, a 1965 graduate, have been working on the idea for some time.

They collaborated with Dr. Laurel Peck, a Lansing chiropractor, who has worked in the MSU sign shop for several years.

The three have formed and registered the Apex Sign Co., using a small building on the edge of town for printing the signs.

The 14" x 24" posters are printed with green waterproof ink on railroad board. On one side of the poster is "Michigan State-East Lansing" in big green letters.

The other side has "Michigan State" and the student's destination.

Special posters have been made which say "Rose Bowl" with a border of red roses around the words. At the top is "Go! MSU."

Mrs. Perry said the East Lansing Safety Commission has agreed that the posters will be a definite aid to hitchhiking students.

The posters have the names of towns all over Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Blank posters can be bought, however, Mrs. Perry said, and any name can be written in.

The posters are being sold for $1 at the MSU International Center and Union, Gibson's Bookstore and Paramount News.

proved the final practice of the block.

The MSU Rose Bowl Committee had told Carman it expected a professional performance from the block before it would give approval for the block to go as a card section.

Carman said the block is planning on buying capes for the members to wear during the games and performances next year.

"Some money will be set aside by ASMSU for this purpose, we think," he said.

Block S is also going to seek professional guidance in planning next year's programs.

DON'T DROP IT--The coed is looking over the art objects on sale at the Kresge Art Center Christmas show. The show will continue to Dec. 23.

Student's Plane Crash-Lands

An MSU student made a crash landing on 1-96 in his twin-engine plane Tuesday.

David Blake, East Lansing junior, was flying to Lansing from an airport near Grand Rapids when his plane developed engine trouble and the hydraulic landing gear became inoperable.

Originally radioing to Grand Rapids that he would try to reach Ionia Airport, he began losing altitude quickly and decided to try landing on 1-96.

"I was worried about clearing an overpass," Blake said, "but when I saw the lights of a truck,

I just followed them in for a deadstick (no power) landing."

Skimming over the overpass, he flew the plane into the east-bound lane and slid into a median and four inches of snow.

The plane skidded about 200 feet before stopping.

Blake said that his fuel gauge indicated that the plane had only a quarter tank of gas, causing him to believe that the trouble was in the fuel lines.

Prof Notes Changes In Family Life

In 1928, there were three married couples in the Michigan Agricultural College student body. In the 1960s, over 6,000--about one-fifth of the MSU population--are married.

These and other changes in the condition of the American family were discussed by Myrtle Reul, associate professor of social work, last week at a meeting of the Moslem Students Assn.

Mrs. Reul, who has done work among southern Negroes, migrant workers and American Indians, noted several such changes. She described a shift from the father-centered, low-divorce, religious society of 75 years ago.

Today women often take over the role of breadwinner, have a higher rate of divorce, and participate less in religious activities, she said.

The family unit--parents and children--is more mobile, she said, since over one-fifth of all American families move each year. The individual is also more mobile, she said, and leaves the family early to marry. Divorce, therefore, often comes earlier than ever before.

Children tend to take opposite religious viewpoints from those of their parents, she said, with the general trend being away from organized religious affiliations.
