The queen will be announced Wednesday, October 19 and presented at the Homecoming Dance.

Academic freedom moves slowly toward reality

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

The academic council Tuesday gave the faculty committee on student affairs another "freedom bone" to chew on in revising its guideline report: Should the proposed student-faculty judiciary have the power to issue injunctions?

The suggestion for giving the judiciary the injunctive power, without a hearing, was one of the numerous recommendations received from faculty members this summer in the report. The report suggests guidelines for University regulations and structures affecting academic freedom.

Due process stressed

The academic council, a group including the major administrative officials concerned with student affairs and representatives of each college, has been going over the faculty recommendations point by point.

The academic council has set Dec. 6 as the tentative date for drawing up the document in a final amended form, said William H. Combs, secretary of the faculties.

Then the report, which stresses the principles of "due process" and "maximum freedom and necessary order" in University regulations, may go before the academic senate.

The council discussed the question of an injunction at its Tuesday meeting.

As proposed by the faculty recommendation, the student-faculty judiciary could issue an injunction, without a hearing, if time were an important element in a case involving interference with academic freedom.

ENDS VIET TRIP

McNamara optimistic about military progress

Saigon, South Viet Nam (AP) - Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, winding up his eighth visit to Viet Nam, said Thursday the rate of progress in military operations during the past year "has exceeded our expectations."

He told newsmen he sees nothing that would indicate a substantial change in the rate of those military operations or deployment of U.S. forces here in the months ahead.

McNamara talked with newsmen after a four-day tour in which he inspected American military centers from the Saigon area to the rugged Marine battlefield on the edge of the demilitarized zone blanketing the border between the two Viet Nams.

U.S. B52 bombers pounded the zone again Thursday, hammering at Communist troops and war supplies massed there in violation of the 1954 Geneva treaty.

Only small ground actions were reported, but U.S. airmen gave North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong no respite from bombing attacks. Three American planes were reported shot down, one in the North and two in the South.

Pressure on the Viet Cong has been greater than anticipated, he said. He explained that this pressure referred to casualties dealt to the enemy and their supplies, and their effect on Communist morale.

"Progress in the South Vietnamese economy has been more than we would have forecast a year ago," he added.

McNamara noted the effect on the economy of an influx of military forces and aid. He said the government of South Viet Nam had shown great political courage in devaluing the Vietnamese currency last June and that inflation has been stemmed.

McNamara said the South Vietnamese program of pacification, which now goes under the name of revolutionary development, has proved sound.

38,107 students set enrollment record for MSU

Enrollment figures hit a record on the MSU campus with 38,107 students registered here for fall term.

According to figures released by the registrar's office, this represents a seven per cent increase over the 35,451 enrolled a year ago.

Total enrollment for MSU this term is 44,616, up eight per cent from last year's 41,260. This figure reflects increases at MSU affiliate, Oakland University, and in credit extension enrollment, plus a decrease in enrollment at MSU's resident centers.

Oakland's enrollment is 3,142, this year, up 28 per cent.
MSU's resident centers--in Benton Harbor, Grand Rapids, Pontiac, Traverse City, Saginaw, Marquette, and the Kellogg Center in East Lansing--showed a decrease of six per cent from 2,353 to 2,202.

Arabs Charge Israel With Aggression Plans

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) -- The 12-nation Arab group charged Thursday that Israel was seeking an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council in order to create suitable conditions for massive aggression against Syria.

They made the charge in advance of a meeting of the council Friday, requested by Israel, which had accused Syria of trying to stir up a new war between Israel and the Arab nations.

Burhan Hammad, secretary of the Arab group and member of the Jordan delegation, said that the group had decided at a meeting to throw its unanimous support to Syria. The members are Algeria, Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libya, Morocco, Saudi Arabia, Sudan,

Hammad said: "In dismissing the Israeli complaint as artificial and faked, the Arab group observed that Israel seeks to achieve two goals: the creation of suitable conditions for the perpetration of massive aggression against Syria and other Arab states, and the establishment of a calculated atmosphere at the United Nations during its discussion of the Palestine question in the Special Political Committee next week."

The Israeli complaint was based on incidents along the Syrian-Israeli border. Israel blamed a sabotage group, El Fatah, of Palestine Arab refugees allegedly based in Syria.

The U.N. Special Political Committee is set to take up the perennial issue of raising money for the care of the 1.3 million refugees from the 1948 Israeli-Arab war by the U.N. Relief and Works Agency. The debate offers an arena for a full-scale airing of Israeli and Arab differences.

Syria has disclaimed responsibility for the border incidents. Last Saturday four Israeli policemen were killed and two injured in the explosion of a land mine Israel claims was planted by the sabotage group.

CHINA BLAMED

Kosygin hits Red discord

MOSCOW (AP) -- Premier Alexei N. Kosygin angrily charged today that Red China has prevented world communism from putting "a quick end" to U.S. military actions in Viet Nam.

He spoke at a Soviet-Polish friendship meeting in Sverdlovsk, in the Urals. "Had American imperialism encountered the joint rebuff of all countries of socialism, then it is doubtless that a quick end would have been put to its outrages in Viet Nam and the aggression would be cut short," he said.

"China's position has become a serious obstacle in the struggle for this sacred cause."

"Military personnel for the armed forces of North Viet Nam are being trained in the Soviet Union," he said. Kosygin made the speech during a visit to the Soviet Union by Polish Communist party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka and other Polish officials for talks on Viet Nam and Red China.

Enemy to socialism

Kosygin accused Peking of rendering "a big service to American imperialists, to all the enemies of socialism, to the enemies of peace and progress."

Summarizing part of Kosygin's speech, Tass reported:

"The Soviet prime minister said the events in China associated with the so-called 'great cultural revolution,' and other recent developments indicated that the Chinese leaders were proceeding further and further along the road of division, and were causing serious damage by their policy to the struggle for socialism, for the freedom of the peoples, to the cause of peace and international security."

INITIAL REPORT

ASMSU pay approved

By BEVERLY TWITCHELL
State News Staff Writer

The compensation committee has officially endorsed compensation for officials of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU).

Using constitutional guidelines, the committee recommended compensation for the ASMSU Chairman at $75 this term, $70 for the vice chairman and cabinet president, $65 for the secretary and comptroller, $20 for members - at - large and major governing group presidents, and $15 for the cabinet vice presidents.

The report is the initial and temporary judgment of the committee and must now be referred to the major governing groups for approval. The final report will be published Oct. 21.

Ralph Faust, chairman of the committee, urged that students express opinions concerning the report to their major governing group representatives, so that suggestions might be effectively incorporated into the final report.

Compensation was based primarily upon three considerations: public responsibility of the individual under student scrutiny; responsibility within the ASMSU structure; and the amount of money to work with. The constitutional amendment which set up the committee last spring also set the sum to work with at 2 per cent of the previous term's taxes. This amounts to about $665 for this term.

The information in the report of the committee is the result of a series of hearings of student government officials, discussions with major governing groups, and discussions among the committee members.

The committee first had to decide whether compensation was to be given at all. The decision was 4 to 2 in favor of compensation to selected ASMSU officials, for three reasons:

--compensation is a payment for services rendered, with an analogy to token compensation received by city government officials;

--compensation may help give added recognition to student government officials who had previously received none;

--compensation, although token, will help provide incentive for talented people to enter student government and to seek advancement. According to the same constitutional amendment, another compensation committee must be set up the eighth week of this term to decide again if ASMSU officials are to be compensated next term and how.

Mail robbery nets nearly $500,000

MONTREAL (AP) - The Montreal district postmaster, Hector Cormier, said Thursday night thieves made off with much less than $500,000 in an early morning robbery at Montreal International Airport.

Police said earlier that $1 million in bills was taken by thieves who hacked through a heavy mesh screen into the airport's mail room while employees were off on a meal break.

"We don't know how much was taken, but it was worth nothing like $1 million," Cormier said. "It was much less - probably under $500,000 and by no means all in cash."

Coeds catch fish, not tetanus, in Cedar Dead carp tell no tales. If they did the two foot-long carp snatched bar-handed from the Red Cedar River Wednesday by Sue Harris and Sue Kahn, would tell a whole of a fish story.

The coeds were practicing for the women's division of the Shaw Hall sponsored All-University Canoe Race scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday when they made their prize catch.

"It was still alive when we lugged it into the canoe," Harris says, "but no one would believe our fish story if we didn't have proof."

Both girls grabbed an end of the wiggling six-pounder and nonchalantly walked through campus to North Case Hall. They placed the smelly river denizen in a clothing box and told their Head Resident Adviser, Mrs. Robert MacLauchlin, to come down and sign for a package.

After the shock of finding a dead carp in a clothing box Mrs. MacLauchlin capitalized on the joke and played it on anyone who looked as if he'd bite.

The carp made the rounds for an entire afternoon before Miss Harris and Miss Kahn went to recover it. But it was nowhere to be found.

It was last seen before suppertime.

Moderates must denounce militants

Ever since the day 5,000 Negroes stood in front of the Capitol building in Jackson, Miss. chanting "Black Power," the split in the civil rights movement has been rapidly deepening.

No one knows precisely what "Black Power" means or was intended to mean, but generally it has come to be the symbol of militancy within the movement.

This militancy has several different components, the two main ones being violence and black separatism.

Black racist

When these two strands are combined in the same person the result is a bigot who is just as obnoxious and just as dangerous as any white racist, North or South. The moderates on the other hand are the people who have been in control of the movement so far.

They differ sharply with the militants, for rather than working toward separatism and violence, they hope to attain a situation in which both races can live together.

Progress by moderates

The moderates have been responsible for most of the progress which has been made to date.

While many of the militants belittle the progress, one has only to note the difference between today and the Little Rock crisis, ten years ago, to realize that the progress has been significant, even though there is much left to be done.

READERS' MINDS

War destruction, not profit

To the Editor:

In an alleged effort to clear up the issue of the War in Viet Nam, the Students for a Democratic Society have again come forth with pretensions that merely add confusion. The leaflets handed out at Careers '66, entitled "War is Good Business," have taken the war and blamed it and its continuation to the all-time scapegoat—business and industry.

While it is obviously true that industry does sign contracts with the government for the defense machine, SDS goes on to claim that war for the businessman is a way of profiteering. It provides an outlet for their services upon which they make a good return.

It is therefore profitable and to their best interests to encourage wars—more specifically the War in Viet Nam, i.e. without war, business is bad.

To begin with, it should be well known that war destroys—not only physically and morally, but financially as well, both for the country where the war is taking place and for the nation that is being drained to support the war.

Until recently the presence of a small militant minority probably helped the moderate wing of the movement, by making it look good by comparison.

Backlash is here

Now the backlash is here, and it threatens to undo the progress made by the moderates so far, because many whites lump all participants in the Negro movement together and fail to differentiate among them.

To avoid the effects of backlash against the entire movement, it may be necessary for the moderate leadership to disassociate itself entirely from the militants.

In this respect the moderate leaders are caught in a real dilemma. On one hand they are opposed to militancy and want nothing to do with it.

On the other hand, if they publicly disassociate themselves from the militant leaders, they may alienate much of the rank and file and lose any chance of regaining undisputed leadership of the movement.

High stakes

However, the stakes are too high and the consequences of the backlash too great to do nothing.

If the non-violent approach is to remain a force in the civil rights struggle, and it should, its leaders must repudiate separatist and violence-oriented groups.

ASMSU tackles 'real issues'

ASMSU's involvement in political issues, as shown by its appropriation of $1,000 to the 18-year-old vote issue is an important and desirable step in a new direction for MSU's student government.

But like any new venture, it has its pitfalls.

One foreseeable difficulty it faces is staying out of the partisan political arena.

The board was elected on non-partisan campus issues. It has no mandate to become involved in partisan issues.

How realistic?

In an effort to avoid involvement in partisan issues, the Board passed a resolution last Tuesday. It stated that ASMSU will not endorse a political candidate nor a political party; it may however, endorse a political issue. ASMSU will not contribute financially to any partisan political campaign.

This resolution is high-minded. Realistically, however, ASMSU will probably undergo much trial - and - error in learning which political issues safely are bipartisan.

Another problem ASMSU faces is finding a method for gauging student support for opinion of an issue. ASMSU is a representative body. It must therefore, support the issues the majority of students support.

Resolve conflict

But ASMSU must also be a political initiator. It must place the issues before the students.

At the same time, it must avoid taking a stand until it has heard the views of its constituents. In appropriating $1,000 to the 18-year-old campaign, the Board operated in reverse because it did not effectively gauge student opinion first.

In short, ASMSU must resolve the conflict between its role as initiator and representative.

These problems and ASMSU's potential mistakes in solving them are the costs for venturing into a new field, the costs for expanding beyond the stereotyped bread-and-circuses role of student government.

In our opinion, these costs are worth the potential reward to the student body: a student government involved in real issues.

ELLEN ZURKEY

Campaigning wives busy

It takes a rare breed of woman to be the wife of a politician.

She is a woman who (typically) has interests both inside and outside of the political spectrum. She probably has a family, maybe a career of her own, and probably interests of her own. But she most definitely has a busier life during an election year.

If women are known to do a lot of talking, the wife of a politician does more. During this election year, for example, Mrs. Helen Milliken (wife of incumbent Lt. Gov. William Milliken) drove all morning from her Traverse City home to attend a coffee given in her honor by the Lansing Republican Women's Club.

"I play the role all wives play during an election year," Mrs. Milliken said. "It is the role of going to coffees, teas, and luncheons sponsored by Republican organizations."

"It is also helpful to attend functions given by independent groups such as churches and schools whenever possible," she said.

Once you or a member of your family becomes involved in politics your life changes in some degree, most political wives agree.

"Your circle of friends becomes largely political," Mrs. Milliken said.

From August until November it's one smile after another.

She may campaign on her own—or she may travel with her husband. Mrs. Robert Griffin, for instance, visited MSU with the senator.

As Griffin went through the crowd shaking hands and greeting people, Mrs. Griffin would follow giving each constituent a personal word and spending more time with him than the senator could. Mrs. Griffin then entertained those present as her husband spent time with the press.

There is also the kind of wife who maintains her own career and tries to fuse it with her husband's campaign on weekends. Such a wife is Mrs. Ellen Ferency (wife of Democratic candidate for governor, Zolton Ferency).

Mrs. Ferency is a teacher during the week. But this year she is her husband's number one week-end campaigner.

What can a wife do? When asked to answer questions Mrs. Ferency says, "With or without combed hair? Do I have time? Have I enough lipstick on? Has my husband arrived yet?" all this in one breath.

Because—ask any politician's wife—campaigning hardly leaves time to blink.

A politician's wife must not only speak, she must speak with certainty. She must speak without hesitation. But most of all she must speak without error.

Whatever she says, inevitably reflects on her husband, which in turn means votes either won or lost.

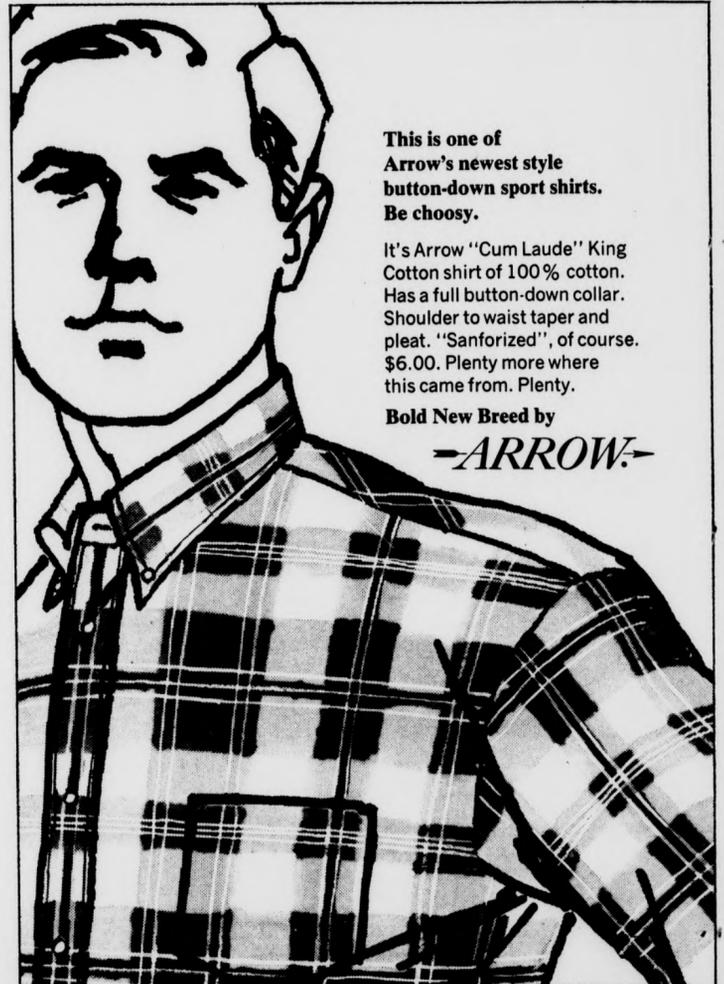

What happens if her husband loses? "This is a problem many people have had to face," said Mrs. Milliken. "I don't know what other people would do but I suppose we would go back to our department store in Traverse City."

Diane Ferency, niece of Zolton Ferency (Democratic candidate for governor) is yet another example of a woman in politics.

Miss Ferency, MSU Gross Ile sophomore, is participating in the campaign in still another manner. She passes out leaflets supporting her uncle's campaign before football games and speaks informally with her friends about the coming election.

"Whether male or female, students just don't have the time for active campaigning," she says.

Women related to politicians have the primary job of stimulating interest in the election. Most agree that their role is a subtle one. Their role is the extension of feminine instincts; to listen to their husbands' problems, to offer advice when asked, and to be there when needed.

Bold New Breed by ARROW

The money is simply diverted from the many to the few and to destruction.

Overall, the equation for war is destruction and expenditures equal loss. War is not good business, but very bad business. And to attribute the war in Viet Nam to the business enterprises of this country is an entire misnomer.

Quake splits Sudan mountain

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—Kordani Mountain, in the Nuba range of western Kordofan Province, split in two Wednesday following nine earth tremors in four days. Such tremors were last felt in Sudan in 1938. One lasting 10 seconds started an avalanche that buried alive a young boy. Other tremors ruined a village of 64 houses and destroyed shops and houses in another.

Cancer element isolated

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A major cancer-causing element in cigarette smoke discovered through Texas research can be eliminated, a member of the U.S. Surgeon General's Advisory Committee said Thursday. He declined to elaborate because he said he would be "betraying the confidence of the investigator," but he said the discovery would be published "in a scientific publication" in perhaps six months.

Dr. Charles A. LeMaistre, University of Texas vice-chancellor for health affairs, did not realize newsmen were present when he disclosed the discovery at an organizational meeting for the Texas Inter-agency Council on Smoking and Health.

Britain sends 'final terms'

BLACKPOOL, ENGLAND (AP)—Britain on Thursday night sent off "final terms" for a compromise with rebellious Rhodesia, warning that some compulsory sanctions will be imposed through the United Nations if the new talks fail. The opposition Conservative party immediately pledged tooth-and-nail resistance against any form of U.N. intervention. Deputy Leader Reginald Maudling told the Conservative annual convention that "disaster for Britain, Rhodesia and all southern Africa" will follow if compulsory sanctions are imposed.

Political fur flying in Wolverine State

MICHIGAN (AP)—Democratic gubernatorial candidate Zolton Ferency demanded an apology from Republican Gov. George Romney Thursday over the governor's reference to him as a violator of fair campaign practices.

Ferency, campaigning in West Michigan, challenged Romney's statement that he, Ferency, had been cited by the State Fair Campaign Practices Commission for distorting a Romney comment on open housing in 1964. Ferency said Romney has become "desperate" under campaign pressure and "has nothing constructive to say."

Romney, visiting southern Lower Michigan, criticized President Johnson.

Former Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams, contender for the U.S. Senate, toured in the Upper Peninsula again while his rival, Republican Sen. Robert P. Griffin, was in Washington on Senate business.

"In his state of the union address, President Johnson said: 'A great nation is one which breeds a great people.' The President was wrong," said Romney. "It is a great people that builds a great nation."

Romney spoke at Bronson and stressed individual citizenship responsibility. "I believe that the unique sources of America's greatness are in gravest jeopardy," said Romney. "We have seen the vital areas of people's responsibility eroded almost to the point where the government is the country; where the government, rather than the people, is the all important element."

Griffin was in Washington for the day where he assailed the draft law, saying local draft boards had too much leeway in deciding who should be deferred. Griffin called for establishment of a board of review that would automatically study all deferments.

"It's the federal government that's drafting these people, not the local governments," said Griffin. "Federal policies should apply."

Williams toured the Escanaba area, delivering a nonpolitical speech to students at Bay de Noc College.

A former assistant secretary of state for African affairs, Williams told 150 students "What we are and what we do in America has an effect on what happens around the world."

He said: "Don't ever think that what you do as individuals does not have an effect on international relations. The Peace Corps, which is person to person diplomacy, has more impact on the world than what we may think up in the State Department."

U.S.S.R. says Yanks stole Russian bear

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet authorities are holding two young Americans in solitary confinement on charges of stealing a statue of a bear from a Leningrad hotel, the U.S. Embassy said Thursday.

The embassy identified the youths as Buel Wortham Jr., 25, of North Little Rock, Ark.; and Craddock M. Gilmour Jr., 24, of Montclair, N.J.

The two were arrested Oct. 1 and are being held in separate solitary cells in Leningrad.

Soviet officials were investigating possible charges of aggravated theft. Conviction carries punishment of up to six years in prison.

There was no immediate indication how long the investigation would last or whether it would end with the Americans being put on trial.

In Washington, State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the Soviet Foreign Ministry had been asked for "a speedy resolution of the case, rather than permitting what appears to be a prank, and not a serious crime, to grow into an international incident."

An embassy consular officer, Harlan Moen, who visited Wortham and Gilmour on Tuesday said they were well, but he found their conditions of confinement trying. He left them reading material.

Moen gained access to the prisoners three days after a request by the U.S. political counselor, Davis E. Boster, who was informed by the Soviet Foreign Ministry of the arrests.

Wortham and Gilmour were arrested at the Finnish border as they were driving out of the Soviet Union, the embassy said.

They had gone to Leningrad as part of a European tour after service as U.S. Army lieutenants in Germany.

The antique statue of a bear "was allegedly discovered in their effects during customs examination," the embassy said. Information about the statue, including its value, was not available.

In North Little Rock, Wortham's mother, said: "I can't believe it boils down to anything more than a souvenir."

In Salt Lake City, Gilmour's father said the family was sure the State Department is doing everything possible for the two. He said his son entered the Soviet Union Sept. 24 on a tourist visa.

The report of the arrest came 10 days after another American, Peace Corps member Thomas R. Dawson of Annapolis, Md., was released by Soviet authorities.

Dawson was held for 22 days after he wandered across the Iranian border into the Soviet Union.

Tourist Newcomb Mott was convicted last year on a charge of illegally entering the Soviet Union. He died Jan. 20 on a Soviet prison train. The U.S. government has never fully accepted the Soviet version that he committed suicide.

LBJ campaigns for party support

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—President Johnson, describing Republicans as experts on fear, urged Delaware voters Thursday to show pride in their President and their Congress by supporting Democrats in the Nov. 8 congressional election.

He told a cheering crowd of more than 15,000 in downtown Wilmington that the Democrats are "your real friends."

"So go vote for your friends on Nov. 8," he said.

Johnson waded into sidewalk crowds—estimated at 75,000 people—from the airport to Rodney Square downtown—shaking hands and praising the party's candidates.

Heading back to Washington after campaigning and an hour's personal diplomacy in New York City, Johnson hammered away at the GOP at a Democratic rally in packed Rodney Square.

After a 15 minute political talk, Johnson quit the rostrum—and hurried back to announce over the loudspeaker to the still cheering crowd that he would have a broadcast news conference in Washington later on all the networks. He said, "Don't forget to watch it."

Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr., and Rep. Harris B. McDowell Jr. joined Johnson on the slow-moving motorcade. The President used a portable loudspeaker from his car to exhort the crowds with "I want you to vote Democratic."

At one point, as he stood shaking hands, somebody snatched the handkerchief out of his jacket pocket, but Johnson snatched it back.

All along the way, Johnson thanked the throng for turning out on a warm, sunny fall day. "They told me Delaware was a small state but, my goodness, you got more people than Texas," he said.

Besides McDowell, Johnson also gave enthusiastic endorsement to James M. Tunnell Jr., a candidate for the U.S. Senate who is hoping to oust Republican incumbent J. Caleb Boggs.

Before flying to Wilmington, Johnson conferred with neutralist Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma of Laos in the 35th-floor presidential suite of New York's Waldorf Towers.

But he switched back to politics as he walked out the Waldorf door. He spotted a crowd lining Park Avenue and strode over for a final round of New York handshaking.

Spartans arrive; OSU vigil ends

By ED BRILL

State News Sports Writer

Michigan State's undefeated and top-ranked legion of Spartans journeys to Ohio State this weekend, and for the Buckeyes of Woody Hayes it's about time. "I understand they have been pointing for us for some time," is how MSU Coach Duffy Daugherty mildly put it.

No one in Columbus, and especially not Hayes, can forget the game last year in East Laning, when the Spartans routed Ohio State, 32-7. The Bucks literally rolled backwards, with a net of minus 22 yards rushing.

In Ohio State spring practice this year, one team wore scarlet, the other green and white. "That was either us or Notre Dame," joked Daugherty, "and they don't play Notre Dame."

The Buckeyes have been looking forward to this game so long that they seemingly forget about some of the others. Winners of only one of three starts, Ohio State dropped their first conference game last week to Illinois, 10-9.

No one is quite sure what to expect from the usually predictable Hayes. Two weeks ago, against Washington, the Buckeyes abandoned their classic offense, filled the air with 38 passes. Twenty-one were completed for 228 yards and two touchdowns, but Ohio State lost, 38-22.

Then last Saturday, the Bucks returned to the ground attack, rolling up 259 rushing yards. But again they lost, despite a record field goal performance by Gary Cairns. Cairns kicked three in all, one for 55 yards, both Big Ten marks.

"They're big and they're strong," Daugherty said of Hayes' relatively young team. "It'll be another dogfight."

Top offensive performers for the Buckeyes are right halfback Bo Rein, who doubles as a pass receiver, and end Billy Anders, who has caught 21 passes for 251 yards and one touchdown.

Fullback Paul Hudson is the workhorse of the backfield, with 199 yards in 51 carries. And sophomore quarterback Bill Long will be sure to test the Spartan secondary. Long has completed 38 of 59 passes for 382 yards and two touchdowns.

The Buckeyes expect touted halfback Dave Reynolds to return to action after missing most of the season with injuries.

Hayes also boasts the biggest offensive line in the conference, led by tackles Mike Current and sophomore Dave Foley, both near the 250-pound mark.

The Spartans, going for their 5th victory in seven tries against the Buckeyes, will most likely rely again on their devastating ground attack.

MSU rates third in the nation in rushing offense with an average of 244.5 yards a game. Fullback Bob Apisa leads the Spartan runners with a total of 298 yards on 49 carries, a 6.1 average.

Halfback Clint Jones and quarterback Jimmy Raye have both gained over 200 yards running, and halfback Dwight Lee shows a 5.1 average with his 143 yards.

Even if Hayes had counted on a ground attack, the Spartan defense will probably change his mind quickly. Allowing only 41.5 yards rushing per game, the defense, led by Bubba Smith, George Webster and Charlie Thornhill, have forced every Spartan opponent this year to take to the air.

And the MSU secondary has allowed 597 yards passing in four games. Three of the four touchdowns scored against the Spartans this year, have come through the air.

Starters for the Spartans figure to remain the same, with the possible exception of Dave Techlin at offensive guard. If Techlin has not fully recovered from his ankle injury last week, Mitch Prulett will start in his place.

On the offensive line for MSU will be Al Brenner at left end,

Joe Przybycki and Jerry West at the tackles, Tony Conti and Techlin or Prulett at the guards, Larry Smith at center and Gene Washington at right end.

Raye will be at quarterback for the Spartans, Jones and Lee at halfback and Apisa will run from the fullback slot.

The defense will have Smith and Phil Hoag at the ends, Charles Bailey and Nick Jordan at tackles and Pat Gallinagh and Jeff Richardson at guards.

Thornhill and Webster will play behind the line with Jim Summers, Jerry Jones and Jess Phillips deep.

Irish, EMU here for harrier meet

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

To get revenge and to set a precedent; these will be the motivating forces behind the MSU cross country team when it takes on Notre Dame and Eastern Michigan in its only triangular meet of the season. The meet is at 4 p.m. today on Forest Akers Golf Course.

The Spartans will be looking to avenge a humiliating defeat at the hands of Notre Dame last season and annex their first meet ever against Eastern.

MSU will be playing Notre Dame for the 15th time in 18 years and looking for its 10th victory in the span.

The Irish have emerged victorious in the last three meetings, however, taking last year's contest by a humiliating 17-43 score. In addition they have nine returning letterman from that squad.

One face the Spartans will remember is that of Notre Dame's Bill Leahy. Leahy took second place last year at Notre Dame with a 24:22 time, 32 seconds better than MSU's first finisher, Dick Sharkey, who was fifth.

Also returning for the Irish will be seniors Don Bergan, Harold Spiro and Bob Walsh, and juniors Pete Farrell, Ken Howard, Bob Timm, Charles Behorn and John Wholey.

Notre Dame, which was second to MSU's sixth in the IC4A and ninth to MSU's 15th in the NCAA meet last season, started its dual meet season off by finishing second in a triangular meet last week. It lost to Minnesota (MSU's toughest contender for the conference crown) and defeated Indiana (who the Spartans defeated in their first dual meet) Saturday at Bloomington.

Eastern Michigan has swept to a 3-0 dual meet record this season by defeating Central Michigan, Wheaton and the University of Chicago.

Eastern is expected to enter a pair of runners from each class in the meet. Seniors Tony Missud and Terry Norman will lead the Huron squad, followed by juniors Jim Oberling and Roy Pihlaga, sophomores Ken Head and John Daniel and freshmen Chris Abuhli and Glen Duke.

MSU is expected to counter with Captain Dick Sharkey, who has yet to lose a race, George Balthrop, Roger Merchant, Eric Zemper, Art Link, Dean Rosenberg, Dale Stanley, Claudell James, Pat Wilson and Mike Rummell.

The Spartans currently possess a 2-0 dual meet record for the season.

History lesson for Buckeyes

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Editor

Those students who have a soft spot in their hearts for history will surely recall the fabled land wars fought by the Spartans of old.

These were the days before the airplane. The conflicts were composed strictly of ground attacks.

The Wright Brothers invented the airplane, and things changed. World War I brought the air battles.

Air strikes became necessary, for survival. Today, few battles are fought strictly on the ground.

Everyone is going to the air. We are building faster airplanes and more powerful space ships to reach the moon.

Let's face it, air is in. This brief history of air warfare may not seem immediately significant, but a definite parallel is evident when one considers the evolution of air warfare in the sport of football.

When the great gridiron sport began, the battle was "ground-bound." There was no forward pass. There was no air attack.

A guy named Knute Rockne came along with a revolutionary new invention—the pass.

Things changed on the football field, as they did on the battlefield following the Wright Brothers' brain storm.

The air became filled with footballs. Attacks were now thoroughly mixed between ground and air. Many offenses lean to a greater emphasis on the passing side. An example was last Saturday when Michigan fired 47 passes against MSU.

As far as football is concerned, air is in. But no one has told a pair of the more famous of the Big Ten's commanding officers about the accent on air, or at least these two have paid little heed to the aerial movement.

Michigan State Coach Duffy Daugherty and Ohio State's general, Woody Hayes, still cling to the past and throw only when all else fails.

Saturday's encounter between Daugherty and Hayes is the renewal of one of the country's foremost ground battles. A battle between two advocates of pre-Rockne football.

Daugherty says, "I want to move the ball the surest, safest way possible, and I don't consider passing either sure or safe." Hayes has immortalized the famous, "Three yards and a cloud of dust" philosophy.

Ohio State and MSU rank 2-3, respectively, in the conference's rushing statistics. Conversely, the Spartans are ninth and the Bucks 10th in net passing yardage.

It's a sad day for the turf when these two armies meet.

Daugherty is stubborn and refuses to pass. His defense literally beats up the opponents, and the Spartan offense scores its touchdowns late in the game, against what is left of the foe.

Daugherty can afford to be stubborn. He's No. 1.

Hayes has lost two in a row, and if he loses Saturday, it will be the first time that his Bucks have ever dropped three in a row. Saturday should result in the evolution of a Woody Hayes. Daugherty will win, like he always does—via the ground route. Hayes will be forced to pass.

His cherished ground game will be stopped by the Spartan defense, and he will have to give up his cherished, old-fashioned style of play, much as he did against Washington State two weeks ago.

The Bucks threw 38 times, but lost, 38-22.

Ohio State wants so badly to beat the Spartans that they have been keyed for MSU since last spring. They lost here, 32-7, last fall. They won't like losing this one.

The loss will be comparable to Achilles' loss of his friend Patroclus. Or, more appropriately, the fall of Athens to the Spartans of old.

And Ohio State, with its hopes for a Big Ten championship shattered, will be left crying, face-down on what is left of the Columbus, Ohio, battlefield.

Wally Moses named Tiger 1st base coach

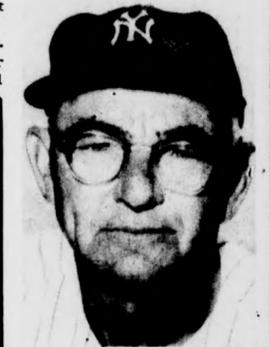

DETROIT (UPI) — Wally Moses, former Philadelphia A's star and since 1961 a coach and instructor for the New York Yankees, was named batting and first base coach for the Detroit Tigers Thursday.

The selection of Moses rounded out the Tiger coaching staff for 1967. Mayo Smith, the new Detroit manager, ousted last season's Tiger coaches and brought in four veterans.

Moses, 56, had a lifetime batting average of .291 in a career spanning 2,012 games and 21 years. He broke into baseball in 1931, reached the Athletics in 1935 and also played for the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox.

He closed his career with his old team, the A's, from 1949 to 1952. His best year was 1936 when he hit .345 for Philadelphia.

Booters face Akron next

The "perfect" MSU soccer team, fresh from a tough 6-1 decision over Denison with a 4-0 record, takes on the University of Akron here at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. Akron's record is 7-0. It whipped Denison 3-2, earlier, and Coach Gene Kenney, once again, calls this the "toughest game so far."

The Zips, as they are called, have two All Midwest front line-men, Andy Vadnay and Jim Fante, and a fast sophomore named Hassan Ahmadt on the wing.

There defense has allowed an average of two goals a game. Junior center halfback Joe Queiroga and senior goalie Ford Brunner are part of the reason. The Spartan team, meanwhile, has the "sick woes" again, only a little more serious this time. Gary McBrady and Tom Kreft are still hobbling from last week's game, but they'll see some action. Guy Busch, the booter's leader in goals and assists, strained his right knee while scoring his 11th goal last week and has not participated in practice.

"If I can't start Busch," said Kenney. "I might move Barry Tieman to center forward and Tony Keyes to a halfback slot. And I'll have Terry Sanders healthy for the first time this season."

The Spartan's average scoring is just under nine goals a game. Akron is averaging just under four.

How about that goal that Denison scored last week, the first one Kevin O'Connell has allowed this season?

"I'm kind of glad they scored it," Kenney said. "It takes some of the pressure off the boys. I don't like that pressure stuff."

"This is a good team. You see how many assists we've got so far this year? It's the best teamwork since I've been here." In the series with Akron, the Spartans have defeated it, 6-4, 3-0 and 5-0 from 1962-64.

BASKETBALL OPENS

Benington 'fakes out' writer

By DENNIS CHASE
Associate Sports Editor

One enterprising reporter tried a fast break when John Benington, MSU's basketball coach, met the press Thursday in Kellogg Center, but Benington stood his ground and stole the ball.

"Let's see," said the Thinker, "you've got six weeks to get ready for the coming season. Right?"

"Right," Benington answered. "Now football has only three weeks to get ready and play 11 men," the reporter continued. "Now you've got six weeks and you only start five men, so..." Benington was ready. "Golf is only a one-man sport and they take one week to practice," he said.

"What can you do with that?"

Benington is starting his second year as MSU's head basketball coach after a successful and surprising 17-7 slate last year, 10-4 in the Big Ten for second place. The team begins practice Monday.

But this year could be tougher than last. He lost his two leading scorers, Stan Washington and Bill Curtis, and Benington concedes they'll be tough to replace. "It (the losses) won't alter our offensive plans as much as it will our defensive ones," he said.

"The team is bigger this year, last year our forwards were 6-3, 6-4. This year Ted Crary is the smallest at 6-4.

"But the fact that they're bigger doesn't mean that they're faster or necessarily better rebounders. Art Baylor (6-6), if his ankle heals, and Hayward Edwards (6-5) are two of the boys we're counting on to pickup the slack.

"Our big problem is to make up for Washington and Curtis's scoring. We don't know yet if the new guys can."

Benington will have some things to look at: Matthew Aitch's weight, and Baylor's ankle, injured before the Wisconsin game last year and still giving him trouble.

Why Can't You Control Your Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. the BIG 10

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

The Big Ten teams have their work cut out for them Saturday, if they're going to bring their gridiron grade point average up to a respectable level.

As things stand after four games, Michigan State is the only eleven that's kept the conference from falling flat on its face.

After four weeks of football, conference members have been able to do no better than a 10-14 record against out-of-conference opponents. Seven Big Ten games have been played.

Saturday's schedule shows the conference getting down to family business, with no outsiders to threaten as spoilers.

The Spartans' game with Ohio State gets star billing. MSU is undefeated in a pair of Big Ten games and 4-0 overall. The Buckeyes, still smarting from the battering they received last year at East Lansing, have yet to win a conference game and are tied in seventh place with an 0-1 mark, 1-2 in all games.

Down one notch is the Purdue-Michigan contest at Ann Arbor. The Boilermakers, tied with Wisconsin for the no. 2 spot at 1-0, are 3-1 in all games.

Michigan, following last weekend's Spartan shellacking, is tied at seventh with an 0-1 Big Ten record, 2-2 on the season.

Iowa will be at Minnesota for a homecoming in something of a consolation round. The Hawkeyes have a new coach and new personnel, but other than this, their year looks like a re-run of last season.

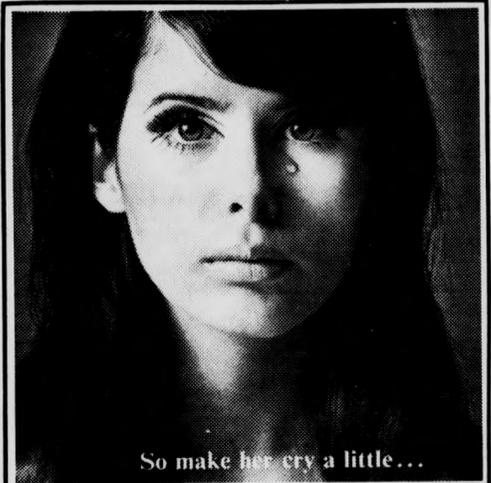

Iowa is in the cellar again at 0-2 and it's all-games record, 1-3. Isn't much better, Minnesota, 0-0-1 and 0-3-1, just barely escaped a Big Ten loss when it tied Indiana late in the fourth quarter last week.

The Hoosters are having a homecoming of their own, and Illinois will be out to make it anything but happy. The Illini, ranked fifth, earned their first conference win last Saturday over OSU on a squeaker, 10-9, and stand 1-1. In all games they're 1-3.

With a 1-0-1 mark, Indiana stands fourth in the conference, while overall 's record stands at 1-2-1.

Fans not watching the Spartans Saturday can do a little scouting of their own by viewing Northwestern and Wisconsin, the regional TV feature.

Live-learn has hits, misses

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

Last of 5 parts

MSU's plan to put academics in residence halls has fallen short of goals set five years ago, but has succeeded in many unexpected ways.

Foremost, the living-learning idea has decentralized the enormous multiversity. Students can take advantage of one of the nation's largest universities while being able to identify with a hall complex.

While the South Complex of some 4,500 students doesn't give its residents the small college atmosphere hoped for, its students take pride in hall and complex activities such as complex government, sports and dances. The complex provides him with a home, not a hotel, perhaps reducing some of the causes for student unrest.

Fee and Akers have not become the home for upperclassmen in social science and arts and letters they were intended to be, but it would be far from the truth to say they have failed. Fee has adjusted to its large number of freshmen and sophomores by offering several sections of large introductory courses. The Akers program, however, remains much the same as it originally was, "encouraging" students, particularly religion majors, for convenience to live in Akers.

Justin Morrill College, without a doubt, is the living-learning idea at its finest. All systems seem to be "go" as it begins its second year of offering a "liberal education with an international dimension."

A question about the very nature of the "college within a college" has arisen, however, D. Gordon Rohman, dean of JMC, has noted that the students are "obviously uneasy" with the non-vocational liberal curriculum. "They are prepossessed with urgencies about jobs, careers, majors, specializations and the rest," Rohman explained. "They believe college is training, and are anxious when we appear not to be giving any to them -- with the exception of their language training, of course."

Free speech uproar hits Illinois campus

Controversy abounds over the question of free speech on the University of Illinois campus. Charges were brought against the university's board of trustees, two university vice presidents and the Clabaugh Act, after a Communist party member was prohibited from speaking on the campus last March.

The 1947 Clabaugh Act prohibits "subversive, seditious or un-American" speakers from advocating their causes on the University of Illinois campus.

The suit is pending until Saturday, and charges that the act violates the first and 14th amendments of the U. S. Constitution.

The Illini Humanists, a campus group, filed the suit. Debby Benjamin, activities editor of the campus newspaper said, "There is going to be a serious problem over the question of free speech on the campus." She said students plan to petition to the state legislature in an effort to outlaw the Clabaugh Act. The Act stopped Louis Diskin, a Communist, from addressing students on campus.

Post open for ASMSU VP

"Petitioning is still wide-open for the posting of ASMSU's vice-president of student services," Terry Hassold, Cabinet president reported.

Only two candidates are running for the office that requires just time and desire," he said. Petitioning ends Oct. 18.

Vice-president of student services has charge of such programs as Spartan Spirit, tutoring service, freshmen orientation, distribution and Organizations Dept.

Students in good standing with the University may apply for a petition in 308 Student Services Building.

"We don't know where we're heading," a sophomore explained. "But the uncertainty, the planning we do on our own, is what many of us like about Justin Morrill."

It is hoped that similar "colleges within colleges" will be established at MSU in the future.

"Not least among the advantages of these buildings is the construction of a certain amount of academic space on a long-range, self-liquidating basis," reads the University College annual report. "Approximately 10 per cent of the cost of each of the (living-learning) residence goes into academic space... a saving of considerable magnitude to the taxpayers of Michigan."

"In spite of the many goals we have failed to reach," said one administrator, "I shall sincerely believe that this idea of having students and faculty together beats the lonely big university."

The vast exodus of juniors and seniors from University housing has a lot to do with the present shortcomings of the idea. Residence halls half filled with freshmen are simply not attractive to 21-year-olds.

"We have not realized our full potential in creating an intellectual atmosphere by any stretch of the imagination," said C. Arthur Bandeen, associate director of residence halls programs. "But we have become more realistic about what an intellectual atmosphere is."

Closed For Construction

It's nice to know that your university cares about the problem you have in finding parking spaces. It's even nicer to know that they are building a parking ramp to ease the parking situation. But where do you park when they close a parking lot, such as the one between Bessey and the Computer Center, to build the ramp? State News photo by Bob Baritt

SOCIAL SCIENCE

Fee retains series

As a result of the "overwhelming student support shown last year," the College of Social Science discussion series will "definitely continue this year," said Theodore J. Brooks, assistant dean of the College of Social Science.

Hoping to present two or three lectures a term, the College of Social Science along with the head resident advisers and student chairmen of the cultural and scholastic committees in Fee Hall, have tentatively scheduled the first discussion for Wed., Oct. 26 in Fee Hall.

"Final arrangements for this date and the program topic depend upon the availability of the desired professors," said Brooks. "However, in the past, he said 'faculty members have been very cooperative in fitting our programs into their schedules.'"

With both the dates and topics of future programs undecided, the committee has considered including national speakers to campus. However, the problem of finances has so far stunted the growth of this idea.

The College of Social Science considers these discussions an "excellent opportunity" for students and faculty to get-together on an informal basis to discuss worthwhile topics, said Brooks.

"Operating in conjunction with the 'Living - Learning' idea in the classroom dormitories," Brooks said, "the discussion series will continue as long as they have student support."

'Function' presents campus performers

Campus talent will be the "Function at the Junction" Saturday night as the men of Shaw Hall present a free variety show from 6:30 - 8:30.

Spectators should bring blankets, since the show will be presented outside, said Chuck Demery, president of West Shaw. In case of rain, the show will move into Shaw's lower lounge.

The music will range from rock to jazz, sprinkled with folk and Motown and go go girls demonstrating different campus dances.

The James K. Polk Memorial Rock Band will furnish the rock and roll, the Honeyman Trio will present folk, the Bud Spangler Jazz Quartet and the Soundettes and the Sounds will furnish jazz and Motown sounds.

A special guest appearance will be made by Jeff Kutash, choreographer for the television show, "Upbeat." Kutash will bring along four of his Go-Go girls. Shaw's regular Friday night mixer will be held soon after the variety show.

MSU-OSU TV tickets room coded

Ticket holders for the closed circuit telecast of the Ohio State-MSU football game Saturday will watch the show in locations indicated by a code number on their tickets.

Tickets with no code marked on them are for seats in the main auditorium. Code A is for Auditorium classrooms 116, 117, 120, 121 and 124.

Seats open in Block S

Seats are available in the Block "S" card section for all home football games, according to Don Martin, director of Spartan Spirit.

Students may exchange their football card for a Block "S" pass which eliminates waiting in line for football tickets.

This pass entitles them to enter stadium 45 minutes before game time at the designated gate. The only requirement is that the student participate in the halftime activities of the card section.

Students who are interested should contact the Spartan Spirit office, 325 Student Services, 1-5 p.m. Monday through Friday or call 385-4605.

Isenberg lecture set

The Isenberg Memorial Lectures will begin at 8 tonight with Abraham Kaplan, professor of philosophy at the University of Michigan, in Conrad Auditorium.

Kaplan will talk on "The Self and Its Identity." The Russian-born philosopher earned his B.A. at the College of St. Thomas in Minnesota, and his Ph.D. at UCLA.

Having taught at New York University, UCLA and U of M, he has also been a visiting professor at Harvard and Columbia.

In addition, Kaplan held a Guggenheim Fellowship. The May 6 issue of Time Magazine named Kaplan one of the top 10 educators in the United States.

The lecture series, honoring the late Arnold Isenberg, professor of philosophy at MSU, will present in future lectures Richard S. Rudner, of Washington University, C. West Churchman, of the University of California and Patrick Suppes of Stanford University.

These speakers meet with 400 level seminar students the Saturday morning following their lectures to discuss their respective field.

Such meetings "enable students to interact in a person-to-person way with men outstanding in their field," said Joseph F. Hannah, professor of philosophy.

Art exhibit deadline set

Michigan artists' deadline for entries in the 56th Exhibition at the Detroit Institute of Arts is Saturday.

Exhibition dates are Nov. 18 through Dec. 31. Jerald Jacquard, who won the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts Purchase Prize in the 1965 Michigan Artists exhibition, will display his bronze and steel sculpture.

Entry forms and prospectus may be obtained at The Detroit Institute of Arts or by phoning 831-0360 (Detroit). Eligible artists may submit a maximum of two entries.

His office received approximately 1900 applications last year but only 250 of them met the job requirements and were hired.

Glander attributes the lack of qualified applicants to two things: the war, which depletes the employment ranks through the draft and to the booming economy which yields a very low unemployment level.

"In all the years that I've been around, I've never seen it this bad," Glander said. Advertisements have been placed in newspapers in small towns all over the state, but with no results he said.

There are more women than men in the unemployed labor force, he said, and women are hired where possible but many of the jobs around are just too difficult for women.

Glander said that he could see no relief in the near future and he has been relying increasingly on automation.

In this way he can get the necessary work done even though he is understaffed.

Sheraton Hotels offering collegiate discount rates

The Sheraton Hotel Corp. will be at the Union 10 a.m. - 4 p.m., Saturday to explain and answer questions concerning its student discount rate and reservation procedures to students and faculty.

Free identification cards will be issued which will allow cardholders a discount from 25-60 per cent at any Sheraton Hotel in the world.

Neal Weintraub, Evanston, Ill., junior, is organizing student representatives on each part of the campus to make advanced reservations for students and faculty, so that anyone making reservations will know exactly what his costs will be.

Group reservations will be available for athletic teams, societies, fraternities, debating teams and other clubs.

The discount rate will entitle any card-holder to complete use of the hotel facilities.

The discount program is undertaken with the assumption that students treated well now will be inclined to patronize Sheraton in the future.

"But make no mistake about it," Benington said, "we'll be a definite challenger. We're in better shape psychologically than last year."

"The boys have the experience, they're older, they're used to the school and my system of coaching, and they know they can win."

Benington stressed that the newcomers will all get a good shot this year, that there will be more substitution than last season.

"We've got Jack Wynn and Tom Lick to back up Aitch at center. We have more depth. And with Lafayette in there, we can move Aitch outside once in a while."

Wynn is 6-8, Lick, 6-10 and Lafayette, 6-6. All of a sudden things don't look so bad.

Benington also pointed out that the Big Ten is weak this year.

"For the first time there is not a really great team in the conference. Northwestern and Illinois should be the favorites since most of their established players will be coming back, but there are no superstars in the league, no Lucases or Schelhauses.

"There is little difference between the teams, I wouldn't be surprised to see four or five teams in the race in March. A 9-5 record could take it.

"As for me, I'll pick Northwestern to be the toughest team."

Campus America

are now writing their own policies with concern to sign-out procedures, house lock-up systems, checking methods and rule violation penalties.

The decision to go ahead with this plan was reached Oct. 1, at a joint meeting of the Association Women Students Regulation of the Living groups.

Each living group will have a committee to handle its policy infractions and a Regulations Board to advise.

A key or card system will replace the present closing hours and is expected to go into effect soon.

It will be the first time in KU history that women will have the responsibility of regulating their standards of conduct.

Liquor and responsibility go hand in hand, according to officials at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C.

The rule prohibiting drinking in dormitories was reversed late this September with the assumption that the new policy, allowing all men to keep both hard liquor and beer in their rooms, will facilitate the development of personal responsibilities.

Studies have shown that students are less likely to over-indulge when allowed alcoholic beverages on the premises.

Georgetown, a Catholic institution, has become the second college to grant this privilege. The other is George Washington University.

Can Christian be Communist?

By NOEL HORNBECK
State News Staff Writer

Can a Christian be a Communist? Not according to four East Lansing ministers, who agree basically on a definition of Communist but not of Christian. Their negative answer was based largely on their definitions.

The Rev. Dacien Batt of St. John Student Parish said that Communism is an atheistic ideology and an unrealistic governmental system which denies and opposes all the principles of Christianity.

Since Communism particularly denies the freedom of choice, the Rev. Richard Billings of Unity Church said he feels a Communist cannot be a Christian. A Communist, he added, is "one who has not grown into an awareness of the oneness with God."

Since Christianity is concerned with oneness and individuals and communism is concerned with a system, the Rev. George Gaiser of the University Lutheran Church said he thinks it unlikely that a Christian would be a Communist. A Christian may live in a system but is not really a part of it, according to Susan Flook, campus worker for the church.

Walter Steitz, new director of Campus Crusade for Christ, says Communism is atheistic materialism which denies the existence of God and seeks to create a utopia on earth with emphasis on temporal goals rather than eternal values. The problem with such a utopia is its failure to change men's hearts, he believes. Communism and Christianity are diametrically opposed, making it impossible for a Christian to be a Communist.

The question, what is a Christian, drew reactions ranging from self-confident smiles to squirming to serious contemplation.

Batt says that a Christian is one whose life outlook is that of Christ's outlook which embraced love, kindness and unselfishness. Inherent in the communist system are the seeds of self destruction because it embraces opposites, such as destruction of individual rights, freedoms, and initiative.

Primitive Christianity and communism are similar in their practice of communal living, but this communal living which was voluntary under Christianity is mandatory under communism.

The end justifies the means under communism; therefore, violence is a tool used to usher in a utopia. He contends that if the utopia is so good, there would be no need for violence to implement it and Berlin walls to maintain it.

The Unity philosophy, which teaches that a Christian is "one who is growing into a Christ-like consciousness and oneness with God," does not personally God but defines Him as being "dynamic creative energy," Billings stated.

Since man is created free, the Unity belief says we are not here to change others, but to change ourselves, he added. Communism goes against the laws of God in destroying this freedom and because every man has the potential for becoming a Christ, according to Unity doctrine, communism poses a threat to the opportunity for this growth or evolution.

"Christianity is the greatest threat to Communism," said Steitz, who was an agnostic most of his life until he accepted Christ through Campus Crusade. The Rev. James Green, former director, added that Christianity as it is practiced by many in the United States is a farce, being reduced to a set of cold doctrinal statements.

A Christian, Steitz said, is one who is totally committed to Christ and has received Him into his heart as personal Saviour.

In stating that Christianity which involves surrender to Christ is a threat to communism, he said that people in Latin America embraced communism largely because they wanted something to believe in. Since Campus Crusade has been working there, many of the top Communist leaders on the college campuses have rejected communism and turned to Christ.

He said that their director in South Korea, Joan Gon Kim, saw his parents, wife and all but one child killed by the Communists and he was beaten and left for dead. He struggled a long time to get over the bitterness he felt and after working it through prayer, he returned and led the killer of his wife to Christ, Steitz said.

Christ was a revolutionary of love and this is what His followers should be, Green added. Gaiser said that a Christian is difficult to define because no one definition applies to all types of Christians. Generally, it is one who "lives in response to God as he knows Him in Jesus Christ."

When asked if Christianity posed a threat to communists, he said Christianity is a threat to human existence in that it denies a person a place to hide and demands total commitment of self.

All four contend that communism and Christianity seek to make changes in the world but one through a human organization, the other through a divine organization.

Christ's human qualities stressed

NEW YORK (AP) He was a master strategist, this Christ. Convinced he was God's anointed, he astutely planned and carried out his Messianic role, timing his own crucifixion, arranging for his resurrection.

That's the picture of Jesus as presented by a Jewish Biblical scholar, Dr. Hugh J. Schonfield, who has devoted his career to studying the life of Christ. But his thesis, as presented in "The Passover Plot," shows great respect for the rabbi of Galilee.

"People have reduced Jesus almost to a mere shadow by thinking of him in terms of deity, rather than seeing his magnificent human qualities," Dr. Schonfield added in an interview. "I've tried to bring that shadow to life."

Although devoutly Jewish, he regards Jesus as just as important to Judaism as to Christianity. Asked if he considered himself a follower of Jesus, he said:

"Indeed, I do. All of us ought to work at doing the kind of things Jesus stood for in the world, and wanted done."

"If he was not the Messiah, there never will be one," Dr. Schonfield said. "He has done what the Messiah should do, in giving us the incentive and inspiration to carry out those ideals which he personified."

Americans win Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Two U.S. cancer researchers have been awarded jointly the 1966 Nobel Prize for Medicine, it was announced Thursday.

Dr. Charles Huggins, 65, University of Chicago professor of surgery; and Dr. Peyton Rous, 85, Rockefeller University pathologist, will share the $60,000 cash prize. Each will also receive a gold medal.

Huggins was cited for his discoveries concerning hormonal treatment of cancer of the prostate. Rous was selected for his discovery of tumor-inducing viruses.

In the 1930's Huggins established in experiments on dogs that the functioning of the prostate gland depended entirely on the production of male sex hormones (androgens) in the testicles.

The awarding Caroline Institute said he also proved that female sex hormones (estrogens) could neutralize the androgenic reaction and thus bring about atrophy of the prostate.

Huggins was the first to introduce nontoxic, nonradioactive derivatives of a known composition in cancer treatment and so became a pioneer in chemotherapy.

Rous discovered in 1910 the first virus that evokes malignant sarcoma-type growths in hens. The Institute said that the significance of his initial discovery "has been enhanced with every passing year since the isolation of leukemia virus in mice in 1951, and its real importance and bearing have only been comprehended in the last 10 years."

The discovery shook previous conceptions and raised an opinion in favor of the virus theory, once the stepchild of cancer research.

OK 9 new civil rights centers

Nine additional field offices of the Michigan Civil Rights Commission will be set up throughout the state within the next few months.

These offices will be in Muskegon, Benton Harbor, Battle Creek, Jackson, Pontiac, Saginaw, and on the east and west sides of Detroit.

The Lansing office said that plans for expanding into northern Michigan had been suggested, but are still speculative.

According to the Lansing office these cities were selected on the basis of their concentrations of minority group populations, not necessarily as potential trouble-spots.

The expansion program itself stems from the race riots that hit the Lansing, Detroit and Jackson areas last summer.

The Civil Rights Commission said that racial conflicts can and should be controlled. The Commission cites social reform as the best action.

In a recent memorandum sent to community officials in Michigan the Commission suggested alleviating social and economic conditions that aggravate minorities and force them to live uncomfortably and unfairly by community reform.

The Commission is now planning a meeting on possible positive community action which will draw leadership from throughout the state. The nine cities receiving new field offices will be included in the twenty participating cities.

Sense Of Touch

For a blind child, a sense of touch is the only way to "see". Under the sponsorship of the East Lansing Kiwanis Club, children from the Lansing School for the Blind visited the MSU farms and "saw" the animals.

Grad grants available for study in Japan

The government of Japan is offering scholarships to American graduate students for study at Japanese universities for the academic year of 1967.

The aim of the scholarship is to promote international exchange in the fields of education, science and culture and to contribute to the mutual understanding and cooperation between Japan and foreign countries.

The fields of study are humanities, social sciences and natural sciences. The applicant must also be willing to study the Japanese language so that he may be able to receive instruction in Japanese.

There are two categories of duration of study: two years, from April 1967 - March 1969, or one and a half years, from Oct. 1967 - March 1969.

Graduate students desiring further information on the Mombusho Scholarship Program should contact the Consulate General of Japan, 520 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

conference will be Earl Butz, dean of the College of Agriculture at Purdue University, and Sylvan Wittwer, director of the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station.

The cooperative extension service is financed by federal, state and local governments. Federal support began in 1962 under the Smith-Lever Act which authorized publication of land-grant college research results for agricultural application.

51ST ANNUAL

Ag extension conference to stress communications

The 51st annual conference of the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service will be held in the Union Building Monday through Wednesday.

This year's theme is communications. The goal, said director George S. McIntyre, is to "inform county agents of new communication methods and equipment to enable them to serve more people effectively."

Five-hundred people are expected to attend this year's conference. Key speakers for the

GOP leaders attack new trading policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republican congressional leaders fired back Thursday at President Johnson for calling the GOP a party of fear, and demanded the administration stop its "trafficking" with the Russians.

"If dealing with the enemy, who are dealing in nothing but death to Americans in Viet Nam, is good business, then truth and honor have indeed been perverted beyond recall by this administration," said the GOP House leader, Gerald R. Ford of Michigan.

The election-year volleys came out of a joint news conference by Ford and Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

Dirksen seized on President Johnson's charge Wednesday that "Republicans are afraid of their own shadows," had no constructive programs, and didn't know how to end the war in Viet Nam.

"Is the President bewildered?" Dirksen asked.

"Was he referring to his own administration? His statements actually spell out the most damning political self-indictment in modern political history."

"If the President doesn't know about Republican programs," added Dirksen, "we can only assume that this administration has from its very first days been blind, deaf and indifferent."

Ford supplied most of the heavy artillery in the attack.

He recalled Johnson's words in a speech Oct. 7 when the President noted new U.S.-Soviet cultural and air agreements and announced new steps to expand trade with the Soviet bloc. Ford quoted Johnson as calling this good business.

"Until the Communist world convinces us by act, not by word, that it not only seeks peace but it will so act to preserve peace among men, we will not be a party to any deal, any agreement, any arrangement, any treaty, with Communists anywhere in the world," said Ford.

Ford said he would use increased Soviet trade with the Soviet bloc as a bargaining point to get Russians to stop shipment of anti-aircraft missiles to North Viet Nam.

Using the number of American troops deployed in Viet Nam as a criteria, Ford called the Viet Nam war "the third-largest war American has ever fought."

Further, Ford said, Russians have been supplying in increasing volume the weapons and ammunition that are killing American boys.

"As thousands of American boys fight, bleed and die, as the Soviet Union announced an enormous further increase in its economic and military aid to our enemies," Ford said, "this administration must stop, and stop now, its trafficking with the Russians in ways that can only result in Communist encouragement, growth and enrichment."

There are 400 tickets available for Spartan Spirit's trip to the Michigan State-Northwestern football game Oct. 29, according to Dick Martin, director of Spartan Spirit.

The price of the trip is $12. This includes game ticket, transportation and a box lunch.

Tickets may be purchased at 326 Student Services from 1 - 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The deadline for purchasing tickets is Thursday, Oct. 20.

Miss Crist, a social work major, competed with college students from Dallas, Syracuse and Detroit employed by the company.

The presentation was made Thursday by James Brown and R. J. Fogle, division and district managers of Great Books, respectively.
After graduation, Miss Crist intends to work in social work and for Great Books. Miss Crist felt the experience she gained this summer was invaluable.

These children are dreamers. They dream of nice homes, good times, and promising futures, but for many those dreams seem like unattainable illusions.

The dreams of children and the dreams of dedicated teachers can be realized through a strong desire to work, and work hard, for what you want to become real.

These are some of the ideals of a new teacher-training program in which MSU is engaged.

The program, "Preparation for Teaching Disadvantaged Children", sponsored by the Mott Foundation and incorporated by a grant as the Mott Institute for Community Improvement (MICI) is defined by Robert J. Marsh of the education department as "a commitment of concern".

The grant amounts to over $3 million for a ten-year program.

The program, open to elementary education majors, offers two terms of off-campus experience. During the first term the student takes his methods block in an "inner city" school district, either in Flint or Detroit, the two participating cities, in preparation for doing student teaching in a disadvantaged area.

Marsh said the theory behind the program is that a student who will work in a slum area needs different training than those who intend to pursue a teaching career in "a silk-stocking type school".

Mrs. Jacquelyn Nickerson, coordinator of MICI and "official recruiter" for the program, said that such a preparation puts the new teacher at ease in the classroom and makes him operational sooner.

Mrs. Nickerson said she prefers to define the children involved as "having limited backgrounds." This she feels is more acceptable to the families involved, and may be one of several interpretations of the actual situation. She said no matter what term is used it should explain the educational background, and not be referred to culture or economics.

The program was initiated in September 1965. Last spring term the first group took its methods block off campus. That group, now numbering 26, is student teaching in disadvantaged areas.

Their first term in the inner-city school district consisted of taking methods block courses at the schools involved, observing teachers, becoming acquainted with the people and the area, and tutoring pupils. The students also visited children at home.

Mrs. Nickerson said that 25 juniors are needed to participate in the methods block being of-

Counsels plan to meet ex-students

Thirty-five high school counselors who will visit MSU Saturday are anxious to meet with their former students. The counselors are from Allegheny County, Pa., and are touring 11 Michigan colleges and universities.

Any students who attended any of the following high schools in Allegheny County are asked to stop by the Student Services Lounge from 9:30 to 10 a.m.

These schools will be represented: Mt. Lebanon, South Fayette, Har-Brack, Tarentum, Baldwin, Fox Chapel, Crafton, North Hills, West Mifflin, North Allegheny, Montour, Moon Union, Churchill Area, Plum Borough, Avonworth, Highlands, Port-Vue Liberty, Quaker Valley, Stowe, Thomas Jefferson, Duquesne, Mount Lebanon, Latrobe and West Deer.

The counselors will meet with representatives of the Office of Admissions and Scholarships and tour the campus after the meeting.

GOP leader encourages student political activity

"A dynamic image" is the key phrase of the Republican campaign 1966, Jerry Roe, director of organizations, Republican State Central Committee, told the MSU College Republican Club Monday night.

The Republican party encourages active participation of young people to help stimulate this dynamic image, he said. Although the Republicans are a minority party, Roe stressed that this means unlimited opportunities for the party to improve and gain.

The Republicans must take advantage of this opportunity and work toward a dynamic future through Gov. Romney, Roe said.

This year can be a turning point for the Republican party. Never before has there been such enthusiasm for the candidates, he said.

Roe explained how students are needed to help the Republican campaign by distributing literature and telephoning voters.

Trial to resume after 24-hr recess

The trial of State Sen. Bernard F. O'Brien will resume this morning after a one day recess. O'Brien, a Detroit Democrat, faces two counts of morals charges for asking a 22-year old MSU coed to pose for nude pictures and have sexual relations. The trial was adjourned Wednesday after its third day when Judge George J. Hutter explained his wife was having surgery Thursday.

Major prosecution witness Marion Lukens, Santa Ana, Calif., senior, claims O'Brien, calling himself "Larry Angelo" from an International Film Studio Bldg. last May 27. She said the man International Film Studio stopped her near the Union Bldg. last May 27. She said the man first asked if she would be interested in modeling sportswear, and later told her that she would be required to pose for "cheese-cake" pictures.

Working with University and State Police, Miss Lukens agreed to meet the man she knew as "Angelo" on June 2, to pose for "stag" pictures. Miss Lukens testified he picked her up that night, but left her at an East Lansing restaurant when he realized he was being followed. Five other coeds have identified O'Brien as the man called "Angelo," who also asked several of them to pose for indecent pictures.

William Wilkie, head resident adviser in West Fee Hall, testified seeing O'Brien with Marion Lukens on May 27, the day the senator allegedly first proposed she pose for him. Wilkie also identified the man's license number as SS-0005, the one registered to the 31-year old senator. A University police investigator who arrested O'Brien testified that the senator said he "was expecting" the police the day he was arrested at the state capitol.

University Police Sgt. Dan E. Hanks said that O'Brien had admitted to him when he was arrested June 3 that he had met Marion Lukens the night before. Defense Attorney John O'Connell theorized that the entire case was engineered by an insurance lobby, who feel senate bills introduced by the Detroit senator are detrimental to their interests.

Up to this point, the defense has attempted to establish that O'Brien was in the state capitol building at the time he was allegedly contacting Miss Lukens and that the senator is not the man called "Larry Angelo". The defense claims that O'Brien met Miss Lukens on June 2 to interview her for a secretarial position. The coed had been referred to him a day earlier by a "Larry Angelo," defense claims.

Sen. Michael O'Brien, also a Detroit Democrat, but no relation to the defendant testified that he saw a man named Angelo outside the senate chambers on June 1. Two senate sergeants-at-arms testified Wednesday that they had seen O'Brien outside the state senate chambers at 11:30 a.m. May 27, the time Miss Lukens claims he met her at the Union. O'Connell has also tried to discredit Miss Lukens' testimony, claiming that she once filed false charges of rape against an Air Force officer.

The coed had earlier testified that Air Force Captain Donald V. Osterhout had forcibly raped her in a Columbus, Ohio, motel two years ago when she was attending a small Ohio college. Osterhout claims that Miss Lukens went with him voluntarily and that "no force was involved."

Lt. Col. James R. Dupler, who at that time was the legal adviser to the base commander and his staff, testified that the rape charges filed by the coed had been dropped on grounds of insufficient evidence.

IS THE WIGGY SCENE FOR YOU ?

It's the latest hang-up. The psychedelic Go-Go scene. Soon it will be the big noise on campus. The current issue of The Saturday Evening Post takes you on the rounds of New York's "total-environment" nightclubs. Experience the frantic kaleidoscope of flashing lights, movies, slides, colored smoke and deafening rock 'n' roll that give you an LSD trip with no side effects. Get with New York's "Take-Over Generation" as they Jelly Belly their cares away. Find out what to wear when making the new scene: bust shields, fluorescent mini-skirts, silver motorcycle jackets, aluminum wigs. Is this really a new art media as its inventor believes? Is it for your school? Find out in the October 22 issue of the Saturday Evening Post. Pick up on it today, baby.

Legislation closer on pollution control

While members of "Muskegon Citizens for Clean Air" demonstrated outside the Michigan Capitol Thursday, Michigan's Air Pollution bill passed by the legislature last year.

Representatives of various interests in the state and private citizens covered on the house representatives to listen and voice opinions over the commission's proposed regulations. Dr. Albert E. Heustis, director of the Michigan Public Health Department and chairman of the air pollution committee, explained that the commission would meet later to consider the suggestions and remarks discussed in the meeting.

"Eventually, after due consideration over the practicality and legality of your suggestions and our own, final recommendations will be filed with the Secretary of State's office," Heustis explained prior to the hearing. As predicted by legislative observers, the opinions of most industries were that proposed regulations were "too stringent" and "extremely costly to smaller manufacturers."

Attorney Frank Cooper, council for the Michigan Manufacturer's Association, said he felt serious legal questions would be generated by the proposals if enacted.

"I submit that the rules exceed statutory limitations and if adopted as they now stand will be challenged in courts of law," he said. Two Muskegon women, part of the delegation demonstrating outside, said they felt a strong code was needed immediately.

Mrs. A. Gressler of the Western Michigan manufacturing area cited the Wall Street Journal as reporting many industries successfully collecting residue from smelting and foundry processes and selling it at a profit.

"We as citizens have the right to breathe fresh air," Mrs. Gressler said, "just as industry has the right to pollute it."

As pleas for meetings between industrial experts and commission members were voiced by representatives of several large companies, former state representative Alexander Petrie of Escoe asked the commission to consider that industry's arguments were the same ones used "six or seven years ago."

"The commission is being asked by objectors to delay and to sit down and talk over minor points of the regulations," Petrie stated, "These are the same arguments we heard six and seven years ago. And we should have done something then."

Most industrial representatives voiced agreement with the rules in general but felt sections of the regulations dealing with permits and licenses would "literally bury a staff under mountains of paper work."

Ruggers home

After having last Saturday off, the Michigan State Rugby Club resumes its fall schedule tomorrow against Windsor on Old College Field, at 3:00 p.m.

MSU lost its opening game, 3-0, two weeks ago to the University of Michigan, but Coach Neville Doherty reports three new men will be in the backfield to give the Spartan rugger extra speed against the unusually large Windsor club.

Loans caused bank failure

DETROIT - Seven directors of the Public Bank of Detroit, which collapsed in one of the biggest bank failures since the Depression, attacked the bank's takeover today as "clandestine" and asked the courts to block any merger of its assets with another bank.

Public Bank was put into receivership late Tuesday night and turned over to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. which, in turn, immediately sold it to the Bank of the Commonwealth, another Detroit institution. State banking officials said the action was taken because Public's assets were less than its liabilities. Although the failure was one of the biggest since the Depression, officials said it was not caused by current tight money policies or by threats of recession.

They blamed bad consumer loans, mainly in the home improvement field.

The seven directors, appearing at a news conference to make their first official public statement, said they had filed a petition with the Wayne County Circuit Court asking the Commonwealth bank "be restrained from any further transfer or assignment of any assets of Public Bank other than in the normal course of business..."

mail robbery

Cormier said investigators found that the thieves took 28 registered envelopes and small packets, containing money, shares, bonds and "other legal documents."

The registered items had been mailed by banks, large firms and individuals to points in Canada and the United States, he said. He added that the thieves did not take any mailbags.

Cormier said investigators are looking into the possibility that the theft was an inside job.

Marines coming here

Students interested in information concerning college student Marine officer training programs will have an opportunity to speak to U.S. Marine Corps officers next week.

A relief officer procurement detachment of the Marine Officer Selection Team in Michigan will be on campus from Oct. 17 through Oct. 21.

Two captains and a number of enlisted men will be at the Union Building from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For further information, men may call Gunnery Sgt. Fred Spoon of the Lansing Marine Recruiting Station at 489-6806.

Don't just sit there, Wallace Middendorp. Make a noise. Or drink Sprite, the noisy soft drink.

What did you do when Joe (Boxcar) Brkczpmluj was kicked off the football team just because he flunked six out of four of his majors? What did you do, Wallace Middendorp?

And when the school newspaper's editors resigned in protest because The Chancellor wouldn't allow the publication of certain salacious portions of "Night In a Girl's Dormitory" you just sat, didn't you? You've made a mockery of your life, Wallace Middendorp! You're a vegetable. Protest, Wallace Middendorp. Take a stand. Make a noise! Or drink Sprite, the noisy soft drink.

Open a bottle of Sprite at the next campus speak-out. Let it fizz and bubble to the masses. Let its lusty carbonation echo through the halls of ivy. Let its tart, tingling exuberance infect the crowd with excitement. Do these things, Wallace Middendorp. Do these things, and what big corporation is going to hire you?

Academic freedom

If there were not enough time for the judiciary to meet, three members of the judiciary, on the recommendation of the ombudsman, could issue a similar injunction, the recommendation proposed.

The proposed student faculty judiciary would act as a "supreme court" for the University.

"Under this provision an injunction could have been issued against anybody on anything," C. C. Killingsworth, professor of labor and industrial relations, said.

Killingsworth suggested to the council that any provision for injunctive power include guidelines for a hearing and limitations on the injunction similar to those set up in the U.S. court system.

Several members of the council seemed to fear that the inclusion of a hearing would slow down the process so much the injunction could not be issued in time, Combs said.

The academic council sent the proposal for an injunction to the faculty committee on student affairs with the instruction to find a way to speed up "due process" to meet such emergencies.

The faculty has generally accepted the original guideline report with approval, said John Reinroeth, chairman of the faculty committee on student affairs. Each faculty member generally submitted only a minor point or two for revision.
