GERALD R. FORD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen declared Monday night the United States should continue to seek peace and wage war — intensified war if necessary — in Viet Nam.

And Rep. Gerald R. Ford, in his share of a "loyal dissent" to President Johnson's State of the Union message, said no tax increases will be necessary if federal spending is prudently restrained.

Dirksen and Ford, the House GOP leader, shared the microphone in a Republican appraisal of the State of the Union, with the Illinois senator voicing party policy on international affairs while the Michigan congressman spoke on domestic issues. Johnson vowed in his Wednesday message to continue his quest for peace in Viet Nam — but he promised also:

"We will stay until aggression has stopped."

Dirksen's Republican prescription:

"Let the peace efforts continue. It demonstrates our determination to keep our word. Let it be intensified if necessary as sound military judgment dictates."

"Viet Nam is not our war," Dirksen said. But he said the United States has promised its aid to Viet Nam, and "we are there to keep our word."

At the same time, Dirksen said the United States and South Viet Nam cannot negotiate unless they are strong.

"To negotiate from weakness would mean defeat before we ever reached the negotiation table," he said. "There is, after all, no substitute for victory."

"Let the objective be kept crystal clear at all times, and that is guaranteed freedom and independence for the Vietnamese."

Like Johnson, Dirksen said any American retreat would undermine confidence in America's will to resist Communist expansion.

Dirksen said a course guaranteeing independence for South Viet Nam is the only path that will maintain U.S. leadership in the free world.

Even now, he said, U.S. prestige is slipping.

"The first feeble cries of 'Yankee go home' have become a chorus," he said. "Our prestige on the world thermometer of good will has dropped fast and far."

Dirksen said billions of dollars in foreign aid have gained the United States little respect and less appreciation. He called for a precise auditing of foreign aid spending, coupled with a careful check on future aid programs, to see "whether there will be dividends in the form of good will and real devotion to peace and freedom."

Ford vowed a budget-cutting battle to trim the $112.8 billion in federal spending Johnson recommended to a joint session of Congress five days ago.

Monday night, the outnumbered Republicans took their turn at assessing the State of the Union.

It was the first time the minority had formally offered its

Southern Lawyers Blast Rights Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern lawyers told the Supreme Court Monday Congress trespassed far beyond its constitutional boundaries with the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

They urged the court to declare the law unconstitutional, arguing it is an infringement on judicial prerogatives and the right of states to determine the qualifications of their voters.

While most of the arguments were sober, Jack P. F. Gremillion, Louisiana's folksy attorney general, had the courtroom and nearly all nine just, as laughing as he said:

"Let me tell you something about this court. You've done a good job on these here constitutional cases, like a falcon covering a hawk. I want you to keep on doing a good job. This court is going to find that Congress cannot take over the judiciary."

Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Virginia spoke in support of South Carolina's original suit challenging the constitutionality of the five-month-old act, under which some 250,000 Negroes have registered to vote in the seven Southern states it affects.

Georgia will complete the list of southern challengers Tuesday when Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, who originated the bill in the executive branch and helped guide it through Congress, will rise personally to defend it. It will be his first argument before the court as attorney general.

Katzenbach, wearing the traditional formal attire of government lawyers before the court, listened and took notes Monday as:

--South Carolina's youthful attorney, David W. Robinson II, argued that those provisions of the law abolishing literacy tests in certain states whose voter registration or turnout fell below 50 per cent in November 1964 "are not legislation but congressional adjudication."

Robinson complained that such a law is discriminatory because even if Massachusetts, which uses a literacy test, should fall below the 50 per cent mark in 1968, it would not be affected by the 1965 act.

South Carolina contends the law is inappropriate for enforcing the Constitution's 15th Amendment—prohibiting denial of the right to vote because of race.

Reaction On Nigeria Divided

LONDON (AP)—Ghana accorded swift recognition Monday to the military regime in Nigeria, but Britain—former colonial ruler of the African state—held back, apparently to wait out developments.

President Kwame Nkrumah told a news conference in Ghana his West African nation had accorded "full recognition" to the provisional government of Maj. Gen. Aguiyi Ironsi.

British officials indicated there will be no rush to recognize Ironsi's regime.

Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, the suspended Nigerian prime minister who is believed held hostage by rebel forces, is considered to be a close friend of Britain.

As the British see it, the crux of the situation is the attitude of the national police force which numbers 50,000 men compared with the army's 8,000.

So far as is known in London, the national police commanders have given no indication of which way their support will go.

In announcing the army takeover of the government, Ironsi suspended Nigeria's top civilian officials, including Balewa and President Azikiwe Nnamdi. Balewa was kidnapped along with Finance Minister Festus Okotie Ebon at the outbreak of trouble Saturday.

Vaughn Replaces Shriver As Peace Corps Director

President Johnson divided the command of Sargent Shriver Monday to make him solely the head of the war on poverty. The direction of the Peace Corps was given to Asst. Secretary of State Jack Vaughn.

Shriver has been heading both operations and both are major programs of the Johnson administration. Some critics, among them Republicans on Capitol Hill, have contended the double responsibility was too much for one man.

The President personally announced the splitting of the jobs to newsmen assembled in the Fish Room at the White House — a conference room just off his office. Shriver and Vaughn were with him.

Vaughn is returning to a former domain at the Peace Corps. He left there in the spring of 1964 to go to Panama as U.S. ambassador.

Staff Parking Spaces Cut?

Faculty and staff members are being asked to give up their reserved parking spaces to temporarily relieve overcrowding on north campus parking lots.

All University Traffic Committee has requested faculty and staff members holding reserved parking space to either turn in their reservation for a refund, or designate another faculty member who may use the space.

The Traffic Committee is composed of four students, four faculty members and representatives of the Dean of Students Office, Department of Public Safety and office of campus planning and maintenance.

Committee member John L. Lockwood, associate professor of botany, said Monday that this request is only a temporary measure to try to solve current parking problems.

The committee, in a statement in the current Faculty and Staff Bulletin, said that often one-third of the reserved parking spaces in the north campus area are vacant during business hours, while unreserved space is full.

According to the present faculty-staff parking regulations, faculty members may pay an additional parking fee which gives them exclusive use of a designated space.

The Traffic Committee, Lockwood said, is set up to recommend parking regulations to the president and the Board of Trustees. But only the board can make changes in regulations, he pointed out.

The University would probably not change regulations in mid-year, he said.

FERENCY SPEAKS

GOP End Predicted

By JO BUMBARGER
State News Campus Editor

The Republican party is on the brink of disappearing as a major political force, Zoltan Ferency, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Michigan, said Sunday.

"Republicans will have to either unify their party or win elections. They can't do both now," Ferency told about 30 students at the Hillel Foundation.

"What the Republicans are attempting to do now is to elect a major political figure and then give him the job of unifying the party," Ferency said.

Ferency named Gov. George Romney as a Republican who has done a fairly effective job of unifying the party.

"Eisenhower could have done this, but he chose not to do the job," Ferency said. "Ike was not a political president."

"Romney has the opportunity to do this and he's doing fairly well," Ferency continued. "No one was more surprised than I when Romney produced every one of the Republican votes in the last Legislature."

Ferency predicted that the Republican Party, if it does not become unified, will disappear after the 1968 elections.

"The Republicans have devils in their midst—and I don't say this, they do," Ferency said.

"If the Republican party doesn't take steps to drive out people that they feel are inimical to their best interests, then 1968 may be the death knell," he said.

"It won't take but one more man-for election to defeat them." Ferency predicted a temporary three-party system if the Republicans are substantially defeated in the 1968 elections.

"The Democrats will probably be the center party," he said. "If the Republican party does disappear, it may come back with the same name, but it won't have a lot of the problems it's trying to live with now."

"I'm not happy about the situation," Ferency continued.

U. S. Peace Bid Has Impact

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Johnson administration's sustained Viet Nam peace offensive has had an impact around the world and appears to have widened the audience for U.S. views. But along with the hopes it has raised, it also has generated widespread doubts, skepticism and fear.

Many of those who grant Washington's sincerity in the quest for peace reflect fear of what might happen if the search is in vain: What happens next?

On the surface, the reaction to the administration's diplomatic drive in Communist countries is much the same. Publicly, Communists of all hues and camps describe it as a smokescreen to cover up preparations for an intensified and expanded war in Southeast Asia. But there is a difference in tone.

The Soviet Union's approach has appeared to involve a high degree of caution. Some of the comment in the Soviet bloc has been moderate and couched in careful phrases. Official Chinese comment has been violently denunciatory.

A survey of major capitals by the Associated Press indicates that in non-Communist capitals of Europe and Asia, popular reaction has been a mixture of hope and apprehension. There appears to be a widespread popular conviction that President Johnson's State of the Union address leaves him little choice except to hit the North Vietnamese Communists all the harder if the diplomatic campaign yields no positive results.

Despite this trepidation, there are signs that the U.S. effort has improved the American image.

Japanese papers previously critical of the American role in Viet Nam now show second thoughts about U.S. policy. This does not mean the critics are more pro-American, but it indicates more willingness to hear out American views.

The Japanese government supports the U.S. peace moves, and Tokyo is pushing a diplomatic drive of its own.

Neither the government of South Korea nor that of Nationalist China on Formosa appears happy with the Japanese peace offensive. Both seem somewhat disturbed, as if fearful the drive might lead to neutralization of South Viet Nam.

When Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was in South Korea in January, he was told that South Viet Nam should not produce a "second Panmunjom," meaning negotiations similar to those which ended the Korean War. It was officially explained that this did not mean opposition to U.S. peace efforts as such, but a view that in principle, negotiation with Communists is futile.

In Southeast Asia, Malaysia officially and generally reacted favorably to the peace efforts, but the newly independent federation's public and leaders appear to have little hopes for its success.

Thailand, staunch ally of the United States, is a next-door neighbor to the war. Papers there hail the peace offensive and express hope for its success. Foreign Minister Thanat has said the U.S. moves coincided with the desire of all people for peace.

In Britain, most representatives of major political parties express trust in the sincerity of the Johnson moves.

Policy To Assist Needy Residents

Every Michigan resident attending MSU will be guaranteed help in obtaining all the financial aid the student needs, President John A. Hannah announced Monday night.

Hannah announced the new policy, believed to be the first such promise made by a public state university to its students, at a college admissions seminar in Kellogg Center for newspaper education reporters, MSU and the midwest office of the College Entrance Examination Board co-sponsored the seminar.

Hannah said that expanded state and federal student aid programs make the aid-to-all policy possible. Increased assistance will come primarily from the new Federal Opportunity Grant program, loan funds and guaranteed part-time campus jobs.

Students seeking aid under the plan will be required to prove need by having their parents submit confidential family financial statements to the College Scholarship Service. The service's analysts will determine the amount of family contribution to a student's expenses.

To this amount, a student must add savings from summer and vacation work; $200 a year for women and $300 a year for men. Michigan State will see that the remaining amount is made available.

Currently, Michigan residents at MSU pay $324 a year in fees and $825 for room and board in campus housing.

Hannah said that students will be told they must expect to work or borrow, or both. There will be no "major increase" in scholarship funds at MSU, although an additional direct-aid amount will result from Opportunity Grant funds. MSU is applying for these funds to the U.S. Office of Education under terms of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

All Michigan students in good standing at the University will be eligible for aid. The policy does not extend to nonresident students or to certain transfer students.

MSU's enrollment last fall totaled more than 35,000, about 80

Charter For Grads Distributed

The constitution of the proposed Graduate Student Council will be distributed to all graduate students Wednesday.

Distribution will be at the Library Reference Room from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., the main floor of the International Center from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., the Union from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Owen Hall from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

A discussion of the constitution, open to all graduate students, will be held Wednesday, Jan. 26. The time and place will be announced later.

Organization of the council, designed to give graduate students a voice in the University, began Jan. 6. It probably will be similar to, but not a part of, the undergraduate ASMSU.

"This idea of having everybody participate in preparing a final draft of an organization's constitution is rather unusual," said Lawrence O. Baril, graduate student in comparative literature and council chairman.

"But the committee believed that this step would insure that the organization created would truly represent graduate needs," he said. "Normally a constitution is prepared by a small committee and merely referred to voters for approval."

"This makes the draft committee everybody's committee and we urge all graduate students to take advantage of this unique opportunity," Baril said.

Raise In Grill Prices Unfair To MSU Students

WHY HAVE THE CAMPUS grills raised food prices? Michael Dmochowski, Union manager and chairman of the foods committee, maintains the price hike has been caused by increased costs of raw materials, equipment and labor.

Dmochowski said although the prices that MSU pays for food shipments is in many cases less than that paid by restaurants, the prices have gone up. Furthermore, he added that for every dollar taken in by MSU grills, almost 50 per cent goes for labor.

This may be the cause for the increase in grill prices, but do conditions merit such an increase? We think not. Referring to Dmochowski again, the grills make as much as 10 per cent "excess revenue over expenses" or, more commonly, profits.

HE SAYS "THE EXCESS revenue over expenses goes back to students in some form of goods or services. He cited the upkeep of the Union and secretarial fees as possible uses of the excess revenue. He also pointed out that he receives no share of the profits.

THE GRILLS ARE A SERVICE TO THE STUDENTS! It is not their job to support the Union or secretaries. It is entirely possible that students who patronize the grill the most receive few of the benefits that these profits support.

FURTHERMORE, THE GRILLS have no moral right to charge students five cents for ice and a dime for hot water. Dmochowski says that these prices are to discourage students from bringing tea bags into the grills and making their own tea.

He claims that the costs of washing the cups and saucers plus the sugar used would be prohibitive. These may be inflationary times, but it certainly could not cost 10 cents to wash a cup and saucer. And no one uses a dime's worth of sugar in his tea.

A COMMERCIAL RESTAURANT has a right to charge a dime for hot water, but it is contradictory to the purpose of the grills for them to charge for such services.

As long as the grills are making a profit, that money should be used to benefit the students using the grills, namely in the form of student savings or increased services.

IT SHOULD BE REMEMBERED that most students have limited financial resources and incur many expenses. They can ill afford to pay exorbitant prices in their own grills.

We think that a financial statement of the grills should be made available to the public, and that it include specifically how profits are used.

THE GRILLS should either be run on a non-profit basis, or any profits made should be earmarked for improved grill services for students.

President Made Right Move In Naming Negro To Post

ROBERT WEAVER FINALLY achieved one of his most cherished goals last week in being named head of the new cabinet-level Department of Housing and Urban Affairs. As usual with most of President Lyndon B. Johnson's appointments, it came as a bit of a surprise. Just when it appeared that the President had overlooked Weaver, he appointed him.

THE APPOINTMENT is of considerable significance for several reasons. First, it marks not only a personal highpoint for Weaver but also for the many American Negroes who have striven so long to become truly assimilated into American society.

ONLY SIX YEARS ago in 1960, Henry Cabot Lodge, then running as the Republican vice presidential candidate, lost his party a considerable number of votes for suggesting that if elected Richard Nixon might appoint a Negro to the cabinet.

Though we have far to go before meaningful racial equality and justice reign on the national scene, progress is being made. The appointment of Robert Weaver is indicative of such progress.

SECOND, WEAVER has proven himself to be a capable administrator in his many years in Washington since he began in the early years of the Depression. Since 1961, he has been director of the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Today this new cabinet position is certainly an important one, considering the great problems in urban areas and Lyndon Johnson's monumental plans to correct them. For if this new department is to coordinate the numerous programs and agencies involved, it will need capable leadership.

ROBERT WEAVER had been considered for the position since early in the Kennedy administration, when the late President envisioned such a department. But Congress refused to pass legislation that would have established the new cabinet position.

Late last year, Weaver had announced his intentions to seek the position. But Lyndon Johnson wasn't going to be hurried with his decision, as he reviewed hundreds of possible candidates. We believe the President made the right choice.

AS IT STANDS NOW, it appears that Johnson's decision will benefit Robert Weaver, his race and his nation.

W.C.T.U. Note

Last term the "State News" ran a quote from a MSU professor which referred to the Women's Christian Temperance Union as a sleepy organization of which some of its members wore sneakers.

We don't know for sure if any of its members wear sneakers, but we do know it isn't a sleepy organization. For weeks letters poured in from WCTU members throughout the state. At last count the number received had reached 91; and this didn't include those letters already published.

This just goes to show what a group can do when it gets organized. And you can take it from us, they ARE organized. Our advice: Be careful or the WCTU may strike you too.

OUR READERS SPEAK

Citizens Didn't Choose War

To the Editor:

Your editorial of Tuesday, Jan. 11, "May 2 and Ho Chi Minh" is best characterized as that kind of patriotism called "the last resort of a scoundrel." It blandly assumes that the U.S. is stepping up "its efforts to obtain a meaningful peace in Viet Nam," without giving any indication that this is the case.

You term us "zealots who take full advantage of the rights, privileges and material benefits of a prosperous democracy yet openly sympathize with the enemy." I was taught that a characteristic of a democracy, however prosperous, is that people have an equal share in the making of significant decisions.

When did the American people choose to go to war in Viet Nam? LBJ acknowledges that we are at war—but when has the Congress declared war, or even debated the issue, as our Constitution requires? The war in Viet Nam has been foisted upon the American people in a manner which is, to borrow your words "a bit disgusting to us, to say the least."

You self-righteously proclaim that it is now "indeed impossible" to establish any absolute right or wrong in the Viet Nam situation. If by that you mean that the war, like any war, contains atrocities on both sides, you are correct.

Yet I would maintain that the Vietnamese people have an absolute right to their national independence and self-determination, and that the U.S. has absolutely no right to interfere with the free choice of the Vietnamese.

You ask "would those members of the May 2nd Movement be willing to trade their freedoms here in the U.S. for the way of life offered by the communistic nations of the world?" Is that the only choice? Must we assume that civilization has reached its final culmination in either People's China or the U.S.? Or may we rather say that as Americans we have the right to expose the flaws in our way of life and strive to correct and improve them.

And How Far Is Your Car, Sir?

To the Editor:

As a resident of Wilson Hall I would like to comment on what Mr. Lautner calls the new "storage lot" for Case-Wilson-Wonders.

I had been using my car several times a week. I used to drive over to Fee to check notes with a classmate, sometimes over to East Lansing to buy books and clothes and, of course, on dates and to get dinner on Sunday night. Even if I confined myself to the dorm on the week-days it is conceivable that I could use it several times during the weekend.

Now I have to hike twice before making the cold walk out to my car. This little jaunt clocks just eight-tenths of a mile according to the route proscribed by Lautner.

Lautner claims nothing can be done because we have to preserve the combined playground-sunbathing beach for the students. Even in the heart of spring-term I have never seen this lot utilized to its fullest. In light of this, perhaps a large parking ramp could be constructed on part of it. This parking ramp could be used to house the cars of Case-Wilson-Wonders plus the cars of dorm number 4, and would also help relieve the parking situation on football weekends. Even if it took the whole lot the students would still have the IM field, located across from Wonders, on which to play sports and sunbath.

Perhaps Lautner doesn't mean that nothing can be done, but rather nothing will be done. But I would like to ask Lautner this one question; do you walk .8 miles to your car?

L-C Series: Service, Convenience

To the Editor:

I believe your editorial of Wednesday, Jan. 12 requires a reply. Perhaps "suggestions for solutions to this problem" from your readers would be appreciated as you stated.

Before taking a closer look at the "Lecture-Concert Series dilemma," however, it might be well to note that any existing "problem" grew from roots planted in good soil -- the service to and convenience of the student body.

1. The Lecture-Concert Series at MSU is student-oriented, unlike similar offerings at some other institutions.

2. The Lecture-Concert tickets are a bargain. (One solution for shorter lines would be to sell the tickets at face value as soon as they are available.)

3. The convenience of securing several tickets so that friends may sit together is for the benefit of the students.

4. The availability of a choice of two offerings for the various coupons is an added service.

One additional factor should be kept in mind. The tickets are not general admission tickets but specific tickets for specific seats. Distribution is thus not a simple matter made 10 times quicker by using 10 lines rather than one.

Finally -- the editorial seems to be questioning Wilson Paul himself. This is most unfortunate. I personally do not believe that one could find a more capable, dedicated, resourceful, student-oriented director. His service as president of the national organization of such concert directors, and his being chosen to direct the workshop for this group (at Kellogg Center in July, 1966) are but two indications of this high regard.

William Mihalyi
Graduate Student

Editor's Note: We did not question Wilson Paul's ability in organizing the Lecture-Concert Series or in bringing outstanding talent to the University. For this he has done an outstanding job. We do question his statement that there is no better system for handing out tickets than the present one.

A'Noble' Murder

To the Editor:

Mr. George Fergus made an interesting contribution to the body of human knowledge in his letter of Jan. 14 in the State News. He proposed an unborn child is not really human. "Before birth, a human fetus is merely another animal." The "Great Moment" of birth bestows humanity on the "protoplasmic blob".

His theory should be enshrined in the Hall of Stupidity. Pray tell, when does this "Great Moment" of birth and the commencement of learning take place? It must be when its voice indicates the first gasp of breathing. At least the latter smacks of initial learning.

In his theory, death can't occur before birth. So why don't we wait until we can actually see the "blob." If we do not like it or think it should not have life on this earth, we can still it before the "Great Moment". It would be less confusing if he would decide on the precise time of the "Great Moment". Murder is such a nasty word. How could it possibly be applied to this noble act?

Friend Fiebig Finding Fame

Three old friends from earlier days on The Varsity News at the University of Detroit, happened by the State News office the other day.

Though student newspapering at U-D is on a smaller scale than here, we could always look to one figure for a bit of controversy--our columnist with the unlikely name of Fiebig. Unlikely because his first name is Jim.

He had the uncommon ability to do his best writing when stimulated by a massive hangover. And he was always, it seemed, at his best.

On more than one occasion Fiebig's copy rated unusual scrutiny by the black robed Jesuits. On press day the question was always: "Did Fiebig's column make it?" Here's a few excerpts from some that did...

Fiebig, the worldly gambler in Reno: "An hour or so later, a middle-aged woman put a nickel in my ear and started to jerk my arm, so I figured it was time to quit."

Fiebig the adventurer bravely climbing the U-D tower: "...I started at a message scrawled in bloody letters: '18 days--no water--pigeons.' I froze on the 2-3rd rung and fought to keep my hot dogs down."

And Fiebig the sentimentalist on his beer-drinking dog: "At first we thought it kind of cute--his hiccupping and all--but the situation soon got out of hand... Like most families faced with incurable alcoholism, we tried to hide our secret from the world... We kind of liked that old booze hound."

Then there was Fiebig, the hard-drinking but underaged man's man: "With all the suave-ness of my 19 years, I ordered a beer, and with all the wisdom of his 50 years he asked for proof. 'Sure,' I said, nonchalantly whipping out my laminated social security card... so I ordered a glass of ginger ale with a swizzle stick and faked it."

After graduation and a stint with the Marine Corps, Fiebig took a job with The Port Huron Times where he has established himself as a columnist. He told me with undue modesty that a national newspaper syndicate has bought the column.

While in the corps he wrote one day and said with considerable pride that he had been selected to guard the women's barracks one night and "only the most trusted soldiers pull this duty. Heh! Heh! Heh!"

Fiebig also delighted to inform us that after boot camp he was selected to go on to a special school "where I can learn to kill a man even quicker."

Recently in Detroit I found him attending a brew in the home of a mutual friend. The meeting brought to mind the following incident when Fiebig turned 21.

Rising to the occasion, I had offered to buy him a beer. "A beer?" came the innocent reply. You know I don't drink. After all, I just turned 21 today."

This from one who referred to his dog as an "old booze hound" came as no small surprise. But he finally consented and we made our way across the street to a campus tavern.

Following my lead, Fiebig sidled up to the bar with nonchalance, handling himself remarkably well, I thought, for a novice.

Three shells later I suggested a nice little place down the avenue and Fiebig nodded his approval with a rather silly grin. The bartender checked my proof and said to Fiebig: "Hi George, what'll it be today?"

Jim reddened noticeably in the semi-darkness. "Must have mixed up with some other guy," he muttered softly for my benefit.

Several shells later we decided upon another change of atmosphere. I suggested an interesting little bistro further down the avenue. Fiebig was delighted and needed little urging.

Again I went through the proof routine with the bartender. Turning to Fiebig he said: "Say Jack, how come you're not wearing your dark glasses today?"

"Sat on 'em," he explained uncomfortably.

One thing's sure, taverns are better places for the nation's youth because of Fiebig. The nation's newspapers are next.

State of the Union views. The forum was the old Supreme Court chamber, in the Capitol. Ford talked of domestic affairs, Dirksen handled foreign policy.

Even before the Republicans spoke on TV at 9 p.m., the hour Johnson chose for his live television-radio speech -- a Democratic leader was chiding them.

"To call it a State of the Union message is a little presumptuous," said House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts. "The State of the Union message is confined to whoever is president."

Ford aimed at the President a call for a budget message with expenditures rated according to priority. "If he fails to do so," Ford said, "we call upon the Democrats in Congress to join us in eliminating, reducing or deferring low-priority items."

"Republicans believe the $55 billion which the President will propose for nonmilitary spending can be and must be reduced."

"The President now advocates additional tax burdens to finance added costs both at home and abroad," Ford said. "With prudent restraint on spending, we believe no new taxes are now needed."

Ford assailed the war Johnson and his administration are waging on poverty.

"We must liberate the war on poverty from waste, controversy and the bad odor of political bossism," he said. He said little of the $2.3 billion appropriated for poverty-fighting programs has reached the poor themselves.

Services To Add 113,000 Men

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Monday he will ask Congress Wednesday for $12.3 billion in additional funds for this year. This will provide for a boost of 113,000 men in uniform, among other things.

The secretary told Democratic congressional leaders this at the White House and then relayed the word to reporters.

The extra money would be for the 1966 fiscal year which ends June 30, 1965. Only $4.6 billion of this, McNamara said, actually will be spent before midyear.

France In Common Market Talks

LUXEMBOURG (P)—France ended today a six-month boycott of the European Common Market.

The other five member governments all had their eyes on President Charles de Gaulle's foreign minister, Maurice Couve de Murville, wondering what price he would set to restore full French cooperation.

Couve de Murville was one of the first speakers today on the program of a meeting of the foreign ministers at Luxembourg's City Hall.

Smith Claims Britain Losing

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—Premier Ian Smith said Monday Britain is losing its economic battle to topple his breakaway government.

In a defiant nationwide radio address, he repeated his vow never to capitulate.

Smith hinted other nations might soon begin shipments of petroleum products to Rhodesia in violation of the embargo imposed by Britain after Rhodesia declared its independence Nov. 11.

U.S. Official Kidnapped

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas kidnapped a U.S. official Monday after ambushing his car and wounding the Vietnamese driver, the U.S. Embassy said.

The official was identified as Douglas Ramsey, 31, of Boulder City, Nev., a civilian employee of the United States Operations Mission (USOM). The embassy said Ramsey was the assistant USOM province representative for Hau Nghia Province, immediately west of Saigon.

Staff Parking

Lockwood said the committee expects to recommend possible solutions to overcrowded parking to the board this spring.

A parking ramp is planned for north campus, and this will eventually take care of the problem, he said.

"The most overcrowded area is the lot adjacent to Morrill Hall," Lockwood said. "This area has had the biggest increase in reserved parking spaces, about 70 more than last year," he said.

Lockwood estimated about 50 spaces are needed to relieve the overcrowded parking condition.

Lockwood added that to his knowledge, about 15 faculty members had agreed to share their parking spaces. "They appeared reluctant, however, to give up their reservations," he said.

WKAR Has Job Opening

MSU's AM Radio station, WKAR, is seeking a qualified student to conduct an informal morning show beginning in February.

Program Director, Gordon Gainer, emphasized that prior radio experience would be a requirement.

Applications for student employment in programming are also being accepted. These opportunities do not require previous experience.

Interested students should contact Gainer at 355-6540 for more information.

Court Rules On Parks

WASHINGTON (P)—The Supreme Court ruled Monday that if a city so much as mows the grass of a park—even one privately willed—it becomes a public facility and cannot be segregated.

The court decided that only a minimum of city involvement brings the U.S. Constitution into play and thereby dictates that a park made available by charitable trust be opened to all members of the public.

Thus the court by 6-3 decision ruled that a park in Macon, Ga., willed originally for the exclusive use of white people but since opened to Negroes, did not become a private facility merely because the city turned it over to private trustees.

A park is more like a fire department or a police department than a social club, wrote Justice William O. Douglas, and "mass recreation through the use of parks is plainly in the public domain."

Justice John M. Harlan, joined in a dissent by Justice Potter Stewart, said the majority view "jeopardizes the existence of denominationally districted schools while making of every college entrance rejection letter a potential 14th Amendment question."

After disposing of this and scores of other cases that piled up during a five-week recess, the court began hearings on the constitutionality of the 1965 voting rights law.

Attorneys for South Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama, Virginia and Louisiana all challenged the law.

Georgia will join in the attack Tuesday and then the justices will hear Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach defend the statute.

The court dwelled Monday on civil rights, agreeing also to take on a Greenwood, Miss., case that questions whether demonstrators should be prosecuted in federal or local courts.

Peace Bid

This is viewed as meaning that America plans no surrender, and has both the power and hardware to hit the enemy harder if the administration feels it necessary.

The visit of Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg had heavy impact in France. Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville is pictured as viewing the Goldberg mission as one honestly aimed at achieving peace in Vietnam. President Charles de Gaulle's own reaction is uncertain.

French public reaction, remembering France's experience in Indochina, seems convinced the Americans cannot win and must eventually get out.

Italy's coalition government, seems to credit U.S. efforts as sincere. It aligns its thinking with papal initiatives favoring any means which might bring negotiated peace. The popular mind seems to identify Pope Paul VI with the U.S. effort, especially since Goldberg visited the Vatican.

West Germany's government endorses the drive.

John Lauritzen wanted further knowledge

He's finding it at Western Electric

When the University of Nevada awarded John Lauritzen his B.S.E.E. in 1961, it was only the first big step in the learning program he envisions for himself. This led him to Western Electric. For WE agrees that ever-increasing knowledge is essential to the development of its engineers—and is helping John in furthering his education.

John attended one of Western Electric's three Graduate Engineering Training Centers and graduated with honors. Now, through the Company-paid Tuition Refund Plan, John is working toward his Master's in Industrial Management at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. He is currently a planning engineer developing test equipment for the Bell System's revolutionary electronic telephone switching system.

If you set the highest standards for yourself, both educationally and professionally, we should talk. Western Electric's vast communications job as manufacturing unit of the Bell System provides many opportunities for fast-moving careers for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers, as well as for physical science, liberal arts and business majors. Get your copy of the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer. And be sure to arrange for an interview when the Bell System recruiting team visits your campus.

Jim Weston
B.A., Washington Univ.
M.B.A., Washington Univ.

College graduates, new to Ford Motor Company, often comment on the comparative youth of many of our top executives. The example of these men in key positions is evidence that being young is no handicap at Ford to those who possess ability and ambition. In fact, new employees can expect challenging assignments while still participating in our College Graduate Program. This means an opportunity to demonstrate special skills and initiative while still learning the practical, day-to-day aspects of the business. Consider the experience of Jim Weston, who has been with Ford Motor Company for three years.

Jim came to Ford in February, 1963. His first assignment was in marketing analysis where his principal job was evaluating present and potential dealer locations. For a time, he also gained experience in the actual purchasing of dealer locations. Later, an assignment forecasting sales and market potential with Ford Division's Truck Sales Programming Department gave him the background he needed to qualify for his present position. His job today? Only three years out of college, Jim is now a senior financial analyst in Ford Division's Business Management Department.

Jim Weston's experience is not unusual. At Ford Motor Company, your twenties can be challenging and rewarding years. Like to learn more about it? Talk to our representative when he visits your campus.

BESSONE RAPS REFS

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

Whenever a hockey official sends a favorite player to the penalty box, it usually brings a roar of disapproval from the home town fans.

So it was this past weekend, only more so, when the Spartan skaters played Minnesota in a two-game series at the Ice Arena.

Fifteen of a total 34 penalties in the series were handed to the Spartans, which often provoked the crowd to pelt the ice with soft drink cups and a variety of garbage.

Coupled with the unusual number of penalties were the numerous brawls which resulted in stiff penalties to both teams.

After Saturday's 5-1 loss which completed Minnesota's series sweep over the Spartans, hockey Coach Amo Bessone called both games "loosely officiated" and remarked that they often "got out of hand."

This was the second straight week that Bessone sharply criticized the officials of Spartan games. In the Colorado College game a week ago, State players protested vainly over a penalty in an overtime game won by Colorado, 5-4.

"Actually, though," said Bessone recently, "we don't want to get on the officials too much. A lot of their calls are judgment calls and who can say they are wrong?"

Despite his verbal slashing over the weekend, Bessone feels that the officiating has been generally good over the season.

"We have a new policy with officials this year," he said. "Instead of the previous one head official and two linesmen, we now have only two officials in each game."

Bessone explained that this year both officials are calling penalties, whereas in the past only the head referee called infractions. The linesmen called off-sides only.

"These former linesmen are not used to making penalty decisions and we expect them to make some mistakes," he continued. "They'll let the head referee call the close plays and the ones they are uncertain about."

The NEWS In

SPORTS

In all of the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. games there are one head official from the league and another from the home team's area. When State plays at the Ice Arena, John Polomosky and Ed Miller alternate as local officials.

League officials are not permitted to talk about games, so Polomsky couldn't comment on Friday night's game. He did, however, speak about his new position in calling rule infractions.

"I don't find it so hard to switch over from a linesmen to an official that calls penalties," he said. "As a player, I know what to look for, but there are some who are having some difficulty."

Polomsky is a former Spartan skater (1953-56) who is an engineering instructor on campus.

"The good thing about this new policy is that both officials now have full authority," he continued. "There are no restrictions."

"In the old system there was too much on the ice for one official to see," he said. "Now, with the two penalty-calling officials, they can see everything and call most infractions that occur."

Polomsky said that the role of the official is a demanding one, involving more than what the fans see from the stands.

"We have to keep our eyes on three or four spots at a time," he said. "We don't always watch just the puck. We look for interference, illegal checking, off-sides."

Thigh Injury 'Ices' Pair's Hopes For National Figure Skating Title

By BOB ZESCHIN
State News Staff Writer

A pulled thigh muscle will keep two Spartans from gaining a national championship this year.

Joanne Heckert and Gary Clark, East Lansing Juniors, who finished third in the 1965 National Pairs Figure Skating Championship, planned to compete for the U.S. title until Clark pulled the muscle December 20.

"The first two doctors I consulted said that I shouldn't skate for 30 days," said Clark. "This would have prevented me from skating in the nationals in San Francisco in January, but not in the world competition held in Switzerland in February."

"We then began to send these affidavits and doctor's certificates to the international committee that selects the world team," he continued, "hoping that we might be chosen for the team on the basis of past performances."

Miss Heckert and Clark were even planning on flying to California at their own expense in an attempt to convince the committee that they would be ready to skate in February.

Clark explained that last year's champions, the Josephs, had turned professional. If they didn't compete, the three places on the team would have to be filled by last year's runners-up, which would include the MSU couple.

"We hoped that the committee might see that we would be able to represent the United States better than a relatively inexperienced and unknown pair," said Miss Heckert.

Their hopes crumbled this week when Clark went to see

Dr. James S. Feurig at the Olin Memorial Health Center, who has treated this injury common to gymnasts and trackmen.

"He took one look at my thigh and told me to stay off the ice for three months," said Clark. "He said this is a common athletic injury and it takes time to heal."

Extremely disappointed, the juniors felt that they had a good chance of winning the nationals and placing high in the world event.

Last year they finished ninth out of 18 pairs in their first try.

"Cynthia and Ronald Kaufman are a spectacular but sometimes uncontrolled pair," said Clark concerning the probable U.S. entries. "We've improved a lot in the last year and I like to think we would have had a very good chance of beating them."

Miss Heckert and Clark, who have been skating together for over six years said their eventual goal was to compete in the 1968 Winter Olympics.

NO SKATING--The ice is off limits to championship figure skater Gary Clark who recently suffered a muscle injury. Behind a dejected Clark are the crutches that have replaced his skates.

Pool Gadgets, Facilities Offer Swimmers' Paradise

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

Only one important question remains to be answered following the MSU swim team's home opener at the IM pool last weekend -- "Where did all the gadgets come from?"

The IM pool is laden with many features not found in many other natatoriums.

"There are no better University swimming facilities in the world than we have here," said Coach Charles McCaffree. "They're just tops."

Gary Dilley developed into an All-American backstroke at State, and considering the equipment available to aid backstrokers, Dilley's success seems natural.

Rectangular, fluorescent lane lights provide paths along the ceiling corresponding to the respective lanes. To prevent injuries and help backstrokers determine when to begin their turn, colored pennants hang across the width of the pool, 15 feet from the end.

Yellow ceiling lights, 10 feet from the pool's end, also serve as indicators.

According to McCaffree, "This is one of the best-lit pools there is." Underwater lighting and distinct lane lines give competitors a clear view of the tank's bottom. This is extremely important, as swimming on the slightest angle adds costly time to the clocking of an event.

In many pools used for competitive swimming, determining finishes is made difficult by pool ends being uniform with the sides. MSU's IM pool boasts raised ends for more accurate judging.

Decks are heated for the swimmers' comfort and equipped with a special cleaning apparatus. A special drainage system makes daily deck-cleaning practical.

Multi-colored, adjustable starting blocks and underwater watches are useful as well as attractive. The blocks help judges to distinguish between the six lanes.

Films of the splashes' strokes may be taken from underwater observation points along the edge of the pool wall.

"We have very good seating," McCaffree said. "The arrangement is so that everyone can see."

Campbell, Washington To Captain '66 Track

By PHIL PIERSON
State News Sports Writer

Spartan track Coach Fran Dittich has picked Gene Washington and Daswell Campbell as the co-captains for this season's cinder squad.

Both are juniors and turned in impressive records as sophomores last season.

Washington, a hurdler from La Porte, Tex., was the indoor team's leading scorer with 62-1/4 points and won two Big Ten championships and an NCAA title.

He captured the 70-yard low hurdles in a conference record time of :07.7 seconds. In the NCAA meet in Detroit, Washington won the 60-yard low hurdles in a record time of :07.2.

In outdoor competition, Washington won the Big Ten 120-yard high hurdles championship.

Washington holds two other varsity indoor records in the 65 and 70-yard high hurdles with times of 7.9 and 8.4 seconds and has six freshman records to his credit.

Campbell was the second-leading scorer indoors with 37 points. A sprinter from Hazel Park, Campbell won the Big Ten indoor title in the 300-yard dash and placed fifth in the NCAA 440-yard dash.

Dittich ordinarily doesn't pick juniors for his co-captains but said Campbell and Washington have the attributes he looks for in team leaders.

"They are both high quality athletes and they're academically sound," Dittich said.

Their duties, according to Dittich, will be to handle any of the team's problems and give occasional advice on their team's personnel to use in an event.

Cagers, U-M Headed For Showdown?

By BOB HORNING
State News Sports Writer

March 7. Almost two months away but it's already rapidly gaining importance.

March 77. That's the day the University of Michigan will meet Michigan State here in what could turn out to be the showdown battle for the Big 10 basketball crown.

Speculation right now seems a bit premature but the possibility is definitely there as the conference race now stands. Both teams own 3-0 league marks and are sitting atop the standings.

State Coach John Benington, however, said he is glad that Michigan won Saturday. "I'd hate to be on top alone."

Benington was naturally referring to the amount of publicity his team will get for coming out of nowhere to lead the pack. He certainly has no ambitions to start talking about a possible title now.

This weekend will help clear up the argument of who really belongs on top. The Spartans face Iowa at Iowa City and Michigan meets Minnesota in Ann Arbor.

Iowa, the pre-season pick to take the crown, was upset in its first Big 10 game by Wisconsin. The Hawkeyes now have a 1-1 record with their win over rapidly-improving Northwestern last Monday.

In its game against Michigan, Minnesota will have its All-

American Lou Hudson in the line-up. The Gophers were the No. 4 ranked team in the nation before losing Hudson. He has missed seven games with a broken wrist.

The Gophers evened their record at 1-1 (they lost to MSU, 85-65) with a 91-82 victory over Indiana Saturday. Hudson netted 20 points though he had to wear a cast almost up to the elbow on his right arm.

Michigan has edged out two narrow victories, beating Ohio State, 83-78, and Northwestern, 93-86. It also whipped Indiana, 88-68.

In each of the games, the Wolverines were behind by as much as 10 points before coming back.

Cazzie Russell once again heads the Michigan attack. The 6-5 All-America guard is averaging 29.2 points per game and is leading the Big 10 in scoring with a 32.6 per game mark.

Three other Michigan starters are also in double figures: John Clawson (14.7), Jim Myers (11.6), and Captain Oliver Darden (10.6).

Besides this week's games, some key ones can be picked out for both MSU and the U of M.

State has a rematch with Minnesota, Feb. 12. Michigan must face Iowa twice late in February.

Last year Michigan won the Big 10 football championship. This year Michigan State won it. Last year Michigan won the conference basketball championship. This year...

Unbeaten Matmen 'Underdogs'

By ED BRILL
State News Sports Writer

Even with a record of 4-0 in dual meet competition this season, the MSU wrestling team has to be rated an underdog to Minnesota in its first home meet this Saturday.

The Spartans placed second in the Northwestern Quadrangular Jan. 8, ten points behind first place Minnesota. In order to extend their unbeaten string, State's wrestlers will have to pull off one or two upsets Saturday.

It ordinarily takes five victories out of eight matches to win a dual meet. According to Coach Grady Peninger, the Gophers are favored in five weight classes.

The Spartans chances for victory, then, narrow down to the individual fortunes of several State wrestlers. Either the Spartans must split the bouts, 4-4, and hope to win one of the bouts by a fall, or two State matmen will have to disprove the form sheet.

The only Spartans given the edge now are Don Behm at 130, Dale Carr at 137 and Jeff Richardson at heavyweight. Behm has been outstanding this season and is undefeated in four dual meets and two tournaments.

Richardson, the league heavyweight champ, saw action for the first time last week against Ohio State. In the deciding bout, Richardson beat Ted Ardick, 8-3.

Carr has been a pleasant surprise for Peninger this season, as the lightweight sophomore came through with wins in three of four dual meets. In the Midlands tourney in December Carr finished second at 137.

The big question marks, and the bouts which will provide the key to this Saturday's match, will occur at 157, 167 and 177.

At 157, Dick Cook will take on Big Ten champion Lee Gross of Minnesota, who is out for revenge. Cook pulled off a major upset when he decisoned Gross in the Northwestern tourney. If the Spartans are to defeat the Gophers, Cook will almost have to repeat his performance this Saturday against an aroused opponent.

At 167, there will be a rematch between George Radman and John Klein. Radman had Klein in a pinning combination in the Northwestern meet, but lost the match when Klein reversed the hold and pinned Radman.

At 177 there will be a test of unknown quantities, which very well might determine the final outcome of the meet. Mike Bradley will go for the Spartans against the Gopher's Bob Ramstad.

BILLY BUDD

Film Is Object Lesson

By BERT LEVY
State News Reviewer

Billy Budd is an objective lesson in how literature should be treated if it is to be adapted to the dramatic film medium.

The final product fulfills all the requirements of success: it is faithful to the author's intentions, it is interpreted well into cinema, and it is a good entertainment as well.

The story itself is a classic by Herman Melville. Superficially, it deals with a seaman, Billy Budd, who is impressed onto a British man of war from a merchant ship. On the warship, Budd is intimidated by the master-at-arms, Claggart.

In a confrontation, Budd accidentally kills Claggart with a blow when a speech impediment prevents him from protesting verbally. The warship's captain realizes that it was an accident, but sacrifices Budd to the law rather than disrupt duty and discipline in time of war.

Underneath this plot lies an intricate weaving of characters and values. Budd is an embodiment of near perfection of good. Claggart is prideful and evil and led by his values to find a flaw in Budd's goodness.

Captain Vere is torn between his duty as a professional soldier and his compassion as a human being.

Robert Ryan does an excellent job of interpreting Claggart. It is a difficult role of an unreasoned villain who sees the world in the light of his own nature and treats it as such.

Terrance Stamp is outstanding as Budd. He somehow captures, both physically and in mannerisms, the goodness of Budd. He is everything that Budd should be, without going too far. It is difficult to portray Budd without tending towards the ethereal.

The bulk of the praise, however, must go to the many-talented Peter Ustinov who played Captain Vere. His performance as a dedicated man who must reconcile his actions as military leader with his human values was convincing.

Besides acting, Ustinov helped write the adaptation of the story and directed the film as well.

SOME LINE--Though not the sort of "line" usually associated with 007, this one is typical of the one his fans were going through to see "Thunderball." The picture has two weeks remaining of a scheduled six-week run. The longest reported line formed during Christmas break when it gave the impression of a circum-block snake dance.

N.Y. Arts Trio
To Play Tonight

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York, which won the praise of Arturo Toscanini, Robert Casadesu and Charles Munch will perform at 8:15 tonight in the Music Auditorium.

Menahem Pressler, pianist; Daniel Giletti, violinist, and Bernard Greenhouse, have been guest performers for nine consecutive seasons at the Berkshire Music Festival in Tanglewood, Mass.--a record for any chamber ensemble.

Charles Munch said, after the trio's first Tanglewood performance, "They are worthy successors of the last great trio: Thibaud, Casals and Cortot."

The trio won the esteemed Grand Prix du Disque, 1964, in Paris. In addition to their worldwide reputation as a performing group, the trio members are great individual artists.

Pressler won the international Claude Debussy prize at the age of 17, after which he was immediately given an unprecedented three-year contract with the Philadelphia Symphony.

Daniel Giletti studied and performed with Jacques Thibaud and Georges Enesco. Giletti became concertmaster of the NBC Symphony under Arturo Toscanini in 1951, and remained in that post until the death of the great Maestro.

Greenhouse, a former Juilliard fellowship winner, studied two years under Pablo Casals. Casals called him a remarkable cellist and a dignified artist.

Giletti and Greenhouse both play Stradivarius instruments. Tonight's program will include: Beethoven's "Trio in C Minor, Op. 1, No. 3," Ravel's "Trio in A Minor" and Brahms' "Trio in C Major, Op. 87."

Placement Bureau

The following organizations are interviewing on campus on the dates indicated. The Placement Bureau Bulletin has specific information on degree levels and job locations. Appointments should be made at the bureau in the Student Services Building at least two days prior to date of interview. Students should interview with employers even though they have not completed their military services. Most employers will be interested in the student before and after his duty with the armed forces.

Star Show Falls
Short Of PotentialBy NORM SPERLING
State News Reviewer

The new show at Abrams Planetarium, "Jewels of the January Sky," is a disjointed amalgam of facts about the stars in the winter sky.

The show tries to do a lot with those stars. It both succeeds and flops.

The biggest fault is that it does not have anything specific to say. There is no message, no central theme or basic principle to illustrate.

Instead, it takes the winter sky and wanders through it. It tells the relation of some stars to others, some statistics, a good bit of mythology and a little physics of these phenomena.

About the only theme that runs through the whole hour is the repetition of the fact that star groups do not actually look like the figures they are supposed to represent. Of all the planetarium is capable of teaching, that is perhaps the single fact it could assume the audience already knew.

JEWELS OF THE

The bits of mythology that are presented are used to advantage. The stories behind half a dozen constellations are entertainingly given. Imaginatively drawn color slides of Orion the hunter, his two dogs, and the bull he is fighting are especially good.

Youngsters in the audience Saturday were entertained enough to giggle occasionally at the funny parts of the constellation tales.

But then the pictures were switched off and the lecturer started pointing out the bright stars. He quoted statistics about their size and distance and showed telescopic pictures of some and schematic views of others.

So what? The figures alone are basically interesting but unless they are related to something else, they serve no purpose. One thing the figures showed, that the sun is far from being the most luminous or largest star in the heavens, was never stated directly.

The proper way to introduce science into the show was well illustrated by the segment on auroras. A good imitation of an aurora was projected on the dome, then explained by slides and narration. The audience found out when to expect auroras and just why they develop.

Unfortunately, there was apparently no particular reason for having this section in the show--auroras are not especially winter phenomena. But the segment is there and handled well.

With the exception of the aurora projector, the special effects were not too good. No dome lights were used, for example, and the horizon projection does not blend well into the dark sky. Even the well-ecuted slides of the Orion group of constellations were overlapped at one point by another slide showing a telescopic view of the Seven Sisters.

The overall effect is one of a nice guided tour around the sky that tells you a little about a lot of things, but doesn't leave you with any dominant impressions. It falls a good bit short of its potential.

International Dinner Set
For Feb. 12

"Global Gourmet" will be the theme of this year's Annual International Dinner. The event will take place Feb. 12 in the Crossroads Cafe at the International Center.

The dinner menu is composed of gourmet dishes from many countries represented by students here. Many of these students will also present a stage show after dinner, performing entertainment typical of their countries.

Each year the International Club presents this event as one of its monthly activities for foreign students as well as American students.

The committee members of this year's dinner are:

Ronald W. Rowe, general chairman; I.C. Shah, stage show; Wafik M. Meshref, programs and tickets; Sharon Sinda, menu; Sheila Kinder, decoration; Daniel F. Fengler, publicity and Mrs. W. Berger, ticket sales.

Ticket sales will be announced Thursday in the State News. Any persons interested in working on the committees for the dinner are urged to contact Ron Rowe, 351-5622, or the UN Lounge, Mrs. W. Berger, 355-3490.

The committees, as well as the dinner, are open to both foreign and American students and faculty.

President Hannah Back From East

President John A. Hannah returned to campus late Monday after attending meetings in the East of two higher education organizations over the weekend.

Olin Report

Admitted Monday were: Norma Rothstein, Skokie, Ill., freshman; Chester Tomczyk, Jackson sophomore; Daniel Stewart, Romeo junior; Minuro Sateau, Yokohama, Japan, graduate student; William Laycock, Grand Rapids freshman; Dean Reid, Owosso freshman; Paulette Johnson, Ludington freshman; Rita Pence, Oconomowoc, Wis., junior; Thomas Gaffke, Bay City senior; Barbara Wenk, Lansing junior; Barbara Norris, Detroit freshman; Cheryl Bremer, Farmington freshman; Cheryl Longstreet, Jenison freshman; Arthur Brill, Paw Paw senior; Douglas Todd, Wilmette, Ill., freshman.

Friday and Saturday, Hannah attended a meeting of the American Council on Education in Washington. James H. Denison, assistant to the president, said Monday.

Hannah is a member of the council's 23-member board of directors, Denison said.

The American Council on Education is composed of all major American colleges and universities. It acts as spokesman for higher education, in addition to carrying out and publishing research on education, he said.

Hannah attended a meeting Monday of Education and World Affairs in New York City, Denison said.

Hannah also serves on the board of directors of this organization which is composed of colleges and universities engaged in international programs, he said. The organization attempts to coordinate these efforts and relations between the various universities and the governments of the countries in which the programs are carried out, he added.

Monday night, Hannah was scheduled to return to East Lansing to speak to a group of education writers attending a dinner at Kellogg Center sponsored by the College Entrance Examination Board.

FIRST MED COURSE

Social View Stressed

By CHRISTINE O'CONNER

Med 499, Seminar in Medicine and Society, is being offered this term as the first course in MSU's new College of Human Medicine.

The two-credit course is designed to contribute to the liberal education of pre-medical students and to impress upon them the commitment of the medical profession to the whole human being—both as a living organism and as an individual and a member of society.

Lecturers are drawn from both the medical and social science fields and discussion by students and other faculty members is encouraged.

Many class members enjoy being in on the development of the course.

"I like experiments," said Richard Krauskop, Grand Rapids senior.

"We're guinea pigs," he added. "What we do now will help determine what the course will be."

Krauskop felt the course "has potential" but deeper discussion of opposing viewpoints is needed.

James Rohde, Spring Lake senior, said the format was basically good but also felt some improvement is needed.

"More seminar and less lecture," was the suggestion of Terry Polevoy, Suffern, N.Y., senior.

If this experiment in stressing sociological viewpoints is successful, MSU will have helped "pave the way" for a new concept in pre-medical education, said Michael Berke, Farmington senior.

The only female in the seminar is Elizabeth Konicki, Farmington junior.

"I think it's great that courses like this are available before medical school," she said.

The majority of the class members are senior pre-med students who will attend other medical schools.

"Future MSU medical students were discouraged from taking the course this term," said John C. Howell, associate dean of the College of Human Medicine and coordinator of the seminar. They will be taking it next year.

Howell stressed the experimental nature of the course. It is intended to give pre-medical students an early awareness of medicine's wider social and cultural context. A sociological viewpoint is stressed.

"The kinds of materials we are presenting in the senior year are rarely encountered except at an advanced level in medical schools," said Howell.

The course, with an improved format, will be offered as a three-term series starting next fall term and will be restricted to majors. Most students admitted to the college in the fall will be seniors, though some graduate students will also enter at the "year four" level, according to Dr. Thomas B. Hill, assistant to the dean of the College of Human Medicine and chairman of the admissions committee.

Size of the seminar will be restricted to 25 to allow for informal faculty-student discussion. Maximum flexibility in content and class structure is a primary aim.

Forestry Club Plans Shindig

Tickets are now on sale for "Foresters' Shindig," the annual all-university dance to be sponsored by the Forestry Club Saturday in Demonstration Hall.

Music will be provided by the "Presidentials" and square dances will be called by George Bubolz. "The Londons" folk singing group will also perform.

Tickets may be bought for $3 a couple in the main office of the Forestry Building.
