Labor Studies Reuther Offer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Organized labor, already puzzled over President Johnson's anti-strike proposal, was further mystified over a somewhat similar suggestion from one of the nation's top union chiefs.

Like Johnson, Walter P. Reuther, Auto Workers Union president, gave no details in proposing a "new mechanism" to prevent strikes in public service industries as well as major industries like Big Steel and auto makers.

Officially, the reaction from other union leaders and from government officials to Reuther's proposal was a deafening silence.

"Let's not start fighting Walter," one union president told an aide.

But, privately, many highly placed officials found it astonishing that any strike-limiting suggestion should come from a labor leader of Reuther's stature.

"Stunning," was the way one government spokesman put it. Reuther didn't say if such machinery to forestall strikes would be voluntary or compulsory.

"What are they going to do, put everybody in jail?" said one member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

But Johnson's proposal and Reuther's apparently stemmed from the recent New York transit strike. Reuther, second most powerful man in the AFL-CIO, made his proposal in a speech six days after Johnson's antistrike reference in his State of the Union message Jan. 12.

Reuther visited the White House Tuesday, but both his aides and Johnson spokesmen said they did not discuss the matter. Johnson, in his speech, said he would ask Congress to consider measures to deal with "strikes which threaten irreparable damage to the national interest."

Reuther said there should be machinery to avert strikes in public service industries like transit as well as in all major industries that produce 20 per cent of any basic commodity.

Reuther has made the latter proposal before. An Auto Workers spokesman, asked whether Reuther was suggesting compulsory settlement of strikes, said "he didn't go that far."

Johnson's proposal obviously had in mind the possibility of federal legislation, although the Labor Department reportedly is not drafting a bill at the moment.

Although there was no official AFL-CIO comment, George Meany, president of the giant labor federation, said a few days earlier:

"I certainly am opposed to a law which makes it illegal for a man to quit his job whether he is working for the community or not."

Mrs. Gandhi Elected Indian Prime Minister

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Ushering in a new era of Nehru rule, Mrs. Indira Gandhi pledged Wednesday as prime minister to follow the policies of nonalignment and socialism of her famous father, Jawaharlal Nehru.

Her late husband, Feroze Gandhi, was no relation of the Mahatma.

The immense problems of India fell on the shoulders of Mrs. Gandhi when the Congress party elected her to leadership over Morarji Desai, head of the conservative wing, 355-169.

As party leader, the woman who was schooled in politics by her prime minister father will take over next week from Gulzari Lal Nanda. Nanda has been acting prime minister since the death of Lal Bahadur Shastri Jan. 11. Nanda resigned but was asked to continue in office until Mrs. Gandhi, 48, takes over.

Mrs. Gandhi told a news conference she favored President

Johnson's Viet Nam peace offensive. She said she supported any move for peace anywhere. Asked whether she envisaged any important changes in Shastri's domestic and foreign policies, Mrs. Gandhi replied:

"Mr. Shastri was continuing the basic policies of my father and the accepted policies of the Congress party. I cannot naturally deviate from the policies which have been passed by our party."

"We should try to create what my father called a climate of peace. We should encourage the spirit of Tashkent, and see that we have peace at home and also abroad, if possible."

It was at Tashkent, in the Soviet Union, that Shastri died of a heart attack only a few hours after signing an agreement with Pakistan President Ayub Khan to seek peace for the subcontinent.

Immediately after her victory, Mrs. Gandhi rode in a bright yellow convertible to the presidential palace, where President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan asked her to form a government. He will swear her in sometime next week.

She will take the reins of a nation faced with difficult problems.

Johnson Pushes For Quick Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson urged Congress Wednesday to vote promptly an additional $12.75 billion for more fighting men, munitions and economic weapons to defeat communism in South Viet Nam and Southeast Asia.

Democratic House leaders said Johnson will get his wish for swift action. Republican leaders called for careful hearings, but indicated support. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara will start testifying Thursday before senators in secret.

Johnson pledged to "continue to press on every door" for a peaceful settlement. At the State Department, a spokesman said "the other side has shown no interest" in talking.

"We hope the aggression will end; we must be prepared if it does not," the President said in a letter transmitting his second extra money request this fiscal year to support the widening U.S. military and economic campaign in Viet Nam.

Johnson appealed for a no-politics approach to the crisis, saying "whatever differences there are on other issues, we are as one in support of our men in Viet Nam."

Simultaneously, the President was asking Congress for early action on tax law changes designed to bring in an extra $4.8 billion in the next year.

The new appropriation provides $12.3 billion for military preparedness and $415 million for various "country building" economic projects, particularly civilian-based programs to bring economic and social betterment to the peasants of Viet Nam, Thailand and Laos.

There is little opposition to the issue. (continued on page 9)

Grads Studying Council Proposal

Graduate students met last night to discuss the preliminary draft of the proposed constitution of the new Graduate Student Council.

The organization is designed "to promote the quality of our academic, economic and social life; to act as liaison and an organ of communication among us; and to see that our individual and collective interests are both represented and promoted," according to its proposed constitution.

The constitution provides for an elected student council comprised of elected representatives from each college of the University with the number based on the enrollment, or on the basis of one representative for every 750 graduate students enrolled in each college.

In addition there will be an elected representative from Owen Hall, Married Student Housing, Off-Campus Housing and four representatives will be elected at large by popular vote.

Some non-voting members will also be included on the council. Elections to the council will be held by the fifth week of winter term, each academic year.

The body will be assisted by a Chairman, chosen from the current council membership, with full voting privileges.

Procedure for recall has also been provided in the constitution. The council chairman may be dismissed by a motion followed by a two-thirds majority vote of the entire membership of the council.

The duty and responsibility of the council is to form and direct the standing committees, to set graduate student policies of an all-University nature and to levy an assessment on all qualified voters not to exceed 25 cents per student per term. The council will hold at least three meetings per term, except summer.

Any decisions of the council may be vetoed by petitioning for a ballot.

Amendments to the constitution may be proposed by a majority vote of the council or by petition of 10 per cent of the qualified voters. A qualified voter is any student enrolled in graduate school.

This constitution will be adopted immediately following a majority affirmative vote of all those qualified citizens voting on the issue.

5 Years Ago Today. . 'Let Us Begin'--JFK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Five years ago today, plows and flame throwers finished removing a great snow from the Capitol Plaza and a young, vibrant voice rang out from the inaugural stand: "My fellow Americans: Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country."

Memories flood back of that first and only, inauguration of President John F. Kennedy: Of the biting blizzard the night before that tied traffic in knots; of bonfires lit in an attempt to dry the surface of the mall along which Kennedy drove to the gala affair; of the bright sunshine but 20-degree cold of inauguration day.

Then, beginning at 12:52 p.m., the new President spoke, reminding the nation that it is heir to the Revolution for freedom begun by the forebears.

"Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans."

History will judge how far, up to now, the nation has progressed toward the goals delineated by Kennedy.

"Let us never negotiate out of fear," he said. "But let us never fear to negotiate."

Kennedy's successor seeks now to carry forward that policy in Viet Nam, with what results none can foretell.

"If a free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich," Kennedy said.

His brother-in-law, Sargent Shriver, has now been assigned full time to the domestic drive against poverty, and abroad multifaceted efforts are in operation.

To Kennedy, time was required to create "a new world of law, where the strong are just and the weak secure and the peace preserved."

"All this will not be finished in the first one hundred days," he said. "Nor will it be finished in the first one thousand days, nor even perhaps in our lifetime on this planet. But let us begin."

Board Snubs Printers

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Editor-in-Chief

MSU's union label printing contract controversy isn't over. In fact, the fight may just be beginning.

The non-union printers are clearly displeased by the MSU Board of Trustees' action in restricting printing contracts to union shops.

About 20 representatives from Lansing area non-union shops were ready to meet with the MSU trustee Thursday. Action on the matter, however, was tabled until the February meeting.

Martin J. Struhar, director and treasurer of the Graphic Arts Association of Michigan, Inc., indicated the non-union printers' fight could go to the governor or even the legislature.

Governor George W. Romney has been sent a copy of our statement," he said. "I'm not going to put words in the governor's mouth, but I assure you that he is on top of this and is very interested."

Struhar indicated he would meet with several state legislators later Thursday afternoon. Struhar's group and 24 other non-union printing firms have gone on record as opposing the board's decision at the December meeting. The action would allow contract printing to be awarded only to firms who use the union label on their products.

The trustees said they will reconsider the measure.

Before the Trustees met Thursday, Board Chairman Warren M. Huff spoke briefly with Struhar and explained why the board would not take the matter up at that meeting.

"We did not have as many facts at our command as we might have had when we voted on this," Huff said.

"We definitely have not concluded discussion on this."

"What we are trying to do is develop a policy which is fair and appropriate."

"We are making decisions for a public agency and we want the policies right," he said.

The board approved its December minutes. This means that non-union printers will probably not get any more orders until the policy is reversed.

Struhar complained that since the board had decided to reconsider the matter, the least they could do would be to allow non-union firms to bid on University printing until a final policy was decided.

The decision to eliminate non-union shops from MSU printing contracts was made at an executive (closed) meeting of the board in December.

When asked to comment on the board's action, Struhar said: "I think it stinks!"

"Non-union firms pay taxes to support universities just as union firms do. Why should non-union firms be discriminated against when they want to do business with a university?"

"In my opinion, this board owes non-union printers an apology."

MSU, E. Lansing To Share Dump

By JANE KNAUER
State News Staff Writer

The rubbish of MSU is now joining the rubbish of the city of East Lansing in a sanitary landfill, sometimes called a dump, in Alameda Township.

The Board of Trustees approved a joint operation of the sanitary landfill Wednesday, in which East Lansing would pay approximately 60 per cent of the costs of operation and the University 40 per cent.

The city began using the new sanitary landfill site about the middle of December according to John Patriarche, East Lansing city manager.

MSU and the city have been using the landfill on a verbal agreement between the two institutions since the new power plant was built on the old sanitary landfill for the University. Patriarche said the landfill site, north of Holt Road between College Road and Phillips Road—an extension of Hagadorn Road which runs along the western side of the campus—would serve the needs of the city and the University for at least five years and possibly up to 10.

Philip J. May, vice president of business and finance for the University, told the board the University will share the cost of the operation of the landfill based on the percentage of material delivered to the site.

Patriarche said the costs would be determined by the annual cost of operating the landfill based on the end of the fiscal year, June 30 for both the city and the University.

The total cost will be figured out and the University will pay its share of 40 per cent, Patriarche said.

Quarterly payments are made by the University toward the final 40 per cent share of the cost, he said.

May estimated the cost at approximately $15,000 per year. "The contract also provides that the city will have full responsibility for the landfill," he said.

Peking Slams Soviets' Non-Support

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China, its words sounding more bellicose all the time, appears to have challenged Moscow to risk a trip to the brink of war with the United States if it wants to prove it really supports the Communists in Viet Nam.

An insistent note in anti-Soviet propaganda from Peking hints that the Russians coldly rejected a Peking demand that Moscow provoke a major crisis, a second front in Europe—in Berlin for example—as a diversion which could tie up sizable U.S. military forces.

Such a proposal may have been made to Alexander N. Shelepin, the Soviet communist party's No. 2 leader, during his stopover in Peking on his way home from north Viet Nam last week.

The Stalin and Khrushchev era demonstrated that when the Kremlin considers it necessary, it can almost at will provoke a major confrontation with the United States over divided Berlin.

Just after Shelepin left Peking, People's Daily, official paper of the Chinese Communists, reported pointedly that U.S. troops had been transferred from Europe to Viet Nam. This was carried under a headline: "Tactic Soviet-U.S. understanding on peaceful coexistence on the Western front."

Immediately before Shelepin undertook his mission to Hanoi, Marshal Chen Yi, the Chinese vice premier and foreign minister, told a Japanese correspondent:

"The Soviet Union is the largest European Socialist country. If it really wanted to help the Vietnamese people, if it really wanted to support and help their struggle against U.S. aggression in an effective and all-around way, it could have taken all kinds of measures in many fields to immobilize forces of the United States."

Indeed, Chen hinted that one reason the Soviet Union shied away from using the sea to supply North Viet Nam—instead of land transport across China—was that "it dares not take the sea routes." The implication was that Moscow feared a clash with the United States.

If Shelepin was assigned to seek a new avenue to unity of effort with Peking, his mission seemed fruitless. On the day he left Peking, People's Daily demanded to know how any who claimed to love justice could "look on idly while the U.S. aggressors are killing and burning."

"How can they fail to increase by a hundred times their support for the just struggle of the South Vietnamese people? Under such circumstances, when the leaders of a Socialist country remain indifferent and even work hand in glove with the leaders of U.S. imperialism to peddle Johnson's peace talks hoax, does this not mean they have lost the last iota of their sense of justice?" it said.

A few days later, a Chinese Foreign Ministry statement, taking a sour look at the meeting in India between Soviet Premier Alexi N. Kosygin and U.S. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, suggested Moscow as cowardly.

"If a Socialist country dare not sternly denounce the heinous crimes or expose the U.S. peace talks fraud, it has not only lost its class feeling, but forfeited all sense of justice. Cowards are worse than brutes," the statement said.

Chen Yi, in his interview two weeks ago, noted that "some people"—his favorite epithet for the Soviet leaders—had spread word that China had isolated herself by rejecting offers of united action on Viet Nam.

But, retorted the Chinese, the Soviet leadership is not heart and soul with world revolution. Rather, they say, Moscow aids Viet Nam "for ulterior motives, to control the Viet Nam situation and bring it into the orbit of U.S.-Soviet collaboration." The Russians, says Peking, are afraid to fight.

"Of course," said Chen Yi, "there are some people who, out of ulterior motives, have described my words as 'excessively tough.' They are obsessed with the idea of peaceful coexistence with the U.S. aggressors, whereas I said a resolute struggle must be waged against the U.S. policy of aggression. So how can they feel that my words are 'excessively tough?'"

Real Progress Shown With New Aid Program

ANY MSU STUDENT who is a state resident can now receive financial aid if the necessity exists.

The value of this new policy cannot be underestimated. Earning power and achievement are closely connected with the amount of education one receives. The story of the bright young man who must settle for a job in a factory but who could have been a good engineer is so common that it can almost be classified a cliché. But it's true and each case presents a new tragedy. Thanks to this new program, this story need not take place in Michigan.

SO MANY PEOPLE come to college to play that the importance of the education is sometimes lost. But ask someone who dropped out of college, or who never attended but could have. Ask him how important a college education is.

Frustration is only surpassed by resentment in the man who has no degree and has been on the job for a dozen years. He must watch the young man straight from college get the promotion he had long been eyeing.

FROM A PURELY PRACTICAL point of view, college education is money. If every student with ability is helped through college, the work he performs might bring to the economy many-fold the expense of his education.

From a more idealistic view, a college education teaches one to think. It exposes him to cultural opportunities possibly not found at home. It makes him a better citizen, an asset to his community.

FURTHERMORE, THE FUTURE of our way of life depends on the brains and initiative of our people. The Communist nations are in a technological race with us. America must use every natural resource available. Letting someone who has the desire and ability to be a nuclear physicist work on an assembly line because he cannot afford an education is a criminal waste both to him and the nation.

MSU is the first public state college to promise an education to all qualified state residents. Other schools should follow suit, especially in states where the number of lower income people is high.

IT WILL BE THE AMERICAN Dream come true if someday ability, not just financial resources, becomes the major determinant of who receives a college education.

GOP Still Alive Despite Ferency's Forecast Of Doom

ZOLTON FERENCY, CHAIRMAN of the Democratic State Central Committee, made some remarkable remarks here Sunday. One of his most astounding comments was the "non-partisan" prediction of doom for the Republican party.

It appears to us that Ferency was a bit over-zealous in his assessment of the American political scene. By asserting that the GOP was on the brink of disappearing as a major political force, he assumed more than any other political figure has been willing to admit.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY has had its problems in the last year or so and retains many of them in its efforts to unite its ranks. But this is not to say it is on the brink of disappearing. Most of the "disaster" which occurred in 1964 can be traced to the unique pairing of Barry Goldwater and Lyndon Johnson in the presidential election.

Throughout American history, both the Republican and Democratic parties have endured periods of stinging defeat at the ballot box. But always they have managed to recover and come back to win another day.

IN THE EARLY PART of this century the Republican party clearly dominated, but a drastic change in the national well-being altered all this. Who can say where the balance of power may lie if the sudden change in the national or international situation occurred?

RECENT HISTORY HAS also told us that in off-year congressional elections, the party of the outs almost always makes sizable gains. This may well prove true this year, as the nation grows more impatient with the situation in Viet Nam. Also, many of the marginal or Republican districts won by Democrats in 1964 with the help of LBJ's broad coattails will be most vulnerable.

So, Mr. Ferency, though the GOP received a staggering blow in 1964 and is still struggling, it is not dead. Far from it.

One Job Is Enough

PRESIDENT JOHNSON FINALLY decided that two jobs for one man entails too much work—even for Sargent Shriver. At least that was the implication given when the President appointed Jack Hood Vaughn to take over Shriver's duties as director of the Peace Corps.

This leaves Shriver to now devote all his time to directing the War on Poverty. Shriver has done an outstanding job with the Peace Corps since its adoption in 1961. But it is doubtful that any man, even Shriver, could do justice to both the Peace Corps and anti-poverty programs.

FOR MONTHS NOW, Republican members of Congress have urged President Johnson to choose the program he wanted Shriver to head and appoint someone else to direct the other. They asserted that both programs were suffering with Shriver trying to direct both.

Though LBJ wouldn't publicly agree or admit to this, it certainly seems implicit in his decision. It has become evident in the last year that the anti-poverty program needs full-time leadership.

THERE HAVE DEFINITELY been problems at the local levels of execution and constant bickering among politicians in urban areas. And it faces future financial problems, as many congressmen are intent on shaving costs with the rising expense of fighting the war in Viet Nam.

It appears to us that the President made the right decision in appointing Shriver to head the anti-poverty program—even if a little pride was swallowed.

BESIDES, THE DECISION is somewhat in keeping with the Supreme Court's one man-one vote apportionment rule. Except this time it's one man-one job.

Dynamic, Huh!

OUR READERS SPEAK

MSU Learned Lesson

To the Editor:

I found myself rather irritated by the letter which appeared in your column of Jan. 17 entitled "Faculty Committee Discredited?" in which Richard Trilling inaccurately claims that Dean Nonnamaker "reversed (the Williams' committee's) twice-taken decision." He goes on to say that this shows the administration does not value the opinion of the Williams' committee and that the readmission of Schiff is a "sort of slap in the face" to this committee.

Trilling seems to ignore the obvious fact that the Williams' committee was never asked to decide whether Schiff should be readmitted in the future. They were asked to review the past events and decide if the administration's action taken in the fall was proper. It is fallacious to say that the present readmission of Schiff is a reversal of a decision which was concerned only with the administration's past actions.

The question may be raised as to whether the Williams' committee should have been consulted on the present readmission in light of its past involvement in the case. It seems apparent that the administration has, by this readmission, wisely avoided a court decision on their immature charges against Schiff. This action was the first intelligent one taken by the administration since the start of this case, and any views which the Williams' committee may have on it would seem to be superfluous. Since the Williams' committee unwisely concurred in the original denial of admission, it may be safe to assume that its opinion is not to be valued too highly anyway.

It seems to me that probably everything to be said about this case has already been said, and unless any new facts come to light, the best thing to do is to hope that the administration has learned a lesson and to wish Paul Schiff a Happy New Year!

Riled By Textbook 'Racket'

To the Editor:

I'd like to register a word of complaint concerning the college textbook racket. Now, I'm not going to complain about the bookstores here in East Lansing. I feel that they are being victimized almost as much as the students.

What I want to complain about is the teachers who put together several hundred pages of word salad and then after a few months change the cover, or perhaps the order of chapters, in order that we cannot sell what is now the "old" edition, and new students are forced to buy the "new" edition.

Furthermore, I'd like to point out an even more insidious device that came to my attention this term. It is a textbook, an average size paperback, mind you, that is approximately one-third full of BLANK PAGES on which the students are to write their papers for the course. This sounds harmless enough, but this little gem sells for $5.65.

The author of this book happens to be one of our finer English professors, but no largely blank paperback book is worth that kind of money. Needless to say, the writing in this book keeps it from being bought back by the bookstores. At the rate of approximately 500 people per term, this would represent quite a nice little bundle for our teacher.

Multiply this by all the similar devices and all the teachers who use them that I don't even know about, and it's enough to stagger the imagination.

University 'Bland'

To the Editor:

We are attending a university which is teaching us how to live in the paradoxical real world. Our great school professes to be above the level of a trade school because it supposedly teaches us about the beauty of life and the world, while also teaching us concern for our fellow man.

They say example is the best teacher so let us take a look at what we are given. We are presented with bland buildings and an administration to match. The only beauty we find on campus is a legacy from previous administrations. Creative ideas flow only from certain faculty, students, campus visitors and a very limited number of administrative personnel, who seem very out of place.

The only concern shown for our fellow human being is when he is miles away in the South or Viet Nam. Again the only voice heard is the students' voices and faculties'. Not only are these the only people heard, but the administration by its very silence supports those proponents of prejudice and urges apathy on the part of others.

The Tale Of MSU, CIA, Viet Affair

It had to happen sooner or later. MSU has been accused of lots of things, called many names. But they all fade into the background when compared to this one: MSU and one of its professors have been accused of fronting for the Central Intelligence Agency in Viet Nam.

The accusations have come from Robert Scheer, a staff writer for Ramparts magazine. In a widely distributed booklet, Scheer has claimed that the MSU Advisory Program in Viet Nam and Wesley R. Fishel have participated in devious tasks with the CIA.

In the hope of getting to the root of the matter, I went to see Fishel. Fully expecting concealed microphones, one-way mirrors and electric eyes, I cautiously entered his office in Berkeley Hall. Instead of meeting a sinister character wearing a cloak and carrying a dagger, I was greeted by a friendly professor.

I asked Fishel point-blank whether he and MSU were indeed a front for the CIA. His brow furrowed. He asked where I had gotten the notion. I told him of the pamphlet Scheer had written.

He said that Scheer's accusations were without basis. He explained that neither he nor the program was at any time involved in undercover work. He pointed to several green volumes on the top row of his bookshelves. "That," he said, "is the full record of the work of the MSU project. It's all public record."

Fishel then pointed out several passages in Scheer's booklet that were misquotes and wrong information.

He also mentioned that Scheer was not the first to accuse him of playing cloak-and-dagger. The John Birch Society was onto him too.

The MSU program was set up in 1954 at the request of South Viet Nam to help with the administrative details involved in setting up a new government. The four-pronged program included work in the areas of public administration, public information, police administration, and economics.

Fishel headed the public administration and public safety sector of the program from 1956 to 1958. He also served as consultant on governmental reorganization for the U.S. government. A personal friend of Vietnamese leader Ngo Dinh Diem, he served as Diem's advisor for several years. His friendship with Diem was terminated in 1962 when he criticized Diem for losing touch with the people of Viet Nam and their needs. Also, Fishel felt that Diem was not adequately meeting the Communist threat.

In the early days of U.S. aid to Viet Nam, relations between the U.S. government and that of Viet Nam were strained. For awhile Fishel was the principal link between Prime Minister Diem and the American ambassador. Although much of his work was highly classified, he was at no time connected with the CIA or any other intelligence agency.

Today Fishel is chairman of the board of the American Friends of Viet Nam, a voluntary national organization devoted to the idea of a free, independent Viet Nam.

Although Fishel has been connected with Viet Nam for many years and has done much valuable work there, it doesn't appear as if any of his work will ever be the basis for a James Bond novel.

North Vietnamese End Tour

TOKYO (AP) -- A North Vietnamese economic delegation returned to Hanoi after visiting nine Communist countries, Radio Hanoi said Wednesday. The broadcast said the delegation, led by Vice Premier Le Thanh Nghi, visited Communist China, the Soviet Union, Hungary, East Germany, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Bulgaria and North Korea. In Eastern Europe the delegation signed agreements for new economic aid. Some East-bloc nations agreed to postpone payment of debts owed them by Hanoi.

Sukarno Gaining Support

SINGAPORE (AP) -- Radio Jakarta announced Wednesday that President Sukarno is getting a public show of support Thursday from his Cabinet ministers and the four chiefs of the Indonesian armed forces. The station, which fell under army control with frustration last October, said the declarations of these officials will be made public at the presidential palace in Jakarta.

Soviets May Try For Space Records

MOSCOW (UPI) -- Izvestia hinted Wednesday night the Soviet Union is preparing for a new space flight that will break America's endurance records. The newspaper told how crews of three men or more are training for "long-range flights" lasting almost a month. The article, written by a military journalist who actually took part in the training, was vaguely worded and gave no clue when the flight is planned.

Air Force Launches Satellite

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (UPI) -- The Air Force Wednesday launched a satellite toward orbit in another of its long series of shots from this missile and space base. In a typical brief one-line release, the Air Force said only the launch employed an Atlas booster with an Agena vehicle as the second stage. The 12:03 p.m. PST launch presumably was successful, but there was no indication whether the satellite achieved orbit.

Michigan's Draft Quota 2,800

LANSING (UPI) -- Michigan's February draft call was set today at 2,800 by the State Selective Service headquarters, a drop of 500 men from last month's order. However, Col. Arthur Holmes, state Selective Service director, said it is likely the draft calls will continue at a high level because of the Defense Department's announcement this week of a need for 113,000 men this year to help meet the military needs caused by the Viet Nam war.

"It is unfortunate that the New York transit strike developed like it did," he said.

"The purpose is not to send people to jail. The purpose is to get people back to work."

Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union, one of 129 AFL-CIO unions, went to jail briefly under New York's Condon-Wadlin law, a state statute that makes illegal any strike of public employees.

Most labor leaders feel that any law forbidding strikes encourages management negotiators to sit back and wait for the state or federal government to prevent a strike.

"AND I TELL YOU, MY FRIENDS" -- State Democratic Central Committee chairman Zolton Ferency addressed the Young Democrats in Old College Hall. Ferency spoke to the club Tuesday night. Photo by Tony Ferrante

Ferency Says Admitting Poverty Is Step Forward

The United States has admitted, for the first time in its history, that it has poverty in its midst, Zolton Ferency, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Michigan, told the Young Democrats Tuesday.

Whether or not we approve of the way the program is being handled, he said, we must recognize that this declaration is a step forward. "We have propagandized that this is the land of milk and honey," he continued, "however, since the time of F.D.R., when one-third of the nation's people were ill-housed, ill-clothed and ill-fed, we have not progressed very far. Today one-fourth of the people are still ill-housed, ill-clothed and ill-fed."

Now, Ferency said, the nation has declared as a matter of policy that it wants to do something to elevate certain segments of our population to higher levels of living. Regarding the Viet Nam policy Ferency said, "I'm not sure anyone can take a political position on the Viet Nam situation now. We must wait until the peace attempt by the Johnson administration can be weighed and evaluated. "I'm glad," he added, "that the bombing in North Viet Nam has stopped."

Speaking about the coming election, Ferency said, "If the campaign is geared to appeal to sentiment, emotion and fear, instead of intelligence, those elected will drift on as they have been. "The tendency to pick a candidate because of the image he presents on the screen is not good," he continued. "We must ask the public to look beyond the image to the campaigner's principles and beliefs."

Hannah Gets
Service Award

John A. Hannah, president of the University, received the 1965 Community Service Award of the Greater Lansing Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening. The award, presented at the chamber's 54th annual banquet meeting, is given each year to a local civic leader for services outside his profession. Edward G. Hacker, Lansing real estate broker who presented the citation, noted Hannah's contributions to his country. Hannah has been selected by four Presidents to serve on national committees.

Hannah told the 600 diners who attended the meeting in the Lansing Civic Center that nothing "has pleased me more than to be honored by citizens of my own community."

Cong Raid Mars Lull

SAIGON (AP)--Misgivings about continuance of President Johnson's peace offensive were evident in Saigon Thursday even as the lunar new year's eve brought the promise of another short-term lull in the Vietnamese war. Savagery of a Viet Cong attack on a refugee camp for 2,000 Vietnamese early Wednesday cast a shadow over holiday celebrations.

Thirty-three persons were killed, 54 wounded and nine men kidnapped in the predawn raid on the outskirts of Tam Ky, a provincial capital 350 miles northwest of Saigon. The guerrillas mangled bodies of the dead, set thatched huts afire and scattered leaflets denouncing U.S. operations as a "dirty war of aggression against the people of Viet Nam."

According to the best available information, high-level thinking within the U.S. Embassy and military was in line with a belief of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky that a stepped-up war effort is the only logical hope of getting the Communists to a conference table.

Reliable sources said Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was among Americans who would like to see heavy aid raids resumed against North Viet Nam just as soon as the lunar new year holidays end next week. The suspension of these raids was in its 27th day.

The White House position is that the question of possible resumption of the bombings "is a matter for continual review and assessment." Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers emphasized that in commenting in Washington on a published report that Johnson had promised British Prime Minister Harold Wilson he would continue the bombing pause until after Wilson's trip to Moscow late in February.

Whatever the outlook for the long haul, the Viet Cong proclaimed a four-day cease-fire for the holidays.

Fallen Hawks Face 'Revenge' Meet With Cagers Saturday

By BOB HORNING
State News Sports Writer

Two weeks ago, Iowa was riding high in the basketball world. But since then the Hawkeyes have lost three of four games and must be muttering to themselves as they prepare for Saturday's game with Michigan State.

Iowa won its first eight games of the season and was ranked fourth in the nation. But then something happened. Iowa's first loss came to eighth ranked Texas Western, 86-68, in the Sun Bowl Tournament.

Then came the Big 10 conference and Hawkeye coach Ralph Miller thought his boys were ready. "Our loss to Texas Western will make us a better team," Miller said. "Actually, we needed this defeat and had been asking for it for four weeks. The team had been winning on form and had not produced its best basketball consistently."

But apparently they weren't ready. Lowly-rated Wisconsin upset the Hawkeyes on the first night of the Big 10 season, 69-68. In their next game, Iowa came back to beat Northwestern, 70-58, in the last few minutes, and Miller was satisfied with their performance.

Indiana was next for Iowa, another team not expected to be troublesome. Indiana won, 73-61.

So where does Iowa go from here?

Michigan State Coach John Benington says, "We will have to wait and wonder. It can go two ways--either it will make Iowa tougher or put too much pressure on them to make a comeback."

Benington said it will definitely shake Iowa's confidence, especially since it was the pre-season pick to win the conference title. However, he said they did deserve their pre-league ranking since Michigan and Minnesota were losing regularly.

Iowa has all of its regulars from last year returning except for guard Jimmy Rodgers. Rodgers averaged 12 points a game and was the second leading rebounder on the team.

Senior Chris Pervall is the team's leading scorer with a 18.3 average for the first 11 games. Last year the 6-2 guard was also the Hawkeye's leading scorer with a 21.7 average.

Benington figures that Pervall is the player of whom the Spartans have to be most cautious of. "When he has played poorly, Iowa has lost."

George Peoples, the 6-7 center, is second on the team in both scoring and rebounding, with 17.0 and 11.1 per game averages, respectively. He is the most active and agile center State will have faced this year, and is back man on the Hawkeye press.

Another man up front, 6-4 Gerry Jones, whom Benington calls their most consistent player, is the team's leading rebounder with 126. Jones is averaging 16.6 points per game.

Captain Dennis Pauling, at guard, and 6-5 senior Gary Olson round out the starters. Olson has a 8.7 average, and Pauling 5.0.

Like MSU, Iowa is a defense-

The NEWS In SPORTS

mind team, and Benington expects a low-scoring game because "we can't force them to change their game."

But Benington said that an important reason for their frequent low scores is that Miller will send his players into a semi-stall near the end of the game to protect a lead.

Miller, like Benington, is a former Missouri Valley Conference coach where "defense is the name of the game." So far this season, Iowa has limited its opponents to an average of 66 points a game while averaging 80 points themselves.

Last year, the Spartans didn't fare too well against Iowa. In the first game, at East Lansing, State lost, 85-78. Then a week later, at Iowa, the Spartans were humiliated, 111-68.

So both teams will have something working for them. The State players from last year will certainly remember the beating by the Hawkeyes, and hope to atone for it.

Iowa knows it must win Saturday to get back in the conference race, and there is no better way than to knock off the leader.

Spartan Skaters' Spirits Up For Hockey Set With Duluth

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

Spartan hockey players will tell you that games are won in practice and they mean it.

"We've been having good practices this week," said center Sandy McAndrew as he watched the freshmen team go through its daily workouts. "It's probably been the best we've had all season. We'll be a different team out there this weekend."

Stunned by a two-game loss to Minnesota last weekend, the Spartan skaters have been working intensively since Monday to regain some of their lost pride. They face Minnesota-Duluth Friday and Saturday in another two-game set which will be their last one at the Ice Arena.

After that, State has only two home games remaining in the schedule before the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. Playoff, March 3-5. The skaters play Michigan here Feb. 4 and 26.

"I told them early this week that they're playing on pride," said a stern Spartan Coach Amo Bessone, whose squad owns a dismal 3-7 record in the WCHA. "We can't possibly get the league title now. Our big mark is for that March 3 date."

Stirred by their coach's words, the Spartans have gone through their paces as if the league title did hinge on the next two games. Every player, from the team's top scorer to the bench-riding sophomore, has given his best to prove that State is better than its record shows.

"The way we were skating Tuesday in practice," said Bessone, "we could have beaten anybody in the league. We're starting to think hockey now."

Apparently, changes in the Spartans' three lines were also a reason for the team's lifted spirits. Bessone left his No. 3 line intact, with McAndrew at center, but switched forwards in his other two lines. He said it made a difference.

MIKE COPPO

At one line, center Tom Mikola will team up with wings Doug Volmar and Nino Cristofoli. Volmar has been the team's top goal getter this season, leading the WCHA in scoring with 11 goals and five assists. He was held scoreless against Minnesota last weekend.

The other line change came by switching Co-Captain Mike Coppo from wing to center where he will join forces with Bob Fallat and Doug French or Paul Meyer.

Coppo is the team's second leading scorer with seven goals and seven assists while French has been alternating positions as a wing, or defenseman. Meyer just recently broke into the Spartan roster after clearing up some eligibility problems.

'M' MEET BIG CHALLENGE Genova's Progress Holds Tank Hopes

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

In the past, State's swim team has been able to provide perennial powers, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio State with formidable competition--in the swimming events.

With an eye to Friday's big meet with the Michigan Wolverines, who scored a 62-61 upset of Indiana last weekend, the big mystery concerning the tank squad is: "Has Ken Genova's diving improved sufficiently to give the Spartans a chance against U-M?"

Most observers say, "No."

Diving Coach John Narcy says, "Who knows?"

"By no stretch of the imagination should Ken beat Michigan's divers--but he might," Narcy said. "Last year, I would never have thought that he could perform the way he did last Saturday."

Genova and his teammate Fred Whiteford placed 1-2 in the diving events against Northwestern and Iowa State.

Most Big Ten divers are high school state champs. Genova was 12th in the state at Ann Arbor High and wasn't even given a college offer. "If I had been recruiting when Ken was in high school, I wouldn't have looked at him," Narcy said.

One of Genova's greatest drawbacks in developing into a Big Ten diver was not having a regular diving coach to instruct him.

Narcy was hired as a full-time coach last spring. He served part-time as a grad assistant last season. "Ken's freshman year was wasted, as he didn't have a coach. Though I worked with him as a grad assistant last year, even this wasn't the ideal situation," said Narcy.

Lack of a coach was only one of the junior diver's problems. Lack of natural talent and a minor physical impairment had to be overcome. Hard work was the answer.

Genova did not have the finesse so important for "pretty dives." A broken ankle made the all-important pointing of the toes nearly impossible.

"Besides diving, trampolining was used for mechanics. Ken did ankle and toe exercises and physical conditioning on his own time," said Narcy. "His timing and rhythm has greatly improved."

"When I first saw Ken dive, I thought I had a diver with no ability. Fortunately he has proven me wrong," he said.

Another reason for Genova's rapid improvement as a diver is the presence of junior college transfer Fred Whiteford and high school All-Americans Doug Todd and Duane Green.

"Whiteford gives Ken someone to compete with in practice. In fact, one of these weeks, Fred is going to have his day," said Narcy.

Narcy sees the freshmen as a great help to Genova. "Ken is a junior, and he knows he is going to have to work hard to keep his job next year."

Genova credits his improvement, "Narcy's been a great help. I never would have come as far along as I have without his help."

Genova is anxious about swimming in his home town, Friday. "The last time I was there, I gave a very bad showing," said Genova. "Fred and I are going to show those people that Michigan State has more than it ever had before."

'S' Fencers Face WSU Tonight

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

Michigan State's fencing team opens its season against Wayne State at 7:30 tonight in the Men's IM sports arena.

Coach Charles Schmitter is suffering a case of "opening-night jitters" but believe he's got a good team this year.

But so does Wayne State.

"We have the best balance since the championship team of 1963," Schmitter said. "Mark Haskell and Mel Laska are neck and neck for first place in sabre with Charlie Baer a strong third. Our foil team doesn't have the dropping - off point between second and third man like we've had in recent years."

"Our epee unit is significantly stronger," he said.

Schmitter is almost equally lavish with praise for the Wayne State team. "Wayne is tough," he said. "That's all you can say."

"They have an excellent coach, and they nearly always manage to place well in the national meet," he said. "We'll be very happy if we can beat them."

Bus Rate Reduced

Lansing Suburban Bus Lines announced a 10-cent decrease in rates for students Tuesday.

Michael Walsh, president of the Off-Campus Council, said that beginning Monday, Jan. 24, student commuters would no longer have to pay the 25-cent bus rate.

The reduced rate, effective at least until Feb. 28, will enable students to commute for 15 cents. Students will be asked to show their I.D. cards to receive the discount, which is effective at any time the buses are running. Transfers will remain at five cents.

the universe is your oyster at AC

Today's challenge at AC--the universe! As a member of the AC team, you'll be in the vanguard of men working to advance the state of the art of guidance and navigation. You'll work in research, design and development on such advanced projects as an avionics system for supersonic aircraft, a guidance system for the Titan III space launch vehicle, guidance/navigation systems for Apollo and advanced fire control systems.

Step up to the challenge, and move up with AC. Your opportunities for growth and advancement depend on your ability and initiative. AC offers "in-plant" courses covering both technical and management preparation. A Tuition Plan pays your tuition costs when you complete college-level courses. In addition, you enjoy full General Motors benefits.

If you are completing your advanced degree in EE, ME, Math or Physics, we invite you to inquire about opportunities at any of our three locations: AC in MILWAUKEE--our Main Research, Development and Manufacturing Facility; AC in BOSTON--our Research and Development Laboratory specializing in Advanced Inertial Components and Avionics Navigation/Guidance Systems; AC in LOS ANGELES--our Research and Development Laboratory specializing in Advanced Airborne Computers, and Ballistic Missile and Space Booster Guidance/Navigation Systems.

PhD's, please note: Positions are available in all three AC locations for PhD's, depending upon concentration of study and area of interest.

Trustees Accept
2 Million In Grants

Gifts and grants totaling $2,120,632.75 were accepted Wednesday by Michigan State University's Board of Trustees. Included was a grant for $567,400 from the National Science Foundation (NSF) to be used in the cyclotron laboratory.

Henry G. Blosser, professor of physics and astronomy, and director of the cyclotron laboratory, will administer the grant.

In five continuous years of support, the NSF has granted more than $3 million for use in the MSU cyclotron laboratory. The cyclotron performed its first operation last February and was operated at full capacity for the first time last December.

Peter G. Haines, professor of secondary education and curriculum, will administer a grant of $181,489 from the United States Office of Education. The funds provide for a research and development program in vocational technical education.

The U.S. Office of Education also granted $118,215 for stipends to 30 teachers of secondary education who will attend a 10-month Counseling and Guidance Training Institute at MSU. The institute will be conducted by the Department of Counseling, Personnel Services and Educational Psychology. Norman Stewart, assistant professor, will administer the grant.

Research and training at the graduate and post-doctoral level in experimental plant biology will be carried out under a $100,000 grant from the Atomic Energy Commission of Washington, D.C. The emphasis will be on developmental plant biology. Anton Lang, director of the MSU Atomic Energy Commission Plant Research Laboratory, will direct the grant.

The James and Lynelle Holden fund of Detroit made a gift of $100,000 to be used for some University purpose as approved by President John Hannah. Holden is an alumnus who graduated in 1893.

Lee S. Shulman, assistant professor in the Department of Counseling, Personnel Services and Educational Psychology, will administer two grants from the United States Office of Education. A study of inquiry patterns of students in teacher training programs will be made under one grant of $78,310. The other grant amounts to $39,828, and will be used in a program of vocational development of mentally retarded adolescents.

The board also accepted grants for scholarships totaling $24,070.22.

When Research Efforts Flop

By GEORGE TAYLOR
State News Staff Writer

What happens to the widely publicized, large-scale research projects that fail to produce results?

If stated goals are not met, the unused money will be diverted to a more promising research project, said David Clark, assistant to the vice president for research and development.

About 90 per cent of the grants awarded to MSU usually go to a particular faculty member who initiated the project, and are used by that staff member, Clark said. The grant or contract is usually made public when the University actually receives the money, he said.

A grant is a very flexible agreement between the investigator and his sponsor.

"The grant is awarded to encourage, support and assist an investigator to accomplish a research goal, but there is a certain amount of freedom," Clark said.

If progress leads the investigator in a more beneficial direction, he can easily divert his efforts toward the new goal. This allows him to accomplish more for money originally awarded than might be possible if the investigator were restricted as he would be in a contract.

"If what is stated does not fulfill the proposal," he continued, "this places the investigator in a poor light, and he probably would not have an opportunity to receive funds in the future."

If the person in charge discontinues the research project, the money is usually turned over to a replacement to continue the work, he said.

If this is not possible, the grant is cancelled and the unused money is returned to the program's backers, he explained.

Most grants and contracts awarded to MSU are not concerned with developing a consumer product, but are awards for pioneering new technology which, in the hands of industry, would aid in producing consumer goods, Clark noted.

Contrary to some opinions, communication between universities and industry is quite good, Clark said.

"I don't think there is any block or slowing of communication. The research being supported by grants will be published as rapidly as the investigator completes the project," he said.

"In fact, he is obligated to do this. The information is usually transmitted very rapidly to industry, either through written communication or orally. Furthermore, there are groups on campus designed to increase communication between industry and academic departments."

Many times a research project will produce a number of results. Although the findings are widely publicized, however, there is often little change in the way particular problems are handled, Clark went on.

"For instance, in the area of traffic safety, if we could afford to put into effect many of the measures which would promote highway safety," he said, "it would be done as soon as the information is available."

"The information may be available to the communities where there is a problem." But, "The greater difficulty is in finding funds to implement some of the possible solutions," he said.

DEGAULLE'S SCANDAL

Secret Service Shifted

PARIS (AP)—President Charles De Gaulle shook up the French secret service Wednesday because of the unsolved kidnapping of a Moroccan leftist leader has been murdered.

The case broke Oct. 29 when Mehdi Ben Barka, chief of leftist opposition to King Hassan II of Morocco, was kidnapped in Paris. He has not been seen since, and presumably has been murdered.

It first appeared to be a case of Moroccans settling scores on French soil. Then it was disclosed that two French police officers were involved in the abduction. The trail led into police headquarters and into the secret service.

De Gaulle, reported by informed sources to be enraged at police complicity and distressed at the diplomatic implications, ordered the security shakeup which was announced after a Cabinet meeting.

The secret service, concentrated on counterespionage, was transferred from Premier Georges Pompidou's direct responsibility. It now will report to the Ministry of Defense, its chief, Gen. Paul Jacquier, is being retired. A cabinet spokesman said Jacquier already was overage, but it seemed clear the Ben Barka case was responsible for the retirement.

From its outset—a daylight kidnapping on the Left Bank—through rumors of police plotting, a presumed murder and one declared suicide, the Ben Barka case has been splashed on the front pages of French newspapers.

France officially terms it "a criminal undertaking organized from outside our country," but admits French secret service agents assisted.

And it has strained relations between France and Morocco. Mohamed Oufkir, Moroccan interior minister, has been asked to come to Paris to aid in the investigation.

Although he has denied any complicity in the kidnapping, Oufkir concedes he was in Paris that day. He has thus far declined France's invitation to return.

One self-styled witness to the affair was found shot to death in his apartment Monday night. He was Georges Figon, a one-time criminal who claimed he had been in the villa where Ben Barka is supposed to have been taken. Figon said Ben Barka was stabbed, implying he was killed, and told reporters he had seen Oufkir in the villa.

Police said they were on the lookout for Figon but could not find him, although the magazine Match published pictures this week of Figon walking past police headquarters.

Then came the news that police had closed in on his apartment, heard a shot and when they finally got in, found him dead.

Some informed sources speculate that Ben Barka was done away with by persons who wanted to prevent his return to Morocco. According to these sources Ben Barka had largely settled his differences with King Hassan and was going back as leader of the opposition. Ben Barka was chairman of the preparatory committee for the pro-Communist tri-continental conference that closed in Havana last week.

Some sources said they are convinced that French police and secret service aid was given on a low level and not with the knowledge of high officials.

ASMSU Judges Tour A Success

The ASMSU-sponsored Rose Bowl trip was an overall success, but was not the least expensive tour, Glen Harmon, Milwaukee, Wis., senior and student tour chairman, told the Student Board Tuesday night.

The tour was a financial success, he said.

Transportation kept as accurate a schedule as possible, according to Harmon. There were a number of complaints about chartered planes leaving several hours late.

He suggested that future tours include more experienced personnel from the travel bureau organizing the tour.

"Concerning accommodations, the majority of the hotels did a good job in helping the students enjoy their West Coast stay," Harmon said in his report.

He said there were only two complaints of inadequate accommodations.

The ASMSU-sponsored trip was not the most inexpensive plan, Harmon said, but added that few of the other tours were as successful.

The side tours of Disneyland, Universal Studios and Beverly Hills also were not provided at the best rates available, as students on the tour were told, he said.

Anticipate Rhodesian Downfall

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—The African leader of the parliamentary opposition in Rhodesia predicted Wednesday rebel Premier Ian D. Smith's breakaway regime might fall "at any moment."

Joseph Gondo, leader of the United Peoples party, would not say, however, how he thought Smith would be ousted from office.

"I have always believed in methods that are constitutional and avoid violence and killing," Gondo told United Press International in an interview.

"I don't think we have reached the stage where any country is prepared to take action from outside,"

Gondo said he believed the economic sanctions against Rhodesia—which include an embargo on oil—were beginning to bite.

"But one cannot say whether they will be sufficient in themselves to bring the present regime to its knees. If they continue and are intensified I do not think this country will survive," he said.

An indication the sanctions were beginning to hurt worse than Smith would publicly admit came from sources close to the oil industry.

The sources predicted further gasoline restrictions will be announced in the next few weeks with the possibility the present ration will be cut in half. The government announced Tuesday gasoline would no longer be supplied for holiday purposes.

6 Million Empties Bottle Up Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — Six million empty champagne bottles are swamping the Soviet Republic of Uzbekistan.

Plans to ship the bottles to neighboring Kazakhstan were vetoed by the Kazakhs. Plans to freight them all the way to the far eastern island of Sakhalin were squelched by railway officials who said it would take 600 cars to do the job.

The trouble began several years ago when Uzbek restaurants and champagne bottlers refused to accept empties, on grounds they had no place to store them, the newspaper Izvestia reported Wednesday.

Slowly, the unwanted bottles piled up. At the Tashkent Hotel alone, 50,000 of them are lying around. In all of Tashkent, there are 300,000 empties, costing $56,000, and, in the entire republic, six million bottles worth about $1.1 million.

The problem has gone to the Uzbek cabinet and to the trade ministry, which started the trouble in the first place by proclaiming the no-returns policy.

U.S. Help Needed By Asia

America must form a definite policy to help the people of Asia and then define that policy for the people of both the United States and the world, a Chicago Daily News correspondent to the Far East said here Tuesday.

Albert Ravenholt, a correspondent and an American Universities Field Service representative who recently returned from Viet Nam, said there are two main objectives the United States must strive for in Viet Nam.

First, he said, the United States must realize the needs of individual Asians and concentrate our efforts with them.

Second, America must form establishments to help us work more closely with the people of Southeast Asia.

"The governments in Asia do not always do the right things for the common people with American funds and supplies," Ravenholt said.

In analyzing American involvement in Southeast Asia, the correspondent said our biggest involvement is in Viet Nam, where we have not only an embassy but also close to 200,000 fighting men.

The U.S. has become steadily more involved in Laos, Ravenholt told the audience.

"We have stepped up our economic aid and private American ventures are being established there," he said.

Relations with Cambodia are slowly being closed out, Ravenholt said, because of anti-U.S. sentiment regarding the situation in Viet Nam.

Thailand is one country where the U.S. has made a major effort to build up the economic and military strength.

"Most of the bombing missions over North Viet Nam originate in Thailand, and we have quite a few troops committed to that nation," Ravenholt said.

He called Thailand one of the most advanced countries in Southeast Asia because of their established monarchy and because Buddhism serves as a "social comment."

America has little to do with Burma, and our relations with Indonesia have cooled considerably in the last few years.

Garbage Settlement

sponsibility for the operation of the landfill and will keep the necessary cost records in order that there may be accurate billing to the University," May told the board.

According to May the refuse from the bigger dorms and Kellogg Center during the weekends is too much for the present system to handle without the University paying overtime costs to the city to keep the landfill site covered.

"Under the present system the runs made from the dorms and Kellogg Center to the site are necessary Saturday afternoon when the dump is closed since we have no means of storing the rubbish until Monday morning," he said.

He said the purchase of new equipment would help eliminate the overtime payments now necessary to keep the site sanitariously covered.

The present system of rubbish collection, according to Burt Ferris, superintendent of grounds maintenance, consists of one packer-type truck which must be loaded manually and three load-luggers.

The load-luggers must go to each place where rubbish is collected, such as the dorms, and pick up the green rectangular rubbish receptacles, chain them to the truck and make a run to the sanitary landfill to dump them.

Ferris said two new packer-type trucks, which operate automatically to pick up the receptacle, dump the rubbish in the truck and compress the rubbish with a hydraulic press, would save a great deal of time and money.

MASS TESTING

TB Offensive Set

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A task force plans such mass testing for tuberculosis in public schools next year that it hopes a whole generation of school children can grow up without the disease.

"Tuberculin testing of first-graders will be made for the first time," said Richard Larkin of the Communicable Disease Center's information office.

"But chiefly, we hope to prevent children from being infected by others," Larkin said.

"We hope to prevent such a situation as developed this week in Detroit," said Dr. Alfonso Holguin, chief of the CDC's tuberculosis branch.

Health authorities in Detroit Tuesday reported 15 children who attended the same suburban nursery are hospitalized with tuberculosis.

An investigation revealed that the source of the infection was a woman teacher at the nursery who had had tuberculosis and thought herself cured.

"This type of incident," said Holguin, "is not really occurring more frequently than in the past. Rather, such incidents are being simply reported better. Public health officials are more vigilant in tracking down such cases."

Approximately 30 million persons in the United States are infected with tuberculosis, said Larkin. "It's in their body, but this does not mean they have the disease."

He said of the new cases reported each year, about 75 per cent come from this group.

"The germ often becomes active under some other stress or disease of the body," Larkin said.

However, new cases of tuberculosis have declined steadily in this country since 1953, with the exception of a slight increase in 1963.

Debaters Top Scoring, But

The University of Detroit took first place in the Third Annual Spartan Invitational Debate Tournament held here Saturday.

MSU debaters Jim Hudek, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, senior; and Dick Brautigam, Albion sophomore, amassed 922 speaker points to lead the field of 92 teams; but since MSU was host, they were ineligible for trophies.

Hudek and Brautigam had the highest totals in the individual speaker ratings; but Iowa State's Ned Stockdale, Albion College's David Landsburg and Detroit's Steve Kempinski took the trophies.

Seating Limited As 'Lovers' Open

The box office opens 12:30 p.m. Monday for "The Lovers," the first arena theater production for the winter term.

A character comedy, "The Lovers" will run Tuesday through Saturday in the arena theater in Fairchild and then go on tour to the dormitories. The curtain rises at 8 p.m.

Since arena seating is limited to 250 seats a night, season coupon holders should exchange their coupons as soon as possible. Non-coupon holders may buy tickets at 50 cents each only on the night of the performance.

Eberle Thomas, East Lansing graduate student in theater, who is directing the production, translated Carlo Goldoni's "The Lovers" from the Italian for the arena production.

The comedy moves along on two interlocking lovers' triangles. Young Fulgenzio is in love with the maiden Eugenia, but Eugenia fears Fulgenzio's beautiful sister-in-law will attract him.

Into this triangle steps the Count Roberto, Fulgenzio becomes jealous of him because he fears the suave count will attract Eugenia. The sister-in-law finds the count attractive too.

The result is a round of quarrels and reconciliations.

Dale Gelvan, Wilmette, Ill., junior, plays Eugenia. Miss Gelvan appeared as Ann Putnam in this year's production of "The Crucible." Last season she portrayed Carlotta in "The Deputy" and Teresa in "The Hostage." Anthony Heald, Massapequa Park, N.Y., junior, takes the role of Fulgenzio. To his credit this season is the role of stuttering Jonathan in "Oh Dad, Poor Dad."

J. Michael Bloom, East Lansing graduate student, portrays the uncle, Fabrizio, in whose house the action takes place. Bloom played Commodore Roseablove in "Oh Dad, Poor Dad." It is his third year with the Performing Arts Company.

Chilton Cunningham, Ann Arbor senior, takes the role of Flaminia, the older sister who smooths out the lovers' quarrels. She played Kate in Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," last year's touring show.

MUSICIANS THREE -- The Beaux Arts Trio performed the music of Beethoven, Ravel and Brahms in the Music Auditorium Tuesday night. Menahem Pressler is at the piano, Bernard Greenhouse, the cello, and Daniel Guilet, the violin.

ISRAEL: VILLAGES

Child-Rearing Studied

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer
Children raised in kibbutzim, Israeli collective settlements, are psychologically, physically and mentally equal to those raised in conventional family settings, according to a study made by an MSU psychology professor.

Albert I. Rabin, in his new book, "Growing up in the Kibbutz," says that children raised in the kibbutzim grew up to be just as "normal" as those reared in conventional settings.

The kibbutz is a voluntary, democratic and egalitarian society whose major economic principle is collectivism.

Rabin studied 12 villages, in two separate visits to Israel in 1955 and 1962. There are 200 such villages there now.

Four groups of kibbutz-reared individuals, ranging in age from infancy to maturity, were studied by means of interviews and tests appropriate at the several ages, Rabin said. The groups consisted of one-year-olds, 10-year-olds, 17-year-olds, and Army officer training candidates.

Rabin said he noted less Oedipal intensity and sibling rivalry among the kibbutz children. Also kibbutz children are as "well adjusted" as non-kibbutz children, are less aggressive, more independent in handling inner tensions and are also less involved with their biological family, he noted.

The study showed that kibbutz-reared young men are highly successful in the army, Rabin said. A significant number of them are selected for officer candidate training.

Rabin said the total population of the kibbutzim, 100,000, constitutes only five per cent of the total population of Israel. The kibbutz educational system goes through high school, he said. The subject matter taught in the kibbutz is very similar to the non-kibbutz educational system.

In the elementary grades the topical system is used, Rabin said, while in high school the subject system is used.

Classes are held within sex-integrated dormitories, he continued, and about 20-25 students live in the combined school-dormitory and rarely see their parents.

The students live together until the age of 18, Rabin said, after which both men and women are required to serve in the Army. Nearly 98 per cent of the young people return to the kibbutz after their term of service, he said.

Only a small minority, Rabin continued, advance their education after completing high school in the kibbutz.

WITH LANSING SYMPHONY

N.Y. Cast For Local 'Carmen'

Four New York opera stars will join the Lansing Symphony and the Lansing Symphonic Choir Monday in a presentation of Bizet's "Carmen," one of the most popular operas ever written.

The New York soloists include Margaret Roggero, a leading soprano with the Metropolitan Opera; Elisabeth Hadley, a young soprano who took Italy by storm in 1962; Jean Deis, a leading tenor with the New York Civic Center opera, and Gene Boucher, a well-known concert and operatic baritone.

The performance starts at 8:30 p.m. Monday in the Sexton Auditorium. Tickets can be reserved by calling the symphony office at 482-0753.

Today many Americans recognize the "Habanera" and "Toreador Song" of "Carmen." The opera runs a close second to "Faust" for the popularity crown.

Yet it was not until after Bizet's death that "Carmen" was recognized as a masterpiece.

It shocked the 19th century with a story of the corruption of an ordinary, honest soldier, Don Jose, by Carmen, a gypsy worker in a cigarette factory. The Opera-Comique of France shelved it for seven years after its first performance.

But the opera grew in popularity nevertheless. Henry W. Simon, writing in "A Treasury of Grand Opera," attributes the ultimate success of the opera to the public's good taste in the face of critical scorn.

"Carmen" is just about as nearly perfect an opera as there is," he writes in the book. "No other opera in the standard repertoire makes it so unmistakably clear what all the shooting and the shouting are about, and in few other operas do the shooting and the shouting seem to matter so much."

Two of America's brightest young operatic stars, Elisabeth Hadley and Gene Boucher, will sing leading parts in "Carmen's" tale of violence.

Miss Hadley, a coloratura soprano, entered the Juillard School of Music with the intent of majoring in piano. The famed voice teacher Florence Page Kimball heard her singing in a school production and urged her to take up singing instead.

"She was so sincere and persuasive, I just didn't have the heart to say no," Miss Hadley later said of Florence Kimball.

After graduating from Juillard, Miss Hadley made her operatic debut in 1962 at the Teatro Sociale de Trento in Trent, Italy, doing the roles of Gilda in "Rigoletto" and Norina in "Don Pasquale."

Boucher studied voice at the Conservatoire de Lille in France on a Fulbright Scholarship. Following graduation, he entered and won the American Opera Auditions.

On the strength of his victory, he was invited to make his operatic debut in Milan, Italy. Since then he has sung with the Chattanooga Opera Company, the Cincinnati Summer Opera, the Philadelphia Grand Opera and the Metropolitan Opera Studio.

He has sung with the Bel Canto

Trio, the Golden Curtain Quartet, the Robert Shaw Chorus and the New York Choral Society. He appeared with the American Symphony Orchestra and the Eastman-Rochester Symphony.

Soviets To Print Stalin

MOSCOW (UPI)--Soviet authorities will soon publish two banned books authored by Josef Stalin in an apparent Kremlin effort to give credit where credit is due to the former ruler, informed sources said Wednesday.

Both books are early works by Stalin, considered "classics" in their field, and are apparently non-controversial to the present Kremlin leadership. One deals with the question of nationalities and the other basic ideological problems.

But the sources pointed out that the publication of "Marxism and the national question" and "Problems of Leninism" should not be considered political rehabilitation of Stalin.

Instead, they said, it is intended to introduce a measure of objectivity on the major historic role he played during his lifetime despite his lust for power and the bloody purges of the late 1930s.

Aussies' Leader May Retire Today

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI)--Sir Robert Menzies, 71, will formally announce his resignation as prime minister today after a record-breaking term of office, informed sources said.

The sources said government ministers became convinced of Menzies' intention during a cabinet meeting Wednesday night although he made no formal announcement to them.

Menzies' departure will bring to an end 16 successive years as prime minister and leader of the Liberal and Country party coalition.

To Show Three Chinese Films

Three Chinese films will be presented to MSU students at 8:30 tonight in 31 Union.

The films are being presented for the first time to an American audience by the Sino-American Friendship Club to celebrate the opening of the Chinese lunar new year festivities.

They are: "Mount Yengshan," a Peking opera (an ancient Chinese art form rarely seen in the West); "Forbidden City," a tour in film of the imperial palaces in Peking, and "Robert Williams in China," a filmed record of a tour of China taken by the former President of the NAACP.

The public is invited and a 50 cent donation is requested.

ENDS TONIGHT:
"BILLY BUDD"
Shown at 7:00 and 9:15 P.M.

COME MEET THE DIRECTOR:

William Cannon, the young writer-producer-director of "The Square Root Of Zero" will be present in the theatre lobby at Friday's opening performances.

PRODUCTION NOTES:

THE SQUARE ROOT OF ZERO has alternately been labeled and compared to "pop art", Patrick Dennis, Charles Addams, Winnie the Pooh, the Marx Bros., Charlie Chaplin, and on and on and on. But labels must be applied with caution, leaving room for an appreciation of Bill Cannon's highly original approach. Though THE SQUARE ROOT OF ZERO flows with "the mainstream of the new wave", it may be strictly by coincidence.

The concept that entertainment itself is a meaningful subject for entertainment is central in the film. The play within the play within the dream within the dream manifest this as well as the overall structure of the film which might be described as Mr. Cannon's fantasy about Zero's fantasies about Zero and his friends which unfold as both fact and fantasy.

Mr. Cannon has directed the film so that all the characters and situations are parodies of themselves, and the props are prototypes of props. All the resulting incongruities produce an overall effect that is meant to be nothing more nor less than fun.

Killed My Wife--
Mild Police Clerk

DETROIT (UPI)--A meek police clerk admitted Wednesday he killed his wife, married a beautiful Polish divorcee and quietly came to his job every day while his police colleagues tried to solve the baffling crime.

Walter A. Konczewski, 37, was charged with murder. He told police he shot his wife, Virginia, 40, four times last Sept. 4 and left her body alongside a lonely lane about 35 miles west of here near Hell, Mich.

She was unidentified until Tuesday when police received an anonymous tip linking Konczewski with the slaying. He was called in for questioning and finally admitted the killing after first claiming his wife had vanished last August, police said.

Konczewski, a bald, bespectacled night shift microfilming clerk, then took a vacation from his civilian police job, went to Poland and married Barbara Leggin, a shapely blonde he met through a lonely hearts correspondence club.

His colleagues were not aware of the secret marriage, Robert A. Lothian, deputy police commissioner in charge of civilian employees said, and were shocked to hear of the slaying.

Konczewski returned to work following the marriage last October but was not in a position where he could keep track of the investigation, Lothian said.

His Polish bride was unaware of his other marriage, Lothian said, and is still in Poland. She had planned to come here shortly.

"Apparently she went through with the marriage merely to get out of Poland and get over here," Lothian said. "She was a very, very attractive young woman."

"Konczewski was somewhat introverted. He was very definitely meek--certainly not of the calibre to be a salesman, or a killer."

"He sort of remained in the background. He was a very unassuming person."

PRICES UP, BUT--

Grill Passes Hold

Grill credit passes have not changed in value regardless of the changes in prices of grill food, T. L. Smith, assistant food services manager of the residence halls, said Wednesday.

"In changing the grill prices, items which students generally take for lunch, such as hamburgers, milk shakes and french fries, were not affected," Smith said.

Smith said the grill credits were meant to be only a stop-gap measure for those students who could not avoid class conflicts with dormitory meal hours.

"We encourage students to avoid missing a meal," he said, "and in cases where the situation Grill credits are worth 60 cents for lunch and 80 cents for dinner."

Smith said the prices a student would pay for a guest meal ticket for the dinner line (cafeteria) meal is unrelated to the value of the grill pass.

Any non-dormitory resident wanting to eat in a dorm must pay $1.10 for lunch, $1.50 for dinner and $1.75 for Sunday dinner.

Smith said the value of the meal to the dorm resident would not be comparable since adjustments are made in room and board payments for absences from meals.

Happy Horse

This Friday marks the passing of the Year of the Snake and the beginning of the Year of the Horse according to Chinese custom.

Michigan State's approximately 100 Chinese students will celebrate the New Year at a tea party at St. John's Student Parish at 8:30 p.m.

Entertainment will include traditional Chinese songs and dances. A movie dramatizing an ancient Chinese myth about two warring kingdoms will also be shown.

There are many colorful traditions connected with the Chinese New Year. One old custom says that all debts must be paid before the end of the old year.

Another tradition says the Kitchen God of Prince of the Oven goes to heaven to report on the family's behavior during the old year. The family prepares a feast for him before he goes, and he makes his journey in a decorated paper chariot which the children make for him.

Other customs call for strips of red paper to be placed on the door posts to symbolize happiness and good fortune. There is also a parade led by a five-colored paper cow. There is a calf inside the cow. The procession goes out into the fields where the cow is destroyed. The remaining calf symbolizes the New Year.

New Year's celebrations traditionally continue for two weeks and end with the Parade of the Dragon.

Challenging Summer Jobs

For a challenge and a tremendous learning experience, try a summer job related to your field of study.

According to John D. Shingleton, director of the Placement Bureau, more employers each year begin summer training programs for students majoring in fields of interest to the individual companies.

"This gives the student a chance to look the company over, and the company a chance to look the student over," Shingleton said.

Many students have been pleased with the work experience and the company where they have accepted summer jobs and apply at the end of their schooling for full-time employment at the company, he said.

If the company is pleased with the students work, they will probably hire him when he graduates, he said.

Shingleton said the work is related to the student's major field, and the work assignments are just as challenging as full-time employment assignments.

"To a great many large companies and some smaller ones, the summer placement program represents the very significant heart of the total recruitment program," Shingleton said.

The company gets somewhat of a fringe benefit, he said, since students will usually return to campus and tell their experiences to other students.

However, if the student didn't enjoy the job because of the working environment, this can work against the company, too.

In technical jobs the salary may range from $4-500 a month, he said, compared to regular employment salaries of $600 a month and up.

New Furniture For Giltner

The MSU Board of Trustees Thursday approved the purchase of metal laboratory furniture valued at $53,640 for Giltner Hall.

Kewaunee Manufacturing Co. of Adrian was low bidder.

Two proposals for outfitting Giltner were solicited. One was for wood furniture and one was for metal, since both types are now in the building and the alteration program is matching existing furniture in the different rooms.

A low bid of $92,500 for wood laboratory furniture, submitted by Walrus Manufacturing Co. of Decatur, Ill., was not approved. Trustees said this is the first time Walrus has bid at MSU and they wanted time to check the firm's products.

Tower Builders Co., Inc., of Angola, Inc., received an $8,950 contract for maintenance work on the WKAR-FM broadcast tower on Dobie Road.

The board also approved alterations to rooms 70 and 72 Kellogg Center for the Highway Traffic Safety Center. Cost of the project is $2,800.

In other action, the board approved one-year salary payments for the widows of Charles E. Moorman, custodian in Brody Hall, and Harry W. Van Atta, supervisor in the Stores Dept.

The changes would include:
1. The excise tax on new autos, which went down from 7 to 6 per cent Jan. 1, would go back to 7.

2. The telephone tax, reduced from 10 to 3 per cent on the same date, would be restored to 10 per cent.

3. Corporate income tax collections would be speeded up, and a graduated system of withholding levies on individual incomes would put higher bracket individuals on a more of a pay-as-you-earn basis.

The military request asks, among other things, for:

--Increasing the armed forces by 113,000 men to a new strength of 3,093,000 and adding 94,000 civilians to the Pentagon payroll which then will approach 1.1 million workers.

One major new military unit will be formed, possibly another division. Officials refused to provide a breakdown of the 113,000 added men, although it is known the great bulk will go into the Army and Marine ground forces.

--More than 2,000 new helicopters. The copter is a major factor in the Viet Nam war, enabling U.S. and Vietnamese battle elements to vault over the country's difficult terrain.

--More than 900 additional warplanes to keep up the hammering and hounding of the Communist guerrillas and their North Vietnamese allies.

--Replenishing stocks of bombs and other ammunition which have been seriously depleted by the incessant air and ground operations.

--Acquiring 4,830 tactical missiles such as the Army's Hawk, which is used to defend against low-level air attack, and the Navy's Bullpup which is an important weapon aimed by Navy, Marine and Air Force planes against enemy positions.

The lack of port facilities has been a major factor in bottleneck in the flow of supplies.

--A total of $152 million to accelerate various development programs on advanced type weapons and devices and to work on new ones tailored to insurgent-type wars.

Computer Center
Adds Service

Installation of a Computer Answering Service at Computer Center has been announced by Donald F. Spyke, business manager of Computer Services.

The new service, which is completely automatic, operates 24 hours a day and gives hour-by-hour information on the status of programs submitted to the 3600 computer.

The cost of the operation to the computer center will be about $7 a month.

Program information can be obtained by calling 355-5077.

BOAC will leave you alone in Europe.

On a swinging BOAC Grand Orbit student tour you can explore the coast of Portugal, gaze at the Rif Mountains of Morocco, take an Adriatic cruise, visit the Islands of Greece, absorb culture in Spain, France, Italy and England, find yourself a Scandinavian viking, lift your stein in Germany, Switzerland and Austria, play roulette in Monaco, and have plenty of time to roam around on your own. The whole package will cost you $1921.30* round trip from New York. And that includes most meals, hotels and everything else. (You can also jet BOAC direct from Miami, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, San Francisco, or Honolulu. And join the group in London.)

To be sure you get what you pay for we hired some young tour leaders from Oxford and Cambridge and told them not to bug you.

They were all for it. They said that's the only kind of tour they'd be interested in leading anyway. And that they weren't above a little freedom themselves while working their way through college.

So that's the kind of deal you'll get on a BOAC student tour of Europe this summer. Clip the coupon for more facts. And cut out for Europe.

Other resignations and terminations included: Pamela Shaffer, instructor, nursing, Dec. 31, 1965; Jeremy Berman, instructor, statistics and probability, Dec. 31, 1965; Joseph K. Roberts, assistant professor, political science, Aug. 31; and Alfred Jones, instructor, American thought and language, Aug. 31.

India

lems which include food shortages arising from the worst drought in a century, scarcity of foreign exchange, an exploding population, gaining several million people each year, some 75 per cent illiteracy, threatened hostilities with neighboring Pakistan and Communist China, and a Hindu-Moslem religious rivalry that could explode into violence at any time.

But Mrs. Gandhi said the people of India have "inherent strength" which has enabled them to overcome difficulties through the ages.

The people on whom Mrs. Indira Gandhi bases her faith thronged by the thousands to honor their leader.

Mrs. Gandhi stood for hours in the garden of her home while her people filed past, offering the clasped hands "namaste" greeting. Many placed garlands of flowers around her neck. Some dropped to their knees and kissed Mrs. Gandhi's shoes.

Mrs. Gandhi's victory resumed the Nehru era after Shastri's 19 months of leadership.
