Rabbi's Assailant Succumbs

From Our Wire Services

SOUTHFIELD -- Richard S. Wisnietzky, 23, who critically wounded Morris Adler during services Saturday and then shot himself, was buried in this Detroit suburb Wednesday.

He died at 12:25 a.m. of massive brain damage.

Wisnietzky had never regained consciousness since about noon Saturday, when he shot and critically wounded Rabbi Adler during services in a Southfield synagogue, Shaarey Zedek.

Wisnietzky's parents and a hospital staff doctor were with him when he died. At least one member of his family had been at his bedside almost constantly since he was admitted.

Meanwhile, Rabbi Adler remained in critical condition Wednesday, although slight improvement has been reported.

A hospital bulletin Tuesday afternoon said, "Prognosis is still extremely guarded. Constant attendance by a team of anesthesiologists for maintenance of optimum vital functions continues."

Court and hospital records reveal that Wisnietzky walked away from Ypsilanti State Hospital last September and was not recommended because psychiatrists thought he needed only private counseling.

Hospital records describe how the young man was admitted for treatment as "an alleged mentally ill person" last Aug. 19, walked away from the institution on Sept. 9 and was discharged as a patient, by court order, on Nov. 24.

CIA To Recruit On 100 Campuses

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government's super spy agency, the CIA, confirmed Wednesday that it has recruiting teams visiting about 100 college campuses interviewing students as prospective analysts and agents.

"We want good people," said Col. Stanley J. Grogan. "We're out looking for them."

At present the Central Intelligence Agency is particularly interested in students, especially graduate students with basic scientific training which would qualify them for photo-interpretation work.

Grogan, an assistant to the CIA director, Adm. William F. Raborn, said the CIA probably has more employees and officials with advanced academic degrees than any other agency in government.

Romney Asks MSU Appropriation Increase

By BETTY LITTLE
State News Staff Writer

Gov. George Romney recommended Wednesday that MSU--MSU Oakland be appropriated $53,315,038 for general operations, an approximate $6 million increase over 1965-66.

In a breakdown of 1966-67 appropriation recommendations, the MSU budget was divided into four areas--the MSU main campus program; Oakland University; the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cooperative Extension Service.

Appropriation recommendations were:

--MSU programs, $43,030,272, an 11.6 per cent increase over 1965-66.

--Agricultural Experiment Station, $3,723,130, a 6.4 per cent increase over last year.

--Cooperative Extension Service, a net state appropriation of $2,860,394, a 10.7 per cent increase.

--Oakland University, MSU's affiliate near Pontiac, $3,701,242 or a 41.0 per cent increase over last year.

Romney recommended that the large increase be appropriated to Oakland although the institution had not requested any state funds to implement new programs.

The $1,077,238 increase recommendation is based on an estimated increased student enrollment next fall and for an estimated 60.4 additional teaching faculty positions.

The 11.6 per cent or $4,458,541 recommendation increase for MSU programs is based on an estimated increased student enrollment of 2,953 fiscal year equated students and for 184.6 additional teaching faculty positions.

The recommended additional faculty positions will provide MSU with a student-teacher ratio of approximately 16-1 for 1966-67.

The recommendations also include funds for developing an instructional program complex, science oriented, for approximately 400 freshmen.

The program will be similarly organized along the principles of the existing Justin Morrill College complex which is liberal arts oriented.

The $224,265 or 6.4 per cent increase in recommendations for the Agricultural Experiment Station was requested for projects in vegetable and cherry research and for studies of pesticides and food science.

Romney suggests that the recommendations only apply to the vegetable and fruit research.

The purpose of the $276,394 or 10.7 per cent increase for Cooperative Extension Service is to provide for a single extension office to serve three counties on an experimental basis.

The office would be handled on a contractual basis and would provide greater specialization to help advance rural communities.

The budget recommends a $1,110,186 increase in salary increment for teaching faculty at MSU which is approximately $700 less than was requested.

About $50,000 of the increase in campus appropriations was recommended for the MSU Highway Safety Center program.

Showdown Due On LBJ Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The Senate exploded in angry debate over President Johnson's Viet Nam policy Wednesday and raised the probability of a showdown vote of confidence over his conduct of the war.

Furious and emotional exchanges between

Senate Democratic whip Russell Long, D-La., who supported Johnson, and other Democrats, who do not back him, shattered the chamber's calm and set the stage for full-scale debate over U.S. involvement in Viet Nam.

Long denounced senators who make speeches on the Senate floor and on television criticizing U.S. policy. He said they only help the North Vietnamese.

"I swell with pride when I see Old Glory here on Capitol Hill," he declared. "I hope no other flag ever flies there -- may there never be a white flag of surrender up there."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., replied: "No one questions the glory of the American flag. Doesn't the senator think senators have a right to question our policy in Southeast Asia when we think that policy has been consistently wrong?"

Before the Senate was a $4.8 billion authorization measure that included $3.4 billion for purchase of planes, missiles, ships and tracked combat vehicles for use in Viet Nam. It is the first installment of President Johnson's $12.3 billion request for money to run the war in the fiscal year that ends June 30.

Democratic senators opposed to Johnson's policy are seriously thinking of offering an amendment to the bill which would spell out their distaste for a further escalation of the fighting. The bill's supporters are determined to resist such a move, on the grounds the measure simply authorizes purchase of military "hardware" and does not involve policy.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, floor manager of the bill, said in his opening speech that no one should consider the measure as "determining foreign policy, as ratifying decisions made in the past, or as endorsing new commitments."

"If the Senate shilly-shallies with this supplemental bill, it will be much harder to convince those opposing us of our determination to see this commitment through, and our adversaries are much more likely to be intransigent and contemptuous toward our efforts to find peace," he said.

If the move is attempted, it would bring about a vote that would permit the Senate to go on record for or against the President's policy. Some 30 senators -- nearly a third of the membership -- have announced plans to speak on the bill. Final action hardly could come before next week.

Free Speech Resolution Dies In House Committee

A resolution to commend state-supported universities for their support of free speech died in committee Wednesday.

The House Policy Committee could not reach the majority vote necessary to report the resolution to the House of Representatives.

The committee discussed the resolution which was offered by Reps. Jack Faxon (D-Detroit), Daniel S. Cooper, (D-Oak Park) and Thomas White, (D-Detroit) and deadlocked at a 4-4 vote on reporting it out to the house.

Before a vote was taken, the resolution was amended to include a statement reaffirming the universities' implied right of free speech with the understanding that they had certain responsibilities to protect that freedom.

The resolution was an attempt to show that the house was in disagreement with a State Senate resolution passed Friday. The resolution stated that Communist speakers should not be allowed to speak on state-supported university campuses.

The Senate resolution was an attempt to stop Herbert Aptheker, a Communist historian, from speaking Friday.

William A. Boos, (D-Saginaw), said that the issue had come before the Legislature before and had been settled properly.

"The Council of State College Presidents was formed two years ago because there was not a settled policy on off-campus and on-campus speakers," he said.

Boos suggested that the matter should rest with this council again or with the boards of the different universities.

"The policies the council set two years ago were good and we have no right to interfere," Boos said.

Rep. Spencer said that during World War II, Hitler found that it was necessary to get at the youth of Germany, in order to get at the country.

4 To Speak On Viet Nam

Four MSU faculty members will address a background conference Saturday on Viet Nam, sponsored by the Democratic State Central Committee.

Speaking at the conference are: Mrs. Chitra Smith, lecturer in social science; Paul A. Varg, Dean of the College of Arts and Letters; Wesley Fishel, professor of political science; Ralph F. Turner, professor of police administration; and Rhoads Murphy, professor of geography.

The purpose of the public discussion of the war in Viet Nam is to provide an "honest and open and intellectual discussion of this vital issue," according to a letter sent to Michigan Democrats.

Also addressing the conference will be Jerome P. Cavanaugh, mayor of Detroit.

Early Enrollment

Students with names beginning with S through Z may participate in early enrollment between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. today in the basement of the Auditorium. Those students who have a heavy class load or a conflict today may enroll Friday.

Pope Modifies Lent Fast Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Pope Paul VI has relaxed fast and abstinence rules for Roman Catholics throughout the world, it was announced here Wednesday.

The official announcement from the apostolic delegation to the United States said that "full details" of the new regulations will be made public in Rome today.

It said the "major points" of the papal decree will be:

--"The traditional law requiring Catholics to abstain from meat on Fridays remains in effect." However, children under 14 will henceforth be freed from the meatless Friday obligation. Previously, it applied to all Catholics above the age of 7.

--The rules of Lenten fasting will be drastically modified. Henceforth Catholics may eat what they please during Lent except on Fridays, when they will be expected to abstain from meat as on all Fridays during the year, and on the two days which mark the beginning and end of the Lenten season.

On Ash Wednesday -- which falls this year on Feb. 23--and on Good Friday, they are enjoined to practice both fasting and abstinence. This means eating only one full meal, without meat, and two other light snacks, also without meat.

In the past, Lenten rules called for adult Catholics to fast on all of the 40 weekdays of the season. Fasting meant eating only one full meal which could include meat plus two other light snacks which together did not amount to a full meal.

Although not required to do so, millions of devout Catholics are expected to continue fasting during Lent. The purpose of the new regulations is to put Lenten acts of self-denial on a voluntary rather than a compulsory basis.

Students Go To Capital

Three MSU students are in Washington, D.C., today attending the 14th annual presidential breakfast.

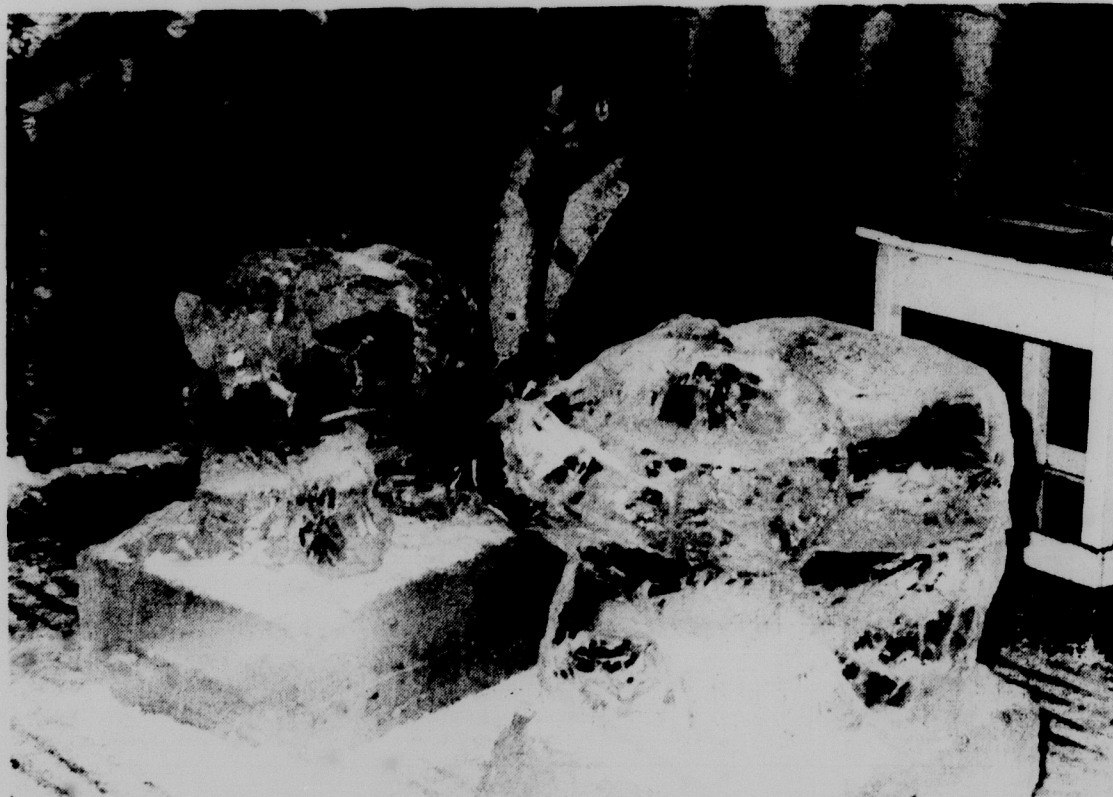

They are: John C. McQuitty, East Lansing junior; Charles G. Stoddard, East Lansing junior; and Kenneth O. Alfred, Hillsdale graduate student.

Approximately 50 students from throughout the United States were invited to attend the breakfast.

The breakfast is arranged annually by members of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives who meet regularly to discuss and pray for the needs of America and the world. The breakfast is attended by the President, his cabinet, members of Congress, the judiciary, and other governmental organizations.

All three students are personally financing the four-day trip which includes a young men's leadership seminar following the breakfast.

The purpose of the seminar is to provide an opportunity for students to discuss how to develop better leadership.

U Thant, DeGaulle Agree On Viet Views

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary-General U Thant said Wednesday he shares the views of President Charles de Gaulle on how to bring peace to Viet Nam.

Thant said the objective should be neutrality, independence and noninterference--points stressed by the French leader.

The Soviet Union again voiced opposition to any consideration of peace moves in the U.S. Security Council--a stand taken also by France.

Diplomatic consultations continued on how the council should tackle the problem, but the position taken by the Soviet Union, France and some other council members made prospects of agreement slim.

De Gaulle made public Tuesday a letter to President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam offering to participate in a peace settlement, but containing no plan for immediate action. He stressed again his support of implementation of the Geneva agreements.

Asked for Thant's comment on De Gaulle's letter, a U.N. spokesman issued this statement: "President de Gaulle's well-known views on Viet Nam have been shared all along by the secretary-general, and the secretary-general believes that the three points--neutrality, independence and noninterference--should continue to be the objective of all those who are seeking a peaceful solution to the Viet Nam conflict."

In his letter De Gaulle mentioned specifically the commitments made in the Geneva agreements "regarding the independence and neutrality of Viet Nam and noninterference by all in its internal affairs which, quite obviously, is in contradiction with the present situation."

Expanding MSU Press Is Key To Success

TIME, EFFORT, KNOWLEDGE and the process of thinking are valuable possessions to everyone, including professors. When a professor puts his time, effort, knowledge and thinking processes into a textbook or "scholarly" project, with publication in mind, he supposedly divorces himself from the "American ideal" of "produce for profit."

What would be the purpose of writing down new teaching methods, research findings and "scholarly" investigations unless it would be to inform? The professor who writes for publication certainly wants others to know of his findings. The Centrex phone system or a coffee clutch can serve the purpose on campus. But for widespread distribution of information to those interested, publishing has been the newest devised form.

WITH THE LIMITED MARKETING range the MSU Press offers and the "specialized"—though not exclusive—interest in Midwestern affairs, professors find no solution to their publishing needs.

Commercial publishers will not touch something they don't think will sell, simply because of the economics involved. The longer the press run, the less the cost of each book coming off the presses. But with the long press run, the commercial publishers also want guarantees that they won't be "stuck" with the majority of the books sitting on their shelves.

A PROFESSOR'S WRITINGS, unless contracted for by the commercial publisher who feels the "name" will help the sales, are usually too specialized or too new to bring guaranteed sales.

The MSU Press is well geared to handle the "too specialized" material. Marketing the publication may be handled by the professor-writer. He may contact others in his field whom he believes would be interested in his findings.

BUT NEITHER THE MSU PRESS nor the commercial publishers offer an outlet to the professor who wants to prove his ideas are worth something, not only at this University, but on a broader scale.

To fill this gap, the MSU Press could publish worthwhile experimental materials and help market them. At least professors' ideas could be tried, not only to prove the marketing capabilities on this campus, but in other schools also.

POSSIBLY A RECIPROCAL AGREEMENT with other Big Ten schools would solve the problem. Experimental published materials written by their faculty and staffs and published by their presses may be tried on the MSU campus and MSU materials may be tried there. Each school would offer the book for sale to students based on the price set by the press publishing the material. Such a price would be set with the idea that the book will be a "seller."

In this way the university press which does the publishing will not lose a great amount of money on the book even if it does not prove successful. Still the materials would be given a fair chance to prove themselves in a broader market range.

COMMERCIAL PUBLISHERS may then have proof that a book will bring "guaranteed" sales, and chances of commercial publication will be greatly improved. The publishing press, however, would hold the copyright and, offering a fair scale of royalties to the professor-writer, could continue publishing the materials and regain monies lost on publications which didn't prove to have a broad market.

The MSU Press is to be commended for the job it is doing, but expansion of the marketing procedures and the publishing program is a solution to at least one of many problems in the professor's publishing world.

Red China Drawing Reactions To Tactics

ALL IS NOT BLEAK in Southeast Asia. In perhaps the most volatile area in the world, sharp changes in policy are not uncommon. One such rapid shift may work to our advantage.

Indonesia has recalled its ambassador to Communist China. Just a few months ago, the two nations were on close terms. However, the new move may be the first step towards a complete break in official relations between the two countries.

THE UNSUCCESSFUL coup d'etat in Indonesia last October is the cause for the increased tensions between Jakarta and Peking. Intelligence sources claim that Red China played a major role in the abortive coup. They indicate that many Chinese advisors visited Indonesia prior to the revolt, and Chinese-made weapons were taken from the rebels.

As sophisticated as the Chinese are alleged to be in their propaganda techniques, they have made some major blunders on the international scene that could alienate them from the rest of the world—including the Communist blocs.

THEY LOST THE affections of the newly-independent African nations when, on a visit to Africa a few years ago, a Red Chinese spokesman called for a revolution of the masses.

THE SINO-SOVIET RIFT is fast becoming the Sino-Soviet split, mostly because of China's sharp tongue. And the North Vietnamese, who are nobody's fools, realize that the Red Chinese are "fighting to the very last North Vietnamese."

Red China has recently been criticized by Castro for not meeting obligations on a trade agreement. Even from tiny Albania, China's staunchest ally, grumblings have recently been heard.

The inconsiderate, saber-rattling policy of China's leaders appears to be catching up with them finally. In the struggle for men's minds, the U.S. should do all it can to take advantage of both Red China's lack of tact and absence of pure common sense.

Red Tape Snags Wigs

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK—Shipments of black hair from Red China are all snarled up by the U.S. Customs Service—while wigs flipped in the toupee and false eyelash business.

Hair pieces and phony chignons have caught in a cold war snag.

Starting today, customs will detain human hair products entering the country from the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Germany and Italy.

Suspect tresses may end up in warehouses, be returned to Europe, or—a hair-raising thought—be forfeited to the federal government.

It seems that the fashionable, long-lashed ladies with great manes of hair have been aiding and abetting the enemy, if ever so inadvertently.

"It has now been determined that substantial quantities of Communist Chinese hair are being used in the production of wigs and other hair products sent to the United States from the affected countries," said the Treasury Department Office of Foreign Assets Control.

And U.S. regulations forbid trade with Red China.

Imports from Hong Kong were banned last November after the Treasury Department found that of the $15 million that American firms paid to import wigs last year, $6 million went to Red China via the British crown colony.

American women, from the shingle to the sassoon, don't grow enough hair for themselves.

"Why, American women don't produce enough hair in one year for one day's wig production," said Richard Hartwich of the Fifth Avenue wig firm that bears his name.

Hartwich estimated that 95 per cent of all machine-made wigs were made of Chinese hair, and that some Chinese hair was blended in even the handmade models labeled made in Europe.

OUR READERS SPEAK

Indictment Unfair

To the Editor:

I read with great interest the State News article on page one Feb. 10, which stated that the Student Board voted to indict The Paper before Student Judiciary. This action is illogical and, worse, is in contradiction to the philosophy of equal application of justice.

Clickety-What?

To the Editor:

In regard to Mr. John Poet's letter of Feb. 14, 1966, I can only feebly attempt, as far as human limitations allow, to say that the verbose sesquipedalianisms expounded by Mr. Poet, and herein exemplified, detract from the effectiveness of the belittled, euphonistic and sardonic attributes of the epistle lending to its lack of verisimilitude, and ergo, air of dubious veracity elucidated readily by the reader more than fulfilling his sufficiency for such mastery and leading him to bellicosity. That is to say, a "vocavity" is not Mr. Poet's problem. And so to you, Mr. Poet, I can only say... "Clickety-pop!"

John Ashton
Royal Oak senior

The reasons stated as causing this action are 1) The Paper published and sold after its charter had expired, and 2) The Paper had accepted paid advertising.

I wonder why, if The Paper is not allowed to publish and accept advertising freely, and still be sold on campus, the State Journal is allowed to do so? The Paper is written and operated by students, who work and write without pay; its intention is not commercial; and it has accepted paid advertising only to make financial ends meet. The State Journal, on the other hand, must have no charter from ASMSU, accepts (to put it mildly) paid advertising, and is in business primarily to make money; yet it is allowed to sell on campus, even in the dormitories.

If The Paper is to be prohibited from selling on campus, with or without charter or advertising, then, in all fairness, the State Journal should be subject to the same prohibition.

John H. Cain
Hazel Park sophomore

Editor's Note: The story was in error and a correction was run the next day (Feb. 11). The Paper was indicted by the Student Board for violation of its ASMSU charter, not for expiration of its charter.

'Paper' Upheld

To the Editor:

We believe that in ordering the indictment on The Paper that ASMSU has overstepped its bounds.

Why should they try to choke off The Paper? Why should ASMSU give a newspaper such a limited charter in the first place? And why can't The Paper accept advertisements if the State News can?

It seems apparent to me that ASMSU did not want The Paper to succeed in the first place. Then finding out that their rather limited charter would not cripple them, and discovering that the student body is interested in The Paper, that in fact The Paper is thriving, they had to resort to more drastic methods of killing it.

Is ASMSU afraid that The Paper will be too much competition for the State News? If so, we would like to point out that we are forced to subscribe to the State News at registration, so there is no economic competition.

We would also ask that the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, in their investigation of student rights, also investigate the Student Judiciary and ASMSU. For certainly, if this indictment goes through, they will have violated our basic Constitutional rights of free press, etc.

MSU's Stalag 104

To the Editor:

Regarding the letter from the four fellows with "Tips For Night Owls," in Friday's paper.

Their advice, general comments, etc., was fine, except for one point. They said, "If you feel you were mistreated you may demand to see the officers' badges." I would suggest that the "Owls" not demand to see their badges, because if they do they may end up in Quonset 104 (police station).

That I know for a fact, as I was stopped by the Campus Police last spring term and when I demanded to see their badges, (it was at night, and they were on foot) I was taken to 104, they said I was being belligerent, hostile, and uncooperative.

So I wouldn't recommend the "Owls" demand to see the badges, unless they also want to see the inside of Quonset 104.

Better Marks In Two Days

In less than a month we will be blitzed by final exams. As soon as classes end, finals are thrust upon us. Classes end Friday, and BAM—Monday morning we have the first exam. This situation naturally prevents students from doing their best on their finals.

The members of Green Helmet, the sophomore men's honorary, have suggested a solution to this term-end squeeze. Green Helmet would like to see a few days set aside at the end of the term as a period for study.

For example, classes could end Wednesday, Thursday and Friday could be designated a reading period; and exams would start the following Monday. This would provide ample time to study for exams. It would relieve some of the anxiety that results in too little time for studying.

The concept of a reading period is nothing new. For years many schools have been using it. Some schools on the semester system devote as much as a week just for studying before finals. Since we are on the quarter system, two days should be sufficient.

An undue stress is placed on grades. This is unfortunate, but for all practical purposes, unavoidable. Since this is the situation though, steps should be taken to see that students demonstrate their best abilities on finals.

It is true that some students might waste the extra time, but most will welcome the added time. However, the best way to find out whether or not students will waste the time is to try it.

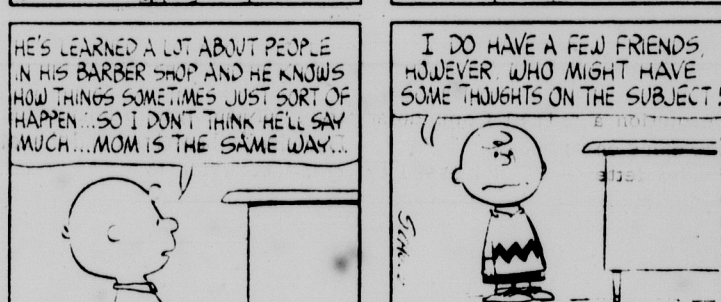

Some will complain that we have so little time to cover the work assigned that lopping off two class days would reduce the amount of material covered. I don't agree. Most classes meet two or three days a week, so actually students will be losing only one meeting in each class. This lost time could easily be absorbed over a ten-week term.

Most people are in favor of a reading period before finals, but the efforts of many people are necessary to make the reading period a reality. The members of Green Helmet have made a start. But other organizations must lend their support or Green Helmet's efforts will be futile. In short, don't passively agree that the reading period is a good idea, actively seek to make it a reality.

Church Council Resolves For Viet Peace

GENEVA (AP)--The World Council of Churches on Wednesday threw its prestige and influence behind a negotiated solution in Viet Nam. As one step it urged a halt to U.S. bombings of North Viet Nam. A far-reaching solution by the council's policy making Central Committee called for peace negotiations that would include the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas as representative of parts of South Viet Nam.

It appealed to North Viet Nam to stop its infiltration of the south to facilitate peace.

HHH Sees Pakistan, India

NEW DELHI (UPI)--Touring Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey Wednesday got a close-up look at India, traded quips with a Peace Corps volunteer at a goat farm, visited a birth control center, and compared the Punjab with his native Midwest.

After arriving from Pakistan on his Asian mission for President Johnson, Humphrey also huddled with Indian officials on the Red Chinese menace to Viet Nam and India's northern frontier.

LBJ Says Cong Terror Could Spread

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)--President Johnson said Wednesday night the Viet Cong's strategy of terror "will spread elsewhere if it succeeds in South Viet Nam."

Johnson included his comments on Communist aggression in South Viet Nam in a speech prepared for the convention of the American Association of School Administrators, and devoted in most part to the subject of education at home and abroad.

Allied Holdings Expanded

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)--U.S. infantrymen cinched their grip Wednesday on a new base area northwest of Saigon, expanding allied holdings within jungle stamping grounds of the Viet Cong. It was their payoff after three weeks of harassment by snipers, mines and mortars.

The 2nd Brigade of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division finished clearing a field to simplify defense and put its camp near Cu Chi on war maps like the older bases north and northeast of Saigon-Bien Hoa, Gi An Phi Loi and Ben Cat.

MSU Group Attacks Senate Speaker Ban

MSU's Chapter of the Democratic Academic Resource Committee sent a letter Tuesday to the Democratic State Central Committee protesting the Senate resolution against Communist speakers on campus.

The letter was addressed to Sen. Raymond Dzendzel who introduced the resolution.

"We deplore Sen. Dzendzel's shocking failure to understand the constitutional principles on which this nation was founded. We are appalled by his tragic lack of faith in the American system and in its survival in the face of criticism from extremist minorities of the right and left."

"We urge the Democratic Party of Michigan to disavow Sen. Dzendzel's benighted and threatening behavior toward our colleges and universities. Only those Democrats, both in the Senate and on the governing boards of the universities, who have stood up to be counted for the true American principles of free speech deserve the support of the party," the letter said.

Okemos Man Dies Here

An Okemos businessman collapsed and died in Jenison Field House Tuesday night following participation in a physical fitness class.

He was Joseph Kalush, 55, of 4691 Ottawa Drive, Okemos, owner and operator of the Golden 8 Ball Billiard Parlors at 2019 E. Michigan Ave.

MSU police said Mr. Kalush had been playing volleyball for 10 minutes before telling an instructor he was going to the locker room. He became ill and was administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but it failed to revive him. He was pronounced dead by a MSU physician, Dr. Francis Horvath, at 8:58 p.m.

State Official Says MSU Being Paid

Michigan State University is receiving the $74,000 annual income from the 1862 Morrill Land-Grant Act which the University claims is due, State Budget Director Glenn Allen Jr., said Wednesday.

President John A. Hannah told the Faculty Convocation Monday night that the state Legislature had not yet restored the income from the University's land-grant endowment which "was suddenly taken away when the new State Constitution went into effect."

Under the land-grant act, states were given land which was to be sold, and the money placed in special accounts. The interest from the money was then to be used to support land-grant institutions.

The new constitution eliminated the primary school fund and for decades the state made the annual payment as a charge against that fund, Hannah said.

It's a bookkeeping procedure, Allen said. The annual appropriation to the University taken into account the money the school would receive if the principal, interest or primary school aid fund were still in existence.

Negroes Seek Free U.S.

The Negro's long commitment to American freedom entitles him to the rights he is now seeking, an associate Michigan Supreme Court Justice said Tuesday night.

Justice Otis Smith briefly outlined the Negro's role in American history before about 50 people in Anthony Hall. His talk was in connection with Negro History Week.

"From the earliest days the Negro's commitment has been to freedom and to America. Over 5,000 free Negroes were with Washington. They also fought with Jackson and for the Union in the Civil War. Gen. Stanton said the war would have gone against the Union had it not been for 200,000 Negroes. Negroes were at San Juan Hill and they were in Korea."

Smith said Negroes are continuing to meet their commitments today.

"Even today in Viet Nam Negroes stand ready to make the supreme sacrifice."

He said that the past and present commitments have earned for the Negro the rights he is claiming, and they must not be looked at as gifts.

"To those who would think of my rights as a generous concession," Smith said, "I want to make it clear that my rights have been purchased with blood. Every delay compounds the problem. A man who is degraded bears deep scars which are deepened not from decade to decade, but from generation to generation."

He viewed one of the main problems confronting the Negro as a cultural lag imposed by society.

Romney Asks Reforms

LANSING (UPI)--In a special message to the Legislature Gov. George Romney today urged special action to fortify both the courts and police for an all-out battle on crime.

Citing an overall 10 per cent increase in crime in Michigan during 1965, Romney said "The increase and prevalence of law-breaking among young people is the most serious part of the total problem confronting us."

"Statistics indicate that more than three-quarters of police apprehensions for major crimes involved young people 21 years of age or under, and 56 per cent involved teenagers 16 years of age or less."

Romney recommended a new

"alternative sentencing of minors" law which would give circuit judges the option of handling 17 to 21 year olds in civil "youthful offender" proceedings. Present law requires this age group to be handled in criminal proceedings only.

He also said an operating policy of the Department of Social Services was required that will accept jurisdiction upon commitment of juveniles under the age of 17.

Simplification and revision of the foster care formula, Romney said, including elimination of the so-called "basic amount" provision was needed. This would cost the state an extra $1.7 million, he said.

He urged construction of three regional detention diagnostic centers for children under the jurisdiction of the courts. The money for construction was set aside in the Romney budget.

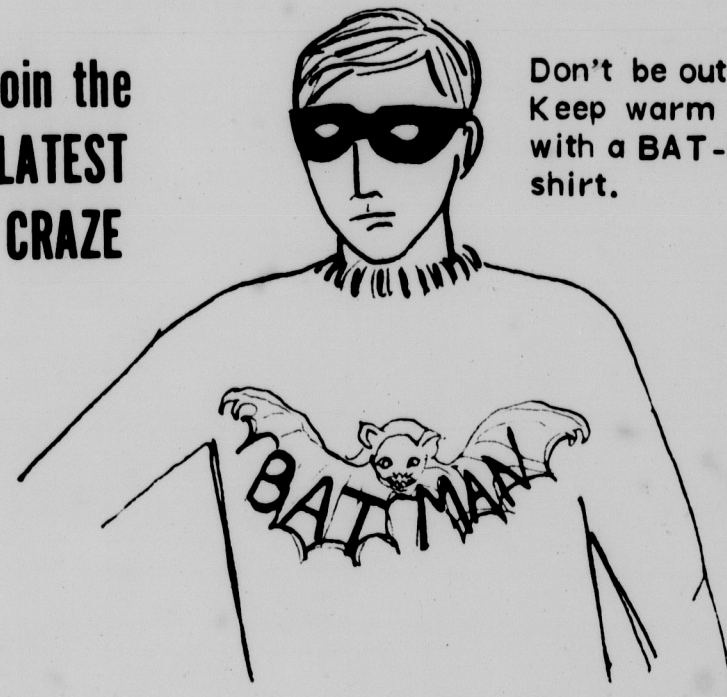

Romney asked for a statewide computer system for police information purposes, appropriation of $250,000 from court fine revenues to finance a special law enforcement officers training school network and study on the possible development of a center for law enforcement research.

He also said an attack on organized crime through legislation making the crime of conspiracy a statutory offense with stiff penalties was needed.

Engineering, Business and Social Science Majors:

MARITIME ADMINISTRATION CAREERS

Advance Swiftly at MARAD... Participate in the Nation's Most Exciting Career Development Program:

You can embark on one of the most challenging and satisfying careers ever offered to a college graduate, a career with the Maritime Administration of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The Maritime Administration--we call it "MARAD"--aids development of the American merchant marine to carry the nation's waterborne commerce during peacetime and serve as a naval and military auxiliary in time of war or national emergency.

MARAD Engineering Opportunities

Engineers of the Maritime Administration participate in design and construction of new ships, improvement of existing ships, and maritime research (basic and applied) and development.

Among the better-known recent products of these activities are the Nuclear Ship Savannah and the advanced Hydrofoil Ship Denison. Soon to come (perhaps with your help): new concepts in port operations, shipbuilding, ship operations, and advanced operations, such as "surface effect" ships.

Engineering Work-Study Scholarships

To meet current and future engineering needs, MARAD has developed a specialized program for individuals who have earned their BS degrees in Naval Architecture, Marine, Electrical, or Mechanical Engineering, or a closely-related field.

Our work-study program combines classroom and on-the-job training. It is designed so that you may earn a master's degree in your field, plus the diversified experience and proficiency that will lead to positions of maximum responsibility in minimum time. Requiring 30 to 36 months to complete, the work-study program is in four phases:

- (1) a six-months sea assignment.
- (2) a six-months tour of duty and study at a shipyard.
- (3) assignment to the Washington Office of Ship Construction or Research and Development for on-the-job training in Naval Architecture, Marine or Electrical Engineering.
- (4) nine to 12 months advanced study in one of these or related disciplines at a university acceptable to MARAD--study which normally completes the requirements for a master's degree.

You may earn promotions twice during the work-study program, from GS-7 to GS-9 after a year's service, then to GS-11 upon award of a master's degree or its equivalent. And throughout the program, in addition to full salary and Federal Civil Service career benefits, you will be reimbursed 100% for all educational, transportation and associated expenses.

Starting salaries for Engineers in each grade: GS-7, $7,304; GS-9, $7,987; GS-11, $9,267. Subsequent promotions are earned in keeping with the employee's demonstrated fitness to take greater responsibilities.

Management Trainee Program

Business and social science graduates are urged to investigate MARAD's Management Trainee Program. Participants undertake 12 months of concentrated training in one of these major program areas: Budget and Management, Comptroller, Contract and Procurement, Government Aid, Personnel Management, Program Planning, Public Information, Ship Operations, and Maritime Promotion.

Trainees work on actual projects under guidance and supervision of qualified management personnel, attending staff conferences and meetings to learn about management considerations governing the day-to-day operation of the Maritime Administration. Beginning as GS-7 or GS-9 (depending on educational level and experience), the Trainee is promoted to GS-9 or GS-11 and assigned to a regular position at successful conclusion of the program.

Starting salaries for Management Trainees in each grade: GS-7, $6,269; GS-9, $7,479; GS-11, $8,961. Subsequent promotions are earned in keeping with the employee's demonstrated fitness to take greater responsibilities.

Dancing Fireworks

By BOB ZESCHIN
State News Reviewer

Whirling and leaping into East Lansing within six days of each other, the Hungarian National Ballet and the Rumanian Folk Ballet both filled the University Auditorium with foot-stamping rhythms, exciting folk dances and several thundering ovations.

It was unfortunate but unavoidable that the two troupes were scheduled so close to each other, because the two performances then must be looked on as one, with the differences and similarities discussed.

For effective staging and showmanship, the Hungarian ensemble should be praised. Its presentation was more well-balanced than the Rumanians', with the dance, vocal and orchestral numbers being staged better and with more attractive sets and costumes.

The Hungarian dancers were also notable for their warmth and enthusiasm which reached across the footlights for one of the best displays of audience contact this year.

Both troupes brought their own orchestras, but only the Hungarians brought their own chorus. Extremely well-trained and with a wealth of Slavic low voices, they made fine accompaniment for the dancers.

But for sheer power and precision in dancing, the Rumanian Folk Ballet was unequalled. Their athletic movements were awesome as well as entertaining.

Another nod to the Rumanians must go for their solos on the authentic folk instruments. While the other troupe relied mostly on violins, the Rumanians had such exotic instruments as the pan pipes, cymbalom (a stringed xylophone), taragot (a primitive clarinet) and the 10-stringed guitar.

The Hungarians were outstanding for the fine staging and the enthusiasm of the dancers while the Rumanians excelled in choreographic fireworks and the use of various types of music. Both provided highly enjoyable evenings.

Rumanian Troupe Has Unique Authenticity

In the last 10 years, folk dance groups from almost every Iron Curtain country have invaded the U.S. There have been Russia's Moiseyev, the Mazowsze company from Poland, the Bulgarian Koutev, and, last week, the Hungarian National Ballet.

What makes the Rumanian Folk Ballet different?

"One of the things that distinguishes the Rumanian Ballet is the large variety of dances that they perform," said Ion Eftimie, a Rumanian embassy official traveling with the troupe. "These dances come from the various regions of Rumania, each of which has its own folklore and traditions."

Gheorghe Popescu-Judet, ballet master and principal choreographer, estimates that there are over 15,000 variations of folk dances in Rumania, and the company has adopted a scientific approach to the study and preservation of the dances.

"We send experts into all the provinces with tape recorders and movie cameras. We make notations of the footwork. We even have painters who take down all the details of the costumes."

Another source of information is the Rumanian Folklore Institute in Bucharest, whose archives hold over 60,000 recordings, 20,000 manuscripts, 600 dances and 23,000 songs.

With such rich resources, it is no wonder that the folk dances of Rumania are so authentically reconstructed in every detail. Yet, even after all the research is done, Popescu-Judet said, it still takes a month of general rehearsals and two weeks of dress rehearsals before a dance is ready for performance.

Fine Art Festival Begins At Akers

Folk groups and blues singers will be on hand for the Folk Concert at 8 tonight in 137 Akers.

The concert marks the beginning of the 2nd Annual Fine Arts Festival at Akers Hall and will be presented again at 2 Saturday in 137 Akers.

James Thurber's "The Male Animal" will be given Friday and Saturday nights at 8 in 139 Akers.

The play is directed by Barbara Wetman, Grand Rapids senior, and assisted by Val Letow, Okemos freshman.

An art show will open at 8 Friday in 141 Akers and continue until 11:30. It may be visited 11:30-1 Saturday and 1-4 Sunday.

Admission to all events is free and the entire campus is invited, Jan Budicin, graduate assistant, said.

The cultural committees of East and West Akers sponsored contests in writing, art and photography.

Committee chairmen are Winnie Wong, Detroit freshman, and David Blombach, Ft. Wayne, Ind., sophomore. Contest chairman is Irene Arzen, Deer Park, N.Y., freshman.

The writing contest includes poetry, essays and short stories. Art entries include drawings, paintings, crafts, collage and sculptures.

Judges for the writing contest are: Clinton S. Burhans, assistant professor of English; John A. Yuck, professor of English; and Herman Struck, associate professor of English.

Judging the art and photography contest are: Howard C. Church, professor of art; Margaret A. Yuill, associate professor of art; and James H. McConnell, professor of art.

All winning entries will be published in a booklet which will be distributed among hall residents, Miss Budicin said.

Cash prizes of $5, $3 and $2 will be awarded to the three winners in each category.

A set of bookends, grand prize in each category, will be awarded by Harry H. Kimber, director of residence instruction, Miss Budicin said.

Each of the winners, as well as those receiving honorable mention, will be presented with certificates of achievement and placement ribbons, she said. The awards will be presented during intermission at the Folk Concert Saturday, she added.

Cage Attendance Up 40% Over '65

By BOB HORNING
State News Sports Writer

The Spartan cagers' unexpected rise this season has increased home attendance by 40 per cent over last year.

The number watching State play this year has averaged about 7,500, ticket manager Bill Beardsley said, compared to about 5,500 last season.

Beardsley attributes part of this increase to the school spirit carried over from the football season, but credits most of it to the spirit and hustle of the basketball team.

While State's won-lost record naturally has affected the rise in attendance, Beardsley said the attendance would be just as high, even if the record wasn't. It's the way the players infect the crowd with their determination, Beardsley explained.

The only real disappointment this year was the small crowd at the Purdue game, Beardsley said, "This was probably due to State having lost its first conference game, the preceding Saturday, to Iowa, and because it was a Monday game."

Monday night games have been the least attended this year.

Saturday night games have drawn the largest crowds, with Saturday afternoon games running second. Other Big 10 teams have experimented with Saturday afternoon games, during the past few years, and have gained a slight increase in attendance.

Last year, State tried it. It didn't seem to appeal to MSU students, but part of the failure was likely due to the team's 1-13 Big 10 record.

While attendance is up from last year, it still isn't what would be expected of a team fighting for the championship. There are several reasons for this.

Twice games here have been the "TV game of the Week." Spartan games have also been televised locally and in surrounding areas, keeping some fans away.

The lack of outstanding teams and individuals on the schedule, so far this year, is another reason for lack of sellout crowds.

A seven-year drought in Spartan success probably has made disbelievers of many, and it may take a championship team to begin filling Jenison again.

Though attendance is already up from last year, Beardsley said he expects it to increase even more in State's final three home games, if the Spartans continue playing as they have been.

However, the Michigan game, March 7, was sold out in December.

SIX TEAMS ADDED

Skaters' Boon: NHL Growth

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

The latest move by the National Hockey League, to expand coast-to-coast, was welcome news to Spartan hockey Coach Arno Bessone and several members of the team.

"It's about time they got away from just six teams," Bessone said Wednesday before his team departed for a weekend series with Michigan Tech. "Hockey is the fastest growing sport in the country and there was a need for expansion."

The decision by the NHL Board of Governors to expand came last week, and franchises were awarded to six major cities: Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in the east, Minneapolis-St. Paul in the midwest and Los Angeles and San Francisco in the west.

The new teams are set to begin playing in the 1967-68 season. They will be put in a division of their own, playing 10 intra-division and four with the six senior clubs. The expansion means the creation of a 74-game schedule, four more than the present 70 games.

"It's real good that they did it," said junior Mike Jacobson, one of the Spartans' top scorers. "It will give more American players a chance to play professional and semi-pro."

Though the expansion was created to gain nation-wide recognition for hockey and, possibly, lead to coast-to-coast television programming, Bessone sees a whole new breakthrough for college players rising to the professional levels.

"The stranglehold Canada has had is beginning to loosen up," he said. "I think soon the pros will look to the American colleges for players."

Since it was organized in 1917, the NHL has looked mainly to the Canadian ranks for its personnel.

Today, there is only one American playing in the NHL—Tom Williams of the Boston Bruins, who is from Minnesota-Duluth.

Although most of the Spartan skaters have ideas of going into the professional ranks, only a few have real hopes of making it. High-scoring Doug Volmar, who leads the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. in total points with 32, is now on the negotiation list of the Detroit Red Wings and is rated a good choice to turn up.

Volmar is one case that exemplifies the growing monopoly the NHL has over promising players. Because the Red Wings grabbed him first, he must play only where they tell him.

"I'd prefer playing in Cleveland if I was to go to a farm club," said Volmar, who lives in Cleveland-Heights. "But Cleveland has a working agreement with Montreal and Detroit wouldn't release me."

There is an unwritten agreement in the NHL which allows a club to place any potential hockey player on its negotiation list without the consent of the player or another club. Once he is on the list, he cannot be switched to another team's list even if he wants to.

Girls' Fencing

The Women's IM Fencing Tournament, originally scheduled for tonight, has been rescheduled for 6:30 Tuesday, March 1.

Other Women's IM action includes the Women's All-University Swim Meet. The finals are set for 7 p.m. Feb. 24 in the Women's IM, North Case, West Yakeley Halls and Kappa Kappa Gamma and Delta Zeta sororities will compete.

The NEWS in

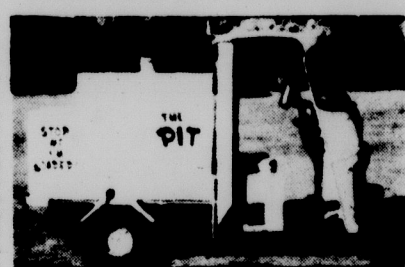

SPORTS

"It used to be that anyone who had a Canadian accent would automatically be part of the Montreal Canadian system," said Bessone. "That's not true today, however."

Still, even with the expansion Bessone thinks the monopoly on young players will continue.

"It's to their advantage," he said referring to the NHL owners. "This way they don't have to give out big bonuses like in football and baseball."

"It's unfair," he continued. "They don't give a player a chance to dicker with another club. Someday though, someone will break this policy."

Behm Wants To Wrestle, But Opponents 'Chicken'

By ED BRILL
State News Sports Writer

"What ever happened to Don Behm?"

"If Behm is so good," they ask, "why can't he pin his opponents this year?"

Michigan State's 130-pound junior, third in the 1965 NCAA Tournament, has won 15 straight matches this year. But while he wins consistently by scores of 13-3 and 10-2, the pins have been few.

In fact, Behm has won by fall in only one dual meet, his first of the year against Air Force. In the Indiana meet, Dec. 11, the score was a farce, 20-7, in Behm's favor.

The object of wrestling is to pin your opponent and it seems natural to the fans that someone of Behm's caliber should be scoring more pins.

The simple fact is that Behm's success in 1965 has prevented him from operating freely in 1966. He is a "name" and, as such, is the target of every team State faces.

"Go out and do your best," the opposing coach will tell his 130-pound wrestler, "but don't get pinned." What this leads to is a type of wrestling boring to both the wrestlers and the fans.

It is defensive, stalling and un-aggressive wrestling. It is not natural wrestling. Furthermore, you cannot be defensive in wrestling, and hope to score very many points.

"Last year I had fun wrestling," said Behm recently. "Wrestling opponents who won't do anything takes all the enjoyment out of wrestling."

Earlier this season, Behm defeated Dave Clery of Oklahoma, 7-6, for the Spartans' only win against the Sooners. "I had a great time during that match," recalled Behm.

"Clery moved around and wrestled with me. I wasn't worried at all, I just had a lot of fun wrestling."

Behm is a wrestler who just never stops attacking. He is a living example of "wrestling-a-go-go," and when he meets an opponent who will wrestle with him, it is a joy for the fans as well as for Behm.

Some wrestlers are known to favor certain moves or strategies. The Spartans' 157-pounder, Dick Cook, probably uses leg moves more than anything else. Dale Carr, 147-pound sophomore, likes to use the Granby roll to set up opponents for the pin.

Behm is not, however, a stereotyped wrestler. "I do whatever I think will work easiest on the guy," he said. While he is well known for such moves as the "Fireman's Carry," Behm literally, "does 'em all."

Conditioning has been perhaps the most important factor in Behm's great success. The only match he has lost in two years was to the Olympic champion Yojiro Yetake, by a 5-3 score in the NCAA semifinals.

Moves are by now second nature to Behm. They are not natural, though, in the sense of being inborn.

"Every day we go over and over all of the basic moves in wrestling," said Behm. "The thing that makes natural wrestlers 'natural' is balance."

Behm has never been on his back in two years of collegiate wrestling. "You know the sun will come up tomorrow and you know Behm will not be on his back," Coach Grady Peninger says.

When Behm steps out on the mat, he is not concerned with who his opponent is, or what he is going to do. "I think about them," says Behm, "but I don't worry." Lately, he hasn't even had to think about them. "Whatever happened to Don Behm?" Fans must just wait a while and see.

ASMSU Backs Free Speech

ASMSU Student Board expressed its disdain for the state senate resolution opposing Communist speakers on campus by a 9-2 vote at its meeting Tuesday night.

The resolution stated, "ASMSU believes that a basic premise of any democratic society is the right of free speech. . . We look with disdain upon the futile efforts of the Senate of the State of Michigan to abridge this freedom. We affirm the proposition that democracy thrives in dissent and is stagnated by forced unanimity."

Dissenting votes came from Board members Charles C. Stoddard, East Lansing junior, and Gary C. Stienhardt, Dewitt junior. Stoddard and Stienhardt said the Michigan Senate was justified in passing the resolution.

Steinhardt argued speakers advocating the overthrow of the United States and the state of Michigan should not be brought to the campus to speak. He said the United States is at war in Viet Nam and Communist speakers should be forbidden in the interest of that struggle.

The resolution states in this regard, "Indeed, this nation is engaged in struggle against Communism, and it is a struggle for the preservation of those liberties which we hold to be American. If, within the course of this conflict, we sacrifice these basic liberties, then any victory must be hollow."

James R. Tanck, ASMSU cabinet head, and Waterford, Wis., junior, and Louis Hekhuis, faculty adviser to the board suggested the wording of the resolution was too strong and should be toned down.

Batclub Spreads To 'S'

The latest camp craze may not be watching Batman, after all. The real camp thing to do might be to own a membership card for Batman Clubs, Inc.

Batman Clubs started at Wayne State University, and now the organization has spread to MSU. A $1 membership gets you:

1. A genuine Batman membership card;
2. An autographed photo of Batman and Robin;
3. A Batman pin;
4. Other stuff at reduced rates like pins, pens, decals, masks, sweatshirts, and T-shirts.

To join, students may write Batman, Inc., 18485 Pennington, Detroit, Mich., 48221.

"We feel that Batman is a good wholesome image for students to identify with," said Edwin Victor, co-president of Batman, Inc., and WSU sophomore.
