RULES REPORT SLATED FOR JUNE

Voting Districts Not To Change Until After 1970

By deadlocking on the constitutionality of the "one-man, one-vote" plan, the Michigan Supreme Court Tuesday allowed current legislative districts to stand through 1970.

With a 4-3-1 vote, the eight justices failed to reach agreement on revising the plan drawn by Democratic apportionment commissioners in 1964 that resulted in a Democrat-controlled legislature for the first time in 30 years.

Justice Eugene Black, who predicted yesterday's outcome on the tangled apportionment question, dissented from both sides, but admitted the court's action amounted "at least to a 'decision' by impasse."

Voting to uphold the 110 House and 38 Senate districts were

Chief Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh, plus Justices Theodore Souris, Otis M. Smith and Paul L. Adams. All are Democrats.

Republican Justices Harry F. Kelly, John R. Dethmers and Michael D. O'Hara all voted to declare the current plan unconstitutional and expressed preference for a Republican plan drawn by the GOP members of the State Apportionment Commission.

That plan would have created districts with as much as a 5 per cent disparity in population. In all, there were seven opinions, spread among 75 legal-sized pages.

The court's action was regarded as a victory for Democrats, who have pressed for continuation of the present districting arrangement. Republicans, on the other hand, have charged the plan—drawn by Democrats A. Robert Kleiner of Grand Rapids and Richard Austin of Detroit—was a deliberate Democratic gerrymander and asked that it be thrown out.

The court, faced with a Republican-brought case to invalidate the Austin-Kleiner plan, last Nov. 2 ordered the apportionment commission back to work to try to come up with new districts. But the bipartisan commission failed to do the job by midnight New Year's Eve and so the whole case landed back in the lap of the court.

Smith, in his opinion, revealed that at a special conference of the justices Jan. 12, a vote was taken on the constitutionality of the Austin-Kleiner plan.

Quoting from the minutes of the meeting, he said the three Republican justices all voted in favor of a motion to declare the plan "unconstitutional and offensive to the 1963 State Constitution." But the five Democratic justices voted against it.

"When this court says that a matter is not unconstitutional, this necessarily means that it is constitutional," Smith said. "There is no middle ground."

Faculty To Make Recommendations

Committee Schedules Closed Hearing Friday

By ANDREW MOLLISON
State News Staff Writer

The Academic Council should receive a final report on the rules and structures of the University affecting the academic freedom of students within three months.

"At this time all systems are 'go,' and there is every reason to believe that our report will be ready by early June,"

Frederick Williams, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, said at the Academic Council meeting Tuesday.

The committee will not actually revise the rules, Williams emphasized, but its "final report will contain recommendations relative to all aspects of the University's rules and structures."

See full text of the committee's statement on page 9.

Williams told the administration and faculty representatives that his committee is now prepared to hold open and closed hearings.

"The time and place of every open hearing—whether conducted by the full committee or one of the subcommittees—will be announced in advance," Williams said, "as will the procedure to be followed by persons wishing to testify."

The committee of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) which is also studying the situation has already held several hearings, Williams said. The ASMSU five-man committee also plans to hold open hearings early in the spring quarter.

The faculty committee's first closed hearing will be conducted Friday. Richard Bennett, director of the Department of Public Safety, and the faculty advisory committee to that department, will appear before the full committee.

The faculty committee has also drawn up a tentative statement on student rights and duties at MSU, and a list of standards or guidelines to which the University's rules and structures should adhere.

"The statement is intended only as a basis for discussing the issues," Williams stated. "It has been revised several times during the past two weeks, and it is subject to further revision."

"The committee invites you and all interested persons to study this document and to inform the committee as to your views," Williams said. The statement released by the committee contains a preamble and 11 guidelines.

The preamble treats the University both as a corporate entity and as a community of scholars. The University's basic purpose is seen as "the enlargement, dissemination and application of knowledge."

The students' "right to learn" has priority at a university, the preamble states, and it is the duty of others to permit the exercise of that right.

The preamble emphasizes the necessity for justifying each rule's existence, pointing out that "... many values and modes of thought and behavior... are better taught by example, persuasion, social pressure and rewards than by the threat of penalties."

The University cannot deny a student his rights as a citizen, the preamble states. Nor does it have the responsibility for forcing him to accept his duties to the larger society. "(This) is the responsibility of the authorities duly established for that purpose and not that of the academic community or the University," according to the preamble.

The 11 specific guidelines will be used by the committee and its four subcommittees in investigating individual rules. The complete guidelines, together with the preamble, are on page 9 of today's State News.

Civil Rights Leader Due Today

Martin Luther King will be on campus today to kick off the Student Education Program (STEP) fund raising drive for the second year in a row.

King will speak at 4 p.m. in the Auditorium on his "Chicago Plan" for fighting northern city slum conditions. Tickets are still available for $1 and can be obtained at the Union desk, the International Center, Student Book Store and Paramount News.

STEP will get most of the money from King's talk. It will be used for a summer educational program for Negro high school graduates in Mississippi. STEP, which is recognized by ASMSU, has already been promised $2,800 by that organization. This year's goal is $10,400.

Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education on leave from Michigan State, will accompany King. Green is now director of the citizenship education program of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

King, who was the winner of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize, will remain on campus after his speech to have dinner with last year's STEP volunteers. He will then return to Chicago where he will continue to seek a solution to that city's problems in its black ghettos.

Jobless Rate Lowest Since Korean War

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Lyndon B. Johnson reported the lowest unemployment rates since the Korean War Tuesday as the Labor Department announced a jobless drop of 100,000 in February to 3.15 million—or 3.7 per cent of the 74.7 million civilian labor force.

At the same time, he ordered a close watch for labor shortages which could force up wages and prices and crimp the nation's booming economy.

The size of the drop in the unemployment rate from 4 per cent in January surprised even the statistical experts of the Bureau of Labor Statistics who compute the figures. It was the first time in thirteen years that the rate has been below 4 per cent.

MSU Trio To Open Viet Mart

Three representatives of the MSU People to People Assn. will leave for Viet Nam tonight for the opening of a market place in Long Yen.

The association (MSUPPA) adopted the South Viet Nam village of Long Yen several months ago to help improve its economy. One of its first projects was the market place, which will be formally opened Friday.

Going to Viet Nam will be Karen Radom, Birmingham senior, and Judith Rice, Greenville senior, co-chairmen of MSUPPA, and Wesley Fishel, professor of political science.

The group, expecting the trip to be indefinitely delayed, found out Tuesday that they would be leaving tonight. Chitra Smith, instructor in social science who had planned to accompany them, will be unable to go.

They will leave tonight for the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, Ohio, where they will board a military transport plane for the 36-hour flight to Saigon.

2-S Exams May 14, 21

Selective Service tests to be used by local draft boards in evaluating requests for 2-S (student) deferments will be administered by the Counseling Center May 14 and May 21.

"All we know so far is that the tests will be three hours long, and that we will be using at least 12 campus locations for testing," Gwendolyn Norrell, assistant director of the Counseling Center, said Tuesday.

Details on who will take the test and how to sign up for it will be released through the State News as soon as they are available.

'M' Profs Against Draft By Testing

ANN ARBOR (UPI)—A University of Michigan faculty group today denounced the new program of basing student draft deferments on tests and called for random drafting of college students.

The faculty of the university's literary college urged the university administration to "take a position favoring the national policy of random draft selection within the group of all college students" and to take "vigorous steps to align other universities' support of this policy."

CHAIRMAN--Larry Baril, East Lansing grad student, addresses Monday evening's meeting of graduate students considering ratification of the grad council constitution. Baril is chairman of the drafting committee. Related story on page 3.

Cash 'With Strings' For U?

By BETTY LITTLE
State News Staff Writer

A bill which would require state colleges and universities to sacrifice their decision-making in building projects was introduced in the senate Monday.

Sen. Garland Lane, (D-Flint), introduced the bill which would create a higher education building council to coordinate planning of all facilities, including dormitories and classrooms, on university campuses.

The proposed council would oversee a $500 million bonding program to finance new facilities. University facilities are now either paid for on a cash basis by the state or are built by the institutions from donated money, federal funds or earnings from the facility itself.

Universities and colleges would not receive any of the bond money unless their governing boards pledge they will not engage in self-liquidating operations for housing and educational facilities, according to the bill.

The Legislature does not have any control over self-liquidating buildings now. These are paid for by bonds issued by the schools on the guarantee of student fees.

Student Services, the Student Union, the proposed student complex and all of the dormitories at MSU fall under the self-liquidating category. Student room and board fees enable the buildings to pay for themselves.

Lane, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, has complained in the past that the Legislature didn't even know some buildings were being erected at colleges and universities.

Lane said that the plan was carefully studied to make sure that it was constitutional. The attorney general ruled more than a year ago that the Legislature could attach conditions to its appropriations.

He estimated $65 million could be eliminated from this year's general fund budget if bonding rather than cash paid for the buildings. Lane estimated $240 million could be saved from the general fund over a three year period.

The proposed council would consist of five members each from the senate and the house of representatives. There would be at least three members on the council from each house's appropriation committee.

Planning and construction would require the approval of the State Board of Education and the Legislature.

Expert Urges UN Role For Peking

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A major Senate hearing on Communist China opened Tuesday with a Far East expert urging the United States to revise its policy and "take the initiative" in bringing Peking into the United Nations.

Prof. A. Doak Barnett of Columbia University argued that the U.S. policy of containing and isolating Peking since the Communist takeover of China 17 years ago has been unwise and basically unsuccessful.

The United States should still try to contain China's power and ambitions, Barnett said. But it should be "containment without isolation"—aiming at increasing contacts between the two nations, and involving Peking more in the international community.

The idea should be to avoid war, minimize conflict, and reduce tension, he said.

An overflow showed up in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's hearing room to watch the opening session of what Chairman J. William Fulbright hopes will be the most exhaustive inquiry into China's history, power and policies in years.

Fulbright's stated aim was educational—to put Communist China in the spotlight so that Congress and the American people can have a better understanding of the Asian giant. But he also hoped that the hearings would prompt a re-examination of U.S. policy toward China, which basically has not changed since the Truman administration.

Barnett is a recognized expert on China. He was born in Shanghai and lived in China until 1936 and formerly was with the State Department. He was a newspaperman in China and Southeast Asia in the late 1940's, when Mao Tse-tung was on the move, and now is professor of government and acting director of Columbia's East Asian Institute.

His basic argument before the committee was that the Red Chinese should be made more of a part of the international community—including United Nations membership and engaging in the trade of non-strategic items with the United States.

Barnett said he did not believe the Chinese wanted to get into the United Nations now because they were getting such excellent propaganda from the fact that they are excluded.

But the professor said he believed there were "significant

DuBois Investigation 'Attack On Freedom'

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer

A well-known activist here has criticized the Justice Department's investigation of the W.E.B. DuBois Clubs, calling the action "an attack upon the peace movements in the U.S."

The Justice Department petitioned the Subversive Activities Control Board Friday to order the campus-oriented clubs to register as Communist-front organizations.

Brian Keleher, a member of the Young Socialist Club, said yesterday he felt the probe was aimed at the DuBois Club because it has been particularly active on the West Coast in civil rights and peace movements. The club's headquarters are located in San Francisco.

The Young Socialist Club here is an associate member of the National W.E.B. DuBois Clubs, its chairman, Douglas Lackey said Tuesday.

Lackey said the group receives some materials from the national headquarters and has indicated sympathy for a few positions the DuBois Club has taken, but emphasized the organization here is not a member of the DuBois Club proper.

According to Lackey, the local club had considered affiliating with the DuBois in the fall of 1964. However, a split vote among members prohibited the move. The members instead voted to become associate members of the national organization.

Lackey explained that the club here is not political like the DuBois, but rather is organized as a forum for ideas and for discussion of socialist programs.

Also, at the University of Michigan, two Vietnams said they would form a DuBois Club chapter on campus to protest Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach's "smear and red-baiting tactics."

Eric Chester of Royal Oak and Gary Rothberger of Detroit said they would start the new chapter to "insure the right of a group that has been declared subversive and an agent of a foreign power to be recognized on campus."

Keleher stated that if the SACB does require the clubs to register they would probably avoid it as other groups have in the past.

This action was the 23rd time the government has cited a group under the law. The previous 22 attempts failed to produce a registration, as the organization either dissolved or bogged down in the proceedings of the court.

The board will now hold hear-

New Rules Necessary For Student Publications

IN RECENT WEEKS, it has become increasingly apparent that University rules on publications and distribution need up-dating and modification. The problems encountered by maverick student publications The Paper and Zeitgeist have made the situation anything but clear.

The whole problem stems from a regulation handed down by the board of trustees which bans all publications from being sold or distributed on campus, in an attempt to protect students and the campus from being besieged by insurance handouts, selling devices, etc.

The board then established the board of student publications to make exceptions by authorizing certain publications, such as the State News. But the rule was instituted when MSU was still a relatively small college.

Today the campus has doubled in size, as has the student population. Students desire to express their social and political views in form of publications, but under existing rules have only a limited means to do so.

THE ONLY WAY for an unauthorized publication to sell on campus would be to have Jack Breslin, secretary of the Board of Trustees, waive the existing regulations, a power he has not exercised.

But the situation isn't this simple. First, the Student Board, in attempting to help The Paper out of its publication problems early in the term, gave it a charter as a student organization and then gave it permission to hold "fund-raising events." These "fund-raising events" were nothing more than a subterfuge or a gimmick to allow The Paper to sell on campus.

The editors of The Paper admit this, as do members of the Student Board. The fact is that the Student Board had no authority to allow or disallow any publication to sell or distribute on campus. It acted in direct violation of the distribution regulation established by the Board of Trustees. To further the error, the faculty committee on student affairs tentatively affirmed this activity by ASMSU.

THEN TO COMPLICATE the situation, the Student Board indicted The Paper for violating university policy for having advertising and for soliciting funds (selling The Paper) without approval of the board to hold a "fund-raising event." All University Student Judiciary (AUSJ) then confirmed the charges but prescribed no punitive measures.

The fairest, most progressive solution to this confusing dilemma would be to allow any bona fide MSU student publication to sell and distribute on campus, regardless of whether it contained advertising or not, if it conformed to other distribution rules, such as not selling in classroom buildings.

BY WAIVING THE REQUIREMENT that a student publication be authorized by the Board of Student Publications, the University would also waive any responsibility, both legal and financial, for the well-being of the publication. This would remove the barrier faced by new student publications desiring to sell and distribute on campus and also absolve the University from any responsibility.

Future problems like the ones encountered this past term with unauthorized student publications can be avoided and the present problems can be resolved by allowing student publications, whether authorized or not, to function on campus.

Apathy Endangers Rights

AN EARMARK OF a totalitarian regime is that the people are not allowed to air their views freely. Anyone criticizing the official government line runs the risk of meeting the regime's hatchet man.

The Russians have advertised that the Soviet Union is becoming more civilized and that the people have more freedom. Regardless of their claims, the Communist party is still extremely sensitive to criticism.

RECENTLY TWO RUSSIAN authors who have criticized life in Russia received one-way railroad tickets to Siberia. Andrei D. Sinavsky and Yuli M. Daniel are the two writers who have received stiff sentences.

As is often said, we take our right of free speech for granted. If an American sharply criticizes American life, he need not fear that he will be run out of town on a rail. But this very security often breeds apathy.

AN AMERICAN WHO does not express his "beef" publicly probably is silent because he is just too lazy to make his attitude public. Though he may receive some adverse social reactions for his views, he certainly need not fear being sent to a Siberia.

Civilizations that are now dead have served as proof that when a people become apathetic of their rights, or even more--their duties--as citizens, it isn't long before they lose these rights to a dictator.

THE APATHETIC "CITIZENS" who are just too lazy to express their "beef" publicly should take note of the Russians who are working in Siberia as a result of expressing their views. They should also take note of the countless thousands who have been put to death by totalitarian regimes for publicly expressing a controversial opinion.

It seems truly ironic that Russians risk dangerous reprisals to strive for free expression while in the U.S. people risk losing their rights by either ignoring or not taking full advantage of the right of free expression.

Losses Up, Chips Down

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The latest United States casualty figures should remove any lingering doubts that the chips are down in Viet Nam.

As of the last full week of February, American dead in the Vietnamese war came to 2,200.

At the end of the third week in November, 1965, the figure stood at 1,335. And if further comparisons will help, the 240 Americans killed in that week topped the weekly average for the war in Korea.

It was with full knowledge of these tragic figures that President Johnson has had to make his lonely decisions as they concern U.S. vital interests in Southeast Asia.

They become the more meaningful when one studies the dispatches from Saigon saying that top U.S. and Vietnamese officials there now estimate the war at anywhere from another three to seven years.

And taken together, it becomes especially important that, even though belatedly, the American people realize the extent of their commitment and the nature of this war which extends far beyond Viet Nam.

From Vientiane, administrative capital of neighboring Laos, comes a dispatch that government forces have fallen back to defensive positions near Attapeu under combined assault by the pro-Communist forces of the Laotian Pathet Lao and fresh battalions of North Vietnamese.

It is only a few paragraphs long. But in it is the last of the hopes held by Laotian neutralist leaders in 1962 that by compromise they could ensure their tiny country's integrity.

And what American ever heard of Attapeu?

Well, it's a provincial capital in southern Laos close to the border with Cambodia.

It's important to the Communists because it neighbors on the Ho Chi Minh Trail which is the Communist supply line for manpower trickling down from North Viet Nam through the Mu Gia Pass along the mountainous spine of Laos into South Viet Nam.

From Bangkok, Thailand, comes another short dispatch. It quotes Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman that Communist infiltrators already have gained footholds which threaten Thailand.

Khoman says that Thais already have arrested many Chinese - trained spies infiltrating Thailand's underdeveloped northeast. Thailand, bordering both Communist China and Laos, is a natural target for an extension of the war.

The Laos have had more experience with Communist aggression than the Thais and through the failure of the Geneva agreement re-establishing Laotian neutrality in 1962 they are beginning to understand better the nature of the Red Chinese concept of a "people war."

For one thing it has meant conscript labor as coolies on the Ho Chi Minh Trail -- just as in South Viet Nam it has meant conscription into the Viet Cong army.

For the Red Chinese this so far has been a cheap war, but it will not be a cheap war if they lose.

For they will have lost their ambition to control the destinies of 200 million Southeast Asians.

Of Curled Fancies & Low-Born Things

With the final winter battle of the books approaching, there is a sudden rush of weariness, a temptation to take a week off from life and things that only a few days ago seemed pressing.

The hint of guilt that comes with such a temporary withdrawal is somehow pushed aside and, for a while at least, there are no flags to wave, no causes to champion, no humor left, no column to write.

There's the thought to relinquish these inches of newsprint to others who've had something to say and have said it well.

That grand and ageless gal, Marlene Dietrich, once said of quotations: "I love them, because it is a joy to find thoughts one might have, beautifully expressed with much authority by someone recognizedly wiser than oneself."

That happens to be one of my favorites. Here are other which seem to merit special consideration:

"Every human being . . . is cut off from others in one respect, yet has in him or her the possibility of spiritual achievement, and it is a sin for another human being to jeopardize those possibilities by making purely personal demands on him or her." -- J.D. Salinger in De Daumier-Smith's Blue Period.

How To Make Love To A City:

Find a city that's lonely,
Build a great house there.
Invite people in.
Treat them kindly.
Love will occur.

--From an ad in The New Yorker

"A great sorrow either deepens us, or drains us; it makes the exceptional man more compassionate and profound, and the mediocre man more bitter and banal." --Sydney Harris

"I dread success. To have succeeded is to have finished one's business on earth, like the male spider, who is killed by the female the moment he has succeeded in his courtship. I like the state of continued becoming, with the goal in front and not behind." --George Bernard Shaw in The Quintessence of G.B.S.

"The world is my country, all mankind are my brethren, to do good is my religion." --Thomas Paine

"I am moved by fancies that are curled Around these images, and cling: The notion of some infinitely gentle Infinitely suffering thing." --T.S. Eliot, Preludes IV

"True love is but a humble, low-born thing, And hath its food served up in earthenware; It is a thing to walk with, hand in hand, Through the everydayness of this work-day world Baring its tender feet to every roughness, Yet letting not one heart-beat go astray From beauty's law of plainness and content-- A simple fireside thing, whose quiet smile Can warm earth's poorest hovel to a home." --James Russell Lowell

MSU 'Recruiting' Hit

To the Editor:

Michigan State engages in an extensive program of recruiting top student talent. Part of the recruiting program is the ADS competition, which occurred recently. Over 1,000 of the best high school seniors in the country were here for an impressive weekend of banquets and speeches, culminating with the ADS examination. The administration really outdoes itself in impressing these seniors. Michigan State is described as an educational Utopia; the Harvard of the Midwest.

Unfortunately, the dream painted by the administration contrasts sharply with reality, as 70 per cent of the ADS competitors will find out next fall. Many of these ADS competitors, once they have arrived here as ordinary students, become disillusioned and frustrated. Some even become disillusioned and frustrated enough to join CSR, (half of its membership consists of former ADS competitors.)

At the recent ADS scholarship banquets, CSR distributed a leaflet consisting of comments on MSU by various Merit Scholars and ADS competitors in CSR. As usual CSR's action was vilified in the State News. As two of the students who contributed to the CSR leaflet would like to clarify our position.

CSR distributed these leaflets as an answer to the official literature mailed out by the University. This literature includes testimonials from Merit Scholars at MSU. It was not our purpose, as the State News suggested it was, to discourage anyone from coming to Michigan State. Our purpose was to present to the ADS competitors the same information we would have liked to have at the same time last year. While it is admirable that MSU should wish to raise the intellectual caliber of its student body, it is unfortunate that once the recruits arrive they find the University is not quite the academic paradise originally described to them. Instead it is a large, bland impersonal knowledge factory keyed to producing intellectual mediocrity rather than to achieving excellence.

Misunderstanding From Resolutions

To the Editor:

The recent release in the State News of the resolutions by the three student members of the Board of Student Publications has caused some difficulty and misunderstanding. The resolutions, which amounted to seven detailed pages giving the rationale behind each resolution, were not available on the third floor of Student Services Building at any time.

Certain individuals knew about them, to be sure, but since I was using their "franking" privilege, their paper, and their envelopes, I showed them what was being sent. The resolutions, stuffed in sealed and addressed brown business-sized envelopes, were sent to the members of the Board of Student Publications; John McQuitty, chairman of the Student Board; Robert Maust, chief justice of AUSJ; and John Mongeon, MHA president and Student Board member, who made the original motion back in December right after the resignations of six staffers of the State News for Student Board to form a re-evaluation committee upon mandate from his residence hall presidents.

The copy which the State News staff writer had in his possession was the copy sent to Louis Berman, general manager of the State News, non-voting member of the Board of Student Publications, and gracious luncheon host. It was delivered by hand by the ASMSU board secretary to the State News editorial office late Thursday afternoon. It never reached Berman (who was out of town until Friday). Berman has since explained to me that it is common practice at the editorial office to open any mail that might come in due to the exigencies of putting out a paper. That had been the fate of that copy. I regret that I had neither the foresight nor the energy to hand-deliver 15 copies of our resolutions to all over campus. It will not happen again.

DETROIT (UPI) -- The same Wayne State University fraternity which broke all records last year for speed in piano smashing and stuffing the remains through a keyhole is at it again.

But this time members are taking to the open road in what is destined to become the longest basketball dribble in history. Eighteen members of the fraternity plan to dribble basketballs from the campus near downtown Detroit to Cleveland beginning Friday.

The 170-mile trip has been planned to help dramatize what may be a landmark meeting for Wayne in the WSU-John Carroll basketball game Saturday.

Wayne's coach, Joel Mason, a former professional football player for the Green Bay Packers, needs one win to become ALBION (UPI) -- Students built a gallows outside the Albion College chapel today to dramatize a "God is dead" controversy, subject of a three-day seminar.

Posters were pasted up on campus buildings of the co-educational Methodist-related college saying, "Wanted: God."

The students, members of the Campus Religious Council, said a hangman's noose would swing from the lifeline gallows throughout the seminar which has attracted numerous church leaders.

Mount Record Assault

SAIGON (AP) -- U.S. planes raked North Viet Nam with a record assault of several hundred sorties in the 24-hour period ending at dawn Tuesday, an American spokesman announced. Four planes were lost in widespread raids.

Pilots said they blasted a surface to air missile site 80 miles south of Hanoi and set off mushrooming explosions and smoke clouds rising to 4,000 feet at the Son La oil storage area, 130 miles west of the Red capital. Roads, railways, ferries and bridges, from the southern panhandle to the Red River Valley northwest of Hanoi, were among other targets in 53 missions flown by U.S. Air Force and Navy pilots.

Air operations south of the border included a strike by U.S. B52s from Guam at what was described as a Viet Cong military headquarters 35 miles northeast of Saigon. The spokesman said three regiments had been spotted in that sector of Binh Duong Province since Jan. 1. There was no immediate assessment of the results of the raid.

The ground war tapered off. Operation Tuah, in which U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops crushed a North Vietnamese regular regiment in a four-day fight northwest of Quang Ngai City, was terminated with the body count of enemy dead at 634.

The Marines counted 360 enemy killed and four captured; the South Vietnamese 274 killed and 20 captured. The allied forces estimated they actually slew 1,200 of the Red enemy, and that the others were carried away along with wounded. Over-all casualties of the 6,000-man allied task force were called light.

However, Marines wounded in the battle were being treated in air-conditioned wards aboard the hospital ship Repose, which is anchored in the South China Sea.

Grad Students Are To Vote
On Council At Registration

Graduate students will vote during registration whether to accept the proposed constitution of the Graduate Student Council.

A booth will be set up where graduate students can vote, using their identification cards, said John Bowker, Golf, Ill., graduate student.

The proposed constitution will be published in the State News, he said.

The main purpose of Monday's meeting of the Committee to Organize a Graduate Student Council was to vote on rescinding three sections of the proposed constitution.

At least 26 per cent of the graduate students must vote "yes" in the elections. That 26 per cent must also constitute a majority of those graduate students voting, it was decided by the 12 attending graduate students.

The proposed constitution previously stated that a 50 per cent turnout would be required.

The highest percentage of voters in an all-University issue has been 49 per cent, which was the percentage of on-campus students voting on the all-University radio station issue, Feb. 25.

The requirement that any graduate student organization seeking recognition from the council must be approved by a 3/4 vote of the council was changed to a majority vote and accepted.

It was decided that a 2/3 majority vote of graduate students voting on amendments to the constitution, if adopted, should not be changed to a simple majority.

Jakarta Students
Turn Destructive

SINGAPORE (AP) -- Anti-Communist Indonesian students swarmed through the Foreign Ministry in Jakarta, threw out chairs, desks and files and destroyed them in a bonfire, reports reaching Singapore said Tuesday. Pro-Communist demonstrations attacked the U.S. Embassy, smashed windows and burned three cars.

In the midst of the upsurge of violence, President Sukarno assailed the anti-Communist students.

The Jakarta radio quoted him as saying in a speech: "These wild students do not understand what they are doing. They are trying to overthrow me. I do not want to be overthrown. I will fight and crush any attempts to topple me."

The attack on the U.S. Embassy was staged by pro-Communists, pro-Sukarno students of the PNL student organization. Sources here gave this account:

From 200 to 300 students arrived at the embassy in trucks and immediately began to stone the embassy. Several windows were broken. Some students crawled over the embassy fence throwing rocks and gasoline bombs. Three cars were burned and windows of two others were smashed.

The students replaced the U.S. flag with the Indonesian flag and damaged the U.S. seal on the front of the building. Troops arrived at the embassy and dispersed them.

Reliable sources, in constant touch with developments in Indonesia, said thousands of anti-Communist students from the outlawed KAMI organization and the high school organization KAPI staged the demonstration at the Foreign Ministry offices.

They gave this sequence of events:

The anti-Communist students marched on the building in downtown Jakarta carrying banners and slogans saying: "Hang Sukarno," "Dissolve the Communist Cabinet," "Reduce prices on goods." Subandrio is foreign minister and deputy premier.

The students pushed past armed forces guarding the Foreign Ministry and into the building. The troops did not offer much resistance because most of them sympathize with the anti-Communists.

The students dragged papers, furniture and files from the building and set them on fire. They hung the KAMI banner on the flagpole of the building.

While the demonstrations were going on, Sukarno told a rally marking International Women's Day that his international image and the image of Indonesia have been tarnished in recent weeks, Jakarta radio reported.

"I have been undermined by neocolonialism and their stooges in the country," Sukarno said. "These people have interfered with Indonesia's economy and have carried out widespread subversion. They are using Indonesian youths and children to try to topple me."

Neocolonialism is an Indonesian acronym meaning neocolonialists, colonialists and imperialists. Britain, the United States and several Commonwealth countries are most often referred to as neocolonial.

In Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian capital a small group of leftist Chinese smashed windows at a building housing the U.S. Embassy. They were protesting U.S. Vietnamese policy and the visit of William P. Bundy, assistant secretary of state.

Bundy was given a security escort on his arrival, but U.S. officials shrugged off the demonstration. Most damage was to the branch office of the First National City Bank of New York, occupying the first two floors of the 12-story building. The embassy occupies the two top floors.

Drug Board Chokes Sale
Of Patent Cough Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The government moved Tuesday to halt the future sale of all non-prescription antibiotic lozenges--those cough drops sold to fight the pain and infection of a sore throat.

The Food and Drug Administration, in its most sweeping drug removal order ever, said it found that the lozenges--and some other antibiotic preparations also banned--are not effective, as their labels claim.

An FDA spokesman said the order applies to at least 250 products sold under some 500 trade names by more than 70 manufacturers. They bring an estimated $25 million in sales annually at retail counters.

For some products, the order is effective immediately, and there is no appeal except through the courts. Manufacturers of the others have 30 days to raise any valid objection and ask for a public hearing by the FDA.

However, since no question of danger is involved, an FDA spokesman said drugstores and manufacturers of the antibiotic lozenges and preparations may use up stocks on hand which already have FDA approval.

No recall of the products is planned, the spokesman said.

No list of the products affected was available, but the spokesman said "Succrets" is one of the market leaders. The FDA order said some of the lozenges and other antibiotic preparations found to lack substantial evidence of effectiveness have been in use for up to 15 years.

However, many non-prescription lozenges with the same brand names as antibiotic lozenges may remain on the market because although they contain a local anesthetic such as benzocaine, they have no antibiotic. That's as long as the FDA feels they do what their labels promise.

A spokesman for the American Medical Assn. in Chicago said the AMA would have no comment on the order until it has been studied.

Augenstein Officially Asks
Voters For GOP Nomination

Leroy Augenstein, chairman of biophysics, today officially announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for the United States Senate.

The Republican party has already given its "preferred" endorsement to Rep. Robert P. Griffin of Traverse City, but Augenstein feels that "this does not mean that another can't serve as well or better," the United Press International reported.

"This scientific age requires more scientists in government, more government in science, and fewer politicians in either field," Augenstein said.

Augenstein will face Griffin in the Aug. 2 GOP primary for the senatorial nomination. Former governor G. Mennen Williams is the front-runner for the Democratic nomination. The seat is being vacated by the retirement of Sen. Patrick V. McNamara, D-Mich.

"Without Republican primary activity this year, we will be virtually conceding all communication mediums to our opposition, and thus lose the opportunity to put Republican views on current issues before the people whom we hope to represent in Congress," Augenstein said. He said the state GOP "badly

The Means And Extremes Of Cage Season

By BOB HORNING
State News Sports Writer

Remember three months ago when State opened its basketball season? The Spartans lost to Western Michigan.

Monday night they closed out the season with a win over Michigan. The two extremes. And in between there were ups and downs.

At first there was the prospect of another futile season. A ray of hope appeared as the Spartans won three straight games following the Western loss.

A 7-3 pre-conference record and three straight Big Ten wins provoked championship talk that lasted until last Saturday, despite intervening losses to Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Indiana abruptly ended State's hopes of reaching the NCAA tournament, but the season wasn't over yet. The Spartan victory over Michigan finished things off on a sweet note, a note to hum until next year.

"The Michigan win was especially nice since the Indiana loss was so tough on the boys," Coach John Benington explained.

"No doubt we were more relaxed than if the game had been for the championship, but it was still a great accomplishment," he said. "I had to just sit back and admire them."

"With the win we ended up with the same season record as Michigan (17-7) and we had a victory over them. So this has to be a fine team," he said. "And we see that we were capable of playing Michigan, even if it had been for all the marbles."

Only Johnny Green's 1958-1959 team won more games than this year's squad. The Big Ten champs of that year were 19-4.

The 86-77 win over Michigan ended three years of frustration for Captain Bill Curtis and Stan Washington who hadn't beaten the Wolverines since coming to State.

"It was a great way for those two to finish," Benington said. "It's going to be awful tough thinking about playing next year without them."

Besides scoring 26 points himself, Curtis held Jim Myers to eight. Washington scored 23 and limited Oliver Darden to 12 points and four rebounds.

In order to stop Darden and Myers, Benington had to put Matthew Aitch on Cazzie Russell. While Russell scored 34 points, the move as a whole worked.

Benington made the move in hopes of keeping Russell away from the boards. "There's no guard in the country that can handle Russell inside," said Benington, "and if we keep him out, he can't hit the boards. A smaller man than Aitch (6-7) might have had to foul Russell to keep him outside."

Benington also wanted a quicker man than Aitch on Myers. He considered Myers the key to the game, not mainly because of his scoring, but because he feeds Russell, Darden and John Clawson from the high post.

Gerry Gelstler received special praise from Benington for his six rebounds while playing only a couple minutes, and Steve Rymal for "his best game of the year."

It's been a long season and an exciting one for the players, fans and coaches. "Now I can sit back and watch the other teams sweat it out in the tournaments," mused Benington.

Big Ten Seeks Change In Bowl Procedures

By ANDREW MOLLISON
State News Staff Writer

Big Ten representatives will go to the West Coast in April to see if some of the bugs in the Rose Bowl arrangements can be ironed out.

John A. Fuzak, vice president of student affairs, said Tuesday that this and a slight change in eligibility rules were the main decisions made at last week's conference of Big Ten faculty representatives and athletic directors.

The delegates also held informal discussions on the possibility of expanding inter-school competition on a non-varsity basis.

The NEWS in

SPORTS

As a result of the meeting, lawyers are now investigating the possibility of having the Big Ten commissioner's office make reservations for game tickets and for hotel and travel accommodations for members of the Big Ten team and official party.

Under this plan, each Big Ten school would file the name of its official travel agent before the football season started. That way, none of the teams could be accused of overconfidence in making arrangements. Any arrangements that were subsequently made would not be quite so frantic and last-minute.

Big Ten representatives will discuss this plan and the overall ticket situation with the Tournament of Roses Committee and the Pacific Coast Conference in April on the West Coast. The main issue in the ticket situation seems to be the number of tickets reserved for the Big Ten.

The Big Ten also revised its own ticket policy. Students from the participating school will no longer be required to wait until they get to Los Angeles before picking up their tickets.

The school will now have the choice of selling the tickets on campus to anyone who pays in advance for the official school tour, or of selling the tickets on the trains to California.

It is hoped that this change will cut down on the long lines which students had to stand in at this year's Rose Bowl game. At the same time the goal of the old rule—making sure that the students, not scalpers, use the tickets—would still be reached.

The change in eligibility rules was minor. The old rule stated that an athlete could be awarded an extra year of eligibility if he is injured in the first athletic event in which he participated during the school year and is out for the rest of the season.

The new rule approved by the Big Ten faculty committee on eligibility states that such an injury must have been received during the first half of the season.

The problem of how State can provide financial support to freshmen, junior varsity and unattached intramural competition was also discussed. The discussion was rather abstract, Fuzak reported, and the delegates couldn't even come to agreement on the fundamental problem: how can broader student participation in athletics be encouraged?

"It's basically a long-range problem," he said, "and the member schools' athletic councils will undoubtedly be discussing it in the months ahead."

Clay-Terrell Title Fight Finds Home In Toronto

TORONTO (UPI) -- The much-maligned heavyweight championship match between Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell ended its peripatetic journey Tuesday and found a haven in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Ontario Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree gave his formal blessing to the match in the Ontario Legislature Tuesday afternoon. "I want to emphasize that this decision in no way condones or supports the previous actions, affiliations or public statements made by either of the major participants in this fight," Rowntree said.

"This decision is based entirely on the fact that a proper application for authorization has been submitted. This application is in order and complies with all the regulations of the province, which permits and controls professional boxing."

If communications were good enough
you could stay in the sack all day

Moving your body around is highly inefficient.

If communications were perfect, you would never have to. Of course, you would still have to get exercise. But that's your problem.

We want to make it easier for you to contact people, learn, get information, attend lectures, and hold meetings.

We developed Picturephone service so you can see as well as talk when you call. And be seen, too. We introduced Tele-Lecture service (two-way amplified phone calls) to let you hear lecturers in distant locations. And so you could ask them questions no matter how far away they were.

Right now, many students can dial from their dormitories to a language lab. Soon a student will be able to dial into a computer thousands of miles away to get information for his courses.

Depending on the nature of the information, he might get his answer back audibly, printed on a teletypewriter, as a video image, or a facsimile print.

Some of these services are available now. Others are being tested.

For the next week or so, better get a move on.

Outfield No Problem For Spartan Batsmen

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

With a very successful winter sports season bowing out of the spotlight, baseball will soon make its appearance.

State's baseball team, under the direction of head Coach Danny Litwhiler, is in its final days of preparation for its annual swing south for spring-training competition.

State lost a share of the Big Ten crown on the final day of the '65 season and finished third, behind Ohio State and Michigan. The outfield was a major strong point for last year's squad, with Bob Maniere (.286), Dick Billings (.283) and Bob Speer (.291) chasing fly balls.

Maniere and Billings are gone. Can a title contender lose two regular outfielders and still remain in the race? Litwhiler hopes he has found an answer to this question.

OUTFIELD RETURNEE--Star Spartan outfielder Bob Speer is the lone member of the '65 outfield corps returning to State's '66 baseball squad. Speer batted .291 last season and will team up with Steve Juday and John Frye in the field this spring.

First In A 3-Part Series

Billings was good. His batting average and a nifty .983 fielding average attest to this. Maniere was good. His 44 hits were second only to All-American third baseman John Bledenbach in team totals.

These are big spikes to fill. Litwhiler, a former major league all-star outfielder himself, feels he has not only found competent replacements but may have even improved upon last season's outfield alignment.

Speer will be playing his third season with the Spartans. His .291 average was best in the outfield last year, and he has a strong hold on the left field spot.

Speer batted out 37 hits in '65, including five doubles, two triples and three home runs. He was second on the team in runs batted in with 26 and led the squad in walks with 31.

The senior power-hitter was a valuable man to have on the sacks. He led the team in stolen bases with nine and scored 27 runs. He was second in the scoring department.

Speer's offensive play was truly outstanding, but his defensive performance, last spring, was literally flawless. He fielded 118 chances without an error, compiling a perfect 1,000 fielding performance.

"Speer had an outstanding year," Litwhiler said. "He has excellent power and is a real hustler."

Speer will give State experience in left, but right field will be patrolled by a "veteran-newcomer," Steve Juday. Juday played every infield position last season, and this year the "jack-of-all-trades" will have the chore of guarding Old College Field's short right-field fence.

Juday's amateur status was in doubt, following participation in the Hula Bowl game. However, Big Ten representatives voted unanimously to allow the All-American quarterback to play baseball.

"They probably knew I wasn't any good, so they decided that my playing may help their baseball team's chances," Juday joked. "They say I'm the best player Ohio State has."

Whatever the reason for the conference officials' affirmative vote, Juday's answer was certainly not the right one. While dividing his time between the sandlot and spring football practice, the versatile athlete batted .342.

He mostly played first base and shortstop, where he maintained a .945 fielding average.

"Steve is one of the few players I know of who can adjust so well and excel at so many positions," Litwhiler said.

Juday will be devoting full-time to the baseball diamond this spring, and he should fill the gap left by Billings. He managed to play in 27 games, picking up 26 hits and 18 RBIs. His 102 putouts were tops for the Spartans.

Manning the centerfield post will probably be junior college transfer John Frye. The Cler-mont, Fla., native is regarded as top-notch offensively and defensively. He uses his great speed to his advantage.

"Frye hits with power, is a good fielder and should do the job in center," said Litwhiler. "We are expecting a lot from him."

Backing up the three starters will be veterans Roger Conant, John Clancy and Ivan Klobucher, along with sophomores Guy Busch, Ken Ewald, Dick Harlow, Mike Kowalski and Steve Kutas.

Can a title contender lose two regular outfielders and still remain in the race? A former major league outfield star says the answer to this question is "yes." He can safely say this when he can replace the losses with a .342 hitter and one of the finest junior college outfielders in the country.

Litwhiler isn't worried about the '66 outfield corps. If anything, he's optimistic.

"We should have a good-hitting, good-fielding and power-hitting outfield," he said. "In fact, we should be better than last year."

Casey In Hall Of Fame

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Casey Stengel was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame Tuesday in a startling, dramatic move which took even the 75-year-old ex-manager by surprise.

Stengel's election was announced by Ford Frick, former baseball commissioner who now heads baseball's Old-Timer's Committee, which does the voting for Hall of Fame candidates dating back before 1946.

Casey is currently serving as a New York Mets vice president.

Wilson Plans Rally

The third annual East Wilson Wipeout Road Rally will be held May 7.

The rally will begin at 9 a.m. at the commuter parking lot, corner of Farm Lane and Mt. Hope Road.

Over $150 worth of trophies will be given out in the rally. Winners will be determined by their ability to match given times and follow clues. No racing will be done, and the event will be open to both American and foreign cars.

Entry fees of $2 for the driver, $1 for the first passenger, $2 for the second passenger and $3 for the third passenger will be charged.

Further information can be obtained at the East Wilson reception desk or by calling 353-0271.

Knapp's Parking Plan Opposed

Several merchants and property owners attacked the J.W. Knapp Company's offer to purchase a portion of Municipal Parking Lot 3 in the City Council Meeting Monday.

William Hicks, a local real estate dealer, spoke during the period of the meeting where persons could be heard from the floor. He said most of the merchants were opposed to the proposal.

"Any movement to accept this offer would be a grave error," said Hicks. "We have a very successful parking program here now. . . Knapp's offer is a selfish proposal."

"Presently there is a very good business climate in East Lansing," Hicks said. "This would give the Knapp Co. a tremendous advantage."

Hicks said that he hopes the council will carefully consider the views of the merchants and property owners before acting. Burton Daugherty, 1515 Columbine St., criticized the "Town Courier," East Lansing's weekly paper, for saying that the council was speeding a resolution on the matter.

"We are moving the proposal along as efficiently as we can," said Mayor Gordon L. Thomas, "but are not stampeding it."

A representative of Butterfield Theaters read a letter from L. W. Smith, the owner of the theaters, which said he was strongly opposed to the proposal.

Other matters discussed at the meeting included:

Roger Jonas, executive director of the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce, requested salary adjustments and other benefits for the city police.

Figures presented by the Chamber of Commerce showed that the starting salary of an East Lansing patrolman is $1,000 less than that of a state policeman. The local police also receive no fringe benefits.

A letter from the police department requested equalization with Lansing salaries and benefits, including fully paid life insurance, and an additional $1,000 a year for starting patrolmen.

We appreciate the salary raises the city has given us in the past, but feel another increase is needed, the letter read. We want exactly the same, if not more, because we are called back to work more often than most policemen. There is also the added work of civilian demonstrations.

The East Lansing Fire Department also requested extra benefits, including fully paid Blue Cross insurance.

Letters from Ina Fixman, secretary of West Akers Hall Council, and from Holly Pierce, president of West Holmes Hall Council, requested that a sidewalk be provided on the bridge on Hagadorn Road across the Red Cedar River.

The matter was referred to City Manager John M. Patriarche for investigation.

The council approved a recommendation for a hitchhiking on both sides of Grand River Avenue from Michigan Avenue to the east city limits.

E-W were using 15-17 points for NT openers and the Stayman convention. It is common for duplicate players to bid no trump to indicate the point range with 4-4 in majors as the Stayman bid will locate the fit in majors through the response in clubs at whatever necessary level. This asks the opener to name his four-card major.

From the look of my hand, I couldn't see them playing NT and I wanted to alert my partner to the fact that I did have some high card values in my hand. The 3C bid by West was the Stayman bid past my interference bid.

North's bid of 4C is some more interference, besides telling me he has a club honor if there is play at NT. East's bid of a major is in response to his partner's promise to a fit, plus at least 10 points.

My hand didn't look very valuable defensively and since a game at 4H (with a score of 620) looked certain, I tried the sacrifice at 5C. East wouldn't stand for this plan, so he went to 5H, which meant that I had to lift the bid to 6C, hoping for a small set. Actually 5H can be set, but it was pretty hard to figure, considering the confident bidding by the opponents.

West's choice of an opening lead, his Diamond 6, was fortunate for me, as one loser was thrown off on the long Diamond suit. West defended his lead on the basis that he expected partner to have one minor ace for the NT opening bid and he was hoping for a ruff or two to set the contract. 4. This was necessary in order to compensate for the vulnerable game they could otherwise have made.

The logic was good but the cards were wrong. The only N-S pair which got a better score than ours was permitted to play 3 clubs, which is unbeatable. I have no idea why they were permitted to play 3 clubs, because their E-W opponents are strong players. Two pair played 4 spades, two others 3 hearts (making 4) and one N-S sacrificed at diamonds, doubled, down one.

Bus Fare Reduction Scrapped; 30-Day Trial A Financial Loss

A 30-day experiment in reduced student bus fares is being scrapped by Lansing Suburban Lines, but a shuttle service through East Lansing to campus may begin soon.

The reduced 15-cent fare for MSU students, 10 cents lower than the regular rate, was started Jan. 26 on a trial basis at the request of Associated Students of MSU.

But according to Carl S. Buchanan, Suburban Lines manager, the company lost both money and passengers.

During the trial period, the company had 4,840 fewer passengers than the previous month and it took in $1,086 less money.

A resolution to restore the special student rate to the regular 25-cent fare will be introduced in the Lansing City Council next week.

East Lansing City Council approved Monday night a temporary 30-day shuttle service through East Lansing to MSU.

According to Gordon Thomas, city mayor, it is now up to the city manager to determine the bus stops before the service will be put into effect.

After the month-long trial period, the operation will be reviewed by the City Council, Thomas said.

Prof's Book Wins Praise

"The Hungry Planet," a book written by Georg Borgstrom, professor of food science, has been named one of the 50 most important books of 1965 by the American Library Assn.

Borgstrom proposes that the money and effort being spent to conquer space should be spent instead to conquer hunger on this planet.

The facts given by Borgstrom in his book come from more than 20 years of research and world travel. He stated that the gap between the world's ability to produce food and its ever-growing population is widening.

"The world is threatened by wide starvation and power politics based on diet diplomacy," Borgstrom said.

Five ideal dates. Three dollars($3)

Join in the most adventurous experiment of our time. Operation Match. Let the IBM 7090 Computer (the world's most perfect matchmaker) stamp out blind dates for you.

Two Harvard juniors started it. 100,000 students have done it. Now you and 3,400,000 college students in 1500 colleges in 50 cities can sign up and join in!

Just send us the coupon. We'll send you the Operation Match Quantitative Personality Projection Test pronto!

Then return the questionnaire with $3.00. What you're like and what you like will be translated into our 7090's memory file. It will scan the qualifications of every member of the opposite sex from this geographic area. Then it will select the five or more matches best for you.

You'll receive your names, addresses and telephone numbers within three weeks. You'll be what your date is looking for. Your date will be what you are looking for. In other words: the matches will be mutual.

Dear IBM 7090,
I am 17 or over (and 27 or under) and I want to help stamp out blind dates. So mail me my questionnaire. Quick!

ATL Faculty To Publish

Three members of the American Thought and Language Dept. faculty are completing books contracted to be published by three university presses.

T. B. Strandness, professor, will publish "Samuel Sewall: A Puritan Portrait," through the MSU Press. The biographical study will view the well-known Puritan merchant, witch trial judge, and diarist, as a typical late 17th century Bostonian.

M. Thomas Inge, assistant professor, is completing a definitive, annotated edition of unpublished writings by George Washington Harris, entitled "High Times and Hard Times: Sketches and Tales." The work concerning Harris, the southern 19th century humorist who wrote with a Tennessee dialect, will be published this year by Vanderbilt University Press.

Ann N. Ridgeway, instructor, is editing a collection of the letters of Robinson Jeffers, a California poet, which will be published by John Hopkins University Press. Mrs. Ridgeway has corresponded extensively with the poet's relatives and associates in order to obtain previously unprinted material.

The Paper Requests Board OK

The Paper submitted a request for authorization to the Board of Student Publications Tuesday afternoon. The request contains information which The Paper had not given previously.

Michael Kindman, editor of The Paper, said in the letter to the board that it is his understanding that the information submitted, "together with such other information as may be requested at a meeting of the board," will meet all the necessary requirements for authorization.

Its request will be discussed at the board's meeting at 12:15 p.m. Thursday in Parlor A of the Union.

The Paper, which has distributed eight issues at Michigan State in the last three months, has been supported by weekly "fund-raising" drives authorized by the Student Board of the Associated Students of MSU. During these "fund-raising drives," donations of ten cents were requested from anyone who wanted a copy of The Paper.

This distribution device was overturned when The Paper began to accept advertising. The ASMSU Student Board was no longer willing to authorize drives, because it did not believe it then had the power to do so.

The Paper then asked the Secretary of the University for a waiver of Section 30.01 of the University ordinances, which prohibits commercial ventures on campus. He refused to grant the waiver while "the facts in the matter are before the Board of Student Publications."

The request for authorization submitted yesterday contained financial facts required by an outline of board procedure which was issued in January. The Paper had twice previously refused to submit such information.

The information sheet submitted to the board also indicated that The Paper plans to come out 10 times per term, with editions of 4,000 copies.

Charles P. Larowe, professor of economics, has agreed to serve as adviser for The Paper.

The Paper had 528 subscribers and a total circulation of from 2,000 to 3,000 copies per issue as of March 3.

Faculty Advocates Practical Rules

This statement on student rights and duties was drafted by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs as a tentative guideline for its review of the University's rules and structures. The committee invites comments, either written or at its hearings, from all members of the academic community.

The University is an institution which serves a community of scholars whose members include faculty, administration and students. The basic purposes of this community and the University are the enlargement, dissemination and application of knowledge.

The most basic necessity for the achievement of these purposes is freedom of expression and communication. Otherwise there cannot be any effective sifting and testing of ideas, and research, teaching and learning are stifled.

Since knowledge is as broad and diverse as life itself, the need for freedom is equally broad. Yet absolute freedom in all aspects of life means anarchy, just as absolute order means tyranny. Both anarchy and tyranny are antithetical to the purposes and necessities of the academic community and the University.

Therefore, the academic community and the University must always strive to strike that balance between maximum freedom and necessary order which best promotes their basic purposes by providing the environment that is most conducive to the many-faceted activities of research, teaching and learning.

Rights Carry Responsibility

Every individual right carries with it a reciprocal duty: the duty of others to permit the exercise of the right. The student, as a member of the academic community, has both rights and duties.

Within that community, the student's most essential right is the right to learn. The academic community and the University have a duty to provide for the student those protections, opportunities and environment which best promote the learning process in all its aspects.

The student, in turn, has duties to his fellow-members of the academic community and to the University, and the most important of these duties is to refrain from interference with those rights that promote the essential purposes and processes of the academic community and the University.

Practical Regulations

The academic community and the University cherish many values and modes of thought and behavior that are better taught by example, persuasion, social pressure and rewards than by the threat of penalties.

Regulations governing the activities and conduct of student groups and individual students should not be comprehensive codes of desirable conduct; rather, they should be limited to the prescription of procedures to meet the practical, routine necessities of a complex community, and the prohibition or limitation of acts which cannot be tolerated because they seriously interfere with the basic purposes, necessities, and processes of the academic community and the University, or because they deny the essential rights of other members of the community or the University.

No Academic Immunity

The student is not only a member of the academic community; he is also a citizen of the larger society. As a citizen, he retains those rights, protections and guarantees of fair treatment which are held by all citizens, and neither the academic community nor the University may deny them to him.

The enforcement of the student's duties to the larger society, however, is the responsibility of the authorities duly established for that purpose and not that of the academic community or the University.

In order to protect student rights and to facilitate the definition of student duties at Michigan State University, the following guidelines are established:

1. All regulations shall undertake the best possible reconciliation of the principles of maximum freedom and necessary order.

2. There shall be no regulation unless there is a demonstrable need for it which is reasonably related to the basic purposes and necessities of the academic community and the University as recognized herein.

3. To the maximum extent feasible, students shall participate in formulating and revising regulations governing student conduct.

4. All regulations governing student conduct shall be made public in an appropriate manner.

5. Every regulation shall be as brief, clear and specific as possible.

6. Regulations dealing with conflicting rights shall, to the maximum extent feasible, permit reasonable scope for the exercise of each right under appropriate circumstances of time, place, and means.

7. Regulations relating to communication of ideas shall encourage the competition of ideas and facilitate their evaluation.

Constructive Penalties

8. Procedures and penalties for the violation of regulations shall be designed for guidance or correction of behavior rather than for retribution.

9. Penalties shall be commensurate with the seriousness of the offense. Repeated violations may justify increasingly severe penalties.

10. There shall be clearly defined channels and procedures for the appeal and review of:

a. The determination of violation of a regulation.

b. The reasonableness, under the circumstances, of the penalty imposed for a specific violation.

c. The substance of a regulation which is alleged to be inconsistent with these guidelines.

d. The fairness of the procedures followed in the original adjudication.

11. Every regulation shall specify to whom it applies and whether responsibility for compliance lies with individuals, with groups, or with both.

Final Training For Gemini 8 Riders

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (P) -- Gemini 8 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott performed weightless tumbling acts in a high-flying jet transport plane Tuesday as they entered the final week of training for one of man's most exciting space flights.

Two important tests scheduled today and Thursday are the major hurdles that must be cleared before the astronauts zip into space. If there are no hitches, they will ride a Titan 2 rocket into the sky Tuesday for a three-day trip.

For the first six hours, Armstrong and Scott are to chase an Agena space vehicle in an effort to achieve man's first linkup with an orbiting satellite.

On the second day, Scott is to take a record space walk of nearly 2 1/2 hours during which he is to evaluate how well man can maneuver and work outside a space ship. He is to float about on the end of a 100-foot lifeline, guiding himself about with a gas-propelled jet gun.

To familiarize themselves with the strange sensation of space weightlessness, the astronauts journeyed to nearby Patrick Air Force Base and went aloft in a KC135 transport. They floated and bounced about in the huge padded interior of the plane as it executed a series of dives that subjected them to weightlessness.

Launch crews on two pads were preparing for an exercise today called a simultaneous launch demonstration, to practice complexity of simultaneously conducting 11 separate countdowns. These include the Atlas which will boost the Agena; the Agena; the Titan 2; the Gemini 8 spacecraft; the launch center here; mission control center in Houston, Tex.; the worldwide tracking network; the eastern test range, and the guidance systems for the vehicles.

Armstrong, the first U.S. civilian astronaut scheduled to make a space flight, and Scott, an Air Force major, planned to wear their bulky space suits and squeeze into the spacecraft for part of the demonstration.

After completing the weightless runs Tuesday, Armstrong, 34, and Scott, 32, studied some of the photographic and scientific experiments they will conduct, mainly on the third day of their mission.

Vets Sponsor Pet Lessons

A pet clinic for fifth to eighth grade children will be held on the mornings of April 22 and 29 in Gilmer Hall.

It is being sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the MSU student chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Assn.

The lessons, taught by veterinary medical students, will be oriented toward the requirements for the Boy and Girl Scout animal merit badges.

No charge will be made for the lessons. Registration forms will be distributed through East Lansing schools this month. Registration will be by form only. It must be signed by a parent and approved by the women's auxiliary.

A pet show will be held May 8. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Owen Klein-schmidt at 332-8809.

ZBT Fraternity Back In House

Members of Zeta Beta Tau fraternity will move back into their house at 855 Grove St. They have been unable to occupy it since it was gutted by fire at the beginning of last spring term.

Most of the old structure has been retained and an eight-room addition was built on top of the process of remodeling. The addition consists of new sleeping rooms, a study room, a recreation room and a library, according to Dan Bzoud, Trenton sophomore, and member of ZBT.

The house will now accommodate 48 men and there is a paved parking lot and a picnic area behind it.

More Commencement Tickets Available

Winter term graduating seniors may pick up additional tickets for guests today for the commencement exercises Sunday.

According to Herman L. King, assistant provost, about 800 tickets have been claimed during the two days which were allotted for graduating seniors to pick up their two guaranteed tickets for guests.

The tickets which have not been claimed are now available to those students who would like to invite more than two guests. "Today winter term graduating seniors may pick up any number of extra tickets up to a maximum of four on a first-come-first-served basis," King said.

The tickets will be available at the booth on the first floor concourse of the Union.

The booth will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or until the supply of tickets runs out, he said. Not included in the number of tickets which are being given out at the union are those to student teachers, doctoral candidates and doctorates of veterinary medicine.

University's Computer Sets Production Mark

Michigan State's 3600 computer set a production record for the month of February with an average of 1,000 jobs per day during the month.

The computer, made by the Control Data Corp., completed 26,039 jobs in February, according to Charles Gillengarten, supervisor of operations. This is more than twice the January figure of 12,195.

"More than five million cards were put into the computer," Gillengarten said. "This would be equivalent to 208 miles of cards if they were strung together end to end." The output of the computer was 4,000 printed sheets, the equivalent of 72 miles.

"Students' class problems accounted for 70 per cent of the computer's work," he said. "This amounted to 18,298 of the jobs. The remainder were

Teachers Get Strike Fines

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Teachers and officers of the Newark Teachers Assn. were fined and given suspended jail terms Monday by Judge Nelson K. Mintz for conducting a strike last month in defiance of an injunction he issued.

Mintz added a tongue-lashing to the sentences, telling the defendants "You now have on your record the stigma of a jail sentence."

He placed the 30 persons who received jail terms on probation for a year and ordered them to report to a probation officer once a week for that period because he felt they needed "rehabilitation."

Fines against the association and three officers were $1,000 each. Thirty-one others were fined $500. Jail sentences, all suspended, were from 30 to 90 days.

The strike was in support of salary requests.

Mintz noted that state law forbids public employees to strike.
