STUDENT HOUSING RATES HIKED

Dorm Rate Up $15; Apartments Up$4

By CHARLES C. WELLS Editor-In-Chief

Students on campus will pay more for their housing beginning next fall term.

Dormitory rates will increase $15 or from $275 to $290 per term. All faculty and student apartment rents will increase about $4 per month. The Board of Trustees took the action reluctantly Thursday.

Last July, the board held the line on a proposed increase, but were forced to raise the rates because of rising labor and food costs in Increased labor costs and a higher number of University children attending the East Lansing Public School System were cited as factors causing the rent hike in married housing units. Children in

The postal department delivers 74 billion pieces of mail annually. Trains, airplanes and trucks are the principal modes of transporting the mail. All three will come

"Service is a dominant consideration," Smykay reported. Fast-moving passenger trains, Smykay noted, have traditionally been large carriers of mail. The Unidentified Hying Objects seen by B-4 I minons and reported in State News on April 14 were actually two North Central Airlines flights out of Cap-

A westbound flight left the airport at 9:36 p.m. on Tuesday, April 12, and was apparently seen flying directly away from Emmons before turning to the west and disappearing from view.

After the westbound flight had faded away, the red-white-green light was seen from Emmons, this time moving eastward. Those lights correspond closely with those of North Central's eastbound flight that stops in Lansing on its way from Grand Rapids to Willow Run.

That night the eastbound flight arrived at 10:37 and left a few minutes later.

The control tower at Capital City Airport has no record of any unusual sightings on that night. Such sightings are required to be entered in the log.

MSU's apartment development for women, will probably increase about $5 per resident. Warren M. Huff, chairman of the Board of Trustees, said the increase is completely unfair to Michigan State students. "Students at the University of Michigan do not pay for heat, lights or water used in dormitories -- the State of Michigan pays for it through budget appropriation," he said.

What Huff was referring to is the point that MSU students pay utility costs in their dormitory fees. There is $641,000 set aside for this next year in the MSI budget. Utility costs are included as general operating expenses in the University of Michigan

The trustees agreed the $641,-000 MSU spends for dormitory utilities, would do much to eliminate, or at least greatly reduce, the proposed increase to MSU students.

"Chairman Garland Lane and other members of the senate appropriations committee were notified of this problem, but no one has been inspired to support our position on this," Huff said. Huff indicated the public pro-

"Rather than raise fees, I propose we wait," he said.

Campus Waits For Explanation Of MSU-Viet Involvement

embarrassing, if not inexcusable, position. It has been a week and a half since the University was accused of being used by the CIA in South Viet Nam during the 50's. As yet, Michigan State has done little to explain its position, but it will have a chance when it holds a press conference this morning.

A panel discussion including Wesley Fishel, professor of political science and active member of the Viet Nam project, and Ralph Smuckler, director of international programs and chief adviser to the project, barely touched on the basic issues on Wednesday evening.

Since the Ramparts' article hit the newstands last week, President Hannah has admitted there was some substance to the article. Smuckler said some CIA men attached themselves to the MSU project but were dismissed as soon as their identities were discovered. THEN CAME ANOTHER bombshell. Lyman Kirkpatrick, former CIA chief at the time of the project, said the CIA signed a contract with Michigan State to support a police training project in South Viet Nam. He added that MSU had full knowledge of the CIA's role in the project. Clearly, someone is either twisting facts, or has a very poor memory. But what reason would a former director of the CIA have for giving a flavored version of the incident? It seems to us that he would have none. For the CIA is involved in this kind of activity constantly and in many

But MSU has a reputation to pre-incident silenced or to pass with as little damage as possible. Unless there is a valid explanation for this inconsistency, it appears that MSU has been caught in a deception. Though some of the faculty members involved in the project may not have been aware of the CIA's role in the beginning, at least top MSU officials knew the details of the proj-

INCIDENTS OF CONTRADICTORY testimony and withheld information have become commonplace among the activities of almost all governments--always for security reasons. But what "excuse" does a university

Just last year, in his State of the University address, Hannah urged the faculty to teach students "the old-fashioned concept of values." In emphasizing the values of our society that distinguish us from communist ideology, he stressed a "respect for truth

But we ask: what kind of example is this University setting for its students? It seems to us that honesty and candor could easily be added to this list of traditional values. But the University seems to have ignored them in this instance. A strange inconsis-

IT'S ALREADY too late for MSU to save face. But it isn't too late for a full and frank explanation of the Viet Nam project and the occurrances of the last week. This much MSU owes its students and faculty members. And though MSU's reputation may be tarnished by the incident, it stands to lose much more -- the respect of its faculty and students--if it doesn't serve, its status to maintain. It had every reason to want to see the whole sity case in detail.

No Substitute For $$ In Political Campaign

IT TAKES MONEY to win. Inshort, that's the reality every prospective candidate faces when deciding to seek public office. Just last week, the matter of finances struck down another candidate.

James L. Elsman, little known candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, announced he was dropping out of the race. He said that he couldn't present the issues to the public without great financial backing. To get the financial backing he would have to obligate himself to large contributors, Elsman said. This he wouldn't do.

Though with or without financial backing, Elsman would have had little chance of upsetting either Mayor Jerome Cavanagh or G. Mennen Williams, the problem of raising enough money to run for office without making an obligation to a person or group is a valid one.

MSU'S OWN LeROY Augenstein, chairman of the Biophysics Dept., faced the same problem in his abortive attempt to obtain the Republican nomination for the same Senate seat. Lack of funds forced him to drop out of the race.

The problem of insufficient financial backing is certainly more acute in the primary elections, where only a few and sometimes none of the candidates can obtain party financial support. But even in general elections, both candidates and the parties must usually rely on the large contribu-

It has been glibly suggested that the parties seek out the small contributors. At first it sounds like a sound proposal. But under present circumstances, even if it were possible to tap enough small donors, the time and expense make it impractical.

The Registrar's Student Advisory Committee, which suggested improvements to aid students in the registration process, also operated from the academic affairs office in cooperation with the Office of the Registrar.

Very little systematic thought was used in re-allocating the programs among other divisions of ASMSU. A cooperative effort, respect and rapport has been built during the past two years that academic affairs has been operating, and much of this was obliterated with a hasty vote. Because the new board members, most of whom are new to ASMSU, had little knowledge of academic affairs programs, a number of programs were forgotten and excluded from the new structure.

The board should review the action and at least discuss the existence of academic affairs with better knowledge of its functions and achievements.

This is one part of ASMSU which has been apolitical and that same spirit of objectivity should dominate any discussion

Prof Renews Debate Offer

I hate to take time from my teaching and research to write another letter to the State News, but the circumstances warrant

It is no poorly-kept secret that I have repeatedly offered to debate Professor Fishel, my colleague, on the subject "Expertise and Viet Nam."

This offer was made and repeated long before any Ramparts interpretation burst upon a startled world. As a matter of fact it was inspired by the comment of one of Professor Fishel's brightest students to the effect that Professor Fishel had informed the student that he would debate

Like all of us Professor Fishel is a busy man - although busy on higher and more awesome levels than I am, namely with admirals, generals, state and defense departmental officials etc. So for the last time: Wes, let Wesley Fishel, Southeast Asia expert, debate Carroll Hawkins, political philosopher on "EX-PERTISE and Viet Nam." If you don't do it, I'll have to do it myself alone or with some substitute who I'm afraid does not have the expertise that you do.

still being felt on this campus. The issues and questions raised by the now famous (or infamous) magazine article whose charges ranged from linking MSU with the CIA to asserting that MSU members on the Viet Nam project were out to make names for themselves, remain prominent in the minds of people at this university.

Besides the sensationalized, souped up, distorted and fallacious portions of the article, there was some substance to it. Even President Hannah admits this fact. Some important and most relevant questions were raised. And they should be answered.

MSU has been strangely silent. It has made little comment and cast little, if any light, upon the situation. And for this MSU deserves strong criticism. The role of the CIA in the project has been explained in ambiguous, if not contradictory terms.

Being caught off guard can be no excuse for the University's poor response. For several sources have admitted they knew of the Ramparts article at least a month or two before its publication.

BUT THIS CRITICISM is separate from basic questions raised by the Ramparts article, such as what type of activity should a university be involved in overseas projects, what relationship should it have with foreign governments, and what kind of responsibilities and loyalties do the participants of such projects have and to whom? Certainly, it seems a university shouldn't have any involvement with the CIA in a foreign country or be placed in a compromising position. It shouldn't be involved with affairs, and activities, within a foreign country which it can't publicly and frankly explain without worry of security risks.

Referring specifically to MSU's Viet Nam project, mistakes were indeed made. The CIA was involved and intertwined with the project, though to what degree we aren't fully aware yet. And at least in the latter stages of the project, the Diem government was dictator-

But how easy it is to look back with perfect hindsight and proclaim what should have been done to remedy or expose the situation. And the country would have to be Viet Nam, a country which few of us have rational feelings about now in 1966.

THESE WERE QUESTIONS and dilemmas which only the individuals involved could answer or solve. And they had to be answered in the context of times and circumstances then--not now. Several chose to speak out then and publicly criticize the injustices they saw. Others chose to keep their criticisms for a later, more op-

Still others chose to work within the internal framework, to attempt to salvage something or possibly rectify the injustices and help bring about stable institutions in the troubled Asian land.

Who can say that one person or group was right and the other wrong, without the events of recent years influencing his answer? But there is an even larger question which must be faced and answered: should a university enter into service projects in foreign nations or should it confine itself to a more domestic and scholarly

THE ANSWER is found in the nature of modern society and the nature of a public university itself. Just as society has been socialized both nationally and to some extent internationally, so has the MSU, as a public institution, has been a pioneer in the realm of foreign projects and programs. And in these projects, it has provided worthwhile service in a variety of ways.

By establishing service and research programs in foreign countries, MSU has aided in forming better relationships between foreigh and American universities and between governments. And by attempting to improve the institutions of a country, the members of the particular project observe and learn something found in no book, in no library and in no theorizing or discussion.

FACULTY MEMBERS can gain practical experience and first hand knowledge of the affairs and culture of a country. They cannot only be much more valuable and helpful to the students they teach when returning to the University.

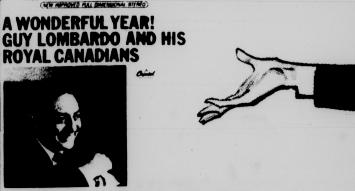

What better preparation for the teaching of the political institutions of the Middle East than to have been there and observed? What better background could one have for teaching a course in the economics of Southeast Asia than to have been there, observed and taken part? And what better basis could one have for teaching the culture of China than to have lived with its people?

MSU has had projects in numerous foreign countries ranging from agriculture to business. Most of them have proved invaluable to us as well as the other countries.

HOPEFULLY, THESE programs will be continued, expanded, and new ones initiated, but, in the future, not with the help of the CIA or in any more "Viet Nams," And in the future, hopefully, the University will be better able to defend its activities than it has in the Ramparts incident. The best defense is prevention.

Blow a whole week's savings for a Sunday dinner date???

Go ahead if you want to. But it's really not necessary. The Gas Buggy Room at Jack Tar Hotel is a pretty impressive place to take a date: good food, atmosphere, friendly service ... just sort of all-around nice.

And when it comes to The Big Moment, you'll probably have some of your week's savings left. Full-course dinners start at only $2.75. And that's a bit of okay, right?

"The only thing necessary for 10 minutes. Presenting The Drinking Song for Sprite: "ROAR, SOFT-DRINK, ROAR!"

(To the tune of "Barbara Fritchie")

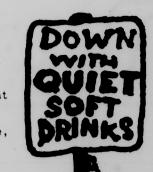

Traditionally, a lusty, rousing fight song is de rigeur for every worthy cause and institution. But we wrote a song for Sprite anyway. We'd like you to sing it while drinking Sprite, though this may cause some choking and coughing. So what? It's all in good, clean fun. And speaking of good, clean things, what about the taste of Sprite? It's good. It's clean. However, good clean things may not exactly be your idea of jollies. In that case, remember that Sprite is also very refreshing. "Tart and tingling," in fact. And very collegiate. And maybe we'd better quit while we're ahead. So here it is. The Drinking Song For Sprite. And if you can get a group together to sing it -- we'd be very surprised.

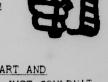

Roar, soft drink, roar! You're the loudest soft drink we ever sawr! So tart and tingling, they couldn't keep you quiet:

The perfect drink, guy, To sit and think by, Or to bring instant refreshment To any campus riot! Ooooooh--Roar, soft drink, roar! Flip your cap, hiss and bubble, fizz and gush!

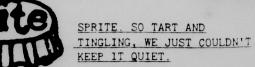

Oh we can't think Of any drink That we would rather sit with! Or (if we feel like loitering) to hang out in the strit with! Or sleep through English lit' with! Roar! Soft drink! Roar!

Yeahhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh, SPRITE!

Lost & Found Police Wagon Can Double: Patrol Car And Ambulance

19-3 more than a patrol car. . . it's

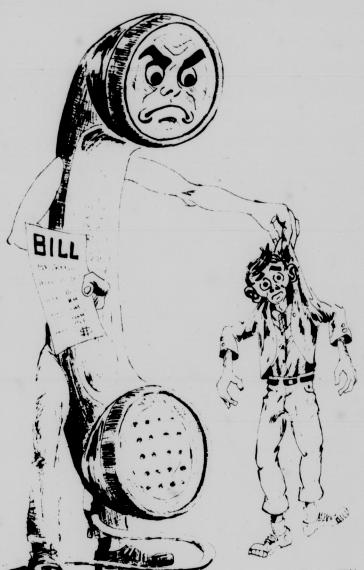

Complete with stretcher, infirst aid equipment and other rescue equipment, the car serves a dual purpose. It performs MISS CLAIROL Creme formula routine patrol, as well as emergency rescue and transportation.

> Since last July, the car has C-18 one of the local hospitals by ported to Olin.

The car is called off its regular patrol duty every time anyone on campus needs immediate medical attention, whether it's a heart attack, broken leg or any sort of injury or illness which requires use of a stretcher or the resuscitator-inhalator. This includes electrocutions, drownings and gas inhalations.

Each of the department's 32 officers is thoroughly trained

All officers are trained in advanced first aid, and llare qualified first aid instructors.

When Campus Police receive a call for emergency transportation to Olin, the request is relayed directly to the patrolling stretcher car. In the time it takes the patrolman to acknowledge the request, the car becomes a rescue vehicle.

Arriving at the scene, the police officer administers any needed first aid to the victim.

The officer also radios back to headquarters in case additional assistance is needed. After the first aid is given, the person is transported to the hospital which has been advised by telephone that the stretcher car is Within two or three minutes, the patient is at the emergency entrance to Olin. The officer turns the patient over to medical attendants, reports back to police headquarters by radio and resumes his patrol.

When a coed living in a residence hall becomes sick during the night and needs transportation to Olin, her graduate adviser may call the police and request transportation.
