

Jeers, Cheers Greet Proposed Rights Ordinance

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

The introduction of the ordinance to make discrimination unlawful in East Lansing brought both protest and support from a group of 200 citizens at a noisy city council meeting Monday night at City Hall.

The ordinance, which had been referred to City Attorney Daniel C. Learned to be drawn up in legal form, was recommended April 8 by the Human Relations Commission. It is expected that the council will vote on the ordinance at their next meeting June 6.

The ordinance declares the opportunity to obtain employment and housing and to use public accommodations ranging from billiard parlors to escalators "without discrimination solely because of race, color, religion or national origin" a civil right.

"It shall be unlawful for any person to deprive any other person of this civil right," the ordinance reads.

The proposed ordinance sets up a procedure where a person claiming that his civil rights have been violated may complain to the Human Relations Commission, which, if discovering a violation did in fact occur, will attempt to conciliate the matter.

If efforts at conciliation fail, the commission may refer the alleged violation to the city attorney who may seek injunctive relief in a higher court.

Amid cries from students of "Read it! Read it!" Learned read the proposed ordinance out of the agenda sequence.

Acting Mayor William Hanel said the ordinance could not be voted on that evening due to a section of the city's charter prohibiting the introduction of and voting on the same ordinance at one meeting.

Everyone, from a landlady to a student demonstrator, wanted to speak during the time for "persons to be heard from the floor." The council meeting lasted until midnight, partly due to the many comments on the ordinance.

"This framework seems to me to be not acceptable," said Sandra Jenkins, Birmingham, Ala., sophomore, and head of the campus chapter of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. "There are no punitive penalties in the proposal."

"This city has a choice of establishing ghettos and slum districts or integrating," she continued, as members of the crowd jeered. "Conciliation should be within the legal framework."

Committee To Divide Guidelines

Separate Study For Publications

By ANDREW MOLLISON
State News Staff Writer

Plans to issue a separate statement on University policy towards student publications were made public during an open hearing held Monday by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

Apparently, the committee has been unable to fit its recommendations in this area into the framework of its general guidelines for rules and structures of the University affecting the academic freedom of students.

"We've set the question of publications aside for special consideration," said Frederick Williams, chairman of the committee. His revelation came during questioning of Heyward Ehrlich, assistant professor of American thought and language. Ehrlich opened his testimony by presenting a petition signed by 40 faculty members of the Dept. of American Thought and Language. The 40 signers said that they:

"Uphold the principles of academic freedom for students as framed by the American Assn. of University Professors, and urge the Williams Committee to adopt these principles so that they may be carried into practice at once at Michigan State University."

Ehrlich said in explanation that he thought publication policy is a sore point at MSU, although "in such areas as classroom teaching, fair grading practices, proper keeping of student records and fairness in disciplinary violations" the committee "is to be heartily commended for its ardent and prolonged labors."

He proposed that "eventually, the University should change the place of the State News within the University structure."

"The State News should be organized upward from a base of its own staff, not downward as an instrument of University policy," Ehrlich said. "While such a change cannot be achieved overnight, it should be accepted in principle and carried out as soon as possible."

Zeitgeist, The Paper and similar publications "should not be driven underground. . . they should enjoy the same autonomy and same parity before the law as the State News."

Although he said that he didn't want to review recent history, Ehrlich made two obvious references to the recent deauthorization of The Paper.

"Certain papers should not enjoy the benefit of student taxation while others are harrassed in their editorial content, printing and distribution," he said at one point.

"As long as authorization is a plum for goody-goody publications, you'll have others who thumb their nose at it," he said at another.

He also proposed that more specific guidelines for the area of publications be proposed. The Williams committee has already issued guidelines for three other areas during its six-month probe of the University's policies and practices which affect student's academic freedom.

Violinist Watches Son At ROTC Ceremonies

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Editor

One of the world's greatest violinists went virtually unnoticed at ROTC Commissioning ceremonies Tuesday.

He wanted it that way.

For Rubin (Dave) Rubinoff, known to millions of Americans by the title, "Rubinoff and his Magic Violin," this was not his performance. It was his son's.

His son, Ronald R. Rubinoff, Detroit senior, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Signal Corps. Rubinoff, who graduates this spring, has been editor of the ROTC newspaper, Esprit de Corps, and has worked for nearly two years as an advertising salesman with the State News. He will be employed with Campbell Ewald Advertising Agency in Detroit after graduation.

The elder Rubinoff, who is now 73, has charmed millions with his $100,000 Stradivarius. He is credited with doing more to popularize violin music than any other man.

On the day his son was born, Rubinoff was notified of the news while playing at the White House for President Franklin D. Roosevelt. He has played for Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy.

He holds the world's title for audience attendance at a single musical performance. During the 1940's more than 225,000 turned out for his open-air Grant Park performance in Chicago. Another 25,000 had to be turned away at the gate.

But radio supplied the biggest boost to Rubinoff's popularity. His inclusion of popular tunes with classical and semi-classical music won him the hearts of radio audiences across the nation.

A "child prodigy," he began the violin at the age of 5. At 14, he graduated from the Warsaw Conservatory. Victor Herbert's early recognition of his talents helped to launch him on his career.

Rudy Vallee, while a student at Yale, became an admirer of Rubinoff and later introduced him to radio. As a conductor and soloist on the Chase & Sanborn Hour, the Rexall, the Pebeo, and the Chevrolet programs, he became known to millions.

Among some of the greats who appeared with him were Eddie Cantor, Jack Benny, Maurice Chevalier, Jimmy Durante, Al Jolson, and others.

Rubinoff now tours the nation for about nine months of the year.

U.S. Defense Of Freedom Proven Valid

The United States has long assisted other freedom-loving peoples in obtaining the inalienable human rights history has proved valid and worth defending, Army Major Gen. Kenneth G. Wickham said at ROTC commissioning ceremonies Tuesday.

Wickham spoke before 78 senior Army and Air Force ROTC cadets who received a military commission of second lieutenant for achievement in their academic and ROTC studies.

"Our country has committed itself many times and on many fronts in opposing those forces which would destroy or deny men their fundamental rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," Wickham said.

Wickham said that as commissioned officers of our Armed Forces, ROTC cadets are a vital and integral part of this national philosophy. "You have willingly pledged your strengths and your abilities at a time when men and nations more eagerly than ever before turn their thoughts to the highest reaches of human aspiration," he said.

"The experience and responsibility you will gain in the Army or Air Force are unmatched in civilian life for men of your age," Wickham said.

GOP Support Seen For Romney, Javits

Red China Criticizing Intellectuals

Hong Kong (UPI)--Anti-Party intellectuals conspired in an "organized manner" to undermine Mao Tse-Tung and the Chinese Communist party, according to Red China newspapers received here.

They said a "serious class struggle" is being waged against the "anti-party black gang."

It was the first open admission by the Red Chinese that the intellectuals currently under fire by Peking had been operating under some form of leadership.

The newspapers, copies of which recently reached this British Crown Colony bordering on mainland China, carried extensive reports on articles published condemning the intellectuals and on public meetings called to denounce their activities.

The most significant articles were published in Canton Yang Cheng Wan Pao (Canton Evening News) which has closely followed the lead of the army's Liberation Daily in attacking writers, historians, artists and others.

They included a dispatch on a meeting held under Red army sponsorship in Canton to denounce "the anti-party, anti-socialist words and actions of the Teng To black gang."

Buzzing Bees Bug Snyder Sleepers

A prankster let loose about 2,000 honey bees in Snyder Hall around midnight Monday.

An unidentified male brought the bees into the residence hall in a pillow case and released them on the third floor. Several Snyder residents were stung.

George Cole, head adviser of Snyder, sprayed insecticide in an attempt to slow the bees' progress. Several residents began swatting at them.

There were still some bees in the hall at 2 p.m., a Snyder resident reported.

Partymen Appeal To Moderates

Washington (UPI)--Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's suggestion of a 1968 Romney-Javits ticket gives Republican moderates a combination many of them might be willing to chance in an effort to retain party control.

Naturally, there are dissenters to the New York governor's statement Monday that there is "a growing feeling among Republicans it might be nice" to have Michigan Gov. George Romney run for president and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., for vice president two years from now.

While not making a formal endorsement, Rockefeller said "with candidates of the caliber of these two great leaders we will be returned by the people of this country to national trust and responsibility."

Partisans of Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, who currently is on an inspection trip to South Viet Nam, gaged somewhat at Rockefeller's suggestion of a ticket they think their own man might well head.

There was no immediate comment from former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who has been traveling through the country preaching a middle road approach to the Republican future.

The moderates are looking toward him with less and less enthusiasm as he picks up more and more support from the conservatives who went down to defeat with Barry Goldwater in 1964.

Nixon, now a New York attorney, wouldn't say Monday whether he will be a presidential candidate in 1968, but told a Miami reporter that he and Romney probably are the top starters.

Romney is obligated to win big in his bid for re-election in Michigan this fall if he wants to stay in the front ranks of potential contenders for the top nominations in 1968.

He currently is talking about how the Johnson administration is "leading the nation down the road of inflation" and also has taken a critical stand against Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

Most party leaders say that neither an all-out liberal nor an all-out conservative is likely to be nominated in 1968. Romney looks good to some leaders as a possible compromise candidate in this situation.

Rebel General In Hue Vows Continued Fight

HUE, SOUTH VIET NAM (UPI)--A top rebel general in this hold-out northern city vowed Tuesday that efforts to topple Premier Nguyen Cao Ky "will continue" despite the fall to Da Nang and government promises of elections in September.

Course Approval Halts Confusion

Academic advising should be completed no later than Friday by all students who plan to enroll either summer or fall term.

According to Registrar Horace C. King, students must obtain approval from their academic adviser by then for all courses taken.

King suggested that this assures the student that all classes he takes are appropriate for the student's major.

He listed confusion about physical education requirements as an example of the problems that might arise if the academic adviser is not consulted by the student.

According to University regulations, as listed in the catalog and schedule books, Honors College membership does not exempt students from the physical education course requirements.

Anti-government leader Lt. Gen. Ton That Dinh told newsmen after holding a strategy meeting with other military leaders and national Buddhist political leader Tri Quang that "the population is with me."

Even as Dinh, who appeared weary and discouraged, was denouncing Ky as a "criminal," the premier went before a political Congress in Saigon to issue a new warning for national unity.

While the congress was in session with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge sitting in a front row seat, about 400 Buddhist monks and nuns staged a brief, silent protest in front of the U.S. Embassy.

Another 400 militant students with anti-American and anti-government banners marched into the heart of Saigon but were turned away by riot police when they attempted to march on the congress meeting hall.

No More Voting Off Campus?

The election on compensation may have been the last time for the off-campus living units to have their own ballot boxes, according to Mike Levine, ASMSU elections commissioner.

In the election on compensation, held last Thursday, 24 of the 68 off-campus living units did not even pick up their ballot boxes. Over a third of the fraternity houses, and about a fifth of the sorority houses, did not participate in the election.

The practice of having ballot boxes in the off-campus living units was initiated only about a year ago.

From the standpoint of ASMSU, Levine said, the large amount of extra work involved in having ballot boxes for every off-campus living unit is not justified by the extent to which these units participate.

Almost every student, whether he lives in a residence hall or off campus, is in one of the non-living-unit polling places (the Union, the International Center and Bessey and Berkeley halls) at least once during any class day, he said.

Many of the off-campus living units which did take their election materials were late in returning them, or simply didn't return them. ASMSU officials had to pick up several of the ballot boxes themselves.

The responsibility for conducting the elections in the living units rests with the elections commissioner of each unit. ASMSU's responsibility is to prepare the election materials and to check out any irregularities in voting procedures.

It is the responsibility of each living unit's elections commissioner to make certain that the ballot boxes, properly manned, are available for the residents of his living unit at the specified times.

In the cases where ballot boxes were not available in living units, the responsibility is the unit's elections commissioner, said Jim Graham, chairman of the Board of ASMSU.

In West McDonel, there were no ballot boxes between 5 and 6 p.m., it was reported to the State News Monday. Graham said that this was a failure on the part of the elections commissioner of West McDonel, not of AS-

MSU, as it was in the case of the off-campus units which did not participate.

Not The Time Or Place

TRUSTEES CLAIR WHITE and Don Stevens offered a novel proposal to solve MSU's financial problems at the last Board of Trustees meeting. By proposing that Michigan students pay tuition according to need, their proposal was more novel than practical.

Under the proposal, which is similar to our present federal income tax structure, students from families with less than $5,000 annual income would pay no tuition. Students from families above $5,000 would pay from $324 to $1,020.

At first glance, the proposal looks like a fine humanitarian idea. But the question is, will it work?

FIRST, WHAT about students from families with above a $10,000 annual income? It is doubtful how anxious students from such families will be either in desiring to return to MSU or coming here in the first place. This would be equally true if MSU was the only school to adopt a system of progressive fees. For some students, it could mean an increase of nearly $700 a year in tuition and fees—not a very strong inducement to stay.

Second, is the administrative problem caused by establishing such a proposal. Each student's family would have to file an elaborate form with the University each year to establish a basis for each student's fees. Besides the inconvenience it would cause to parents and students, a new division might have to be added to the University bureaucracy to handle the additional paper work.

THIRD, IN A period of prosperity, with abundant scholarships and loans based on need available, a sharply progressive fee structure appears unnecessary. Numerous jobs go unfilled each term at MSU. So, the funds are available, if the desire is shown.

The Stevens-White proposal is not without merit though. However, if adopted now, it would result in a loss of students from upper middle and upper class families. The plan needs more research and should be a cooperative effort with other Michigan colleges and universities.

TO BE SUCCESSFUL, a progressive fee structure would have to be adopted by the other large state universities. Now is not the time; nor is MSU the place to initiate such a proposal alone.

Draft Silence Disturbing

WHITE HOUSE REACTION to Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's draft alternatives trial balloon has been disappointing.

Last Wednesday McNamara suggested that youths be given the opportunity to serve in the Peace Corps as an alternative to the draft.

MCNAMARA TOSSED OUT the proposal in a speech delivered at a meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors—a group certain to publicize his comments.

Immediately speculation rose. No one knew for sure what McNamara meant. Some thought he had suggested that all youths be required to serve the nation for two years. But were women to be included? Would everyone have the alternative of serving in the Peace Corps or anti-poverty program instead of in the army? No one was sure.

ALL MCNAMARA HAD said was: "... let me suggest a concrete proposal for our own present generation to ask every young person in the United States to give two years of service to his country—whether in one of the military services, in the Peace Corps or in some other volunteer developmental work at home or abroad."

The President could have settled all the confusion created by McNamara's broad statement simply by explaining plans in a little more detail. But instead, Johnson chose to keep the country in the dark.

THE PRESIDENT CLAIMED that McNamara said nothing new. In effect, Johnson said this whole business about an alternative to the draft was all old hat.

On the contrary, McNamara's two-year alternatives program is something new, and the U.S. wants to know more about it NOW. Many students want to know if they could qualify for the alternatives program. And if everyone had to serve, many women would have to alter long-term plans.

MCNAMARA'S STATEMENT is particularly timely because the present draft law expires in 1967.

It seems as if Johnson is just trying to play it safe—bust out a trial balloon and see how the kids and old folks react.

MOST PEOPLE AGREE that the draft law needs updating, and McNamara's proposal does sound attractive. But the President should explain to the public exactly what he has in mind. No one can accurately judge the proposal's merits until the details are announced.

TO WHITE HOUSE GUARDS

Summer TV Is Dullsville

By ALVIN SPIVAK
UPI Writer

WASHINGTON -- Backstairs at the White House: The Secret Service is experimenting with closed circuit television as a means of keeping track of the larger picketing groups at the White House.

When about 8,000 anti-war demonstrators filled past the executive mansion last weekend, there were two small TV cameras—one perched on a guard house roof, the other on a tripod on the lawn—recording their march.

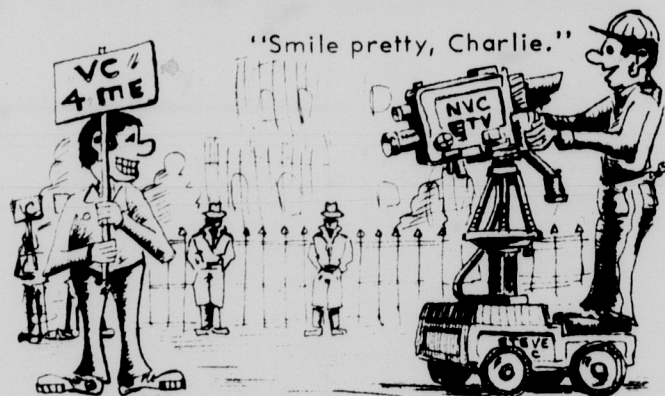

In line with the secrecy of their service, agents refused to tell reporters exactly what they hoped to accomplish with the cameras.

But there were two apparent purposes for the new electronic equipment:

--To provide a continuous visual sweep of the sidewalk so that agents at a central control point could locate trouble if and when it happens and dispatch police officers immediately to handle it.

--To make videotape recordings for later use in identifying picketers.

There was no truth to a rumor that the cameras

There were so that the President could watch the event on television.

Johnson has three sets in his bedroom, and three in his office, so that he can watch news shows on all three networks simultaneously and switch to the sound of whichever interests him.

But the last TV "special" he would want to view would be a one-hour closed circuit spectacular on pickets at the White House—even though these, by and large, were not as vocally offensive as others.

Johnson has complained, in the past, about demonstrators who shouted chants from the sidewalks on side and disturbed the peace that a man and his family at home—which is what the White House is—entitled to enjoy.

A number of the demonstrators were repeaters, members of groups which had marched in front of the White House in protest against the Viet Nam war over and over and over before.

These could be spotted, at times, by the way they smiled and posed for official secret service, police and FBI photographers stationed near the White House gate to make candid snapshots of a number of participants.

Picketing has gotten so old hat that it is at a point now where the cameramen not only recognize some of the marchers, but some of the marchers recognize the cameramen.

OUR READERS SPEAK

Student Board 'Pros' Now

To the Editor:

Congratulations to our beloved Student Board! They have now become professionals. For those who might be skeptical of this statement just because they lost $7,000 on Winter Carnival, I have concrete proof in refutation.

By merely reviewing their tactics in securing pay for themselves, they have proven their professional skill, at least in the realm of manipulation.

With the first wave of student protest about compensation, over 3,000 students signed petitions protesting the action by the Student Board. This, I suppose, might be construed to mean that the student body wanted to give a yes or no answer as to whether they approved of student government compensation on principle.

Instead, we got the chance to vote on whether we wanted the Student Board to get a little compensation or a lot of compensation. When two of the more responsible members of the board, John Mongeon and Jim Sink, introduced proposals that the vote by the students should be for or against compensation per se, the motions were scoffed at as "merely public opinion polls", although this is precisely what the students had demanded.

Jim Graham called the referendum "a narrow vote of confidence in our present student government." I would rather call it a vote of fear, for many people who opposed compensation voted for the measure because they feared that future boards would vote themselves as much as they wanted if the amendment were defeated. This distortion of the vote would not have happened if the referendum would have been a simple yes or no vote on whether to allow compensation.

Also, the board ran a large ad in the State News on election day calling for a yes vote. This ad was paid for out of public funds, which of course meant the Student Board was spending our money in an attempt to get pay for itself without our consent.

A combination of these two factors, fear and public funds, was enough to secure passage of this amendment, for, if only 36 no votes out of the almost 5,600 votes cast were changed by these tactics, it was enough to pass this constitutional amendment.

No ethical body on campus could have pulled this off. It is unfortunate that you can't make a few fast bucks as easily as you can make a few fast votes.

About That Ad

To the Editor:

Thursday's State News contained an advertisement urging a "yes" vote on the compensation amendment. The cost of this quarter-page advertisement, $68, was paid by ASMSU.

What right has ASMSU to take the tax money from all students and use it for such advertising? Why should students who opposed the amendment be forced to finance propaganda favoring the amendment?

He's Going; He's Happy

To the Editor:

Your editorial of May 18 makes a mockery of the principles of justice by asserting on the one hand that The Paper should have had a hearing, and yet insisting that the decision, made without a hearing, was a correct one. My understanding has always been that such a hearing should precede determination of guilt, and yet the State News, in its awesome omniscience, feels as able as the Publications Board to render a verdict without having heard all the arguments and evidence on both sides. One might well infer that the real intent, conscious or unconscious, of your plea for a hearing, is merely to try and lend respectability to a thoroughly disreputable proceeding.

To move to a more general subject, I would like to say publicly that recent events, including The Paper outrage, have strengthened me in my conviction that I have been wise in severing connections with MSU. Who knows how many will follow?

To Make Or Not To Make, Etc. . .

To the Editor:

Was Queen Isabella on the make when she financed Columbus? I was glad to see, in S.N. 5/18/66, the inclusion of Ramparts editor Sol Stern's admission that Ramparts, too, was on the make; that Ramparts was striving for sensationalism. What puzzles me, however, is why S.N. didn't capitalize on the Ramparts' confession by blazoning it beneath the S.N. masthead, instead of disfiguring the story with the caption, "Ramparts Writer Says Hannah's Basis Phony," and then covering it with a lead story on the slaying of a government (FBI) agent.

I'll forgive you kids for about everything except that caption. When you go away to school you should still remember some of the things your parents taught you and remember it's "DR. Hannah."

It might be a good idea for the MSU trustees to take away your financial support, if only to see just how many of your now captive readers would buy your newspaper.

It is very obvious that S.N. is not on the make.

Check For STEP

To the Editor:

Last term, during the course of producing a few close-circuit television video tape presentations, we had the opportunity to learn about MSU's STEP program. We were, and still are, impressed by the dedication and devotion to the program which the STEP volunteers continue to show. We believe the STEP project to be one of the most worthwhile activities of its kind to be found on any campus today.

It appears however, that the old neurosis of MSU apathy has hit STEP. Funds are short, and all of the planned sources of funds have already been exhausted. It seems to us that it is now up to the student body to decide if STEP volunteers will be able to continue their work this summer. Surely there must be some residence hall houses that have funds left in their treasuries that will go to their dorm treasury if they are not spent by the end of the academic year. If, in some cases, the treasuries are exhausted, a small contribution from the house members would be a big help to the project.

We ask students to check and if their house treasury has any unused funds.

Intolerance

To the Editor:

I am surprised that the critics of the actors in the Viet Nam tragedy do not see them as the victims of universal conflict and national policies rather than the creators of them.

It does suggest, however, that intolerance is not limited to the real world and academic departments might look at the influence of their dogmas on others.

Exams Fair?

□ True □ False

Mark only one answer; the "best" possible answer; true or false. Think and you're dead. So it goes. And another bout only a week and a half away under the guise of final exams.

Since everyone around here is so concerned with testing, how come no one ever tests the objective test-makers on their test-making ability?

This is a conclusion indirectly lifted from a book called "The Tyranny of Testing," written by a fellow named Banesh Hoffmann who owns a rather impressive set of credentials.

On the book's jacket it is recorded that he used to pal around with Albert Einstein and they worked together writing papers on the theory of relativity. Hoffmann is an Oxford grad and has been a member of the Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton University.

His book is enjoyable reading for the student and should be required reading for any prof who has anything to say about the makeup of objective tests.

Here, according to Hoffmann, is how the professional test-makers go to it.

The person in charge is an expert in test making, usually with a background in psychology and he works on the test with other experts. Together they determine the scope of the test and map out a detailed structure. Then, as a result of much wrangling, they make up questions which are reasonably satisfactory to all.

But the test is far from ready.

The next step is to pre-test the questions on a group comparable to those for whom the tests are intended. And then it's back to work for the test-makers. Questions are rejected, rewritten and new ones are constructed.

Now we're ready for the preliminary tryout on a group of maybe several thousand candidates. These test scores are correlated with abilities of the candidates. Statistics are gathered and the test is provisionally validated and checked for readability. A descriptive manual is compiled to explain the test and an exact wording of instructions to the candidates is written.

After all this the professional test-makers hardly admit perfection. Meanwhile, old Doc Bluster back at MSU sits in his office and attempts to make up an objective test. Old Doc is faced with the same pitfalls as the pros. Most likely his test seeks only the "best" answer rather than the correct one. It will be limited, ambiguous, maybe suspect to maliciousness, and the creative student or thinker will get hung up.

Most every student has experienced these pitfalls in one form or another. Many pros are vaguely aware of them but often unintentionally fall into them.

Suppose the tester simply states: "The sky is blue, True or False?" Obviously false and a poor question because the sky isn't always blue. But if we stick in "always" we have a telltale word and the answer is a dead giveaway. Or is it? Anyone who has flown above the clouds knows that the sky is always blue. So the thinking student, hoping old Doc has been up in a plane, marks "true." Meanwhile, the realist, knowing "not to read into the question," feels safe in marking "false."

Hoffmann says that the professional objective testers are concerned only with the final choice, not with the quality of reasoning that led to it. Professors lament, however, that they have no choice because of huge classes. To this Hoffmann replies:

"A professor who gives only true-false tests mocks the intellectual content of his course, and no amount of pleading that he has too many students can cover his betrayal of academic ideals and obligations. If classes are too large the remedy is to reduce their size. . . . When the professor bows to expediency and uses these tests he does worse than give the tests an aura of respectability; he undermines a major argument for the reduction of class size."

"Not everything is true or false. Not everything is either black or white. Not every question can be answered yes or no. It is not for nothing that our language has its ifs and buts, its yet's and however's, its nevertheless and notwithstanding's, its possibilities and perhaps's, and its on-the-other-hands."

So good luck on finals--ESPECIALLY you, Doc.

China Charges U.S. Ship Intrusion

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist China charged Tuesday that a U.S. warship intruded into its coastal waters off Kwangtung province in what it denounced as a "military provocation." The New China News Agency said the Peking Foreign Ministry had issued its 402nd "serious warning" following Tuesday's alleged incident.

Viet War Critical Test--Rusk

NEW YORK (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned Tuesday night that the United States must win in Viet Nam because the conflict there is a "critical test" of the so-called "wars of liberation" advocated by world Communism.

In an apparent reference to any Communist Chinese threat in Viet Nam and with an eye on Peking's recent third nuclear test explosion, Rusk said, "I believe it is widely understood that a thermonuclear aggression would not be a rational act."

Dirksen Back To Work

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate GOP leader Everett M. Dirksen said Tuesday the "time has come" for a meeting of bipartisan congressional leaders with President Johnson to clarify events in Viet Nam. Dirksen surprised his Senate colleagues by returning to work—on crutches—just two weeks after surgery to mend a broken thigh.

Wage Debate Opens In House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Opponents of legislation to increase the national minimum wage charged Tuesday it would drive small businessmen to the wall and put unskilled workers in the street.

Supporters replied that they had been listening to the same predictions for 28 years and they never came true.

These arguments opened two days of house debate on a bill that would raise the present $1.25 hourly minimum wage to $1.60 by Feb. 1, 1968 for 29.6 million workers now under the wage-hour law and provide coverage for 7.2 million new workers.

Downed Pilot Said Murdered

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas apparently murdered a U.S. Air Force pilot Tuesday after his observation plane was downed in the central highlands of South Viet Nam, American spokesmen said. Another American pilot was rescued when his plane was shot down over North Viet Nam.

Ky Pledges To Restore Order

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Victorious in Da Nang, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government pledged Tuesday to restore order elsewhere in the moutainous northern provinces because "a country that harbors open rebellion cannot survive."

On the other hand, Buddhist-led struggle committees still manned barricades in Hue, a Buddhist center and former capital 400 miles north of Saigon.

City Council

Miss Jenkins later asked those persons who were protesting the ordinance, "If you're not going to discriminate, why worry about it?"

Benjamin J. Hickok, 622 MAC Ave., and professor of American thought and language, asked, "How can certain minority groups enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness if they cannot buy certain property because of the pigmentation of their skin?"

One man said he was "reluctantly in favor" of the ordinance, but was wary about the wording which said the city attorney "may" seek an injunction from a higher court.

"I am very much impressed that the city attorney has spoken in the spirit of the city council, which has gone on record as being against discrimination," said Truman Morrison, 120 Oakland Dr. "The city attorney has given legal support to the council's stand by terming discrimination unlawful."

"A great number of persons in this community have voiced their support," Morrison continued. "I approve heartily of the wording of the ordinance and hope the council will act affirmatively."

"Does this mean that the property owner is deprived of the right to rent to whom he chooses?" a citizen questioned. "I thought the United States was supposed to be a free country!"

Several other property owners also spoke out against the ordinance on grounds that it would intrude upon their individual rights.

"I am vigorously opposed to having anyone telling me what to do," one citizen said.

"This is a choice between liberty and loss of liberty," another said. "There is no civil right to acquire the property of another without his consent."

"It is far better than a few of us give up a few of our rights so that a few may have all their rights," said Gary Sommer, 918 Rosewood, Ave., and recently an MSU graduate student.

"I am surprised at the people here tonight," Sommer said. "One side is trying to outdo the other in their applause. It reminds me of the Romans and the gladiators."

Kenneth Fife, Detroit junior and president of the campus chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said that the chapter supported the ordinance, although they felt it could have been stronger.

James Harrison of 923 Huntington Road, president of the East Lansing Democratic Club, announced that the executive committee of the organization endorsed the proposed amendment.

Letters were read from six citizens who supported the proposal.

Three citizens brought up the question of whether the issue should be brought to a public referendum.

Hanel limited citizens' comments at midnight, because he "wanted to get the meeting finished in one day."

Robert Lanzillotti, chairman of the MSU Dept. of Economics, will be the principal speaker.

Initiation ceremonies will precede the banquet. The new initiates include nine doctoral candidates, 36 in the master's program, 29 seniors and 10 juniors.

A special program for 90 business executives in special MSU master's degree programs in Detroit and Benton Harbor will also precede the banquet.

A panel discussion on new developments and challenges in business will be staged for the executives.

JOHNSON'S HOPES JOLTED

2 Aid Proposals Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee rejected two of President Johnson's proposals of revamping the foreign aid program Tuesday, jolting his hopes for an overhaul this year.

One proposal would have kept the program running for five years, instead of the traditional one-year extension. The committee voted, 11-6, to keep it to one year.

The other would, in effect, have let the House and Senate fix the actual amount of money for various programs each year through the Foreign Aid Appropriations Bill. The committee voted, 17-1, to keep the present authority for specific authorization ceilings on each major program. The present request is for $3.38 billion.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., voted against both Johnson proposals—a far cry from his arguments in the past that the Foreign Aid Program would be far more efficient if it were set up on a long-term basis.

He had threatened a revolt against the aid program last year if it were not extended for two years. The Johnson administration took his opposition into account when it sent up the program this year calling for a five-year time limit instead of one.

The Arkansas Democrat admitted to reporters that he changed his mind, and declared "I think it will make a better aid bill."

He said he did so because of the administration's "use of aid as a justification for intervention" in such areas as Viet Nam, and also the "proliferation of the aid program into more and more countries."

Both votes were tentative, subject to change before the committee completes work on the bill or votes on the final form of the measure as a whole.

In another foreign aid development, Secretary of State Dean Rusk reported to Fulbright that the United States has saved "many millions of dollars" by policing its aid programs overseas.

He said this was being done through the quiet efforts of an unpublicized group called the Office of the Inspector General of Foreign Assistance (IGA). The IGA, part of the State Dept., was set up at the urging of congress and began functioning in 1962.

'LEAVE THEM ALONE'

MSU Public Hearings Over

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer

A dispute between two state legislators over those committees should investigate the MSU-CIA affair was dismissed by one of them Tuesday as "much ado about nothing."

Speculation rose last week that the ad hoc committee's findings would be turned over to the committee on Colleges and Universities, because a few legislators felt it wasn't within the independent committee's province.

A few house members had criticized the investigating committee's chairman, Rep. Jack Faxon, D-Detroit, for acting individually and not as the chairman of an authorized house committee.

Rep. Vincent J. Pettipren, D-Wayne, chairman of the colleges and universities committee, said Tuesday he would invite Faxon to a committee meeting today to discuss the findings of the inquiry.

"We are interested in taking over the investigation only if it appears it is going beyond fiscal implications," Pettipren said.

If the report deals only with committee members' findings gained from the inquiry May 16, in as far as they're concerned it is ended, he said.

Faxon concurred saying, "This investigation is ended as far as any public hearings are concerned."

Faxon said Pettipren was at all times aware of what the committee was doing. In fact, he added, Pettipren was invited to participate in the hearing.

At the same time the house speaker's office has denied that a University of Michigan student had been hired at $150 per week primarily to assist Faxon.

Richard Miller, executive secretary to house speaker Joseph Kowalski, D-Detroit, said Monday that Mark Levin, U-M political science major, was hired as a full time research assistant at Kowalski's request. He added that any insinuation to the contrary was a "lot of garbage."

Faxon confirmed that Levin was working for the legislative service bureau and "not for me."

Levin, a day editor with the Michigan Daily, was hired May 15.

Pettipren, whose committee is responsible for researching the costs and expenditures of state colleges and universities, said, "If they (MSU) aren't doing anything wrong today let's leave them alone."

Citizens' Council Offers Measures To Aid Negroes

Washington (UPI)—Government guaranteed jobs, sweeping new civil rights laws and more than 100 other measures to aid Negroes were proposed Tuesday by a presidential panel.

The recommendations—some of which are likely to generate sharp controversy—came from the 30-member citizens' council appointed by President Johnson to direct the White House Conference on Negro Rights. The conference meets here June 1-2.

In a unanimous report submitted to the 2,400 conference participants as a basis for their discussions, the citizens' council asserted that "massive unemployment" is the most urgent problem confronting Negroes.

"Jobs must be provided without delay...and these jobs must be made available to Negroes at their existing level of skill attainment," the report declared. "To meet this need, the federal government must assume responsibility for providing employment to workers who have been unable to find a productive place in the regular job market on their own."

As one way of creating jobs for Negroes, it said the government should embark at once on "a large-scale federally financed public works program."

Some of the other recommendations were:

—Enactment of the administration's pending civil rights bill, with added provisions enabling victims of racial violence to bring civil damage suits in federal courts against those who have injured them, or if the perpetrators of violence are public officials, against the city, county or state which employs them.

—A federal law against housing discrimination, broad enough to cover all sales or rentals of housing whether or not federal money is involved.

—Sharper teeth in the existing federal law against job discrimination. Specifically, the council recommended that the law be extended to cover employees of small firms, private clubs, ed-

Bessone 'Coach-Of-The-Year'

Hockey coach Amo Bessone, whose team captured the national championship, was named MSU's "Coach of the Year" at the annual Varsity Club chicken fry Monday night.

Bessone was voted the honor by the captains of the 13 varsity sports.

Bessone's team had a slow start at the beginning of the season, but a last-ditch surge put State into second place in the four-team Big Ten race. The Spartans went on to win the NCAA championship at Minneapolis.

Bessone was surprised and delighted to be given this honor, and was quick to give much of the credit for it to this championship team.

"It was a pleasant surprise," said Bessone. "The 18 or 20 kids on the team stuck to it and never gave up."

"Those boys deserve as much credit as I received," he continued. "I never saw a team go into a tournament rated as such underdogs and play as well as they did."

Steve Juday, who won three letters in both football and baseball, received the President's Award as the outstanding athlete-scholar in the senior class. President Hannah presented the award.

New officers for the club are: Manny Ruschinski, president; Ken Genova, vice president; Digie Tryon, secretary; Gerry Fisher, treasurer; and Doug Volmar, sergeant-at-arms.

Clay In Egypt With Nasser

LONDON (AP)—Cassius Clay flew to Egypt Tuesday at the invitation of President Nasser and said he might be back within two months for another money-making defense of his world heavyweight title in Britain.

The opponent he mentioned was Karl Mildenberger of West Germany, the European champion.

As Clay left for a few days rest in the Egyptian sunshine, it was clear that boxing and closed-circuit television officials were eager to repeat the glittering financial success of his title defense against Henry Cooper in London Saturday.

That fight was watched by 40,000 fans and grossed $1.3 million, including closed circuit television rights.

Clay's share reportedly was around $280,000.

Promoter Harry Levene, who staged Saturday's fight, confirmed that a Clay-Mildenberger fight in Britain is under discussion.

He said such a fight could be beamed direct to the United States and the whole of Europe by television.

Clay has the prospect of making monumental earnings in Britain—with no restrictions on taking the money back to America.

A spokesman at the British treasury said "Clay is in the same category as any other non-resident entertainer. There is no restriction on importing goods or services from America."

"We sent The Beatles to the United States and they earn dollars. American entertainers come here and make money in their turn."

Batsmen Beat Broncos, 3-0; Holmes Hurls Five-Hitter

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

KALAMAZOO—Michigan State's baseball team closed out its season with a 3-0 victory over Western Michigan here Tuesday afternoon.

Dick Holmes pitched the Spartans to their 24th victory of the year. State finished the season with 13 losses and one tie.

Holmes, a senior righthander, scattered five Bronco hits in gaining his first shutout of the year. He struck out eight and walked two.

It was the Broncos' first loss of the year against a Big Ten school. They had beaten Big Ten champion Ohio State three times and Michigan twice before this game.

Western Michigan finished its regular season with a 19-3 record. The Broncos will compete in the NCAA district tournament this weekend after winning the Mid-American Conference

A double steal accounted for the first Spartan run in the second inning. John Walters scampared home from third while Tom Binkowski stole second.

In the third, Walters scored again as Binkowski tripled him home from first.

State added its final run in the fifth. John Frye singled home Steve Polisar, who had singled and had taken second on a wild pitch.

Bruiser Must Pay $15,000

DETROIT (AP)—A federal judge ordered wrestler Dick the Bruiser Tuesday to pay a former Detroit policeman $15,000 damages for injuries the officer suffered trying to break up a fight.

Judge Fred Kaess of U.S. District Court awarded the damages to Andrews Meholic, 42.

Meholic, who since has resigned as a policeman, was one of eight policemen called to a Detroit bar April 23, 1963, to break up a fight involving The Bruiser, whose real name is Richard Afflis.

Meholic charged he suffered a broken hand when he was grabbed by The Bruiser.

'Sinister' Plot Behind Jr. 500

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Editor

Five Greeks were released from Olin Monday, after spending two days there recovering from injuries suffered during the annual Junior 500 race held last Saturday.

Now there's nothing inherently funny about this fact. However, when certain theories about the purpose or function of the Junior 500 are discussed, those five hapless fraternity men all appear to be victims of a calculated sinister plot.

The plot unfolded itself at 3 p.m. Sunday morning in my dorm when a Lambda Chi Alpha, whose tongue had been loosened by drink, sat smoking in a lounge chair, exposing his secret to all who would listen.

Perhaps I should first describe the events leading up to this, before continuing. One of the topics of discussion in my dorm last weekend was the trials and tribulations of pledging a fraternity. The case in point was a youth down the hall, president of his pledge class, who fears that he might be blackballed by the actives in his house.

Complications set in because he's the only member of his pledge class. As he explains it, his fraternity had a slow rush this year. He embarked on his one-man pledge raid and trip last weekend, and to insure a safe get-away from his fraternity brothers, he removed the distributor heads from all his brothers' cars, parked in the house lot.

He neglected, however, to leave a note explaining where the heads could be found. Saturday morning, the fraternity brothers couldn't get their cars started and were all late for their draft-deferment tests.

Not good. So the poor pledge, now threatened by being blackballed by his enraged brothers, told his story of woe to the inebricated Lambda Chi Alpha.

The Lambda Chi thought it was all very funny and decided to add to the merriment of the hour.

"The Jr. 500 is the biggest and greatest fraternity event in the country," he boasted. "Fraternities all over the country copy our race."

Then he let out a terrific horse laugh, and his shiny red nose glowed even more. "It's really the funniest thing you've ever seen," he added.

"I don't follow you," I said, somewhat confused by it all. "Don't you see how ridiculous it is?" he asked. "We set up the whole race—the stands, the loud speakers—the whole bit."

"We stand around in our sports jackets, with big smiles on our faces, while guys from every other fraternity on campus go running around this track, pushing another guy in a cart," he explained.

"It's real hot outside, and these guys run their heads off, trying to beat the other fraternities. They make real jerks of themselves—don't you see?"

"And the guys who finish first are the biggest jerks in the race. It's a real riot watching," he continued.

"One guy falls and cuts his mouth and chips some teeth. One guy collapses in the heat. Another guy cuts up his legs, falling in the street," he said.

"The whole thing's so ridiculous, yet nobody understands it."

Bengals Face Indians In Struggle For First

The surging Detroit Tigers will face the league-leading Cleveland Indians in a set of games that appears to be the most important four-game series of the season.

The Tigers have been hit by injuries to outfielders Al Kaline and Mickey Stanley, but Kaline appears ready for tonight.

The fourth and final game of the series will be played Thursday night, and the Tigers are expected to go with their ace lefthander, Mickey Lolich, while Cleveland manager Birdie Tebbets has Sonny Sibert ready to pitch.

Poet Eckman, His Guitar To Culture--Fest Tonight

By STEVE HATHAWAY

Frederick Eckman, a Bowling Green State University professor, writes poetry, plays the guitar and sings folksongs. He might well be described as a one man "culture-fest."

At 9 tonight, Eckman will give a reading and discussion of his work at Spiro's Cafeteria. He's promised to bring his guitar.

Eckman has published four books of poetry: "XXV Poems," "The Exile," "Hot & Cold: Running," and "The Epistemology of Loss." In addition to his literary and academic work, Eckman has appeared on radio and television as well as in night clubs and coffee houses with his guitar. His appearance is the fifth in the "profiles series" sponsored by Zeitgeist literary magazine.

Eckman's poetry is difficult to find in East Lansing, but that which is available seems to have developed from a romantic view of experience to an ironic view which leaves the reader with the proper degree of doubt as to what the poet actually means.

His later works, tending more to this ironic view, are generally superior to his earlier poetry since they require the reader to bring his own experience into the reading. If the reader cannot relate the poem to his own experience, much of the value of the poem is missed.

"The Starlings," published in "Poetry Magazine" in 1955, is a good example of one of Eckman's earlier poems. In the first section of the poem, two lovers quarrel as they drive in the country. Their frustration at arguing is ended, however, with the advent of the flock of screaming starlings:

When they came, suddenly as death, we were startled and the car slowed itself for their ugliness: bitter, raw voices, thousands of them; and a storm of flapping shrapnel. Were they an agony or a black jeer? We never knew, but after their passing you touched my sleeve, and the world was clean.

The alternative presented by the screaming birds serves to reestablish the feeling of mutual need in the lovers and they are reconciled. Unlike "The Starlings," Eckman's later poems often surprise the reader.

For example, "After Work," published in 1958, deals with a common event, a man picking a woman up after she is through for the day. Eckman begins by saying: "There, as usual, she stood," and goes on to describe how she looks standing there in her loneliness. However, the reader is taken completely by surprise in the last stanza:

"Hard, hard--to say these things well; but there she stood, & I had Hell's own time finding a place to park the car."

The last image throws an entirely new light on the earlier images. The point of view of the narrator isn't as clear as it was and the reader isn't sure what the narrator's feelings are. This poem demands more of the reader than "The Starlings" does.

"The Epistemology of Loss," published in 1963, contains some of Eckman's best work and will be available at the reading. "Dialogue: A Populace, A Professional," is an interplay of thoughts between a Dervish and a crowd. The Populace complains of its lost institutions and rituals and asks the Dervish what he is doing. He answers:

A hieroglyph means something, a rune means something else, a bleeding mouth little at all in recollected calm. I am whirling:

it is a way of life.

The Populace says that despair tears its members and they fear the power of the Dervish.

General Motors Corp., the industry giant which makes more than half the nation's entire auto output and suffered the sharpest decline in May's first 10 days, reported its sales reversed the Linne said "the current salary and expenses for state legislators are inadequate to meet their current personal and family living costs."

YPSILANTI (AP)—City Council authorized City Attorney Kenneth Bronson Monday to redraft a proposed fair housing ordinance and prepare an analysis of sections that might be controversial. No dates were set for hearings on the proposal, which would outlaw racial discrimination in sale, rent, inheritance or financing of residences.

DETROIT (AP)—The Automobile Club of Michigan predicts a record 2.7 million cars will travel 687 million miles during the upcoming 78-hour Memorial Day weekend. The number of vehicles would represent a 13 per cent increase over the total for last year's weekend.

DETROIT (AP)—The president of the Michigan Federation of Teachers asserted Tuesday Michigan legislators "deserve the proposed $5,000 pay raise recommended by the Special Citizens Committee."

The support came in a statement from Henry B. Linne, released here by the AFL-CIO

"Let's unplug the computer, boys!
Start thinking!"

A lot of people believe that someday computers will do all their thinking for them.

Well, a funny thing is going to happen on the way to the future:

You're going to have to think harder and longer than ever.

Computers can't dream up things like Picturephone service, Telstar® satellite, and some of the other advances in communications we have made. Of course, we depended on computers to solve some of the problems connected with their development. But computers need absolutely clear and thorough instructions, which means a new and tougher discipline on the human intelligence.

And it will take more than a computer to create a pocket phone the size of a matchbook, let's say...or find a practical way to lock a door or turn off an oven by remote telephone control, or to make possible some of the other things we'll have someday.

It takes individuals...perhaps you could be one...launching new ideas, proposing innovations and dreaming dreams.

And someday, we're going to have to find a way to dial locations in space.

Makes you think.

Talents Rewarding For ROTC Cadets

Seven cadets from the MSU Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC) and seven cadets from the Air Force ROTC received awards Friday at the 11th Annual Awards Dinner held in Detroit's Cobo Hall.

Glenn E. Loney, Huntington Woods freshman (army) and Frederick P. Lawrence, Seattle, Wash., freshman (air force) won Kelsey-Heys Co. awards.

John M. Haines, Salt Lake City, Utah, sophomore and Harvey D. Dahljelm, Lansing sophomore, won Detroit Free Press Medals.

George A. Reynolds, New Castle, Pa., junior and John W. Weinig, Truro, Mass., junior, won Ford Motor Co. awards.

Edward J. Hermolan, Keego Harbor senior and Robert J. Centilla, Kalamazoo senior won Detroit News Medals.

Edward R. Bates, Flint sophomore, and John H. Cross, Taft, Texas, sophomore, won Michigan Aerospace Foundation awards.

William F. Kale, Cleveland, Ohio, junior, won the Army Association award and Thomas E. Pratt, Rochester senior, won the Air Force Assn. award.

The awards dinner honors cadets from Army, Navy and Air Force ROTC detachments throughout the state. Cadets came from as far away as Michigan Technological University in Houghton to attend the dinner.

The awards are sponsored by various industries, military associations and newspapers throughout the state. They are presented to outstanding cadets for academic achievement and for leadership potential.

AID TO COMMUNITY RELATIONS

MSU May Get Police Research Center

By CRAIG LACLAIR

Michigan State could be the site of the nation's first Police Planning and Research Center if enough interest can be shown by the state legislature and leaders in the field of police administration.

The proposed facility would be a center for the collection of data and research materials in the area of municipal law enforcement, according to Bruce Olson, spokesman for the Dept. of Police Administration and Public Safety.

"There is a critical need for broader channels of communication between the police and the community in which they serve, as well as among the police themselves," Olson said. "It is the objective of the center to raise the conceptual level of administrators to bridge the gulf between the police and the community."

There is no American equivalent to such a center, Olson said. At present there is no facility in the country which can collect and assess the research on municipal law enforcement.

Consequently, much research in this area is repetitious.

A constant flow of communication must be developed so that the police can be closer to the people of their community.

Some people feel that the police have isolated themselves, Olson said. But actually, two-thirds of police functions occur when the population is at rest.

The collection of data on manpower needs and certain criminological figures is necessary if these problems are to be solved.

"No one knows for sure how many policemen there are in the state of Michigan," Olson said, "or for that matter the number of police departments throughout the state. There is no reference point in Michigan for one to check; to whom can one turn for help?"

A question which continually arises is how to prepare for the future manpower needs. Detroit, for example, will lose 60 per cent of its force between 1970-75. Data sources must be available for one to begin to try to solve these problems.

An informed citizenry is necessary to help reduce the crime rates. This can not be accomplished if there is no central facility for Michigan. The census figures go out of date too rapidly to help.

Olson feels that it is necessary to combine the sources which are available in this field so that the police in Michigan can reach their full potential.

"The techniques of adult education could be applied to this field so that police administrators could keep up to date on new developments. The flaw in our educational process now is that the system is cycled. Two to three years go by before the policeman can attend another clinic to gain more knowledge," Olson said.

The proposed Police Planning and Research Center could be at Michigan State, Olson said, so that the facilities of the Library and the Police Administration Dept. could be used.

If such a center could be established, several steps would be taken to insure the "constant flow of information."

"The center could publish a periodical to keep developments in the field known to those interested," Olson said. "Also, a monthly column could be sent to daily and weekly newspapers in Michigan to keep the citizenry informed. Finally, awards could be made to those in the field for noteworthy projects which are pertinent to the state of Michigan."

The proposal for the Center is the result of a request by Arthur Brandstatter, professor and director of the Dept. of Police Administration and Public Safety.

Petitions For Cavanagh Circulated

Petitions are being circulated throughout campus residence halls and off-campus living units this week to elicit support for Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh.

Cavanagh is competing with former Michigan governor G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat formally held by the late Patrick V. McNamara.

The petitions, being distributed by a group called Campus For Cavanagh, are an attempt to show Cavanagh's support among Michigan's academic communities, said Jeffrey Marcus, off-campus coordinator of the project.

Similar petitions are being circulated at other Michigan colleges and universities.

Signatures are being obtained on an informal basis, Marcus said. They will not be used except to indicate support for Cavanagh.

The drive will continue through the end of this term.
