NORTH VIET AMBUSH, MASSACRE

Wounded Marines Executed

SAIGON (UPI) -- Communist North Vietnamese troops executed at least six wounded U.S. Marines captured when their company fell into a bloody jungle ambush, U.S. survivors said Monday. They said the Communists moved methodically through the ranks of the wounded, shooting in the head anyone who moved.

"It was darn near like a massacre," said Cpl. Raymond L. Powell, 22, of Kansas City, Mo., after remnants of the Marines "India" company battled their way out of the trap near the North Vietnamese border.

The battered Marines literally stacked their dead in a jungle clearing littered with blood-soaked bandages and the discarded boots of the dead and wounded. One Marine medic, exhausted after what he called "that long night of hell," estimated there were only 19 men left out of his platoon of 40 men.

The Marine unit hit by the Communists was part of a massive nine-battalion force sweeping against an elite North Vietnamese division in the northwest corner of South Viet Nam. Military spokesmen estimated at least 1,356 communists killed in the 11-day-old offensive known as Operation Hastings.

The Marines also suffered casualties in the air when one of their C117 aircraft crashed on takeoff from Da Nang airbase.

A spokesman said seven persons were killed and 23 injured, one seriously. The others injured were reported in "good condition."

In the air war U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marine planes again battered North Viet Nam's oil depots, transport lines and military installations. U.S. spokesmen said American jets had flown 431 missions against targets in the Communist north in the past week. During the week, the pilots destroyed or damaged 32 oil storage areas and attacked 82 others.

In the ground war, Viet Cong forces struck 10 times around the Saigon area to climax weeks of mounting guerrilla activity in the capital area. Saigon residents watched from rooftops as U.S. Air Force "Puff the Magic Dragon" gunships and Supersabre jets came to the aid of a South Vietnamese unit battling two Viet Cong companies only seven miles south of the capital.

Eyewitnesses said the executions of the wounded Marines occurred after an estimated company of North Vietnamese troops Sunday ambushed "India" company of the 5th Marine Regiment's Third Battalion on a jungle hill just south of the North Vietnamese border.

First the Vietnamese pinned the Americans down with automatic weapons fire. Then they drove the Marines back and the Americans had to leave their wounded.

Twelve hours later, the Marines fought their way back to their wounded and broke out of the trap. But in the meantime the Communists killed and looted the wounded Marines.

"During the night, the North Viets came and went among the wounded, shooting them in the head," said one of the survivors, a Marine radio operator whose stomach had been laid open by Communist mortar fire.

"I pretended I was dead when they got to me. They took my cigarettes and my watch but they didn't shoot me . . . they must have look at my spilled guts and figured I was dead. I was lucky."

Students Unclear On Riots

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

Students involved in the so-called riots of finals week spring term can't explain why they participated.

A professor of sociology points to the close living quarters and the quick communication of the residence hall complexes as breeding grounds for crowd disturbances.

But these conditions have not always spawned riots before. Why this time?

Each student gives different reasons why he and his fellow students participated. To University officials, those reasons leave much unexplained.

Some of the activities from both the Brody and Southeast Campus groups just shrug their shoulders and say, "No reason in particular."

A few students grumbled about the administration's handling of both the Schiff case and the Ramparts controversy.

"They seemed to feel they were getting back at the University for being dishonest," Donald Adams, director of residence hall programs, said.

Other participants, however, were proud of MSU's "involvement" with the CIA.

"It fits in with the 'I Spy' and James Bond image that's so much the fad right now," James S. Hundley, assistant professor of sociology, said. "It gives the University prestige in their eyes."

Other students said they were disgusted with the food. Then

Second Of Five Parts

many would add that the food wasn't really that bad, but food was a symbol of "The University."

And still other students in the Brody group complained that "they" were planning to move the Brody Grill.

"That grill is near and dear to the hearts of the active rah-rah crowd," Hundley said.

Some grumbled about losing the recreation space of the Brody multi-purpose rooms to classrooms.

"We've got to improve our recreation facilities in the Brody area," John A. Fuzak, vice-president for student affairs, said.

Other students resented being forced to live in dormitories, either by University regulation or lack of a suitable apartment in a suitable price range off campus.

Some complained about what seemed to be a police crackdown in the last three weeks of school.

And the tension of just the exams themselves keyed up still other students.

"Some had everything riding on one final exam," Fuzak said. "Sometimes they thought the exams weren't fair."

U.S. Pilot Flees North Viet Prison

SAIGON (UPI)--The first American to escape from a North Vietnamese prison was incoherent and near tears when rescued, a witness to his return reported Monday.

Watching from hiding while Communist soldiers beheaded a companion, the escapee was sent into shock, it was learned.

The mysterious U.S. Navy airman--on whose daring escape story there is still an official veil of secrecy--became America's newest hero with the announcement here Saturday that he had broken out of Communist imprisonment and fled successfully through North Viet Nam jungles.

One of the few men to see him personally was former Congressman Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio. Taft, who is again a candidate for Congress, left for home via Jakarta, Bangkok, and Tokyo Monday after a one-week tour of Viet Nam.

"I just happened to be at the Marine base camp hospital when they brought him in," Taft said. "I didn't talk to him. He was incoherent from the shock. He was almost crying. But you could tell he was happy. He knew that he had been rescued."

United States military sources have declined to reveal the entire story of the escape. But from a number of sources, the following account has been obtained.

The Navy pilot was shot down last February. He had been held in a prison camp in North Viet Nam. During five months, he lost more than 40 pounds, suffering from malnutrition on a skimpy diet consisting mostly of plain rice.

Just how he escaped has been withheld for security reasons. But he and another American managed to break away from their captors.

They struggled through jungles and rice fields southward toward freedom, moving mostly at night. By day they hid in thick clumps of trees, and once in a bunker dug as a defense against American bombing raids.

Speck's Prosecutors Seek Jury Indictment

Daniel P. Ward ushered a parade of witnesses before a grand jury Monday to seek murder indictments against Richard Speck, accused killer of eight young nurses.

The state held its No. 1 witness--the lone survivor of the massacre--in reserve as it opened its drive to convict the 24-year-old, tattooed seaman of what Coroner Andrew J. Toman called "the worst crime of the century."

Corazon Amurao, 23, who escaped the fate of her dormitory mates by cringing under a bed, was not in the first group of witnesses taken to the grand jury room on the fourth floor of Chicago's Criminal Courts Bldg.

First Asst. State's Atty. John J. Stamos said the petite Filipino exchange student was not slated to appear at Monday's grand jury session. The prosecution was expected to keep its grand jury presentation to the minimum needed to obtain indictments and hold the lone survivor's testimony until the case is brought to trial.

Which Chick Rules The Roost?

LONDON (AP)--Miss Beatrix Wells drove up in front of a hotel in Leicester, England, and people started laughing. Someone pointed to the roof of her car where a roasted chicken was roasting. An investigation showed that the chicken had fallen from the ledge of a hotel room occupied by two players from Germany's World Cup soccer team.

Dead-Tired Traveler Nears End Of Journey Across MSU

By DON SOCKOL

There is no food left. No game. No water. My lips are puckered in parched irony as I make camp for the night in full view of the Red Cedar River.

One line from a poem pounds over and over in my thirsty brain: "Water, water everywhere, Nor any drop to drink." Tomorrow, all's well, I should be at Kellogg. Excitement struggles against fatigue on the battleground called Sleep.

The Red Cedar is quiet and still. It shimmers softly in the night, as if to say: "You've conquered the campus and gotten this far, Don. I'll not stand in your way now." Yet, it is strange.

So close to my goal, it all seems to make little difference now. I'm just tired, anxious to get home--and every fiber of my body cries out for rest and peace.

Tomorrow, I whisper to myself. Tomorrow.

I've lived a lifetime in the last week and seen more than most men do in all their years on campus.

I've seen the campus in all its parts--and I've seen it as a whole. I've seen all the different peoples on campus; I've come to know I've cheated death more than once, and I've lived life to its full. And now the only thing I can think of--is Sleep.

Sockol's Solace

Sockol Ends Trek Today

Campusnaut Don Sockol ends a 10-day journey across the Michigan State campus today in front of Kellogg Center. He is expected to arrive about 1:30 p.m.

A large crowd, including Sockol's wife, Dawn, and various University officials, are expected to greet the slender New York senior, despite a prediction of showers in this area.

Tentative plans include a ticket-price parade, welcoming speeches by University and student government officials and a jazzy Dixieland band.

The welcoming reception brings to a close for students and faculty days of frustration after following Sockol's exploits daily in the State News.

He embarked July 17 from the extremities of the MSU farms, each day confronting different problems and relaying his adventures to the State News.

Sockol said he is making the attempt to convince students and administrators that closer communications can and should be established, "even at a huge multiplicity like MSU."

When Lindbergh crossed the Atlantic, he said, it brought two continents closer together.

But, he added, after almost 50 years, no person has tried to cross the campus of MSU on foot. "I want to prove it can be done."

33 Die In Belgian Bus

NIEDERBRECHEN, Germany (UPI)--A bus bringing Belgian children back from an Alpine vacation plunged over an Autobahn Bridge Monday killing 33 persons.

There were only 10 survivors and police said six of them were not expected to live. Twenty-eight of the dead were children.

The children, boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 16, were on their way home from a month's holiday in the Austrian Alps.

MCNAMARA TELLS DEFENSE MINISTERS

'U.S. Role In NATO Too Big'

PARIS (UPI)--Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said Monday the United States is carrying too big a share of Europe's defense load while having to fight the Viet Nam War.

Shortly after McNamara spoke, North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense ministers approved a five-year blueprint for defense spending believed to total about 400 billion dollars.

McNamara told the ministers the United States does not plan to cut back its 225,000 man 7th Army in Germany, the equivalent of six fully manned and equipped divisions.

But he called on America's North Atlantic Treaty Organization

(NATO) allies to take on a bigger share of the burden themselves and warned pointedly their failure to do so has become a serious political issue in the United States.

British Defense Minister Denis Healey said the United Kingdom, faced with a grave foreign exchange crisis, may soon have to slash its 51,000 man Rhine army.

The only way of avoiding this, Healey said, would be if other NATO countries helped pay for it.

Healey gave no specific figures for the British Labor Government is thinking of pulling out up to one third or one half of the Rhine army.

McNamara voiced no criticism of this British decision. American officials said Washington fully understands the economic reasons behind it and the vital strategic part Britain is playing in the Singapore and Malaysia areas.

The two-day NATO meeting was called to put the finishing touches to the multi-billion dollar defense blueprint and to map the organization's nuclear future without France.

The exact amount of the blueprint remained a secret. But McNamara noted the 14 NATO countries excluding the United States planned to spend $100 billion on defense between now and the end of 1970--approximately a quarter of the total. The U.S. would foot the rest of the bill.

This is the first NATO defense ministers' meeting since President Charles de Gaulle withdrew French forces from the alliance's military command July 1.

Tony Lema Dies In Plane Crash

"Champagne" Tony Lema, one of the top stars of the Grand Blanc Buick Open, was killed Sunday night in a plane crash of his wife and two others. After a disappointing 34th place finish in the PGA Tournament, Lema, 32, and his wife, Betty, 30, left Akron, Ohio with Mrs. Doris Mullen, 45, the twin-engine plane's pilot, and Dr. George Bard, the co-pilot. They headed for Joliet, Ill., but never made it. The charter plane plunged to its destruction on a golf course in Lansing, Ill.

The cause of the crash is uncertain, but Mrs. Mullen had reported moments before the crash that she would have to make a forced landing. The plane swerved to avoid hitting a group of people on the golf course, hit the ground near the seventh green and burst into flames.

The world of professional golf has lost a great competitor in Lema, and the Buick Open has lost one of its stellar attractions.

The Warwick Hills tournament annually draws the golf world's greatest names, but few golfers have enjoyed the success that Lema had in Michigan's top golf tourney.

Oakland's Dramatic School Wins Praise For Culture Role

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO, Michigan State's Board of Trustees gave Oakland University the okay to establish a School of Performing Arts.

Last week, months ahead of the board's original expectations, Oakland responded with the most exciting theatrical project in the state's history.

At their monthly meeting, the trustees announced that they had approved the establishment at Oakland of a resident professional theatrical company and an Academy of Dramatic Art.

BOTH ARE TO be headed by John Fernald, former principal of London's world famous Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. Fernald has directed such actors as Peter O'Toole and Albert Finney.

Attracting Fernald has been called a theatrical coup; he has been sought, reportedly, by more than a dozen cities and educational institutions since resigning from the royal academy in December.

THOMAS DeGAETANI, the managing director of New York's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts and former head of the State Dept. of Juvenile School of Music said, "I cannot tell you with what delight I greet the prospect of John Fernald and his Royal Academy of Dramatic Art concept coming to the United States."

"You must realize that I am only one of thousands in the theater throughout the world who look upon Mr. Fernald and the royal academy as the pinnacle of professional training in classical theater."

THE UNITED STATES has achieved unbelievable material advances. Yet this material progress has been at the expense of man's emotional, intellectual and aesthetic needs.

In the last few years there has been increased interest in the arts, typified by Oakland's recent move. This increased interest is a response to fulfill the needs of this aesthetic nature. In 1960, there were 16 resident professional theaters in the U.S.; today, with the addition of Oakland, there are 41.

BECAUSE OF FERNALD, Michigan begins its venture in a resident professional company at the top of the field. The prospect is one of enriching the state and nation both academically and culturally.

Oakland University is to be congratulated on its timing and foresight. The repertory company and drama school should become one of the finest in the country.

Agents To Search Schools For LSD

WASHINGTON (CPS)—A special corps of undercover agents is going into action on college campuses and elsewhere to combat the illicit manufacture, sale, and use of the mind-expanding drug LSD, the Food and Drug Administration has revealed.

FDA Commissioner James L. Goddard said LSD has been under intensive investigation by medical researchers since it was discovered by accident in 1943, and that no legitimate medical use has ever been found for it.

Asked what he thought of the widely-published claim that LSD "expands" the mind and makes possible a sort of mystical spiritual experience, Dr. Goddard snapped, "Pure bunk."

"It's an extremely dangerous drug that can precipitate serious psychiatric illness or even suicide," he added.

Goddard said that no one really knows how widespread the current LSD fad is. "You hear loose talk about 30 per cent of college students using LSD, but I know of no reliable data on the extent of the usage," he said. "That's one of the things we're trying to find out now."

Goddard said the FDA, together with the National Institute of Mental Health, would attempt to discover how widespread abuse of LSD has become.

"Along with this will be an educational effort aimed at college students and others who seem to be particularly at risk, to try to acquaint them with the dangers and to counteract this dangerous publicity that others have put forth advocating the use of the drug for mystical experience," Dr. Goddard said.

He revealed that special investigators are in training now at the University of California at Berkeley.

His remarks were punctuated by audience laughter.

Even before the formal announcement, Lt. Gen. Suharto, a news conference that he would personally head a new presidential cabinet, cut from six deputy premiers to five senior ministers.

Besides replacing Sukarno as chairman, Suharto was named

Order Grand Jury To Probe Rioting

CLEVELAND (UPI)—A judge Monday ordered the grand jury into session to investigate the fiery east side slum riots which authorities said appeared to have run their course. National Guardsmen continued to patrol the streets on a day-to-day basis.

A special session of the grand jury was called for Tuesday by Common Pleas Court Judge Thomas J. Parrino. The jury, headed by Louis B. Seltzer, retired editor of the Cleveland Press, may return indictments and make recommendations for preventing future outbreaks, Parrino said.

Mayor Ralph Locher said the 2,000 guardsmen on riot duty here would remain at full strength until conditions warranted their release.

City officials and councilmen in the wards most heavily affected by seven nights of violence argued against any possible reduction in the military force this week.

They warned violence could erupt again and said repairmen for public utilities were afraid to enter the area without protection.

POINT OF VIEW

Value Of Life

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second part of a five-part point of view series by Robert C. Paulson, a technician in the Dept. of Anatomy.

March 13, 1966

Two weeks ago I received notice to report for my draft physical exam—a very sobering occasion. Perhaps my wife is pregnant and my classification will be changed—perhaps? Though I have been so heavily propagandized all my life by toy army guns, stories of heroism in battle, constant statements of a man's "duty" to his country, and millions of other methods subtle or otherwise, I still find myself mostly nauseated by the thought of death "for my country." It seems as though man is too special, too smart (?) to be lowered to dying in the mud (and war has nothing but mud).

As a biologist I should know better—we are just as capable of death as a mouse—but, are we not also capable of putting purpose in life? Cannot we understand what the value of life is? I like to think so. I cannot conceive of there being something so valuable that it necessitates killing a man to have it. People do not appreciate life enough to sustain it.

To willfully deprive a person of the right to breathe, to walk, to see sun, clouds, mountains, rain, wildlife, meadows, other people, smiles and frowns is somehow beyond my comprehension.

I feel that my purpose in life is not to remove life, not to kill, but rather to make men better appreciate life and want even more to live—to live forever!

Perhaps it is foolish to think in terms of having a purpose in life, but for this let men call me foolish. I may very well die in Viet Nam or some place similar, or perhaps on my way to work tomorrow. But I would feel much better if my living did not require that someone else die—be killed.

I value life, and I value the life of others; to see it destroyed, be it man's life or that of a research animal, makes me very sad! Depriving something of its senses is... is such that I cannot even put it in words, for I do not know how I can convey what I feel.

If I do believe what I say then why do I not declare myself a conscientious objector? I would like to, this would sustain my life and my beliefs. That is, if my hopelessly confused compatriots would not kill me themselves. Probably the main reason I do not (openly) is that I am a coward—imagine, I am more afraid to say that I want to live and not to kill, than I am to kill and to be killed. What a hopelessly twisted sense of values we are given. Is it any wonder that young people revolt?

Why do young people revolt and not old mature minds that have actually seen more of the strife? Why do not the men who fought World War I, II and the Korean War revolt against our foolish logic? The answer—fear, indifference, helplessness.

The survivors of these wars saw death, they tasted it, heard it. They know fear, real fear, of losing life. That is they know if they will only remember, MAKE themselves remember, not just hide now that they have experienced. How can they stand to know what young people fear (even though most adults will not admit knowing) and still call it foolish and unthinking when the young revolt, be it a passive social revolt or a truly aggressive revolt. I do not fear getting old, I fear most not being allowed to get old.

If children—babies—could be born with the ability to reason from the time that they are one day old.

If a baby could look at the facts as things happen and make a rational decision based on these facts before taking action, or before storing the information in his mind, he would be capable of doing great and wonderful things.

If I could attach an instant recorder to my brain, one that would duplicate all my impressions, instead of a pen (which forgets 3/4 of what I want to say) you would better feel as I.

Tomorrow I go to work; to prostitute myself, for I do not do as I feel. Why? I must eat. Some day, I hope, I can eat and do as I feel I must.

Sukarno Says He's Powerless

JAKARTA (UPI)—President Sukarno disclosed to the Indonesian people Monday night that he had been stripped of effective leadership of his Cabinet with appointment of military strongman Suharto as chairman of a new ruling presidium.

Sukarno made the announcement in a nationwide broadcast.

head of the Ministry of Defense and Security, with supervision over the army, navy, air force, and the Dept. of De-

The new cabinet retains the same number of subordinate ministers as before, 24. It kept Foreign Minister Adam Malik firmly in control of foreign affairs as head of the Senior Ministry of Social Politics and Sultan Hamengku Buwono IX in charge of the Senior Ministry of Economy and Finance.

The new cabinet brought to an end a process Suharto began last March 11, under the sweeping powers Sukarno delegated to him, when he jailed 18 Cabinet ministers and reduced the Cabinet from 100 ministers to 30.

Two ministers of the former Cabinet who had come under fire from army-instigated student demonstrators lost their jobs: Dr. Johannes Leimena, deputy premier for general affairs, and Rusland Abdulgani, political institutions.

Sukarno announced that in the smaller presidium Idham Chalid, former deputy premier for supreme state organs, would become senior minister for people's welfare; and Sensusi Hardjadinata, former governor of West Java, would be head of industry development.

Both Malik and the Sultan lost several portfolios in the new lineup. But Malik as head of social politics retained personal control of the foreign affairs ministry, being named concurrently minister of that department, which is one of four under his senior ministry.

Observers said his continued control of foreign affairs would appear to assure Indonesia's re-entry in the United Nations and drift away from the Communist bloc.

An organization chart posted in the state palace war room prior to Suharto's news conference showed the five senior ministers of the presidium still falling under President Sukarno.

Policeman Injured

An East Lansing policeman was in good condition Monday afternoon at Sparrow Hospital recovering from injuries he received when a car struck his patrol car at Grand River Avenue and Spartan Avenue early that morning.

The city-owned patrol car was completely destroyed, East Lansing Police said.

Officer Robert B. Foster, 29, of 694 John Rd., reportedly received injuries to his legs, ribs and back. Further examinations will be made to determine the extent of the injuries.

The accident occurred when the patrol car was stopped behind a car on Grand River, preparing to turn left onto Spartan Avenue. A Ford vehicle, driven by David B. Kowalske, 38, of 1215 Parkview Avenue, Lansing, struck the police car in the rear while traveling at 35 miles per hour. The police car in turn hit the front vehicle.

Kowalske suffered minor injuries, but refused treatment. The driver of the front car, John R. Kocsis, 21, 3010 Emerald Circle, Lansing, was not injured.

Tony Lema Dies

good fortunes in 1962 when he entered the final round tied with Bill Collins and Pete Cooper for the lead. He faltered, though, and finished in a tie for sixth.

His 1963 efforts resulted in a tie for 10th.

Although his fine play had kept him in the Open's top ten, he wasn't satisfied until he won the Grand Blanc match in '64.

The handsome, good-humored Lema shot a 277 to cop the honors. His six birdies in a row were the highlight of his title performance.

In '65 it was Lema pacing the field again with a 280 score, and it was champagne for the press once more.

Lema brought his jokes and smile to Warwick Hills again this summer. He was indeed one of the favorites. The Buick Open had become Lema's tournament. However, in Lema's final visit to Michigan, Phil Rogers dethroned the flamboyant golf star, and won the tournament. But Lema was only three strokes behind the winner, in fourth place.

Whether he won or not, he was a favorite at Warwick Hills.

OUR READERS SPEAK

Urges 'On To Brody'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Don plans to touch the land of Brody, but since it's deserted, he will end his trip at Kellogg Center.

To the Editor:

We have followed with much interest the wanderings of the intrepid Mr. Sockol as he pursues his journey across the campus. We have followed, too, the stories concerning Mr. Sockol's brave endeavor. However, we note in a recent story that he plans to end his journey at Kellogg Center "where the sun goes at night."

If he stops at Kellogg Center he will not have accomplished what he set out to do for the Michigan State campus ends not there.

Beyond Kellogg Center, yet farther to the west, is a land fairer and greener than any he will have crossed, where the air is now purer, the breezes more gentle, and the vistas grander than the land of the dusty Akrites or even that of the arboreal Masonites.

Yes, beyond Kellogg Center lies Brody-land, a most important part of the campus, and an area beyond which the sun rises each night.

To have Explorer Sockol stop at Kellogg would be like Columbus stopping at Madeira, Peary stopping at Hudson Bay, or Parkman halting at Omaha. Urge him on, urge him on! However, warn him of the strip of death which the natives call "Harrison." Through this area, night and day, fuming monsters rush up and down ready to snare the unwary traveler and he had best beware.

Once he is beyond this danger his journey will be done, and though he will find the natives of Brody-land scattered to their hunting grounds for the warm season, he will find their larch strings out and their habitations available for the footsore adventurer.

Let him pass through this fair land to the western limits and then, as he stands with the golden rays of the sinking sun warming his wind-burned face, with the songs of the many birds filling the soft air, and with the faint rippling sounds of the beautiful Red Cedar in his ears—yes, then and only then can he truthfully say, "I have climbed my mountain, I have achieved my goal!"

Right To His Opinion

To the Editor:

Methodology does not guarantee accuracy. Mr. Gabridge said England has done nothing intelligent for 300 years. Neither Mr. Cutler nor Mr. Hawkins has proved otherwise.

England's stand against Hitler was more than admirable, but Chamberlain's "peace in our time" was remarkable for its stupidity.

People can have opinions about the relative merits of night baseball and sex, school and society and Viet Nam and Dunkirk without invoking the Muses' methods of natural science, or the procedures of social science.

WCC Condemns Viet Escalation

GENEVA (UPI)—The World Council of Churches (WCC) went a step further in condemning U.S. escalation of the war in Viet Nam Monday by charging that it aggravates ill-feeling between races.

In final action on a wide-ranging set of conference resolutions, however, the 400 delegates to the WCC's social conference voted to delete an accusation that the United States had no hesitation in stepping up the war because the Vietnamese are Asians.

House Takes Up Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House agreed Monday to take up the 1966 Civil Rights Bill by only a 20-vote margin with signs that its controversial "open occupancy" provision was in serious trouble.

The 200-180 vote by which the House rejected an attempt by Republicans and conservative Democrats to send the bill to the House Rules Committee for further study was a rude shock to its managers.

Hyland Says Bombing May Stop

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—The commander of the U.S. 7th Fleet, Vice Adm. John J. Hyland, said today the United States has at its disposal a military force capable of totally destroying North Viet Nam "but our government does not have this policy now."

Hyland, whose carrier planes are bombing North Viet Nam daily, told a news conference that American air strikes on fuel depots near Hanoi and Haiphong "without question have hurt the enemy." But he said he didn't think U.S. planes would bomb Hanoi "for a long time to come."

Thant Offers Plan In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.N. Secretary General Thant flew here Monday with a Viet Nam peace plan for Soviet leaders who were reported ready to give him a respectful hearing before turning him down.

The Soviets already have rejected Thant's proposal—a compromise between the American and North Vietnamese solutions to the conflict.

Thant said he would range widely over the "bleak" international horizon in three days of talks with Premier Alexei Kosygin and other officials.

Lewis New Dean
At U. Of Nigeria

Richard Lewis, associate professor of marketing and transportation, has been named dean of the faculty of business administration at the University of Nigeria.

The appointment of Lewis is under an advisory program MSU has at the University of Nigeria under grants from the United States Agency for International Development. Approximately 30

MSU faculty members are in Nigeria assisting and advising in training, teaching and research.

Lewis replaces Carl Frost who is returning to the campus after completing a two-year assignment in Nigeria.

In addition to teaching, Lewis was editor of the Michigan State Economic Record, a publication of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

He received the bachelor's degree and the master's degree from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. He was awarded the doctorate in marketing by MSU in 1964.

Lewis will return to the East Lansing campus in mid-July, 1968.

STUDYING ISSUES

Senate In Air Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate stepped into the airline strike dispute Monday and union-management negotiations were recessed to let Congress consider emergency legislation to end the 18-day-old walkout.

The Senate Labor Committee met in closed session to discuss two proposals for ending the strike and then scheduled a public hearing at 12:30 p.m. today on the measures.

Chairman Lister Hill, D-Ala., said the committee would hear representatives of the union and the five struck airlines. He said officials from the defense, labor, commerce and post office departments also would be asked to testify.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., junking his original plan for a virtual federal takeover of the idled airlines, introduced a substitute bill that would order striking machinists back to work immediately for 180 days while contract talks continued.

A second plan for compulsory federal arbitration of the costly dispute was offered by Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen. He cited the success of similar legislation averting a nationwide railroad strike in 1963.

Both proposals, which would halt the strike promptly, were taken up by the Senate Labor Committee, of which Morse is a member. The veteran labor mediator predicted his plan could be ready for floor action Tuesday. House approval also would be necessary.

The White House said President Johnson was keeping out of the strike. Asked about a published report the administration would propose its own legislation to end the walkout, Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said: "Not at this time."

As Congress stepped into the dispute, contract bargaining halted indefinitely at the Labor Dept. Both sides were put on 30 minutes' notice to await developments on Capitol Hill.

"As long as there is discussion on the Hill, there can be no serious bargaining here," said Assistant Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds. "They're waiting here to see what kind of shoe they drop on the Hill."

Union President P.L. (Roy) Stemiller said Congressional action would be "a delaying procedure" that would tie up negotiations further. But, he added, "We're not outlaws. We will comply with any legal order of the U.S. government."

Negotiations were described as a "complete stalemate, with union and management positions frozen on the machinists' demands for a 53-cent hourly wage increase over three years for top-rated mechanics now earning $3.52 an hour. The union also has asked improved health, welfare and pension benefits and working conditions in a package that it estimates would cost $89 million.

The airlines countered with a wage boost offer of 48 cents an hour over the life of a 3 1/2-year contract, which the union rejected. Management was believed to have raised its bid to as much as 50 cents an hour.

Beginning teachers will receive a $500 increase to $5,500 annually, Kots said, with similar increases for experienced teachers. He said the contract included increases in hospital and medical insurance and in annual sick leave.

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—A contract calling for annual pay raises of $500 has been approved by teachers of the Kenowa Hills School district here, Supt. Marvin Kots said today.

Kots said the Kenowa Hills Education Assn., which negotiated with the board of education since February, agreed to the 1966-67 contract late last week.

Beginning teachers will receive a $500 increase to $5,500 annually, Kots said, with similar increases for experienced teachers. He said the contract included increases in hospital and medical insurance and in annual sick leave.

Stilwell's Plane Missing In Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Brig. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, son of the famed World War II commander and a leader of the Green Berets in Viet Nam, is missing in the Pacific on a flight to Honolulu from San Francisco.

Stilwell, 54, son of commander "Vinegar" Joe Stilwell of the Burma-China campaign, was aboard a DC3 which vanished Sunday after reporting engine trouble. Scores of planes and ships criss-crossed the area in a search for Stilwell and three others aboard the plane which was presumed down.

The first confirmation that Stilwell was aboard the plane came from his mother in Carmel, Calif. Later, 6th Army headquarters in San Francisco notified the Pentagon that the general was missing.

Searchers believed Stilwell and his companions may have ditched the plane, a civilian version of the highly-reliable military C47. The plane, however, was equipped with special non-leaking fuel tanks for transoceanic flights that carried 1,200 gallons of gasoline and which could have made an ocean landing hazardous.

The search was concentrated in an overcast area about 600 miles southwest of San Francisco.

Regarded by his men as a "tough old man," the general had a 30-year service career.

WILL DISAPPEAR IN A YEAR

Old Power Plant Going Underground

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

By next summer the only visible part of the 45-year-old north campus power plant will be a stairway leading to an underground vault.

The subsurface room that replaces the power plant will be practically in the front yard of the proposed $5.4 million Administration Building. Part of the basement area of the present power plant will be retained and an additional portion will be constructed.

The vault will be used for steam and electricity lines and will provide central compressed air service to buildings on North Campus. Acting as a junction point, the basement area will continue on its way steam originating at Power Plant 65.

Once a nerve center of service to north campus, the Circle Drive plant is being torn down mainly because it has been fully replaced by Power Plant 65, said Howard Wilson, physical plant engineer. The old plant has two 3,000 kilowatt generators, while the newest power plant has two 12,500 kilowatt generators.

The coal storage basins, garage area, and reservoir are being torn down. More extensive steam tunnels are also being constructed.

By December, everything but the office wing and the front one-third containing the electrical switch gear will be torn down, said Wilson. When the vault has been constructed and the gear moved down, the remainder of the superstructure will be demolished.

Built in 1903, the northwest corner of the plant at one time housed Michigan State's custodial staff.

A variety of departments have been located in the plant during its long history. University Police, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Physical Plant employees and campus telephone service have all called the Old Power Plant "home" at one time or another.

Going down with the old plant is the 185-foot tall chimney which has carried Michigan State's initials since 1922. It took nearly 40 days to build, but will soon come down in much less time.

The letters on the chimney, which are made of a white glazed brick, have been changed twice since the chimney was built.

When MAC became MSC, the "A" had to be changed to "S." Then in the summer of 1955 MSC officially became a university and the "C" was changed to "U."

The old power plant has been destined for eventual demolition since the state legislature approved plans for Power Plant 65 in February 1964 after 10 months of controversy and debate.

As early as 1962 power officials called the power supply a "near emergency situation," due to the enormous increase in the number of buildings on campus. The additional power required was bought from commercial sources.

All reserve power facilities had been used up in searching for sufficient electricity and heat to supply the then newly-constructed South Campus Complex.

The proposed power plant would make it possible for MSU to generate its own electricity.

The debate concerned whether a state-supported institution should generate electricity in competition with commercial concerns. Many legislators voiced opinions that under free enterprise a university could not be justified in "being set up in the power plant business."

Legislators proposed that MSU buy its extra power from Lansing Power and Light, University officials, on the other hand, claimed that MSU could produce electricity less expensively than it could buy it. A report showed that the University would save $700,000 by 1970.

Officials argued that the University could generate electricity cheaply because of its dual use of steam. The steam is first used to generate electricity and is then used for heating.

Commercial utilities have no use for this steam exhaust system, so the steam is wasted. A private industry, without the steam heating needs of vast classrooms, office buildings and dormitory complexes, would find it unprofitable to produce its own electricity.

The legislature finally approved, in February 1964, a resolution providing the additional dollars for the University to generate its own electricity.

The $8.9 million Power Plant 65 opened in early November 1965. Marking the end of an era, the new plant will be able to handle the increased needs of the University and has plenty of room for expansion.

Veterinary Clinic Combines Teaching And Treatment

No longer does an animal live a "dog's life" when it comes to the Veterinary Clinic on South Campus. Completed last year at a cost of $4.7 million, the clinic combines the teaching, research and hospital facilities under one roof.

Dr. F.H. Oberst, director of the Veterinary Clinic, said, "The Veterinary Clinic building is undoubtedly the finest in the country. The facilities are excellent, and offer tremendous potential for teaching and professional development." He also said that the clinic is unique among teaching veterinary clinics in that it also contains research facilities.

The clinic, which received full accreditation this spring from the American Veterinary Medical Assn. Council on Education, was designed to handle 50 in each of the two classes, one beginning in March and the other in September. However, due to alternating terms, there will at all times be 50 fourth year students, with 100 third year students half the year and 50 third year students the second half using the facilities. This will take effect at the end of this summer. There are 31 veterinarians on the teaching faculty and a full time staff of 59.

The clinic has facilities for housing 82 large animals and 176 small animals. In addition to these spaces for hospitalized patients, an equal amount of space exists for research purposes.

The approximate number of patients handled in these facilities for the fiscal year 1965-66 was 44,084. This figure represents 10,817 animals cared for in the clinic, 14,431 University-owned animals and 18,836 animals from Farm Veterinary Science. This is an increase of 2,319 hospital patients since the move from Giltner Hall.

Emergency service is available 24 hours each day. The clinic is open Monday through Friday with special hours on Saturday and Sunday.

Facilities include a radiology laboratory, a clinical pathology laboratory, a clinical microbiology laboratory and extensive research laboratories.

Al Davis Quits As AFL Head

NEW YORK (UPI)—Al Davis stepped down as commissioner of the American Football League Monday and was succeeded by Milt Woodard.

The AFL said that Woodard would not carry the title of commissioner, but instead would be known as president of the American Football League.

Davis, who took over the post of commissioner on April 8, left the position by mutual consent with AFL owners.

He was believed to have lost interest in the job after the National Football League and AFL announced merger plans June 8.

Davis, the head coach and general manager of the Oakland Raiders prior to accepting the AFL's top position, will continue to serve the league in an executive capacity.

Woodard, second in command of the league since its inception in 1960, will carry the title of president in order to facilitate alignment of the two leagues in 1970. At that time, NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle will assume command of the expanded single league.

Can't Explain Riots

MSU can be a round of harassment and competition, from trying to get through registration to trying to get the same book everyone else wants out of the Library, Andrew Babyak, graduate assistant in sociology, said.

"Resentments build up over the year, sometimes not even in connection with the University," Fuzak said. "Maybe it's the draft, maybe a problem in personal relationships. For a lot the disturbance was just a fling with little resentment in it at all."

People living close together in dormitories build up a fund of discontent, both for the "system" and for individuals they must live with, Hundley said.

Add to the students with minor grievances the small group who "don't care," about their own or any other student's studies. Add the flunk-outs and those who are transferring.

"The role of a college student has a lot of insecurity built into it," Hundley said. "The normal sociological central controls, like high school, parents and community, are gone and the student goes into a completely new environment."

These then are some of the elements that might mix, along with some of the college student's carelessness and carefreeness, to spark a crowd disturbance.

But they do not add up to a complete picture.

"We've got to watch out, too, so we don't take the 'reasons' for the outbreak as a justification," Fuzak warned.

No matter what vague reasons are given, the images of a good time, produced in the "rioters' minds, the students may have needed to focus on a symbol to really get moving, Hundley said.

The police became that symbol.

AFTER HAWAIIAN TRIP

Kennedys Back Home

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy, bronzed by seven weeks in the Hawaiian sun, returned here Monday with her children for a few day's rest before going to Newport, R.I., for her sister's wedding.

The Kennedys arrived on a commercial airliner from Honolulu at Kennedy International Airport Monday morning looking tired from the long flight but fit. Mrs. Kennedy put Caroline and John Jr., on another plane to Newport, but she returned to her Manhattan apartment.

The former first lady will rejoin her children at the seaside mansion of her mother, Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss, at Newport later this week. Her sister, Janet Auchincloss, will wed Lewis Rutherford, member of an old New York family, there Saturday.

The wedding will be a nostalgic experience for Mrs. Kennedy. It will take place in the same Roman Catholic church where she and the late President were wed in 1953. Caroline will be a flower girl and John Jr. will be a page at the ceremony.

Both children appeared fully recovered from their holiday mishaps. John fell into a pile of hot coals at a luau and burned his hand and back. Caroline cut her foot while wading in the surf and was on crutches for a few days.

After Farber's burial in Arlington National Cemetery, Mrs. Coppolino and Mrs. Farber and her three children moved to expensive homes on Longboat Key, near Sarasota. Mrs. Coppolino, 32, died last Aug. 28 of a heart attack and Coppolino married a wealthy divorcee, Mrs. Mary Ponnitz Gibson, 18 years his senior, in less than a month.

Meanwhile, it has been learned that Mrs. Coppolino's body was exhumed from a Boonton, N.J., cemetery last December and a Sarasota County grand jury has been investigating her death for some time. An autopsy was performed on her body, also in New York, but the findings have not been made public.

Farber's death was not reported to the Monmouth County Medical Office as required by law, authorities said. The death certificate, ascribing cause to a heart attack, was signed by Coppolino's late wife, Dr. Carmella Coppolino. The Coppolinos lived across the street from the Farbers in Middletown, N.J.

House Sets 1968 Car Safety Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A bill that would require federal safety features in 1968 model new cars, and in used cars two years later, was approved unanimously Monday by the House Commerce Committee.

The 26-0 vote capped six weeks of committee debate. Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., said he would seek House action as soon as possible. Passage within a few weeks was considered likely.

Like a similar Senate version approved 76 to 0 last month, the House bill would require the commerce secretary to establish minimum safety standards by next Jan. 31 for all new vehicles sold in the United States. The standards would be effective a year later, when a revised set would be issued.

The initial standards, which would be applicable to many—if not all—1968 models that start production in the fall of 1967, are expected to be based on specifications the federal government now requires in cars it buys.

These include padded dashboards, head rests, front and rear seat belts, recessed or breakaway knobs, collapsible steering wheels, recessed instruments and backup lights.

Both House and Senate bills would require automakers to notify buyers and dealers of any hazardous defects they discover in their cars. Manufacturers also must certify their cars comply with federal standards.

Both provide penalties of $1,000 for each violation up to a maximum of $400,000 for a related series of violations.

Like the Senate, the Staggers committee provided for federal development of experimental safety cars of the future, federal tire safety standards, and a national register of drivers whose licenses have been suspended or revoked to prevent them from obtaining permits in another state.

Both bills are stronger than the administration's original car safety proposals, and by including used cars, the House version went beyond the Senate bill. The latter would merely encourage states to adopt uniform used car inspection standards.

Under the House measure, the commerce secretary would be ordered to require federal safety features in used cars resold two years after the same standards are required in new cars.

This provision would reinforce a companion highway safety bill, approved by the house public works committee, that would penalize states up to 10 per cent of their federal highway funds if they failed to establish auto inspection programs.

The House committee included provisions of a separate Senate-passed tire standards and added requirements for tire labeling showing the maker, material, plies and load-carrying capacity.

In another effort to inform the buyer better, the House bill ordered automakers to tag new cars with such performance data as braking ability and shock absorption capacity.
