PHILADELPHIA--A 19-year-old MSU coed was found stabbed to death in her apartment here Monday afternoon, lying nude in a pool of blood from 12 stab wounds.

Roslyn L. Reibstein, a Narberth, Pa., junior, was discovered at 4:15 p.m. Monday by her roommate just inside the bedroom of her apartment which borders the University of Pennsylvania campus. Her roommate, Barbara Silver, 20, ran screaming into the street, where she summoned a motorist to call the police.

Miss Reibstein, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Albert S. Reibstein of Narberth, was to be a junior at Michigan State next fall. She lived in West Holmes Hall last year and majored in political science.

Miss Silver had last seen the dead girl alive shortly before 8 a.m.

An autopsy performed Tuesday afternoon determined the time of death between 1:45 and 3:45 p.m. Monday. Four of the wounds penetrated her heart and proved to be fatal. No disclosure was made as to whether the coed had been molested.

Most of the wounds were in the area of the left chest and shoulder, penetrating the heart and lungs. She had also been slashed in the left thigh.

"We have no leads or clues," said Capt. Joseph Golden, head of the homicide division of the Philadelphia Police Dept. Over 70 persons have been questioned so far by the police.

Police found the telephone in a spatter of blood on the floor in Miss Reibstein's room, a source from the Philadelphia Inquirer, a city newspaper, said. It appeared that the girl had tried to call for help after she had been attacked.

Bloody prints were scattered about the room, although the police had not determined whether they belonged to Miss Reibstein, the source said.

The motive could have been robbery, Golden reportedly said. "We're not discounting anything."

Two guitars and a radio in the room apparently had not been touched, however.

Regina Meacham, 19, a downstairs resident of the same apartment building at 3804-6 Locust St., told police she heard several screams about 1:30 p.m. that day. Frightened, she checked outside, but did not discover anything.

Through investigation, police discovered that Miss Reibstein was last seen outside the apartment at 1 p.m. Monday.

The attractive, 5 feet, 4 inches brunette did not have a steady boyfriend, but "several male friends," who are now being questioned, Golden told reporters.

Police are investigating a prowler who was in the same apartment building last Thursday night and created a disturbance when he ran from door to door pounding on each of the apartments.

Police have not recovered the "sharp instrument" which caused the girl's death.

Miss Reibstein was home from work on a three-week sick leave from Gimbel's Dept. Store, where she was a fashion guide for the women's sportswear department.

U.S. Lowers Draft Standard To Aid Anti-Poverty Drive

Demonstrators' Weekend March Termed Suicidal

CHICAGO (UPI)--Officials of suburban Cicero appealed to Gov. Otto Kerner Tuesday to call out the National Guard to protect Martin Luther King's civil rights demonstrators on a planned weekend march which authorities termed "suicidal."

Town President Joseph Karner announced the formal request even as the open-housing demonstrators gathered for a march into an all-white neighborhood on Chicago's far southeast side.

Kerner, replying to the telegraphed request, invited Karner and Cook County Sheriff Richard B. Ogilvie to meet with him Wednesday

"to determine the necessity of mobilization of the Illinois National Guard."

King said Tuesday that the march would be staged despite an appeal by Ogilvie that he call it off.

King's aides assembled a caravan of protesters at a west side church and prepared to lead them into the "east end" neighborhood along the Indiana state line near the southeastern tip of Lake Michigan.

It was the same steelworkers' neighborhood where King led 500 marchers through a driving rain and a gantlet of curses, threats and rocks Sunday.

Another group of "volunteer picketers" was reported planning a demonstration late Tuesday at Old Town Gardens, an apartment complex on the city's near north side.

King, leader of the campaign for open housing in previously all-white sections of Chicago, was returning to the city after a one-day visit to Atlanta. Aides said they did not know whether he would arrive in time to head up the march into the east end.

Karner said Cicero officials also sent a telegram to King

LBJ Asks Medical Costs Study

WASHINGTON (UPI)--President Johnson Tuesday asked the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare to undertake a major study of medical costs, which have climbed 3.4 per cent in the past six months.

The President's request was disclosed by HEW Secretary John W. Gardner, who had gone to the White House to submit reports on federal aid to colleges and health legislation.

Gardner said Johnson himself had raised the question of rising medical costs and had asked him "to undertake a major study."

Asked if the increase was related to the newly-launched Medicare program, Gardner said only that the costs had risen for several months.

As to what the government could do about doctors' fees, he said he was not sure, but that the study would go into hospital costs, medicines, doctors' fees and other medical expenses.

Census May Drop Religion

WASHINGTON (UPI)--A House member expressed concern Tuesday that a census question asking Americans to list their religion conceivably could lead to a "secret police state."

The chief census taker, A. Ross Eckler, listened to the warnings by Rep. Cornelius Gallagher, D-N.J., and said he still felt a religious question would be valuable in the next census. But he doubted it would be asked because of the anticipated "emotional" protest.

Gallagher as a witness before the House Census subcommittee took a grave view of reports that the 1970 census takers were thinking of asking people to state their religious preference. He said this would be "a dangerous step backward" and could lead to a "secret police state."

Gallagher, who heads another House subcommittee investigating invasions of privacy, said, "We cannot and should not forget that it was just such a system that facilitated the mass murders in Germany during the 1930's and '40's."

Eckler acknowledged that religion was a controversial area and the question--"What is your religion?"--might be so objectionable to many people, it might be scratched. But he said it had not been ruled out yet.

Eckler conceded that such a question could stir up the loudest howls since the census takers first started asking people how much money they made. That question--now standard--was first asked in 1940 and many people still object to answering it.

Cavanagh Asks Funds

Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh (right), speaking as president of both the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors, asked the federal government Tuesday for $113 billion to finance the "rebirth of the American city" by 1976. He is shown with Senator Abraham Ribicoff, chairman of the committee holding hearings on federal aid to cities. UPI Telephoto

L.A.'s Government Said Not Worth 'A Damn Thing'

WASHINGTON F--Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff charged Tuesday the Los Angeles City government as described in testimony by Mayor Samuel Yorty is inefficient and "doesn't stand for a damn thing."

Ribicoff made the assertion after Yorty talked of divided responsibility and said he lacks jurisdiction over major social programs.

Ribicoff said the people who live in Los Angeles "aren't doing very much to prevent another Watts."

"They can wring their hands and pray that it won't happen again," Ribicoff said. "They're closing their eyes to the great public responsibilities."

"We're a great city," Yorty protested.

Yorty testified after Detroit's Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh proposed that the federal government spend $240 billion to $250 billion over the next 10 years in a massive effort to improve the cities.

"It certainly is not unrealistic in view of the obvious needs of the American city," Cavanagh said.

Yorty said responsibility is divided in Los Angeles and he is not in charge of most programs designed to aid the people of the slums.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., said he was "in an inflammatory area like Watts for the mayor to estimate the unemployment rate as something between 15 and 35 per cent."

"How can you develop a program for the unemployed if you don't know how many there are?" Kennedy said.

Cavanagh first called for an outlay at least equivalent to the $113 billion being spent on manned space flights and interstate highways. He said that sum should be used to achieve a rebirth of the city by 1976.

"That would be a minimum figure," he told Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn. To really do the job, Cavanagh said, the nation would have to commit up to $250 billion in new funds. Cavanagh said they should go into a city development fund patterned on the economic development pools of the foreign aid program.

Cavanagh called for a national commitment, saying people must "realize that the warfare on our city streets is as important as some consider the warfare in Southeast Asia."

Cavanagh, president of the Na-

POW Exchange Proposed By Ky

SAIGON (UPI)--Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky said Tuesday he is prepared to "offer an uneven exchange" of North Vietnamese prisoners of war for American airmen held prisoner in North Viet Nam.

Ky made the statement in answer to a question by Rabbi Schולם Rubin, spiritual leader of the Young Israel Congregations of Pelham Parkway, (Bronx), N.Y.

Rubin has been in Viet Nam two weeks visiting with American and Vietnamese officials.

"I told the prime minister I was curious, not as an official but as a private citizen, what he would do about the POW's (prisoners of war) being held in North Viet Nam," Rubin said.

Rubin said the mustachioed prime minister told him he realized the necessity for avoiding further escalation that might cause a third world war.

"He said he'd like to see those people back home, away from the humiliation and hardships they are facing, and that he would offer any uneven exchange within his power to release the American airmen."

In the current operation Paul Revere alone, U.S. soldiers have captured 91 North Vietnamese soldiers. More than 150 North Vietnamese soldiers have already been captured this year. The Hanoi government is holding approximately 70 U.S. airmen.

Judicare Deserves Its 'Day In Court'

AMERICANS LIKE TO think every one is equal before the law. But equality before the law is a myth. Often justice in America is mythed with a capital S.

Though everyone is guaranteed a public defender in criminal matters, a different story exists in civil law. Lack of money poses a de facto barrier to civil law legal services.

For example, poor families sometimes must buckle under to demands of greedy landlords because they cannot afford to take the landlord to court. And poor people who want a divorce often cannot get one because an uncontested divorce costs a minimum of $200. Few poor people can take welfare disputes or breaches of contract to court—in these areas the poor are helpless.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT is experimenting with a new legal aid program designed to aid the poor. This program, inevitably dubbed Judicare, is now limited to 26 counties in northern Wisconsin. But if it's successful, every state may adopt it within a few years.

Though only a month old, results already have shown Judicare helps the poor where they need help the most. For example Judicare clients receive free legal aid in breach of contract suits, divorces, welfare disputes and tenant-landlord problems.

However, it does not cover criminal law because the courts already appoint public defenders to arrested indigents.

A sliding income scale is set so low that it insures that only very poor people can qualify for the program.

AS MIGHT BE expected, some lawyers in Wisconsin claim Judicare is socialism. Socialism is government control. Though the government finances Judicare, it has bent over backwards to avoid dictating policy to Judicare.

Though the project is financed by the federal government's Office of Economic Opportunity, the money is given to the Wisconsin Bar Assn., the project's sponsor. The bar then pays the lawyer the fee. This keeps the government directly out of Judicare.

And it has exercised even more care to preserve the traditional attorney-client relationship. For example, a Judicare client may select any lawyer he wishes. And a lawyer may accept the case or reject it. The only main difference is that the bar pays the bills.

JUDICARE HAS SO much potential as an aid to the poor that it must not fall victim to a socialism witchhunt. People must not be so blinded by an unfounded fear of socialism that they ignore the benefits Judicare can offer the poor—the benefit of ready access to the courts for the first time in their lives.

OUR READERS SPEAK

'Letter On Workers Wrong'

To the Editor:

I am a 1964 graduate of MSU and have been employed as a full-time janitor in the cleaning department here for over six months. It was with considerable interest that I read the letter of Mr. John Noble in last Thursday's State News. With my experiences here, both as a student and as an employee and union member, I feel somewhat qualified to comment on Mr. Noble's assertions.

In regards to the time schedule, I would like to point out that, as in most jobs, there are morning and afternoon coffee breaks, each of 15 minutes duration. It has been my experience working in three different buildings and with the special events set-up crew that the length of these breaks is well respected by MSU employees.

The same goes for the half-hour lunch break. The last half-hour of the day is usually set aside to put away equipment, wash-up and return to the Physical Plant building to punch out. I suspect that Mr. Noble has made invalid generalizations from his rather limited experience.

Mr. Noble's contention that students do more work than regular employees is patently untrue. Generally, students have a hotter-than-thou attitude toward the janitors with whom they work and many of them spend the bulk of their time developing new ways to malingering.

Many of them assume the attitude that it is the University that is obligated to them and therefore feel that they should be subsidized by getting paid for doing as little work as they can to get by. Obviously not all students are like this, but there is a significantly noticeable number who are.

I take exception to Mr. Noble's remark that conscientious and hard working employees at MSU constitute a "very small minority." I strongly believe that the opposite is the case.

Finally, I would like to sympathize with Mr. Noble for having had to dirty his hands while employed here. That experience apparently provoked the paranoiac reaction which led to his attempt at mass character assassination.

Different Story On Workers

To the Editor:

This is in answer to a letter by John Noble in the State News on Thursday, Aug. 18.

John was a former student employee of MSU Power Plant for four years. I am now employed in my third year as a student there, two of them with John.

John's letter had a few facts in it that were left incomplete which I would like to complete. He referred to long lunch hours but he didn't mention the lunch hours that have been spent in front of the panel board fighting to keep a mal-functioning boiler on the line until another can replace it.

He also referred to long coffee breaks without mentioning the half-finished Coke left many times when a roter in a stoker breaks or for a broken drive chain or a broken shear pin. Later he goes on to complain about the pay and why don't students get the same pay as regulars. The regulars should be getting more than what they are just for what they know. I don't even pretend to be able to learn as much about boiler repairs in four years as these men have in 14, 18, 20 and even 37 years. Believe me, boiler repair is a very skilled trade.

John refers to students getting the dirtiest and most physically demanding jobs. I can't completely say for John because I didn't watch him every minute but I never saw him on any dirty or physically demanding job without a regular there doing as much or more than he, and I have never been told to do a dirty or physically demanding job without a regular on it.

My last paragraph, like John's, is also addressed to Mr. Breslin, but it isn't a word of warning, it's a word of praise. I don't think you even need ask the employees of this University to increase their work load. I believe that most of the employees that I have come in contact with are producing to a very high standard now which you and the University should be proud of.

Punch Line On Joke

To the Editor:

In answer to the recent letter, written by John Noble of Okemos, who now resides in the Kalamazoo area anticipating his first year of teaching in the Portage School System.

Many of the employees, referred to in your recent letter as "regulars," read your derogatory and insulting remarks with a sense of anger. Needless to say, we all had a big laugh when we read the signature at the end. It had the same effect on us all, like the punch line of a joke. I think if anyone has comments to make about his fellow employees of a detrimental nature, and he wishes to have them published, he would appear more of an adult, were he to do so before moving to another city.

We all agree on the truth of one statement. "I had ample time to observe the schedules of those in physical plant and grounds." We also have students who work. Try it some time, it isn't too bad, and it does break up the day.

China Streets—Who's On First?

Communist China, it is reported, is further stepping up its anti-U.S. hate campaign by renaming Peking streets.

Reuters, the English wire service, reports that Peking streets have been tabbed with such monikers as: "Anti-imperialist Struggle Street," "Struggle Against Revisionism Street," "Assist Viet Nam Street," and "Resist United States Street."

Such an urban renewal project could result in a sort of Chinese version of Abbot and Costello's "who's on first?" routine.

Let us suppose a Chinese peasant has some official business in Peking, but hasn't yet heard of the new street-sign propaganda campaign. He arrives in the city, hot and tired, and wants to find the People's Post Office. So he stops somebody and asks directions.

"Excuse me, comrade," he would begin, "but can you tell me where I may find the People's Post Office?"

"Struggle Against Revisionism,"

"Uh, yes," the peasant replies hesitantly. "That indeed we must, comrade. But I am looking for the People's Post Office. Where must I go?"

"Seek the Truth in Mao. Then..."

"I am but a simple peasant," the man would interrupt. "Perhaps you could give me the answer."

"I have, you fool!" the city comrade would stop. You're looking for the People's Post Office? Go to Struggle Against Revisionism..."

"Yes, always," the peasant replies solemnly. "But first I must transact my business at the post office. Please tell me how to get there."

"You must indeed be a dolt! Now listen and I shall tell you slowly so that even you may understand. Yes?"

"Yes, comrade."

"First—Seek the Truth in Mao. Then walk two blocks north to Assist Viet Nam. Follow that west until you come to Resist the United States. Make a right and keep going until you find Peace is Folly. Then make a left. If you have followed my directions to the letter you cannot miss Struggle Against Revisionism. There you will find the People's Post Office. Do you have any questions?"

"Yes," the peasant would answer. "Who's on first?"

6th Person Dies As Dallas Sprays

DALLAS (UPI)—Six aircraft covered about 75,000 acres with insecticide in the air against the encephalitis-carrying culex mosquito, but city health officials said the disease had claimed its sixth fatality.

Dallas health officer Dr. Hal J. Dewlett said the latest victim of encephalitis was a 74-year-old woman who died early Tuesday in St. Paul's hospital.

"Six deaths" have been blamed on the disease with 89 suspected cases," Dewlett said in a Tuesday press conference.

The spray aircraft, three of which were diverted from action in Viet Nam, went aloft for the third time Tuesday with the intention of spraying about 100,000 acres. But winds increased and officials called short the operation after covering only about 75,000 acres.

Dewlett said that although the spraying was close to reaching an end, up to 70 new cases of encephalitis would probably appear before the epidemic ends because of the 14-day incubation period of the disease.

John Kilpatrick, United States Health Dept. official, said that they are planning on finishing up the spraying by Friday or Saturday. "We are planning on spraying 800 square miles of the 900 square miles in Dallas County."

"We are planning on spraying populated areas, not necessarily a single house area," he said, "and we are using ground spray equipment in the downtown area because the buildings are too tall."

"We will probably have to spray the downtown area quite frequently because mosquitoes from other areas may infiltrate." Kilpatrick said that "St. Louis encephalitis is generally a closed cycle—birds to mosquitoes to birds. Man wasn't supposed to be in the thing at all."

"I am fairly certain that the birds perpetuate the disease," he said, "but killing the bird population would not help."

Health officials consider the aerial spraying very effective.

new federal funds over the next 10 years.

"We must not turn away from our foreign obligations," Cavanagh said. "But we must not turn away from our problems at home, either, for they can destroy us as well."

Noting that Congress has committed $70 billion to put a man on the moon and $43 billion to build the interstate highway system, the Detroit mayor said "we must make a similar commitment and set aside at least as much money to see that the rebirth of our cities is accomplished."

Cavanagh said he was speaking of small cities, even hamlets, as well as the nation's urban giants.

Lindsay, Cavanagh and Yorty were among the eight big-city mayors due to testify this week on their problems and proposals.

Ribicoff and Kennedy joined in charging the government Yorty described as "inept and unable to cope with the afflictions of the big city."

Buying Interest High

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Stock Market saw more buying interest Tuesday than it has seen in several weeks but the list was still lower. Trading was active.

The United Press International Stock Market indicator finished with a loss of 0.10 per cent. Of the 1,425 issues traded, 657 retreated and 524 advanced. This was the second consecutive session in which no new 1966 highs were scored. There were 499 new lows.

One aspect encouraging the brokers was that buying interest, as measured by upside volume, exceeded selling pressure or downside volume for the first time in several sessions.

France Considers Mock Trials

PARIS (AP)--French officials are looking into a mock war crimes trial scheduled for November to hear evidence against top American leaders for their policies in Viet Nam.

Highly placed sources said the government has not yet taken a position on whether the trial will be permitted.

The "war crimes tribunal" is being organized by Bertrand Russell, British philosopher and espouser of leftist causes. President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara are listed to be tried in absentia.

Red China Names Main Targets

TOKYO P--Communist China said Tuesday the "main targets" of its nationwide purge are straying party and educational leaders. It did not identify them.

The latest warning that more high-ranking Communists may soon fall into disgrace came in the theoretical journal Red Flag, edited by Mao Tse-tung's spokesman Chen Po-ta.

The New China News Agency, which distributed a summary of the article, omitted a paragraph which said, "No matter who that person is and whether he is in a government position, no matter how high, and has a long career and great reputation, we will fight until he is thrown out from his job if he does not follow Mao's ideas and opposes Mao's thought."

The language was quoted by Peking radio.

Tito Criticizes Mihajlov

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)--President Tito says unspecified enemies from abroad are stirring up enemies of socialism in Yugoslavia "to undermine the successful development of our country."

Tito appeared to have in mind the case of writer Mihajlo Mihajlov who was arrested earlier this month when he tried to start a magazine opposed to the ruling Communist party. Communist officials have accused him of being an agent of the United States.

German Youths Rescued

CHAMONIX, France P--Two German youths, stranded a week on an icy ledge in the French Alps, were brought safely to Chamonix Tuesday. They told their American-led rescuers: "Thanks for everything."

Gary Hemming of Pasadena, Calif., who headed the grueling seven-man operation, stepped from a helicopter and described the rescue as "quite something." Then he turned to French officials and asked, "Say, are there any more rescues scheduled?"

Willis Gets Medical Treatment

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (UPI)--Capt. William Willis, a 73-year-old mariner rescued 850 miles at sea in a tiny boat after suffering a hernia, arrived here Tuesday for medical treatment.

Willis sailed alone from New York June 22 in his 11-foot boat, Little One, bound for England. He was picked up Sunday night by the Coast Guard Cutter Ingham after telling crewmen on an American freighter that he had suffered a strangulated hernia.

Argentine Students
Protest Government

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina P--Argentine students launched fresh antigovernment demonstrations Monday night, scuffling with police and storming a dean's office before police drove them off with tear gas.

About 45 students, including some coeds, were arrested in clashes with police.

The new outbreak of violence came as the University of Buenos Aires resumed classes at five of its colleges under government control. The new student demonstrations were to protest resumption of classes without the university's traditional autonomy, canceled July 28 when the government took over and charged the country's nine state universities had become Communist-infiltrated.

The intervention by the military regime of President Juan Carlos Onganía triggered violence here and criticism abroad. Police routed one group of 700 students with tear gas after they gathered on campus, following

A-Future
Forecast

LOS ANGELES (UPI) -- Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg Tuesday forecast a time when nuclear power will be used to convert surface materials of an airless distant planet into an artificial atmosphere for the benefit of explorers from Earth.

Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, addressed the Western Electronic Show and Convention on "the atom's future in space."

In the next decade, he said, man may transport nuclear power reactors to the moon to heat or cool large stations or colonies and to extract water from moon rock, produce synthetic food, and process moon minerals.

Manned stations on far planets would come "in the more distant future" with nuclear power providing "plant conditioning" and surface transportation for the visitors.

Soaring Unemployment
Haunting Great Britain

LONDON P--The specter of growing unemployment haunted Britain's trade union movement Tuesday as the Labor government's economic squeeze began tightening.

Imperial Chemical Industries, the nation's biggest private employer, aroused the fears by firing 1,050 workers at three plants producing nylon fiber.

It was the largest cutback by any company since the government five weeks ago imposed drastic credit restrictions and froze wages and prices. The measures were designed to stabilize the economy and restore confidence in the pound sterling.

The chemical layoff spelled more trouble for Prime Minister Harold Wilson in his battle to win a majority of Britain's 7.5 million unionists over to the government's economic measures.

Negro Youths Hurl
Rocks At Autos

WASHINGTON P--Scores of Negro youths--many of them teen-age girls--threw rocks and bottles at passing motorists and firemen late Monday night and early Tuesday in a section of northeast Washington.

It was the second such incident in the capital in seven days.

One motorist was injured slightly during the three-hour disturbance which at its height, police said, involved nearly 200 rock-throwing youngsters.

Adult Negro leaders, summoned by police, were successful in dispersing the youngsters. Nearly 50 policemen from Washington and Maryland stood by, ready to move in if necessary.

In addition to throwing stones at passing autos, the youngsters pelted several District of Columbia fire department trucks when they responded to two false alarm calls in the area.

None of the firemen was injured and no damage was reported to their equipment.

Cause of the disturbance is not known, police said.

The chemical company blamed high taxation and the credit squeeze for slowing the growth of its nylon division. It employs 126,000 workers.

Leaders of the transport and General Workers Union described the dismissals as callous. They called on the company to withdraw them but the company replied it had no choice.

Since the squeeze began last month about 5,000 workers--mostly in automobile plants and other consumer industries--have been either fired or put under notice of dismissal. Another 6,000 have been told they may go on a short work day.

Union leaders have been assured by Wilson's administration that it will never foster unemployment as a deliberate instrument of policy.

Her estranged husband, Marshall, 31, Rt. 2, Benton Harbor, died in St. Joseph County Hospital shortly afterward. He was an executive of Twin City Container Corp., police said.

Cong Sink U.S. Ship,
Block Saigon Channel

SAIGON (UPI) -- Viet Cong guerrillas blew up a U.S. freighter loaded with 1,849 tons of war supplies in the Long Tao river Tuesday killing seven American seamen and blocking one of Saigon's two shipping channels to the sea.

Striking from tall elephant grass along the swampy shore, they also attacked a second, larger U.S. freighter with machine-guns and mortars and shot up two minesweepers and a U.S. Navy landing barge ferrying the stricken freighter's crew to safety.

A mine detonated from shore ripped through the engine room of the 5,500-ton Baton Rouge Victory, a Military Sea Transport Service ship which sailed from San Francisco July 28, as it inched along the narrow channel 22 miles southeast of Saigon.

Its captain used the last bit of power to run it up on a mudbank where the brown river water lapped at the main deck and flooded the holds containing trucks, heavy equipment and some ammunition.

Two U.S. Navy ships--their guns blazing--ran a gauntlet of enemy fire to retrieve the survivors of the 49 merchant crewmen aboard. A heavily armed detachment of military police took their place to protect the cargo until it can be salvaged.

A U.S. official said the mine was believed to be a five-gallon milk can filled with explosives and anchored just below the dark river surface by guerrillas in a canoe. A U.S. minesweeper preceded the Baton Rouge Victory only a few minutes earlier found nothing in the area.

U.S. and South Vietnamese troops were immediately lifted in by helicopters. The Communists opened up on the helicopters without doing much damage and then disappeared into the swamps.

The attacks occurred in the Rung Sat zone, a 400-square mile patch of mud and canals heavily infiltrated by the Viet Cong and situated between Saigon and the sea.

The SS President Taylor, a 1,171-ton president lines freighter skippered by Capt. W. B. Barton of Millbrae, Calif., came under mortar and machinegun fire about a half-hour earlier. A Vietnamese minesweeper was heavily damaged by mortars and recoilless rifles about eight miles down the stream three hours before the Baton Rouge Victory explosion.

In Saigon, meantime, U.S. officials confirmed Air Force jets bombed groups of sampans and barges in which 30 Vietnamese civilians were reported killed and 30 more wounded.

Officials said the Friday attack had the approval of both South Vietnamese and U.S. authorities. The sampans were in an area of the Van Co Tay river near Saigon that is forbidden to civilian traffic. Anything in the area is considered fair game.

Geology's Zinn
Dies At NMU

An MSU professor of geology died in a Marquette hospital early Tuesday morning, after being hospitalized for a week.

Justin Zinn, on the MSU faculty since 1937, was teaching at the National Science Foundation Institute at Northern Michigan University in Marquette when he suffered a heart attack last Tuesday.

Zinn joined the faculty at MSU as an instructor in geology, and was made a full professor in 1952.

He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Michigan, his master of science from Michigan Technological University and his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin.

Zinn was a past president of the Michigan Geological Society, and belonged to several other professional organizations, including the American Assn. of Petroleum Geologists, the Institute of Lake Superior Geology, the Geological Society of America, the Michigan Academy of Arts and Science and the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science.

JUSTIN ZINN

Zinn had membership in Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Xi and Sigma Gamma Epsilon fraternities.

He was the author of several scientific papers and co-authored a textbook on geology.

Zinn, born May 13, 1903, is survived by his wife, two daughters and two sons.

SOVIET 'FREEDOM'

6 Jailed For Religion

MOSCOW (UPI)—Six leaders of a Russian Baptist sect have been jailed for organizing religious processions, running Sunday schools and holding baptisms in the River Don without permission.

The sentences, reported Tuesday by the newspaper Teacher's Gazette, were the latest Kremlin crackdown on splinter groups trying to muscle in on the officially-approved Russian Baptist Evangelical Church.

The government newspaper Izvestia recently accused one of the splinter groups of practicing ritual murder. It sided with the official Baptist Church against the various sects.

Teacher's Gazette said the six leaders, who were tried at Rostov-on-Don, were sentenced to "different terms" in prison. It did not specify the terms and identified only one leader, a man named P. D. Belinky.

It said the sect, the Evangelical Christian Baptists, "organized, without the knowledge of the local organs of power, a secret procession of their followers and christenings in the River Don, violating public order and rousing the justified indignation of the district."

It accused the sect leaders of running a print shop which put out literature "imbued with the spirit of hostility to Soviet reality" and inciting disobedience to Soviet law.

"The accused have on their consciences also the organization of a childrens Baptist Sunday School in which the ignorant and fanatic teachers taught God's word to children up to the age of 11 and persistently and systematically indoctrinated them with a religious world outlook," Teachers Gazette said.

The Soviet Constitution guarantees freedom of religion. In practice this freedom is largely limited to officially-registered churches which are restricted to doing little more than holding services within their own buildings.

Religious education of children is severely circumscribed. Religious funerals can be held only with official approval. Proselytizing is banned.

Despite these restrictions, the Baptist-Evangelical Church has actually increased its membership since the 1917 revolution and now claims about 5 million members.

Members of another sect held prayer meetings earlier this year in the street before the Communist party Central Committee building here to demand control of the Baptist-Evangelical church.

In First Aid, Common Sense, A Little Psychology, Helps

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

"When in doubt, splint."
"A blanket under a victim is worth two on top."
"Don't let a person see his injuries."

MSU's newest police officers glanced up at their instructor and scribbled out more notes into their expanding notebooks. The class on advanced first aid was part of 17 hours of the six-week police recruit school devoted to first aid training.

Not that they all needed to be qualified. To the four men who already have current advanced first aid cards, the course served as a refresher.

A little psychology and good common sense go a long way when an officer uses first aid, according to Cpl. Paul Gilligan, instructor of the majority of the first aid classes. Gilligan, a four-year veteran of the University Police force, recently attended an extensive three-day conference on advanced first aid at the University of Michigan.

Third Of Four Parts

"When a child has been hurt it may cheer him up if you tie a big bow with the ends of the gauze."

"Be calm at the accident scene... project this confidence to the injured."

"Keep onlookers away. Nothing's going to scare an injured person more than people gasping at his wounds."

"First aid is one of the best public relations jobs we have as police officers," said Gilligan. "It brings a deep and longlasting sense of gratitude from the public."

The recruits took note. Recruit school courses on first aid center around the facilities available to the University Police.

A fully-equipped "ambulance," which serves as a regular patrol car, patrols the campus 24 hours a day, complete with stretcher, resuscitator-inhalator unit, plastic air splints, first aid equipment and rescue equipment. Police can transport most injured or ill persons without having to call a commercial ambulance.

Each of the department's five marked cars carry with them on daily patrol a 16-unit first aid kit, blankets, a mouth-to-mouth breathing mask and air splints. Recruits learned rescue breathing, use of the inhalator, oral poisoning and operation of the stretcher car.

"It's a boy! Or was it a girl?"

After sitting through a 45-minute film on emergency child birth, none of the recruits seemed to remember what the sex of the baby was.

It doesn't happen too often at MSU, due to the proximity of immediate medical care, but occasionally police officers will be called on to assist in emergency child birth. Last spring, University Police were on hand when a student's wife gave birth to a baby in Spartan Village.

"Your most important job before the child is born is to reassure the mother," another instructor told the men, two of whom are bachelors. "Just let nature take its course."

The officer's job starts after the baby is born—he must make sure the baby is breathing, warm and get the mother to the hospital as soon as possible.

The amount of class time spent on courses in which the police officer is giving aid to a citizen is surprising, unless one considers it as part of the broader picture of public service.

"The Dept. of Public Safety has attempted to provide dedicated persons sympathetic with the University's existence and instilled with the philosophy of service, in addition to law enforcement," Richard O. Bernitt, director of the Dept. of Public Safety has said many times.

At the recent race flare-up in Lansing, police stopped a Negro boy about 14 years old who was running around in backyards near Kalamazoo and Butler streets.

The youth had a three-inch cut on the inside of his heel, where he had stumbled over a low wire fence. A University Police sergeant bandaged the boy and let him go.

"We always carry compresses with us," the sergeant said, as he pulled one out of his back pocket.

Opposes Hikes In Seaway Tolls

WASHINGTON AP—The Senate Public Works Committee will hold hearings Sept. 15-16 on its bill to prevent an increase in St. Lawrence Seaway Tolls, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said Tuesday.

It would ward off a proposed 10 per cent boost in seaway tolls by reorganizing the financing of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp.

Mondale said the seaway is the only federally financed waterway in the nation which must repay its capital, with interest, to the treasury. His bill would relieve the corporation of what he said is a discriminatory burden.

"The seaway is of vital importance not only to the port of Duluth, but to the entire state of Minnesota and the upper great Lakes area," he said. He said three-fourths of the cargo moving along the seaway is farm produce from the Midwest.

Last week Mondale and 48 other members of Congress asked President Johnson to seek an agreement with Canada postponing for a year the proposed increase in seaway tolls in order to give Congress time to act on the Mondale bill. A similar bill had been introduced by Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis.

Court Annuls Marriage With Priest

DETROIT (UPI)—The marriage of a man said to be an Italian Catholic priest and a 26-year-old Detroit woman was annulled Monday on the grounds the priest lied in saying he had a special dispensation to marry.

The marriage of the Rev. Father Giuseppe Lipari and Rose Teresa Maniaci in 1962 was void from its inception, according to the annulment decree.

The woman, whose maiden name was restored, testified in Wayne County Circuit Court that she met and married the priest when he visited the United States four years ago. Four days after the wedding he returned to Italy, she said.

She said he claimed to have received a special dispensation from the church to be married and failed to tell her or immigration authorities that he had served three years in prison in Italy for counterfeiting.

She said Lipari lives in Alcamo, Italy, but is not connected with any church there.

International Music Society Meets In U.S.

INTERLOCHEN P—Political differences are forgotten, youngsters work with the masters and the result makes this northern Michigan city the musical center of the world for the week.

The occasion is the biannual Conference of the International Society for Musical Education at the National Music Camp here. Held for the first time in the United States, the conference has attracted more than 700 composers, educators, musicians and guests from 44 nations.

The week-long conference, which opened Monday, features several instrumental concerts daily, discussions and symposiums on music education, dramatic performances and vocal concerts.

Featured artists during the week include pianist Van Cliburn, composers Dimitri Kabalevsky of the Soviet Union, Norman Dello Joio of the United States and the camp's 110-piece World Youth Symphony Orchestra and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

LBJ-RFK Best Ticket, Says Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former GOP Vice President Richard M. Nixon suggested Tuesday that President Johnson might dump Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and make Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., his running mate in 1968.

Nixon conceded before newsmen that, in effect, his suggestion amounted to political mischief. He was much more reticent about commenting on Republican choices in 1968, when he might reasonably be expected to entertain hopes for his own party's nomination.

The unsuccessful 1960 GOP presidential nominee predicted at a Capitol Hill news conference following a closed meeting with Senate Republicans that the country "might well see a Johnson-Robert Kennedy ticket in 1968," particularly if the race looks tight.

Nixon took note of recent polls showing impressive ratings for Kennedy. A Gallup poll last week-end gave the New York senator an edge of 40 to 38 per cent over Johnson among Democrats as the favorite for the 1968 nomination. Among independents, Kennedy polled 38 to 24 per cent against the President.

Nixon said, however, that "for Kennedy to defeat President Johnson for the presidential nomination would be difficult even for him."

Without mentioning Humphrey, he then suggested that Johnson might find Kennedy "acceptable as insurance" on the ticket if opinion polls indicated a close race between Johnson and his Republican opponent.

Nixon, leader in several polls among Republicans on their choices for the 1968 nomination, said it obviously served GOP purposes to suggest a Democratic ticket while "for me to name our ticket would serve their (Democrats') purpose."

MURDER CHARGES

Accused Man Hospitalized

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)—Dr. Carl Coppolino, a retired anesthesiologist and dabbler in hypnotism charged with murder in two states, was rushed to a hospital early Tuesday with an apparent heart attack only hours after he appeared in court to fight a fugitive warrant.

A hospital spokesman said late Tuesday that Coppolino was in "satisfactory" condition.

Coppolino, 34, is charged here with first degree murder in the Aug. 28, 1965, death of his wife, Dr. Carmela Coppolino, and with first degree murder in New Jersey for the 1963 death of a neighbor and friend, retired Army Lt. Col. William E. Farber.

Coppolino appeared at a hearing in justice of the peace court Monday night in which his attorneys sought to have the fugitive warrant set aside.

The action was denied by Justice of the Peace George Foster and Coppolino was returned to his Sarasota County jail cell. A nurse at the jail said he took two nitroglycerine capsules for a heart condition but later complained of severe chest pains and was rushed to the hospital.

He was arrested at his home here July 23 and charged with killing Farber. As he was being booked in at the jail he complained of chest pains and was hospitalized.

He was then indicted and charged with the murder of his wife July 25 and that night his physician said he was well enough to be moved to the jail, where he had remained until early Tuesday.

Sarasota County Sheriff Ross Doyer disclosed that the bodies were exhumed after Farber's widow, Mrs. Marjorie Farber who now lives here, told authorities the deaths of the two people should be investigated.

The death certificates on both had listed cause of death as heart attacks.

But authorities said autopsies indicated Farber had been strangled, and Mrs. Coppolino had been killed by a drug overdose thought to be undetectable after death.

Coppolino and his wife moved to Sarasota in early 1965 and Mrs. Farber and her two daughters moved here during the summer of 1965.

Five weeks after his wife's death, Coppolino was married to a wealthy divorcee and they moved from the Coppolino home on fashionable Longboat Key, to an equally plush home owned by his new wife in a country club area of Sarasota.

Coppolino's arraignment on the Florida charge was delayed at the request of the defense until Sept. 1, and a tentative trial date of Nov. 7 has been set.

State Firm May Have Violated Holding Act

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Securities and Exchange Commission said Monday a company headed by a former SEC chairman may have violated the Public Holding Company Act in maneuvering to obtain the common stock of a small Michigan utility.

The former chairman is Donald C. Cook, now president of the American Electric Power Co. Inc., New York City, and at one time reportedly considered by President Johnson to be secretary of the Treasury.

AEP and the Michigan Gas Utilities Co. of Monroe, Mich., are seeking SEC approval of a July 1 agreement involving purchases of stock in the small utility.

The third term, whose stock AEP had tried to obtain, is the Michigan Gas & Electric Co., which has 21,400 retail electricity customers in southwestern Michigan and distributes natural and manufactured gas to 28,777 customers in seven counties.

Based on information now available, the commission said, the July 1 agreement between AEP and Michigan Gas Utilities, on its face, "went beyond normal and permissible preliminaries to a transaction subject to approval of the commission and constituted a violation of the act by both parties to the agreement."

Band Clinic 'Hard But It Helps'

Approximately 700 high school students are participating this week in the High School Marching Band Clinic.

Walter H. Hodgson, professor of music, said the students are here to work intensively on two things. They work on their marching routines for their high school football games and also work to improve their sound and intonation in concert work.

The six participating bands are from Grand Haven, Lake Odessa, Hastings, Lincoln Park, Jackson Parkside and Wyoming.

Joel Leach, professor of music at Texas Technological University, instructs the percussion sections and aids them in working out cadences. He is a graduate of MSU and has instructed at the clinic the last three summers. Thomas L. Veenendaal, MSU's drum major, instructs the drum majors and majorettes.

The students work mainly with their own band directors. They practice four hours in the morning and four hours in the afternoon. Some evening rehearsals are also held.

Saturday morning, each band will perform for 15 minutes before Leonard Falcone and William C. Moffit, MSU's band director and assistant band director. They will tape record criticisms and comments on each band.

Students participating in the clinic feel it is of great assistance to them in preparation for the approaching football season. Regarding the success of the clinic, Toni Hath, Wyoming flutist, said, "It's hard, but it helps." This is the third consecutive summer that the clinic has been conducted at MSU. It was initiated through the efforts of Hodgson.

6 Die In Crash

RONKONKOMA, N.Y. (UPI)—A twin-engine plane, apparently attempting a landing during a driving thunderstorm, crashed on the Long Island Expressway Tuesday killing all six persons on board, police reported.

Suffolk County police headquarters said the plane crashed on a section of the expressway that is under construction.

The police duty officer said six persons were in the plane.

"They're all dead," he said.

Police said the pilot was believed to be attempting to make an emergency landing on the unfinished highway when the crash occurred.

High Schools Take The Field

This week MSU is the scene of the Michigan State High School Marching Band Clinic. Right now there are eight bands participating, for a total of over 500 students. The band shown in practice is from Parkside High School in Jackson. Photo by Russ Steffey

Turkey's Injured Removed To U.S. Army Field Hospital

The Prophet

Louis D. Rubin, a seismologist from Richmond, Va., weatherman predicted the earthquakes which rocked Turkey over the weekend. His predictions have assisted experts for several years.

UPI Telephoto

VARTO, Turkey (UPI)—Ambulances and helicopters Tuesday ferried a stream of injured to an overworked U.S. Army field hospital on the edge of the Turkish earthquake zone.

Meanwhile, the devastated town of Varto—still shaking with minor tremors—lay under a pall of dust, flies and the awful stench of death.

But miraculously, most spring water supplies in the area were not polluted. However, the threat of cholera, rampant in neighboring Iraq, persisted. Harassed Turkish authorities had yet to get supplies of disinfectant to the stricken area.

But in Istanbul, health ministry officials were drawing up plans to quarantine and vaccinate evacuees from the disaster area.

Officials put the death toll at more than 2,500 and still rising. The leading official at Varto told this reporter 2,235 persons died in the ruins of more than 8,000 houses here. Elsewhere in the area, 128 bodies were found at Hinis, 24 at Karliova and 139 at other nearby villages. Some 50 townships in all, with an estimated population of more than 100,000, were hit by the quake Friday.

Thousands of stoic Turkish Kurds, filthy from the rising dust, dressed in rags and clutching their few rescued possessions, huddled with their children and animals in tents supplied by international relief organizations.

A language barrier—most of the earthquake survivors speak only a Kurdish dialect bearing little relation to Turkish—was a big problem at the U.S. hospital, where 12 doctors, seven nurses and 95 technicians have been working around the clock since their arrival Monday.

"We have had every form of traumatic injury in the book," said the weary hospital commander, Maj. Brady Breece of San Antonio, Tex.

In Varto, one of the only buildings left standing was a stone and mortar public toilet. Surrounding houses were reduced to piles of rubble and telegraph poles stuck out of the wreckage at crazy angles.

Yet the trees stood upright, apparently unaffected.

Beneath the wreckage, authorities believe, are the bodies of many women and children who were in their homes when the quake struck. Most of the men were in the fields, and comparatively few of them died.

The earthquake was the worst in Turkey in 23 years. The last major disaster left 4,000 dead.

QUIET TO CHAOS

Blast Rips Negro Church

PLAINVIEW, Tex. (UPI)—Soloist Mrs. Frankie Carter stepped forward with her red hymn book and began to sing "Jesus is all I need." The United Baptist Choir hummed softly in the background.

In seconds, Monday night, this tranquil scene was chaos. An explosion erupted from the floor "like a volcano," killing a woman and injuring 41 other persons at the Gibbons chapel of the Church of God in Christ.

The cause was still a mystery Tuesday and fire officials were hampered by sudden debris and a soaking rain in their attempts to find what happened.

More than 150 persons were gathered in the church for the choir-singing of several west Texas Negro congregations and to hear a sermon on "Lord, Give Me a Song in the Night."

The force of the explosion sent a piano flying 50 feet and the roof, walls and rubble tumbled into the congregation.

Mrs. E.M. Givens, wife of the church pastor, quoted her husband as saying "a blue and red blast" shot up from the floor.

"I exploded like a volcano," she said. "The floor just erupted by the choir stand and the pulpit."

Her husband and the soloist were among the injured.

Early reports blamed accumulated gas for the explosion. But Mrs. Givens said she did not remember the gas being turned on. There was speculation a spark from the organ could have triggered the blast, but Mrs. Givens said, "We were playing the piano at the time."

Fire Chief Leedy Maxey said, "We've got to dig into the debris to really find out. It's raining again and that will certainly hamper our investigation."

"I'll tell you one thing—there could have been more people killed, I guess God saved them."

The body of Mrs. Ennis Dukes, 46, of Pampa, Tex., was found in the rubble after jacks were used to lift the collapsed roof.

'Reds Produce Officers, But Not Gentlemen'

MOSCOW (UPI)—A young Red Army lieutenant complained Tuesday that Soviet military schools are turning out officers but not gentlemen.

The young officer should be "a literate, educated man, the pride and model for your youth . . ." Lt. V. Serga said in a letter to the defense ministry newspaper Red Star.

"But this young man frequently turns out to be helpless in many respects," the writer said.

"Sometimes young officers do not possess such elementary knacks as good table etiquette," he said. "The same thing is true with dancing."

Besides that, Serga complained, discussing the arts intelligently is often more difficult for officers than navigating the obstacle course.

" . . . At times our horizon in these things is very narrow," he said. "That is why frequently we have difficulties in arguments, conversations or chats devoted to art and literature."

As an example, Serga said, his wife, who graduated from a teachers' training school, "is much more educated than I am."

Vows Battle Against Nominating Petitions

LANSING 4—The Prohibition party vowed Tuesday it will go all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary in its battle to get party candidates on the state ballot without nominating petitions.

E. Harold Munn Sr., national co-chairman of the Prohibition party, told newsmen the party is preparing a suit testing the constitutionality of laws in several states which require a certain number of signatures on petitions before a political party may qualify for a place on the ballot.

"We already have won the right to have sticker candidates," said Munn. "But we hope to prove that we are the victims of discrimination in not getting on the printed ballot without petitions."

D. D. Gibbons of Kalamazoo, national co-chairman, said the party obtained only 12,000 of the required 19,336 signatures needed for the November ballot this year. Prohibition party nominees have not appeared on the printed ballot in Michigan since 1960.

Man, since the dawn of his history, has sought to lure fish from the depths of their watery environs by use of a temptingly baited hook. Crudely fashioned fish hooks have been discovered in the excavations of numerous prehistoric ruins, and to this day the shape and function remains much the same.

Another of man's most useful and enduring inventions is the newspaper Want Ad. Born shortly after the invention of printing and still used by millions every day, the Want Ad performs a communications function which nothing else can match. Next time you have a message to place before thousands of waiting readers, do it the low cost way. Use a Want Ad.

Sad Memories . . .
On Life's Basepath

Almost 10 years ago I laid down my baseball glove, broken in spirit and baseball seemingly gone out of my system.

The national game has had many poignant moments, in its long history.

Thousands wept when Lou Gehrig said farewell in Yankee Stadium.

A little boy pleaded tearfully with Shoeless Joe Jackson during the Black Sox scandal—"Say it ain't so Joe . . ."

There was a lump in the national throat the day Babe Ruth walked off first on his last big day at the plate and said, "Let the young guy take over."

But 1958 brought a man-made tragedy, a betrayal, that a 13-year-old boy could not be expected to foresee or accept.

That was the year the Dodgers left Brooklyn.

The Dodgers didn't have fans. They had friends. People loved the Bums.

We saw them through pennant after pennant, emotionally drained each year when they lost the series to the Yankees.

But we stuck by them. And finally in 1955 our loyalty and love paid off. We beat the Yankees and won our first World Series.

The Bums were the world champs.

And three years later they left Brooklyn. The saddest part was that they left for money.

How could we accept that? They were the Bums. The Yankees were the big shots! They played for money.

But the Bums? They played for love. They were our friends. Their antics were a gift to sports writers and a delight to their fans.

We were stunned to learn that they wanted to leave Brooklyn. People interviewed by newspapers of the day usually commented: "If those bums wanna leave Brooklyn let 'em get the hell out of here!"

This wasn't indifference. It was too strong to be called disappointment.

Brooklyn fans--people who loved "Dem Bums"--were hurt.

The next season the Dodgers played out of L.A.

They were a different team. They weren't the Bums anymore.

They were just another big league professional team.

I'm still a Brooklyn Dodger fan. I still love the Bums.

But where Ebbitt's Field used to stand, I understand there's either a parking lot or an apartment building.

In 1958 I started to lose interest in baseball. By the time I was a senior in high school, I had quit playing altogether.

Somewhere along the line I lost my glove. The glove had seen me through almost a decade of seasons with the Bums.

But when we lost Brooklyn, my heart for baseball was lost--and my glove.

Monday the State News IM softball team, Lushwell AC, needed a ninth man for our block championship game.

I played right field with a borrowed righty's glove. There were no lefties on the other team and it was kind of awkward for me.

I got to thinking about my glove in right field. I loved that glove too. And I found myself wishing I had it back with me.

I'd feel a lot more confident out there with my old glove.

I guess I'll have to go out and get another one. I'll have to get out the old oil, scoop in some dirt, work out with it and break it in.

It'll take some work to get it in shape like the old one.

I guess I'm getting over the Dodgers by now.

Eight years is a long time to mourn the death of a ball club.

It's time to hustle back on the field.

Quarterback, Center, Guard
Offensive Question MarksBy LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Writer

As a result of the departure of several key defensive linemen from the '65 team, the Spartans' offense will have to pick up whatever slack was created by the defensive losses to insure for gridiron success this fall.

Six of the starting offensive linemen return.

Steve Juday, MSU's All-American quarterback, graduated, and his loss cannot be taken lightly. Juday was an adequate passer, and he could run if he had to.

But Juday's forte was his superior leadership ability. This quality is what many critics of Jimmy Raye. Juday's replacement, fear Raye is lacking.

Raye has plenty of incentive to produce at quarterback, with replacements like Charlie Wedemeyer, John Mullen, Bill Feraco and Bob Super ready to step in.

The rest of the backfield is not only solid, it's downright impressive.

Clint Jones and Bob Apisa are All-Americans. Dwight Lee was named by the coaching staff as the top player in spring drills.

There's no arguing with that threesome.

Junior Drake Garrett will be backing up Jones, and Frank Waters, a 175-pound sophomore, is slated for reserve duties behind Lee.

Reggie Cavender used his 200 pounds to advantage in spring drills, while Apisa rehabilitated the knee which he injured last fall. The hard-running first-year man provides Coach Duffy Daugherty with insurance should Apisa have knee trouble again this year.

End should be a strong position in the offensive forward wall. Gene Washington holds a number of Spartan pass-catching records, and he should be an outstanding receiver again for whoever secures the starting quarterback assignment.

At the opposite end is Al Brenner, a 6-2, 190-pound sophomore.

Joe Pryzbicki and Jerry West return at the tackles. Neither is big for a Big Ten line. Pryzbicki weighs 224 and West is a 218-pounder.

Howe, Jr., both are strong, quick and proven.

Dave Techlin, a junior, has replaced graduated John Karpinski at right guard. Techlin's credentials are impressive for someone who is filling in for a lost regular.

He is just over the 200-pound mark, but he gained honorable mention All-Big Ten recognition

G-Clinic Lures Youngsters, Oldsters

By ROBERTA YAFFIE
State News Sports Writer

The Ninth Annual National Gymnastics Clinic presently in progress at Jenison Gymnasium offers something for everyone.

The youngest participant is six years old; no one ventures a guess at the oldest. But they're all here for one purpose--gymnastics.

Gymnasts, coaches, physical educators--all are offered gymnastics instruction in their particular spheres. There are clinic championship meets for both men and women and a gymnastics show to cap the week.

Over 300 participants were registered this year, according to George Szypula, MSU gym coach and clinic director, who calls this year's venture the best ever.

"This is one of the finest staffs ever assembled in conducting the mass into a fine organization," said Szypula.

The Clinic Board of Directors is composed of Szypula, the chairman; Paul Fina, vice chairman and associate program director and former national champion; Jack Carr, program director and former gymnast; Joe Schabacker, operations and meet director, a former champion and judge and now vice president of Arizona State; and Bill Meade, secretary-treasurer, coach of the year in 1965 at Southern Illinois, the '66 NCAA champ.

An area of particular interest is that devoted to the physical educators. Mrs. Jackie (Klein) Uphues, former Olympian, rates the judging theory course offered as "the finest in the country."

"Instruction is given in the area of professional preparation of physical educators," said Meade. "We encourage as many as possible to come, especially those who want to prepare programs for teaching and competition in elementary, high school and college levels."

The program consists of judging, teaching basic six to eight-week programs for schools, competitive programs, spotting, various areas of routine planning, meet conduct and actual participation in a judging situation.

The success of the clinic is based on one primary force--a mutual love of gymnastics.

"It's a disease," Meade said. "Once you're involved, you're in it all your life. It's a fun sport and we work hard, but we enjoy it."

"The underlying aim in gymnastics, without a doubt, is to promote the sport," he pointed out. "It's an interesting activity, and one in which those who know readily share. An Olympic performer will do his very best to teach a novice a new trick."

A show, "Night of Stars," will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, in the IM Arena. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Olympic champ Rusty Mitchell and former NCAA titlist Glean Gailis will be joined by Spartan gymnasts Ron Aure, Dave Croft and Toby Towson. Towson, the '66 AAU floor exercise champion, has just returned from Mexico, where he worked with that country's national team.

Fred Orlofsky and Vera Goewerts, two Olympians, will also highlight the bill. Miss Goewerts was a member of Belgium's Olympic contingent.

The show will combine artistic and competitive work, comedy and specialty numbers. Four of the performers will be doing double back somersaults on the mats; Dale Hardt of SIU will feature a triple back.

One of the younger Michigan gymnasts getting expert coaching here gracefully walks a parallel bar under an instructor's gaze. The clinic attracted gymnasts from 6 to 18 years old.

With some help a young gymnast does a forward flip during one of the instruction sessions being held daily in the Jenison Field House gym. The summer clinic entries will perform in a special show in the Men's IM Building at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Pro Soccer
For Detroit

CHICAGO (UPI)--The North American Soccer League Tuesday awarded franchises to Detroit, Houston and Cleveland and named James P. McGuire as its interim president.

The three cities join Boston, Cleveland and Washington as the league's charter cities.

The Detroit franchise is headed by William Clay Ford, Edwin J. Anderson, industrialist Wendell Anderson and other Detroit sportsmen. The Houston franchise is headed by Judge Roy Hofheinz, owner of the Astrodome where the Houston games will be played.

First Of 2 Parts

while alternating with Pryzbicki last season.

Norm Jenkins created a tense situation at left guard when he was declared academically ineligible. Tony Conti, a 225-pound non-letterman junior, and converted back Mitch Pruett, at 195 pounds, are fighting for the job.

Ron Ranieri, 5-11 and 235 pounds, has apparently sewed up the center job, as a junior.

WANTED - Used MSU text books. Will pay cash. Bring all texts to MSU BookStore, Center for International Programs. Will be open during finals.

From Russia With Flowers

John Carew, president of the American Society for Horticulture Science and chairman of the Horticulture Department, is shown with members of the Russian delegation to a two day open house for horticulturists at MSU. The 98 persons taking part in the program will see MSU's horticulture and teaching facilities and tour western Michigan.

Francis X. Bushman, Star In Silent Films, Dies Of Fall

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Francis X. Bushman, great lover of the silent screen whose full life ranged from the days of silent slide lectures to current television, died Tuesday after a fall at his home. He was 83.

Bushman was fatally injured when he fell and struck his head in the kitchen of his Pacific Palisades, Calif., home.

Bushman was pouring himself a cup of coffee when he fell and struck his head on a cupboard.

His wife summoned an ambulance, and the crew pronounced him dead at the scene. Bushman's death came on the 40th anniversary of the death of another great silent screen lover, Rudolph Valentino.

It was the second fall in three days for the veteran actor. He fell while stepping from the bathtub Sunday and wrenched his right hip and shoulder. The injuries forced him to withdraw from a movie he was to have started Monday.

Bushman, actually the screen's first great lover, had a handsome face which first made women swoon more than a half century ago and which also attracted many women in recent years. He was top star in Hollywood for seven years after making his first picture, "Lost Years," in 1911. Then his adoring public learned he was married, and his fans all but forgot him.

The silver-haired great-grandfather never let age slow him down. Recently he was on four TV shows and made several local appearances—all the while continuing his habit of sleeping four to five hours nightly and getting up with the sun. He lived quietly in Pacific Palisades with his fourth wife. She was Mrs. Charles W. Richardson, who was 53 when they were married in 1956 in Las Vegas, Nev. Bushman's third wife, the former Norma Atkins, died in 1956 after being married to Bushman for 24 years.

The former matinee idol's second wife was his onetime leading lady, Beverly Bayne. When he sued for divorce so he could marry her in 1918, it let his public know that he was not only married but also that there were five Bushman children at home.

The original swooning starred in 424 movies, more than any other actor has. He was an oldtime actor in every sense of the word—drove around town in a long, low, lavender Marmox automobile with "Francis X. Bushman" painted in gold on its side; smoked lavender cigarettes; and had his servants dressed in lavender uniforms.

His gestures were those of the leading man of the silent screen—wide, sweeping and eye-catching. At his peak he made $6 million in five years. He spent it as fast as he made it. He had 300 Great Dane dogs on his 280-acre estate along with race horses and hogs.

The ribbon dance of the "Goddess of the Moon" in her moon palace will be performed by a high school group at the 15th annual Chinese Student and Alumni Rally on campus. The dance will take place Sept. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. Speaker for the weekend rally is Daulin Hsu of MSU's Linguistics and Oriental and African Languages Dept. He will speak at 10:30 a.m. Sept. 3 in the Wilson Auditorium.

Clay Lawyer Wants Draft Case Reopened

LOUISVILLE (UPI)—An attorney for Heavyweight Boxing Champion Cassius Clay Tuesday requested his local draft board to re-open Clay's case and defer him on the grounds that he is a Black Muslim minister.

Hayden Covington of New York asked that Clay be reclassified from his present 1-A status to 4-D, giving him a ministerial deferment.

Clay had been asking to stay out of the army, claiming to be a conscientious objector.

Covington represented Clay at a hearing on that matter Tuesday, but he said it was more or less procedural that he wanted the entire matter re-opened on the basis that Cassius is a minister.

"I want a complete re-opening of this case," said Covington, who represented the Jehovah Witnesses during the Second World War.

"This boy does not believe in participating in the war in Viet Nam as a combatant or non-combatant," Covington said. "He is sincere in this belief."

Clay said that he has spent the last two years preaching the gospel of Elijah Muhammad.

"I converted thousands of Negroes," Clay said. "I deeply believe in the teachings of Elijah Muhammad."

Clay said, "I like preaching better than fighting."

Clay said that he would retire from the ring the first time he is beaten and take up preaching the doctrine of the Black Muslim faith full time.

March 'Suicidal'

(continued from page 1) and Albert Raby, convenor of the Coordinating Council of Community Organizations (CCCCO), "Asking them to sit 'down at the conference table in an effort to resolve this thing'."

"We are willing to meet with them at any time," the town president said.

Ogilvie estimated it would take 3,000 men to protect marchers and citizens in Cicero, where the National Guard had to be called out 15 years ago to subdue rioting against Negroes. Karner said the town had only 90 policemen.

"Marching in Cicero becomes awfully close to being a suicidal act," Ogilvie said.

Cicero Police Chief Joseph

Barloga said that as many as 2,000 policemen had guarded civil rights demonstrators in recent Chicago marches and were unable to quell outbreaks of violence by whites who were angered by the campaign to break down segregated housing patterns.

Ogilvie informally joined Cicero officials last week in preliminary warning that the guard would be necessary if the Cicero march occurred.

The civil rights demonstrators were restricted by a circuit court injunction, issued Friday, to one demonstration a day by a maximum of 500 participants within Chicago. The injunction, which also restricted marches to non-rush, daylight hours, did not apply to marches in suburbs.

Rugger's Hold First Practice

MSU's Rugby Club will hold its first practice 4 p.m. today at Old College Field.

All members from last year's team and any others who may have an interest in this sport are invited.

The season opens the weekend before registration for fall term, and it is important that the team organizes now.

American and Canadian universities are included on the rugger's '66 schedule. The team will play the University of Michigan twice this fall.

USGA Rules Hurt Joyce Kazmierski

The United States Golf Assn. has delivered a blow to Joyce Kazmierski's British Women's Amateur hopes.

that the Intercollegiate Athletic Dept. would sponsor the Detroit senior's trip to Britain, it was learned that USGA rules regarding amateur status prevent a school from providing funds for this purpose.

Miss Kazmierski still plans to play in the British Amateur, but her parents will finance the trip.
