Ruby Retrial Ordered; Court Violated Rights

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed Wednesday the death-penalty conviction of Jack Ruby for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald. Oswald was identified by the Warren Commission as President Kennedy's assassin.

The state's highest court for criminal cases sent the case back for retrial in some county other than Dallas, where it originally had been tried.

The three-man court held that the trial court had erred in admitting as evidence testimony by police officers of conversations with Ruby shortly after the killing.

Phil Burleson, a Dallas lawyer who has the very first, said of the decision: "I'm tickled pink. I'm extremely excited and pleased at the action of the court."

He shortly went to the county jail to tell Ruby.

He said Ruby's sister, Eva Grant of Dallas, was equally delighted when he told her the news. "She nearly fainted with glee and happiness," Burleson said. "She was extremely pleased. She was very, very happy."

In Detroit, Sol Dann, one of five attorneys who argued Ruby's case before the Court of Criminal Appeals last June said:

"I'm naturally very pleased that the Texas Court of Appeals followed the law of Texas and protected the legal rights of Jack Ruby, which were violated during the trial."

The Court of Appeals opinion said recent decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court in the cases of Billie Sol Estes and Dr. Samuel Sheppard as well as the record in the Ruby trial make it "abundantly clear" that the trial court "reversibly erred in refusing Ruby's motion for a change in venue" to a trial site other than Dallas.

Estes' state conviction for fraud was reversed and a new trial ordered. He is in prison on a 15-year federal conviction on a similar fraud charge selling fertilizer tank mortgages when the tanks did not exist.

In the Sheppard case the U.S. Supreme Court reversed the Cleveland physician's murder conviction on grounds that extensive newspaper coverage had created such climate of opinion that he was denied a fair trial. The high court reversal of the Estes case concerned television coverage.

"For the errors pointed out, the judgment is reversed, and the cause is remanded with directions that venue (the trial site) be changed to some county other than Dallas," the court's order said.

Compared to the voluminous record and appeal briefs in the case, Morrison's opinion for the court was unusually short—three pages.

Judge W. T. McDonald, who lost a re-election campaign this spring and goes out of office in January, entered a concurring opinion based on the refusal of the trial judge, Joe B. Brown, to move the trial elsewhere.

Jack Ruby: His legal rights were violated during the trial.

AVOIDS COAST STATES

Inez threatens return to Florida from Gulf

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Inez, wild and weird as any twister ever spawned by the tropics, threatened Wednesday another crazy turnabout — back to the Florida coast already raked once by her clawing winds.

Caught in a natural power vacuum, with forces that steer a storm in perfect balance, Inez crawled ominously almost to a dead stop in the Gulf of Mexico. And, as she stood there, lashing thousands of square miles of seas with winds gusting up to 126 miles an hour, forecasters warned south Floridians not to take down the storm shutters.

Weathermen were wary, for Inez has crossed them up consistently since last Friday, when she howled into Cuba after a killing rampage the length of the Caribbean Sea.

But, from her present position, a historic track of hurricanes points back toward Florida. If she takes it, and crosses the state, she will be back in the Atlantic Ocean where she sprang into violent life 12 long days ago.

In the few hours since she hammered Key West with 90-plus mile winds-but did surprisingly little damage-Inez had grown more vicious as she fed on the warm waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Weather Bureau advisories estimated the top sustained winds slamming around her large and irregular eye at 100 miles an hour. But a tiny observation post manned by the U.S. Coast Guard in the Dry Tortugas clocked gusts up to 126.

Inez wasn't the terror she had been in the Caribbean, when she slugged Guadeloupe, Haiti and the Dominican Republic with winds that at times screamed at a 175-mile-an-hour pitch.

But she was rapidly regaining some of her old meanness and Floridians feared that if she struck again it would be a deadlier blow.

The Coast Guard station in the Dry Tortugas, 68 miles west of Key West, was in the wall of the eye at noon, when Inez stood near latitude 24.4, longitude 83.4 west, 22 miles west-southeast of Miami.

A slight decrease in winds and a small rise of barometric pressure indicated that Inez was still drifting westward, but very slowly.

An immense high pressure system over the Gulf of Mexico kept the hurricane from turning north toward the upper Gulf Coast States.

Open house set at State News

Journalists and newspaper lovers from Brody to Hubbard, from Grand River Avenue to Wilson Road—the State News holds its annual open house tonight.

It will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Services Lounge.

Positions are open to all students in the editorial, advertising, and photographic departments. All potential movie and theater critics, general reporters and cartoonists are urged to attend.

Editors and staff members will discuss State News operations. Refreshments will be served.

Big Joe plays Paul Revere for Big Inez

KEY LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Big Joe Lescinsky is a hero to the 5,000 residents of this area—the Paul Revere of Key Largo.

It was Joe who said two days ago that Hurricane Inez was coming. It was Joe who spread the alarm—at 4 o'clock in the morning—that spurred people to start boarding up their homes and moving to high ground.

On Monday night, Joe heard a newscast saying the hurricane was moving away from Florida, so he went to bed. But he couldn't sleep, and at 4 o'clock he heard on the radio that it was coming back.

"I got up and went to the Shoreham Motel about two blocks away and woke up George Bellamy, the manager," Joe recalled Wednesday.

"I called several people on the phone and went around waking others up. I guess about 10 or 12 in all. I told them the hurricane was coming, and to get ready. They said I was crazy."

"So I went to the bar and pretty soon the wind started rising, and the people started rushing in."

"I've watched the weather all the eight years I've been down here."

Michigan Bell workers walk out in wildcat strike

By BEVERLEY HALL
State News Staff Writer

Lansing Local 4040 of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America (CWA), numbering nearly 600 members, went on an unauthorized wildcat strike Wednesday morning. Pickets were set up outside the East Lansing and Lansing Bell Telephone offices, objecting to a new contract agreed upon by company and union representatives only Tuesday afternoon.

The contract covers wages and fringe benefits for Michigan Bell's nearly 17,000 employees, and, if accepted by the CWA locals, will be effective for the next three years.

During contract negotiations in Detroit, 45 towns and cities were reclassified into higher wage brackets; Lansing was not one of the upgraded areas. The Lansing-East Lansing area is still classified in the second wage bracket, according to its number of subscribers and the cost of living in the area.

"Workers in Detroit get about six dollars more every week for doing the same work we do here, because they're in the first wage bracket," said a tall, sweatshirted picketer carrying a sign that read, "Michigan Bell Rates the capital of Michigan a Second-Rate Town!"

Zone bombing halts to allow violations check

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States said Wednesday bombing of the eastern part of the Demilitarized Zone between North and South Viet Nam has been halted to allow international inspectors to check for alleged violations.

"We would like to see that zone fully demilitarized again," Secretary of State Dean Rusk told newsmen in New York after a luncheon meeting with United Nations Secretary General U Thant.

Rusk accused Communist North Viet Nam of flouting the provisions of the 1954 Geneva agreements which set up the 35-mile-long, six-mile-wide strip as a military-free buffer zone between the two Viet Nams.

The Geneva accords are supposed to be supervised by a three-nation international Control Commission. One small team has headquarters at the southeastern end of the zone. It has been largely inactive.

Charging that the Reds were sending large numbers of men and material south through the zone, the allies began air attacks July 31 which have been hitting particularly against suspected Communist military concentrations and routes in the mountainous western portion of the zone.

The heat's on the residents of the University's married housing apartments and many are not happy about it.

Complaints about the apartment's heat or, to be more precise, excessive heat, led to a State News survey which revealed that 65 of 100 questioned families were unhappy about their apartments' heating.

And of the 35 satisfied families about one half admitted that they were new to married student housing this fall.

A frequent comment was, "It's too hot and dry during the winter, and these heating systems lack adequate controls. As a result, we open all of our windows and the door. This creates drafts, and we begin to worry about our children's health."

Eight of the questioned families expressed beliefs that the heating system was to blame for severe respiratory problems which they had suffered in past years.

Respiratory infection, muscular contraction and interpersonal discord were cited by Dr. James Feurig, director of Olin Health Center, as the major health hazards associated with the apartments' heating problem.

Apparently, respiratory infections have not become a major problem this fall—at least for the families sampled. Of the 288 people represented, only 68 now have colds and part of these were contracted in other locales.

Health conditions, other than colds, which residents attributed to the heating system were: runny noses, nosebleeds, cracked lips, sinusitis, dry throat, flaky skin and scalp, insomnia and mental strain.

One mother confided that the combination of heat and drafts caused her to lie awake nights worrying about her children's health.

Since opening windows and doors to expel excessive heat increases the dryness of the apartment air, many students reported attempts to combat this condition. Some purchased humidifiers while others devised home-made ones by boiling water on their stoves. The improvisers preferred a little more heat to extreme dryness.

Dissatisfied families expressed a feeling of helplessness, having decided, "There's nothing we can do about it." One man who complained to the Married Student Housing Office reported getting

DENY STRIKE REPORT

Nigeria Peace Corpsmen rebel at proposed wage cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace Corps volunteers, particularly those in Nigeria, are up in arms over recent administrative decisions dealing with transportation and living allowances, it was learned Wednesday.

The volunteers have been writing congressmen, their parents and Peace Corps headquarters to express their dissatisfaction over the restriction of vehicle use, the closing of hostels and a proposed cut in living allowances.

The volunteers in Nigeria have been the most critical of the changes, it was learned, but a corps spokesman denied reports that they had threatened to go on strike.

The spokesman also denied that Peace Corps Director Jack Vaughn's trip to Africa Thursday, announced only Tuesday, was scheduled primarily because of the groundswell of dissatisfaction among the volunteers. He said definitely Vaughn was not going to Africa to avert a strike.

The Corps announced Tuesday that Vaughn would leave Thursday aboard a chartered flight with a group of 141 volunteers who are being assigned in Senegal, the Ivory Coast and Nigeria.

"Vaughn has wanted to visit our program in Africa for some time," the spokesman said. "He especially wanted to go to Nigeria where we have one of our largest programs."

Of the volunteers aboard the chartered flight, 82 will be going to Nigeria for a two-year tour of duty, thus increasing the number there to 175.

The changes which have stirred the volunteers in Nigeria are:

1. The restricting of the number of vehicles, mostly motorcycles and motor scooters, to those who really need them. "This was done as much because of the number of accidents as it was for economy," the spokesman said. "The restriction began in Nigeria 18 months ago when there was a motorcycle death."

2. The closing of all hostels, inexpensive inns popular overseas for traveling students. The Peace Corps operated six in Nigeria which they began closing in August.

"We closed those we operated all over the world because we found they tended to create an American community and the volunteers were not mixing with the nationals," the spokesman said. "We also found we were in the hotel business because many of the people using the hostels were not members of the Peace Corps."

3. The proposed cut in the living allowance. Volunteers in Nigeria average between $133 to $149 a month in living allowances depending on the individual circumstances. The cut, which would become effective the first of the year if approved, would give the volunteers a maximum of $128 a month.

ASMSU postpones donation to voting age campaign

By BEV TWITCHELL
State News Staff Writer

A $1,000 allocation to the campaign for lowering the voting age in Michigan was postponed for one week at Tuesday night's meeting of the Student Board of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU).

The move to postpone the motion followed considerable discussion and was passed by an 8-4 vote, with one member absent.

Most prominent in the discussion were questions concerning student awareness and student opinion of the issue.

"Student government has an obligation right now to do much more than it has done," John Mongeon, president of Men's Hall Assn. (MHA), said.

He referred to making the implications of the issue known to the students. These include philosophy, a time commitment, the general financial situation and the issue of the lower voting age itself.

The Board had just heard a report from Michael Wood, state coordinator of the Citizens' Committee for lowering the franchise. He had spoken of the manpower as well as financial commitment to the campaign, which is in debt now.

"We have an obligation to give time and information before we actually do something," Mongeon said.

"The issue is not so much money as it is a question of the role of student govern-

Equality To Greeks Is White

This is fraternity rush week. Nowhere, from the writings of Woodrow Wilson to the socialization process for second graders, are higher ideals expressed than in the social fraternity.

But are these ideals practiced?

A year-and-a-half ago the Sigma Chi chapter of Stanford University dropped quite a bombshell when it announced it would pledge a Negro. Sigma Chi has no discrimination clause, but the national leadership suspended the Stanford Chapter.

Sigma Chi has no discrimination clause. Apparently this is a step in no direction on the real-life level.

The President of MSU's Sigma Nu chapter said Monday that his national has a rule barring Negroes from membership, but this rule does not apply to Sigma Nu at MSU.

But it was no surprise to us that he could not recall whether a Negro has ever pledged his house.

The age of discriminatory clauses in fraternity constitutions is closing. But the age of discrimination is not. MSU passed a law in 1962 prohibiting any Greek house from practicing discrimination.

Discrimination still a fact

But discrimination still exists, de-facto. Perhaps this would not distinguish fraternities from the rest of society but for two things.

Fraternities profess ideals of brotherhood, among the highest in the nation. Also, fraternities claim they are social leaders.

The facts belie the talk. Fraternities are stagnant socially. They do not lead the college community socially. They follow at a very safe distance.

It is evident that the dropping of discrimination clauses by fraternities signifies nothing.

Georgia Votes Ax Hope For Racial Progress

It's a rare thing for a politician to voluntarily drop out of a race in which he is favored, but that's what Rep. Charles L. Weltner, D.-Ga., did.

Weltner acted in protest to the recent victory of arch segregationist Lester Maddox over former governor Ellis Arnall, a racial moderate in the Democratic gubernatorial primary.

Weltner was not the only one who was dismayed by the election.

Georgia has been considered a model in the area of race relations among the states which made up the Confederacy. The nomination of Maddox, however, struck a hard blow at hopes for racial progress in the south in the near future.

Claim to fame

Maddox is a former restaurant owner. He has no previous experience in public office; his sole claim to fame is that he stood in front of his restaurant with a pistol after the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, and prevented Negroes from eating there.

At that time he passed out ax handles for other segregationists to use against Negroes. After selling his restaurant rather than integrate, he continued to sell ax handles, so that today the ax handle is identified with Lester Maddox.

For whites only

Maddox's victory so dismayed Weltner that he dropped out of the campaign rather than vote for Maddox as required by an oath taken by all Democratic candidates in Georgia.

Last Thursday's Georgia election was but another indication that far too many Americans still regard the dignity and equality of man as a very white quality.

Our Readers Speak Out

Student kept out

To the Editor:

Imagine this happening to you: You are a married graduate student (not on any degree program) studying part time and working part time while your wife finishes her degree. You have been studying but not working for any degree for three terms now, satisfying your personal desire for further formal education. You turned down two full-time job offers just last month, because you were content with your present intellectual and material progress.

You go to your college to pick up your permit to register and enrollment card. The secretary tells you that the assistant dean wants to talk to you first. The assistant dean tells you that the college is trying to eliminate the category of non-degree graduate student, and that you cannot enroll in this status.

This is how you stand: (1) You can't accept a career-type job because you are only temporarily in East Lansing while your wife finishes school. (2) You have a part time job which is conducive to continuing your formal education. (3) You are psychologically prepared to attend the classes which you have been planning to attend. (4) Classes start tomorrow.

Does this seem to you like an unjust exclusion from continued formal study? Does it seem to you that the college or department should try to give more warning when it plans to not allow a student to continue to study? Next term this could happen to you, for this term it happened to me.

MSU changes noted

To the Editor:

Well, here we are again, back at MSU. What's changed over the last few months? Oh, not too much. Perhaps one of the more obvious changes was the completion of the newest in the chain of "Hilton Hotels" . . . Hubbard Hall. This masterpiece houses a university in itself, and could be the only dormitory in the world where a floor-by-floor timetable of arrivals and departures, to and from meals is necessary.

This establishment is also lucky in that it could become a big money-maker. All that is necessary is to construct an observation tower on the twelfth floor, and include token machines that when a token is inserted, enable the viewer to see over the whole . . . town.

Other features of the "new regime" include, a sidewalk in front of Bessey Hall, now wide enough for Human Beings; and, oh yes, how can we forget the new hike in tuition. Heh . . . don't see as many out-of-state students parading around anymore, since they each have to pay an arm and a leg to enroll here. (It was a very good year for Senator Potter). Of course, so the university wouldn't appear prejudiced, the administration also boosted the tuition for in-state students, I might add, to a rather unequal denomination.

One entity which is constantly changing is our Bus System. . . one entity that is constantly getting worse is our bus system. And you've got to call this mess a system, because no one "mastermind" could have created such a concoction!

To my dismay, I live on MAC, and have three classes in Fee Hall. I enjoy walking, but it tends to get a little "chilly" before winter recess, and so I decided to buy a bus pass. What I didn't realize is that everyone in Holmes, Hubbard, Fee, Akers, etc., had the same idea.

After one day, I began to realize that purchasing a bus pass didn't necessarily mean purchasing a seat on a bus, nor even standing room. Today, for $12 you get a "Chance"—sort of like playing Russian Roulette. You see, not only is there a 50-50 chance of your getting on the bus, once you obtain the pass, but there's less than a 50-50 chance of your getting off alive, if you should have been so lucky as to have gotten on in the first place!

What does the future hold in store? I don't know, but we could be the first coast-to-coast university. In the event, that should occur, we will need some advanced mode of transportation to carry passengers, say, from Psych. 225 in Los Angeles, to Criminology 400 in New York City. I guess the university will solve that crisis by adding a bus or two so as to alleviate the congestion of ten million students.

OK, So what do you say?

Europe was not merely a vacation spot for thousands of American students this summer. It was an escape, a "drug," a "last fling" for many young men who were caught up in the fall harvest of the war in Viet Nam.

Two young men from California stood at a junction in a road, five miles outside Paris on a September morning, scrutinizing a map of France and trying to figure out where in hell to go next.

"We're hitchhiking around Europe," explained one. "We got our induction notices this month, but we wrote our draft boards that we wouldn't be available until late November."

He smiled kind of sheepishly and said, "Of course, we didn't wait around for a reply."

A former MSU student, roaming through an art museum in Madrid, explained that he was taking his "last fling" in Europe this summer, before entering the Marines.

"I figure I've got about a 50-50 chance of getting out of this damn war alive, and I'm making the best of my time," he said. "Somehow, I believe that the U.S. is in the right. Don't ask me to explain why. I don't want to argue the point. It's just something that has to be done."

It seems ironic that these men traveled to Europe to forget about a war. The scars of two world wars are still visible on this continent. The people haven't forgotten, either.

"Now it's not my place to criticize you or your government's policies," said one English woman, "but we're tired of war and all this killing. I pity the poor boys who are getting shot up and killed in that mess in Viet Nam. What for? What's the reason?

"We don't want anything to do with it," she continued. "We've had enough. You can see certain parts of London that still haven't recovered from the last war. It's enough already."

I watched the 11 p.m. newscast with my relatives in London. The films from American showed six gaping white men, in Grenada, overturning a car belonging to a Negro man who was taking his two youngsters to a newly-segregated school. I wondered then if my relatives had seen films of the American Nazi rally in Chicago, during the summer's racial flareup, when Robert Shelton proclaimed that "the swastika is the symbol of white power."

I wondered if they had seen films of hundreds of Chicago residents rushing up to Shelton and showering him with gifts and contributions "for the cause."

This wasn't anti-American propaganda. I had seen similar films on the Walter Cronkite show back in the States.

Unless he is traveling with a group of friends, an American in Europe finds himself isolated, detached, removed from the security of his society—a society which often supplies him with an abundance of easy answers—and he is forced to analyze, explain and often defend his country's policies when asked to.

But before he can parrot the bromides that worked so handily in the States, he realizes that he cannot give adequate replies. He realizes that he can't answer questions about U.S. policy and behavior when his own government has failed to adequately, and sometimes honestly, do so.

It's not easy to explain a Vietnamese war in which more Americans are involved than South Vietnamese. It's difficult to believe in a war which, at best, can end in a neutralization of Viet Nam.

How can one explain that progress has been made in "democratizing" South Viet Nam when the only proof is a late-summer election, in which the people were coerced into participating, to elect pre-determined representatives to a constitutional convention?

What rationale can be made for sending American troops into Viet Nam when hundreds of South Vietnamese men are dodging the draft?

After you explain these, try explaining Nazi rallies in Chicago, witchhunts (allas HUAC) in Washington and Berkeley and race riots in the South and Midwest.

What made MSU 'trouble spot'? Just more of the same, that's all of our time. It's both frustrating and shattering, because adequate answers to these have yet to come from government sources.

The list grows. Watts, Chicago, Cleveland, Michigan State University; . . . Huh? That's right. Thanks to some inspiring individuals, MSU finally joined the official list of trouble spots in the U.S. because of last spring's "riots."

And without knowledge, we are told to rationalize it away or simply figure it out as best we can.

But without the knowledge, we are as lost as those two young California men, standing at the junction in a road, and not knowing where the hell to go next. It's embarrassing.

John A. Fuzak, vice-president for student affairs, commented Monday to the State News about the "riots." Noting that students in the group had some reason for being discontented, Fuzak suggested more recreation facilities for the area.

This sounds similar to the federal government's cure-all for big-city disturbances. . . rush more aid to the "impoverished natives."

MSU, like any other city, has its own share of incompetents. Sensible people don't allow frustrations to overpower them. Mobs aren't composed of "sensible" people.

The "riots" weren't spontaneous either. They were merely a continuation of a senseless program of malicious destruction.

Any dormitory resident can tell you of broken elevators, torn guard rails and missing ceiling tiles. Damages to taxpayers, (and your) property amounted to $6,454 last year.

In the wee hours of the morning last year, Fee Hall residents were accustomed to hearing the crash and tinkle of bottles in Parking Lot X. Shall we send these drunken delinquents aid also?

Breaking windshields and smashing tail lights is great fun, right? Getting right into the swing of things along with other hare brained numbskulls who see nothing wrong in destroying another's property is terrific. "Sociologically," it releases all your built-up tensions.

Damages in residence halls are recovered in room and board cost increases. Students who engage in inactivities like tearing down ash urns have no excuse. They're plain stupid.

"Popular villains" like the police can certainly be eliminated as causes of malicious damage. Reasoning in that manner is worse than illogical. It's plain stupidity.

The reasons behind the rash of damages last year can be found more in common sense than in sociology. University students should know better. And if they don't, they are pathetic warts on the hand of progress.

Responsible students should take measures to protect themselves from these mental minors. Spank them!

Senate approves foreign aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate, acting with unexpected speed Wednesday, passed a $2.93-billion foreign aid appropriation bill, but the total was nearly half a billion dollars below President Johnson's request.

The vote on passage was 52-22.

A Senate-House conference committee will have the task of working out a compromise between the Senate bill and the $3.09-billion approved by the House. In the past the conferees frequently have agreed to split the difference between the two appropriations.

The Senate bill includes a $2.14-billion for economic aid and 792-million for military assistance.

House passes "sympathizer" trade cut

WASHINGTON — Over administration opposition, the House voted today to prohibit bargain-price sales of U.S. agricultural commodities to nations that conduct any trade with North Viet Nam or Cuba.

By roll call vote of 36 to 61 it returned to a Senate-

House conference committee the otherwise noncontroversial "food for peace" bill.

The vote instructed House members of the conference committee to insist on an earlier House ban which the Senate had modified to give the President more discretion.

Lynda Bird to work for McCall's

NEW YORK (AP)—McCall's magazine announced Wednesday that Lynda Bird Johnson, the President's older daughter, will go to work on a part-time basis for the magazine later this month.

Lynda, 22, will work in McCall's New York and Washington offices in a new department covering activities and attitudes of young Americans, particularly life on college campuses, McCall's editor, Robert Stein, announced.

Lynda will start work Oct. 17 in New York. There was no indication what salary she would receive.

Congo cuts Portuguese ties

KINSHASA, the Congo — The Congo broke relations Wednesday with Portugal, 11 days after their embassy was sacked by a mob.

Congolese officials charge that neighboring Portuguese Angola is used as a base for mercenary operations against the Congo. These operations are alleged to be in behalf of a return to power by ex-Premier Moise Tshombe, now in exile.

Besides ordering the diplomatic break with Portugal, the Cabinet decided to close inland consulates of all foreign countries. This will end consular aid and protection for about 50,000 foreigners of 16 nationalities. There are 39 consulates in Lubumbashi, Kisangani, Bukavu, Luluaborg and Matadi.

The action is manifestation of fear and hatred of foreigners that has been the press and the government-run radio. They speak continually of "foreign interests," "international finance" and "external plots."

The Chamber of Deputies had passed a resolution last week urging the break with Portugal and the closing of consulates.

It also urged that embassy staffs be restricted to the same size as Congo legations abroad.

Under this plan the U.S. Embassy would be cut from 106 persons to seven, the number working at the Congolese Embassy in Washington.

The United States used 24 persons in distributing a $50-million-a-year aid program here.

MSU student needed for HRC panel

The East Lansing City Council is looking for an MSU student to fill a vacancy on the 11-man Human Relations Committee.

The council has been searching since last June to replace William L. Evans, a Michigan State student who graduated.

"We are looking for a person with a genuine interest in the commission, rather than a 'feather in my cap' type," said Mayor Gordon L. Thomas.

"We want someone who is qualified and in communication with student government," continued Thomas.

WHICH NICHE?

Careers '66 to open

Into just "Which Niche" do you fit?

Over 300 representatives from 83 different organizations will be ready Monday at Careers '66 to help students find the answer to this question.

Careers '66, the University's vocational information show, opens at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the Union. Over 15,000 students are expected to visit the display booths Monday and Tuesday to question the company representatives on career opportunities.

The displays will be open 6:30 to 10 p.m. Monday and 10 to 11:30 a.m., 1:15 to 4:30 p.m., and 7:30 to 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Careers '66, formerly the Career Carnival, was the first vocational information show of its kind in the United States.

Ed Pino, president of the 1949 senior class, first suggested the idea of such a vocational show to the director of the Placement Bureau. The first career carnival opened April with 23 displays.

Although other colleges now conduct their own career carnivals, Careers '66 remains the largest show.

There will be representatives from almost every job area at Careers '66. The representatives can answer the general questions of the freshman still searching for a major and a job field and those of the Ph.D. candidate looking for a specific job.

Some of the 83 companies represented at Careers '66 booths are Aetna Life Insurance Co., Bell Telephone System, Dow Chemical Co., Corning Glass Works, General Motors, the Hotel Corporation of America, the Michigan State Bar Association, the Michigan State Dental Society, U.S. government agencies and Prentice Hall Inc.

Even the Boy Scouts will be there looking for administrative personnel. And the branches of the armed forces will be there to discuss military career opportunities.

The students on the Careers '66 executive committee and the Placement Bureau started putting Careers '66 together in January.

They chose the theme, "Which Niche?", designed stationary on the "Which Niche?" theme, invited companies to the vocational show and drew up posters and brochures.

Seeger was

A headline in Wednesday's State News incorrectly identified a recent campus speaker, Gerhart H. Seeger, as an ex-Nazi. He was, instead, a former Nazi political prisoner.

Kim pleads for Red unity

TOKYO — North Korea's Premier Kim Il Sung pleaded with the world's Communist nations Wednesday to close their ranks and send fighting "volunteers" to Viet Nam.

At the same time he painted a picture of the disarray in communism's ranks so gloomy as to suggest that he held out little hope the main antagonists—the Soviet Union and Red China—would get together. Until they do, no other Communist nation is likely to dispatch its fighting men to Viet Nam.

Kim, in a major policy address before the opening session of the Worker's Communist party in Pyongyang, said the Communist "volunteers" are needed to counteract expansion of the war by the United States and its Allies which threatens the existence of North Viet Nam.

He also saw them as a means of patching up the tattered unity of international communism.

He said North Korea's "volunteers" will go to fight whenever Hanoi calls for them.

Kim spelled out the Communist dilemma over Viet Nam in the clearest and least compromising terms yet.

He said that while North Viet Nam is being attacked by the United States daily and is suffering heavy losses in men and material, ideological differences paralyze the Communist bloc. China refuses to join hands with the Soviet Union on the grounds that Moscow is collaborating with the United States; the Soviets hold back because they do not wish to see China's policy of people's war vindicated in Viet Nam.

Kim's address betrayed his impatience with Chinese and Soviet obduracy.

"At present, the countries of the socialist camp are not keeping step with each other in opposing U.S. aggression and aiding the Vietnamese people because of differences among themselves. This afflicts the fighting people of Viet Nam and really saddens us Communists," he said.

"Modern revisionism still remains a big menace to the international Communist movement."

How Fast Can You Read?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique of rapid reading which should enable you to double your reading speed and yet retain much more. Most people do not realize how much they could increase their pleasure, success and income by reading faster and more accurately.

According to this publisher, anyone, regardless of his present reading skill, can use this simple technique to improve his reading ability to a remarkable degree. Whether reading stories, books, technical matter, it becomes possible to read sentences at a glance and entire pages in seconds with this method.

To acquaint the readers of this newspaper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing rapid reading skill, the company has printed full details of its interesting self-training method in a new booklet, "How to Read Faster and Retain More" mailed free. Introducing two of the most radical changes in Volkswagen history.
Can you spot them?

Did you notice that the headlights are vertical now instead of leaning back a bit? That doesn't make the car look any better. But it makes the road look better by making the lights a little brighter.

And that little hump in the back? We did that to hold the license plate up straight so the police can read it better. (Sorry.)

What you won't notice without driving the new model are the big improvements.

The engine has been enlarged in a fabulous 53 horsepower. That only adds 3 m.p.h. to the top speed. Because we put most of the additional power where it would make the engine accelerate faster, turn slower and last even longer.

Now that the VW is getting to be such a hot car, we put in a couple of things to slow it down. Dual brakes.

The front wheel brakes are completely independent of the rear wheel brakes. So if you ever lost the front wheel brakes, you could still stop the back of the car. (Which automatically stops the front of the car too.)

The new VW also has seat belts, backup lights and recessed door handles as standard equipment. In fact, this year we made so many changes on the Volkswagen that we thought we'd better make one more.

We wrote "Volkswagen" on the back of the car to be sure everybody would know what it was.

Robby's Home

Frank Robinson, Baltimore Oriole outfielder, is congratulated by Russ Snyder, who scored ahead of him, and the Oriole bat boy. Robinson's homer was followed by Brooks Robinson's home run, in the first inning of Baltimore's 5-2 victory over Los Angeles, in the first game of the World Series.

BALTIMORE WINS, 5-2

Robinsons, Drabowski give Birds Series opener

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Baltimore's devastating daily double of Frank Robinson and Brooks Robinson jolted the Los Angeles Dodgers early and "washed up" Moe Drabowsky numbed them with a record-equalling relief job for a 5-2 victory Wednesday in the World Series opener.

That unlikely trio, the two Robinsons and the curly-haired, 31-year-old Drabowsky, who was shunted aside by four other major league clubs as all washed up, forced a crowd of 55,941 to sit in a stony silence as they caused the Dodgers' first World Series defeat ever in their $20-million stadium.

Frank and Brooks Robinson played the role of the aggressors with a pair of first-inning homers which spurred the Orioles to a 3-0 lead while the husky, right-handed Drabowsky served as executioner by blanketing the Dodgers on one hit and striking out 11 men over the last 6 and 2/3 innings.

The Polish-born Drabowsky, picked up from the minors in the draft last November, equaled a 47-year-old World Series record by striking out six consecutive batters in the fourth and fifth innings.

That accomplishment put him in the record book with Horace (Hod) Eller of the Cincinnati Reds, who did the same thing against the Chicago White Sox on Oct. 6, 1919.

The Orioles rapped Drysdale, Joe Moeller, Bob Miller and Ron Perranoski for nine hits, including those two homers by the Robinsons and doubles by Boog Powell and Dave Johnson.

The sluggish looking Dodgers, on the other hand, managed only three hits, one of them a second-inning homer by Jim Lefebvre.

Drysdale didn't even have a chance to get fully acquainted before he was behind, 3-0. Five minutes was all it took.

Luis Aparicio led off the first inning harmlessly enough by flying out to right field, after which Russ Snyder walked on a low, inside 3-and-2 delivery.

That brought up Frank Robinson, a fellow who has plagued Drysdale ever since he first came up to the majors with Cincinnati in 1956. Among themselves in pre-series skull sessions, the Dodgers agreed the only effective way of coping with Robinson, or trying to, anyway, was moving the ball in and out on him.

Drysdale tried it that way, making his first pitch low and away and his second one inside and letter high.

Good-bye! Robinson jumped on the second pitch and deposited it 360 feet away four rows up in the left field stands for a homer that scored Snyder ahead of him.

Brooks Robinson promptly provided the Orioles with their third run when he rapped a 1-and-1 pitch 15 rows higher up into the left field seats than Frank did. Drysdale departed after two innings and by that time it was obvious he had had enough. A walk to Andy Etchebarren, McNally's sacrifice and Snyder's two-out single to left padded Baltimore's margin to four runs.

Larry Jaster

LA: lost chances

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Manager Walt Alston blamed the inability of the Los Angeles Dodgers to cash in on scoring of the World Series to the Baltimore Orioles.

But shortstop Maury Wills, captain of the club, said, "There was just no life on the bench at all — it was dead, I'd have to call it the dulllest World Series game I ever played in."

And Dodger starting pitcher Don Drysdale, bombed for home runs in the first inning by Frank and Brooks Robinson, blamed himself for the loss.

"I didn't get the ball where I wanted it," Drysdale said. "It was up on both Frank and Brooks and over the plate. You can't make a mistake with those guys. Give them credit for hitting your mistakes. That's what makes them good hitters. It was about the same as the first game against Minnesota last year — I didn't get the ball where I wanted it."

Alston felt the Dodgers still might have had a chance despite the three runs Drysdale gave up in the opening inning on the two homers but he said his team failed to cash in on its opportunities.

An expert view:

Jaster says LA

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Staff Writer

The best bet in East Lansing to win a wager on the World Series is Larry Jaster. He's seen the Los Angeles Dodgers from the most advantageous angle — the pitcher's mound.

A rookie with the St. Louis Cardinals and also a Michigan State student, Jaster didn't waste any time in making his presence known after joining St. Louis.

He set a major league record Sept. 28 when he shut out the Dodgers for the fifth consecutive time, becoming the first major league player in baseball history to accomplish that feat against one team.

"I had good control and pitched well most of the year," Jaster explained. "Our defense helped me a lot as well."

Included with that control was keeping Maury Wills, who steals bases the way ham actors steal scenes, off base.

"Wills steals a base, then moves over and scores," Jaster said. "I didn't walk many either, just about one to two a game."

Jaster lives with his wife, Peggy, and 13-month-old son, Scott, in Spartan Village. Both Larry and Peggy are enrolled at MSU this fall, their second term here.

A Midland native, Jaster spent three terms at Northwood Institute in Midland and is now seeking a coaching degree with a minor in business.

After the end of fall term, Jaster won't be back in class until next September. Spring training begins two weeks into winter, quarter and then the season starts.

Peggy and Scott will be on the move too, joining Larry in St. Louis once spring rolls around and then heading back to East Lansing.

Jaster's pick in the Series is Los Angeles, yet he's not giving Baltimore the slip. He sees the Series going the full seven games. "Baltimore has home run power," he said. "They're like Minnesota, which had that advantage last year."

He feels that Koufax not starting the first game may hurt L.A.'s chances for an opening win, but pointed to their tremendous pitching depth as a great factor.

"They're not a home run hitting club," Jaster said, "but they're in there battling all the way. It seems like they'll never make a mistake. Anyway, they can't afford to; they don't score many runs."

Of the hitters he's faced, Jaster calls Ron Fairly the most dangerous, with Jim Lefebvre and Johnny Roseboro in the same class.

"They all hit about .270; they're all good hitters," Jaster said. "None actually excels over the others too much. Any could deliver."

Koufax and Dodger Manager Walt Alston both impressed Jaster greatly. "I haven't seen another like him," he said of Koufax. "He throws real hard. His curve ball impressed me the most. It breaks fast and quick. Both his curve and fast ball start from the shoulder, high, then break just a little below."

"I think Alston is one of the best managers in baseball," he went on. "He has to be, because every year the Dodgers win; he must have something to do with it. He keeps them on their toes; they're always fired up. There's great spirit there."

Jaster's professional career has ruled him out of Spartan baseball, a major disappointment, to be sure, for Danny Litwhiler, MSU head baseball coach.

Powerful Spartan Offense?

The Michigan State football offense was expected to be one of the top offensive teams in the country. So far this season, and especially in last week's game at Illinois, the defense has overshadowed a somewhat sputtering attack.

Spartan defense growls while offense sputters

By ED BRILL
State News Sports Writer

No one was worrying about Michigan State's offense this year, at least not until last Saturday.

But the way the Spartans sputtered and stopped when they had the ball against Illinois started some people thinking about the ability of the team to move against a stout defense.

The 137 yards gained on the ground by MSU was the lowest total for the Spartans in two seasons, Clint Jones and Bob Apisa, strongly built up in Illinois before the game as All-America running threats, combined for a total net gain of only 39 yards.

The question then is whether everyone just had a bad day, or whether the Spartan attack is stoppable.

Coach Duffy Daugherty tried to explain the offensive performance of the team at his Monday afternoon press luncheon.

"Our offense made mistakes where we stopped ourselves," Daugherty said. "We were hurt by penalties, missed assignments and mental errors."

"Actually, the offense put together three good, long drives in the game," Daugherty added. One touchdown came on a four-play, 71-yard drive, which was highlighted by a 50-yard pass from Jimmy Raye to Gene Washington.

In the third period, the offense strung together a 14-play, 71-yard drive to the Illinois 19. But Illinois safety Bruce Sullivan peeked off a Raye pass on the three to halt the Spartans.

Illinois then punted to their own 38, and MSU got back down to the two. But once more Sullivan prevented a score, when he tackled Raye by the jersey on a fourth down quarterback roll-out.

Daugherty also talked about MSU's persistence in running with the ball. "We were kind of stubborn," Daugherty admitted.

"We wanted to make that running game go regardless. We probably should have thrown more, but we wanted to see if we could run against stacked defenses."

With men who can catch the ball like ends Gene Washington, and Al Brenner and halfback Clint Jones, why doesn't Daugherty have Raye pass more?

"I like to throw the ball," Daugherty admitted, "when they're completed. But we are going to move the ball the surest way we can."

"I don't think passing is the surest, or the safest way," he added.

Dan Boisture, offensive backfield coach, explained the Michigan State strategy. "We like to move the ball on the ground, with the threat of the pass always present," he explained.

Will we see Jimmy Raye passing more in future games? "If you see our team passing more," quipped Daugherty, "then you know we must be in trouble."

Booters win, 13-0 for third in row

Michigan State's soccer team displayed a powerful offense and stingy defense in rolling over outclassed Calvin College by a score of 13-0, Wednesday.

The Spartans came through with a dazzling display of pinpoint passing and shooting and had total command of the game from the start. The shutout was the third in three games for MSU this year.

Tony Keyes, the little sophomore from Kingston, Jamaica, and All-American Guy Busch were once again the big guns. Keyes scored four goals and hit the goal post once, while Busch countered with three goals and four assists.

MSU started slowly, scoring only twice in the first quarter when Keyes picked up half of his total. But the second quarter saw the booters turn it on to run the score to 7-0. Keyes, Tom Kreft, Keyes again, and Guy Busch with two were the marksmen.

Coach Kenney substituted freely throughout the game in an attempt to give all his players some action.

From the third quarter on, it was just a matter of preserving the shutout. In the third quarter, Gary McBrady and Barry Tiemann each scored twice.

The fourth quarter saw the booters finish out the scoring on goals by Busch and McBrady again.

Tickets for all

Never fear freshmen, you will see the MSU-Michigan football game from Spartan Stadium, if you have a student ticket card.

"Despite rumors to the contrary, every student who has a ticket will see the game," Bill Beardsley, MSU ticket director reports.

Tigers hire two coaches

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers added Johnny Sain and Hal Naragon to their coaching staff Tuesday night to serve under new Manager Mayo Smith.

Sain and Naragon both were with Minnesota this season and Detroit officials received permission to negotiate with them from the Twins. Sain will act as pitching coach for the Tigers, as he did for the Twins, while Naragon will serve as bullpen coach.

The Tigers hired Tony Cuccinello two days ago.

Departure of Sain and Naragon left Billy Martin and Jim Lemon as the Twins' only coaches. Club President Calvin Griffith said replacements would be added in the near future.

Buying a new car? Remember-financing rates are on the way UP...but not at

The total price you pay for your new car is determined by two things: (1) the cost of financing; and (2) the trade-in deal on your old car, or "discount" if you have no trade-in.

That first can run into hundreds of dollars—especially now, when interest rates are moving up just about everywhere except at your credit union. And what you pay for financing makes a BIG difference in the cost of your car.

There's a reason why the credit union rate doesn't move up along with others. A credit union is in business to help its members. It is owned by its members. There's no point in charging yourself higher interest rates.

And that's why credit unions offer still other advantages you find nowhere else. For example, loans to all qualified members are insured as an extra benefit at no extra cost. If you die or are totally and permanently disabled, your loan is paid up in full. Many credit unions give borrowers an interest rebate at the end of the year. And they're the only ones who do.

So look at the '67 models. You'll love them. But avoid '67 features on your financing. Go back to your credit union for the always low cost. You'll probably get the best deal in town.

Graham defines goals, priorities

The role of student government is a main topic of discussion in the offices of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU).

Jim Graham, chairman of the Student Board of ASMSU, gave form to his personal thoughts and discussion in this area by listing six goals for student government.

These goals were discussed at the student board meeting and were mentioned in order of priority, ranging from policy formulation to external affiliation to communications.

Graham places equal emphasis on the areas of policy-making and academics. He spoke of the new role of student government, pending the action of the Academic Senate on the faculty committee's Academic Freedom Report.

The decision on this report could make ASMSU a partner with the University in deciding policy in student affairs.

"It is the role and responsibility of student government to become concerned with academic affairs" instead of paying lip service to the problems which exist there, Graham said.

He listed two ways in which he would like ASMSU to act. These are in course evaluation and student membership on curricular committees.

A third goal of student government is in continued and increased concern with issues of the immediate community and society which Graham defines as MSU, the students and population in the East Lansing area.

MSU does not stop at the physical borders of the campus, he said, since its students and concerns extend farther.

Issues of concern to student government, Graham said, include housing, civil rights, poverty and education.

Graham's fourth goal involves four main structural problems. The first is the judiciary system, which is also being reconsidered by the Academic Senate in the Academic Freedom Report.

The other structural changes proposed by Graham are removal of the State News editor as an ex-officio member of the student board, returned status of AWS as a voting member of the board, and revised representation through elimination of the two appointed members at large, and student election of an additional three.

Members at large would then stand at six persons elected from the student body, three of them seniors, two juniors, and one sophomore. There would also be a provision for a seventh member-at-large, if necessary, to guarantee that one member would be a woman.

Graham's concern with external affiliation would bring back the question of membership in the National Student Association. This was defeated last year primarily for political and monetary reasons, Graham said that if re-action looked favorable he would again propose affiliation with the organization.

"A campus of this size can not realistically or advantageously exist without meaningful external affiliation on a national level," he said.

Graham's last point involved the often-raised question of communications. He mentioned improved reports through "Inside ASMSU," which is made available to all student leaders and living units, through the minutes and through a General Assembly meeting of living unit representatives twice each term.

"These are general guidelines, general areas of concern and a general outline for the direction of this student government in the coming year," Graham said.

Formalization of these guidelines is most important in the minds of the student government members, he said, rather than by formal acceptance through a vote of the student board, student body.

Registrar clarifies draft report

Registrar Horace C. King clarified Wednesday the information which the University supplies to local draft boards regarding MSU male students.

The University has three basic reports which it may submit, at the student's request, to the Selective Service.

Shortly after registration is completed, the University sends the Selective Service a Beginning - of-the-Academic - Year report, which is designed to let the student's local board know whether the student is full-time or part-time.

For undergraduates, their year of study and the dates for the beginning and end of the school year is also reported.

The second report is used only to notify draft boards of any changes in a student's status (full time, part time, not eligible to continue, graduated, or withdrew - no longer enrolled).

At the end of the school year, the third report is submitted for all students who have requested that their status be reported.

In this report all full-time, male, undergraduate, on-campus, degree - program students who have enrolled for and completed at least 12 credits each term are ranked according to class standing as follows: upper one-fourth, upper one-half, upper two-thirds, upper three-quarters, or lower one-fourth.

The University also reports on all graduate and part-time students but does not include class rankings for any of them.

For each student on whom the University reports, the end-of-year report includes identification of the student, his status (full-time, etc.), and, for undergraduates, the academic year completed.

National Selective Service System guidelines indicate that students completing their freshman year should have been in the upper half, sophomores in the upper two-thirds, and juniors in the upper three-quarters of their class.

Rioters claim police brutality

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

On the second night of the June finals week riots, a group of men students were walking from another area toward Brody Group to see what the excitement was all about. A policeman stopped them and told them to go back. He jabbed one student in the back to get him moving.

The jabbed student commented: "I wasn't making any trouble or intending to make trouble. He didn't have to order me like that. All he had to do was ask. I don't like being told like that." The students in the Brody area started yelling obscenities at the police and needing them. Most yelled because it was an act of deviation their friends rewarded, said James S. Hundley, assistant professor of sociology.

"It was a new thing, like a new dance, a new drug or any new kick," he continued. Rumors of help coming from other dormitories circulated among the crowd, keeping it going when it might have broken up. Phone calls came from other dormitories. "Hold tight and we'll send someone over to help you." "When I got a phone call from Shaw and someone told me help was on the way, it was the first time I felt I was the member of a university," one student said. "Someone cared enough to help. I felt a solidarity with other students."

"The police over-reacted but the kids over-reacted, too," Art

Tung, member of the ASMSU Student Board, said. "They resent anything they think infringes on their rights, but they don't know where their responsibility begins."

The students resented being hemmed in and told to clear out of "their front yard" Hundley said. They resented being told they were an illegal assembly, a "riot," when they regarded themselves as just a good-natured fun-loving crowd.

Accounts of just how the crowd was broken up run the scale of possibilities.

Some students say the police charged at full speed. An on-looker said they merely double-timed.

Others said they walked into the crowd.

Some students say the police jabbed, hard, with their billy clubs.

Hundley said there isn't much reason to use force to break up a college crowd.

"College crowds are usually gay, frolicking crowds. If left pretty much alone, they won't allow any too violent action. They'll let the police arrest a drunk or someone carrying a knife or a gun in the crowd with no objections," Hundley said.

The crowd probably would have broken up itself shortly after women's closing hours, in Hundley's opinion. The men students were "putting on a show" for the women students. At closing hours their audience left.

JOHN A. Fuzak, vice president for student affairs, made several comments on the students' resentment.

The college age is an age of resentment of authority, he said, and obvious authority like the police becomes a target of that resentment.

"Students want so badly to be responsible for themselves, and yet while they are striving for independence they know they are still dependent on their parents. They grow resentful of being dependent," Fuzak said.

An organizational meeting for the Students Off Campus touch football team will be held at 8 tonight in the Students Off Campus Lounge on the fourth floor of the Union. All off-campus men interested in playing are invited to attend.

The Amateur Radio Club will meet at 7:30 tonight in 100 Engineering Building. After the meeting, the club's radio station, WSSH, will be open. The public is invited.

Delta Phi Epsilon, professional foreign service and trade fraternity, will hold a joint open rush and meeting at 7:30 tonight in the Art Room of the Student Union.

Harold S. Johnson, professor of political science, will speak on "International Law in Outer Space."

Registration for Union Board bridge lessons will be held from 7-9 tonight in the Union lobby. Classes will begin Oct. 13, at which time late registration will be held. The series of six lessons will cost $3 per person.

Chess meet starts today in Lansing

Two old acquaintances will renew a quiet two-year rivalry at 7:30 tonight when the Greater Lansing 1967 Open Chess Championship Tournament gets under way at the Lansing YMCA. Lloyd Kawamura, a junior from Hawaii, will seek to regain the area title he won in 1965 but lost in an upset earlier this year to Loren E. Lomansky, a West Hartford, Conn., junior. Lomansky is expected to defend his title.

Open to players of all ages and degrees of experience, the tournament will crown a half dozen separate champions.

Special prizes will be awarded to the woman champion, the junior champion under 18 and the young junior champion under 15. Awards for the biggest upset and the shortest checkmate will also be given.

An initial $3 entry fee covers all admissions.

Those interested in participating may sign up between 6:30 and 7:15 p.m. today at the Lansing YMCA.

NYC BALLET

Education through dance

By BOB ZESCHIN
State News Staff Writer

Before appreciation there must be awareness. Awareness can be achieved only through education. This is the credo of the New York City Ballet's educational programs.

"Ballet is still not a popular form in the United States," said ballerina Melissa Hayden. "Much of this is because an audience doesn't understand much of what's going on onstage. So our purpose is to get an audience to understand through exposure and explanation."

"We wanted to reach students at a young age, because their minds are so receptive to new things. But they can't afford to attend our performances at Lincoln Center, so we decided to visit them in their schools and perform for them at assemblies."

Miss Hayden organized the first lecture-demonstrations after returning from a tour of the Soviet Union three years ago. "And from this first visit, the programs became so popular that this year we had over 300 requests to perform at schools," she said.

"We arrange the program to appeal to the students," said Miss Hayden. "It mustn't be dull. We want to bring on oohs and aahs, to get them to applaud. And when things go well, they just gasp! I love that and I make sure they know it."

After an explanation of basic body movement, they move into numbers from the regular ballet repertory — "Agon" and "Tchali-kovsky pas de deux" are regularly featured on the lecture-demonstrations.

"The audiences are marvelous," continued Miss Hayden. "Their responses are so natural and gratifying. One time we did a Webern ballet—modern and a bit funny. Sophisticated audiences figure that it couldn't possibly be meant to be humorous and don't laugh. The kids simply roared."

The first programs were scheduled for no longer than 45 minutes, but responses were so enthusiastic that Miss Hayden would ask the principal if she could continue and the audience would invariably answer for him.

The program would continue for another half hour.

"The rewards from this are fantastic. Students come backstage afterwards and ask all kinds of questions like 'How do you do this?' or 'How long did it take to learn this?' And I get fan mail from students and administrators asking us to come back because we were so well received."

Edward Villella spoke of another type of reward: "One of the greatest compliments I've ever had came from a school in Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant area. The audience was filled with noisy kids, some even surly. I started by talking about the importance of hands—how to hold them and what can be done with them."

"I looked in the first row and saw all these kids looking at their hands in wonderment. Hands to them were something to hit with or hold knives in. Now they were realizing for the first time that a part of the human body can become a thing of beauty."

Star Teacher

Ballet students had an especially illustrious instructor Tuesday when Melissa Hayden (in white), dancer with the New York City Ballet, took time out from her busy schedule to teach a ballet class in the Woman's IM.

Dorm scrambles for food

By JOANN BAER
State News Staff Writer

"What do you mean, scramble? I can hardly move!"

There words could have been uttered by almost any student in the Hubbard Hall cafeteria this week.

Patterned after Holmes Hall, Hubbard was designed to accommodate student meals according to the scramble system.

This method involves two hot food tables, a condiment stand, salad table, dessert table, four milk machines and a coffee station. It replaces the one line system used in other dorms.

Hubbard students must wait in line between 20 and 30 minutes before being admitted into the cafeteria, whereas Holmes students, who have been operating under the scramble system for over a year, go through the lines with little delay.

Student reaction at Hubbard was varied.

"It stinks," said one coed. Another commented that she enjoyed "sneaking in and out of the congested areas."

One Massachusetts sophomore commented that it is too confusing because someone is always spilling something. "It's a hazard," he said.

Rita Maynard, food supervisor at Hubbard Hall, feels that the situation will definitely improve.

"The students are not oriented yet and it is a new system to most of them. There is a tendency to form a straight line at the first table, which is wrong," continued Miss Maynard.

"Students should serve themselves first in the least congested areas," she said.

"Approximately 1,000 students are served in 45 minutes by scrambling, which is much faster than the regular lines in Case Hall," said Miss Maynard, who opened Case Hall's cafeteria five years ago.

"Another factor contributing to the confusion is that the hall is composed of fifty per cent freshmen who are not used to a volume feeding system," said Miss Maynard.

"It does not seem quite right to them because they have no previous experiences to compare with it," she explained.

"Not all supplies are in the main serving area," said Lawrence Greenley, Bloomfield Hills senior and student cafeteria manager.

"Students come in so fast that the cooks sometimes cannot keep up with them," he continued. Greenley agreed with Miss Maynard that the scramble method will be a complete success when students quit crowding around the first table they come to.

"Students will soon acquaint themselves with the procedure and in two or three weeks will become adjusted," said Greenley.

Until then the password is "scramble."

Mediators push for settlements

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Federal mediators pushed efforts today to settle two labor disputes involving the production of critical war material for Viet Nam.

Talks resumed in the attempt to avert a nationwide strike against the huge General Electric Corp. Negotiations involving the Norris Thermidor Corp. were moved here from Los Angeles.

Defense Department officials emphasized Tuesday that a threatened strike by some 120,000 General Electric workers would slow production of aircraft engines, radar equipment, bomb sights, aircraft weapons and other military hardware.

Norris Thermidor manufactures casings for bombs and aircraft rockets used in Viet Nam.

William E. Simkin, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, talked with President Paul Jennings of the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers to pin down the union's demands in the threatened strike that was postponed for two weeks at the request of President Johnson.

Mediators were also working to get details of contract demands of 10 other unions bargaining in concert with the IUE in the General Electric dispute. The IUE represents some 80,000 of the total 120,000 union members involved.

Variety of groups to meet

Clinical psychologists, traffic engineers, labor market analysts and kitchen planners are among the groups expected for conferences at MSU in October.

Over 3,800 adults, from many walks of life and from the 50 states and several foreign countries, will travel to the Kellogg Center for Continuing Education for 38 educational conferences.

Other conferees expected include teachers of the mentally handicapped, bakers, flower show judges and law enforcement administrators.

Meetings are also planned for the Michigan Department of Mental Health, Michigan Restaurant Association, American Academy of Optometry, Michigan Federation of Sisterhoods, General Federation of Women's Clubs, Michigan Association of Community College Boards and Michigan TB and Thoracic Societies.

The conferences will last from one to 32 days, and will range in attendance from 15 to 450.

All are sponsored by the MSU Continuing Education Service and the various university colleges and departments, in cooperation with local, state and national organizations and agencies.

Voice Library

Housing a unique selection of works, the National Voice Library collects the spoken, instead of the written word. Shown here is the director of the library, G. Robert Vincent, and a few of the library's recordings.

VOICE LIBRARY

Tapes capture history

By DOROTHY LASKEY
State News Staff Writer

The voices of kings, the words of Hitler and the music of the flapper era are a part of the living history being documented in sound by G. Robert Vincent, creator and curator of the National Voice Library.

The National Voice Library has been housed on the fourth floor of the Library since April of 1962. It has been used by students from Paris who couldn't find the information they needed at the Sorbonne and by the national broadcasting systems, but by very few MSU students or faculty members.

Beginning this term, Vincent said the voice library will be open every Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Previously, the voice library had no set hours.

Vincent said that the library is intended for historical and social study, and that students should not come there for a language or music session. He said work done there can be both educational and entertaining. He said it could also be used effectively in the classroom.

Currently the voice library can accommodate three students in its listening booths, but plans call for expansion into the Honors College space soon after the library addition is completed. Twenty-five booths will then be available.

This term Vincent, who has taught a class in radio history, is presenting a course in living history for the non-credit Evening College series.

Vincent's institution began as a boyhood avocation when he and a friend recorded Theodore Roosevelt's talk to their boy's club. Vincent said that now he is interested in expanding his historical pictures collection, displayed on his office walls.

Vincent feels that tapes of speeches add to the learning experience because the student feels the personality and characteristics of the time through background, inflections and timbre of the voice.

"Our most important customers probably haven't been born," said the curator. "The voice library concept is still new and many people are unaware of it," he added.

The original collection of approximately eight thousand items dating from 1888 up to the early 1960's was presented to MSU as a nucleus for forming a national historical institution that would preserve the "living voice" of historic events. Today the collection numbers over 20,000 items and is kept up to date through reciprocity agreements with Voice of America, United Nations Archives, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the American, National, and Columbia broadcasting systems.

Vincent worked for ten years under Thomas Edison and knows the history of recording. He has, along with his archives, old photographs and autographed pictures and mementos from the White House and Hollywood.

Percy to resume campaign

CHICAGO (AP) -- Industrialist Charles H. Percy said today he will resume his campaign for U.S. senator from Illinois next Monday.

"This is what I must do," he told a news conference in his campaign headquarters.

Percy said, "There can only be one question in the campaign—who can be the better senator from Illinois."

His democratic opponent, seeking a third term is Sen. Paul H. Douglas.

Percy said he and his family were grateful for the expressions of sympathy from their many friends, business associates, neighbors, press and others which followed the slaying of his daughter, Valerie, 21, on Sept. 18.

"Next Monday I shall resume my campaign for the U.S. Senate."

"This is what I must do, and it is what my family wants me to do. In order to spend as much time as possible with my family, my schedule will be less intense than before."

"But with only five weeks remaining before the election, it is essential that the critical problems and great opportunities facing our people be thoughtfully explored."

"I shall continue to discuss these issues as clearly and forthrightly as I know how."

"I would especially like to thank Sen. Douglas, who, at a difficult time for him, has acted generously, graciously and with understanding."

"This morning I met briefly with my campaign staff and volunteers. My first public campaign appearance will be before the City Club of Chicago at noon Monday."

Sen. Douglas resumed campaigning Tuesday.

The Percy family was in its suburban Kenilworth home early Sept. 18 when an intruder entered the second floor bedroom of Valerie and bludgeoned and slashed her to death.

The killer has not been found and police say they have no suspects.

The Percy family returned to Kenilworth Tuesday after spending several days in seclusion in California.

UNIQUE IN STATE

Nineteenth century central Michigan churches and cottages unique in architectural styling and in danger of being razed have been preserved by photography and are currently on display at the library.

Twenty-six prints, first shown last week at the Detroit Conference on Historic Preservation, were brought here by Allen Stross, photographer commissioned by the Historic American Building Survey, a federal preservation project.

The entire collection of prints, begun in the 1930's, includes five photographs of approximately 130 buildings. They are available at the Library of Congress in Washington.

The exhibit at the Library which will be shown during October includes pictures of the Capitol Building in Lansing, a Frank Lloyd Wright house and a house patterned after a palace in Honolulu.

The black and white prints were taken last summer in the seven counties surrounding Ingham. MSU served as the home base for study and detailing work.

1. How come you've been getting such swinging computer dates?

I guess you haven't seen my personality questionnaire.

2. "Five foot two, 113 pounds. Nearsighted."

3. "Play the ocarina."

4. "Like cucumber sandwiches."

5. You mean to tell me those great-looking girls go for these things?

It's the last item that really clinches it.

6. "Stepping into swell jobs with Equitable Life. Good pay. Fascinating work. Plenty of chance to move up."

I think I'll see you tonight. See you tomorrow and I'll be the day after.

For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Office, or write to Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.

An Equal Opportunity Employer, M-F

This is Kevin Truex,
Class of '66, University of Pennsylvania.
We want to move him up a notch.
Are you good enough to take his place?

Kevin Truex is just one of many '66 grads whose future looks very promising at Avco Lycoming. We've known that for some time -- even though we've known Kevin for less than a year.

Good men like Kevin Truex get recognition fast at Avco Lycoming.

For one thing, they quickly find themselves in a job that fits not only their qualifications, but their own particular interests as well. Avco's Engineering Training Program gives them a chance to see... and actually work in... many different areas of engineering before they settle on one to grow in.

For another, their formal education needn't stop when they come to work with us. Graduate programs at Columbia, NYU, RPI, Bridgeport, Connecticut, and Brooklyn Poly are among those available under a full tuition reimbursement plan to all Avco engineers.

A CAMPUS INTERVIEW IS YOUR FIRST MOVE TOWARD A GROWING FUTURE!

Sign up with the College Placement Office for an interview. Avco Lycoming will be on campus.

ASMSU postpones donation

ment, Lou Benson, member-at-large, said, again stressing that students are not aware of the issue.

"MIA and WIC (Women's Inter-residence Council) are the bulk of the University," Benson said, "and they represent active students who are a direct constituency. They have not been given the full story."

MIA and WIC had both requested by large majorities that their representatives to the student board vote for postponement or defeat of the allocation until further clarification of the issue.

Of the remaining major governing groups, Interfraternity Council (IFC) and Pan Hellenic Council (Pan Hel) have not yet met, and Intercooperative Council (ICC) and Off Campus Council (OCC) Presidents Bill Vredvoogd and Greg Hopkins had met with their councils and decided to vote in favor of the allocation.

The question of leadership in student government was again raised.

"Student government somehow implies government in action," Terry Hassold, cabinet president, said. "Students are involved; therefore as leaders we should lead."

"The true mark of a leader," Mongeon said, "is a respect for his constituents. You need someone to lead. And they have a right to know what is happening."

With the postponement of the motion, major governing groups are given an additional week to discuss the issue. At next week's board meeting, the motion to allocate $1,000 to the campaign for lowering the minimum voting age in Michigan to 18 will again be brought before the board.

A number of major governing group representatives and members-at-large expressed concern that several means of communications be used to increase student awareness on the issue. The six members-at-large plan to speak to living units during the week.

She Tripped

Accidents do happen. Pauline Hess, HPR instructor in the Woman's IM, caught her foot on something at the top of a flight of stairs and fell down. She was taken to Olin Health Center by campus police where she was treated and released.

MILITARY TRIBUNAL

May try Sukarno

JAKARTA, Indonesia (U-P) — Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, chairman of Indonesia's Congress, said Wednesday that President Sukarno is not immune to trial by a special military tribunal.

He said Sukarno must explain the abortive Communist coup attempt last year and economic decline and decadence in Indonesia.

Nasution told a delegation of student action fronts that Sukarno would be brought to trial if he were shown to be connected with the coup attempt.

Nasution, fired from his post as defense minister under Sukarno earlier this year, narrowly escaped assassination by the Communists during the attempted coup. His daughter was killed.

The four-star general did not go into detail about bringing Sukarno to trial, if that is to be done.

Despite stepped-up student demands that Sukarno be tried, Nasution said Congress already had agreed to keep him as president until the general elections planned for 1968.

He added that Parliament would continue to supervise Sukarno's actions and would see that he follows orders given him.

Demonstrations by Indonesian students against Sukarno continued despite an agreement reached Tuesday between student leaders and Maj. Gen. Amir Machmud, military commander of Jakarta.

The students, some of whom were bayoneted and clubbed by troops Monday when they tried to storm Sukarno's palace, agreed to call off their assaults.

But they massed again Tuesday outside the medical faculty of the University of Indonesia.

Youths began painting the whitewashed buildings of Jakarta with big red signs calling Sukarno a leader of the Communist coup attempt last year.

More than 2,000 troops were placed at strategic intervals between the palace and the university.

Meanwhile, the subversion trial of former Foreign Minister Subandrio was in recess until Friday.

Subandrio was Sukarno's No. 2 man. He was deputy premier as well as foreign minister.

that comment for an answer. John Roetman, head of married housing, explained his office's stand by saying, "The only problem is that of pleasing all of the people all of the time."

Continuing, he said the apartments use either steam radiators or hot water boilers and that individual control over these is mechanically impossible. Each apartment has only damper devices to slow heat circulation.

There are main thermostats for every one to three buildings and "we try to maintain enough heat to please the coldest blooded," Roetman said.

Fall is an especially bad season, he noted. Warm days cool off quickly at night, and the temperature range involved is extreme.

"The ideal apartment temperature runs between 70 and 75 degrees for waking hours and around 72 degrees, the standard room temperature, for night," Dr. Fuerig said.

When temperatures exceed these and windows are opened to compensate, the resultant drafts affect sinus, bronchial, neck, shoulder and back regions, he explained.

"Man can sleep better in a cool atmosphere than a hot one; that's common physiology. High temperatures enhance circulation, make it too vascular for sleep," he continued.

U-M 'burial' planned in pep rally

Students are invited to take part in a "funeral procession" for the University of Michigan Friday, sponsored by East Campus.

The procession will begin at the East Campus IM field across from McDonell Hall and will end behind Jensen Fieldhouse for a pep rally and "cremation" at 7 p.m.

Phone strike

"We just want the company to know we're not happy with the new contract, even though we still have a chance to vote on it," said another striker. "We figured this was the best way to do it," he continued, with a smile. "They're having to do our work now."

All telephone servicemen and operators are out on the strike, leaving supervisors and management to handle the area's entire load of work for the duration of the strike.

Picketers gave no indication how long the strike will last, but commented that they may apply to the international CWA union to have the strike authorized if it is continued.

Although Local 4040 is dissatisfied with the telephone company's failure to reclassify its wage bracket, the union members recognize that the new contract offers them a basic wage increase and fringe benefits.

"Oh, sure, the new contract is an improvement over our last one," said one of the strikers. "But we just want to make sure the company realizes we aren't satisfied."

toral candidate in education, has the honor of being one of the first chosen to participate.

Schlafmann, along with 33 other national winners, is on leave for a year-long appointment as Office of Education Fellow. He is the only Michigan participant, and joins eight others from the Midwest in Washington this month.

This new program of national appointees to study higher education -- officially called the Cooperative Career Development Project -- emphasizes the increasing complexity of the American educational system. It also displays the administration's concern that the burgeoning halls of ivy be led and directed by the highest administrative talent which can be recruited.

While in Washington the fellows will work at the Office of Education as research, program or administrative assistants. They will also take a 10-month training course in federal-state-local relationships in education given by the National Institute of Public Affairs, a non-profit education organization.

"This project is intended to give young people who are starting their professional careers an understanding of how national policies for education are developed and carried out through federal, state and local government," explains U.S. Education Commissioner Harold Howe II. "It promises to help meet one of the nation's basic needs -- the training of future leaders of schools, colleges and other institutions involved in education."

The fellows program was set up under Title V of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. The start of this project follows closely on the heels of the national recognition of outstanding academic scholars wherein the White House Fellows spend a year in Washington.

Schlafmann has been completing his requirements for the Ph.D. in higher education from MSU's College of Education.
