

Candidates, Wolverines arrive Saturday

They'll all be here Saturday. The Democrats, the Republicans, and, oh yes, the Wolverines.

The University of Michigan is coming down to Spartan Stadium to take on undefeated and top-ranked Michigan State, winner of its first three games this season, and defending Big Ten and national champion.

And when close to 80,000 people gather in one place at one time, in an election year--you can just see Soapy Williams' bow tie spinning.

With all the politicians added to the football fans, the 76,000 capacity of Spartan Stadium is sure to be topped. And the all-time record of 78,234 who crammed the stadium the last time Michigan was here just might be in danger.

Kickoff will be at 1:30 p.m. and the Wolverines will probably come right out throwing. Michigan's chances to upset the Spartans, and gain revenge for MSU's 24-7 win last year at Ann Arbor, rest on the passing arm of quarterback Dick Vidmer.

Vidmer, and Wolverine team captain, end Jack Clancy, have teamed up for 26 passes and 381 yards this season as Michigan took two of its first three games.

"This has to be the number one game on our schedule," said MSU coach Duffy Daugherty, "and I mean that as a compliment to the University of Michigan. We have just a world of respect for their team--they have passing, running, defense, and speed."

The Spartans are not a team lacking respect, either.

Against a crushing front line on defense, MSU opponents have managed only 39.7 yards per game rushing. And the offense has the potential to be one of the most powerful in the nation.

Despite a bad day last week at Illinois,

State has an average of 244.3 rushing yards a game. Halfbacks Clint Jones and Dwight Lee, and fullback Bob Apisa, are all big, strong and fast. Quarterback Jimmy Raye can run, too, but he still has to show he can pass consistently.

Because the only weak spot on the Spartan team has been pass defense, the show figures to get interesting early. Clancy alone has averaged just about what State has allowed, 139 passing yards per game.

Anyone trying to park Saturday will probably swear that everyone in the state of Michigan is on the MSU campus--which is fine for the candidates for governor and senator, because all four of them will be here too.

The game, of course, is what they all are coming to see, but before the big event, Spartan and Wolverine fans both can meet with the candidates of their choice.

Zolton Ferency, Democratic candidate for governor, and Soapy Williams, Democratic nominee for the Senate, will both eat lunch at Shaw Hall from 11:10-12:30 Saturday before attending the game.

Senator Robert Griffin, who is running for election on the Republican ticket, will be at the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house at 10:45 a.m. He will hold a half-hour press conference.

Gov. George Romney will attend a legislative luncheon at 11:30 in Kellogg Center, and then proceed to the stadium.

South Viet Nam Out For LBJ Asian Trip

WASHINGTON 7 - President Lyndon B. Johnson confirmed officially Thursday that his first presidential trip overseas will be the most extensive visit to the Far East ever launched by an American chief executive.

It begins Oct. 17 and winds up Nov. 2. Johnson will cover roughly 25,000 miles and visit the capitals of New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, Thailand, Malaysia and Korea.

The over-riding objective of the trip is to help the cause of an honorable peace in Viet Nam. This will be a focal point of a conference in Manila.

But as for visiting Viet Nam itself, Johnson said that:

"No consideration has been given at this time to any such proposal or any such visit."

Since Viet Nam is a combat area and ordinarily presidents stay out of them. None has been in one since the late Franklin D. Roosevelt went to North Africa after the most of the World War II fighting there had subsided.

Still, it would occasion no undue amount of surprise should Johnson show up suddenly and unannounced, under strictest security precautions, somewhere in Viet Nam during the Pacific expedition.

Johnson was also asked to outline his hopes of what would result from the Pacific tour.

"The invitation, as you know, was extended by other countries. I am sure that they will have some specific plans to suggest."

"I want to be a good listener as well as an active participant," Johnson said.

All the countries contributing military help to the allied cause in Viet Nam are sending their chiefs of state to Manila. Malaysia is the one country on the trip which will not be represented, lacking a military commitment in Viet Nam.

Recalling his World War II service as a naval officer, when he left Congress for a time to enter military service, Johnson smiled and said at one point: "I have wanted very much to return to the scenes of my 'young-man days' and go back to New Zealand and Australia where I spent some time in the early 40s."

At one point, Johnson was asked whether he would comment on words from some of his critics that the trip is motivated largely by political considerations.

"No, I don't think so," Johnson replied softly. "I just think you have to evaluate the critics and judge the circumstances and draw your own conclusions."

At another point, a reporter said that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had said the U.S. should use whatever is necessary, not excluding nuclear weapons, to end the fighting in Viet Nam, and asked what Johnson thought of such a proposal.

"Without passing on the accuracy of your quotation of President Eisenhower," the President answered, "I would say it is a policy of this government to exercise the best judgment of which we are capable in an attempt to provide the maximum deterrent with a minimum involvement. The easiest thing we could do is get in a larger war with other nations."

President Johnson: He plans a major Asian tour.

N.E. bias topic of Hannah trip

President John A. Hannah returned to campus late Wednesday after presiding at a Civil Rights Commission hearing in Boston to evaluate private efforts for school integration.

Hannah and other Commission members heard testimony Tuesday and Wednesday on the cause-and-effect of alleged Boston school segregation and the various independent attempts to relieve the Negro's educational problems there.

The Boston hearing was the third of a series set by the full Commission in attempt to reach the best policy for enacting the Supreme Court's "separate but not equal" decision of a decade ago.

Boston was chosen, according to Hannah, as a fairly typical Northeastern city, which has made some effort in reducing de facto segregation among its large Negro population.

Whether the Commission would hold hearings had been of some doubt, due to an injunction suit filed against them on the basis that they might adversely affect several integration suits presently pending before the Massachusetts courts.

However, the injunction was withdrawn before the hearings were scheduled to begin.

The commission's present research into school integration began last November with a request from President Johnson. It will culminate with a report to the President in December.

STARTING MONDAY

New Brody-Fee Express

Beginning Monday, the Campus Bus System will implement a new express route for Brody and East Complex residents.

Four buses bearing "Brody-Fee Express" signs will carry students across campus in 13 minutes. The buses will run every four to eight minutes.

The express route increases the number of operating buses up from 16 to 21.

Leaving Brody Group, this route goes north on Harrison Ave., then east along Michigan Ave., Beal Entrance, West Circle and Dormitory Road to Bogue Street, south to Shaw Lane East and east to the Hubbard Terminal.

Leaving East Complex, the express buses will reverse the route. They do not serve University Village.

Henry W. Jolman, general foreman of the Campus Bus System, said the route will provide faster and more frequent transportation for the student. He said it was conceived after surveys conducted by bus drivers this past week indicated that too many students were being left at bus stops to often.

He said the popularity of the Circle-Free route was also instrumental in the planning of the express route.

Jolman, who has been in transportation for 30 years and is beginning his third year at MSU, said the route is being established now to accommodate for winter riders. This winter Jolman expects buses to be running bumper to bumper.

"The main factor giving us trouble with this new route is manpower," Jolman said, "but we will have our regular drivers work overtime." Jolman reported that the bus system is seven men short.

"We had an ace in the hole with 19 buses, but we're using only 13 of them," he said. "The other buses will be leased from a Dearborn firm," he added.

Jolman said campus transportation is an expensive business because buses must be custom made. However, all available funds are being spent for better student service, he stated.

The Campus Bus System director stated that riders have increased even more than was speculated. He said in the first year, 1964, 16,000 daily riders were served, the next year 32,000. "This year," Jolman said, "we approximated 40,000 and received 47,000."

Jolman hopes students will like and use the new express routes. Bus drivers predict popularity and expansion for the route.

Human relations group has heard no complaints

The East Lansing Human Relations Commission announced at its regular monthly meeting that it has received no housing discrimination complaints since the beginning of MSU's fall term.

"We have come through a period of great potential unrest, with the annual student influx," said Rev. Robert Moreland Wednesday evening. "But we received no complaints, and have been informed that none were registered with the MSU Off-Campus Housing Office, the University Human Relations Commission, the East Lansing Police, or the campus NAACP."

Dr. James Peal, an East Lansing physician and the commission's newest member, suggested that, particularly in cases of new students or foreign students, procedures for registering a complaint may not be known.

"Perhaps," he said, "they don't even know there are such channels."

Foreign student problems

Members of the commission's ad hoc committee for foreign student orientation reported they had met with presidents of all the nationality clubs on the MSU campus, and had come up with two major problem areas.

"First of all," said Mrs. Helga Kaplan, "they do have housing problems. They may not have any more trouble finding a place to live than most Americans, but foreign students often have greater problems with their landlords."

The ad hoc committee suggested that to help alleviate this problem a "seminar for landlords" might be scheduled, a meeting for foreign students and landlords, to settle some of their differences.

The second difficulty experienced by foreign students is lack of knowledge of the government of East Lansing, and the proper channels to use in conducting business with the city.

Suggest orientation

The ad hoc committee suggested a planned orientation program for foreign students, with tours of the East Lansing City Hall and discussions with members of the City Council and the East Lansing Police Department.

The commission discussed an alleged police brutality-racial discrimination incident, brought to the members' attention by a letter from the local chapter of the NAACP.

Police ask students to leave Club

Two MSU students were asked to leave a Kiwanis Club luncheon in Lansing Thursday after one of them became engaged in what he termed "a shouting match" with Michigan's Selective Service director, Col. Arthur A. Holmes.

Richard B. Pointon, Highland Park senior, and Mark A. Kupperman, Maplewood, N. J., senior, said they attended the Kiwanis meeting because they were interested and concerned about the Selective Service System.

After Holmes had finished speaking to the group of about 50 people Pointon rose to ask a question.

"I asked the question three times before I was recognized," he said. "The response from the audience was laughter."

Pointon said he asked Holmes if he would redefine his statement concerning service to one's country in some way other than the military.

Col. Holmes appeared ready to answer, according to Pointon, but someone at the speaker's table interrupted and said the meeting was for Kiwanis members and their guests and suggested the two students leave.

Pointon said he left when asked. Kupperman remained in the audience, claiming shouts of "get the Commie out of here" arose while he remained.

He said he left when approached by a plainclothes policeman and that he and Pointon were both asked to show their Selective Service cards to police outside the meeting.

Lansing police said it was standard procedure to ask men of draftable age to produce their draft cards, since by law they are required to carry them. A police detective added that not everyone carries a driver's license or other identification.

A Kiwanis member attending the meeting said the students were welcome to attend, but when they started shouting they were asked to leave.

The member said no one but one of the students engaged in any shouting and added that the students had a right to dissent but not to disrupt another group's meeting by acting in a "deplorable manner."

As Much A Part Of E. Lansing As The Million$ Of $tudent$

When in Rome, mind your own business, it's not your city. And that goes double for students in relation to East Lansing, according to a recent WJIM editorial and widespread opinion in this midwestern Mecca.

The editorial praises John Hannah for refusing to commit the University to a stand in East Lansing's open occupancy issue.

But the editorial (and widespread opinion in this midwestern Mecca) goes on to say:

"We believe some of the students who call East Lansing their temporary homes would do well to heed Dr. Hannah's advice. Campus politics is one thing, city politics another."

"... the fact remains that they (students) are not citizens of East Lansing," the editorial continues.

East Lansing's lifeblood

What exactly is the relation of students to East Lansing then?

More than one student has been turned down for a job in an East Lansing store during the summer with the explanation:

"Sorry, we can't use you. We practically close up shop during the summer when most of the students leave."

This makes sense. There are 38,000 students. The "civilian" population of E. L. weighs in at 20,000, which includes a sizeable number of children.

A recent study indicates that students spent about $25 million in the Lansing-East Lansing area during fall term 1965. About 60 percent of the total student body visited East Lansing stores once a week or more.

Function of government

East Lansing businesses, for the most part, have stock that caters specifically to the student (their major) market.

And what are the functions of government?

Roads? More students use East Lansing streets than other residents. Police protection? Students certainly are affected and interested parties in police and fire fighting facilities.

Open housing? The Negro "problem" is exclusively a student and MSU faculty problem. How else might a Negro live in East Lansing, except by being a member of the University community?

Students outnumber other residents and are affected by city facilities to an equal if not greater degree than other residents.

Go home students

Is East Lansing the students' business?

The WJIM editorial suggests:

"If the students at MSU are looking for idealistic causes to support and injustices to remedy, we would suggest that they take a close look at their own home towns. We're sure they will find plenty of action in their own backyards."

This State News editorial suggests:

If students are not citizens of East Lansing, if they have no right to a voice in East Lansing affairs, if they cannot even be critical of the city—perhaps it is best that "they take a close look at their own home towns."

Go home, students. Take your ideas, your concern—and your money. Shop in your own home towns. Or buy books, clothes and supplies in downtown Lansing. They are probably cheaper there.

After six months of this, there will be no East Lansing open housing problem. There will be no East Lansing.

Fair trial for Ruby, where?

Jack Ruby is to get a fair trial.

So says Texas' highest court of criminal appeals.

The court overturned Ruby's first trial on the basis that he did not have an impartial jury. Their reversal is justifiable.

One reason is the excessive publicity given the case; ten of the jurors had seen Ruby shoot Lee Harvey Oswald on television.

Another factor was the general feeling in the community. Many people felt that somehow Dallas itself was on trial.

Seeks impartiality

For this reason the court ruled that the new trial must be in some county other than Dallas, hoping that by going elsewhere, an impartial jury can be found.

But while the Texas court is rightfully seeking a fair trial for Ruby, finding an impartial jury will be an impossible job. The tape of the shooting has been shown on national television several times. There is hardly a person in the nation who has not seen it at least once.

The injustice of Ruby's first trial has been seen.

Correcting the injustice is another matter.

Hershey a Friend to Serious Objectors

The serious objector to the draft and the war has a new friend — General Lewis B. Hershey, head of the Selective Service System.

In a recent speech at Yale University, Hershey said that if he found his country's military position "morally impossible to support" he would sooner go to jail than be drafted. All this, he said, "in order to maintain dignity."

He put matters into the proper perspective: there can be as much dignity in refusing to fight a war one does not believe in as there is in fighting for a cause one believes in.

TRINKA CLINE

Campus U.N. sick, sick

MSU's Campus United Nations is sick, sick—even its leaders will agree. Like all diseases, it has a cause; and like most diseases it has an explanation and cure.

There is no better phrase to describe the illness than lack of active interest. Patterned after the actual U.N., the organization has witnessed its own decline in active membership over the past four years.

Membership in the Campus U.N. has no strict requirements. Officers hope for enthusiastic workers, people who may or may not possess extensive knowledge about some country, people who want to learn about something in the world other than East Lansing.

Joiners should be concerned with international affairs. Public speaking interest is not necessary, but would be a benefit. And vice versa, students dealing in speech could use the U.N. meetings as a practice field. Ambassadorships are chosen, and in case of two or more requests for one country, membership quizzes have been formulated. The short exam covers basic information—type of government, capital, name of leader—most of which is available in encyclopedias.

Mimics real U.N.

When the world situation necessitates a U.N. Security Council meeting in New York, Campus U.N. convenes at approximately the same time, adding a touch of reality.

Campus U.N. has had its high spots—the New York U.N. has not admitted Red China, a step Campus U.N. took three years ago; there have been walk-outs and protests, visits with their New York counterparts, speeches by the New York ambassadors, annual banquets celebrating U.N. day and collegiate conferences assembling students from all over the midwest. In its seven-year existence, the U.N. once damned a University speakers' review committee.

Thus, Campus U.N. is not a club for which attendance alone will suffice. Neither does it command a large portion of time—three meetings per term, plus security council meetings, and the time necessary to read up on world events,

Most students lack the interest to join, explaining the usual attendance of less than 40 instead of the desirable 80 or more.

Letters are frequently sent prior to meetings telling what major issues and resolutions will be discussed. The active delegate would then read up at least slightly on the matter, particularly those that should interest his country. For example, if an issue concerns Rumania, would not the Russian ambassador have something in mind to say?

Assume foreign views

Members have described the function as a worthwhile inducement to learn to take the view point of a different country. Contact with foreign students is another follow up of the U.N. World politics and conflicts come into focus for active U.N. participants.

Criticisms from past and present members all indicate the same source of trouble. Apparently, organization is not at fault. The individual drives of members fall below working level. Even the most perfectly designed activity will fail to remain vital and alive without the ingredient of enthusiasm.

People have predicted for two or three years that the U.N. would land on the rocks and die, but it is still hanging on. In spite of the pride with which its most recent leaders can say it still exists, they must admit passive existence is only a short step away from total disappearance.

Campus U.N.'s only planned campaign at present involves contacting the International Relations class, with the hope of scraping together a few new ambassador-inclined people.

Curious non-members may contact Bill Lewis, secretary-general at 353-1439.

All clubs face three phases of existence—activity, existence without major action, and non-existence. Campus U.N. has had one period of energized meetings, followed by a few years of passivity. Without a new round of interest to spark a second alive and alert period, Campus U.N. could face the third alternative.

SHERRI GARDNER

Let's face it— Kids can't vote

A transistor radio in every pocket may well be the cry of future candidates for public offices if the voting age in Michigan is lowered to include 18-year-olds.

If the younger generation follows the lead of its elders who would like to see entertainers in office, would we be confronted with "Dylan for President" slogans? Or the possibility of Batman as Secretary of Defense?

Proponents of a lower voting age claim that if a boy is old enough to be drafted, he's old enough to vote. Since when does physical strength or the ability to fire a gun give a man the rational judgment needed to select our country's leaders? An average 16-year-old has nearly the same physical capacities he will have at 18, but would anyone consider passing out votes with driver's licenses?

Another contention of the current campaigners is that if 18-year-olds can vote they will become interested in world affairs. This proposed use of the vote as an inspiration for learning is absurd.

Do parents give their children matches so they can learn about fire?

Those individuals who are interested in politics at 18 will be so regardless of whether or not they can vote. If their concern is based on rational thought it will certainly not disappear over a period of three years. If their enthusiasm does wane, or they become frustrated because they can't change the world RIGHT NOW, they wouldn't be good voters at 18 or 48. If the 18-year-old with ideas about his government cannot wait three years to vote, then I would question the rationality of any of his views. If his attitudes are based on sound thought, the three years will only serve to mellow them.

Basic to this argument is the fact that there are some things that are learned only with experience. Facts of policy and world affairs can be taught, but the maturity with which one must deal with these problems comes only with age and experience.

Readers' Mind

Lo, the vanishing vestiges

To the Editor:

It now becomes evident that even the vestiges of good journalism have disappeared from the MSU campus as the State News triumphs with the article in Tuesday's paper about Ferlinghetti's visit to East Lansing.

How Mr. Mollison's article could even purport to be a good piece of newspaper writing is far beyond me. Many students were not able to go to the poetry reading because of classes or other commitments, and hoped, (mistakenly) to read a report of the event in the campus newspaper.

Instead, the offering is that of a reporter who barely reports the facts, flavors the entire piece with his own personal opinions, and makes a feeble attempt to parody Ferlinghetti's poetry.

Perhaps the fact that Ferlinghetti mentioned, during his reading, that Mr. Mollison had misunderstood his poem, No. 5 of Coney Island of the Mind, had something to do with the fact that he found himself incapable of writing a fair report of the occasion, and did not even try to evaluate the poet's work or reading as art. (I have the distinct feeling that the reporter (?) would fail in this area also.)

This particular piece of reporting seems to fit very well into the general scheme of StateNews vs. Off-Campus publications. I think it is about time this ridiculous rivalry ended and the students of Michigan State received what they are entitled to: clear and accurate reporting of people, places, and events.

If it should happen that the State News has no reporters to send out who can report accurately (no matter where the news is, north or south of Grand River) then, I am sure that any good journalist would agree, it is far better left unsaid.

At this point there is probably some question in every student's mind about whether or not the State News felt some obligation not to publish anything good about Ferlinghetti since his visit was banned from campus.

Keep earning those medals and plaques, men. They may make good walls for your little boxes someday.

Science perfects mechanical heart

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) - A team of Indiana University Medical School scientists announced Thursday they have perfected a complete mechanical heart and are ready to implant it in a patient who otherwise would certainly die.

It has performed efficiently, without bad side effects, in short-term animal experiments. The investigators said in a statement that they had no intention of removing a patient's heart and substituting the new device "until it is made necessary by an obviously hopeless clinical situation."

Ford likes Johnson over Romney

Beyond that, Ford would say nothing further about presidential prospects.

Candidates fear backlash vote in Calif.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Racial strife and voter hostility to open housing laws have raised fears among California Democrats that a white backlash will hurt Gov. Edmund G. Brown's chances for reelection.

Both Brown and his Republican opponent, Ronald Reagan, have said they'll try to avoid playing politics with last week's rioting in San Francisco Negro districts.

Despite their "no politics" statements, Brown and Reagan criticized each other during and after the San Francisco riots. Reagan said, "The governor hasn't the courage to stand up to the so-called leaders who apologize for or excuse taking to the streets and bloodshed."

Fire safety week begins Sunday

October 9 marks the beginning of Fire Prevention Week. This date has been the same since 1871, date of the famous Chicago fire.

Last year the total fire damage to MSU campus property was $13,000 or about 37 cents per student. This compares to the national fire loss rate of $6.75 per person.

The largest amount of fire loss on campus last year resulted from careless smoking. The $20,000 fire damage to Wilson Hall in 1963 was the result of a carelessly tossed match. A fire which gutted a room at Fee Hall last year was caused by careless smoking.

There is no such thing as a "fire proof" building. A fire can spread in a so-called fire proof building by traveling along wall paint or coverings, or kill with smoke alone.

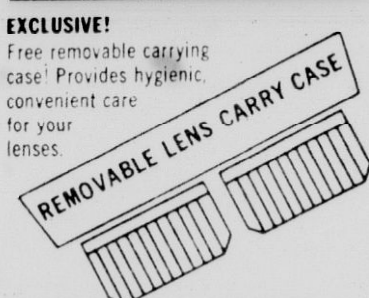

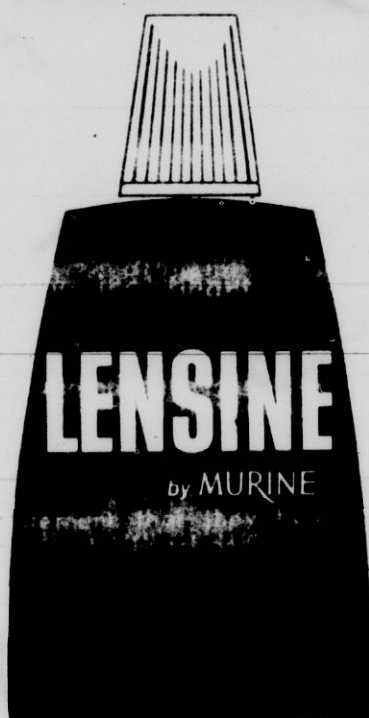

Most of the dorms have "dry stand pipe" systems which firemen must pump full of water, and which take several minutes after the firemen hook up their lines.

A "wet" system has been installed in Hubbard Hall because of its height. With booster pumps on the sixth floor level it will maintain fire-fighting pressure constantly.

An added feature of Fire Prevention Week this year will be an open house at the East Lansing Fire Station, 400 Abbott Rd., in the city, and the campus station on Shaw Lane. Both stations will be open daily from 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. for public inspection.

EARTHLIKE

Lunar 'face' active

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) - Recent photographs of the lunar surface provide evidence the moon is more alive than previously thought, scientists reported Thursday.

However, they said, the photographs, which were made by Lunar Orbiter 1, did not provide enough information on which to determine a landing site for America's Apollo astronauts.

And for that reason, it was announced, Lunar Orbiter 2 will be launched between Nov. 6 and Nov. 11 to make another round of pictures, concentrating on the moon's mare—sea—or smoother areas.

The announcements were made at a news conference at the Langley Research Center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The conference was held to report on results obtained from Lunar Orbiter 1, which made and transmitted 211 film frames between Aug. 23 and Aug. 29.

The picture-taking spacecraft is expected to continue its orbit of the moon for about six months before it crashes into the lunar surface.

Dr. Lawrence Rowan, of the U.S. Geological Survey, said Lunar Orbiter's photographs had disclosed evidence of dynamic processes on the moon. This evidence, he said, included faults or slippages of the surface such as occur on earth.

The pictures also disclosed evidence of vulcanizing, or smoothing, of the moon's surface, which Rowan attributed to radioactivity.

Still another bit of evidence was in photographs that showed "slumping" or sliding of materials from the rims of countless craters, Rowan said.

It means that to stay number one, a position we at McDonald's have worked hard to achieve, we have to really deliver the goodies, and we do just that. Quickly. Cabinet open to frosh Freshmen feel an eagerness to become involved with the Student Board, but there is actually very little they can do at this stage. Jim Graham, president of ASMSU's Student Board, told approximately 50 freshmen at a recent student government introductory meeting.

No freshmen are on the board, but there are many positions open to them in the cabinet, the project branch of student government, he said.

In an effort to get more freshmen involved in student government, Art Tung, junior member-at-large, is asking for freshmen volunteers to serve on a student-faculty committee. This will give freshmen valuable experience in the field of government, Tung said.

He is also looking for four volunteers to do research. Tung explained that the 50 per cent of student government never seen - the board - must be made aware of to all students.

It is not an easy task to stay in contact with the average student, Graham said, but ASMSU would like to acquaint every student with all issues that involve them.

Terry Hassold, president of the cabinet, stressed the fact that the Cabinet is not a separate entity - the Board needs the Cabinet just as much as the Cabinet needs the Board.

He then introduced three of the four ASMSU vice-presidents. Bill Lukens, vice-president for student services, recently resigned.

Rick Maynard, vice-president of special projects; Gary Posen, vice-president of academic affairs and John Jacobs, vice-president of financial service and operations all gave brief descriptions of their various areas of service.

Areas of major interest to freshmen include course evaluation, the bookstore, publicity, travel, student opinion research and closed circuit TV.

Board to present voting pros, cons

The members-at-large of the Student Board of ASMSU will speak in living units before Tuesday night to inform students on both sides of the 18-year-old vote issue.

"We want to inform the students, to give them the facts on both sides," Art Tung, junior member-at-large, said. "I expect students to formulate an opinion, and they can get that student opinion to me."

"We want to show that the Student Board is more than a Tuesday night meeting," Lou Benson, junior member-at-large, said. "Knowing the way students feel will help formalize my own views."

"The main issue is student government involvement in an issue of this kind," Mary Parish, appointed member-at-large, said. "We will tell the students what has gone on up to this point and entertain any questions they may have."

Miss Parish is handling South Campus and Van Hoosen; Tung has the Northeast and Brody complexes; Jim Sink, senior member-at-large, has the West Circle Halls and Shaw; John Cauley, appointed member-at-large, will speak in the East Campus Complex, and Benson, junior member-at-large, will speak to sororities, fraternities and cooperatives.

Apartheid discussion set for Con Con room

Political and economic discrimination against non-Europeans in the Union of South Africa will be discussed 7:30 p.m. Monday at an open meeting in the Con Con Room of the International Center.

The subject is Apartheid, and the speaker is Franz J.T. Lee, secretary of the Alexander Defense Committee. He will cover conditions in South Africa and activities of his committee.

The Alexander Defense Committee is a German organization set up in honor of a South African political martyr and affiliated with various church groups. It was formed to aid victims of oppression in South Africa.

The meeting is sponsored by the African Studies Center, the African Students Association, Fellowship of Reconciliation and United Campus Christian Fellowship. There will be a question-answer period followed by a coffee session.

Lee is holding similar meetings throughout Michigan between Oct. 9 and 15. He will be in Detroit Tuesday through Oct. 15 for interviews, press conferences, speaking engagements and receptions.

In mid-September Lee went before the United Nations Special Committee on Apartheid, which is circulating a fact sheet on the Alexander Defense Committee.

Monday he will attend a closed meeting in the UCCF Seminar Room at 4 p.m.

Lee was born near the Transkei "peasant reserve" in South Africa and worked on white-owned farms to aid his family and finance his education. During the 1960 government crackdown that followed a native uprising, Lee was removed from his clerical job and universally black-listed for political activities.

IN GULF

Inez expected to hit peninsula

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) - Hurricane Inez, which left more than 150 persons dead in her destructive surge through the Caribbean, thrashed across the Gulf of Mexico today, its 110-mile-an-hour winds aimed at the exposed Yucatan Peninsula.

The New Orleans Weather Bureau, taking over tracking of the giant storm from the Miami bureau, said Inez was expected to move into the northern Yucatan Peninsula late Thursday night.

"Tides of 5 to 10 feet are expected along the northern coast of the Yucatan Peninsula Thursday and early today," the bureau said. "Hurricane force winds will occur over much of the northern Yucatan Peninsula late Thursday."

The bureau located Inez near latitude 23.2 north, longitude 86.0 west, or about 260 miles north-east of Merida, a city of 170,000 persons on the peninsula, ancient home of the Maya Indians. Its speed remained 110 miles an hour. Inez was moving on a west-southwest course.

The Yucatan, which juts northward into the Gulf of Mexico, contains dense jungles.

WIC delays approval of $1,000 to campaign

The representatives to Women's Inter-Residence Council (WIC) Tuesday night asked for postponement of a $1,000 allocation for the 18-year-old vote campaign.

The two members who voted against postponement voted for final defeat of the issue instead.

The members of WIC, all presidents of women's residence halls, felt they did not know enough about the issue to approve the use of student money to back it.

A week's postponement gives the women time to communicate with their constituents and make them aware of the issue at stake.

They also questioned the arbitrary figure of $1,000 and asked if allocation to a political campaign is the best use for it.

The question of compensation was also discussed. A straw vote showed that the majority of the members are in favor of compensating student government officials.

New TV system set

East Lansing residents should be able to hook up to a community antenna television system (CATV) by next May, according to Karl Kandell, vice-president of National Cable Co., Inc.

Kandell's company obtained a license Wednesday to set up East Lansing's first CATV system, under an ordinance passed September 13 by East Lansing's City Council.

Harold A. Moore, Lansing's mayor pro-tem, has been named general manager of the new CATV station.

Moore announced Thursday that he resigned his post as chairman of the Lansing City Council's community antenna television committee October 1 to take the job with National Cable.

East Lansing City Manager John Patriarche stressed that the CATV system is not a community project, but a private commercial enterprise.

"We simply issued them a license," said Patriarche. "Now they are free to come into East Lansing and sell their product."

Cable television, such as East Lansing's CATV system will be, is sold on the basis that it provides a much clearer picture, particularly for color sets.

In geographically remote areas, cable television is often the only way network programs can be brought to a community.

"Companies that we license will probably make arrangements with Michigan Bell Telephone Co. to use their telephone poles for TV cables," Patriarche explained. "They could put up their own poles, but the expense and work involved would be great."

East Lansing's CATV, as planned by National Cable, will provide a 12-channel outlet, following Federal Communications Commission regulations.

Cities whose channel numbers will be available, according to Kandell, are: Detroit, 2, 4 and 7; Kalamazoo, 3; Saginaw, 5; Lansing, 6 and 10; Grand Rapids, 8; Windsor, 9; and Flint, 12.

ABRAMS

Plans space trips

If you've ever wondered what a space trip is like, you'll be able to find out next year at Abrams Planetarium.

Simulated space travel with roll, pitch and planetary motion will be possible, says Thomas H. Osgood, planetarium director.

The planetarium's projection system has been returned to its manufacturer in Yorklyn, Del., for a complete overhaul and updating. While the work is being done, programs at Abrams Planetarium have been temporarily suspended. The exhibit hall and black light gallery will remain open Monday through Friday.

MSU's planetarium projector was built in 1963 and was the first of its kind. The new alterations will keep Abrams in pace with the latest space technology and again make it a leader in its field.

The planetarium is used by the Astronomy, Geography, Geology, Natural Science and Humanities departments as part of their courses. It puts on special programs for school groups and normally has five regularly scheduled programs per week-end.

Band plans changed UB mixer

The "Motor Town Bonnevilles" from Detroit will play at the Union Board-sponsored MSU-UM mixer Saturday night, rather than the two live bands previously advertised.

Bruce Reeves, Union Board Information Services director, said that the change was made because of space and availability problems.

The dance will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday on the main concourse of the second floor of the Union.

Because of women's late permissions dancing will continue until midnight, he said.

Peace Corps test here

The Peace Corps placement test will be given to Lansing area residents at 9 a.m. Saturday in 217 Main Post Office Building.

Other Michigan locales will also be testing on Saturday, Nov. 12 and Dec. 5.

Applications are available at all post offices and the Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525.

Athletes join Christian fellowship

The interest of such athletes as MSU football players Dick Kenny, Clint Jones, and Gene Washington led to the establishment two years ago of a campus chapter of Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

This concern among many sports heroes across the nation had led earlier to the formation of the National Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Dick Kenny, the bare-footed Hawaiian Kicker, said the Fellowship gives him an outlet for service to others and allows him to work with young people.

Kenny, who speaks in many churches and school assemblies, has no particular religious affiliation.

"I'm just a Christian," he said. The purpose of the fellowship, both nationally and locally, according to Clint Jones, co-captain of the Spartan football team, is confronting young people with the challenge of living lives dedicated to the cause of Christ and the church.

Friends active in Campus Crusade for Christ first interested Jones in the fellowship. He enjoys participating in F.C.A. he said, because it is a practical method of service to others.

Washington, an All-American end, first became interested in the Fellowship through his friendship with the Rev. Joseph Frommeyer, of the Catholic Student Organization, and the Rev. Don Ward, of the United Campus Christian Fellowship.

The factor of togetherness, or fellowship, in the F.C.A., particularly impresses him, Washington said. He added that this feeling of fellowship aids in putting the concept of sportsmanship into practice.

The national organization was formed over ten years ago, mainly through the efforts of Don McClanen.

The first program was launched in Oklahoma where 18,000 high school and college athletes were reached through the messages of other prominent athletes. Since then, chapters have spread all over the nation's campuses.

The purpose of sending athletes out on speaking engagements is not to make preachers out of them, but to encourage a sharing of what their faith in Christ means to them.

The football coaches from Baylor University and Duke University, the executive editor of Guideposts, a Pittsburg industrialist, and Bob Taylor, a Tennessee state senator, presently serve on the national board of directors for the fellowship.

There are hundreds of high school huddle groups and college fellowships meeting in study, discussion, and serving the community through the F.C.A.

Sockman will speak at Peoples Church dedication

The Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, president of the Council of Reformed and International Affairs, will speak Sunday at the dedication services for the rebuilt Peoples Church.

Services are at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Sunday.

Rev. Sockman serves as chairman of the Men's Committee for the Japanese International Christian University in Tokyo and as chaplain at Yale University.

Working with the campus Reformed Christian Fellowship group for single students this year will be the Rev. Alvin L. Hoskberg, He will be installed as associate pastor of the Lansing Christian Reformed church in the Sunday 7 p.m. service.

After completing seminary in 1959, Hoskberg did postgraduate work at the Free University in Amsterdam.

Leader demands Protestant unity

NEW YORK (UPI). . . One of the most controversial missionary leaders among Protestants has declared war on denominational independence and competition.

The Rev. Truman B. Douglass, executive vice-president of the Board of Homeland Ministries of the United Church of Christ, says today's church organization is "based on conditions outmoded a generation ago."

Denominations operate independently, he argues, "on the dubious assumption that people care about distinctions in creeds and church practices when churches are faced with issues of such staggering dimensions that no single church body can hope to solve any of them by itself."

PM's son scores Labour

Maurice Macmillan, son of former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, said in an interview Wednesday that Britain's balance of payments problem is due partly to improper government handling.

"This was caused by unfamiliarity rather than incompetence," he added. "Any new government would make similar errors."

Macmillan, a member of the House of Commons and managing director of Macmillan Co. publishers, said that developing countries in the Commonwealth are a burden on the United Kingdom's economy and add greatly to the deficit in the balance of payments.

In an informal discussion with about 30 Justin Morrill students Tuesday, Macmillan stressed the high cost of the welfare state and the common illusion that welfare services are free.

"We must try to get back to an outlook where the individual has more responsibility and the state less," he said.

Speaking of the "so-called weakness of the United Kingdom," Macmillan attributed it mainly to England's welfare and overseas aid commitments, which are more than she can handle.

Britain must re-think her foreign aid and welfare policies "not to lessen but to make more effective." The welfare program must be adapted and changed to fit present circumstances, Macmillan said.

Questioned about the Profumo affair, Macmillan said that it "shook our nerve." The element of panic within the Tory party was the main factor in alarming the country and harming the party's image, he added.

Regarding Vietnam, he said that most Englishmen are grateful to the U.S. for carrying the burden of containing Red China. Because of her commitments in Thailand and throughout southeast Asia, Britain is in a difficult position.

Macmillan favors a coalition government in Vietnam if necessary to end the war. "A sort of Far Eastern Yugoslavia" would be an acceptable solution, he said.

Macmillan, on campus for two days to meet with MSU students and faculty, also spoke at a noon luncheon for Honors College students in Akers Hall Wednesday.

Speaking of Britain's world image and purported industrial inefficiency, he said:

"We're nothing like as bad as we say ourselves." Britain does need a careful system of priorities in her policies, he said.

The United Kingdom's problems are large in that they affect large issues, he added, but the margin between economic crisis and stability is very small.

MSU professor named secretary of international science union

An MSU psychology professor has been named secretary-general of the International Union of Psychological Science at a recent meeting in Moscow, U.S.S.R.

Eugene H. Jacobson, also the associate dean of International Programs at MSU, will have the responsibility for the continuity of the organization which meets every three years with members from 35 nations attending.

Gordon L. Thomas, professor of speech, was recently named president of the Michigan Municipal League for 1966-67. Presently the mayor of East Lansing, Thomas had been serving the unexpired term of G. Stewart Franke, who resigned to seek election to state office. The action was taken in Detroit by league trustees at their 8th annual convention.

Thomas is chairman of the league's legislative committee and was also recently elected for a three-year term as trustee. He has been on the board of trustees since June, 1965. Thomas was councilman in East Lansing from 1959 to 1961 and was then elected mayor. He has been professor of speech at Michigan State University since 1960, having been on the faculty since 1945.

Robert F. Carlson, Michigan State horticulturist, has received the American Society for Horticultural Science Award for the best research paper on fruit crops. He received the award at the society's annual meeting in College Park, Maryland, recently.

Carlson's paper, a detailed report on the newest method of producing dwarf trees, was titled, "The Effects and Relationships of Intermediate Stem Sections on Growth and Behavior of Apple Cultivars."

FACULTY ACTS

Carlson, who received his Ph.D. from MSU in 1952 has been a horticulturist for 22 years. He is currently secretary of the Dwarf Fruit Assn.

Edward W. Smykay, MSU professor of marketing and transportation administration, will become president of the National Council of Physical Distribution in October.

The council, a professional business organization, numbers some 300 educators and executives interested in distribution efficiency.

Herbert E. Miller, professor of accounting at MSU, has edited a third edition of the "CPA Review Manual." This edition, published by Prentice-Hall Inc., follows the 1951 and 1956 editions which were also under Miller's editorship.

The manual is a textbook for accountants who are preparing for state certified public accountant (CPA) examinations. The textbook is used primarily by recent college graduates who spend a period of time reviewing before they attempt their professional examinations.

Are you discontented enough to work for G.E.?

Does water pollution bug you? Or smog? Does it concern you that some places in the country never have enough teachers? Or nurses? And when you read about the growing pains of a developing nation, do you wish you could do something?

You can. Thousands of General Electric people are helping to solve the problems of a growing, changing world.

Generating more (and cheaper) electricity with nuclear reactors. Controlling smog in our cities and pollution in our streams. Using electronics to bring the teaching skills of an expert into many classrooms at once, the trained eyes of a nurse into many hospital rooms at once.

If you're not content with the world as it is... and if you have the brains, imagination and drive to help build a better one, we'd like to talk to you.

See the man from G.E. during his next campus visit. Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

Dodgers bobble ball six times; Birds easily score second win, 6-0

LOS ANGELES - The Baltimore Orioles capitalized on six Los Angeles errors, scoring three unearned runs to beat Sandy Koufax and the Dodgers 6-0 in the second game of the World Series on Thursday.

The Orioles hold a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series which moves to Baltimore for the third game Saturday.

Jim Palmer, a 20-year-old right-hander, pitched a four-hitter for the victory. Three errors in the fifth inning by Dodger center fielder Willie Davis gave the Orioles the lead against Koufax.

With a man on first and one out, Davis lost Paul Blair's easy fly in the sun, for a two-base error. On the next play, Davis dropped a fly ball hit by Andy Etchebarren. When he recovered, Davis threw wildly to third for his third error of the inning.

Two runs scored on the play and Etchebarren wound up at third, Luis Aparicio doubled him home. The three errors by Davis were the most ever committed by one player in a single World Series inning.

Frank Robinson got credit for a triple in the sixth when his long drive fell between Davis and Ron Fairly. Boog Powell's single brought him home.

The Orioles scored their final two runs in the eighth when Frank Robinson walked and Brooks Robinson singled. After Powell sacrificed, Dave Johnson got a single when Dodger reliever Ron Perranoski failed to come up with his hard smash.

Frank Robinson scored on the play and Brooks also came across when Perranoski recovered the ball but threw wildly to first base for the Dodgers' sixth error of the game.

The six errors by Los Angeles tied a record for most errors in a single game by a team in series play.

Palmer struck out six and became the second - youngest pitcher ever to win a series game. He will be 21 Oct. 15.

Professor describes impact of iron industry revival

The impact of the transformation of the Upper Peninsula's seemingly worthless low grade iron ore into Michigan's most valuable mineral product has been reported by an MSU professor.

Anne C. Garrison, associate professor of business at the MSU Bureau of Business and Economic Research, describes the revival of the iron ore industry in the current issue of the Michigan State Economic Record, a publication of the bureau.

Beneficiation is a relatively new process, Miss Garrison says, and was borrowed from the Minnesota mining industry in the 1950's. Poor grade ore, she points out, is concentrated, cleaned of its impurities and reconstituted into material twice as iron rich as before and ready for the blast furnace.

"Most of the beneficiated ore leaves the Upper Peninsula in the form of pellets about the size of mothballs," Miss Garrison wrote. "Their great uniformity in content and diameter places them in great demand for blast furnaces."

There is a predictability of chemical and physical behavior of the pellets that makes them desirable, Miss Garrison adds.

opportunities. Don't stop with your You can shop among them, asking questions about requirements and opportunities in general in many fields. You can tell them your aptitudes and they can tell you how they can use your abilities.

You say you're a sophomore or a junior with a more definite idea about what job you want to hold when you graduate.

The Careers '66 representatives from your field of interest can answer the specific questions about training and opportunities. Don't stop with your own specific area, however. Shop around.

"I've seen students who came to the show to talk with one type of employer, stop to talk with another as well and then find a whole new field in which they can use their talents opening before them," Edwin Fitzpatrick, assistant director of placement, said.

Many of the companies represented, although they may put out a technical product, are so diversified they have jobs for people with all types of degrees, he said.

In a seemingly technically-oriented company like General Motors, the technical employees will be in the minority, Fitzpatrick said. The majority will be in non-technical fields like purchasing, production, accounting, finance, personnel and public information or advertising.

Perhaps you are a graduating senior or a candidate for a bachelor's or a doctoral degree. Then the representatives can get down to the details of what their companies have to offer.

The companies are looking for large numbers of people from all degree areas, Fitzpatrick said. They are looking not just for specific people with a specific education for a specific job, but they are looking for people with over-all qualifications whom they can put into their own programs. Most of the companies at Careers '66 will be interviewing job applicants at the Placement Bureau throughout this year.

Many of the companies at the vocational show have headquarters in the Great Lakes area, but they also have branches throughout the United States. Some are international.

Careers '66 has drawn organizations from New York, Massachusetts, Washington state and Washington, D.C., as well as from the Great Lakes area.

The Placement Bureau suggests asking the following questions of representatives at Careers '66.

How may I use my major? What jobs will be available to December and March graduates? With my interests, in which field will I find the greatest satisfaction? Are there courses with which I can supplement my academic program to aid my career?

Since many students crowd into the Union for Careers '66 in the evening, those students who want more time to talk with representatives should attend the vocational show during the day, Paul Bishop, publicity chairman, said.

McDonel mobs were dangerous

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

Who cares what happens? That, one administrator says, was the attitude he found stirring the crowds of students who "rioted" on campus the final week of spring term.

That attitude bothers him, he said. Despite the low participation rate, the strands of concern in both participants and spectators struck Donald Adams, director of residence halls programs, as something different from the growing seriousness he has seen in students previously. "Usually when somebody gets hurt that dampens the crowd's spirit right away, but this time when the graduate assistant told students to tame down since two students had already been hurt, the students booed him," Adams said.

James S. Hundley, assistant professor of sociology, gives a possible reason for the booing. "The graduate adviser told the students two guys had been hurt, but the students knew of only one guy who had run his arm through a glass door. They thought the graduate adviser was pulling their leg," Hundley said. "They booed him."

Besides they believed the accident was the other guy's own fault. He had run his arm through the door during a water balloon fight. That was before the crowd had grown large. "They couldn't see what the little games they were now playing with the police had to do with his being hurt earlier," Hundley said. The ambulance that had come to pick up the injured student actually drew more people into the crowd.

"One student who was transferring said straight-out he thought Michigan State was a lousy place to be and he was going to bring attention to the fact and make trouble before he leaves," Adams said. "Some students said they didn't give a hoot because they would probably be drafted and sent to Viet Nam anyway," Hundley said. "They figured they may as well raise hell now." Please consider other students studying for finals went unheeded.

Only about six of those egging on the crowd at Brody seemed to belong to the activist picketing group on campus, according to Adams.

"Most of the crowd didn't pay any attention to the 'out' group," Hundley said. "They thought the guy with beard and boots shouting 'Let's get the administration,' just didn't know what was going on."

For most of the students, the party raids and shouting of both nights was a fun thing to let out tensions, said Andrew Babyak, a graduate assistant in sociology. The crowd of male students that gathered outside McDonel Halls at 1 a.m. the first night alarmed officials, however.

The students were throwing rocks at the police and shouting, "Kill the cops." "I've never been scared before in a crowd of students," Adams said. "I've never been in one before when I thought a mob could kill, but that night at McDonel I felt that they almost could have."

Hundley saw little hostility in the Brody outbreaks.

Duffy, just for the record

STATE NEWS: What special meaning does the Michigan State--Michigan game have for you as a coach and for the Spartan team?

DUFFY: Well, Each year I think it's a game that means more to us because of the great intrastate feeling. I think that the team that wins the game has certainly established its supremacy in the state for that particular year.

It's a big aid to your recruiting of Michigan athletes, and it's something that we always look forward to--this game. It's one we'd most rather win, and I mean this as a compliment to the University of Michigan.

Because of the great natural rivalry, it means so much to our students, our fans, our alumni--and a lot of this rubs off on the players and on the coaches. So, I guess we would have to put this as the number one game in our schedule, although it's not one that makes or breaks the season like it used to in former years, because we've gained a lot of national prestige.

I think that each game means a lot to us, but I am sure that in the hearts and minds of all true Spartans, the Michigan game will always be the most important.

STATE NEWS: Do you do anything special to prepare the boys for this game in the way of spirit?

DUFFY: No, we just try to emphasize how we feel, and how they should feel about this game, and the meaning that it has to our students, and to our fans, and alumni and to themselves. I think that we try to keep them mindful of all these things connected with the game.

STATE NEWS: Looking back, is there any one MSU-U-M contest that stands out in your mind?

DUFFY: There are a lot of them that stand out in my mind, some that we won, and some that we lost, games where we were rated underdogs, and we won, and games that were rated tossups or possibly we were a little favored, and we lost.

It has been a great series, there have been a lot of exciting plays, and there have been a lot of great performances by football players who weren't necessarily great athletes, but they came into this game and rose to the heights that are demanded by a game of this nature.

I can think of the game of 1961, when Peter Smith, a young boy from Ecorse, was our quarterback. He came here on his own without a tender. He was a 165-pound high school quarterback, and wasn't highly sought after--he wasn't thought to be of Big Ten caliber because of his lack of size, and he had gone to a small school.

Pete came here, and the week before the Michigan game, he lost his father. This Michigan team had won its first two ball games by decisive scores. They defeated UCLA 28-7, and I think Army, 34-6, and they were a touchdown favorite.

Pete Smith's father was buried on Wednesday, and Peter missed the first three days of practice. He came back after the funeral, and joined the squad. I'm sure he played an inspired game, because he played the finest game of his career, and we went on to win the ball game 28-0.

I think in a great measure we won due to Pete Smith's tremendous backing on our power sweeps, and his accurate throwing, and his play, which in itself inspired the rest of the Spartans to play a little better than we knew how.

STATE NEWS: What sort of game will we be seeing this Saturday? How do the two teams look now, as you see them?

DUFFY: It should be another in the great games of this series, because both teams have talent, both teams have speed, both teams have good defense. It should be an exciting game, because both teams have a lot of potential.

STATE NEWS: Is playing at home really an advantage in this contest?

DUFFY: In most games it is, but I don't think that the Michigan-Michigan State game has any home advantage, because there are enough fans in the stands for both teams, that you don't feel that you're being out-numbered by the so-called home-town fans. It hasn't affected our play whether we play here or at Ann Arbor. We never look upon the game down at Ann Arbor as a road game, we always feel that's just like a home game because we have so many Spartan fans in the stands.

STATE NEWS: Turning now to other areas, how can you explain the relatively poor record of the Big Ten, this year, in interconference play?

DUFFY: I'm not going to try to explain it. I think there are some factors that keep us from developing early as well as some other non-conference schools. The fact that we're not allowed to red-shirt boys, and hold them their sophomore year to give them an extra year of competition, this is done by most of the other conferences in the country.

The fact that they have more athletes on unearned financial aid tenders than we have; they are allowed to start their freshmen practicing on the first of September, and bring them back along with the varsity. These are things that help them early in the year.

I think the Big Ten teams improve, and get better in October and November, but unfortunately our non-conference games are played early in the year rather than late.

STATE NEWS: Do you think there are any rules or steps to be taken to put the Big Ten back in its prominent position?

DUFFY: I think it hurts when you lose five out of six, like we did last weekend, but I don't think that this is a true barometer of the relative strength of the Big Ten. I would hope that the Big Ten athletic directors, and their representatives, will take any steps that are necessary to keep the Big Ten in the position of eminence that it enjoys right now.

"... I am sure that in the hearts and minds of all true Spartans, the Michigan game will always be the most important."

STATE NEWS: What has the loss in the Rose Bowl last January meant for this year's team? Are they out to prove something?

DUFFY: No, I think just any game should be incentive enough. But I think the fact that we lost may have given us a little more incentive than we ordinarily would have had, to try to demonstrate that we were worthy champions last year, and that it was no accident or fluke; that we are capable of playing good football.

I feel that you learn something from a loss. If you don't learn something from losing, then there's no use losing.

STATE NEWS: What do you feel about a defending champion in the Big Ten being eligible to return to the Rose Bowl?

DUFFY: I think, regarding the team, they could return, but the reason this rule is put in is a sound one. I think it's to keep the mass migration down. There are probably 10,000 or 12,000 students, and just think of all the money used by these students, to go out to Pasadena, and that's fine--but if you had to do it again the second year, it would certainly be taking money that should be used for their education.

I think it would have a disrupting influence on the University during the time of November and December.

STATE NEWS: And you are happy, too, with the rule prohibiting the second-place team from going to another bowl game--for the same reason?

DUFFY: That's right. I think that this is a sound reason. I think that if the game were played right in your own stadium, where it didn't disrupt things--it would be a fine thing, if you could play the bowl on a university campus.

But I think the fact that you make it a bowl game, and it is the thing that induces thousands of students, and faculty, friends and alumni to follow--this is the thing that is disrupting.

Not the fact that the team would go. It's not the game itself, it's the things that go along with the game.

STATE NEWS: What do you feel about all the polls, rankings, and mythical championships?

DUFFY: I think that they add interest to football, and I think this is healthy. It's good for football. I don't know that they necessarily reflect an accurate picture, because a lot of the people voting on the polls haven't the opportunity of seeing all the teams play that they're voting for, and in some cases none of the teams that they are voting for. But I think that it has stimulated the interest among the fans, and from this standpoint it is good.

STATE NEWS: What do you feel about the mark of a great college football team, and would you care to name any?

'M' AIRBORNE

MSU 'bomb' shy

They say the air is rarefied down at Ann Arbor, which might help to explain some of the strange going on at the University of Michigan this year.

Like, for instance, the way footballs float through the atmosphere. The way the pigskin flies from the arm of Wolverine quarterback Dick Vidmer and lands gently in the hands of end Jack Clancy.

Saturday the boys in blue will be putting on the air show at Spartan Stadium, as Michigan and Michigan State tangle for the 59th time in history, starting here at 1:30 p.m.

And everyone knows that Spartan coach Duffy Daugherty, already famed for his close-cropped, hard-baked, ready-made-for-running turf, would like nothing better than a little dense atmosphere to slow down the Michigan aerial attack. Or, would you believe some thick fog.

For the undefeated and top-ranked Spartans will have to stop Clancy and company from choking the air with footballs, if MSU is to win its fourth straight game of the season.

If there has been any weak spot on this Spartan team, it has been in the secondary defense. Opponents in the first three games have struck for an average of 139.6 passing yards per game. Illinois threw for 205 yards last Saturday, including one 62 yard touchdown bomb.

And the strongest part of this Michigan team has been the passing of Dick Vidmer to Jack Clancy. Captain Clancy has hauled in 26 passes for 381 yards in Michigan's first three games.

"This is a fine Michigan team," said Spartan coach Duffy Daugherty. "They have a good offense, good passing, good running and a lot of speed. In addition they have a good sound defense." We have just a world of respect for them.

The Wolverines' main running threats are halfback Carl Ward, and fullback Dave Fisher. Ward, a strong candidate for all-America honors, has picked up 153 yards rushing this season. Fisher has 188. In addition, halfback Jim Detweiler seems ready to return to action after knee surgery.

But the ground route figures to be tough for Michigan, Saturday. MSU has allowed an average of 39.6 rushing yards per game. And the average gain per play has been just 0.9.

The Spartans meanwhile, counter with a potent offense, that has been stopped chiefly by its own mistakes. Halfback Clinton Jones, and fullback Bob Apisa figure to rebound from a frustrating day last week at Illinois.

Quarterback Jimmy Raye has been running well enough to rank second only to Jones in rushing, but his passing is still questionable. State's All America end, Gene Washington, has caught only six passes this season, and two of those have been for scores.

The Spartan lineup will have Bubba Smith at left defensive end, Charles Bailey and Nick Jordan at tackle, Pat Gallinagh and Jeff Richardson at guard, and Phil Hoag at right end.

Charlie Thornhill, last week's "Midwest lineman of the week," will start at linebacker. George Webster will be at defensive rover, with Jim Summers, Jerry Jones, and Jesse Phillips in the secondary.

On offense, Al Brenner and Washington will be at the ends, with Jerry West and Joe Przybycki at tackle, Tony Conti and Dave Techlin at guard, and Larry Smith at center.

Raye will be the Spartan quarterback. Jones will run for the Spartans from the right halfback slot, with Dwight Lee on the left, and Bob Apisa at fullback.

Harriers take on Badgers

By GAYEL WESCH

The MSU cross country team will be shooting for its second straight win of the dual meet season when it takes on Wisconsin tomorrow at 10 a.m. at Forest Akers golf course.

The starting time of the meet was changed to 10:00 a.m. due to the expected crowd for the MSU-Michigan football game.

MSU took a 20-38 decision over Indiana last week while Wisconsin dropped their first dual meet 27-30 to a tough Minnesota squad.

Seniors George Balthrop and Claudell James are expected to be in the line-up this week after missing last week's action.

Balthrop is a double letter-winner who placed eighth in the conference meet last year, and is expected to be among the front-runners Saturday.

James, a distance man on the Spartan track squad failed to letter in two previous varsity seasons.

Also running for MSU will be captain Dick Sharkey, Eric Semper, Art Link, Roger Merchant, Dean Rosenberg, Pat Wilson, Dale Stanley and Art Costantino.

Sharkey ran first in the Indiana meet with a 20:24.3 over a wet and hilly Indiana course. The time was a course record for the Hoosier course.

Sharkey set a course record of 19:46.1 in Wisconsin to lead the Spartans to a 27-28 victory over the Badgers last year.

Zemper ran fourth in the Indiana meet, and apparently has recovered from a knee injury that sidelined him last season.

Only 3.5 seconds separated the top four Wisconsin runners, who claimed third through sixth places in the loss to Minnesota last week.

Wisconsin's course is more level than MSU's or Indiana's, and is conducive to faster times.

The Badgers were fourth in the Big Ten last season, 22 points behind MSU, who finished second.

Duffy interview

DUFFY: We've had some great teams at Michigan State. I think the mark of a great football team is to play great ball with a difficult schedule, and to play consistently well. And to rise to the heights on Saturday, and not falter. To play consistently and with desire and enthusiasm, and to exhibit all the skills that are necessary to achieve greatness.

Coeds interested in the competitive swim team are requested to be present at either the initial practice today from 2:30 to 4 p.m. in the pool of the Women's IM or an organizational meeting at 4:45 p.m. Monday, Oct. 10, in the IM building. Anyone who cannot attend either meeting should call 355-4752.

A meeting will be held Sunday,

Oct. 9, for all coeds interested in joining the Spartanettes precision ice skating club. The meeting will begin at 9:30 p.m. in the ice arena. Girls are reminded to bring skates.

SIDELINES

Spartan spirit
never sleepsBy LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Editor

There's something about the week of the Michigan-MSU game that gets you right here. It's that old-fashioned "rah-rah" atmosphere that pervades everything, including study and, yes, even sleep.

A post-midnight stroll through the athletic community Wednesday night demonstrated the value which Michigan State students place on THE GAME.

At Jenison Field House, in 30-degree cold, was a line of dedicated students who were spending the night outdoors to make sure they would get tickets.

Sleeping bags, blankets, transistor radios and small warming fires adorned the Jenison sidewalk. Some of the male vigilists had begun a game of touch football in the parking lot.

A University policeman pulled up and walked toward the fires. "I know it's a little chilly out tonight," the officer said. "But you'll have to put them out . . . Sorry."

As the students reluctantly separated the burning twigs, one mumbled, "The University should buy us heaters." The officer chuckled and drove off, after which the students did their best to rescue the remaining glowing ambers.

Some of these standing in line were expressing concern over the possibility that they would not get a seat in Spartan Stadium.

"There are rumors going around that we will have to watch the game in the auditorium, on closed circuit," one complained. Sympathize, and move on to Sparty.

Four West Shaw residents were standing guard over the huge statue, to discourage any pranks by Wolverine enthusiasts. "Stand on these lights if you want to keep warm," one said as he surrendered to me his perch on the light at the Spartan statue's base.

One of the Shaw men remarked about Sparty's attire in the winter-like chill. "How would you like to stand on a pile of bricks wearing jockey shorts, in this weather?" one asked.

The four members of Precinct Seven expressed hope that Sparty would not be attacked but claimed that they were prepared for retaliation. "We have a wrecking crane in front of Yost Fieldhouse," one joked.

The sentries passed the time playing cards and talking. One was writing a letter to his mother.

"Dear Mom, It's one in the morning. I'm babysitting with a statue . . ."

A car stopped to offer the guards a few words of encouragement. A bicyclist rode by whistling the MSU Fight Song. It kinda gets you, right here.

Berets add to Spartan spirit

Berets-green for the defense, gray for the offense, will be a new part of the Spartans "civilian" ensemble.

To prevent any lack in team spirit due to the absence of the Rose Bowl incentive, the berets were added. Only the starting twenty-two players are issued berets. "It's for incentive," said Jimmy Raye, junior quarterback from Fayetteville, N. C. "The starting offense wear gray berets and the starting defense wear green ones. It's up to the rest of the boys to beat us out for positions to get the honor to wear a beret."

"It gives us a feeling of pride," said defensive halfback Sterling Armstrong. "Before, the team walked from Kellogg Center to the football stadium on the day of the game and only a few players like George Webster and Clint Jones were recognized. Duffy wanted the whole starting team to have this recognition, so he gave us the berets."

George Webster and Bob Apisa display their berets. Webster wears green since he is on the defensive squad. Apisa wears gray. They'll try to make 'M' wear black and blue this weekend.

NEVER PLAYED

Gene Kenney a success without any experience

Soccer Coach Gene Kenney is an interesting phenomenon.

In ten years of coaching, Kenney's booters have compiled an 80-10-5 record. The Spartans have never lost more than two games in a season and, not including Wednesday's game with Cal-In, have outscored their opponents 502-98.

They have recorded 46 shut-

The Spartans are in Ohio this weekend for a game with Denison University.

outs and been blanked only six times.

And Kenney never played a game of soccer in his life.

A native of Urbana, Illinois, Kenney attended the University of Illinois. He was a member of the football and wrestling teams. But no soccer.

In 1950 Kenney went to North Carolina as an assistant wrestling coach. He also helped out the soccer team.

"I was naturally attracted to soccer," said Kenney. "It's an exciting team sport with tremendous spectator appeal. It's more popular than football in most countries."

"As a matter of fact," he said, "football derived from soccer."

After serving a two-year army hitch, Kenney came to Michigan

State in 1955 as an assistant wrestling coach and instructor in physical education.

He also served as adviser to the soccer team when it was still an intramural sport.

"When soccer became a varsity sport in 1956, I guess I was the logical choice for the job," Kenney said. "I had no idea, however, that I would become this involved in the sport when I came here."

Kenney was asked to explain his success.

"We have been fortunate that good players have been attracted to Michigan State. The reason? Well, we always have a successful soccer team, and successful soccer players naturally want to go to successful schools."

"Also, we have a tremendous scouting system -- men in New York, Connecticut, Chicago, St. Louis -- who are constantly scouting these boys."

"That's how we obtained a majority of these players."

Kenney has done a fine job of scouting St. Louis. Nine of his 17 players are natives of that city, considered the soccer capital of the United States.

He has had an exceptionally high percentage of All-Americans in his stint here (nine on the first team, 10 on the second team and honorable mention).

But Reinier (Dutch) Kemel-ing, three-time All-American, 1960-62, stands out.

"He could go both ways, offense and defense, with no trouble," said Kenney.

Gene Kenney is a success story. After his 1964 team went unbeaten in 12 straight games before bowing to Navy in the NCAA finals, Kenney was honored as "Coach of the Year" by the Michigan State student body.

No one will argue the sagacity of that decision.

Word on rugby team: experience, talent

Experience is said to be the most important asset of an athletic team.

Including coach Neville Doherty, the ruggers have eight starting players with experience on other clubs. Doherty, who has coached here for three years, learned the sport in his native England and has coached two championship teams in Amerst, Canada.

Ian Donald, a 6' 7" 260-pound forward, played five years in New Zealand and in England before coming to State for graduate work.

Mike Harris, a new back on the team, is a grad student with 11 years of experience on clubs in London, England. Another back and grad student, Diarmuid Costello, previously played for Ireland clubs.

Mike Auer, a left lock, played three years of rugby and a year of football at Harvard. Other State players with experience on Eastern teams include Jim Molineux, two years at Queen's College; Bob Myers, three years on the New York Rugby Club; and Jim Moriarty, three years at Holy Cross.

In addition, Mike McCarthy, a right winger, played for the Detroit Rugby Club.

Drunk With Power

MSU - M clash: highs, lows

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

Victories in the annual MSU-Michigan football game have been described, in just about every possible way. There has never been an unimportant victory in the classic; they've all been big ones.

MSU's first win over the Wolverines was in 1913 when the Spartans eked out a 12-7 victory and broke a seven game winning streak for Michigan.

MSU took three straight contests in the thirties, (34-37), but had to wait until 1950 for their next victory. The 14-7 victory for the Spartans was one of the most dramatic. MSU came into the contest as 14 point underdogs to top-rated Michigan but pulled off the upset on a seven yard touchdown run by captain Leroy Crane in the fourth quarter.

State won four of the next six games before getting their biggest romp ever over the Wolverines in 1957.

Touchdowns by Walt Kowalczyk, Art Johnson, Sam Williams, Mike Panitch and Bob Jewett sparked MSU to a 35-6 victory, their biggest point out-put ever against the intrastate rival.

In 1960, Michigan went ahead on a touchdown run by Dave Raimey, but MSU quarterback Tom Wilson cracked over a few moments later and the score was tied. The Wolverines tallied a field goal to make it 10-7 before State forged ahead again on a touchdown by Gary Ballman. But, Michigan's Dennis Fitzgerald ran the kickoff back 90 yards for a touchdown to put Michigan ahead 17-14. MSU booted a fieldgoal to knot the score and Carl Charon cracked over from the three with just 2:18 left to net a 24-17 victory for MSU.

The Spartans made it twelve victories in the last 16 contests last season over Michigan with a 24-7 trouncing.

The one victory all Michigan fans like to hear about is the 1902 game, a 119-0 victory for the Wolverines. We won't talk about that.

The Ann Arbor school had their own way until the 50's, winning 33, losing six, and tying three against the Spartans.

Biggie Munn, now athletic director, and Duffy Daugherty both their coaching debuts against them.

Munn's 1947 team suffered a 55-0 shellacking, while Daugherty's 1954 squad was on the short end of a 33-7 decision.

The biggest upset Michigan ever pulled was in 1955 when quarterback Jim Maddock scored in the fourth quarter to give them a 14-7 victory. The loss was the only blemish on the Spartans' record that year as they went on to win the Rose Bowl.

Michigan's last victory came in 1964 when a Rick Sygar to John Henderson pass with less than three minutes left to play netted them a 14-7 victory.

And so the clash continues. The joys and woes of the past must stay there. This is a new game and, in the vernacular of the sportscasters: "You can throw the statistics out the window when these two teams meet."

the BIG 10

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

A face lift is the Big Ten's prime concern this weekend. The past three campaigns turned the conference into a general disaster area, especially on the home fronts, where 11 games were lost and eight won as the Big Ten compiled a 9-14 record against out-of-conference foes.

To date, only three conference games have been played.

Ohio State, Michigan, Northwestern, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois all had their noses rubbed in home dirt, with Indiana getting a taste of Texas sod.

Michigan State, Wisconsin and Indiana each boast a Big Ten win, with Iowa, Illinois and Northwestern registering once in the losers column. The rest of the conference begins Big Ten play Saturday.

While Michigan comes to East Lansing for the big one, the Illini get another chance at Champaign, this time against Ohio State. In their first game, the Bucks suffered a humiliating 38-22 upset by Washington. The Illini, obviously hurting without the talents of Cyril Pinder, sport an 0-3 all-games mark.

Minnesota and Indiana, another pair of losers, will be at Bloomington. It'll be a gloomy homecoming for the Hoosiers, following their 35-0 drubbing by Texas last week.

Purdue, 2-1, plays Iowa at home in search of its first conference win. The Hawks, 1-2 overall, and with a Big Ten win in their pocket, evened things out by losing to Wisconsin.

The Badgers, 2-1 overall and 1-0 in the conference, play Nebraska at Madison. Northwestern, still in search of a win, goes to Oregon State.
