ROMNEY TELLS LEGISLATORS

Tax reform top job in '67

Setting July 1 as a target date for adopting a tax program, Gov. George Romney told legislators yesterday that tax reform is a top priority job in their 1967 session.

Though Romney did not mention a state income tax, many legislators feel it will be a part of detailed fiscal programs the governor presents later this month.

The April 1 date set by Romney will take effect July 1, at the start of the new fiscal year.

Romney warned: "... we will not spend more next year than we are willing to pay in taxes."

"I do not intend to sign any appropriation bills until I can see where the money is coming from," he said.

State Board med school approval seen

By MIKE BROGAN State News Staff Writer

Expansion of MSU's College of Human Medicine into a full, degree—granting medical school will probably receive approval at the State Board of Education's Jan. 24-25 meeting, a source close to the board said Thursday.

There was speculation that the question might be considered at the Jan. 10-11 meeting, but the board didn't discuss the MSU proposal.

MSU proposal.

Newly elected board member James F. O'Neil of Livonia, who indicated in December he was not prepared to say how he would vote on the proposal, said

Thursday he is still studying the question.
Republicans O'Neil and Leroy Augenstein, chairman of the Dept. of Biophysics, replaced Democrats Donald M.D. Thurber of Grosse Pointe and Dr. Leon Fill of Huntington Woods Jan. 1.

Fill voted for the medical school Dec. 21 while Thurber opposed it. The proposal failed to gain approval at that meeting when the board reached a tie vote.

O'Neil said much of the data he considers necessary to reach a decision is not available and pointed out that the MSU question is only a part of the citizens' committee report studying the needs of health facilities in Michigan.

Michigan osteopaths have asked that the board consider their proposed school of osteopathy as well as the MSU school before reaching a decision.

O'Neil said the citizens' committee recommendation does not include "the number of osteopaths in the state or consider their needs."

"I'd like to know why they can't be trained in the same facilities," he remarked.

O'Neil stressed that the object of the committee's study is to review the state's entire medical needs.

joint session of the House and Senate "the stark fact is that the cost of state services demanded by the public is out-running the revenues produced by present taxes."

Romney outlined other proposals aimed at strengthening state and local government and improving services in education, mental health, civil rights, law enforcement, labor and Upper Penninsula economic development.

He did not say how much additional revenue he will ask for, though he said the 1967-68 budget will require an extra $110 million over present revenue "just to stand still"; to continue present programs without improvements or additions.

Romney warned that failure to undertake tax action would only invite more federal financing and control. His 2,500-word message also recommended:

-An urban cooperation act permitting

-An urban cooperation act permitting neighboring local governments to joint-ly exercise municipal powers.

-A metropolitan areas act to permit establishement of metropolitan transit authorities and allow voluntary associations of regional local government officials.

-A state boundary commission to enable orderly expansion of city boundaries.

-An office of local and urban affairs in the executive office to act as a contact between state and local governments.

Speaking of economic development in the Upper Penninsula, the governor suggested that removal of tolls on the Mackinac Bridge would "contribute more than any single governmental step to the U.P.'s continued resurgence."

Lodge predicts decrease in Viet Nam war casualties

WASHINGTON (*) -- Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge predicted Thursday a downturn in the percentage of American casualties in Vietnam this year.

"The war would be pretty nearly over."
Lodge added, once success is achieved in wiping out the threat from hardcore terrorists to Vietnamese villagers. But he gave no date on when he thought this slower, pacification task might be completed.

Lodge spoke in an interview with The Associated Press prior to his departure for Saigon Saturday after a month in the United States on home leave and consultation.

He met Wednesday with President Johnson. Afterward, he told reporters U.S. forces may win military victory over organized Red troops this year but this would not automatically end the war.

U.S. troops number near 400,000 now and suffer about 100 deaths weekly.Lodge outlined four kinds of war being fought in South Vietnam - the conventional military operation against large units, weeding out terrorists, development of a constitutional political system which is under way, and the economic battle in which inflation has been successfully "staved off" at this point.

U.S. troops have been searching out Viet Cong and North Vietnamese army

"The weeding out of the terrorists is almost wholly a job for the Vietnamese,"

"Until this is done and until local political institutions are constructed under which a police program and an economic and social program can be conducted, Vietnam cannot stand by itself and will continue to require help."

Lodge said that U.S. bombing will not stop.

A subsidiary now being organized by the MSU chapter of SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) plans to "bring the system to a grinding halt by interfering as efficiently as possible with the formal functioning of the Selective Service System."

To be called the Anti-Draft Union, it hopes to:

--block buses carrying pre-inductees to testing centers, such as Detroit's Fort Wayne.

--disrupt induction proceedings at the fort.
--picket and demonstrate at local draft

--picket and demonstrate at local draft boards.

--possibly break up draft-exemption

--harass recruiters in the MSU Student Union.

--campaign through "We Won't Be Drafted" petitions and an educational program against the draft in general, emphasizing opposition to the draft for Viet

This activist position is a tactical about-face for the local chapter, which for the last year-and-a-half has concentrated on informational work, such as speeches, symposia and discussion groups.

Section 12 of the Universal Military Training and Service Act, the basis for the present Selective Service System, reads in part;

". . . Any person or persons who shall knowingly hinder or interfere or attempt to do so in any way, by force or violence or otherwise, with the administration of this title (law) or the rules or regulations made pursuant thereto or who conspires to commit any one or more of such offenses shall upon conviction in any District Court of the United States of competent jurisdiction be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years or a fine of not more than $10,000, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

Col. Arthur Holmes, director of the Michigan Selective Service System, said Thursday that he could not recall any convictions in Michigan under this section of the act.

However, several draft-eligible males who were convicted of trespassing in an Ann Arbor Selective Service office in Oct., 1965, were later re-classified 1-A by their local boards. Several successfully appealed their re-classifications.

Draft reform, now being considered in Washington, is opposed by SDS on the grounds that it is "window dressing of an intolerable system."

At Michigan State the Anti-Draft Union intends to "oppose the oppressive American foreign policy which wages wars like that in Viet Nam."

It plans to form chapters first on campus and at East Lansing High School, then at Lansing high schools and "ghettos."

Plans call for the Anti-Draft Union to be community-wide, but limited in membership, because "anti-draft work is difficult and risky work; therefore the union cannot tolerate slackers and must keep them out of its ranks."

Mao shuffles army to find dissidents

TOKYO P -- Mao Tse-tung issued an ultimatum to his enemies Thursday to surrender, then appealed for and got army support in his power struggle, Radio Peking said.

However, the army admitted "stubborn elements" in its ranks oppose the party chairman.

Mao ordered a complete overhaul of the Military Cultural Revolutionary Committee of the Armed Forces, placing that important organ directly under Chen Pota. This apparently is to weed out army dissidents.

Mao was reported back in Peking taking personal charge of his struggle against the faction headed by President Liu Shao-chi. Peking radio said Mao's appeal was met

Peking radio said Mao's appeal was met by immediate declarations of loyalty on all sides for the leadership of the 2.5 million-man Chinese people's army.

But an editorial in the army newspaper
Liberation Army Daily conceded the existence of dissidents with this declaration;

"Let's start a struggle against the handful of stubborn elements within the military who follow a bourgeois and reactionary line."

An editorial in the Peking Peoples'
Daily and the theoretical journal Red Flag, both under Mao's control, warned the opposing faction "to make a final reconsideration immediately and surrender to the revolutionary people."

Stronger powers were given to the security police to crack down on opponents of Mao, said a report from Peking to Japanese newspapers. Kyodo news service and the latest wall bulletins posted on the streets of the capital said security police throughout the country were instructed to arrest anyone distributing antirevolutionary material, or criticizing Mao and his heir apparent, Defense Minister Lin Piao.

A correspondent of Kyodo news service quoted one wall poster as confirming reports that Mao was back in Peking, Mao and Lin had been reported in southern China. "Mao personally decided to publish the message to the people of Shanghai the day after he returned to Peking," said the wall poster.

The reference was to an order from Mao quarantining Shanghai and limiting all travel in and out of the city, apparently following an outbreak of fighting.

To a world intrigued by official acknowledgements of bitter party strife and some violence, the search for a true picture was a difficult one. It was the language of the official pronouncements and reports of the few newspapermen permitted inside the country that provided clues.

Mechanical details stall Freedom Report

Report to the Academic Senate by early February will be impeded by mechanical details of revision, printing and distribution, the secretary of faculties reported Thursday.

"I don't see how it possibly can be considered by the Senate before the middle of February," said William H. Combs, dean of university services.

Editorial revision, printing and distribution of the report should take at least three weeks, Combs estimated.

Approved by the Academic Council

Tuesday, the Academic Freedom Report is now being altered to constitutional form by a faculty editorial revision committee. The twice-revised report presently is in the form of a recommendation on student rights by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs to the Academic Council.

The council, a major governing body of administrators and faculty, asked last week that Combs, as secretary of faculties, call a special meeting of the Senate in early February to consider the report.

Composed of all tenured faculty members with the rank of assistant professor and above, the Academic Senate can only recommend approval or rejection of the report, which will then be sent to President Hannah and the Board of Trustees. The Senate cannot revise or modify the report.

John H. Reinoehl, a member of the editorial revision committee, said Wednesday that the revision was a "relatively short task" which could be completed within a week to ten days. The revision will not deal with the report's contents, he said.

"The report ought to be distributed to Academic Senate members 10 days to two weeks before the meeting," he explained. "So, I doubt if we can have the Senate meeting before the faculty convocation on February 12."

Distribution is another problem, he said. The current manpower shortage on campus may indicate that the system of giving a personal copy of the report to each Senate member may take longer than usual.

Rights body to aid African student in bias complaint

The secretary of East Lansing's Human Relations Commission will accompany an MSU foreign student today to begin housing discrimination proceedings with the State Civil Rights Commission.

The African student, whose name cannot be released until a public hearing is set, attempted several months ago to rent a room in East Lansing.

After the landlady told him the room had already been rented, he found it was still empty. The student took the matter to the East Lansing Human Relations Commission, which was unable to resolve the prob-

"I'll go with the student when he signs the complaint," explained William Bopf, secretary of the East Lansing commission. "After that, it will be up to the state commission to discuss the problem with the complainant and the landlady to determine whether there was really dis-

If the State Civil Rights Commission finds there may have been discrimination, a public hearing will be held.

New student committee may influence 'U' policy

By ELLEN ZURKEY State News Staff Writer

Students may have a direct influence on grading policy, selection of instructors, tenure and curriculum within each college for the first time in the history of the university.

An Academic Co-ordinating Committee has been established under the joint sponsorship of the Associated Students of Michigan State University (ASMSU) Student Board and Honors College Student Board.

The organization will be an ad hoc committee composed of five members appointed by Honors College and two members appointed by ASMSU.

The Academic Co-ordinating Committee will set up committees in each college to act as a student advisory board to that college. Although the Academic Co-ordinating Committee will establish general guide lines for all the committees it forms, the specific job of each will vary from college to college.

Questions these committees may study will include the pass-fail grading system, additional courses to be taught within a college and the hiring and firing of instructors. The committee will present its recommendations to each college dean who will be free to accept or reject them.

ASMSU Chairman Jim Graham said many college deans have already expressed favor for the idea.

It is possible that some colleges will have student advisory committees by spring term. The college of Social Science has already asked for such a committee.

"It is always helpful to have both faculty and student advice on what is happening in your college," said Louis L. McQuitty, dean of the College of Social Science.

"If we are given such a committee I will ask its advice on any matter it felt was important," he said.

State of Union? Wait and see

A seemingly calm Lyndon Johnson Tuesday outlined the most ambitious and challenging program ever offered this nation.

In his long one hour-ten minute State of the Union address, Johnson combined broad brush strokes with pin-point particulars while telling us that, with certain modifications, this country can continue to buy both guns and butter.

The most important of the recommendations is a six per cent surtax on corporate and private income taxes.

Distasteful as this will be to most taxpayers, some type of tax measure has been needed for some time. The main objection is that the hike will come about eight months too late.

The time for a tax hike was last summer when inflation was strongest and the economy was in a period of extended boom. But this summer, Johnson was concerned more with the upcoming off-year elections that with the state of the economy.

Boom slacking

Now the boom is slacking off and while the tax hike is still needed, it is a chancier proposition now. With it, we run the risk of bringing on a recession.

Congressional reception of the president's tax proposal was predictably cool. Congressional leaders have adopted a wait-and-see attitude towards instituting the hike. The waiting period, which would take place regardless of Congressional reception, will give Congress the opportunity to watch the state of the economy for any sign of reces-

No instant success

Many observers expected Johnson to call for a cutback in Great Society programs rather than raise taxes. The President, resisting any temptation to interpret the November elections as a repudiation of those programs, instead wisely called for a continuation and improvement of the Great So-

The war on poverty has been underway for only two years. As the President himself said, any such large program will never meet with instant success; it will certainly encounter errors in attempting to achieve its goal. But, as the President realizes, the program must be pushed forward towards completion.

Among Johnson's proposals was a 20 per cent increase of social security benefits. Inflated prices necessitate the move, although it is paradoxical that the increase in benefits will itself fan the flames of the inflation which made it neces-

Among the other important presidential recommendations were:

- -- passage of a safe streets and anti-crime law
- -- an increase in the war on poverty by $270 million
- -- an extension of East-West trade relations
- --combination of the departments of commerce and labor into a new department of business and labor.

All were outlined only in broad generalities. All will mean little to the public until the specific recommendations for each are spelled out and the president reveals how he plans to institute and finance them.

Discouraging

In a speech which concentrated on domestic affairs, the President's brief comments on Viet Nam and the foreign situation were discouraging. Instead of announcing a cessation of bombing in North Viet Nam. the President merely reasserted his determination to "halt communist aggression." It was rather unfortunate that LBJ chose the general word "communist" in light of the serious Sino-Soviet split and his before -mentioned desire to better East-West trade relations. In short, as is usually said in State of the Union addresses, this is a time of testing for the United States. Or rather it is merely a continuation of the testing that has gone on continuously since 1941.

The country now has a hint of the kind of answers the Administration will offer. Johnson outlined an ambitious program, one we are unsure the United States can or even should try to fulfill. But, with the exception of Viet Nam, it is a program that should be tried.

That power-packed bulb

Power failures are "In."

Everyone remembers the great blackout of the entire Eastern seaboard early last year. Millions were plunged into total darkness and cries of "Invasion!" and 'Communist Conspiracy' arose.

The kilowatt cut-off was also part of routine living to 38,000 MSU students last year, as more than once the power plant ran into difficulties and people looked into the heavens, expecting to see great rocks falling or to hear the roar of a doomful wind.

It happened again last week when the great turbines conked out and, among other things, trapped two coeds in an elevator for several hours.

Murmurs of "conspiracy" have once more arisen on campus and students are checking under their beds for com-

Our roving gadfly reporter took note of the string of power failures and talked to the power plant's chief engineer.

"There is truth to the part about a conspiracy."

"Could you explain that statement sir?" Tensors. That's what's doing it, tensors.

"You mean those high-intensity desk lamps?

"Right. We sent a team of investigators out after the last failure and they found that just before the black-

"The maufacturers aren't kidding when they tell you those things are powerful. The kid I was telling you about, the one that turned on the light? It melted his desk, whoosh, just like that."

"Surely sir, you can't mean that tensors are the cause of the failures." "No doubt about it. I mean, what else could it be?" "And it actually melted a desk?"

"Yes, and missing desks fit into the whole problem too. Last year after the first power failure five students requested new desks for their rooms. University officials thought maybe the desks were being pawned, but investigators found that desks were missing only after power failures."

"Do you see any way to stop this sort of thing?"

"No, but I'm going to write a letter to Con-Edison in New York and tell them to stop with the snide remarks and cute notes they keep writing."

"Snide remarks!?" "They keep writing notes accusing us

A little too much?

in many of the nation's schools the pupils get milk to start the day, milk at mid-morning, and milk for lunch-with the taxpayers footing part of the bill. The dairy farmers think these programs are a good idea. Now comes word from Des Moines that one member of the school board there, a pediatrician, recommended that the city's schools drop the mid-morning milk; it spoils the youngsters' appetite for lunch, he believes,

The school-system medical director agreed, the board agreed, and the midmorning snack from henceforth will be milkless. An alarming trend. It may lead to a whole re-evaluation of schoolmilk programs on the basis of what's good for the children, rather than what's good for some interest group.

Father Azkoul's letter regarding Hugh Hefner reveals an interesting lack of understanding. The essential difference between Hefner's philosphy and that of Father Azkoul and his fellows is that Hefner leaves the decision of how to behave up to the individual, whereas the latter group has the arrogant effrontery to assign themselves the task of arbitrating the standards of good and evil for everyone.

Some of us demur, Father. We refuse to accept your restrictive attitudes toward life and God. ### apologies

To the Editor:

Since each three-week exhibition at the Kresge Art Center is attended by 5000-6,000 persons, it is somewhat disconcerting to find such misinformation as occurred in the photograph and caption published in the Friday, Jan. 6, issue of the State News. First, the painting seen in the photograph was by Stacy Proffitt of the Art Dept. staff as a label to the left of the grapher. (There is also a floor plan of the gallery at the entrance to the gallery which clearly marks this area as "Faculty Show: Stacy Proffitt;; and one has only to be able to read in order to discover this.) Second, the exhibition, "The Plate, the Block, the Stone and the Print," circulated by Associated American Artists in New York, did not open until Sunday, Jan. 8, and therefore, could not have been available to the photographer unless he had asked to see it. Fortunately, this confusion is not quite as bad as that of last year when a painting by the 17th century Spanish artist, Zurbaran, was thought to be an example of a current show on German Children's Art.

Oil paint applied to a canvas is usually called a painting. It cannot be an etching which is done on a metal plate, nor a woodcut which is done on a piece of wood, nor a lithograph which is done on

Furthermore, such headings as "Art or Arty" or "What is it" are becoming a little big out-moded. Abstract styles have been with us for the last half a centruy. They came in at about the same moment as Einstein's Theory of Relativity and it would seem to me to be a little bit difficult to ignore either the one or the other.

Paul Love Gallery Director EDITOR'S NOTE: The picture's cutline was an error. The painting was mis-titled. We apologize.

Drop a few dimes into a photocopier and you can save yourself all the bother of distilling an abstruse article into a few lines on a file card. Avoid drudgery, sure. Figure your time is worth more than the 60 cents you spend to save an hour's time. But 20 years from now, what?

Buy a course outline for a University College course. For a buck and a half you can avoid reading that programmed textbook, which is hard as hell to skim what with the text jumping back and forth and all from page to page. Save time. Pass the multi-guess final. Blame the establishment for not coercing you, through a different exam method, into studying the material. But 20 years from now, what?

Pick up a couple of study guides. Although nominally intended to supplement your understanding of that novel you were assigned, you know very well that you won't have to read the original. Ought to save you six or seven hours, right? But 20 years from now, what?

Time is money. And we've got money. More than any student generation before us. Even the poor can eat regularly if they choose to. So buy time, buy it, for us it is cheap.

Why not? We can afford it. We all do it. You, me, the guy down the hall. But 20 years from now, what? Unpracticed at abstracting, incapable of synthesizing, unable to read for two hours straight with pleasure, what will we be doing with our time?

Wasting it. So what? By faithfully imitating the moral and intellectual pimps who convinced you to abuse our technological blessings in the first place, you can at least get rich. Hoo boy.

The House Ways and Means Committee is expected to announce next week that hearings will begin in early February on the proposed 20 per cent average increase in Social Security benefits.

Committees and the House meanwhile will be acting on an increase in the $330-billion debt ceiling, against which the Treasury has been scraping, and on a special appropriation bill, mostly for Vietnam expenses, totaling probably more than $10 billion.

Johnson's announcement last year that he would propose Social Security benefit increases got a warm bipartisan reception. But the size of the increase he suggested Tuesday night in his State of the Union message produced some head shaking.

The President proposed increasing minimum payments from $44 to $70 a month, an increase of at least 15 per cent for all 23 million persons receiving payments, and liberalization of the rule on the amount a retired person may earn without reducing his pension.

He also proposed extending medicare, now confined to those 65 or older, to all recipients of Social Security disability bene-

She indicated it was her desire to remain president of the institution that compelled her to seek the dispensation from her vows.

"It is my personal conviction that the very nature of higher education is opposed to juridical control by the church, she said.

"The academic freedom which must characterize a college or university would provide continuing embarrassments for the church if her hierarchy were forced into endorsing or negating the action of the college or university."

She said she hopes many of the Loretto sisters now on the faculty will remain after the college is no longer parochial. Sister Jacqueline said her ac-

Apartment building permit awaits legal opinion

Planning Commission postponed action on an apartment building permit request pending a formal opinion from the city attorney.

He will decide whether the commission could grant a permit to William J. Pulte or to anyone admitting discriminatory housing practices under existing ordinances and resolutions.

Developer Pulte's position that his practices in other Michigan cities should have no bearing on Lansing area renting was attacked by Robert Green, asst. professor of counseling personnel service, and Ingham County Democratic Chairman James A. Harrison in letters to the com-

The Center of Opportunity

Commonwealth Associates offers unlimited opportunity for high caliber engineers and architects. Why? Because Commonwealth's only business is providing engineering, consulting and architectural service. Commonwealth has served utility, industrial, commercial, institutional and governmental clients throughout the United States and overseas for over 60 years.

Employees at Commonwealth enjoy challenging assignments that range from design and construction of power plants and transmission systems to buildings and other architectural projects. And a "project team" method of operation increases individual responsibility and advancement opportunity.

Commonwealth's home office in Jackson, Michigan is strategically located in the growing megalopolis between Detroit and Chicago. Along with top salaries and excellent benefits. employees enjoy minimal commuting, excellent educational systems and easy access to Michigan's numerous recreational facilities. Additionally, some opportunities are available in New York, Washington, D.C., Chicago and Houston offices and on overseas projects.
