U.S. destroyer sideswiped second time by Soviet ship

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The United States announced Thursday that for the second day in a row a Soviet destroyer side-swiped the U.S. destroyer Walker in the Sea of Japan.

Washington delivered tough-worded protests calling on the Kremlin to promptly "halt such harassments."

The surprise news of the second naval collision apparently shifted the matter from the status of accident to serious incident, marking further worsening of U.S.-Soviet relations already strained over the Vietnam war.

Although no formal response to the U.S. protests has yet come from Moscow, it was understood that the Soviets here rejected out of hand the U.S. accusation of deliberate harassment.

As of late Thursday, neither incident had been reported in Moscow newspapers.

American diplomats wondered whether Moscow deliberately has stepped up its naval interference in retaliation for the expanded U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Some U.S. admirals likened the maneuverings of the rival destroyers to a game of "chicken" at sea—holding on a collision course to see who would give way first.

The Pentagon gave out a brief U.S. version of Thursday's naval contact while the State Department hurriedly called in the top Soviet here to deliver what it termed a second severe complaint.

The Pentagon reported that at 1:33 a.m. Washington time, the Walker and a Soviet Krupny class destroyer "brushed together about 300 nautical miles (345 statute miles) west southwest of Hokkaido Island, Japan."

"There were no apparent casualties and only light damage was reported. The incident occurred when the Soviet destroyer turned into the Walker despite the latter's warnings."

A Pentagon spokesman said the American destroyer gave six short blasts on its horn as a danger signal before the collision.

A State Department spokesman said the U.S. vessel signaled: "Don't cross my bow!"

Sources here said visibility was not a factor. The incident occurred in daylight hours and, although there was some haze, visibility was not appreciably restricted.

Sources also disclosed that the Walker was virtually at a standstill in the water when hit by the Soviet destroyer traveling at an estimated 10 knots.

International rules of the road specify that one ship should steer clear of a group of other ships on maneuvers.

The Soviet ship, identified only as Hull No. 025, was different from the Russian destroyer Besselednye which scraped against the right side of the Walker Wednesday.

Both collisions occurred far out at sea at points roughly midway between the nearest Japanese and Russian coasts. Thursday's brush was about 210 miles southwest of Wednesday's.

'PLANNED HARASSMENT'

U.S.-Russian relations strained by collisions

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The second collision between U.S. and Soviet warships in the Far East added new tensions Thursday to relations already strained by the war in Vietnam.

U.S. officials said privately the second such incident in two days could hardly be considered accidental.

Immediate blame was placed here on what appeared to be deliberate harassment of a U.S. anti-submarine force by Soviet destroyers involved in the collisions.

A Defense Department statement said flatly that the Soviet destroyer and the Walker "brushed together" in Thursday's incident after the Walker had warned the Soviet destroyer against sailing too close.

Two theories are being considered to explain the meaning of this affair and the slight collision Wednesday which occurred when a Soviet destroyer overtook the Walker and scraped it in the course of observing the anti-submarine task force on maneuvers.

One theory is that the Soviets are upset by the fact that the task force is maneuvering in the Sea of Japan in the general area of the key Russian Far Eastern city of Vladivostok. They could have ordered dangerous harassing tactics to discourage this maneuvering in future U.S. naval exercises in the Sea of Japan.

The second theory is that the Soviets have decided on using such actions as those of the past two days to show their disagreement with U.S. policy in Vietnam and, in effect, to step up their warnings to the United States about the Vietnamese situation.

Reports have been building up here for several weeks that U.S.-Soviet relations were in worse condition than they had been in for a long time due to differences over the Vietnam conflict.

ROMNEY SEES ERROR

GI increase in Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) -- The switch in American pacification efforts to more military control left little doubt among officers here Thursday that U.S. troop strength in Vietnam will have to be vastly expanded if the war is to be prosecuted successfully.

In Lansing, Gov. George Romney said he thinks the United States may be on the brink of a "tragic error" of getting too deeply involved in the non-military side of the Vietnam war.

He made clear his comments were prompted by the announcement that Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of military operations in Vietnam, also has been placed in charge of the Vietnamese pacification program.

Romney said the shooting war already has been "Americanized" despite earlier assurances by U.S. military personnel that their role was only to give advice and some support to troops of the government of South Vietnam.

"It would be a tragic error to ask the U.S. troops to take over the other war, as some have proposed," he said. "I have no direct comment on Westmoreland's appointment because I don't know if it will do these things," he said.

"But I call attention to it because there is a chance that it will result in things which we should not be doing in Vietnam."

Some Saigon estimates of GI requirements ranged up to 700,000 before even U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker announced the transfer from civilian hands of the American phase of the allied program to win the hearts and minds of Vietnamese villagers.

Actual operation of the revolutionary development teams primarily assigned to bring this about is in the hands of the Saigon government, with American assistance in aid materials.

Up to now, protection of these teams has been primarily the responsibility of Saigon's own armed forces, although more than 15,000 U.S. troops have been involved to some degree in American pacification work headed up by the U.S. mission's Office of Civil Operations.

Some American military units have had their own pacification programs.

Now more troops will apparently be assigned in the over-all project.

"This will happen in varying degrees from time to time," Gen. William C. Westmoreland said when asked if the number would increase.

It was not made clear how extensively Americans would replace or reinforce government regulars and militiamen assigned to guard the pacification teams.

Battalions of South Vietnamese troops are involved in this behind-the-line duty. Relieved of that assignment, they could be committed again to combat. But the United States has no authority to order South Vietnamese soldiers to do anything. Broad outlines of the new relationship in war and pacification remain to be spelled out.

Spaniolo named SN editor-in-chief

Following the recommendation of the State News Editorial Board, the Board of Student Publications Thursday named James D. Spaniolo as State News Editor-in-Chief for 1967-68.

Spaniolo, Cassopolis junior, announced immediately his appointment of Eric Pianin as executive editor for next year's staff. Pianin, Oak Park junior, was also a candidate for the editor's position.

The Publications Board also announced Thursday that Susan M. Comerford, Lansing junior, will be the State News' new advertising manager, succeeding Joel Stark, Lansing senior. Miss Comerford, an advertising major, is the first woman advertising manager since 1953.

A political science major, Spaniolo is presently the newspaper's campus editor. He will succeed Kyle C. Kerbaw, Bloomfield Hills senior.

SPANIOLO

Kerbaw announced Thursday afternoon that Spaniolo will assume his duties May 21.

In his petition to the editorial and publications boards, Spaniolo said the University is in a period of academic and intellectual uplift.

"At the same time, we are on the verge of revolutionary student involvement in University policy making. And as student participation increases, the University's formal role in students' personal lives is beginning to decrease."

"The State News should lead this fight; it should bring the major issues before the University community; and it should be a leading force in crystallizing opinion."

Selection of the editor and advertising manager followed basically the guidelines set in the Academic Freedom Report, which goes into effect July 15.

Candidates for the position submitted resumes to the Pub Board's chairman who passed them on to the State News editorial board. The editorial board is composed of the present editor, managing editor, campus editor, editorial editor, sports editor and executive reporter.

The board then made a recommendation to the Pub Board, which made the final selection. Under the Freedom Report, however, the pub board will be replaced by a State News Advisory Board made up of four students and four faculty members. The Advisory board, like the publications board, has no control over the paper's editorial content.

Prior to becoming campus editor last summer, Spaniolo was the paper's editorial editor. He has worked previously as a reporter and night editor. Pianin, a journalism major, is presently managing editor; he previously has been sports editor, a sports reporter and a night editor.

PIANIN

Spaniolo expects to make appointments to other staff positions before the end of spring term.

FOOTBALL STAR

Earl Morrall to start Lambda Chi Jr. 500

Earl Morrall, a 1957 MSU graduate and quarterback for the New York Giants, will be the official starter at the 1967 Lambda Chi Alpha "Junior 500," at 1:30 Sunday.

A crowd of more than 1,000 is expected to view the 60 living units competing for the first place trophy.

Morrall will participate in the pre-race parade beginning at 12:30 p.m. in downtown East Lansing.

Morrall was named to the first team Associated Press All American squad in 1955, and led MSU to a 17-14 victory over UCLA in the 1956 Rose Bowl.

The pre-race parade will feature queens from each living unit entered in the race, as well as Lansing's Mayor Max Murnighan and his wife.

During the race the Sounds and the Sonettes will perform live on a stage set up directly in front of the starting line.

The site for the mile long race is Circle Drive with the starting line located in front of the Union Building. A pace car relays the positions of the carts by walkie talkie to the starting line where the information is announced to the spectators.

The "Junior 500" was begun in 1948. Both men's and women's living units compete in separate divisions, but the men do all the work. In the women's division, coeds do the driving while men do the pushing.

Each living unit builds its own cart which must meet specifications set up by the Lambda Chi's.

Last years winners were Sigma Alpha Epsilon in the men's division and Kappa Kappa Gamma in the women's division.

Education policy seen as harmful

By ANDREW MOLLISON

Most people like the catalog the way it is. The only thing most object to is the brevity of the course descriptions.

Those who phoned me agreed that the catalog would be far too large if complete course descriptions were included.

A supplementary catalog, issued once a term, would be nice in theory, they said, but in practice would be out of date by the time it got into print. Changes and new course descriptions would have to filter from the instructor to the department secretary to the department head to the dean's secretary to the dean to the registrar's office to the printers.

All in all, it seems more or less miraculous that the catalog gets revised once a year.

The catalog each year contains relatively few errors, and most of the errors seem to come year after year from the same departments.

So both economics and a realistic appraisal of how a bureaucracy works indicate that a University-wide supplementary catalog wouldn't really help students once they're in school.

So much for my original idea. However, one caller, a student from Justin Morrill College, came up with a better suggestion.

"Why not do what JMC's been doing all along?" he asked me.

"I dunno. What are they doing?" I sagely replied.

"They put out a mimeographed bulletin every term listing all their courses, along

Pan Hel assumes judicial powers, shuns policy making

Panhellenic Council (Pan Hel) voted Wednesday night to accept judicial responsibility for women's regulations but voted to postpone a decision on accepting policy formulation functions.

Associated Women Students (AWS) was previously responsible for both these functions but under the Academic Freedom Report these powers will be transferred to Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC) and Pan Hel.

WIC passed a resolution Tuesday to assume the judicial and policy formulation functions immediately. It suggested that Pan Hel do the same.

The ASMSU Student Board Tuesday endorsed WIC's resolution. Beginning next week ASMSU will discuss only policies which have come through WIC or Pan Hel. Sally Aylesworth, president of Pan Hel, said, "Everyone in Pan Hel was not clear on the proposal or the motives of WIC, and so the policy formation proposal was sent to the executive council for a decision Monday."

Joan Aitken, president of WIC, said that her organization was "certainly not trying to abolish AWS" but rather it was seeking to implement the Academic Freedom Report.

Representatives of WIC, Pan Hel and the student board will meet this afternoon to clarify the WIC proposals.

Greg Hopkins, chairman of ASMSU, said, "WIC's action is entirely legal and within the bounds of the Academic Freedom Report."

Any major governing group may initiate policy change, Hopkins said. WIC is merely making a public declaration.

Panel of inquiry

In a telephone hookup with 20 other campuses, MSU students and faculty took part Wednesday in a national Day of Inquiry into the Vietnam war. Representing MSU on the nationwide panel were (from left): Terry Smith, East Lansing graduate student; Greg Hopkins, chairman of ASMSU; Lewis Dexter, visiting professor of political science; and Stuart Dowty, asst. instructor of political science.

1970-behind the magic date

The year 1970 has become a magic date in all Americans' minds. In 1970, we will be on the moon, declared President Kennedy. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) has made 1970 their goal. And most of America had accepted it... until last January. On January 27, Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee were killed in a fire in their Apollo spacecraft.

That unfortunate "accident" made people begin to wonder, "Maybe we were trying to go too fast."

In the ensuing investigation, gross mismanagement and carelessness was uncovered at NASA, and especially at North American Aviation, the contractor for the Apollo program.

Another blow to confidence in the American space program came indirectly last month when Vladimir Komarov, a Russian cosmonaut, was killed attempting to land his spacecraft.

All the ingredients for doubt are present. And yet, NASA announced this week that the first Apollo flight will take place early next year, and Americans will land on the lunar surface in 1969. So soon!!

It has only been three and a half months since the appalling disaster at Cape Kennedy. NASA should ask itself if that short period is sufficient time to correct all the deficiencies discovered in that disaster, or if we are simply plunging forward in order to "beat the Russians."

NASA must ascertain the goals of the space missions. If propaganda is the only goal, maybe the speed of the project can be justified. But do we need such propaganda? Is such propaganda worth the great expenditure of taxpayers' money, not to mention the undue danger to human life, inherent in such speed?

The other possible goal of space exploration is that of increasing human knowledge. Certainly, if such a goal were foremost, it would not be forwarded at undue risk.

NASA should be undergoing a great amount of soul-searching. If it can justify its speed on the basis that it is simply not going that fast, then it should communicate that justification to the public. It must make it clear that its goals are beyond the realm of international politics. For if NASA does not set itself straight in the public eye, and soon, it will lose the confidence of the American people, and thus write its own obituary.

A victory for the new board

The students of MSU have witnessed a strong student government with strong campus support in action. Its accomplishments are considerable. It's a good lesson for everyone concerned.

The above decision seems easy enough to reach.

AWS presented ASMSU with an hours proposal which excluded freshmen and sophomores. ASMSU included those two groups, then compromised only to give such a privilege to the second year students. The conference committee, the faculty committee, and the vice president then accepted the proposal.

None of this, however, presents the difficult dilemma that ASMSU was faced with.

It should be understood that by the time the old student board began serious consideration of the policy, the faculty committee had already summarily adopted the year-old proposal. Therefore it was certain that at least junior and senior women would have these new privileges. Also, the last session, by early April, was limping and quacking its way out of office, realizing whatever it did would be of an eleventh hour nature.

At the same time, it had concluded that it wanted liberalization of the policy.

Faced with student opposition (from AWS and others), a lame duck situation, and general exhaustion with controversy, the second session, after threatening rejection for a while, passed the AWS proposal, while attaching liberal recommendations.

The hope of our group for a conference committee paled as Fuzak vetoed the idea.

Then elections came, and we left.

The new board decided that it would reconsider the old decision, and take its own stand.

It took its stand, after sampling student opinion (a lesson well learned from last year). The board started to consider the alternatives. Basically they had two.

First, they could reject the whole report, insuring a conference committee, while running the chance of raising the wrath of junior and senior women, uneasy over the chance of losing what they seemed to have gained. Also, if Fuzak opposed liberalization he could bide time until the student body forced their representatives to reconsider their actions.

The next alternative was to do basically what their predecessors had done. That is, approve the report, attach recommendations and hope for the best.

The board, under some pretty firm leadership, decided to stick to their beliefs, and dumped the entire proposed policy while demanding that sophomores be added to the list of privileged MSU women.

Meanwhile, the faculty committee met in closed session last Friday afternoon to hear the doubts of Miss Ruth Renaud from Residence Halls (in regard to sophomores having selective closing hours) and Carolyn Stapleton from AWS (in regard to the guest policy). Acting on these statements, the faculty committee, in an embarrassing moment of inconsistency, reversed their conference committee report, and rejected the new recommendations.

Even Vera Borosage, who Thursday had voted for the ASMSU proposals, switched her decision, and voted with her colleagues to make it unanimous.

The new board then began a long series of meetings on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday nights in an attempt to persuade the AWS officers to concur in the recommendations. Finally they relinquished.

The students of MSU have witnessed a strong student government with strong campus support in action. Its accomplishments are considerable. It's a good lesson for everyone concerned.

It wasn't an easy decision for people new in office, but it points well to the future. Representatives of lesser mettle would never have run the gamble of raising adverse student opinion this early in the game.

The new board has indicated that it can have a strong liberal philosophy while at the same time being a major influence in molding campus opinion.

It looks like a good year ahead for student government if it can continue to have the best of both worlds.

THE NATION'S PRESS

Futility in S.-W. Africa

The United Nations General Assembly is grinding to the end of one more frustrating debate on South-West Africa. It will have been mostly an exercise in futility, whether or not the Assembly adds yet another strongly worded resolution to the seventy-plus it has adopted during the past twenty years.

Black African governments might muster a substantial majority for a resolution calling for "mandatory sanctions" against South Africa, but many of them realize this would be meaningless. None of the great powers intends to take any meaningful action to deprive Pretoria of control over the territory it has ruled for half a century but never owned.

Britain and France have been consistent during recent U.N. deliberations. They abstained on a resolution supported by the United States and Russia last October that declared South Africa's League of Nations mandate over South-West Africa "terminated," and that added: "Henceforth, South-West Africa comes under the direct responsibility of the United Nations."

While accusing the United States of being the ally of South Africa's white minority Government, the Soviet Union has made it plain that it would not support any U.N. attempt to take over South-West Africa.

Ambassador Goldberg insists the United States has not retreated from his tough stand of last fall; but his emphasis has shifted and the proposals he now backs ignore most of the U.N. history on South-West Africa. In October, he asked that a special U.N. committee recommend "a prescribed timetable" for setting up a U.N. administration for South-West Africa to give its people the right of self-determination. He still endorses a proposal for a special U.N. representative and a U.N. Council for South-West Africa, but now urges caution and delay pending an attempt to open a "dialogue" with South Africa.

But what has the U.N. been trying to do about South-West Africa for twenty years? Its record is full of abortive attempts to open "dialogues" with Pretoria and includes the failure of four U.N. missions or committees for South-West Africa of the kind the United States now proposes.

Mr. Goldberg warns the U.N. against "confrontation" with South Africa, but he surely has matters reversed. It is Pretoria that repeatedly has chosen "confrontation" with the U.N. and with three World Court decisions holding that it had to accept U.N. supervision of its mandate. He warns against "coercion" but General Assembly attempts to "coerce" South Africa to accept U.N. supervision for the mandated territory began long ago and were brought to a dramatic climax by the 1966 resolution terminating the mandate.

Nobody in his right mind would wish anything but a peaceful solution of the South-West African question and Mr. Goldberg is welcome to try his hand at a "dialogue" with a Government that has scorned the 1966 resolution he supported.

The point, however, is that if the United States is unwilling to do anything to implement such a resolution it might have been wiser not to support it in the first place.

OUR READERS' MINDS

You've gotta be kidding

To the Editor:

On Wednesday I happened to see in the State News that the Student Advisory Committee of the Department of Romance Languages was holding a meeting at 4 p.m. that afternoon in Room 32 of the Union. This meeting was open to all students who had suggestions about ways to improve the department.

Since I am interested in Spanish, I, a mere freshman, thought I would drop in for a while, sit in the back and quietly see what happened, perhaps adding a suggestion or two myself.

At 4 p.m. I was in Room 32, a room which could hold several dozen people. Nobody else was there. I re-checked the State News, found that I was in the right room and waited. A few minutes later there was a total of eight people in the room. Six of these eight students were on the committee.

The committee puttered around for a couple of minutes, and I waited to see if the meeting would be postponed. To my surprise, it was not. Yes, it was an interesting meeting, what there was of it. In fact, another meeting will be held in the near future. However, I was quite surprised at the number of students who showed up.

Two interested students.
Rah, Wow.

I should think that those people who have chosen a romance language as a major or minor (I myself have not picked a major yet) would care about their program of study. Here is an opportunity to be heard, to voice one's complaints about the books, the teaching methods, etc., where they could have an effect.

According to the 1967 catalog, the attainment of a certain level in a foreign language is a graduation requirement of the Journalism department in the College of Communication Arts, the College of Social Science, and certain programs in the College of Natural Science, as well as the entire College of Arts and Letters -- except for art practice majors. To those of you who are taking a foreign language "because it's required" and can't stand to even open the book; wouldn't you rather enjoy it, instead of suffering through just another required course? There must be some way in which you think its presentation could be changed so that you could get something out of it other than just so many credits. Its being a requirement does not mean that it cannot be improved, perhaps to suit YOUR needs.

Two interested students.
Oh, come ON, MSU! You've gotta be kidding!

Flake off

To the Editor:

To whom it may concern:

Flake off the Campus Police. Criticize the state or local or whatever forces you so desire but as for these officers a greater bunch of gentlemen I have yet to meet. Numerous are the times when they have done little "trivial" things for students in the past like giving them rides back to campus when their cars have broken down, or freeing the car of some "boonies-stuck" lover who panicky left it trying to get his date back to her dorm on time... And when I say these men are gentlemen who indeed deserve respect, try to understand that I mean it. For baby, if there were something rotten in the state of this force I would be the first to smell Denmark.

What is treason?

To the Editor:

I wonder if you could straighten me out on a point. I'm confused on "treason." Where does one draw the line between the termed and famed modern American "freedom" and the seemingly defunct term "treason?"

When F.D.R. proposed that America should live prosperously in freedom from fear in conjunction with the formerly existing standards for freedom of speech and press, did this suddenly give the American populace the license to conduct themselves completely uninhibited with regard to the original ideals of our land?

Certainly when our budding Country fought the British to nurture these original freedoms, they had just cause. They had a rightful purpose. Yet Benedict Arnold tipped off the English, and betrayed our country; he acted freely and without regard for the major voice of America--the "freedom-for-the-colonies" voice. Benedict Arnold performed the act of treason.

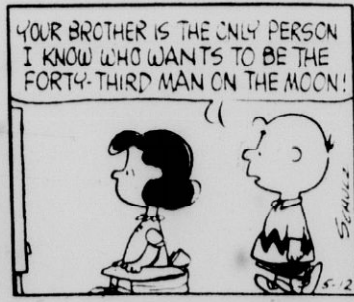

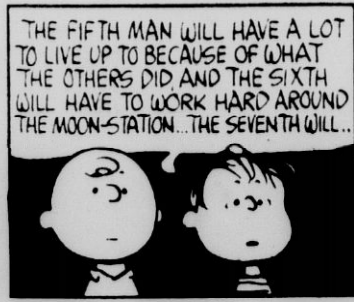

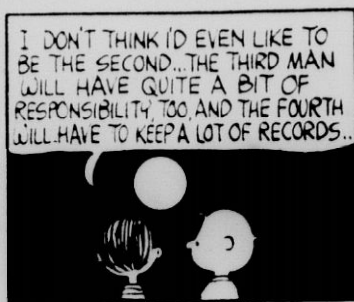

What is the difference then, if you please, in the treason of yesterday and that of today? Is it our court systems? Is it our naive which longs for a schizophrenic dual acceptance? Is it a fear? What is the difference between betraying the colonies in time of war, and the betraying of the United States today in time of war? Who gives Martin Luther King, Jr. the option, or who grants him the absurd privilege of publicly claiming that our mission in Viet Nam was never honorable? Or who lifts the anchor of the "Phoenix" to sail into Hanol and to supply the enemy with retaliatory substance by which they might better kill our brothers and the boy next door?

Is it simply that war, per se, has not yet been proclaimed, and therefore "traitor" itself cannot be officially employed as a term? Is it that we allow so much American diversity that we in fact lose our singularity of purpose? Is it a difference in skin color, or vehicle?

Or have we simply lost the nerve to stand up; and therefore are we melting our original premise of freedom into simple, inconsequential, child's play silly putty?

Anyway, why was Benedict Arnold a traitor? Hadn't we better dig him up, or get this term and purpose straightened out?

Canadians argue charges of espionage in Vietnam

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson repeated in the House of Commons today denials that any Canadian members of the International Control Commission in Vietnam have acted as spies for the United States.

Conservative leader John Diefenbaker insisted Pearson was sidestepping a direct answer to the question of whether Canadian members of the commission supplied copies of their reports to the United States.

"For some reason he won't answer," Diefenbaker snapped. Pearson said he had dealt with this point in saying reports that the duplicate copies of the delegation's dispatches to the Canadian government were supplied to the United States were "pure speculation" on the part of reporters.

The controversy was started by Gerald Clark, associate editor of the Montreal Star who spent two months in Southeast Asia, in an article that said Canadians on the commission are "functioning as spies when they are supposed to be serving as international civil servants."

Tim Ralfe, a Canadian Broadcasting Co. Ottawa correspondent who spent six months in Vietnam last year, said in broad casts following the Star story that it is no secret that the Canadians cooperated with the Americans in Vietnam.

Senate approval to draft extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave overwhelming approval Thursday night to a four-year extension of the military draft to provide the manpower needed for the Vietnam war and other defense needs.

The vote on passage was 70 to 2 with the "nay" votes cast by Sens. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska.

It recommended a continuation of deferments for college students until they attain a degree, reach 24 years, or fail to maintain college standing. They then would be placed in draft pools along with the younger men most liable for induction.

Efforts to limit the extension to two years, to move toward a voluntary system, to cut the service period or make other major changes in the Selective Service System were rejected by wide margins.

The legislation goes now to the House where leaders expect to complete final action well ahead of the June 30 expiration of major portraits of the present.

Several of President Johnson's proposed alterations in the draft system would be possible under the senate measure which would permit the draft director to make various changes at the request of the President.

These include induction of 19- and 20-year-olds first instead of the present system of calling first the older registrants in the 18-26 age bracket.

A random selection system, or lottery, also may supplant the present system of letting some 4,000 local draft boards decide which individuals must serve.

But the Senate, in a unanimous report by its Armed Services Committee, questioned that this will reduce inequities. And it urged retention of the authority of the local boards to register, to classify and to pass upon hardship cases.

There have been many complaints about lack of uniformity in decisions by these local boards.

An advisory presidential commission recommended that these unpaid local and state boards be consolidated and replaced by more central and regional systems, manned by Civil Service employees.

Viet conflict prelude to war

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant declared Thursday that a direct confrontation between the United States and Red China is inevitable if the present trend in the Vietnam war continues.

"I am afraid we are witnessing today the initial phase of World War III," the secretary-general told a luncheon of the U.N. Correspondents Association.

He compared the present period with the months before World War I and II, and said the parties involved are going through the same stages of psychological preparation.

Thant renewed his appeal for cessation of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and declared that this is the only thing at present that can end the military escalation and lead to a negotiated settlement.

He disclosed that he now considers his earlier peace plans dead. Neither side has accepted the proposals without reservations, he said, and he no longer regards his plans as being under consideration.

The secretary-general's initial proposals called for a cessation of the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Guards called to halt riot

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mayor Allen Thompson asked Gov. Paul Johnson Thursday to call out the National Guard to restore order at Jackson State College, where 1,500 Negro students drove out police with rocks and garbage in the pre-dawn hours.

"I think it's very explosive," Thompson told newsmen after hearing demands to close Lynch Street as a main thoroughfare through the campus. "Lynch Street is a city street and will be kept open. We are going to maintain law and order in this city."

At Thompson's request, Johnson alerted "some units" of the guard but predicted they would not be needed.

"We don't believe the situation is close to getting out of hand," the governor said. He said he would give school officials a chance to handle the situation.

"If they can't, we expect to use whatever force is necessary to minimize any property damage or personal injury," Johnson said.

Triggered by efforts of two Negro policemen to arrest a Negro motorist on Lynch Street for speeding Wednesday night, the melee turned into a protest against using the street as a thoroughfare.

HELICOPTER PILOT

Ex-GI discusses war's reality

CARL MILKO

By BUD VAN RYN

In a recent CBS News Special, veteran newsman Morley Safer, who spent a year in Vietnam, attempted to answer a big question: what's it really like over there?

Carl Milko, a Cleveland, Ohio, graduate student, knows what it's like. Safer's show brought back memories to Milko of his year in Vietnam.

Milko, a 1963 MSU graduate, was an Army helicopter pilot stationed at Vinh Long -- 70 miles southwest of Saigon in the Mekong Delta -- for a year, beginning in September, 1965.

He flew a lift ship, ferrying South Vietnamese troops into and out of combat areas. Some of the worst moments of Milko's life occurred during combat assault missions, he said. "You know your ship is a sitting duck," he said. "You like to be in and out of the assault area within 30 seconds or you stand a good chance of getting shot down."

Milko's job also was to pick up wounded and dead during a battle.

"There's something awfully eerie about flying a helicopter full of dead bodies," he said. "A couple of times I carried dead Americans and it was terrible."

On some occasions, Milko said, there would be so many bodies piled into his ship that by the time he had landed at his home base, blood was streaming out both doors.

Lots of free time

Although American GIs are in Vietnam to fight a war, most of their time is spent in a non-fighting capacity, he said.

According to Milko, a combination of Yankee and Vietnamese ingenuity has done much to alleviate the boredom resulting from just waiting around.

In particular, he recalls the town of Anh Khe, situated in the central highlands 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

Next to the base, which is home for 15,000 American troops and 400 aircraft, lies "Disneyland," one of the largest conglomerations of bars and red light districts outside of Saigon.

Partially built from American funds for the expressed purpose of curbing the venereal disease rate among GIs at Anh Khe, it is now run by the South Vietnamese government.

During his first six months at Vinh Long, Milko flew only four days a week. An abundance of off-duty time can be a problem. What to do?

Milko occupied his time with the usual GI activities of playing cards, drinking beer, playing softball and checking out the expensive stereo equipment he got for half price in Tokyo.

On occasion, with the prospect of two days off with little to do, he would hop in his helicopter and head for Saigon.

Disliked Saigon

Milko didn't think much of Saigon. "It's the dirtiest, noisiest most confusing city I've ever seen," he said. "Saigon is also very depressing--little kids competing with prostitutes in the streets for American money."

Sixty miles southeast of Saigon on the South China Sea is Vung Tau, the primary rest and recuperation (R & R) center in South Vietnam.

The relatively few Vietnamese girls who, every three days, prowled the white sand beaches in search of a new provider claim it is "A-No. 1 safe from VC."

The GI on a three-day R & R has little to do at Vung Tau but swim, lie on the beach, and sip beer in a club while a Vietnamese rock n' roll band blares away in the background, Milko said.

Often the only English words known to the singer are in the songs she sings. But nobody seems to care, and as Milko said: "It beats the hell out of war."

Milko feels that the great majority of American GIs in Vietnam do not respect the South Vietnamese as soldiers.

Milko said he personally does not respect them.

"Although it never happened to me, some of the other guys in my company had their ships fired upon by angry South Vietnamese troops."

Lull in fighting

Milko has, on occasion, seen both South Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops stop fighting to take a rest break between noon and 2 p.m. He has also seen a South Vietnamese medic, during a combat assault landing, attempt to steal his cigarette lighter.

According to Milko, the South Vietnamese soldier is badly trained, ill-equipped, underpaid, underclothed and underfed. It is a small wonder, then, that apathy and even hostility toward the military is so pronounced among the South Vietnamese ranks, he said.

"I don't know whether the United States should have been there in the first place," Milko said about the war, "but now I don't see how we can pull out. Most of the people in South Vietnam are determined to maintain their freedom and they can't do it without our help."

What about the farmer who just wants to grow his rice and be left alone?

"Well," he said, "they are ignorant of the political realities of the situation. The VC wouldn't let them alone if we left. If they were aware of the alternatives at hand, I don't see how they could fail to support us."

In Milko's opinion, it is admirable to be against war, but it is terribly unrealistic to believe that withdrawal from South Vietnam would lead to peace.

"We are deluding ourselves when we believe that either the North Vietnamese or the Viet Cong are willing to settle for a compromise settlement," he said.

MSU's ROTC cadets are permitted to participate in anti-war demonstrations if they are not in uniform, an officer in MSU's Army ROTC Dept. said recently. This question arose last spring when a uniformed first-year ROTC cadet participated in a "sleep-in" at Cowles House protesting court sentences given demonstrators at Career Carnival 1965.

William G. Ratner, Minneapolis freshman, was asked by ROTC officials to refrain from demonstrating while in uniform. He agreed not to insist on a commission when confronted by ROTC officials about his anti-war activities.

ROTC students on other campuses have affiliated with groups opposing the Vietnam war, but they usually have ceased their anti-war activities when warned by military officials.

"The Army is not required to issue commissions to all cadets," Major McKee of MSU's ROTC program said. "Inaptitude and lack of leadership are usual reasons for having a commission revoked."

The issue of a cadet's right to demonstrate involves the military's suppression of free speech and opposition.

"The cadet doesn't lose his freedom of speech as an individual," McKee said, "but only as a member of the Army. The Army as a profession must protect itself from abuse by its own members."

Major McKee said that most ROTC cadets at MSU feel there is a reason for being in Vietnam. The opinions of the cadets differ, however, as to how involved the United States should be, he said.

The ROTC program at MSU computes information concerning the world problems before the cadets and lets them develop their own ideas, McKee said.

DAY OF INQUIRY

Students hear opinions from profs on Vietnam

By TRINKA CLINE
State News Staff Writer

The United States must learn it is not an Asian power and not responsible for stopping Communism anywhere, a noted historian told students during the Vietnam Day of Inquiry.

Via telephone-loudspeaker hook-up in Kedzie Hall, Henry Steele Commager, history professor at Amherst College, asserted that the United States is an Atlantic and European power with "nothing that belongs to Asia."

Views on Vietnam from Com-mager, speaking in Massachusetts, and three other speakers at Harvard's Inquiry were heard and discussed by approximately 75 MSU students and faculty Wednesday evening.

The hook-up involved 20 campuses across the nation. Approximately 30 other colleges and universities held similar programs questioning the U.S. government's reasons for fighting in Vietnam. Representatives from another 50 or more colleges attended the planned discussions.

According to Peter H. Johnson, co-director of the Campus Co-ordinating Committee, the reasons given by Dean Rusk earlier this year were not satisfactory to the students who met with him.

Day of Inquiry is the first step in a massive public education program, Johnson said. This summer the Campus Co-ordinating Committee plans a series of speakers across the nation for a massive student questioning of the draft and an education of the non-student public.

Johnson said, "We are convinced that if the majority of the American people is presented the true alternatives to the government's present policy, they will feel as we do."

Commager called the Vietnam war a product of "miscalculation" and of "hysteria like that of the McCarthy era."

"Yes, we have a vital interest in southeast Asia--as vital as Red China's," Commager noted. "But what would we think if China asserted itself in Cuba?"

John Kenneth Galbraith, former U.S. ambassador and chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action, stated during his brief speech, "Those dealing with the Vietnam war have years of experience in mistakes and over-optimism. We are now saving the reputations of those who have made such investments in error."

Galbraith noted the U.S. is fighting two wars, "one against aggression in Vietnam and one against those who have stacked all their chips on a military decision."

John Fairbanks, director of Harvard's East Asian Research Center, contends that the U.S. puts too little emphasis on China and should combine its Vietnam and China policies.

"We're in Vietnam because China exists as an enemy on the other side," Fairbanks said. Fairbanks, who feels increased bombing will serve to pull China into the combat, believes the U.S. should approve Red China's admission to the United Nations.

Stanley Hoffman, political scientist from Harvard, said, "We must realize one country shouldn't take on all the burdens of the world. We cannot determine for other countries what is best for them. Ends cannot justify any means; too much is just too much."

At MSU Lewis Dexter, visiting professor, and Stuart Dowty, political science professor, both supported unconditional withdrawal, while Terry Smith, political science graduate assistant, served as the sole defender of the Johnson administration policy, during a discussion after the Harvard speeches.

Dexter said several times that the Vietnam situation "looks like a war by white people against those of color. We are the people burning them and destroying their country side. This is a highly dangerous posture to put ourselves in."

Dowty said he could find no better explanation of what the U.S. is actually doing in Vietnam today than what a Vietnamese told a correspondent, "You are making Communists of our men, whores of our women and beggars of our children."

Smith, speaking for the government's position, said Vietnam is not a civil war, but a Communist subversion plot designed to destroy the freedom of a neighboring--state South Vietnam.

Cadets retain protest rights

Green-White grid game Saturday

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

A preview of what to expect from the Spartan football team next fall will be staged Saturday in the annual Green and White Game in Spartan Stadium.

The game will match the No. 1 offensive and defensive units (Green team) against the No. 2 units (White team).

Game time is 2 p.m. All seats are general admission and will sell for $1 for adults and 50 cents for students and children. Tickets will be sold at the stadium Saturday only.

Proceeds will go to the Ralph H. Young Scholarship Fund, which is used for grants-in-aid to MSU athletes.

A mixture of veterans and freshmen hopeful of filling starting and reserve roles will participate in the game, which brings spring practice to a close.

The Green offensive and defensive units will be composed of eight returning regulars from last year's Big Ten champion team—end Al Brenner, tackle Tony Conti, guard Dave Techlin, quarterback Jimmy Raye, halfback Dwight Lee and fullback Bob Apisa on offense, and tackles Charles Bailey and Nick Jordan on defense.

Head Coach Duffy Daugherty predicted the Green team will be heavily favored.

"The strength will be in their favor," he said. "They have the most experience."

The Green team has run up huge scores on the Whites in previous scrimmages this spring—scores like 84-0, 69-13 and 61-7.

Daugherty warned that high scores don't necessarily indicate the strength of the first offensive and defensive units.

"People don't realize that these Whites are inexperienced," Daugherty said.

"Besides our Whites have been using composite offensive and defensive plays of our first three opponents next fall. This prepares our first units for the type of teams they'll meet next season."

New faces Spartan fans can expect to see Saturday and next season include several players who were on the varsity before and are just now making a bid for a starting position.

Senior Maurice Haynes will start at the left offensive end, opposite Brenner. Another senior, Ed McCloud, will start at a tackle spot along with Conti, Mitch Pruett, also a senior, will team with Techlin at guard. Ron Ranieri will start at center.

Frank Waters, being groomed to replace Clint Jones, will start at left halfback. Raye, Lee and Apisa will round out the Green offensive backfield.

The Green defense has nine different players who were starters last season. George Chatlos will be at one defensive end, with Rich Saul at the other. Ken Little and Roger Ruminski are listed as the tackles. Don Law will be the linebacker, with Bob Super at roverback.

The defensive halfbacks are Drake Garrett, Paul Lawson and Jack Pitts.

Saul, Law, Little and Pitts are the only freshmen to start on the Green team.

The White team has Bob Feraco running at quarterback, with Ken Heft, Kermit Smith and Dick Berlinski as his running-mates.

The starting ends are Frank Foreman and Ken Hines. Dave VanElst and Helmut Goral are the tackles and Mike Bradley and Don Baird the guards. The center for the Whites is Dan Champagne.

'S' gets 'golden' opportunity; Gophers challenge batsmen

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

The Big Ten's version of the Detroit Tigers (league-leaders), Minnesota, will be here today for a doubleheader, and the Spartans will be out to put these Tigers in their tank.

Big 10 Standings

	W	L	Pct.	GB
Minnesota	8	1	.889	--
Wisconsin	7	4	.636	2
Michigan	5	3	.625	2 1/2
Ohio State	6	4	.600	2 1/2
MSU	7	5	.583	2 1/2
Iowa	4	5	.444	4
Indiana	4	6	.400	4 1/2
Purdue	3	5	.375	4 1/2
Illinois	2	6	.250	5 1/2
N-Western	2	9	.182	7

Today's games start at 2 p.m. at Old College Field. Saturday, the Spartans take on Iowa in a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m.

Minnesota is atop the league standings with an 8-1 record, while MSU is fifth at 7-5, Iowa sixth at 4-5. The Spartans failed to move up in the standings despite winning three of four conference games last weekend.

The Gophers and Iowa split last weekend in a pair of single games. Minnesota extended its winning streak to eight games before the Hawkeyes finally stopped them.

Minnesota has been getting strong hitting from captain Denny Zacho, shortstop Bob Fenwick and catcher Mike Sadek, all over .400 going into last week's league action.

The Gophers have received excellent pitching from right-hander Jerry Seville and left-hander Jerry Wickman, the likely starters against MSU.

Iowa has its strongest pitching staff in years, but the Hawkeye hitting has been weak.

The Hawks face Michigan today, while Minnesota will play the Wolverines Saturday.

Hawkeye pitching has come chiefly from Mike Linden, Tom Staack and Jim Koering with back-up work from Ben Banta. All are righthanders. The best Iowa hitters have been Andy Jackson and Russ Sumka, the only Hawkeye regulars over .300.

Spartan Coach Danny Litwhiler hasn't given up on his team's title chances yet, and he'll be going all out to stop the Gophers. "Minnesota is the club for anybody to beat, and we've got to win all the rest if we're going to win it," Litwhiler said.

Dick Kenney and Mel Behney will start against Minnesota. Kenney shut out Purdue last weekend for his first Big Ten victory against three losses, and then came back in relief the following day to save the second Big Ten victory for Behney.

Kenney is 2-4 overall with a 2.97 earned run average and has been the pitcher most often used by Litwhiler.

Behney, a lefty, is second to Kenney in innings pitched (472 2/3 to 54 2/3) and has a 3.02 ERA with a 3-2 won-lost record.

MSU's best pitcher so far, Mickey Knight, will be used in relief against Minnesota, or if not needed, start against Iowa.

The sophomore righthander has a 1.22 ERA and is 3-0 in the Big Ten.

MSU has five men in the top 24 hitters in the conference. They are (overall average in parenthesis): John Walters, .412 (.325); Bill Steckley, .366 (.329); Tom Hummel, .308 (.336); Tom Binkowski, .297 (.286), and Tom Ellis, .286 (.271).

MSU ranks second in the Big Ten in hitting and is third in pitching. Minnesota leads in both categories.

HOW TO GET A'S IN ALL YOUR FINAL EXAMS

In today's column, the last of the school year, I don't intend to be funny. (I have achieved this objective many times throughout the year, but this time it's on purpose.) The hour is wrong for levity. Final exams are looming. Have you got a chance? I say yes! I say America did not become the world's foremost producer of stove bolts, and cotter pins by running away from a fight!

You will pass your finals! How? By studying. How? By learning mnemonics. Mnemonics, the science of memory aids, was, as we all know, invented by the great Greek philosopher Mnemon in 526 B.C. (This, incidentally, was only one of the inventions of this fertile Athenian. He also invented the house cat, the opposing thumb, and, most important, the staircase. Before the staircase people were forced willy-nilly to live out their lives on the ground floor, and many grew cross as bears. Especially Demosthenes who was elected Consul of Athens six times but never served because he was unable to get up to the office of the Commissioner of Oaths on the third floor to be sworn in. But after Mnemon's staircase, Demosthenes got to the third floor easy as pie—to Athens' sorrow, as it turned out. Demosthenes, his temper shortened by years of confinement to the ground floor, soon embroiled his countrymen in a series of senseless wars with the Medes, the Persians, and the Los Angeles Rams. This later became known as the Missouri Compromise.)

But I digress. We were discussing mnemonics, which are nothing more than aids to memory—little jingles to help you remember names, dates, and places. For example: Columbus sailed the ocean blue.

In fourteen hundred ninety two. See how simple? Make up your own jingles. What, for instance, came after Columbus' discovery of America? The Boston Tea Party, of course. Try this: Samuel Adams flung the tea into the briny Zuyder Zee.

(NOTE: The Zuyder Zee was located in Boston Harbor until 1801 when Salmon P. Chase traded it to Holland for Alaska and two line backers.)

But I digress. Let's get back to mnemonics. Like this: In nineteen hundred sixty seven Personna Blades make sharing heaven.

I mention Personna because the makers of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades are the sponsors of this column. If I may get a little misty in this, the final column of the school year, may I say it's been a pleasure working for Personna? May I say further that it's been an even greater pleasure working for you, the undergrads of America? You've been a most satisfactory audience, and I'm going to miss you this summer. In fact, I'd ask you all to come visit me except there is no access to my room. The makers of Personna, after I missed several deadlines, walled me in. I have no doors or windows—only a mail slot. I slip the columns out; they slip in Personnas and such food as can go through a mail slot. (For the past six months I've been living on after dinner mints.)

I am only having my little joke. The makers of Personna have not walled me in, for they are good and true and gleaming and constant—as good and true and gleaming and constant as the blades they make—and I wish to state publicly that I will always hold them in the highest esteem, no matter how my suit for back wages comes out.

And so, to close the year, I give you one last mnemonic: Study hard and pass with honors, And always shave with good Personnas!

Personna and Personna's partner in luxury shaving, Burma-Shave, regular or menthol, have enjoyed bringing you another year of Max's uncensored and uninhibited column. We thank you for supporting our products; we wish you luck in your exams and in all your other enterprises.

Tuck that ball!

Halfback Don Highsmith runs a kickoff back in the football scrimmage last weekend. Saturday, the Spartans end spring drills with the annual Green-White game. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Tourney to fill 'S' golf vacancy

By HAROLD DEAN
State News Sports Writer

Golf Coach Bruce Fossum will be looking for a man to fill the No. 6 position for MSU in the Spartan Invitational Tournament.

Netters try to protect 7-0 record

The high-flying Spartan tennis team, fresh from a 5-4 victory over Michigan and a holding perfect 7-0 record, will try to keep the streak going with matches today and Saturday.

The Spartans play Illinois at Champaign today, and Purdue at Lafayette on Saturday. MSU should have little trouble with either team.

Illinois is 4-3 and has 36 match points. But the Illini lost to Indiana earlier in the year, 7-2, while the Spartans beat the same team, 7-2. Illinois lost five lettermen from last year's team. Last year the Spartans beat Illinois, 7-2.

The Boilermakers are in last place in the Big Ten with a "perfect" 0-7 record. They haven't won a match point, and are using a squad composed mainly of sophomores. The Spartans whipped Purdue last year, 9-0, and the Boilermakers ended up in last place in the Big Ten in 1966.

MSU's hurdle entries will be Bob Steele and Steve Derby in the intermediates and Gene Washington, Charlie Pollard and Derby in the 120-yard highs.

Washington and Pollard both will compete in the 100-yard dash and Campbell joins Washington in the 220. Washington's 09:7 in the 100 and 02:16 in the 220 also rate among the best in the Big Ten.

Spartan relay teams will be chosen from Steele, Dunn, Campbell, Spain, Wilson and Crawford in the one mile and Steele, Dunn, Crawford, Campbell and Washington in the quarter-mile.

ment at the Forest Akers course today and Saturday.

Fossum said that this tournament, along with the Michigan meet Wednesday, will determine the sixth position for the remainder of the season.

"Our first five players are John Bailey, Troy Campbell, Sandy McAndrew, Steve Benson and Larry Murphy," Fossum said. "We still don't really have a sixth man. George Butch, Dennis Hankey, Dick Hill and Al Thieles are all shooting for it."

In the Michigan meet Wednesday, Butch was the only participant of the four, and he shot an 80. However, in practice rounds the same day, Hankey and Hill finished with a 78, 80, respectively, to keep the pressure on Butch.

Defending champion MSU is teeing-up against some of the top teams in the state in the second annual tournament.

Host team MSU will be co-favorite with U of M and Eastern Michigan listed as top contenders for the two-day tourney.

The Spartans won last year's 11-team tourney with a 298, 15 strokes ahead of the Detroit College of Business. Spartan Junior Al Thieles will return to defend the medalist honors he won last year with a 71.

A total of 20 games is entered and placed in two divisions.

The university division includes: MSU, U of M, Central Michigan, Northern Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Western Michigan and Wayne State.

The college division includes: Alma, Aquinas, Detroit College of Business, Ferris, Hillsdale, Calvin and Olivet.

The Spartans frustrated U of M Wednesday with a brilliant display of teamwork. MSU won the dual meet, 620-627.

Campbell and Murphy played in the same foursome and fought each other for the team medalist and ended up co-medallists with amazingly-low scores of 73.

Benson continued his consistency shooting a 75 and Bailey broke out of a slump with a 76. McAndrew and Butch rounded out the scoring with 78 and 80, respectively.

A smiling Fossum said, "this could be the start of something big."

Good at doubles

John Good (left) and Mickey Szilagyi, the Spartans' No. 2 doubles team, were the heroes in Tuesday's match against Michigan. With the match tied 4-4, Good and Szilagyi came through with a three-set victory to cinch it for the Spartans. Good won in singles too and was the only double winner from both schools.

ND final warmup for trackmen

By NORM SAARI
State News Sports Writer

Big Ten track teams have a final chance this weekend to submit top times before the conference championship next weekend in Iowa.

MSU travels to Notre Dame for a dual meet Saturday and could show enough improvement to rank as favorite to defend its outdoor championship.

Mike Bowers now leads conference performances in the high jump, after clearing an even seven feet for the only MSU fields events "best."

But the Spartans have two 15-foot pole vaulters, Roland Carter and Jim Stewart.

While Don Crawford had a leg injury and not performed near top capacity yet this spring, he will be competing this weekend in both the long jump and triple jump.

John Wilcox will also pole vault for the Spartans, and Al Maibach will compete in all three jumping events.

Joe Auffrey and Dennis Lamb will go against Notre Dame in the shot put and discus, although neither has recorded a top conference performance.

Middle-distanceman John Spain will be running for a top time in the 880, the event he won in the outdoor championship last year. So far this season, he has been running both the 660 and 880 and set a varsity record of 1:17.7 in the shorter event last weekend.

Against Notre Dame, however, only the half-mile will be run, so he could be turning in his top pre-championship time.

Roger Merchant and Pat Wilson will also be running the 880. The Irish should provide competition for MSU's distancemen, especially in the steeplechase. Entering the event will be Dick Sharkey and George Balthrop, while Eric Zemper will join them in the other long distance run, the three mile.

Sharkey has been timed in 14:11.2 in the three mile, second fastest so far in the conference.

Zemper ran a career best of 4:10.2 in the one mile last week-

Dorms plan festivities

Activities this weekend will be centered around the South Complex Weekend, East Complex Weekend, Northeast Complex Weekend and the 20th annual Lambda Chi Alpha Junior 500 Race. Activities will be plentiful with coeds having their last 2 a.m. late permissions of the term on Saturday night.

Beauty pageant lovers should attend the South Complex Beauty Pageant at Case Beach from 4-5 p.m. today. Queen candidates from Case, Wilson and Wonders Halls will compete.

Another South Complex event is the tennis court mixer from 8-12 tonight. The Penny Choir and the Bishops will entertain on the tennis courts and those attending should wear tennis shoes. If it's raining, the dance will be held in Wonders Cafeteria.

A jazz concert near Conrad Auditorium from 7:30 to 10 tonight will kick off East Complex Weekend. There will be a coffee house behind McDonald Hall from 9-12:30. At the same time a battle of the bands will be held at Holmes Hall featuring the Collectors, Tonto and the Renegades and the Spontaneous Generation.

"The Cardinal" is the offering of the Cedar Cinema tonight and tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. The film stars Carol Lynley, Romy Schneider and Tom Tryon, and can be seen on the banks of the Red Cedar near the Auditorium.

Entertainment This Weekend

By VALERIE ALBERTS

If it rains the movie will be shown in the Union Parlors tonight.

"Song Over Moscow," a satirical Russian musical comedy, will be shown tonight in Fairchild at 7 and 9, as a feature of the International Film Series.

Men's Hall Association and Women's Inter-Residence Council will sponsor the film, "Topkapi," starring Melina Mercouri, Peter Ustinov and Maximilian Schell at 7 tonight and at 7 and 9 p.m. Saturday in Conrad Auditorium.

United Students will hold a fund-raising dance and light show in the Union Ballroom from 8:30 to midnight tonight with entertainment provided by The Next Exit Blues Band. Money collected will be used to pay for damages of the Akers Hall Kiss-In.

Abdul and the Camel Drivers, a group that plays at the Gables, will star at the Brody mixer tonight from 9-12.

Shaw will have a record hop from 9 to midnight tonight.

At 11:30 Saturday morning, Gamut, the student-sponsored and directed television show on channel 10, will feature the Spartan Brass Band.

The Wilson Hall "Wipe-Out" road rally will start at 9 Saturday in Lot C by the International Center.

"Tis Pity She's a Whore" will be presented for the last times tonight and Saturday at 7:15 in McDonald Klva.

The International Festival sponsored by the International Club will be held in the Auditorium Saturday with stage shows at 2 and 8 p.m.

Delta Sigma Theta sorority is holding an "Oldies But Goodies" dance in the Union Ballroom from 8 to midnight.

The MSU Activity Band and the Satin Sounds will play from 8:30 to 11:30 Saturday night at the "Concert Under the Stars" in the Case Hall courtyard. Those attending should bring blankets.

Phillips Hall will have a Casino on Saturday from 8-11 p.m. The Grim Reapers will star at the Snyder Hall dance from 9-12 Saturday night.

Tickets are on sale in the East Complex dorms for the Vogues Concert from 9 p.m.

-1 a.m. Saturday. The Sounds and the Sonettes will also be featured.

On Sunday afternoon, the Junior 500 parade will start at 12:30 on MAC Avenue with the race starting at 1:30 and entertainment before the race provided by the Sounds and the Sonettes.

The South Complex art show will be held on Sunday from 2-6 p.m. in the Wilson Hall concourse.

There will be a piano recital at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Music Auditorium.

The Loading Dock mixer will be held behind Wilson Hall from 6-8 p.m. Sunday with Dino and the Dynamics making the music.

"Putting Pants on Phillip," a 1928 Laurel and Hardy comedy sponsored by the Exploring Cinema Society, will be shown at 7 Sunday night in 31 Union.

In sports this weekend, MSU plays Minnesota today in a baseball double-header at 2 p.m.

The Spartan Invitational Golf Tournament starts today at 11 a.m. and Saturday at 8 a.m. at Forest Akers Golf Course.

The Green and White football game will start at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Stadium.

The baseball double-header with Iowa starts at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Help needed to rate courses

ASMSU needs students to help prepare and distribute initial questionnaires for the course evaluation program.

Terry Hassold, ASMSU Cabinet president, said he hopes a course appraisal booklet will be ready for distribution by fall term 1968. He added that many students are needed to set the long range project in motion.

Interested students should contact Hassold's office in 320 Student Services.

Hassold said the program would have to begin with basic courses plus a number of electives offered every term and gradually expand to include all courses and teachers.

Professors will be shown the survey results on their classes before publication.

Poet and author

Ken Lawless, ATL instructor and author of "The Fables," and Robert Vander Molen, MSU poet who published his first book, "Blood Ink," this term, read from their published and unpublished works Wednesday night in Wilson Auditorium. Lawless read from two of his books of fables and several poems. Vander Molen read "Blood Ink" poems and described their imagery as originating in hitchhiking trips and Michigan and childhood scenes. About three dozen people attended. The evening's proceeds went to Zeitgeist.

Student UN conference set

The Collegiate Council for the United Nations is holding the twenty-second annual National Student Leadership Institute June 10-17. U Thant and Ambassador Goldberg will be speakers at the conference.

The Institute, held each year at Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N.Y., and the United Nations Headquarters, is open to undergraduate and graduate students from colleges throughout the nation.

The CCUN is a student organization devoted to building informed and intelligent public support for the U.N., and its purpose is to stimulate greater interest in and understanding of the aims, functions and accomplishments of the U.N., and its related agencies.

For an application to be considered, students must submit their reasons for wanting to attend the institute and include a faculty endorsement.

The cost involved includes a $25 registration fee, returnable pending acceptance, and a $70 charge for room and board at Sarah Lawrence and transportation between the college and U.N. Final date for application is today.

For further information, contact Sally A. Murphy at 332-2889.

Parking rules change studied

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

Parking regulations affecting new apartments, co-ops, and sorority and fraternity houses were approved by the East Lansing Planning Commission Wednesday night and forwarded to the city council for consideration.

The commission also approved a master plan aimed at keeping East Lansing a primarily residential community by encouraging home ownership of town houses and other cooperative types of housing.

According to the proposed regulations, new fraternity houses and co-ops would provide three spaces for every four persons, while sororities would provide one parking space for every three persons. Apartments would reserve three spaces for every five tenants.

Existing rules now call for one parking place for every two persons in co-ops and fraternity and sorority houses. Apartment houses have 2.5 spaces allotted for every five persons.

"Parking around fraternities is the bigger problem in comparison with sororities," said James H. Denison, chairman of the commission, "and these proposed regulations could help alleviate the problem."

The approved master plan, entitled "The Comprehensive Development Plan," culminates eight years of work by the commission. Denison said he thought approval of the plan "would never happen."

According to the plan, the city code will be changed to encourage home ownership in various forms, such as town houses, in addition to single family residences.

"It has been demonstrated that people who own property take a more active interest in community affairs than do those with little relationship to city government," said Denison. "A homeowner is more apt to question the effective use of his tax money."

Denison added Wednesday that the revised code would tend to "cut down the transience of the community and instill a little permanence."

Increasing the number of persons living within a certain area, the plan would change present code requirements limiting single family residences to 50 feet or more frontage.

"A person could own a relatively small piece of land under modern trends of housing development," Denison said, naming the town houses and co-ops as examples.

The commission also proceeded without objection to ask architect Jack Brown to continue with proposed plans for architecture of the downtown East Lansing business district and parking ramp.

NSA IDs available

MSU students will soon be able to buy National Student Association (NSA) international ID cards at the ASMSU offices.

The cards have been ordered and are expected to arrive within two weeks. Further information will be carried in the State News.

it's what's happening

Announcements must be received before 11 a.m. the day before publication.

The MSU Cycling Club will hold a 25-mile ride beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday. Everyone is welcome to participate in the ride, which will begin in front of the Men's I.M.

The members of Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority will hold an open house from 2:30 to 5:00 p.m. Saturday at their new house at 402 Linden St. Dino and the Dynamics will entertain.

The West Circle spring formal will be held Saturday from 8 p.m. to midnight in the exhibit hall of the Lansing Civic Center. Tickets are on sale at the dorms for $6.50 per couple.

Delta Sigma Theta sorority will hold their annual "Oldies But Goodies" dance from 9 p.m. to midnight Saturday in the Union Ballroom. Dress is casual.

The MSU Science Fiction Club will discuss religion in science fiction from 3-5 p.m. Saturday in the Union Oak Room.

E. J. Hannan, of the Australian National University, will give a lecture on the complex multivariate normal distribution at 4:10 today in 107 Berkey.

The weekly Humanities Dept. record concert will be held at 7 tonight in 114 Bessey. Music by Prokofiev, Mozart, Stravinsky and Schubert will be featured.

The 1967 prize-winning photographs of the Michigan Press Photographers Association are on view in the State News Photographic, 301 Student Services. The public is invited to see the exhibit during the next two weeks.

Junior Pan-Hel will sponsor a work day from 1-3 p.m. Saturday. The members will be sent to fraternity houses for such chores as car washing, ironing, cleaning and sewing. A minimum charge of $1 per girl per hour will be asked as a donation to Junior Pan-Hel's operating expenses.

More than 20 nations will exhibit their arts, crafts and talents in the Auditorium Saturday as the International Club and the International Center present the 23rd annual International Festival, "Rainbow of Cultures."

Booth displays and a stage show will highlight the festival, according to Farouk Al-Janabi, publicity chairman.

The festival will be dedicated to President John A. Hannah in recognition of his 25 years as president of the University.

Arts, handicrafts, clothes, and accessories will be on exhibit in the display booths from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. in the basement of the Auditorium. Students, many in native dress, will attend the booths to answer questions.

"Because of the scarcity of handicraft and other materials native to their countries, some of the nationality groups have to travel as far as 100 miles to collect loan articles for their exhibits," Al-Janabi said.

Students will perform native dances and ceremonies at the stage show, presented at 2 and 8 p.m. Leading the show will be

Tom Bocci and Bob Thiel, professional guitarists.

Three awards will be presented to the best of the exhibits and performances.

"As is customary," Al-Janabi said, "Michigan State is attempting, through this program, to emphasize to the people and citizens of Michigan and also to the student body the fundamentals of international understanding and the basic similarities of the people of the world."

More than 300 families who have hosted foreign students during vacations and holidays have been invited to attend the festival.

Chairman for the festival are exhibits, B.P. Shah, India; stage, Spiros Constantinides, Greece; reception, Narindar Gill, India; and publicity, Farouk Al-Janabi, Iraq.

VAN DER HOFF
WITH SPRITE

Social-life majors, take a look at Charles Van der Hoff. He can't play the guitar. Never directed an underground movie. And then look at his ears! A bit much? Yes! But--Charles Van der Hoff can hear a bottle of tart, tingling Sprite being opened in the girls' dormitory from across the campus!

What does it matter, you say? Hah! Do you realize that Charles Van der Hoff has never missed a party in four years? When he hears those bottles of Sprite being uncapped--the roars--the fizzes--the bubbles--he runs! So before you can say anti-existentialism, he's getting in on that tart, tingling, slightly tickling taste of Sprite. And delicious refreshment--as well as a good time--is his.

Of course, you don't have to have ears as big as Charles Van der Hoff's to enjoy the swinging taste of Sprite. You may just have to resign yourself to a little less social life.

Pentecostal spirit reviving

Only a remnant still believed. A handful of men, a few women. And they were despondent, immobilized, silent. They huddled behind closed doors, at a loss about what to do.

Then something happened -- an event which is commemorated in the churches this Sunday.

It was "like the rush of a mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting," the Book of Acts reports, and "tongues as of fire" suffused each of them "and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit."

That was Pentecost, 50 days after Christ's death and resurrection, when a strange force swept his followers, reanimated them and set them to work in the world -- the traditional birthday of the church.

That electrifying occurrence goes on "afresh in these very days," says a message from the six presidents of the World Council of Churches. "God the Holy Spirit is at work."

The occasion points up a growing emphasis in theology on the operations of the Holy Spirit, or paraclete, what Jesus called the Counselor, the Spirit of Truth.

Traditionally, Roman Catholicism has viewed it as guaranteeing infallibility in special papal pronouncements on faith, a rarely used method, now increasingly broadened to a collective approach to clarifying doctrine.

This interworking of minds and consciences, coupled with the testing of time, is also the Eastern Orthodox view of how God's Spirit confers truth through the church.

Protestants have stressed that the process sometimes comes from outside ecclesiastical institutions, as well as within them, and they give a primary place to the Bible as a standard of evaluation.

Recent trends, in the various branches, have brought closer accord on these matters, although formal differences continue. And there is an increasing attention to the mystery of the Holy Spirit and its action.

Evidences of it are cited in sometimes controversial, puzzling ways. A group of University of Notre Dame students and priests recently have been holding Pentecostal-type prayer meetings, including manifestations of glossolalia, or "speaking in tongues" in praise of God.

Similar services have been reported among students at other colleges--such as Michigan State University and Duquesne--as well as at scattered parishes, Protestant and Catholic.

Hillel services

Hillel Foundation will hold Sabbath services and kiddush at 10 a.m. Saturday.

There will be a buffet supper at 6 p.m. Sunday followed by three archeological films: "King Solomon's Copper Mines," "The Civilization of the Nabataeans" and "The Cross and the Candelabra." Everyone is welcome.

Prayer can be life

A refugee child, placed in an American foster home, had her first experience with prayer. As the story goes, she described the family devotions as "talking to someone who isn't there."

Obviously, it seemed to her a strange procedure, and even among the religiously versed there have been recurring questions about the ways and workings of prayer.

"Teach us to pray," the apostles asked Jesus at the beginning of Christianity.

And believers ever since have approached the discipline of personal prayer variously -- in confidence or uncertainty, in regularity or hardly at all, as an intimate compass to life, or a mere external formality.

Nowadays "prayer for many is like a foreign land," says the Rev. Dr. Robert McAfee Brown, a Presbyterian theologian. "When we go there, we go as tourists. Like most tourists, we feel uncomfortable and out of place."

Ultimately, "You are using God when you pray for your own ends," writes noted Protestant theologian Reinhold Niebuhr.

Prayer, he adds, should not be for "trivial ends" but for "integrity, courage and wisdom."

Ecumenism increasing among denominations

The church is on the threshold of ecumenicity, and denominationalism is on the way out, a research authority of the Indiana Council of Churches (ICC) said recently.

Rev. Arleon Kelley, associate executive for research and community ministries, said the Church is limited by "horse and buggy structure" in its attempt to relate the Gospel to today's "super scientific culture."

The dual concept of "Town and Country Church" and "Urban Church" is no longer feasible, he said. The denominational program doesn't work in most non-metropolitan areas.

Each minister will meet the sacramental needs of the laity of his persuasion, but each will have a specialty which he will practice on behalf of the church of the locality.

"Denominationalism is essentially the result of focusing the Gospel on the needs of a certain socio-historical context," he explained. "Many pastors now see themselves called to serve God wherever they feel God needs them most at the moment."

Scientists believe that God is in man

By DAYLE SCHWARZLER

State News Staff Writer

"The body is the subjective state of mortal mind, thought externalized," Christian Science lecturer Georgina Tennant told a small group of students and faculty Wednesday afternoon.

The Christian Science concept of man is found in Genesis, explained Mrs. Tennant, an authorized Christian Science teacher and practitioner.

"Christian Scientists understand Genesis to be an inspired narrative pointing to spiritual scientific facts," she said. God's Spirit, who made all things and saw that they were good, also made man in God's image. Therefore man is spiritual and perfect, just as God is, she said.

Man's problems, unhappiness and sickness arise simply because of "the belief that light and intelligence are in matter, that they are derived from matter and depend on it," she said.

This truth is illustrated by the allegory in Genesis of the mist which rose from the ground representing the fog of materialistic thinking, she said. Such thinking results in a distorted view of man as a material mortal, when he is really spiritual and immortal.

Mary Baker Eddy, "the discoverer and founder of Christian Science," arrived at this view of man after careful research into the Bible showed her that man and God cannot be separated, because man is the beloved child of God, she said.

Mrs. Eddy had previously recovered from an apparently incurable illness when "a glimpse of God's Spiritual Creation, the truth of being," miraculously healed her. This experience led her to study and pray, and she discovered "the science of Jesus's teachings, what it was that gave Him the power to do his healing work," Mrs. Tennant said.

"When we understand that man is the perfect expression of the perfect God, so he's spiritual and not physical, we can see that intense research into material medicine isn't the way to the final destruction of disease," she asserted.

"Matter and evil don't come from God, who is Eternal Truth, so we speak of them as unreal, or error," she said. "But we don't deny the need for healing."

We regard the sufferer with compassion and understanding."

For help, the Christian Scientist turns directly to God, she said. "If the body is sick, it's thought that needs to be corrected."

Declaring that "the scientific understanding of a specific problem is exact," she related a story told to her by a teenage girl, raised as a Christian Scientist, who had been suffering from headaches and abnormal vision. "She turned confidently to God for help," Mrs. Tennant said. She worked to know the truth as correctly as she could. When she became intensely conscious of God's all-powerful love and perfection, she realized that man's accompanying perfection includes perfect sight. Instantaneously, complete healing came.

An understanding of God such as this girl achieved involves knowing Him as incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite, Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth and Love, Mrs. Tennant said.

"Hence He is a knowable God, because we can understand him as Soul, giving us all beauty and grace, for example, while in Spirit we find Him as all true substance," she said.

"And through His unchanging nature we have the deep satisfaction of understanding God as principle," she said. "It's on this basis that we can meet the challenge of today's unbelief in God."

Prof lauds situation ethics

By JEFF HILL

The most important change in modern society is the development of situation ethics, Joseph Fletcher, professor of social ethics at the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, Mass., said Monday.

Approximately 500 students and faculty were present in Fairchild Theatre to hear Fletcher speak at the University Forum Committee on "The Immorality of Morality," or as he preferred to put it, "the dead hand of moral principles."

He said that the new morality is primarily a method of decision making, not a set of rigid rules and laws. It represents a compromise between a complete lack of principle and law and a legal system of laws which is rigid and stiff, he explained.

To "live by the law of love, not the love of law" is the basic principle of the new morality, he said.

The traditional morality has corrupted morality by "trivializing it," he explained. He said that it had become, like the law rigid, and did not provide an adequate base for decision making.

The three parts of the new reformation, the new theology, new evangelism, and new morality, all reflect situationist attitudes toward religion, he added.

There is nothing in the world

we cherish more than a happy family, Harry S. Smith, C.S.B., of Atlanta, Ga., said Friday at the First Church of Christ Scientist in East Lansing.

"A happy family is an essential cornerstone to our civilization," he said.

A generally accepted reason for dissent, divorce, and broken homes is that "the best parents are never quite good enough or never could be."

According to Smith, Christian

Science teaches that man is perfect. He is created in God's image.

"In reality, every quality of God is eternally expressed, with-

Through man's knowledge of his perfection and the use of prayer, he can be healed of any affliction of the mind or body, he said.

The Church teaches the concept of the "Divine Family." Our only real parent is God, who is both Father and Mother. We are all his divine children, Smith stated.

Smith, who resigned from a sales management position to enter the Christian Science healing ministry, said that marriage

counselors call selfishness

"a common denominator of marital discord." He said this includes self-will, self-love, and self-unhappiness.

Board studies orientation

By ELLEN ZURKEY
State News Staff Writer

A committee to study the summer freshman orientation program has been established by the ASMSU Student Board. The committee will study the present orientation program and will investigate the entire concept of freshman orientation. It will then make recommendations to the student board and the director of freshman orientation on possible changes. The rationale for formation of the study committee to be sent to Thomas Goodale, director of the summer orientation program, states, "Student board feels the freshman orientation program should provide a balanced view of the University and should be maintained in an atmosphere of freedom of speech and inquiry." Recent charges against the program have claimed that orientation closes perspective students off from the rest of campus.

Greg Hopkins, chairman of ASMSU, said the study committee may become a standing committee if ASMSU sees the need for continual evaluation of the program.

Brad Lang, member-at-large, made the original motion which eventually would give students control over the hiring and firing of orientation personnel and would make students responsible for running the program.

Terry Mulchahey, chairman of the study committee, said that he will be meeting with Goodale within the next week to discuss the problem of the summer program and how to select the three non-student board members who will be on the committee.

Mulchahey emphasized, however, that major changes in the orientation program will probably not come until next year when "there will be much more opportunity for change."

Prof gets key to city

An MSU professor received a key to the city of East Lansing Monday for his contribution to the Lansing Symphony Association. William Lazer, professor of marketing and transportation, was honored at the annual dinner of the Lansing Symphony Association at Dines' restaurant in Lansing.

East Lansing Mayor Gordon L. Thomas presented Lazer with the key for "promoting cultural activities in the East Lansing-Lansing community."

Lazer has been president of the association for the past year and has served on the board for four years.

A faculty member of MSU's graduate school of business since 1955, Lazer explained that music is his hobby.

Frank B. Senger, chairman of the School of Journalism, was recently elected a member of the accrediting committee of the American Council on Education for Journalism.

The committee determines accrediting standards for schools of journalism, advertising and television and radio.

Schools must meet the set standards and prove every five years that they are maintaining the requirements, Senger will visit schools throughout the country as part of his committee duties.

Alexis J. Panshin, retiring chairman of the department of forest products, was honored May 3 at a retirement dinner at Kellogg Center.

Panshin has been a member of the faculty since 1935. He has been chairman of the department of forest products for 17 years and served as director of the School of Packaging from 1957 to 1966.

He was a member of the United States forestry delegation to the U.S.S.R. in 1959, and served on the program committee for the World Forestry Congress in 1960.

FACULTY FACTS

The turbulent political, religious, and economic movements that have swept across Europe for 1,000 years are portrayed in the first published English language atlas on Russia and East Europe, by three MSU professors.

The book, "An Atlas of Russian and East European History," was written by Arthur E. Adams, professor of history, Ian Matley, associate professor of Russian geography and William McCagg, asst. professor of East European history.

More than 20 MSU researchers were authors or co-authors of research reports given last week at the 67th annual meeting of the American Society for Microbiology in New York.

Philip G. Gerhardt, chairman of the Dept. of Microbiology and Public Health, is secretary of the society.

Among those professors presenting papers from the Dept. of Microbiology were: Harold L. Sadoff, Charles L. San Clemente, Delbert E. Schoenhard and Ralph N. Costilow.

Others presenting papers were four research associates: A.D. Hitchins, Emel Celikkol, Liang P. Lin, and Brij M. Mitruka.

Also contributing papers were Marvis A. Richardson, associate professor of research and Robert R. Brubaker, assistant professor.

Members of the Dept. of Food Science giving papers include: Irving J. Pflug, professor; and Richard V. Lechowich, associate professor of research.

Several graduate assistants and graduate research assistants in both departments also contributed papers.

Chester A. Lawson, University research professor, has advanced a new theory of human learning in a monograph just published for a series in the behavioral sciences.

In "Brain Mechanisms and Human Learning," Lawson contends that the human nervous system and its receptor-affecter apparatus play a larger role than previously thought.

His theory offers a detailed description of the processes Mendel is presumed to have followed in developing his genetic principle of hereditary trait transmission.

Lawson, formerly chairman of the Department of Natural Science, is currently on one year's leave of absence at the University of California, Berkeley.

Phi Sigs muscular dystrophy drive

Phi Sigma Delta fraternity will hold their annual tag day sale as sponsors of a muscular dystrophy drive Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The goal is $8,000.

Persons wishing to contribute money and receive tag buttons may do so at F&W, Brookfield Shopping Plaza and along East Grand River Avenue, WMSN, all-University radio, will have donation cups and buttons for those who can't make it to these sites.

The money will be sent to the Muscular Dystrophy Association national headquarters.

Muscular dystrophy is a hereditary disease which primarily strikes children. It is characterized by progressive muscle deterioration.

It was seen as the most deserving cause to which to contribute, according to Mike Litchman, Boston, Mass., freshman and drive chairman, because the money will directly help sufferers of the disease, rather than being used for administrative purposes.

Over eighty cents of every dollar donated to the drive will be used for a variety of purposes including research, patient service, public health education, professional education, training and community service.

Worthy cause

Bonnie Kimmel, WMSN secretary, and Mike Litchman, Boston, Mass., freshman, prepare for Phi Sigma Delta fraternity's second annual Tag Day to benefit muscular dystrophy victims. The sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the East Lansing shopping centers and along Grand River Avenue.

'U' couple seeks TB cure

A husband and wife research team have been working for nine years here to eradicate bovine tuberculosis, a disease responsible for taking human lives as well as animals.

Walter Mallmann, professor emeritus, and his wife Virginia, asst. professor, both of the microbiology and Public Health Dept., are working to focus attention on the disease and to spearhead an all-out attack on TB by all human and animal health agencies.

Currently, the Mallmanns and other University scientists are working with a $110,000 budget supported by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture and the national and Michigan tuberculosis associations. Their aim is to completely eradicate the disease.

Because TB can be transmitted from animals to humans and vice versa, he said, a total eradication program is necessary to eliminate the disease as a perennial threat to health. This means elimination of the types of TB that attack animals as well as man.

SPREADING TO CITIES

Sino clashes said worse

TOKYO (P) - Violent fighting has occurred in at least four cities of Red China's rice-basket province, Honan, Japanese reports from Peking said Thursday. There were signs that a struggle between supporters and enemies of Chairman Mao Tse-tung was approaching a climax.

In Honan, the wall newspapers said, fighting broke out May 6, involving 50,000 foes of Mao and two pro-Mao Red Guard factions inside an engineering school in Chengchow. Fighting there and in other cities was said to have left 10 dead and hundreds seriously wounded.

iang, site of Red China's nuclear installations.

The main targets of the cultural revolution purge are President Liu Shao-Chi, once considered Mao's heir apparent, and Teng Hsiao-ping, secretary-general of the Communist party, now called leaders of "the handful of top party persons in authority taking the capitalist road."

Pro-Maoists accused Chao Wen-fu, secretary of the Honan Province committee of the Communist party and provincial vice governor, of persecuting Mao's followers. Similar accusations have been leveled against old-line party chiefs in Sinkiang and Szechwan provinces.

The official press in Peking warned against spreading anarchy, suggesting that Mao's own supporters among the Red Guards were going overboard in their hunt for real or suspected enemies.

Japanese Foreign Ministry experts on China speculated that the power struggle faction led by Mao and the Communist party vice chairman, Lin Biao, his heir apparent, were consolidating their hold on the country. They said this conclusion was reached by a consensus of Japanese diplomats stationed in 16 Asian countries, following a Hong Kong meeting this week.

Deadline for SN tabloid

Residence halls, Greek houses and other living units planning an open house or other activities for Parents Weekend, May 19-21, should call the State News from 2-4 p.m. Sunday to have the event included in the special Parents Weekend tabloid.

Prof speaks

with detailed three- or four-paragraph explanations of the objectives, readings, testing methods, prerequisites and stuff like that.

"The instructor writes the course description," he went on. "Then somebody tacks on a paragraph describing the instructor, and you're all set."

"Well, I went over to JMC and saw the bulletin. Turned out, of course, that it wasn't nearly as simple as all that."

But it could be done. It could be done cheaply. And it could be done in time to help make registration for winter term next year a lot more sensible.

This is one of those rare JMC experiments that would work just as well for a large college as for a small one.

Monday I'll tell you how they do it. I'll ask you to come up with a way to sell the faculty on the idea.

But why not drop a line to next year's editors suggesting that a regular feature, perhaps "professors of the week" or some such deal, be included in the State News?

Seniors honored

Chosen as Seniors of the Week for their activities are Jay Arthurs, Solon, Ohio, and Linda Vickerman, Dowagiac. Arthurs has been editor of the Wolverine for the past two years, and said he joined the staff for something "quite removed" from his major of engineering. A member of Phi Eta Sigma honorary, he will join the army after graduation. Miss Vickerman, a music major, has performed solos with both the University Chorus and the Opera Workshop. She has been a member of Tower Guard, Mortar Board, Honors College, the State Singers, the International Club and three honoraries. After graduation, she hopes to study at the Juilliard School of Music and eventually to perform professionally.

Until this week, the RA report was justified on the grounds that it provided a means for the University to get to know its students.

The report was supposed to be a means of personalizing the university and making sure the university could have some information beyond grade points to give to its students' potential employers.

In the last week that rationale has been seen as misleading. Vice President for Student Affairs John A. Fuzak announced Monday the reports were no longer to be in student files in the main records office.

All RA evaluations now in student folders are being removed and destroyed by the end of next week, he said, because an analysis of the use of the reports showed that there is insufficient need for their continuation.

Don Adams, director of residence halls programs, announced Wednesday that the reports would not be required from RAs unless and until guidelines on the use of student records indicated they really were justified.

If the reports are made, they will be used only within the residence halls.

Three separate series of events helped lead to these changes.

In the process of implementing the Academic Freedom Report, Fuzak's office is conducting a total re-evaluation of all records and their uses.

In early March, Adams appointed a committee from the residence halls staff to work out a new RA report form with guidelines and recommendations for its use.

During the meetings and discussions of the new form, several RAs said they would refuse to make any kind of evaluation of the students on their floors.

Other RAs objected to the old RA evaluation but felt they could fill out the proposed new form for their students if a report were required.

A number of RAs told the State News they were not qualified to evaluate students. But some said that since the administration wanted evaluations done, the RAs were the best qualified people for the job.

Many expressed concern that the evaluations were not being used during a student's attendance at MSU.

It was admitted that the RA could make good use of the form if he filled it out and discussed it with the students.

A few suggested that the forms might do some good if they were passed from the RA who filled them out to the student's RA the next year.

Some pointed out that a written evaluation of attitudes and behavior would be outdated quickly and could not be useful later.

The old Residence Report included a rating section where the RA ranked the student Superior ("top 10 per cent of college students known by rater"), Good (top 25 per cent), Average ("typical, acceptable"), Below

News Background

Average (bottom 25 per cent) or Unknown (Not enough opportunity to judge).

The categories were "personal appearance (dress, manner), self management (property care, housekeeping), integrity (honesty, sincerity), adjustment to demands of college life (individual stability), academic effort (time invested, seriousness of purpose, initiative), respect for the rights and privileges of others, ability to work with others in group efforts, ability to achieve satisfactory personal relationships with peers, willingness to accept correction and criticism.

After a space for elaborating on the ratings, there was a section for listing contributions to the residence hall and house affairs, offices held, degree of competency as a leader and participation in campus affairs.

The last section directed the RA to:

"Please add additional comments regarding assets and strengths; weaknesses, unique characteristics, talents or aptitudes; problems, discipline, referrals made, or any information which will lead to further understanding of the student's ability to accept a position of trust and responsibility and assist the dean of students office in completing recommendations upon request from prospective employers and governmental agencies."

This form was not marked confidential, and many RAs either let the students fill them out, showed them to the students after filling them out or discussed them with the students.

But the dean of students office considers them confidential.

During the recent flurry of requests to see student files, Fuzak said it would be a breach of confidence to show the reports to students.

The new form, the Student Residence Profile, is marked "CONFIDENTIAL" and is expected to be used only within the residence halls if used at all.

The guidelines for staff training in use of the profile emphasize the importance of "anecdotal records" -- notes of incidents during the year from which the RA is expected to compile the profile at the end of the year.
