

MOSCOW TO REARM ARABS

Britain warns Israel on claims

From The Associated Press
Britain jolted Israel Wednesday with a warning in the U.N. General Assembly against claiming all of Jerusalem as a prize of war. Israel promptly accepted the challenge by affirming its intention to keep the Old City area and pledging free access by all faiths to its holy shrines.

At the same time, informed sources in Moscow reported that the Soviet government has promised to replace without cost the great store of Soviet arms that Egypt lost to Israel in their war this month.

In a policy speech to the emergency special session of the 122-nation General Assembly, George Brown, the British foreign secretary, said Israel would be isolated from world opinion if it retained the Old City won from Jordan. Abba Eban, the Israeli foreign minister, replied that his government already had expressed its determination to see that Jerusalem would never again become a divided city and an arena of war.

"Our policy is the preservation of the unity of Jerusalem, the elevation of its cultural and religious life and free access to its holy places," he asserted. The assembly also heard Mahmoud Fawzi, the Egyptian deputy premier, reject the U.S. resolution seeking direct Israeli-Arab peace talks. But he reflected pessimism that the assembly could compel Israel to surrender war-won Arab territory, as demanded by both the Arab states and the Soviet Union.

Neither Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin nor Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko attended the morning session of the assembly.

Brown, the opening speaker at the assembly's session Wednesday, said in the British view the Israeli-Arab war should not lead to territorial aggrandizement.

"Reports suggest that one particular point may be of special urgency," he said. "I call upon the government of Israel not to take any steps in relation to Jerusalem which would conflict with this principle."

"I say very solemnly to that government that, if they purport to annex the Old City or legislate for its annexation, they will be taking a step which would isolate them from world opinion, and also lose them rights Israel considers nonnegotiable."

Under the original U.N. Palestine partition plan, Jerusalem was to be an international city. But Israel took the new part of the city in the 1948-49 war, and Jordan seized the Old City.

GOP tax package defeated in House

From The Associated Press
Voting less than 3 hours after Gov. George Romney warned of possible slashes in state spending, the House Wednesday defeated its Republican-drafted fiscal package and its revenue-raising income tax.

The "little six" maverick Republicans kept their promise by voting against the package, which attracted only 50 of the 56 votes it needed for passage. No Democrats supported the bill.

The House then voted to reconsider the income tax bill, keeping it alive and in position for another vote.

Another showdown could come today. Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, has offered amendments designed to make the package more palatable to the Democrats.

House Speaker Robert Walden, R-Gross Pointe, said Republicans would caucus this morning and probably would consider Montgomery's proposals.

Shortly before the House began its tax debate, Romney announced he had told the heads of the 19 principle state departments to be ready to absorb substantial cuts in their asked-for appropriations.

He said his office is drafting an "austerity budget" bill which would trim his original $1,153 billion budget by 18 per cent—leaving spending in the year which begins July 1 some nine per cent below the current year's level.

The tax package defeated by the House Wednesday night, proposed income taxes of 2 1/2 per cent on individuals, 5 per cent on corporations and seven per cent on financial institutions.

Hannah, Neville to meet with CUE on study results

The Committee on Undergraduate Education (CUE) will meet June 28 with President John A. Hannah and Provost Howard R. Neville to discuss the results of its intensive four-month study on undergraduate education at MSU.

A 12-chapter report with recommendations for improvement in problem areas will probably be some 200 pages long, Arthur Adams, professor of history and chairman of the committee, said.

The 11 committee members have been meeting seven to eight hours daily since finals week of spring term. Subcommittees meet each morning in Akers Hall to write and discuss reports on specific areas, and the committee meets as a whole each afternoon in the International Center.

The 12 chapters will include such topics as: the philosophy, ends and aims of the University; admissions; quality of teaching; academic climate; general education; major curricula; residential colleges; registration, enrollment and academic advising; and administrative organization, structure, and budgeting.

Some two weeks will be spent after the report is turned in for polishing and cutting it, Adams said.

After the report is submitted to the President, it might be published for each member of the faculty, Adams said. At that time it will also be made public to the student body.

The report may be referred to the Steering Committee of the Academic Senate, Adams said, and sections may go through related faculty standing committees. It could then be submitted to the Academic Senate and Academic Council for approval.

The committee, in its four-month study, has met with hundreds of students, gathered the opinions of hundreds of faculty members and collected reports from other colleges and universities who have conducted similar studies.

CUE is a special committee appointed in February by the President, on a recommendation made by Neville in November.

U-M head Fleming tells of future plans

By JAMES SPANIOLO
State News Editor-in-Chief

The president-designate of the University of Michigan paid a brief visit to Michigan Wednesday, but stopped at MSU rather than U-M, held a press conference and then addressed a conference of the American Society for Engineering Education.

Robben W. Fleming, chancellor of the University of Wisconsin until Sept. 1, answered a variety of reporters' questions ranging from the draft to the use of drugs to the quality of higher education.

After a four-month orientation period beginning in September, Fleming will assume the duties of president of U-M in January. Fleming was selected in March to replace retiring President Harlan Hatcher.

When asked what he had planned for U-M, Fleming said he hoped that the school would continue to maintain its position as one of great universities in the country. He added that he was very interested in undergraduate education and would work toward keeping the proper emphasis on the undergraduate program, along with the outstanding graduate school.

At the University of Wisconsin Fleming has displayed his interest in classroom instruction by teaching several classes a year. An expert in labor relations, he has also been appointed professor of law at U-M and has indicated he would like to teach a class or two in addition to fulfilling his duties as president.

Fleming cautiously noted that he was heavily involved at the University of Wisconsin and wasn't fully acquainted with specific areas of policy at U-M or with the problems public universities in Michigan are having with the legislature over budget appropriations.

NAACP DIRECTOR A TARGET

Plot to kill Negro leaders foiled

NEW YORK (AP)—Police swarmed into residential neighborhoods early Wednesday to arrest 16 Negroes and break up what they said was a plot to assassinate Negro leaders and "seize power in the United States and throughout the world by force."

A machine gun, more than 30 other weapons, telescopes, helmets, radio transmitting equipment, more than 1,000 rounds of ammunition and a quantity of explosive material were among the items police seized.

The pre-dawn raids took place in widely scattered sections of Queens, Brooklyn and Manhattan. One arrest was made in Philadelphia.

One of the assassination targets, Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, had already been the target of an abortive assassination attempt in March, police said. Whitney M. Young, Jr., of the National Urban League, was also on the assassination list.

Those accused of plotting included an assistant elementary school principal, a Navy management analyst, a teacher, a welfare department clerk, an exchange student and an anti-poverty worker.

Police said some were members of a secretive, violence-prone, Negro extremist group known as the Revolutionary Action Movement (RAM).

Others were members of the "Black Brotherhood Improvement Association," an offshoot of the pro-Castro, pro-Chinese Black Liberation Front.

While they did not say so, armament probably was high on the agenda of talks Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny will have in Cairo with President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Cairo reported that Podgorny had received a tumultuous welcome when he arrived from Yugoslavia, where he had made an overnight stop for talks with President Tito.

Adding to the belief that rearming Egypt would be a major topic was the arrival of Marshal Matvei V. Zakharov in Cairo a day earlier. He is chief of staff of the Soviet armed forces.

Officials declined comment on the report that Egypt would be rearmed, but several stories in Soviet newspapers have hinted that the program was in the works.

There are reports from Washington and the Middle East that Soviet arms are beginning to arrive in Cairo, but (please turn to the back page)

New gent for Nugents named Patrick Lyndon

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A boy described as healthy and weighing 8 pounds, 10 ounces was born Wednesday to Luci Johnson Nugent.

Within moments Lady Bird Johnson telephoned the news to the President in Washington.

"He sort of laughed in a happy way and said something about grandma," was the way Mrs. Johnson reported the President's reaction.

Patrick Nugent, 23, the father, told reporters the baby had been named Patrick Lyndon.

Commenting on the weight and the 21-inch length of his son he said, "Isn't he an elephant?"

The Nugents, followed in another car by Mrs. Johnson, had arrived at Seton Hospital around 1:20 a.m. CDT, and a couple of hours later doctors reported Luci was in labor. The baby was born at 6:59 a.m.

Luci, 19, was reported resting comfortably at the Catholic hospital.

A team of five Austin doctors, who attended the President's daughter, pronounced mother and baby "in excellent condition."

In a medical statement, they said the infant was a "normal, healthy boy," with slate-gray eyes, fair skin and a small amount of light-colored hair.

It was "a perfectly normal six-hour labor and delivery," they said.

The baby was placed for the first four hours in a warming incubator in a private room next to Luci's, and Secret Service agents maintained a watch outside their doors. A White House spokesman said there were no frills for Luci, who occupied a $25-a-day hospital room.

Luci and Pat had dined out Tuesday night with Mrs. Johnson and then had retired at the Nugent's fashionable new Austin home.

Mrs. Johnson said she had just dozed off when Pat awakened her to report Luci's baby was approaching.

With Pat and Luci in their dark-green convertible and Mrs. Johnson in a station wagon, they made the dash of three or four miles to the emergency entrance of Seton Hospital, near the campus of the University of Texas.

Luci was taken to the delivery room. Mrs. Johnson waited in a guest room.

The Nugents were married last Aug. 6 at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington.

The word that Luci was expecting first appeared in a copyrighted story in the State News January 18. The Nugents later confirmed the news officially.

Summer enrollment up

Summer term enrollment may reach 15,000—an 11 per cent increase since last year—according to preliminary figures from Registrar Horace C. King. More than 13,400 students had registered by the end of the regular registration period Tuesday.

Enrollments for the second half-term, special sessions and off-campus courses will be added to the full-term and first half-term figures for the final total.

Last summer's final enrollment was 13,664 students.

This summer MSU offers the full 10-week term, two five-week terms, more than 40 special intensive sessions, a 10-week session at the Kellogg Biological Station, a summer Institute of Glaciological and Arctic Sciences on the Juneau Icefield of Alaska, and other courses at seven University regional centers throughout Michigan.

The first half-term ends and registration for the second half-term begins July 26. Both the full term and second half-term end Sept. 1.

Orientation sessions start

Some 350 freshmen arrived on campus Wednesday to participate in the first freshman orientation of the summer at Wonders Hall.

Eight thousand freshmen and transfer students will attend the summer orientation, which extends through August, with one late orientation in September. All new students are required to attend the orientation.

Three groups of approximately 350 students arrive each week, with three-day sessions beginning each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The three days are filled with speeches, tests, program planning, academic counseling and registration. An activities night is planned to inform the students about various activities and organizations offered on campus and a mixer is planned for one evening.

The Council's plan: do students fit in?

After months of debate, the previously locked doors to five faculty committees and the Academic Council have been opened slightly to students.

On June 6, the Academic Council approved the recommendations of the Committee on Committees, calling for partial student participation.

One graduate and one undergraduate student will have non-voting membership on the International Projects, Educational Policies, Curriculum, Student Affairs, and Library Committees. In addition, one meeting of the Academic Council each year will include students, who might make formal or informal presentations and participate in a question-and-answer period.

To those who had envisioned membership in these committees and the Academic Council as a route to what Provost Neville called the student role in the "decision-making process," there will be some disappointment.

The arrangement with the faculty standing committees certainly provides a means for student-faculty communication. But the non-voting proviso betrays the faculty's continued reluctance to accept fully the idea of student participation in University decision-making. Even a token membership, to be meaningful, must carry with it full voting responsibilities.

However, the rejection of the idea of student membership on the all-important Academic Council, is the biggest disappointment. Allowing students to attend one meeting a year to make presentations and ask questions is really little more than the present policy.

While compromise was the apparent aim of the Council and the Committee on Committees, there was no concession on this point by the faculty. To think that allowing students to attend one of the monthly Academic Council meetings will result in constructive participation is unrealistic.

Evidently, it will be a matter of time before faculty members can be convinced that students do deserve an important role in the standing committees, and membership in the Academic Council.

The formula worked out by the Committee on Committees seems to be a workable first step. Now the large problem is effective implementation. The success of this first plan is almost a prerequisite for any further progress in the field of student participation.

Thoughtful selection of the students who are to serve will give the venture at least a chance of succeeding. Despite the apparent token quality of this first attempt at student representation, an impressive student response now would keep alive the promise of opening the doors wider in the near future.

COUNCILMAN PREDICTS

End to city lawlessness seen

By TRINKA CLINE
State News Staff Writer

Despite expressed distaste with recent nationwide coverage of Lansing's disturbances on the west side, Joel Ferguson, Lansing city councilman, believes that the out-breaks will eventually end.

"We have a real minority within a minority doing this," Ferguson said. "Stricter enforcement of existing rules and community awareness of the situation will ward off future trouble."

A rock and bottle throwing spree June 7 and 8 on Logan Street rated national coverage, along with news stories of racial violence in Florida and Ohio.

"Lansing's problem is of a more personal nature," he noted. "It's absurd to mention it along with Tampa, Dayton or Chicago."

He explained that recent incidents have been primarily confined to a two-block area. A handful of youths throw rocks and then disappear from the scene.

Ferguson said the fact that it was limited to a two-block area illustrates that it was not a major confrontation.

Ferguson charged that radio and television coverage has made the situation seem much worse than it really has been, adding that newspapers have been more responsible.

"I call it irresponsible reporting and sensationalizing. It gives them something to live up to."

Ferguson, also assistant director of Lansing's job training program, stressed that trouble in the capital city is "people unrest, not Negro unrest or riots."

Ferguson could see no direct relationship between the June incidents and those of May 1 or earlier.

"We try to have workers on the scene when large groups gather to give the crowd positive direction," he said, "but it's hard to say if this will control things since trouble is spontaneous and not organized. It's hard to isolate leaders."

Ferguson said he felt if the youths on west side had guns they'd use them. So far, damage has been done by such weapons as rocks, bricks and bottles. He added, "It's a shame so few could have so many words said about them."

Lansing's problems as cited by Ferguson include high unemployment for youth, uncomfortable housing and a lack of something to do and places to go.

OUR READERS' MINDS

Fear prompts patriotic plea

To the Editor:

I am writing this to all the members of the New Left, Old Left, S.D.S., U.S., and all the other so-called "radical" groups and individuals who, at this time, protest our involvement in Vietnam. I do not question your sincerity, your honesty, and your general good intent in wanting to end the slaughter of human beings. Although I disagree with you on many issues, I see in the act of dissent a healthy sign of democracy in action.

What I would like to question is some of the principles for which you stand. You have seen that the past 20 years have been the history of a continual struggle between "two opposite absolutes" in what has been termed the Cold War. Sometimes, as is the case today, it flares up into a very hot one. At times like this the dedication of men to one of the two opposite ideologies in existence today is tested.

You, by protesting our involvement in Vietnam, are, in effect, saying that you would allow another piece of real estate, another innocent people to be clenched in the mighty Communist fist—a fist that intends to extend its greedy fingers over the entire globe, including the United States.

With this in mind, I want to ask you how you feel about murder. In theory, the idealistic fervor of the protest movement would seem, to me, to be against the ending of even a single human life. Why then, I ask, do you favor my death?

Believe me when I say that in this land, even in this very university, there dwells a considerable number of hushed and what you might call "unsophisticated patriots" to whom liberty means life itself. I am among this group and we strongly feel that if Communism ever reached our shores, we would resist it until we are liquidated like all dissenters in a totalitarian regime must, of necessity, be.

Although after reading this, you might label me a mad "reactionary," don't make it that easy on yourself. Don't judge my words to be words of anger because, in all honesty, I wrote them as words of fear.

Therefore, instead of screaming at you, I plead with you—please, please, please don't deliver our country into the hands of those who would put us in chains! For the heel of tyranny does not fit the neck of an upright man—it chokes and gags him until he suffocates.

Non-partisan education

To the Editor:

Of all the freedoms, the greatest is the freedom to remain free, i.e., to be servile to none. No individual, no group, is entirely free. There are always debts to be paid, compromises to be made and mutual adjustments to be worked out. Undoubtedly, the closest approach to unfettered freedom is that which is to be found in a university.

As Dr. Robert Hutchins said, "Universities are independent centers of thought and criticism; they are not thought of as having any relation to political patronage."

In a world where Darwin's Natural Selection Theory of the survival of the fittest seems to hold sway, it is refreshing to think that in the university, one finds a measure of peace and an easing of the struggle.

Nathan Pusey, President of Harvard University, once wrote that "universities should not be enslaved to society... their responsibility is not to minister to utility but rather to call men to moral, spiritual and intellectual responsibility."

Thus it is that universities must always be unshackled. There must be no "politics" in the governing of a university. There are no such things as "Democratic Party Education" or "Republican Party Education." Governing boards of universities should be strictly non-partisan. To be partisan, means that the university is servile to a particular political party. Party allegiance, when used in education matters, has been a failure in Europe, in Asia and in South America.

Drs. Walter Adams and Adrian Jaffe recently wrote, "when universities become merely an arm of government, they begin to disperse conventional orthodoxy instead of pursuing free inquiry, to serve as advocates rather than analysts."

Earlier they wrote, "universities cannot and should not engage in any governmental activity which will compromise, modify or destroy their special function." With their sentiments I heartily agree.

Crowd security

To the Editor:

Protest marches seem a panacea for our social injustices—whether racial discrimination, the conflict in Vietnam, or the state legislature's refusal to meet the university's budget for next year. For many students marching is the easy way out, the fun thing to do. It is a way of appearing activist without making an intellectual commitment. It is much easier for us to let a few dedicated people organize a rally and follow them while chanting ready made slogans, than to formulate our own convictions.

MSU students continue to be MSU students, and the rallies are a necessity if we are to voice any opinion at all. We long for the security of the crowd and the sugar coating of slogans to help us disagree with society. Will we ever outgrow our need for predigested ideas?

British finals frenzied

EDITOR'S NOTE: Michigan State coed Jeanne Theodore has spent the past year studying at Exeter University in England. The following report on finals on the other side of the sea might serve as a warning to MSU students as to what lies ten weeks ahead.

By JEANNE THEODORE

With the coming of May, not only do the hearts of students lightly turn but their stomachs as well. For from May 15 until June 28, the various faculties at the University of Exeter begin administering the year-end equivalents of three MSU finals.

They are the only exams given during the school year so they are rather important. In fact, if a student fails one, he may discover to his horror that not only has he lost his faculties, but they have lost him as well.

Naturally, the tension is terrific and each residence hall develops its own escape mechanism. Lopes Hall takes to its knitting, Mardon Hall takes to its beer machine, and the Duryard Halls take to their heels.

Why? The men of Hethrington are of the opinion that not only mercy but everything else falls as "the gentle rain from heaven" and began pitching various articles out of their windows when the drudgery of study became too much for them.

We didn't mind when an occasional pair of pajamas or even a pillow flew out of one of their windows, but when Bonnie Wilkes caught a waste bin full of water on her head it was time to retaliate. And the windows of Hethrington are well suited for retaliation!

They reach from floor to ceiling and open on hinges. Though they are quite picturesque, they have disadvantages.

I am reminded of one chap, his name is now legendary, who tripped on his pajama cord, fell out of his six-foot window and found himself outside his hall wearing neither a smile (nor a Janzen) at 8:00 a.m. After that the men of Hethrington began putting their desks in front of their windows as a precaution against sudden and unexpected exits.

However, if they were used to unusual things coming out of the windows they were a bit amazed when things began flying back in. (It is with the voice of experience that I say it is every bit as satisfying throwing a bucket of water in a window as out of it and the results are even more rewarding.)

Unfortunately "Duryard Falls" as they came to be known, had to be curtailed as Ian Francis nearly did himself a permanent injury while shaving with a straight razor when nine pints of water hurtled through his open window and hit his English notes.

However, if the studying itself leads to tension, talking about studying is even more dangerous. First of all the English do not go to school (they did that until they were 18). Now they go to university. In fact if anyone over 18 says he "goes to school" instead of being "at university," it is safe to assume he is either teaching or retarded. (The two not necessarily being synonymous.)

Once at university a student doesn't take a subject—he reads it. (In this case, if someone asks you what you are reading, the appropriate answer is "English" and "The Times.") At Exeter, one does not stay in and "study"—one stays in and "works," which makes a lot of sense. In fact, the English idiom is always appropriate and sensible, particularly when one reaches the exam itself.

After a year's concentrated study and two weeks of feverish cramming, the typical Exeter student enters the Great Hall armed with charms, cigarettes (and in advanced cases, a bullet to bite on). With dilated pupils, shallow breath, and trembling hand, he is virtually in a state of catatonic shock. Naturally in a case like this, one does not write an exam, or take an exam... in their frozen state the University of Exeter students sit their examinations.

When you've crossed that unkind border

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — Border crossings are often controversial. They have been throughout history.

But the most controversial border today isn't a political border. The one that most people are anxious about isn't even on any map—it's the borderline between youth and middle age.

Many who have crossed it deny that they have; others cross it without ever realizing it.

How then can one tell reliably if one is middle-aged? Well, actions speak louder than prose.

Here is a tentative guide, based on actual conduct. You're probably middle-aged if: When a new neighbor moves in next door, you automatically assume he'll be worse than the one who just moved away.

You find yourself muttering to all who will listen, "I don't want any more trouble. All I want is a little peace and quiet."

When you yawn in public, you no longer bother to apologize. You realize that a public yawn is about the most honest act a man does in life.

You have forgotten the name of the red-haired girl who turned you down for a date in high school, but you can name to the hour and day just how far away you are from a pension.

Anytime you are served a piece of meat the first thing you do is cut the fat off it. It's hard for you to make up your mind which you hate more, the alarm clock or the telephone.

Instead of pretending you don't have prejudices, you tend to brag about them. You feel they are a sign of courage and character.

You dislike buying a new pair of shoes because it takes so long to break them in.

At breakfast you and your wife now always start the day by asking each other, "Did you sleep well?"

At the office the only fellow workers younger than you that you really like are those who come to you for advice. Those who solve their own problems without your help, you feel, are smart alecks.

Your grandchildren seem ever so much nicer than your own children were at the same age, and you glumly wonder if, perhaps, it's because the grandchildren had better parents.

That's middle age, and you've crossed the border.

SDS meet in Ann Arbor may revise national office

By ERIC PIANIN
State News Executive Editor

A restructuring of the national organization of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) is a possibility as 400 cross country delegates meet Sunday for a six-day conference in Ann Arbor. Mike Price, a part-time student at MSU and chairman of the local chapter of SDS, is uncertain about East Lansing representation at the conference. He is depending on many of the 30 hardcore MSU members to attend workshops and lectures through next Thursday.

VOICE, the University of Michigan chapter of SDS with a membership of 100 students, will probably dominate policy making at the SDS National Council the last two days of the conference. The national council meets four times a year.

VOICE, headed by president Gary Rothberger, a former U-M student, is seeking reorganization of the SDS national office. At present, the national officers are president, Carl Davidson and national chairman, Greg Calvert. According to VOICE, Davidson spends much of his time away from the main office in Chicago, visiting chapters across the country, while Calvert remains in Chicago, speaking for the national office.

"It is a crucial point whether SDS can continue to exist with the lack of democracy in the national office," Rothberger said. VOICE wants to create three national officers and three field secretaries. This would insure that two or three representatives would always be in Chicago to handle national student affairs.

"I have not been dependent on the national office enough to run into problems with the old system," Price said. Price said he might favor a change if the situation is as bad as VOICE members think it is.

Price is uncertain of who will represent MSU's chapter at the national council.

"Nothing is definite until we find out who is available, which may not be until the end of this week," he said.

The first four days of the conference will be devoted to workshops and plenary sessions. Such issues as the anti-draft movement, the Middle East crisis and

Dodd reiterates defense; claims no one deceived

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., denied Wednesday that either John Doe or Lyndon B. Johnson was deceived into thinking that $170,000 raised at his testimonials was earmarked for political campaign spending.

"It's my firm conviction, and I think I know, that the public was not deceived in Connecticut," the white-haired Democrat told the Senate.

"I don't want to belabor this thing or be repetitious, or bore senators," Dodd said as he restated his defense against censure charges. "But I do want to give you what I think is an accurate account."

The Senate ethics committee has accused Dodd of improperly converting to personal use at least $116,083 in funds raised through political testimonials and a Senate campaign.

Dodd insisted the money was a gift to be spent as he wished and maintained that the expenses it covered were linked with his political career.

"I put out of my pocket for political purposes some $50,000 more than I received through these testimonials," Dodd said.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the one senator who has joined the Dodd defense, suggested the figure should be $55,000. Dodd agreed.

Dodd said the testimonial affairs were generally nonpartisan, although he acknowledged that one held March 6, 1965, was billed as a victory dinner and linked in the invitations with a Dodd campaign deficit. The Connecticut senator said he never saw the invitation letter.

Johnson, as vice president, addressed a testimonial for Dodd Nov. 20, 1961, and four other events Oct. 26, 1963. Dodd acknowledged that he had written Johnson Aug. 5, 1963:

"Allow me to thank you again for your generous offer to come to Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign."

But he told the Senate that was no admission that the testimonial proceeds were to be used for campaign purposes. In fact, Dodd said, at that time he was returning proffered campaign contributions because his bid for re-election had not begun.

House OKs new flag law

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The House passed and sent to the Senate Tuesday night a bill to make desecration of the American flag a federal crime.

The vote was 355 to 16. The measure would set maximum penalties of a year in prison and a $1,000 fine for casting contempt on the flag by defacing, defiling, mutilating or trampling on it or any representation of it.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., said flag-burning and draft card burning are "extending and lengthening the war in Vietnam. They give hope to the Hanoi government that this government may fail."

China called crux to crisis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) -- A nightmare, robbing diplomats and politicians of their peace of mind, eventually may persuade--or even force--the United States and the Soviet Union to confer seriously at the highest level.

George Brown, Britain's foreign secretary, referred to the nightmare in his policy speech before the emergency United Nations General Assembly session on the Middle East war crisis. Others are thinking about it. They have reason to do so.

A ghost is hovering over this session, haunting it and mocking it.

A curtain-raiser for the wordy debate which has been going on here all week was provided Saturday over the salt flats of Red China's Taki Makan Desert.

With their penchant for timing, the Communist Chinese exploded a hydrogen bomb, years before the experts had thought they could.

Only two years ago, with Peking an apprentice club member, the Red Chinese already were believed planning to embark on their own road of nuclear proliferation.

What, world leaders can now ask themselves, would stop a China, bent on spreading her influence, from offering bombs to other governments, for example, Arab governments?

Perhaps this was on Brown's mind when he told the U.S. assembly that, "as we meet here, we cannot forget that even in the last few days news has come of new dangers on a scale which we can scarcely imagine and a new threat to human survival."

The national interests of both the United States and the Soviet Union at this time require an insurance against widened war in any area and certainly against general war which could lead to nuclear conflict. In effect, events now can force the Soviet Union and the United States into meaningful dialogue.

'CAPER OF THE GOLDEN BULLS'

Hack-humor tinsel turkey

By STUART ROSENTHAL
State News Reviewer

During the war, a clumsy English bomber crew accidentally demolished a Spanish cathedral. Filled with remorse and aided by a talented Italian girl, the group sets off to rebuild the church with the proceeds from a series of bank robberies in Germany.

One can never be certain of the intentions of an outsider, however. The feminine accomplice has managed to retain enough evidence to put our good guy bank robbers behind bars for life.

Twenty years later, at the insistence of the younger-than-ever young lady, the group re-assembles to knock off the Spanish Banco Nacional. It is upon this somewhat shaky premise that "The Caper of the Golden Bulls," currently playing at the Michigan Theater, develops.

The "Topkapi-How to Steal a Million-Gambit" theme has enjoyed so much success recently that Grade C imitations such as "Bulls" were inevitable. Joe Levine, creator of the instant Italian strongman epic has applied his unimaginative, stock technique to the "perfect crime" suspense comedy. Unfortunately, the film is lacking severely in both qualities. Consider the following passage of witty dialogue.

"Sergeant, we have reached the point where you need not call me Sir."

Or this subtle double entendre: "Where would you like to go on our honeymoon?"

"To bed, I'm tired."

The humor never rises above this level.

Throughout the picture, we are subjected to displays of gross overacting. The arm waving, mugging and exchange of clichés never seem to let up. Steven Boyd, the film's principal actor, is an exception, however. Boyd, a fugitive from Levine's Hercules travesties, has carried over his method acting approach of mugging his lines in a dull monotone without changing facial expression.

"Bulls" is an exceptional film in its total lack of production values. Sloppy camera work intensifies the monotony generated by the poor art production and subnormal sound tracking. Even the spectacle of the Fiesta of the Virgins and the Running of the Bulls appears traveloguish and prosaic. The dubbing is particularly miserable in light of the fact that the actors were apparently speaking English to begin with.

One is left with the overall impression that this turkey reached the screen as the result of careless editing.

History teachers hear Varg tonight

More than 300 high school and college history teachers from across the nation will hear Paul A. Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, give the opening address to the 14th annual Advanced Placement History conference tonight at 6:00 in Case Hall.

The two-day conference, sponsored by the College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB) and MSU's dept. of history, will deal with general problems facing history teachers, and with special problems of teaching history to an academically advanced group. The Advanced Placement Program, which allows accelerated high school students to study college-level courses, is in its 15th year in American high schools.

Speakers and colloquia leaders at the conference include Edward Warren, assistant director of the CEEB; Hermann Muelder, dean of Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.; Charles Keller of the John Haynes Fellows Foundation, and Mark Krug of the University of Chicago.

Varg will speak on "The Historian and Social Responsibility." Colloquia topics include "The Historian and Society," "New Teaching Materials and Interpretations," and "Advanced Placement, History, and the Social Studies Revolution."

A six-week NDEA Institute for 35 teachers of Advanced Placement American History courses is running concurrently with the conference.

Conference chairman and NDEA Institute director is Dr. Justin L. Kestenbaum.

One session on Advanced Placement history will be conducted by former students.

Poll may end race ban in Detroit club

DETROIT — Some 5,000 members of the Women's City Club are being polled to determine whether the club should open its facilities to Negro guests.

The outcome of the secret ballot would affect only guest privileges, not membership, in the exclusive women's group. Lenore Romney, wife of Michigan Gov. George Romney, recently resigned from the club when its policy of refusing to admit Negro guests of members came to light.

The box office (phone 355-0148) is open from 12:30-5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 5:30-9 p.m. performance nights. Curtain time for all plays is 8:30 p.m.

Earthquakes hit Fairbanks

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A series of earthquakes rocked the Fairbanks area Wednesday. Business buildings, a hospital and a jail were evacuated, chimneys toppled, windows broke and power lines snapped.

But there were no reports of injuries and no major structural damage.

Police said a suicide occurred during the quakes but they did not know if there was a connection.

Seven quakes were felt in 30 minutes, three of them severe. Seismograph stations rated the three heaviest shocks at an intensity of 6.7 to 7 on the Richter scale.

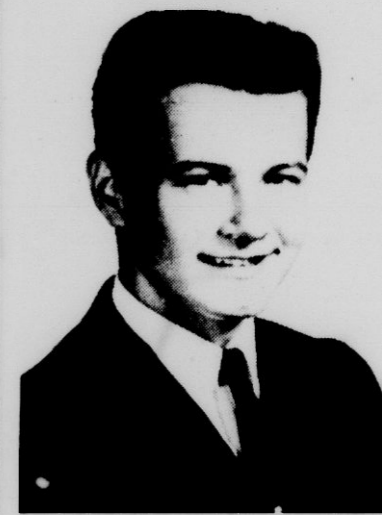

'King Kong' film Friday

"King Kong," the first presentation of Summer Cinema, will be shown Friday at 7 and 9 p.m. Tickets are available at the door for a 50¢ donation.

Sponsored by MSU's chapter of Students for a Democratic Society, the film series will also show during the summer a wide range of films including several Charlie Chaplin shorts, Eisenstein's "Ten Days That Shook the World" and Bogart's "The Maltese Falcon."

Other films included in the series will be announced during the summer.

Student's musical to be in memoriam

PEPPEL

In memorial to the late Robert E. Peppel, Port Hope graduate student, the town of Caseville will perform the musical which he wrote and directed while head of its Summer Enrichment program last summer.

Peppel, who was killed in an auto accident three months ago, wrote "The Village of Eccepe." The play shows people living free to pursue their individual desires provided they don't conflict with their neighbors' freedom.

The original cast of youngsters will perform the play in Caseville June 30-July 1 as a tribute to Peppel.

Peppel, who majored in music education, sang in the MSU chorus and performed in drama workshop productions, including the male lead in "West Side Story" last spring.

Inequality in the WCHA

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

The Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. (WCHA) is showing trends toward alleviating the problem of inequality in the hockey conference. Since its inception in 1952, the WCHA (which was called the Western Intercollegiate Hockey League when it was first formed) has had problems with member schools belonging to different athletic conferences besides the WCHA.

For instance, MSU, Michigan and Minnesota, who came into the WCHA in 1959, also belong to the Big Ten Conference.

North Dakota is a member of the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference; Michigan Tech belongs to the Northern Intercollegiate Conference; Minnesota-Duluth is affiliated with the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference; Colorado College is a member of the Rocky Mountain Faculty Athletic Conference; and the University of Denver plays as an independent.

Problems invariably have arisen over recruiting, athletic eligibility, schedules, freshman competition, disciplinary measures—just to name a few.

No two conferences have agreed upon the same ruling. What one member school was allowed to do by the WCHA, another school was forbidden to do by its own conference.

For example, until the past year, the Big Ten did not allow its member schools to have freshman competition with other universities. Michigan State had to abide by the rule, but Michigan Tech, Denver, Colorado College, North Dakota could have freshman competition since their respective conferences sanctioned it.

Last weekend at Minneapolis, the WCHA's member coaches, athletic directors and WCHA officials met to discuss ways of bettering the hockey conference.

It was the first time that the athletic directors had been asked to attend such a meeting.

Discussion centered on any rule changes that might be needed for the coming season. There were no rule changes, however, and it was agreed that the WCHA would follow closely the NCAA rules.

An important problem was resolved, however, that could tighten up the gap of inequality among member schools in the conference. It was decided that the commissioner of the WCHA, Jerry Carle, athletic director of Colorado College, could appoint an impartial faculty representative board to handle disciplinary actions if the involved school did not make a decision or if an appeal was made.

The WCHA commissioner can now take a more active role in the affairs of the WCHA. In the past the commissioner only arranged schedules and signed officials.

"We now have better communication between each of the schools and within the conference," said MSU's Hockey Coach Amo Besone, who attended the WCHA meeting with Athletic Director Biggie Munn.

"We now have the mechanics for making this a better, more organized conference."

The decision for an impartial faculty board resulted after two players had received different disciplinary measures for the same penalty—hitting a referee.

One player was suspended from competition for the entire year, while the other was suspended for only one game.

Hopefully, the member coaches of the WCHA will continue to take action toward bettering the WCHA and solving many of its inequality problems.

Ruling appealed by Clay

HOUSTON (UPI)-- Former heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, undefeated in the boxing ring, served formal notice Wednesday he and his lawyers would try to break his losing streak in the courtroom.

Clay, accompanied by attorneys Hayden Covington and Quinlan Hodges, filed notice of appeal in the U.S. District Court Clerk's Office to his five-year prison sentence and $10,000 fine levied Tuesday for refusing induction into the U.S. Army.

The onetime champ, in a jovial mood despite Tuesday's court decision, spoke mostly of boxing to reporters in the courthouse and had to be urged by his lawyers to go into the clerk's office and sign the $5,000 appeal bond that kept him out of jail.

Pro baseball drafts 3 returning Spartans

Major league baseball teams passed up the top MSU seniors but selected three underclassmen in the college baseball draft earlier this month.

Seniors Bill Steckley and John Walters, the leading hitters on the 1967 team were overlooked, as was senior pitcher Dick Kenney.

But the Baltimore Orioles selected pitcher Gary Smith, a junior last year, and the Detroit Tigers chose junior first baseman Tom Binkowski and sophomore pitcher Mel Behney, all of whom are eligible for next year.

Steckley was a first team selection to both the All-Big Ten and NCAA District Four teams, while Walters was a third team All-Big Ten selection.

"I don't think any of them will sign," MSU Coach Danny Little said.

If any of the draftees do sign, it would be the second straight year that a potential Spartan returnee was taken away from Little while he was the pros.

Jim Blight, a pitcher who was expected to be MSU's top pitcher this season was drafted and signed by the Tigers last year.

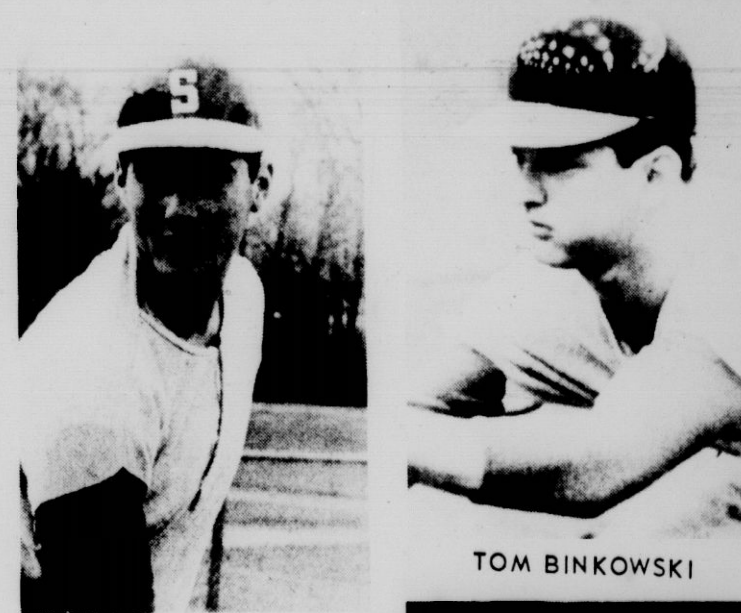

Binkowski, a third team All-Big Ten selection, led the Spartans in home runs and doubles this past season and accumulated a .265 batting average.

He tied for the top fielding

Joyce loses in NCAA golf

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)--Martha Wilkinson of California State College in Fullerton Wednesday assured there would be a new women's national college golf champion when she sank a 15-foot putt on the 18th hole to oust defending titlist Joyce Kazmierski of Michigan State.

Miss Wilkinson will face Pat Reeves of Lamar Institute of Technology, Beaumont, Tex., in Thursday's quarterfinals. Miss Reeves advanced with 6 and 5 victory over Beverly King of the University of Oregon.

average on the team (.980) while handling the most chances and recording the most putouts of any Spartan.

Behney, a lefthander from Verona, N.J., was 4-3 in '67 with a 2.59 earned run average, third best among Spartan pitchers.

Behney led the MSU pitching staff in innings pitched with 69-1/3 and recorded one shutout.

A Smith from MSU seems to be popular for Baltimore's professional sports teams. Spartan football All-American Charles (Bubba) Smith was drafted by both the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League and the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball League.

Gary, the Orioles' draftee, transferred to MSU from Alpena Junior College. He was 3-5 for the Spartans in 1967 and had an unimpressive 5.15 ERA, the highest among Spartan starters.

Top berths at stake in AAU track meet

BAKERSFIELD, CALIF. (UPI)--Berths on national teams for a flock of summer meets will be at stake in the two-day national AAU Track and Field Championships beginning Thursday night at the Bakersfield Memorial Stadium.

At stake are spots on the 60-man, 30-woman U.S. Team which will take on a combined 37-National Commonwealth team in Los Angeles, July 8-9; places in the Pan-American Game Trials at Minneapolis July 14-15; plus berths on the Americas vs. Europe Meet at the Canadian World Exposition and a 50-member European touring team.

Eight finals are on Thursday's schedule—in the 440-yard hurdles, 120-yard high hurdles, 100-yard dash, three-mile run, hammer throw, long jump, high jump and discus throw.

MSU's Bob Steele will be competing in the AAU Meet. He recently won the NCAA intermediate hurdles championships.

Friday's program lists finals in 11 more events. Most of Saturday will be spent by officials selecting the various teams. Three individuals will be chosen for each event in the AAU Championships for the Commonwealth meet, plus a relay team.

Then come the Pan-Am trials, followed by the Expo 67 meet at Montreal on Aug. 19-20, and the World Student Games at Tokyo, Aug. 26-Sept. 5.

For the latter meet, the U.S. squad will be determined by results at the AAU championships but will be limited to those under 28 years of age, college undergraduates and those out of college no more than two years.

Top track and field stars who are competing include world shot put record holder Randy Matson, distance king Gerry Lindgren, running only in the three-mile, world mile record holder Jim Ryun, world record holder Ralph Boston in the long jump, world record holder Bob Seagren in the pole vault and Ron Whitney, who has the world's fastest time in the 440 hurdles this year, a snappy 50.1.

The veteran Jim Grelle takes on Ryun in the mile in what should amount to the top race of the two-day show. The 100-yard dash is another event with most of the world's best entered, including Charlie Greene, Jim Hines, Willie Turner and high school phenomenon Billy Gaines.

Bakersfield Memorial Stadium boasts one of the fastest tracks in the world. The AAU championships have been held in the stadium three times previously—in 1956, 1958 and 1960—during which time five world marks have been established along with 20 American records.

Two sell rubber stamps cross-country in a trailer

By BEV TWITCHELL
Executive Reporter

Two guys, a puppy and a 1941 trailer will leave for "California or bust" today.

Pete Ellsworth, East Lansing junior, and Pierce Myers, Moline, Ill., junior, have been planning a summer trip to California since fall term. The purpose: to sell rubber stamps.

Why the dog? "She's a traveling companion," Myers said. "I'm going to get sick of Pete."

The trailer, purchased last week, has been transformed from a big green monster to a traveling workshop, painted fraternity colors, yellow and blue, and decorated with signs reading: "Michigan State University, Delta Tau Delta, Pete and Pierce," "California or Bust," and "Beware of Wild Dog."

One-half of the trailer has been completely remodeled. The sofa, shelves and a chest of drawers were torn out, an orange carpet was laid, the ceiling papered, a wrap-around workbench built and a type cabinet, press, stereo, fluorescent lights and fraternity paddles added.

"It's probably the plushiest workshop anyone ever had," Ellsworth said.

The 3,300-pound trailer will be pulled cross country and through the Rockies by Myers' 3,000-pound Falcon Sports Coup.

"Everyone, from fraternity brothers to the owner of the world's largest stamp shop says we'll flop," Ellsworth said, "and I think they're all crazy."

The plan is to stop in areas surrounded by small towns, sell rubber stamps during the day, make them at night, deliver them the next day and travel during the weekends.

"... until we get to California," Myers explained, "then we're going to learn how to surf, and we're taking Pete's water skis and my golf clubs."

Some $1,200 has already been spent preparing for the trip, and Myers and Ellsworth hope to sell enough rubber stamps to break even and perhaps profit. The stamps and pads sell for about $2.50 and $3.00, which means at least 100 stamps would have to be sold each week. But they think their shop will be competitive with any other stamp shop.

Ellsworth, who ran a rubber stamp shop in high school, will serve as productions and sales manager. Myers will be the accountant and maintenance man while learning the business from Ellsworth.

"Pete knows the ins and outs of the business—I hope," Myers said. "I've never made a rubber stamp in my life—but I had printing in the seventh grade."

The business venture will last only six weeks, with four weeks spent getting to California, and the rest spent vacationing. Then Ellsworth, vice chairman of the ASMSU Student Board, will fly back to attend the National Student Association Congress in Maryland, and Myers, president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, will drive to Cape Cod to work for the rest of the summer. They hope to sell the trailer and the business in California.

And their parents: "A good experience, my dad says," Myers said, "only he calls it crazy." "My dad just says we're crazy," Ellsworth added.

Campus dairy facilities prove inadequate for 'U'

By LARRY WERNER
State News Managing Editor

Too little Moo in an ever-expanding "U" was cited by MSU Treasurer Phillip J. May as the major factor necessitating the purchase of processed dairy products for the University from an outside producer.

B.S. Schweigert, chairman of the Food Science Dept., announced May 11 that the University dairy store and processing plant would close July 1. And on June 15, the board of trustees approved a one-year contract with Heatherwood Farms of Lansing to provide the University with milk products.

The cows responsible for Michigan State's famous nickname are no longer sufficient to supply a campus of nearly 40,000 with dairy goods.

"As we've grown in size, our own dairy was faced with expansion if it hoped to continue supplying our milk," May said. "The operation has been becoming more and more commercial and less teaching and research."

"We just reached the point where we should buy our processed milk from an outside firm. Our herds could only supply about 10 per cent of our unprocessed milk, and we were buying about 90 per cent from farmers."

The Heatherwood bid amounted to $545,833.14, $36,742 less than the next lowest bid. May estimated that the University will realize a savings of about $100,000 by purchasing the milk from an outside firm, as opposed to processing it in the MSU plants.

"We did very well on this bid," May said.

Students and dairy employees have voiced disapproval of the decision to close the dairy store. It has been a favorite source of ice cream cones and other dairy products for years.

However, according to May, it is no longer economically feasible to continue operation of the store and processing facilities.

May pointed out that former employees of the MSU dairy are finding other jobs. The milk produced by the University's herds will be sold to commercial processing plants.

There will be no change in services or milk prices for students, May said.

Atlanta analyzes race strife

ATLANTA, Ga. — City officials and community leaders tried Wednesday to analyze the city's latest racial disorder, but failed to find immediately any clearly defined answers.

Atlanta has seen four nights of violence, including one death, despite a comprehensive program to combat racial unrest.

Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. announced a meeting Wednesday of the executive committee of the Community Relations Commission to seek ways of restoring order to the troubled Dixie Hills section of west Atlanta.

Also asked to attend were several Negro legislators, including State Sen. Leroy Johnson, who has played a leading role in efforts to ease tensions.

Johnson said an appeal would be made to residents to come forth and say to those taking part in violence, "We don't want any part of that."

He said young Negroes in the area were circulating a petition condemning "those persons who have come into our community to cause riots and turmoil."

An uneasy calm prevailed in Dixie Hills Wednesday afternoon, although police said a gasoline bomb was tossed on top of a supermarket. Within minutes a Negro policeman extinguished the blaze.

This week's outbreaks began Saturday night with a brief flare-up. Tension increased Sunday when Stokely Carmichael, former chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and leading advocate of "black power," was arrested in the area for failing to heed an officer's command to move on.

The violence reached a peak Tuesday night when a Negro man was killed and several other Negroes wounded by gunfire of undetermined origin.

Michigan's Fleming tells plans

But he said, "It seems quite apparent that the present budget recommended by Governor Romney, if unchanged, will have serious effects on higher education in Michigan."

In response to a query on student activism and demonstrations around the nation, Fleming said he felt the major cause of unrest on college campuses was opposition to the Vietnam war.

"This is the group that will be drafted and this is the group which has the strongest sentiments against the war," he said. Fleming expressed ambivalence over Congressional passage of a bill to update the draft law, noting that there will be inequities in any system.

"Since the United States is not involved in an all-out war, we should defer certain kinds of people of college age to most effectively allocate our resources. But at the same time it will create cleavages in our society if just those who go to college are deferred," he said.

Fleming was referring to a section in proposed law pending presidential approval, that would grant deferments to all undergraduate students.

The president-designate was also questioned about how he might deal with the problem of drugs and narcotics at U-M. Fleming said other than marijuana, the use of drugs on college campuses is quite exaggerated.

"While I cannot speak for the situation at U-M, at the University of Wisconsin the student newspaper took a position favoring the legalization of marijuana, but I don't think it is a majority view there. For example, there have been almost no cases of the actual use of LSD at Wisconsin. And I know of no campus that wants to legalize other more dangerous drugs."

Fleming said he personally opposed the legalization of marijuana, claiming that there is evidence that those tied to the marijuana business are also involved with more dangerous drugs.

BREAKS 97-YEAR SILENCE

AMA liberalizes abortion policy

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The American Medical Association (AMA), breaking a 97-year silence, adopted Wednesday a liberal official policy on abortion.

The policy, adopted with a minimum of opposition, goes much further than the vast majority of states which permit abortion only to save the life of the mother.

The AMA favors abortion also when pregnancy is the result of rape or incest, threatens the mental or physical health of the mother, and when the infant would be born with incapacitating physical deformities or mental deficiencies.

Abortion has long been a dilemma for physicians. The AMA said that approximately 10,000 abortions are performed in hospitals each year.

"Few of these are necessary to save the mother's life," it added.

"American medicine is therefore confronted with a situation whereby conscientious practitioners performing therapeutic abortions for reasons other than those posing a direct threat to the life of the mother are acting contrary to existing laws."

The report was adopted by the 242-member House of Delegates, the policy making body of the 215,000-physician organization.

For an abortion to be performed under the guidelines set down Wednesday, documented medical evidence should be presented and two other physicians should concur with the patient's doctor on its necessity, the AMA said. Also, the operation should be performed in an accredited hospital.

Romney commends Boys' State attitudes

Urging participation and responsibility in the great problems of the future, Governor George Romney addressed over 1,200 Boys' State seated on the Capitol steps Wednesday morning.

Romney rapped "hypocritical adults who talk about principles and responsibilities but don't live them" and younger people who use drugs and long hair to indicate their rebellion against society.

"You are not that type," he told the boys who started marching at 8:30 a.m. "You are here because you want to be involved and I congratulate you for making a contribution to society."

Romney's speech ended the boys' eight days of meetings at Brody Complex.

Linking freedom to responsibility, Romney said that "as a result of developments to considerable extent beyond our control, people around the world are getting the idea that we are aggressive."

He stressed the universality of the Boys' State's responsibility by citing the challenge of Americans to convince people we want them to be free just as we are free.

Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken gave a short speech preceding Romney's 13-minute oration.

Israel warned

U.S. intelligence sources say the Russians are believed to have delivered 50 MIG jet fighters and some tanks since the war ended. Israel claimed Egypt lost 357 planes and about 600 tanks.

Outside the assembly hall there were other additional developments on the Middle East situation.

--Diplomatic activity heightened, with Secretary of State Dean Rusk arranging a night working session with Gromyko, after a series of private huddles with other foreign ministers. But there was still no announcement of a meeting between Kosygin and President Johnson.

--French President Charles de Gaulle accused Israel of starting the war with the Arabs June 5. There has been no Arab criticism in the assembly of France for supplying Israel with weapons of war, including jet warplanes.

Orientation

The orientation program is basically the same as that used last year; however the staff of Spartan Aides has been increased to 33. Spartan Aides are students who serve as resident advisers, guides and academic counselors.

Only students directly involved with the orientation program are allowed to enter Wonders Hall.

Planning and coordinating the summer orientations is a year-round job for the office of the Vice President for Special Projects, Gordon A. Sabine. Directing this year's orientation program is Thomas Goodale, and John and Peggy Welty are serving as head advisers for the program.

Tax package

Tuesday Romney reiterated the need for some type of fiscal reform to a group of student leaders from the state's four biggest universities. The group had asked for a bipartisan effort to enact fiscal reforms to prevent massive cutbacks in higher education appropriations.

The governor told them that he thought his original recommendations were sufficient, but failed to mention the revised austerity budget.
