

New NSA chief urges greater student voice

By JAMES SPANIOLO
State News Editor-in-Chief

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—Edward Schwartz, former national affairs vice president of the National Student Assn. (NSA), was elected president Tuesday at the 20th NSA Congress.

Schwartz was elected on the second ballot, 230-210, with 10 abstentions, defeating Sam Brown, a Harvard divinity student and chairman of the National Supervisory Board for NSA.

Ruth Bauman, a delegate from the University of Michigan, received 76 votes during the first balloting, but then pledged her votes to give Schwartz a majority on the second ballot.

The Michigan region voted 16-15 in favor of Brown. The MSU delegation voted 5-3 in favor of Brown.

"The central priority of NSA must be the priority of building and helping students do what they want to do," Schwartz said following his victory.

"In the past, we have relied on political action," he said, "but the government has not been responsive. We must build new coalitions to achieve change."

Schwartz was referring to the need for the formation of student unions, which he claims would be more democratic and responsive to student demands than have been student governments in the past.

"The role of NSA is to help students build these coalitions now," Schwartz said, "whether this takes a year, five years or a lifetime."

In an unexpected move, the NSA Congress voted late Monday against adopting a new resolution on Vietnam, thus retaining last year's resolution.

There was speculation Tuesday, however, that efforts would be made to amend or reconsider the present Vietnam resolution, which called for a prompt cease-fire and withdrawal of all foreign troops to permit socio-economic development and expression of the Vietnamese popular will.

Following three hours of debate, the delegates rejected a more radical proposal which called for immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam in favor of a more moderate resolution recommending United Nations intervention.

Supporters of the stronger Vietnam resolution, including Schwartz and Brown, opposed the moderate resolution, claiming it was not as strong or as encompassing as last year's position.

After all amendments to strengthen the moderate resolution were rejected, one delegate suggested that since the resolution didn't go far enough, it should be rejected to retain the Vietnam resolution presently on the books.

Then, delegates voted to reject the moderate resolution, 216-149 with 20 abstentions. The Michigan region voted 19-3 against the moderate resolution.

Schwartz said, "This just goes to show how complicated the Vietnam issue is, when this Congress can't reach real agreement."

It further recommended an immediate end to the bombing on both North and South Vietnam, an end to all offensive military operations, and recognition of the National Liberation Front as a separate party to any negotiations.

Speaking against the moderate resolution, Schwartz said, "Last year's resolution contained historical perspective and analysis which this one does not. It is apparent that the UN would not be effective, it is the responsibility of the U.S. to change its policy because it is causing the war."

The stronger Vietnam resolution, rejected by the delegates, condemned U.S. policies in Vietnam, blaming the U.S. for current developments there, and would have called for NSA to work with any and all anti-war groups.

Both this resolution and the more moderate one were adopted as minority reports.

Earlier in the day, the Congress approved resolutions on urban unrest and faculty rights.

The urban unrest resolution related closely with the controversial Black Power statement approved earlier by the Congress. It said in part, "In attacking problems of the ghetto, 'it is imperative that the people of the ghetto take the lead in all decision-making.'"

It also stated that all housing developments should be on a cooperative basis, with prospective occupants having a voice in their planning.

The concept of community schools was also endorsed, whereby local residents participate in the schools' policy-making, including hiring and firing of principals and faculty.

Reverberations from the Black Power resolution were still being felt later in the day. Delegates decided to delete the vote tally of specific schools on the resolution which affirmed "the unification of all black peoples in America for their liberation by any means necessary."

Russians report U.S. jets hit Hanoi for 2nd time

SAIGON (AP)—Russian correspondents Tuesday reported U.S. jets attacked Hanoi for the second day.

The Soviet news agency Tass said "a densely populated area in the eastern part of the city" was severely damaged.

There was no immediate comment from American authorities.

The raids in the North Vietnamese heartland in and above the Hanoi-Haiphong area are expected to be stepped up despite a mounting toll of men and planes.

U.S. Air Force officers expressed belief Tuesday that intensification of air strikes around Hanoi and along the railroads leading into Red China is severely hurting North Vietnam's capacity for war.

"Hammer, hammer, hammer with everything you can because you know it hurts them," a high-ranking officer said. "I know they're beaten. The question is: When are they going to quit?"

The U.S. Command disclosed that six planes and eight crewmen were lost in 132 multiplane strike missions over the North Monday. These included two A6 Navy Intruder jets and the two-man crews that officials said were downed across Red China's border while trying to escape MIG attacks.

A helicopter rescued Cmdr. Robin H. McGlohn and Lt. James M. McIlrath, both of San Diego, Calif., after flak wrecked their Navy F4B Phantom on a bridge-bombing mission northeast of Haiphong.

The loss of the six planes increased to 653 the total officially listed as destroyed over the North. The highest one-day toll was last Dec. 2, when eight went down with 13 crewmen.

Red China called the border crossing of the two intruders "an apparent provocation of war against the Chinese people." The incident—the ninth such of the war—came at a time when the bombing of targets close to the frontier had brought a fresh round of criticism from some quarters in the United States.

Although there was scattered ground fighting inside South Vietnam, there was no major sustained action. This is not unusual in spite of the fact there were 38 allied operations of battalion size or larger going on across the country.

$70.1 billion for defense okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved a record-breaking $70.1 billion annual defense spending bill Tuesday after learning that additional billions may be needed later for the Vietnam war.

Passage, after a nine-hour session that stretched through the dinner hour, came on an 85-3 vote. Opposing votes were Sens. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Stephen Young, D-Ohio, all outspoken critics of American policy in Asia.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., floor manager of the largest single appropriation in history, said the defense bill would not eliminate the need for more money for Vietnam later.

Earlier in the day, the Senate rejected efforts to reduce or revise the bill.

DELHI COMMUNITY PLANNED

'U' staff may retire to a 'Shangri-la'

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer

Imagine a sort of Shangri-la for older folks, a mile or two from the university they helped operate for so long and watched grow and grow and grow.

They would live and relax together with former co-workers in a community they built themselves, situated on an 80-acre plot near a small town like Holt.

But this retirement housing would be just part of a much larger plan to provide mutual care so that each member could enjoy independence.

The over-all plan would include:
—infirmary care for those beyond hospitalization with disabling conditions like strokes, heart attacks or Parkinson's disease;

—executive services to manage and distribute estates of deceased members by established banks and trust companies;

—a nursing home facility for those, who because of age or wear, have lost their grip on present reality;

—resorts in the South and North for those who wish to get away for awhile;

—guardianship services to manage and distribute estates for members who become too incompetent to manage their own affairs.

Two years ago all of this seemed just a dream to a handful of officers of the Cavanagh, Detroit police sign 'milestone' bargaining pact

DETROIT (AP) — Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh signed Tuesday "a milestone in labor relations" — a collective bargaining agreement between the city and its police force. Cavanagh called it the first such agreement in the nation.

The apparent breakthrough in police labor relations came after a year of frequently hard-fought negotiation between city officials and the 3,300-member Detroit Police Officers Association.

The contract, however, is limited to noneconomic matters and commits both sides to binding arbitration in any un-

MSU Employees Credit Union, But slowly and surely that dream is becoming a reality.

One of the first steps towards "Shangri-la" (please turn to page 7) resolved grievance. It also is subject to annual review — and still faces action by Detroit's Common Council, probably next week.

Al Leggat, city labor relations director, said, however, that he anticipated no problems in submitting the agreement to the council.

"I'd say it has a 100 per cent chance of approval," he said.

Police Commissioner Ray Girardin, a Cavanagh appointee, said he also expected the council would approve the agreement.

Hours implementation lags

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

Hiring night receptionists to implement the new women's hours proposal has resulted in "very concerned" hall managers and "lots of open positions," reported Kay White, Residence Hall Programs staff member in charge of interviewing applicants, Tuesday.

With about three weeks remaining before the new selective hours become effective, not enough night receptionists have been hired, despite advertising in the Towne Courier and the State News.

Notices have also been sent to present and future Owen Hall graduate residents, religious advisers, and Spartan Wives. "I don't know what we'll do if we don't get enough applicants," Miss White said. "Hall managers are very concerned because they know head advisors will need time to train the receptionists."

Implementation of the new hours policy calls for about 50 night receptionists for the 23 women's residence halls.

Five receptionists would work for two residence halls, with four working three nights each and the other one working two nights and serving as an alternative. Miss White cited the "tight Lansing labor market" as a possible explanation for the lack of applicants.

"There are just too many openings for job-seekers here," she said. "And when the University has to compete with Oldsmobile offering $3.00 an hour and up, it's hard to find capable people."

The $1.85 part-time receptionist job has attracted individuals from every eligible category, Miss White said. Applicants have ranged from married men to female graduate students and women in the community. More women than men have applied.

"We're looking for more than just a student or receptionist," she stressed.

"We need a person mature and responsible enough to help the hall advisory staff."

"They've got to be a good judge of what types of situations they can handle and what they can defer to the head advisor."

Miss White said that she has interviewed 15 applicants, while hall managers have interviewed others on their own. Both the hall manager and Miss White eventually talk to applicants, with the head resident advisor also participating.

The fact that most head advisors won't return to campus until early September also complicates matters, she said.

"We need to work out the hiring with both the hall manager and head advisor," she emphasized. "The hall manager will pay her salary, while the advisor will be training and working closely with the receptionist."

Implementation has prompted numerous questions about proposed systems in each residence hall, Miss White said.

"None of the implementation steps was mentioned in the final hours proposal," she explained. "The last portion did mention that from a safety point of view, residence hall doors must be secured after University closing hours."

Some typical questions have included: Should girls both check-in and check-out? How will the receptionist tell the difference between a freshman and upper-classman? What door will girls use for entry?

Miss White said that all these questions will be discussed at the advisory staff workshop beginning Sept. 6.

Frosh, tired from testing, eye more social activities

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a three part series on MSU's freshman summer orientation program.

By LARRY WERNER
State News Managing Editor

Although some may disagree, the freshmen who have been channeled through the mechanics of orientation are actually "typical" of seasoned Michigan State students: they prefer social activities to academics and trust fellow students as opposed to faculty and administration.

"I don't think we should have seven hours of testing," said Marsha Gostlin of Kalamazoo. "By evening, I was exhausted. There's not enough free time."

Marsha's companion, John Abajace of Washington, Pa., agreed. "Everything is too planned," he said.

The couple then finished their cokes, left the Wonders Hall grill and returned to the orientation mixer.

The consensus opinion of incoming freshmen seems to regard the first day of placement tests as just "too much."

Several students suggested dividing the testing between the first two days.

"The whole day of testing is bad planning," said Bev Padratz of St. Louis. "I'd like to get the tests over with, but I think performance would be better if they were split up."

It has been suggested that orientation is not intellectually-oriented. College is initially academics, some say. There should be more academics in orientation. Many freshmen would disagree with this point.

"If they set orientation at a high intellectual level, they would miss a lot of the students," was the opinion of Nancy Howe from Watervliet.

Bill Foren of Bloomfield Hills agreed with Nancy. "They cover both academic and social areas," he said. "If they go into academics, they can really get deep."

When 18-year-olds, fresh from the personalized atmosphere of high school, enter a multiversity, bureaucratic confusion is inevitable. Instead of the simple automatic rule of a high school principal, the university newcomer is faced with deans, associate deans, associate professors, special assistants and on down the bureaucratic brick road.

And how does the young Spartan contend with the multiversity melee? He turns to his friendly Spartan Aide, of course. As fellow students, Spartan Aides are considered the best sources of information.

Brian Bird, a Muskegon member of the new James Madison College, summed up the general freshman feeling on finding out what really is at MSU.

"Whatever administrators try to do to paint a favorable image, the Spartan Aides counteract this, and give you the (please turn to the back page)

NSA resolutions: the test

In a wave of zealous liberalism, the 20th National Student Assn. Congress, meeting at the University of Maryland, has drafted strongly-worded legislation in the areas of the draft, student power and Black Power.

In brief, the Congress did the following:

--Advocated the abolition of the Selective Service System, except in the case of national emergency.

--Declared that all students have the "intrinsic right and responsibility" to govern themselves and regulate their lives in colleges and universities. Also, students should play a joint role with the faculty and administration governing virtually all academic and non-academic areas.

--Declared that "Black Power is the unification of all black people in America for their liberation by any means necessary."

Besides making these resolutions, the Congress also mandated the permanent NSA staff to organize programs to support these resolutions.

The wisdom of two of these resolutions seems a bit questionable.

The "any means necessary" clause in the Black Power resolution, in essence, would support the anarchy and destruction that has ravaged our cities this summer. It has a hollow ring to it, for it appears that the delegates who supported it are paying lip service to a violence-if-necessary credo that most of them really don't condone.

It's a simplistic concept, whose advocates admit that they can't come to terms with more rational approaches to improving race relations and combating the ghettos.

The resolution on student power overlooks the progress presently being made in the area of greater student participation in university affairs. It demands everything now, and seems a bit presumptuous when it calls for joint student, faculty and administrators determination in such areas as hiring and dismissal of faculty, administrative policies, financial aid policies, and building and grounds planning.

But the content of the resolutions are secondary to the major issue that has been splintering the congress since it first met last week.

The two key questions are: Is issue-area legislation a legitimate function of the congress, and does such legislation accomplish anything?

If you make the assumption that NSA is a truly representative body, then it can be argued that these resolutions are undemocratic. They don't voice the opinion of U.S. students in general.

Few delegates to the congress would claim that these resolutions represent anything more than the views of the delegates. NSA is a federation of student government leaders and not a representative body of U.S. students.

Nonetheless, their views are important and are listened to, just as any other vocal segment of the nation is listened to.

But resolutions, in themselves, are useless. The crucial point is whether they will be implemented by student leaders, once they return to their campuses.

It is helpful to mandate the NSA staff to pursue specific programs, such as the anti-draft movement and investigation into the problems of Negroes. But to leave the implementation of resolutions solely to the national office will accomplish little.

The real work starts after the congress ends. The major contribution of the national office is to coordinate the different campus programs and to establish a network of communications between the member campuses. But the national office cannot be depended upon for leadership. --The Editors

PUSH FOR RISE

Carmakers eye sales

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—In Detroit, where the seasons refer to automobiles as much as to the weather, the telltale signs of fall are fast approaching. In one nine-day period between Sept. 14 and Sept. 22 the nation's Big Four automakers will begin selling their new models, but already the tension is building with preview showings. This isn't going to be an ordinary season.

To begin with, seldom have the automakers planned a season with as much care. Having suffered two long and difficult years they are determined to make this an exceptional one.

To condition themselves for the new season they began model changeovers earlier than in most years. And their introduction of the 1968 models is scheduled to be the earliest in the past few years.

The one thing that sends a chill down the fastback of the industry is the possibility of a strike, a very real possibility this year against at least one of the Big Three.

Negotiations for a new contract are now underway, but a strike deadline of Sept. 6 is approaching fast.

Barring a strike, the experts say sales could exceed nine million cars, imports included. This would be an improvement of about 500,000 cars, but the domestic makers might get a larger share of this increase at the expense of imports. Plus factors that automakers count on to lift sales:

--Dealer inventories of old cars are lower than they were at this time a year ago.

--Safety features, the absence of which might have caused some customers to postpone buying 1967 models, are installed on most of this year's cars.

--Foreign competition in the U.S. market might not be as severe this year because some foreign makers are finding it more expensive to adapt to the new safety standards.

--People are loaded with cash this year, having saved as much as 6.5 per cent of their take home pay through much of the year.

Says Romney failed education

To the Editor:

I have been keeping close tabs on the current controversy over the new tuition scale since the system was adopted. At first, I chose not to get involved since I would pay the required tuition here at MSU no matter what the price. No one is coercing anyone to attend MSU; so if you do not like the new system because it discriminates against your economic class, then go to another school, possibly the U of M, where the average income of parents is in the $16,000-$20,000 range.

The real problem here is the lack of responsible leadership to education in Michigan by the governor of our beloved state, George Romney. It is the duty and responsibility of the governor to create the operating budget for the state. In his budget, Romney must utilize priorities in determining where funds will be appropriated. Since Romney has been governor, education has been far down on the list of priorities, especially this year.

It seems that Romney looks upon higher education as something that should be hard to obtain economically. Romney has attempted to pass his failures upon the legislature for his lack of responsible leadership. Romney sees institutions of higher education in Michigan in need of more finances because the legislature failed to come through on fiscal reform earlier than it did.

Even if the legislature, which has a Republican majority in both houses, would have passed fiscal reform earlier, Romney still would have slighted higher education because of his priority values. Even now he could revise his budget so as to appropriate more funds for higher education, if he so desired.

Since Romney failed in responsible leadership, he threw this problem upon the trustees of MSU. The Democratic trustees have demonstrated responsible leadership, following the MSU tradition of innovation, by approving the new system. This system does discriminate against economic class, but I'm sure the $167 increase won't break the backs of most middle class MSU students. Maybe we will just have to cut down on our partying, smokes, and the Gables on the weekend.

Inasmuch as Romney has failed education in Michigan, we should observe where he stands at present. As of last Friday he is still slighting education. Let us not lose our tempers like Romney did on Friday when accused by Mrs. Riordan, President of the Detroit Federation of Teachers, of failure of responsible leadership in Michigan education.

Let us not like George Romney turn flushed faced and with his voice shaking with anger, retort to the University by stating as he did "You know you said some very harsh things and you said some very untrue things."

Fees not yet workable

To the Editor:

The new ability-to-pay tuition plan is, I am sure, a conscientious attempt to find a workable solution to a very difficult problem, but as a part-time student, I am forced to wonder if all the exceptions to the "rules" don't make the solution a very bitter pill to swallow!

It seems to me that almost by definition, a part-time student is one who is working either to support a family or to struggle to meet the fee demands for an education. With the new plan, I am told, however, this same student is required to pay his fees on a sliding scale based on the MAXIMUM INCOME.

After eight years, I am returning to school for my senior undergraduate year --hoping to earn the bachelor's degree. We have three small children, and I was very excited with the accomplishment and pleasure of the 12 credits I have earned here so far to this end. Taking one or two courses a quarter, I was able to enjoy my family responsibilities and take added pleasure in school in my "spare time."

But the five credit course I planned to take in the fall will cost not the former $57.00, but $81.00 now! My husband is on the faculty here working full time, but trying to take a few courses toward a graduate degree too. His one course would also be $81.00. Our family income would qualify us for the minimum fee if we were full-time students.

I will not be a "part-time" mother in order to go to school full time (and thus have the fee reduction), even if we could find, trust and pay a baby-sitter for the required number of hours.

The overwhelming amount of administrative headaches must, I think, be increased to include the part-time student if the effort being made is genuine to spread the costs over the ability to pay of the students--unless some students "are more equal than others"...

I can't help but feel that a fee raise per credit hour would have been less costly to the university, and have created less antagonism and outcry among students, parents, friends and alumni. But something new is being attempted, and many problems were unforeseen or casually dealt with.

Because the plan is difficult doesn't mean that it is unworkable, but there are many angles--in short, many human problems that, by the very nature of the plan, must be yet considered before the solution can be called workable.

East Lansing's Mayor Gordon Thomas will change the city's name to "Spartantown, U.S.A." for 10 days this fall.

Cooperating with the Chamber of Commerce's plans to stage a 10-day "welcoming festival" for MSU students, the mayor consented to change the town's name at Monday night's city council meeting.

Herb Ashley, executive director of the chamber, also asked that a representative from the city be appointed to work with the chamber on the welcome week.

Thomas immediately appointed William Kostick, assistant to the city manager, whom he called "an excellent representative."

ASMSU gave their official support to the program last week when Greg Hopkins, chairman, said he favored the idea.

Because Hopkins and other board members are attending the National Student Association (NSA) Congress at the University of Maryland this week, ASMSU representatives will wait until their return to work out details.

Other council action included setting Sept. 18 as the public hearing date for Alpha Xi Delta sorority. The sorority wants to rezone its present house and annex an additional building for multiple dwelling.

Hawks attack Senate critics of Viet bombing step-up

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Advocates of intensified bombing blanketed Senate critics Tuesday with a barrage of assertions that the way to win the war is to pound North Vietnam military targets into rubble.

Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, keyed a hawk assault on the doves with testimony that air strikes against North Vietnam had thwarted an enemy plan to "cut South Vietnam in half."

He underscored this with the assertion before the Senate preparedness subcommittee that without the use of air power "perhaps more than 800,000 additional American fighting men would have been needed in Vietnam, at a cost of $75 billion more than already has been spent."

"Airpower, in affording this advantage, exerts the influence that is most likely to force the enemy to reconsider his avowed hard line," McConnell added.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the subcommittee followed this up with a news conference assertion that the downing of two U.S. warplanes in Communist China should be no reason for reinstating restrictions recently relaxed on air strikes in the north.

Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, called in a statement for "bombing of targets with maximum military significance."

Miller told his Republican colleagues they will be courting political disaster if they nominate a "peace party" slate in next year's presidential elections.

Sen. Clifford P. Chase, R-N.J., who opposes expansion of the bombing, told the Senate that by his course President Johnson is "feeding the unfortunate illusion that victory is to be found in the north, rather than in the south." He said that, recognizing this, the Saigon military regime has ignored U.S. demands for civil reforms.

Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., an administration backer, replied that South Vietnam is progressing toward representative government and must not waver in its efforts.

McGee said American action had produced notable improvements in "the feeling and outlook" of other countries in the area.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., a frequent critic of the President's policies, announced he will seek repeal of the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution endorsing the use by Johnson of all necessary means to meet Communist aggression.

Marine Sgt. Jimmie E. Howard, wearing the Medal of Honor for valor in the Vietnam fighting, sat listening in the gallery as Morse spoke.

The Oregon Senator's move was generally regarded as a gesture. The President's critics and supporters both have said there is no remote chance of repealing the 1964 declaration.

FEDERAL INDICTMENT

Rap Brown wins $10,000 off bail

Two Black Power advocates--H. Rap Brown and George Washington Ware, faced high bonds and serious charges Tuesday.

Brown, the head of the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee, won a $10,000 reduction from his $25,000 bail in New York City, but was indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of carrying a .30 caliber carbine across state lines while under indictment.

It was not known Tuesday if Brown would immediately regain freedom.

Brown faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison and $2,000 fine on each count of the latter indictment.

Brown also faces charges in Alexandria, Va., for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, and in Maryland, for inciting riot and arson.

Ware, an aid to Stokely Carmichael, was jailed Tuesday in Nashville, Tenn., to await jury action on a Tennessee sedition charge. He was held in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Reuther pleads unity in tense auto talks

FLINT (AP) -- With a strike deadline only two weeks away, United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther urged workers Tuesday to "fight together" in contract negotiations with the automakers. He accused the companies of pushing toward a strike.

Pleading for unity, Reuther was picketed by about 50 UAW members as he arrived to speak at a union rally in this city where General Motors Corp. employs 70,000.

The UAW chief said, "Others have tried to divide this union and have failed. No worker can find answers to his problems in isolation."

The rally came only a few hours after General Motors became the first of the nation's major automakers to schedule its counterproposal to the union's money demands.

GM said only that it would submit its offer early next week. If the proposal gets on the bargaining table as early as Monday, only 10 days would be left before current three-year pacts between the union and the Big Three automakers expire Sept. 6.

Both sides agree that the first seven weeks of negotiations, which continue Wednesday, have yielded no progress in economic areas.

The UAW is demanding a substantial increase in the $3.41 average hourly wage, something on top of that for skilled tradesmen, parity for Canadian plant workers, and a form of guaranteed annual income. At the rally, Reuther told about 1,100 of the union's night shift workers in Flint that the UAW leaders would "do everything possible to avoid a strike."

But his main theme was unity and togetherness in the event of a strike.

Reuther said the union's 26-member International Executive Board would meet within 10 days to select a target company--the one on which the union will place the most pressure in an attempt to win a settlement that will set the pattern for the other two members of the Big Three.

Biafran troops fight key civil war battle

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Nigerian soldiers and Biafrans were locked in combat at the crossroad town of Ore Tuesday and federal spokesmen said the battle could decide the course of the seven-week civil war.

Each side was said to have thrown about 1,500 men into the fighting in a forested cocoa area 100 miles east of Lagos and 20 miles inside Nigeria's Western region.

Federal sources reported heavy casualties but said the Biafran advance was being blunted. The government troops were reinforced with 10 French-built armored cars carrying 90mm cannon.

"In the next 24 hours it could move one way or the other," a federal spokesman said. "It is clear the rebels are putting everything they have into a breakthrough into the West. If they don't break through, their alternative is total surrender."

The spokesman said the battle has involved nearly all the Biafran troops who had been in the Midwest region, taken over by pro-Biafran forces last week. Several companies of federal soldiers were reported advancing from the Northern region toward the Midwest capital of Benin in a move to cut off the Biafrans' escape route from Ore.

Eight American Peace Corps members were evacuated by truck to Ibadan, the Western capital, from Ondo and Okitipupa, two towns within 30 miles of Ore, Italian construction workers and Israeli technicians left projects in the area.

More than 200 miles to the east, federal troops were said to have fought their way to within 15 miles of the Biafran capital of Enugu in preparation for an all-out assault on the city. A French-built Biafran helicopter was reported shot down.

Federal forces invaded Nigeria's rebellious Eastern region in July after Eastern leaders climaxed months of tribal wrangling by proclaiming the Independent Republic of Biafra.

A Midwest radio broadcast said "Hausa vandals in army uniforms" were spreading panic among the people. The Hausa tribe of the North has opposed the Ibo tribe of the East in the civil war.

Unconfirmed reports said the Nigerian government was using planes to support its troops. There was no indication whether the planes included any of the 15 MIG15s Nigeria has received from the Soviet Union, the six Delfin aircraft sent by Czechoslovakia or the two British-built Provost fighters provided by Sudan.

Almost ready

The new Library wing, which will double floor space, seating capacity and volume of business, is expected to be ready Sept. 21, the start of fall term classes. The facility is part of a $4.3 million expansion.

Construction on schedule (sort of) for fall occupancy

With less than a month before the start of fall term, most of the summer's construction is on schedule.

The new administration building, originally scheduled to be ready in mid-February, is several weeks behind, and the new parking ramp will only be partly ready when fall term opens.

But Baker Hall, a classroom and office building near Psychology Research, will be ready and waiting.

"We'll start setting furniture Sept. 1," an official said.

The new language-math building, Wells Hall, will be completely occupied this fall. It is more than 96 per cent finished now.

Although there will be some uncompleted items, an official said, Holden Hall (the new residence hall in the South Complex) will be ready for occupancy fall term.

He said it is not anticipated that the unfinished portions of the building will interfere with students totally occupying the hall.

The new administration building is several weeks behind schedule, but not so far that the time cannot be recovered, officials said. The last slab of the roof is to be poured this week, and the penthouse remains to be built.

"We were once seven weeks behind on the library," one said, "but we made it up." The library addition is nearly finished. Catalog files still must be moved to the first floor of the new portion, but the books for the first and second floors have been moved in. The third and fourth floors were being readied Tuesday to receive books.

Workers will be doing some remodeling in the original building during the fall term, as originally scheduled, which should not interfere with library operations, officials said.

The parking ramp near the Computer Center will only be partly ready this fall because of trouble with some of the slabs. About 125 parking spaces in the basement, not reached by the main gate, will be ready at the beginning of the term.

Officials said they will be checking the schedule to see if construction on the ramp can be expedited.

Romney 'slips tongue' in Flint

MACKINAC ISLAND (AP)—Gov. George Romney, who told a Negro rally in Flint over the weekend that "there must be an occupancy ordinance in the state of Michigan," said Monday it was "a slip of the tongue."

The governor said, "We don't have to pass anything in Michigan, we've got it in our constitution." But, he added, "If anything develops to show we don't have it, we'll go and get it."

Romney said several court cases testing the open housing provision are pending. He said he is on the verge of asking the State Supreme Court to take over a case and make a ruling.

"We discussed the current situation and came to the understanding that the quickest way to get statewide open housing enforcement is to settle the cases now before the court," he said.

In his address to the Flint rally, Romney said, "I support the idea that there must be an open housing ordinance in the state of Michigan and also in the city of Flint."

Romney said Monday that in his enthusiasm he misspoke and that such a state measure would be unnecessary.

BOARD DEADLOCKS

Flint again rejects open housing law

FLINT (AP)—The Flint City Commission Monday night in effect again rejected the proposed open occupancy ordinance—the issue that has kept the city in a turmoil for the last week.

The city commissioners in a 4-4 vote refused to redraft an open occupancy proposal in line with a suggestion from City Attorney C.A. Forrest. The ordinance was defeated by the commission last week.

Negro Mayor Floyd McCree, who threatened to resign Monday after last week's commission meeting, was not at Monday's meeting. He has been hospitalized for exhaustion and a stomach ulcer since Wednesday.

Despite McCree's threatened resignation and indications from more than a dozen other city officials, mostly Negro, that they would follow him out of office, at 9 a.m. Tuesday City Clerk Lloyd Hendon said he had received only two resignations.

They are from Lester B. Ehrbright, 60, a member of the city's Human Relations Commission, and David B. Sanford, 24, a member of the Relocation subcommittee of the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Urban Renewal.

Both positions are part-time and unpaid. Ehrbright and Sanford both are white.

After Monday night's meeting, young Negroes who have been sleeping on the City Hall lawn since last week went back to their cars and unrolled their sleeping bags, ready to resume their vigil.

The commissioners heard 19 speeches from the audience on the ordinance, 12 for and seven against. Among those present was State Rep. Dale E. Killee, D-Flint.

Forrest told the commission that an opinion he had received from Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley showed that a redraft of the city's open occupancy proposal voted down last week would be necessary to make it legal.

House cuts space budget by 1/2 billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cutting more than a half billion dollars from President Johnson's request, the House passed Tuesday a bill to appropriate $4.58 billion in new funds for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The roll call vote was 312 to 92. The amount, lowest for the space agency since 1963, is $516.6 million below the $5.1 billion Johnson asked and $384.6 million less than was appropriated last year.

The cut was made with the President's belated approval.

AG ENGINEERING

Research paper wins ASAE award

Carl W. Hall, chairman of the Dept. of Agricultural Engineering, received the award for the outstanding research paper for 1967 from the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE). Hall's paper, "Respiration Heat of Harvested Forage," was one of only seven selected for recognition from 304 papers presented to the ASAE this year.

J. Sutherland Frame, professor of mathematics, has been invited to present a paper at an international conference Sept. 1 in Oxford, England.

Frame is among 50 mathematicians from throughout the world scheduled to attend the Aug. 29-Sept. 2 Conference on Computational Problems in Abstract Algebra.

Subbiah Kannappan, associate professor of labor and industrial relations and economics, will present a research paper Sept. 5 at the First World Congress of the International Industrial Relations Research Association in Geneva, Switzerland.

He will discuss "Bargaining Theory and Developing Countries."

Elmer S. Anttonen has been named the new MSU regional director of continuing education for Western Michigan.

In this position, he heads the MSU Continuing Education center at Grand Rapids, and is responsible for coordinating all of MSU's general extension activities in Oceana, Newaygo, Mecosta, Muskegon, Montcalm, Kent, Ottawa, Ionia, Allegan and Barry counties.

Anttonen replaces Daniel M. Seifer, who is on leave as assistant to the president at Tuskegee Institute.

A study on today's farm labor mobility by two MSU economists was recently named the outstanding published research report of 1966 by the American Farm Economics Association.

Dale Hathaway, professor of agricultural economics, and Brian Perkins, former assistant professor of agricultural economics at MSU, now at the University of Guelph, Ont., were cited at the Association's annual meeting August 13-16 at the University of Guelph.

Ferency asks Dems to prod LBJ

Zolton Ferency, Michigan Democratic Party chairman, said Monday night that Americans can best change their government's policy in Vietnam by helping the Democrats persuade their chief.

"President Johnson listens more to members of his party than to anyone else," Ferency told a gathering sponsored by the Lansing Vietnam Committee, "especially when his reelection is coming up." Ferency pointed out that there are no indications that anyone but Johnson will be nominated by the Democrats next year.

Michigan Democrats, in their convention last February, he said, clearly stated that they wanted a deescalation.

"Only a few votes kept us from asking a stop to the bombing of the North," Ferency added, "and we did ask support for U Thant's peace proposals."

"The organization Democrats," Ferency continued, "have the best chance of persuading the President to change his policy because they're the ones who raise the campaign, funds, work the streets, phones and campaign for the ticket and go to the convention."

Board approves Perles as coach

George J. Perles, former MSU football lineman, has officially been named an assistant coach on the Spartan varsity staff.

His appointment was approved by the board of trustees, governing body of the University, and was effective Aug. 1.

Perles returns to MSU after serving as an assistant coach at the University of Dayton the past two years. He fills a vacancy on Coach Duffy Daugherty's staff created by the departure of Dan Boisture who became head coach at Eastern Michigan University.

The new Spartan coach played for State in the 1957 and 1958 seasons before a knee injury cut short his career. He graduated with a B.S. degree in 1960 and then received the M.A. degree from MSU in 1961. While working towards his degrees he helped coach Spartan freshmen.

His first coaching assignment was at St. Rita High School in Chicago the fall of 1961 where his team compiled an 8-1 mark. Perles then moved to St. Ambrose High School in Detroit. In three years in Detroit his teams posted a 22-3-1 record, turned in two undefeated seasons and won a pair of city championships.

GEORGE PERLES

In January of 1965, Perles went to Dayton to join the staff formed by ex-Spartan assistant John McVay.

Perles is a native of Detroit, born July 16, 1934. He graduated from Detroit Western High School in 1953 and was in the U.S. Army for two years prior to entering college.

Krausse reinstated by Finley

BALTIMORE (UPI) -- Pitcher Lew Krausse, who had been under indefinite suspension, was reinstated by Charles O. Finley Tuesday in an apparent effort by the Kansas City owner to restore peace and harmony among the dissident Athletics.

The suspension of Krausse last Friday touched off a controversy which resulted in Manager Alvin Dark being fired, the unconditional release of first baseman Ken Harrelson and a $250 fine to pitcher Jack Aker.

The Athletics held a lengthy clubhouse meeting here Monday night and voted unanimously not to retract their critical statement about Finley. The controversial owner had demanded they do so.

In a terse announcement Tuesday, Finley gave no reason for lifting the suspension. He said Krausse, a 24-year-old right-hander who had remained in Kansas City, would rejoin the club in time for the second game of Tuesday night's twilight-night doubleheader with the Baltimore Orioles.

Krausse, a $125,000 bonus baby signed in 1961, had been suspended without pay for conduct unbecoming a major league ballplayer, according to Finley. Krausse has a 6-14 record and a 4.30 earned run average this season for the last place A's.

Krausse apparently misbehaved aboard a flight because Finley posted a notice in the A's dressing room Friday night that alcoholic beverages no longer would be served aboard commercial airliners to members of the team.

The notice said the "attitudes, actions and words of some of you have been deplorable."

The players then issued their statement which accused Finley of undermining team morale by using "go-betweens" to spy on the team. Dark said he hadn't seen the statement, but Aker, Kansas City's player representative, said he did, and Dark was fired Sunday morning.

Meanwhile, in New York, Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert launched an investigation into the feud and said he had asked all involved parties to submit written reports to him.

Lions place ex-N'Western star on waivers

DETROIT (UPI) — Tom Myers, former quarterback great for Northwestern University, and two rookies were put on waivers Tuesday by the Detroit Lions.

The No. 4 draft choice by the Lions in 1965, Myers had seen little service with the team, throwing only six passes and completing three for 16 yards.

The 6-foot, 185-pound Myers broke many of Otto Graham's passing records at Northwestern. He sat on the Lion bench his first year and started last season with Pontiac of the Midwest Football League before being recalled following an injury to Detroit quarterback Milt Plum.

E. Lansing golfer tied for 4th in Western

KANSAS CITY, MO. (UPI) — Curtis Sifford, nephew of professional Charlie Sifford, and steady Ed Sneed each fired three-under-par 69s Tuesday to grab a one-stroke lead among early finishers in the opening qualifying round of the Western Amateur Golf Tournament.

Two shots off the pace was Ron Schmedemann, a collegian from Kansas State, with a one-under 71 and Gary Pitzer of East Lansing, and Ben Hill Freeman of Lafayette, La., were in at even par.

Sifford, whose uncle won his first professional title in 14 years last Sunday, solved the demanding Melburn Country Club Course for five birds but had two bogeys while Sneed carded three birds in a bogey-free round.

Arne Dokka of Studio City, Calif., and Jeff Tarry of Columbus, Ohio, were each in at two-under-par 70s with about a fourth of the 180 golfers still on the 6,885-yard course.

Sneed, of Columbus, Ohio, carded a 34-35 with birdie putts on the 360-yard, par 4 fourth, the 540-yard, par-5 eighth and the 495-yard, par-5 17th.

Sifford, of Los Angeles, rolled in birdie putts on the first two holes and was three under after the first six holes but settled for a 33-36 for his 69.

Retirement community sited for 'U' faculty and staff la" was taken Monday in the tiny Delhi Township Hall, when the planning commission recommended that the board rezoned MSU's 80-acre plot from A-1 to A-2. A-2 is a higher density rating.

Daverman Associates Inc., of Grand Rapids is the architect of the complex which will initially include five 10-story units with 100 apartments each. Each apartment could include bedroom, bath, living room, kitchen and dining area.

The MSU Employees Union, which incorporated into the MSU Services Cooperative, estimates that in time and according to the desires of the members there could be music and art studios in the community, a chapel, privately assigned garden plots where folks could grow fruits or crops and classrooms for retired professors to teach in.

The complex, to be bounded by Sandhill Drive on the north, Pine Tree on the west and Dell Road on the south, would be landscaped with shade trees, flowering shrubs and decorative plants. The ground floor would be on a grade with no steps—in a gradual, unobtrusive ramps would lead to the entrances.

Each apartment room would be equipped with a "panic button" connected to the infirmary. When pushed a bell would ring in the nurse's station and indicate the apartment asking for help. Then the person's front door would electrically unlock and a nurse's aide or ward boy would be able to attend to the member.

"This would be the most unique cooperative of its kind in the world," says John Winburn, dean of the University College and president of the cooperative.

"Already," he said, "we have over 500 paid-up members without even a fund drive."

The health center and first 10-story unit are scheduled for completion in the summer of 1969 at a cost of $2.5 million. Winburn estimates the entire project would ultimately accommodate between 640 and 800 units. Project spokesmen have figured an average of 1.5 persons per unit, since most would be over 65, and without children.

Residents of the complex will be expected to pay a $10 membership fee and a $1-per-month dues to start the construction and $1,500 rent deposit per person prior to taking occupancy. Winburn said that monthly rent could possibly range between $140-$150 in the four-or-more-room dwellings.

"It would operate somewhat like Social Security," he explained, "You would pay into the cooperative now and receive the benefits later, when you retire."

The credit union, which boasts about 8,000 members, and $9 million in assets, has asked Ann Arbor Trust to handle finances. Earl Cress, who helped raise funds for MSU residence halls and married housing, suggested the project be financed through revenue bonds.

The Delhi Township Planning Commission voted unanimously Monday night to rezone the area, despite slight protest from a handful of citizens at the hearing.

real picture," he said.

These sentiments were echoed by Douglas Boehmer of Detroit. "You get a more realistic view of the University from the students than from the faculty," he said. "When you want to know what a course is like, a teacher will, naturally, tell you that it's 'great.' A student will tell you what it is really like."

"And when talking to a person your own age, you trust the opinions," said Steven Hatch of Saginaw. "My Spartan Aide gives it to me straight."

Patricia Robinson of Farmington said, "Spartan Aides are sincere. They put themselves out." Bill Foren, "The Spartan Aides have been more helpful than anyone else."

The freshmen seem to feel almost to a person that the Spartan Aide role in orientation is a very helpful and necessary one. They believe they are getting realistic pictures of the University operation through these student volunteers. However, a number of freshmen contend that they saw too little of the physical MSU.

A bus tour of the University has been offered as part of the program in the past. But, due to lack of interest, the tours were discontinued. Some freshmen who attended orientation this summer felt that the tour should be reinstated.

"If they have such a good bus service, why don't they use it for a tour, so that we can see more of the campus," said Bev Padratzik.

"The program is too confined to this complex," said Hatch. "Wonders is a modern building. I don't think the rest of the campus is like this."

Most of the freshmen said they felt that there is a touch of salesmanship in the orientation program, but that this is to be expected of administrators.

However, the freshmen said they felt that they are getting the picture—perhaps in spite of the salesmanship.

"Your experience with the University is what you will make it," said George Bisset of Satellite Beach, Fla. "I think this picture of warmth and friendliness is healthy."

Marvin Bailey of Ludington felt likewise.

"I think anyone bright enough to be accepted in the first place, realizes that there are bad points," he said.

What is the chief benefit the freshmen are getting from orientation?

"I think I'm getting a head-start," said Debbi Shaw of Detroit. "I'm not as afraid as I was before."

Hours

night is like a women's residence hall," she said, indicating the much needed training and adjusting for receptionists.

"It's only an educated guess what the job will consist of because we've never had the position on campus before," she said. "Now the whole concept is kind of theoretical."

The job description distributed in July listed these main duties for night receptionists:

- admitting students and permitting them to leave
- handling emergency situations
- providing reception desk services such as answering the phone and clerical tasks.

Receptionists can work no more than 30 hours a week. Hours will run from midnight to 7 a.m.

Although the head advisor and manager may make changes, the priority of persons who may apply runs in this order:

- female graduate student
- third-year female resident assistant (senior)
- married, female, past resident assistant
- married, male, previous graduate advisor
- married male graduate student
- "older" student wives
- "pre-middle-aged" or middle-aged women
- undergraduate junior or senior women
- single male graduate or undergraduate student.

The new hours proposal provides:

- sophomore, junior, and senior women and those 21 or older will have no University closing hours.
- sign-out will be optional except for overnight absences and when leaving the Greater Lansing area.
- each freshman may choose three weekend (Friday or Saturday nights) a term as 2 a.m. permission nights.
- University closing hours will be midnight Sunday through Thursday and 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday.
- only freshman coeds will be required to have parental permission cards on file authorizing overnight absences.
- guests of women with selective hours will not be required to return within University closing hours or with their hostess.
