DESPITE IRREGULARITIES

Vietnam assembly OKs Thieu

SAIGON — The provisional National Assembly found Monday that there were widespread irregularities in the presidential election, but not enough to affect the result. By a vote of 58-43 it accepted Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu's victory, clearing the way for his inauguration next month as president in a civilian-based government.

In theory but not in actuality the assemblymen nullified all the votes from 2,724 of the 8,824 polling places in the Sept. 3 elections—a total of 1,449,647 votes—for such reasons as discrepancies in totals on tally sheets, illegal erasures and intentionally incorrect addition.

The upshot was that Thieu lost about 433,000 of his original 1.65 million votes. But his closest runner-up, Truong Dinh Dzu, lost even more: his 817,000 votes were reduced to 228,309.

In all, 4.7 million votes were cast for 11 tickets, 10 of them civilian.

Dzu led five other civilian opponents of Thieu in bringing charges before the assembly of vote fraud on the part of the military regime. Saigon students and militant Buddhists joined in the opposition protest, resulting in street demonstrations during the three days the assembly deliberated on the election returns.

But the assembly action seemed to be another clear political victory for Thieu and his running mate, Nguyen Cao Ky. In the present military regime, Ky is premier and Thieu is chief of state. In their new posts as president and vice president they will give up their military commissions.

Even though the assembly considered the votes of 2,724 polling places to be void, the original official returns—with Thieu winning by 35 per cent of the vote—will stand. The assembly's compilation of irregularities was hypothetical.

The assembly sought to determine the number of irregularities only to reach a decision on whether to confirm the election of the military ticket. In effect, what the assembly said was that the irregularities did not warrant calling a new election.

It compiled its figures by applying a set of criteria based on proven cases of irregularities, such as the errors in addition, erasures, and other discrepancies.

After the criteria were decided on by the assembly, a special committee applied them to the election results. They were able in the short time to come up with figures for Thieu and Dzu only and it was not known how the other nine candidates fared or whether Dzu remained in second place.

But if the criteria produced a change in the lineup it would have been on paper only, since the assembly was interested only in seeing if the winner would have been different if there had been no irregularities.

Thieu's election had been touted as giving South Vietnam a popularly elected government which would be in a better position to seek negotiations with North Vietnam to end the war.

If the election had been invalidated, chances for negotiations would have been seriously damaged.

Invalidation of the election also would have brought questions about the label of fair and free applied to the election by U.S. officials from President Johnson to the 22 prominent Americans sent to South Vietnam by Johnson to observe the election.

The assembly began debate only Saturday on whether the election should be

REQUIRES REFERENDUM

ASMSU hints it may increase student taxes

By TRINKA CLINE
State News Staff Writer

An increased student government tax appears to be the most practical solution to ASMSU's financial needs for continuing the present level of ASMSU programs or initiating new projects, according to several student board members.

The board's future decision on the need for a referendum calling for an increased student tax of 75 per cent to $1 will depend primarily on whether alternate sources of money can be found.

Greg Hopkins, ASMSU chairman, said if a tax increase is judged necessary by the board and by student referendum, it could be in effect as early as winter term.

A decision may be mandatory sometime fall term. A budget for ASMSU in 1968 must be completed by the eighth week of this term.

Several members said they regretted that such programs as Winds of Change and the Provost Lectures received smaller appropriations than requested last year, but all agreed that the cuts were necessary under the circumstances. ASMSU is presently operating at a $1500 deficit, according to Bill Lukens, Men's Halls Association (MHA) president.

Many also mentioned the legal aid program as one needing money and one that should be continued. Hopkins said that ASMSU can no longer afford to support financially student cases if they are taken to court. Dick Herrold, Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC), charged that this was mainly because legal aid money has been gradually used for other programs.

Nearly simultaneous with discussion of the need for money is discussion of the popular entertainment committee. Basic philosophy of the committee is to provide students with popular entertainment at a low cost. Pop entertainment generally aims at breaking even or making up to an average of $2,000 per show, not a high rate of profit, said Don Banghart, committee chairman.

Banghart said he felt it would not be unreasonable for ASMSU to ask for around $2,000 profit for each show, as this fall's three shows are expected to bring. However, he noted that pop entertainment cannot be run with profit as its primary goal and still maintain student support. Lukens said the federal government and foundations are being considered as fund sources, especially for such programs as legal aid. Turning to the federal government, however, will not loosen the immediate financial straits of ASMSU; Lukens said it would require at least two or three years to obtain federal funds.

Two of ASMSU's "biggest" programs—legal aid and Great Issues—are usually mentioned in talk of reevaluating student government services. Both programs require significant amounts of money, yet neither bring in any money to perpetuate themselves.

Herrold said it was not so much a question of more money for the same programs as a question of more efficient use of present funds. He said he prefers slight increased profit from pop entertainment and more efficiency to raising the tax.

Harv Dzodin, junior member-at-large, went beyond maintenance of present programs to consider the proposed Student Academic Council (SAC), a branch of student government to study academic policies, suggest changes and implement academic programs. He noted that money will be needed if this "revolutionary concept" is attempted, and said he would support a tax increase.

Lukens said he believes that ASMSU expenditures are justified, that more money is necessary and that a student tax would justifiably answer that need.

Several members stated that MSU's student tax is much lower than at most universities. Lukens said this alone was not reason to support a tax increase since types of programs various student governments offered must be considered. He also agreed, however, that ironically, residence halls dues of $6 to $10 are backing programs of a limited range for around 600 people or less while ASMSU's 50 cent tax per term is for a much broader range of services and a much larger potential audience.

Joan Aitken, Women's Inter-Residence Council (WIC) president, said she favors a tax increase partly because she sees no other sufficient source. She noted that popular entertainment prices cannot be continually raised just to bring in more money. She added that student opinion should be sought before the board takes any definite action.

Jim Friel, Off-Campus Council (OCC) president, said he would support a movement for a tax increase, if popular entertainment could not feasibly account for needed finances.

State income tax begins; 3 million workers affected

By the UPI

An estimated three-million Michigan workers will find their paychecks a little leaner this week because of the start of a state income tax.

A 2.6 per cent personal income tax went into effect Sunday and will be collected from pay checks of workers each week.

A 5.6 per cent tax on corporations and a 7 per cent tax on financial institutions such as banks and savings and loan associations will go into effect Jan. 1, 1968. The legislature adopted the new taxes last July to prevent a cash crisis. They also repealed the state business activities tax.

Michigan's income tax is based on a flat rate percentage compared with the federal government's graduated tax plan. State residents also will be allowed a $1,200 personal tax exemption compared with the federal government's $600 per person tax exemption.

Property owners also will receive relief from their taxes on a sliding scale basis. The property tax credit applies to renters, corporations and financial institutions as well as homeowners. Renters and lessees also will receive a tax break equivalent to 20 per cent of the gross rent.

However, the tax credits will not be allowed for the October to December 31 period.

An estimated $238 million in new money is expected to be raised by the tax each year.

A person whose income is provided by Social Security only will not have to pay an income tax.

Income earned by persons belonging to a branch of the armed services, also will not be subject to the tax.

A person living in Michigan and working in another state will be allowed credit for the income tax imposed by the other state.

A person living outside Michigan and working in Michigan will be allowed credit by his resident state for taxes paid in Michigan if that state has a reciprocal agreement with Michigan.

Wisconsin, Indiana and Toledo, Ohio have made such agreements.

A man with five exemptions will pay no income tax until his annual income exceeds $6,000.

Some relief in the form of tax rebates will be given to local units of government based on a population basis. The rebates will start at the county level and filter down to townships.

SIG EPS SEARCH

'Sparty' mascot stolen

He's five feet tall, wears a green helmet with green and white plumes coming out of it and he has a big nose. He hasn't missed an MSU home game in ten years.

Sparty, the huge Spartan head belonging to the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, has been kidnapped.

Tom Fox, Stevensville junior, said that he and his brothers noticed that Sparty was missing from the chapter house early Monday morning. The 45-pound fiberglass headpiece was probably stolen sometime after 3 a.m. Monday from the living room.

Fox said that the fraternity is uncertain of who might have taken their mascot. Sparty is not insured but fraternity members said that if the head is damaged when recovered, they will press charges.

"We've notified the police and radio stations about Sparty's disappearance," Fox said. "We're very upset and worried about him, and we'd like to have him back for the game on Saturday."

Sparty has never been stolen before. Two years ago students from the University of Michigan attempted to spirit him away, but they were stopped by the Sig Eps before they could succeed.

Funeral rites set for MSU student

Funeral services for Alan J. Blackwood, Snyder, N.Y., junior, will be held Thursday at Darwin E. Myers Funeral Home in Snyder, N.Y. He will be buried at Forest Lawn Cemetery in Buffalo.

Mr. Blackwood, 23, was the victim of an accidental drowning in the Red Cedar River Saturday evening, according to Coroner Jack Holmes from Estes Leadley Funeral Home.

Myers Funeral Home received the body Monday afternoon.

Mr. Blackwood is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Blackwood of Snyder, N.Y., and a brother, Robert G. Blackwood of the Buffalo area.

The body, which was not discovered until 11:45 a.m. Sunday, was found a few feet from the shore in the Sanford Woodlot area behind Holmes and McDonel Halls.

His jacket was left on the shore, University police said. One of his shoes was also found a few feet away. Besides these two articles, he was fully clothed.

In 1963-64, when Mr. Blackwood was last enrolled here, he was a member of the ski club and the sailing club.

'Jumpy' Marshall sworn in as Supreme Court justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thurgood Marshall—"Kind of Jumpy" beforehand, according to his 11-year-old son—took his seat Monday as the first Negro to serve as an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

President Johnson, who named Marshall to the tribunal in June, witnessed the ceremony at the opening of the court's new term.

Marshall, former chief legal officer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, swore in an oath administered by the court's clerk, John F. Davis, to "administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich."

Smiling broadly, he was escorted by the court's marshal, T. Perry Lippitt, to his place at the far left end of the bench.

Several of Marshall's relatives watched from the family section of the courtroom along with the President, retired Justice Tom C. Clark—Marshall's predecessor—and retired Justice Stanley F. Reed.

SNOWBANKS NEEDED

MSU mallards face 50th winter

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

Life may not be "just lucky" for MSU fowl life this winter.

While students bundle up in wool coats and fur caps as colder days approach, campus ducks must make do with their thin coat of feathers and well-circulated feet.

The ducks traditionally remain in their Red Cedar homes for the winter, braving such hazards as a frozen river and a lack of food.

The long snowless periods that are the delight of humans spell trouble to the ducks, who warm their feet in the snow when the Red Cedar freezes.

For nourishment they depend on hand-outs from benevolent groundsmen and students.

Duck fans speculated two years ago that destruction of the old power plant, which warmed waters below the rapids of the Red Cedar, would mean virtual disaster to MSU fowlery.

Last year however, ducks and ducklings found winter escape unnecessary since an overabundance of snow and spots of unfrozen water provided the needed conditions to sustain duck life.

MSU ducks are mallards, a park domestic breed that is characteristically overweight and less stylish than wild breeds.

The mallards have lived on the banks of the Red Cedar for over 50 years and the University takes measures to protect its tuition-free guests: all grounds are closed to hunters.

What do they do in the winter?

MICHIGAN MEETING

Friel, Lukens get NSA state posts

By BEV TWITCHELL

Two MSU students were elected Sunday to Michigan regional offices of the National Student Association (NSA).

Jim Friel, president of Off Campus Council, was elected to the Congress Steering Committee and Bill Lukens, president of Men's Hall Association, was chosen as vice chairman of the region. Both were delegates to the NSA Congress at the University of Maryland this summer. The Congress Steering Committee consists of national officers and the chairmen and a second member from each of the 19 regions within NSA. These persons are usually elected at the summer Congress for a one-year term.

Jim Graham, former chairman of the ASMSU Student Board, was elected chairman of the Congress Steering Committee in August. The steering committee meets throughout the Congress and approves the agenda rules and procedures used at the congress. Friel said that he wanted to avoid situations where the agenda and congress rules were just handed to the delegates, and they had no voice in their formulation.

With the congress handled this way, Friel said he hopes segments of the congress will not be alienated as they were this summer when the radical caucus wished to discuss the formulation of a national union of students, but were stifled by the rules and procedures.

"The Congress Steering Committee should provide for parts of the congress to be devoted to open discussion from all points of view of the future of the organization," Friel said. "This wasn't done last year. The CSC refused a request from Chuck Larson of Wayne State University, early in the Congress to allow the plenary session to consider structural changes."

Lukens served as vice chairman of the Michigan Region last year. This year he will work closely with the new chairman, Richard Kool of Hope College. He is also chairman of the regional finance committee.

The late Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson, longtime benefactor of the University, has left $300,000 to the President John A. Hannah Professorship Endowment fund in her will.

The fund will, when fully supported, consist of $3 million, and will supplement the salaries of outstanding educators who will be invited to join the MSU faculty. Ten such professorship endowments will be financed from the interest on the fund, which was established last year in honor of Hannah's 25 years as president of MSU.

In 1957, Mrs. Wilson and her husband gave their $10 million estate and a $2 million cash endowment to MSU to found Oakland University.

Mrs. Wilson, who died in Brussels, Belgium, two weeks ago, was a member of the governing body of MSU from 1931 to 1937. Mrs. Wilson was so well liked that Oakland students recently requested a special one dollar per term tuition hike to finance a memorial for her. And, according to one Oakland student, "she was the only person at the University who, when she entered a room, everyone—regardless of the length of their hair, or anything—stood up."

COMMAND REPORT SHOWS

New troops infiltrate South

SAIGON (P) -- Battle reports produced evidence Monday the North Vietnamese may have slipped fresh troops with modern weapons into South Vietnam's central highlands during the month-long Communist artillery siege of Con Thien.

The attacks on the U.S. Marine outpost at Con Thien slackened off for the fifth straight day, possibly because heavy U.S. air attacks on Communist positions in and above the demilitarized zone have inflicted crippling damage. The U.S. Command reported high flying B52 bombers in four days last week touched off 110 secondary explosions, indicating direct hits on ammunition dumps and fuel.

Word of the possible infiltration of fresh North Vietnamese troops into South Vietnam came as the nation's military leaders, President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President-elect Nguyen Cao Ky, cleared another political hurdle. The National Assembly in Saigon threw out charges of ballot frauds on Sept. 3 and validated the victory of the Thieu-Ky ticket by a vote of 58-43, with one vote blank and four invalidated.

The action meant Thieu and Ky will take over the leadership of a civilian-based government next month. They now head a military government with Ky as premier and Thieu as chief of state.

The evidence of new North Vietnamese troops deep inside South Vietnam came in a U.S. command report of a day-long clash Sunday between troops of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division and an enemy force 23 miles southeast of Pleiku, a key Army base about 225 miles below the DMZ.

The battle report said the North Vietnamese were wearing new uniforms and were equipped with late model automatic rifles and other advanced weapons.

While an official intelligence assessment was lacking, the enemy force seemed to be part of a new unit infiltrated into the country by way of the old Ho Chi Minh trail which winds around the DMZ through neighboring Laos and Cambodia from North Vietnam.

Capitol News

The State Selective Service announced Monday a November draft call of 1,169 men, 120 fewer than the October call.

Ingham County has been tapped for thirty-nine men.

Secretary of State James Hare said Monday that the only way to make sure incorrigibles don't drive on revoked licenses is for the state to impound their cars.

Hare called for legislation, similar to that in Oregon, to empower the state to impound cars for 30 to 120 days. The motorist gets his car back only after the time is up and he's paid all costs for storing the car.

Hare was speaking at a regional traffic safety conference in Grand Rapids.

Gov. Romney Monday formally called for a special session of the Legislature to begin at 2 p.m. Oct. 10th.

In his notice to the State's lawmakers, Romney said the session is "for the purpose of considering certain subjects to be submitted by Special Message."

Among several things to be discussed are lower court reorganization and cigarette taxes, the latter having little chance of getting through.

Other possibilities include anti-strike legislation to stymie mass walkouts by public employees and also open occupancy legislation.

Workers in Michigan will be bringing home just a little less bacon this week. Michigan's first income tax, 2.6 per cent on individuals, went into effect Sunday.

The income tax was passed this summer in an effort to avert a cash-crisis in the State Treasury.

Police beat

Warrants were issued Monday to Nicholas C. Burns, Carson City graduate student, and Robert R. Paul, Livonia sophomore, on a charge of possession of stolen property, East Lansing police said.

Burns and Paul are charged with taking a no parking sign from the corner of River and Victor streets at 11:30 p.m. Saturday. Arraignment was postponed until Monday. They are free on $100 bond each.

Richard J. Langols, Harper Woods, pleaded guilty Monday at Lansing Township Justice Court on a charge of being drunk in a public place.

Langols was found lying in the hallway of West Shaw Hall when University police picked him up at 10 p.m. Saturday. He paid a $10 fine and $20 in court costs.

Nixon has lead in primaries: AP survey

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Richard M. Nixon is rated now by political pros as the man to beat in the crucial Republican presidential primaries in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Nebraska, an Associated Press survey shows.

Politicians in these three states generally cite Nixon's past exposure to voters and his popularity with many party regulars as reasons for his early lead.

They note, however, that Michigan Gov. Romney is starting to build up a campaign organization in some primary states.

In Oregon, regarded as a fourth key primary state, most politicians say it is too early to determine who is leading. But some predict Gov. Ronald Reagan of neighboring California will make a strong showing there.

Although he has said repeatedly that he is not a candidate, Reagan has indicated he will allow his name to appear on the ballots in Oregon, Wisconsin and Nebraska. His supporters plan a write-in campaign in New Hampshire, where he has said he will take necessary steps to keep it off the ballot.

Fourteen states and the District of Columbia will hold presidential primaries between mid-March and early June.

Here's a rundown on the four key primaries:

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Because their March 12 primary is the first of the presidential season, New Hampshire voters pack a political punch far out of proportion to their numbers. And both Nixon and Romney camps are adding to the importance of this year's voting by staking much on the outcome.

Nixon has said a victory in New Hampshire is vital if he is to remove the "loser" tag pinned on him because of his defeats in the 1960 presidential race and the 1962 California gubernatorial campaign.

Since they are stressing that Romney is a "winner," supporters of the Michigan governor also are striving for a good showing. The Romney camp appears to have the edge in early organization.

Besides Reagan, others certain to muster write-in votes if they decline to be on the ballot are

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois.

WISCONSIN

This April 2 primary is viewed as basically a contest between Nixon and Romney, although organizations supporting Reagan have cropped up.

Most GOP insiders say Nixon now appears to be the man to beat, mainly because he seems to have the strongest campaign organization. But because of the lingering impact of the La Follette era, party machinery in Wisconsin is weak. The winner of this primary simply will be the candidate who makes the best impression on the voters.

Wisconsin's primary law, revised by the legislature this year, has a new twist--there is a place for the voter to check "none of the names shown." If only one name appears on the ballot it becomes a "yes" or "no" choice.

NEBRASKA

in the lead eight months in advance of the May 21 balloting.

A dispute over leadership of the Nebraska Republican party complicates the primary picture. Sen. Roman L. Hruska wants to take a favorite son delegation to the GOP convention, and a slate of delegates supporting him probably will be entered in the primary.

OREGON

No clear cut leader has emerged in Oregon and Nixon aides fear that this may not be a good state for the former vice president. Reagan led a recent straw poll at the state fair, followed by Nixon, Romney, Rockefeller and Percy. Rockefeller defeated Barry Goldwater in the 1964 primary.

NSA: evaluation or attack?

The National Student Assn. (NSA) appears to be having difficulty with some member schools threatening to disaffiliate after a somewhat stormy session of the congress this summer in Maryland.

Specifically, the Michigan region and universities throughout the Southwest are making enough threats that NSA officers are being sent to these trouble spots for fence-mending purposes. For example, Teddy O'Toole, international affairs vice president for NSA, attended the Michigan regional meeting Sunday in Holland, Mich.

Therefore it was hardly surprising when Brad Lang, sophomore member-at-large, initiated a proposal at last Tuesday's ASMSU Board meeting declaring intent to disaffiliate with NSA.

Lang was voicing the sentiment of the radical caucus he was part of at the summer congress, which sought the abolishment of the present NSA structure and the establishment of a network of voluntary, independent student unions across the country.

The University of Michigan and Wayne State, the two other important powers in this region, have also contemplated disaffiliation. U-M rejected the idea, however, and Wayne State is still considering it.

Few people deny that there is much that could be done to improve the NSA bureaucratic structure. Some of the political maneuvers at the summer congress and the seemingly top-heavy structure of the organization left a sour taste in some delegates' mouths.

However, there are more important points to be considered. The NSA, for the most part, received the support of the delegates despite the controversy that developed out of the Central Intelligence Agency's connection with NSA. Despite some delegates' contention that NSA's image remains tainted, most of them were convinced the CIA no longer furnishes the organization with funds. The issue now seems dead.

Secondly, there is more to be gained from NSA than the opportunity to play at amateur politics.

NSA provides member schools with programs that include assistance in course and teacher evaluations, campus environmental studies, drug study conferences, cultural affairs and popular entertainment, comprehensive student insurance programs, travel concessions, tutorial assistance centers, neighborhood youth corps training and international collegiate sports activities.

This service function is where the true benefit of membership rests. What must be done is informing the student body of all these services available. The students should benefit from this affiliation for the simple reason that they are the ones who paid the $1,100 for membership fee and costs for delegates attending the Congress. Much of this responsibility for informing students of the services available rests with the NSA coordinator at MSU.

For the board to even consider disaffiliation from NSA, after only six months, would be absurd. It would be even more absurd to quit on the grounds that an untested experiment in student unions might be more successful than the present system.

There is much to be gained from membership, and MSU students have the right to discover this for themselves. If re-evaluation of NSA is necessary, then next year seems a more realistic time than the present.

MITCH MILLER

EDITORS NOTE: This is the second of a four-part series in which State News staffer Mitch Miller analyzes racial unrest and urban problems. Copyright 1967, The State News.

Riots do not spring from nowhere into full-blown life.

They are the end result of a process as complex as that used in manufacturing the most sophisticated product. Indeed, the Berkeley sociologist Neil A. Smelser identifies the process in the "value-added" terms familiar in economics.

Just as a finished good cannot be produced without any of the steps between its origin and completion, a riot cannot occur without beginning in the structure of society, an assist by riot leaders, and its final end at the hands of the forces of social control.

American society is conducive to riotous outbursts. We brought up generations of people who, having little cultural ethos of their own, absorbed in the public schools of our cities that all they had to do was want and they would get, that the profit motive was to be suspected, that society owed them something.

Witness the statement of Bill Mathis, the chairman of the Philadelphia chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality. "You've got it. We want it. And if we can't have it you're not going to either." In the context of such speeches, ghetto conditions, rising expectations and the rapid elimination of the jobs which are the mainstay of his economic existence, become intolerable to the slum dweller.

The lumpenproletariat

The lumpenproletariat of the ghetto find themselves falling further and further behind the rapidly advancing whites.

And, adding insult to injury, is the presence of the antagonists in their midst--the businessmen, usually white, who seem to be engaged in keeping the black man from ever advancing himself, by taking large chunks of his money, and the police, who prevent him from engaging in activities which he considers harmless.

Anatomy of a riot

With a foundation in the structure of society, the development of a riot (or series of riots), proceeds to the spread of a generalized belief--a vague, half-formed notion, an ambiguous catchword, or a fine-sounding but hollow slogan.

In this case, the generalized belief is that violence is a workable means for making grievances known, righting wrongs, even for obtaining power. This feeling was stimulated by the tradition of "taking the law into your own hands" and of disobedience of laws not thought right. It was spread and encouraged by cadres of the black extremist movement, who saw the conditions for riots and moved to insure that riots would occur.

Event irrelevant

After stimulating the feeling of alienation the cadres of the black extremist movement then continued in their riot-making by insuring a precipitating event occurred. Whether the event had indeed taken place, like the alleged beating to death of a Negro cab driver in Newark, was irrelevant, as long as news spread and was believed. In the atmosphere of the riot area, this kind of event or rumor acts like the slightest weight on a baited mousetrap. The riot is on.

All that remains is the mobilizing of the riot participants. This is guided and controlled by the cadres themselves or by their immediate followers, Negro youths usually referred to as "Black Guards". Snipers are prepositioned, selected stores and buildings set aflame, and riot crowds are led to areas away from the police (who are often misdirected by the cadres.) This is not to say that some riot activity does not take place spontaneously, but that the movement has guaranteed the presence of leaders around whom riot crowds will crystallize, and initiated actions (like breaking open stores) which make way for the crowds to act (looting).

Fortunately, in the short run, riots can be controlled without eliminating the preconditions from which they spawn. Most anti-riot control is in the hands of the police. Only by establishing a constant, visible presence do they express society's determination to maintain law and order in the ghetto as well as anywhere else. An integrated police force, even a predominantly Negro force in the Negro ghetto is less subject to intimidation, unwilling to allow intra-Negro disorder to go unpunished, and has a greater stake in preventing a riot.

Foot patrolmen make the policeman part of the community, not an occupying enemy. The beat cop's intimate knowledge of the territory and its people enable him to identify cadres and hotheads before trouble occurs and take remedial action.

The most important anti-riot measure, however, is attitude. Riots occur in ambiguous circumstances, and so it is an absolute necessity for the police and the city government, from the mayor to the newest rookie patrolmen, to make perfectly clear that no disorder will be tolerated, and that riots, or potential riots, will be met with maximum force and willingness to use it.

But controlling riots will not solve our racial problem, nor will any amount of rioting erase our moral obligation to eliminate the conditions which permit riots.

Tomorrow's article deals with Black Power and the need, means, and results of achieving it.

Grad students hurt by fee philosophy

Although it might seem almost hopeless to continue fault-finding with MSU's new and already instituted fee system, one group appears so hard-hit by this year's increases that it simply cannot be ignored.

"Ability-to-pay" as the fee plan has so generously been termed, somehow doesn't seem to apply when it comes to MSU's graduate students. Although they are generally among the most economically deprived groups on campus, grad students are now paying equivalent to the maximum rate on the new in-state sliding scale.

Resident graduate fees are now $500 per year, a $147 increase. Out-of-state graduate students were also given a substantial tuition increase of $210 yearly, and will now pay $1,230 per year.

The ad hoc committee on tuition policy reported last year to the Board of Trustees that out-of-state graduate students were already paying among the highest fees in the nation, and added, "While it is the quality of our graduate program that generally attracts out-of-state graduate students, this quality is not so superior that a marked increase in tuition will not cause them to go elsewhere."

MSU has developed an outstanding graduate school, and the possibility is strong that the new tuition hikes could discourage its future growth and development.

The attitude of Trustee C. Allen Harlan, D-Southfield, when he called expansion of MSU's graduate school a "luxury", should emphasize the dangers inherent in the board's actions.

Some of the blame for the graduate fee plan, though, must be placed on the administration. In a series of phone calls to reluctant trustees last summer, President Hannah pressured acceptance of flat-rate graduate fees, claiming that ability-to-pay could not be implemented for graduate students.

Unfortunately, the graduate students themselves have been hurt the most by this disparity in tuition philosophy. The flat rate graduate fee, by now strongly into effect, could turn out to be the most damaging, as well as least fair, portion of the whole new tuition policy.

OUR READERS' MINDS

ROTC: gap in educational quality

To the Editor:

I read Professor Garskoff's criticisms of the MSU ROTC program a few minutes after I left an ROTC lecture on "Communism in the USSR", and he raised a much-pushed-aside point: There is indeed a definite gap in the quality of education given by the Army training program and the rest of the MSU curriculum.

The objective of the ROTC lecture on communism as it was stated prior to class was to "give the student a basic understanding of Communism. In order to defeat the enemy, we must first know him." But the hour was spent projecting twisted facts, presenting devious innuendos and re-interpreting historical situations in such a grotesque manner that a student of history (past the 100 level) would be embarrassed to admit that such a flagrant violation of academic standards could exist on a Big-10 campus! Needless to say, the lecture did NOT provide an enlightenment, but rather served to indoctrinate and brainwash the captive freshmen present. I was appalled that even the U.S. Army would attempt to pass off such propaganda under the guise of "intellectual enlightenment". At the end of the period I asked the instructor, Major Darling, if the material was aimed at indoctrination rather than at education as he had stated at the beginning of class. He blatantly admitted that "this is propaganda in the classical sense. This isn't my view; this is our official government policy." Major Darling claimed he was definitely trying to brainwash and indoctrinate (rather than educate) but justified his position with the classic out of "following orders."

I asked the major how a young officer could resolve a conflict arising from an inconsistency between national policies and human values that transcend national policies. "That kind of person doesn't belong in ROTC," said the Major. "But then," he added proudly, "not everyone can be an officer!"

Major Darling's frank admission that ROTC stresses indoctrination rather than education should arouse even the politically ambivalent to question the role of the ROTC program on a college campus. It is a program that suppresses disagreement and is run with all the authoritarianism found in the regular army.

If the ROTC program does not meet the required academic criteria, then the ROTC program, like a faltering student, must be eliminated from the university!

'S' loses Phillips for season

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

Jesse Phillips became an addition Monday to the list of MSU defensive players who have been lost for the season because of injuries.

Coach Duffy Daugherty said Monday at the weekly press luncheon that Phillips has a torn cartilage in his right knee and will undergo surgery soon.

The 6-0, 201 pound defensive roverback, a starter and letterman for the Spartans the past two seasons, joined Jack Zindel, Dave Schweinfurth, Calvin Fox, Don Warnke and Clifton Hardy, all defensive players who have been sidelined for the season.

Considering the shakiness of the MSU defense in the first two games, the loss of Phillips could be a crucial one for MSU.

Bob Super took over Phillips' roverback position Saturday against Southern California. Ted Bohn moved from guard to linebacker and Don Law took over at the guard position.

"We've been hit hard by injuries this year, but it's normal in football," Daugherty said. "The last two years have been abnormal years when we didn't lose many to injuries."

Daugherty said that Law and Mike Young had been banged up in the Southern Cal game but would probably be ready to play against Wisconsin.

Sophomores Jack Pitts and Steve Garvey will stay as starters at the defensive halfback positions, pending the full recovery of co-captain Drake Garrett from a leg injury.

Tody Smith will not practice this week or next week with the team, trying to recover from an injury to his foot. He may be lost for the year also if his recovery is not sufficient. About the only good news was that defensive end George Chatlos' right ankle was not reinjured in the Southern California game and should be stronger Saturday.

Daugherty said there would be some line-up changes made, both offensively and defensively, for the Wisconsin game.

"We hate to lose a game that we could have, but I'm not saying we should've won against Southern Cal," Daugherty said. "Southern Cal was stronger than us, and had great personnel. They were all big, but moved well."

"Offensively we need to get a more cohesive and efficient unit going. Defensively we need a tighter pass defense."

Daugherty said that the Spartan offense isn't what it should be. It sputtered too much and hasn't come up with the big play when needed, he said.

"But I think our pass defense will improve," Jack Pitts and Steve Garvey will be more confident in the coming games and should be able to play their men tighter and intercept a few.

"With men with the speed of Earl McCullough and Jim Lawrence for Southern Cal we had to play them loose and keep them from getting behind us for the long bomb."

"McKay said that McCullough is the fastest man alive for 40 yards, so we couldn't be playing tight on him, and Lawrence is a sprinter himself."

The improvement in pass defense may have to be made quickly, because, as Daugherty pointed out, Wisconsin is primarily a passing team.

Turning to the Big Ten race, Daugherty described it as looking like a "dog eat dog year," with no team going through the season undefeated.

"If any team looks to be stronger right now it's Purdue, especially after the upset over Notre Dame," Daugherty said. "Indiana and Northwestern have shown they're improved, and Michigan has good potential. Minnesota has a tough defense, but has been having trouble offensively and has injuries almost as bad as ours."

"It's tough to evaluate Ohio State, especially after a non-conference game. Illinois should be a factor in who wins the championship."

"We're not in as good a position going into the conference games as we would have been if we won these first two, but I think we showed improvement over the last week and great intensity against Southern Cal, and certainly no one should give up on us yet."

Up, up and over

Exchange policy for grid tickets

To clarify the method of exchanging season football coupons for game tickets this week, here is the schedule for exchange beginning today.

Juniors may pick up tickets today upon presentation of a yellow season ticket card. Sophomores may exchange green cards for tickets Wednesday and freshmen, with red ticket cards Thursday.

Jenison Fieldhouse is the place for exchange, with hours Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. An additional exchange office is located in the Conrad Hall lobby (East campus), with hours Wednesday and Thursday, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Students wishing to purchase adjacent seats for games for friends may do so at the main ticket office in the Jenison Fieldhouse lobby Thursday, 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m., and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. A student coupon may be exchanged for adjacent seats.

BOSTON (UPI)—Underdogs as usual, the emotionally spent Boston Red Sox hailed as good news Monday that the rested St. Louis Cardinals have been installed to 4 p.m. A student coupon may be exchanged for adjacent seats.

series starting Wednesday. "They picked us ninth when this whole thing started and now they're picking us second," laughed Boston manager Dick Williams. "We may fool them all again and wind up on top."

Williams, one of the few managers in history to win a pennant in his first year as a pilot, visited the park only briefly to confirm that Jose Santiago, his strongest long-distance relief pitcher and occasional clutch game starter during the season, would oppose the Cardinals' Bob Gibson in Wednesday's opener.

The Red Sox, winners Sunday of their first American League pennant in 21 years, took Monday off. Outside Fenway Park a lineup that included mini-skirted girls and a guitarist for entertainment waited for an evening chance to buy the last of the bleacher rush seats or some standing space in the cramped, 55-year-old stadium.

Ruggers tie Windsor, 3-3

The MSU Rugby Club held Windsor City to a 3-3 tie last Sunday. The game was scoreless until the second half when Mike Edgeworth scored three points.

The Ruggers dominated play and managed to keep Windsor on the defensive. Windsor scored when one of their forwards hit on a try.

"They were the No. 1 team to beat," MSU captain Ron Bacon said. "They were larger and more experienced than the MSU Club."

Edgeworth suffered a broken jaw in the game for MSU and will be sidelined for the remainder of the season.

Campus no utopia, Public Safety report notes

By BOBBY SODEN

Campus Editor

MSU could be called an ideal place to live.

Its sprawling acres house an elite community of young people, administrators and scholars.

A quick-paced, no-nonsense atmosphere prevails. There are few laggards. Most members of the community have jobs to do and work hard at getting it done.

The University has no slums, nor any overt racial conflicts. But the University is not a utopia. It has a crime problem.

Tunnel escapades

A factor contributing to the increase was the awareness of a new and easier way for thieves to enter campus buildings through the steam tunnels which connect all buildings on north and south campus. Campus buildings may be entered through their mechanical rooms, which are easily accessible from the tunnels.

"The existence of the tunnels has recently become common knowledge," Bernitt said. "This was not true a few years ago."

Bernitt attributed the growing awareness of the tunnels to the tremendous amount of South Campus construction which at times leaves the tunnels exposed.

A new term, "tunnelling", has emerged in the vocabulary of some students, he explained. This is defined as the "exploration of the steam tunnel system and of the interior of buildings and auto theft. This was an increase of 20.9 per cent in this type of offense over the previous year's.

Access to the tunnels was gained through unlocked manholes and construction areas, Bernitt said.

The manholes were unsecured to enable workmen to escape the tunnels rapidly in case of an emergency within a tunnel.

During an exploration Feb. 20, two students entered the Music Building where they removed $1,315 worth of musical instruments, police said. One of these subjects was later arrested after stealing items from a construction site where he was searching for an entrance to the south campus tunnel system.

Some twenty other persons interviewed by police during the year said that they had explored the tunnels, also.

Bernitt said that although the tunnels had been used in previous years, the 1966-67 time period saw the greatest increase in use.

Some of the persons "tunnelling" were just exploring, Bernitt said. But one of the department's concerns is that an individual will become entrapped in one of the tunnels when a pipe explodes or another such emergency occurs.

"This year the residence halls and the Physical Plant will take steps to make mobility in and out of the tunnel systems less possible," Bernitt explained.

Larcenies increase

A large increase in Part One offenses also occurred in larcenies from coin boxes and vending machines. A total of $3,467.45 was taken last year.

Two men were arrested by the University Police for breaking and entering coin operated washing machines in the basement of nine Cherry Lane living units. A total of four arrests were made.

Another problem lies in the ever-growing number of thefts from cars on campus.

Larcenies from autos vary in value from parking permits to large losses of clothing and money. Special equipment from sports cars was a major item stolen.

The annual report lists that 388 reports were taken on thefts from autos, totalling a value of $13,000.

Bernitt explained that some of the cars are forcibly pried open, but many thefts are caused by people leaving their cars unlocked.

are exhibitionists, some are window peepers."

To discourage window peeping, the department requests coeds to keep their blinds lowered when dressing and undressing.

"When victimized by an exhibitionist, we advise the coed to scream if there are other people in the area. Secondly, we ask them to report the incident to the police immediately."

Fewer arrests

Police reported that 14.6 per cent of the reported incidents were cleared by arrests. A total of 629 arrests were made last year by the University Police, a slight decrease from the previous year.

The overall decrease was explained in the report by a decrease in the number of persons arrested for liquor law violations, 108, compared with 201 a year ago.

Bernitt said that the department does not break down its arrest statistics into what percentage are students and non-students.

He estimated, however, that over half of the persons arrested on campus are not connected with the University.

"People must realize that there is not a wall around the University to keep all the undesirable out," Bernitt said.

"Where else would you find 20,000 vehicles parked in a concentrated area?" he asked. He added that the problems involved with unlocked dormitories were great.

Bernitt also attributed the thefts to the "hotel-type atmosphere" of the residence halls.

"Living in a residence hall is a new experience for those involved," he said. Most students are accustomed to a single residence type living.

"Students must keep their doors locked to preserve their possessions."

Police reports

782 serious crimes

In fiscal year 1966-67, there was a total of 3,273 criminal offenses reported on campus, according to the Dept. of Public Safety annual report. The report, which is filed with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, marks an increase of 12.2 per cent over 1965-66.

Of the total, only 782 of the reports were considered to be serious crimes.

"MSU has been remarkably free of crimes of violence," explained Richard O. Bernitt, director of the department. "The University's citizens have been victimized often by thefts and malicious destruction."

An overwhelming 2,491 of the reports were Part One offenses, which include robbery, assaults, breaking and entering, larcenies

Petitioning for Council begins

Petitioning is open Tuesday through Friday for vacancies on Off-Campus Council.

Students petitioning must have a 2.0 grade point average, be in good standing with the University and live off campus, including married housing. Petitions from persons living in cooperatives, fraternities and sororities will not be accepted.

Positions are also open on the grievance, social affairs, publicity and publication committees.

Petitions are available 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in 308 or 313 Student Services Bldg.

'Tunnelling'

Public Safety Officer Robert Parsons examines a section of the long length of steam tunnels which run beneath all buildings on campus. Thieves used the tunnels last year as an entrance into various campus buildings.

'U' called 'educational lab'

MSU, like other progressive universities, is becoming increasingly a laboratory for an ever changing society rather than a sterile institution, William Lazer, professor of marketing and transportation, said Sunday at the B'nai B'rith Hillel Supper Forum.

European universities, which once merely stressed education for education's sake, are now following the aggressive, experimental lead of schools like MSU, Lazer said.

"Of course Michigan State may sometimes make the wrong decision and can consequently expect criticism," Lazer said referring to MSU's ill-fated involvement in Vietnam, "but it must keep experimenting, to keep up with an inconsistent environment."

"We are heading towards an urban, automated society," he said. "Our economy is one of abundance. There is a growing capacity by science to change properties of materials, which subsequently change our life styles and occupations," he said.

Service, business and government are the fastest growing industries, he said, and future occupational needs will emphasize executives, managers and government, hospital and education employees. The number of industrial, semi-skilled and farm workers will slip, he predicted.

"Perhaps, with the continuing increase in leisure time, it will become common for a man to change his profession several times during his life," he said. "And with education growing as a major industry, maybe students will one day be paid to go to school."

A new girl for girl-watchers to watch...

Her name is Joan Parker, and she's the new Dodge Fever Girl. Watch her on television this season, dispensing Dodge Fever to a variety of unsuspecting souls. (Dodge's TV schedule is listed below.)

A new car for car-lovers to love...

Its name is Charger, and it's the best-looking Dodge ever built. Complete with disappearing headlights and sports-car styling that features a European-type spoiler on the rear deck. But since looks aren't everything, we made it exciting to drive, with a 318-cu.-in. V8, bucket seats and an airplane-type instrument panel. Even pockets in the doors for your shades and/or rally maps. With all this included, we've reduced Charger's list price by more than $100. Maybe you can't please everybody, but we sure try. See your Dodge Dealer right away.

both from Dodge.

You know, the people who build the cars that give you . . . Dodge Fever.

"IN THE HEAT OF THE NIGHT" COLOR BY DeLuxe

NEXT ATTRACTION: AUDREY HEPBURN in "TWO FOR THE ROAD"

In New York City. The score includes such tunes as "Who Can I Turn To?", "Where Would You Be Without Me?", "Nothing Can Stop Me Now," "The Joker" and "A Wonderful Day Like Today."

According to the press releases, "Greasepaint" is a simplified statement of the class war: the rich versus the poor, the strong versus the weak. It is a satire on our social structure and the idea of "Play the Game by the Rules."

The play stars David C. Jones as the arrogant, swaggering, overbearing "Sir," symbol of the Establishment and Edward Earle in the role of Cocky, the little underdog who is bullied by "Sir."

The Broadway Theater Package is a welcome addition to the MSU entertainment schedule. Hopefully it will be as exciting on the auditorium stage as it sounds in the Lecture-Concert announcements. Tonight should tell the story.
