

Bessey rally to celebrate anniversary of protest vigil

Orange Power comes to Bessey Hall again tonight. Students will gather at 9 p.m. to celebrate the first anniversary of the now-famous Bessey Hall Vigil, which began one year ago tonight.

Dave Macomber, Birmingham junior, and Brad Lang, Lansing sophomore, both participants in last year's rally, have organized the anniversary.

The protest rally beginning the eight-day sit-in over Thanksgiving vacation was in sympathy with three untenured ATL instructors who had been dismissed.

The instructors were W. Gary Groat, Ken Lawless and Robert S. Fogarty. Concern of the students grew to the point that 300 of them virtually lived in Bessey Hall for more than a week.

The protest was named the "Orange Horse Rally," in honor of a poem by Lawless.

Dismayed students, including ASMSU, demanded reasons why the faculty members had been fired, while Edward A. Carlin, dean of University College, said, "There are some nine per cent of the faculty each year who are not re-appointed. The reasons are never given out."

Despite student protest, the Board of Trustees approved the dismissals.

Explaining the rally's purpose, Macomber said,

"The learning which took place at Bessey last year had ramifications far beyond the immediacy of the moment."

Those returning tonight wish to com-

ASMSU soph member opposed to tax increase

By TRINKA CLINE
State News Staff Writer

Because he feels students should be given differing viewpoints and because he disagrees with the timing and reasoning behind ASMSU's latest appropriation, Brad Lang, sophomore member-at-large, has decided to speak against the proposed tax increase.

Lang said that whether students vote for or against the increase in Monday's referendum, they should not base their decision on a "threat" of ASMSU cutting major programs.

Board members will be available in the ASMSU offices at 355-8266 between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. today, Friday and Monday to answer student questions about the proposed tax increase and the budget requests. A student referendum will be held Monday to decide whether the 50 cent per term per student tax should be raised to 75 cents.

Joan Altken, Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC) president, said Wednesday that WIC unofficially concurred with the tax increase.

Lang argues that publicity on the need for the increase has centered too heavily on possibilities of cutting such programs as Winds of Change, course evaluation, Provost Lectures and Great Issues. These programs involve nearly $14,000 of the budget.

Lang suggested telling students that cuts could be made in such areas as National Student Association expenditures, ASMSU compensation, Senior Class Council, travel, the student leadership conference and Student Education Corps (SEC), which amount to more than $12,000 of the proposed 1968 budget.

Pete Ellsworth, ASMSU vice chairman, and Lang agreed that the $2,000 used for the leadership conference held each fall for resident assistants and student government leaders was one figure to be reevaluated.

The two do not agree, however, on the Senior Class Council and SEC. Lang supports abolishment of the Senior Class Council and while he favors the SEC program itself, does not approve of the $1,200 allotted for car rental.

Ellsworth feels both the existence of the Class Council and the transportation support are justified.

Tuesday night the board allocated $170 for the Senior Council to advertise graduation information for fall term graduates. Lang said he felt the expenditure should not have been made, in view of ASMSU's present deficit spending, until after the referendum. Unless the tax increase is passed, Lang doesn't feel the Council should have been given money ASMSU does not have.

"I'm not telling students how to vote on the issue; I don't know yet how I will vote," Lang said. "I do want students to ask themselves whether student government is acting wisely."

Lang said that if the tax increase is not

OCC proposal delayed by faculty committee

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs delayed action Wednesday on Off-Campus Council's (OCC) proposal to allow students of sophomore standing to live off campus with parental consent.

The ASMSU Student Board passed the proposal Tuesday night, along with an approved amendment made by W.C. Blanton, senior member-at-large, that the proposal pertain to students who have been at MSU for three terms instead of to those of sophomore standing.

The faculty committee established a subcommittee to study the implications of "this important proposal," according to T. Clinton Cobb, chairman.

Cobb said areas that need to be considered include ability of MSU to pay dormitory debts, apartment increases in East Lansing, and feelings of fraternities, sororities and parents.

"We don't know about lots of the aspects the proposal brings up," Cobb said. "The committee should have a report by the end of January or the middle of February."

Committee members include Chairman Allan Mandelstamm, professor of economics; M. A. Medick, professor of mechanical engineering; and James Bath, assistant professor of entomology.

The committee also passed the Women's Inter-residence Council's (WIC) proposal that dress regulations be abolished in women's residence halls. This proposal, already approved by ASMSU, now awaits final approval by Milton B. Dickerson, vice-president for student affairs.

"The committee felt that the matter of dress for women, as well as men, is better left to the individual to decide," Cobb said.

He said he felt use of examples, persuasion and guidelines would be more effective than regulations.

"In no other place in society are young adults asked to dress uniformly," he added.

Students to attend NSA conference on student power

The National Student Assn. national student power conference at the University of Minnesota this weekend will be attended by four MSU students, representing ASMSU and the University Christian Movement.

Student power has been defined by NSA President Ed Schwartz as "full student authority over personal behavior and meaningful participation in decisions affecting college policies."

ASMSU will be sending Greg Hopkins, ASMSU chairman, and Beverly Twitchell, NSA coordinator for MSU.

Jim Friel, OCC President, will be attending as a delegate from the Michigan Region of NSA.

The University Christian Movement is sponsoring Carolyn Stapleton's attendance to the Minnesota conference; Miss Stapleton is the president of Associated Women Students (AWS).

ASK UN ACTION NOW

U.S., Britain seek Mideast peace

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) -- The United States and Britain appealed to the U.N. Security Council Wednesday for prompt, concerted action for a Middle East settlement.

The United States, while recognizing the need for Israeli withdrawal, backed Israel's demand for "secure and recognized" boundaries with Arab nations. Britain's Lord Caradon, urging "a final and supreme and successful effort to set aside all difference," declared that "the time to decide has come."

"This week we must conclude our debate," he said. "This week we hope to see an end of talk here and the beginning of action on the ground."

"I trust that before this week is over we shall have taken perhaps the most important decision which the United Nations has ever taken."

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, urging support for a U.S. draft resolution before the council, contended that a Middle East settlement imposed from outside could not endure.

"Only the parties themselves can make peace," he said.

Goldberg said Israel must withdraw "and the Arab states must renounce the state of belligerence which they have claimed for many years."

But he added that to seek Israeli withdrawal from the Arab territories captured in the six-day Arab-Israeli war in June "without secure and recognized boundaries" would be fruitless.

"Secure and recognized boundaries must be mutually worked out and recognized by the parties themselves as part of the peacemaking process," he said.

After hearing several more speakers, the council adjourned until 4 p.m. EST Thursday. In the interim, it appeared, a final effort to break the diplomatic deadlock and reach unanimity in the council will be made after weeks of what Caradon called "dreadful and damaging delays and persistent and frustrating disagreements."

Besides the U.S. proposal, the council had before it a resolution sponsored by India, Mali and Nigeria. Britain also has reported it is working on a compromise plan, and another compromise is expected from Brazil and Argentina, the two Latin American members of the council.

The U.S. resolution calls for the "withdrawal of armed forces from occupied territories," while the three-nation proposal states that Israel should withdraw "from all territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict."

Israel has rejected the three-nations proposal language as prejudicial to its negotiating position.

Each resolution also would dispatch a special U.N. representative to the Middle East to work out a settlement, but the

LBJ's Viet chiefs warn against long bomb halt

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Johnson's military and political chiefs in Vietnam joined Wednesday in advising against an extended bombing halt during the year-end holidays.

Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, met with Johnson and his top Washington advisers Wednesday shortly after Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. military commander in Vietnam, arrived here from Saigon.

Westmoreland and Robert Komer, Johnson's pacification officer in South Vietnam who accompanied the general from Saigon, met with the President Thursday. The White House said they and Bunker, who arrived here last week, would meet jointly with Johnson later.

Sources said Bunker gave Johnson a relatively optimistic Vietnam progress report Wednesday, but also cautioned the long pull still lies ahead.

Bunker reportedly did not press for more U.S. forces than the 525,000 men now authorized, although he indicated he and Westmoreland want a speedup in deploying the remaining 57,000 troops earmarked for Vietnam. There now are about 468,000 servicemen there.

"It is very, very encouraging," Westmoreland told newsmen as he arrived by plane from Saigon. "I have never been more encouraged in my four years in Vietnam."

At the same time Westmoreland made clear he opposes any prolonged halt in the bombing of North Vietnam at this time.

The Saigon government is proposing the usual one- and two-day cease-fires during Christmas and New Year's. Some critics have advocated a longer pause for another effort to bring Hanoi to the negotiating table.

Westmoreland said, "We can live with" short bombing halts, though "I'm not happy about the prospect." He noted the Communists normally violate cease-fires and use the truce periods to rush in supplies and reinforcements.

Bunker took a similar position after a two-hour closed-door briefing of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on what he termed the "steady progress in Vietnam." He told newsmen it would be "very unfortunate" to suspend the bombing beyond a brief holiday unless North Vietnam indicates interest in moving towards a peaceful solution. He said Hanoi has given no such indication yet.

In midafternoon, the White House said Bunker joined Johnson at his weekly lunch with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secre-

U.S.-Japan plan to return Pacific isles

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The United States and Japan are closing the gap on framing an agreement to return to Japanese political control the Bonin Islands and Okinawa, Japanese diplomatic sources reported Wednesday.

However, reports that Prime Minister Eisaku Sato considers the Okinawa question "virtually solved" are not correct, the Japanese diplomats said.

In a National Press Club luncheon speech, Sato said he has been reassured by President Johnson that the problem of Okinawa and the Bonin Islands "though a difficult one, can be solved within the framework of mutual trust between Japan and the United States."

Sato stressed that the big U.S. military base on Okinawa, the mightiest in the Western Pacific, could continue to operate effectively even if political control over the island is returned to Japan.

U.S. military authorities have not agreed with this view if it means that the United States would have to obtain Japanese approval for the movement of troops and weapons in and out of Okinawa while the Vietnam war is under way.

Japanese official sources said there had been a considerable closing of the gap between the U.S. and Japanese positions since Sato's first talk with Johnson Tuesday.

Sato declared that the early return of the Ryukyu and Bonin Islands to Japan "would vindicate itself in establishing the

Psychedelic 'trips' date to 1900 in U.S.

By MARITA MAINONE

Although LSD itself is unique the U.S. has experienced periods of drug taking by the upper middle class other than during the 1960s. Dr. Sidney Cohen, chief of psychiatry service at the Wadsworth V.A. Hospital in Los Angeles, said in Lansing Tuesday.

Cohen, a leader in LSD research, is also an associate professor of medicine at UCLA and the author of two books, "The Beyond Within," and "LSD," and over 90 scientific articles.

"At the turn of the century people described 'psychedelic' experiences from taking what we would today call minor stimulants," Cohen said. "Ether, before coming into use as an anesthetic, was used by Harvard students who told of experiencing a 'high' under its use."

Cohen said that there would no doubt be use and misuse of other chemicals after the LSD "fad" wears off, for the purpose of "getting outside of ourselves."

Cohen said that the outstanding feature of an LSD experience is the hallucinogenic visual change. He said that when the eyes are closed, colorful tapestries, interesting and unusual forms and patterns may be seen. And when the eyes are opened, the color intensity is much greater than normal.

"Things move -- ceilings breathe, faces flow and dissolve, flowers open and close. Time is 'standing still' in terms of thought and emotion, as the person crosses continually from one sensation to another. He may smell flowers, then 'scent' music," Cohen said.

Emotions under LSD may vary from ecstasy and bliss to fear and extreme panic, Cohen said. Thought patterns change from methodical and logical processes in a rush towards fantasy and dreams.

What is the value of LSD? According to Cohen, it is being used to uncover old conflicts; as a "shattering experience" to make a person begin life anew; in treatment of childhood schizophrenia; and to compose the hopelessly ill, to make them accept their fate more easily.

"LSD changes attitudes and values for better or worse," Cohen said. "On the negative side, when a person 'drops out,' he no longer accepts the premise that learning is good, or that he should prepare for a future goal."

Cohen told of adverse reactions to LSD. He said that the psychedelic way of death is not by homicide or suicide, but by accidental death.

"Under LSD, thoughts are very clear and strong. The ordinary critical self is gone, and what remains is more real than real. People actually believe they can fly," he said.

He said that ego defenses--how we protect ourselves from the harsh barbs of life--change with LSD, and account for many suicides.

"People simply can't face the horrendous thoughts bubbling up from their minds," Cohen said.

Unlike heroin, there is no physical addiction under LSD, Cohen said. "I know of no overdoses up to now, though it is being approached. A lethal dose is 15,000 micrograms."

After the LSD wears off, prolonged reactions are possible, chronic depression and psychotic states not being rare, according to Cohen.

"After prolonged use, there can be confusion, disorientation, loss of memory, and brain cell damage," he said.

Cohen said that research to determine brain damage was being conducted by comparing a group of 30 "acid heads" (those using LSD 50-100 times) with non-drug users.

He also said that LSD studies confirm that there can be chromosome alteration, which may be passed on to infants during pregnancy.

Cohen said that new people are "turning on" with LSD all the time, often junior high youngsters in the Los Angeles area.

"Forty per cent of the group of 'acid heads' were on speed, methadrene, and other drugs in astonishing amounts," Cohen said. "Three of them tried heroin, and one was deeply involved with cocaine, which after 30-40 years is resurging."

"Another phenomenon is the 'grab bag' party--the person reaches into a bag and pulls out methadrene, LSD, or something else. Why anyone should insult his mind like this, I can't see," Cohen said.

"This experimentation with drugs in East Village, Haight-Ashbury and elsewhere is as ominous as LSD. You can get an enormous paranoid psychosis from methadrene," Cohen said.

"I could program anyone to have any kind of an LSD experience, by mind speech I can produce a freak out," he said. "There is a state of great suggestibility under LSD."

Could a person be "programmed" under LSD to commit a crime he ordinarily wouldn't do? Cohen feels that it is possible, though a sense of wrong doing is retained except under very large doses.

"We've never had it so good, this may be a part of the drug story. Perhaps it is a disease of affluence," he said. "Young people are buying the less than perfect goal of chemical paradise."

"The so-called 'love' of the flower people is a thin veneer, easily shattered. Their hostilities are sublimated into love under LSD," he said.

"I'm not against love, but there is such a thing as mature love, the giving of oneself. Their kind of love is even a little 'sick,'" he said.

Is there an antidote for LSD? "If the person is having a difficult time under the influence, they can be talked out of a panic. You rarely have to resort to drugs to end a 'trip,' he said.

"If you must, barbiturates and tranquilizers given intramuscularly can help. For prolonged effects, hospital treatment has worked to help LSD-precipitated psychosis," he said.

THREE PROPOSALS

WIC discusses sign-out change

Women's Inter-Residence Council (WIC) discussed and referred to their policy committee three proposed policy changes under women's selective hours implementation Wednesday night.

One change calls for only freshmen under 21 years of age to be required to sign out prior to overnight absences. The present policy requires all coeds to sign out for overnights.

A proposed change making it legal for coeds to sign out for men's living quarters was also brought up before WIC. It is now illegal to sign out for overnight to men's living quarters.

The rationale for this change points out that sign out is for a woman's protection. If a coed is not where she has indicated, she is not being protected. Besides this argument, WIC representatives said dishonesty is being encouraged.

The third WIC policy being considered for change is one calling for women to be prohibited from having guests only on weekend and weekday nights preceding final examinations. The change would allow women to have guests during the week.

Women are presently allowed to have guests only on Friday and Saturday nights. Guests are further prohibited on weekend nights preceding final examination periods.

Joan Aitken, president of WIC, said that the policy changes on signing out for overnights and allowing guests during the week are only a beginning.

"They probably will be changed significantly before they are passed by WIC," Miss Aitken said. "They need a lot more study, they are not anywhere near being completed."

Miss Aitken said she expected the proposed change on signing out to men's apartments to be passed in its present form.

According to Miss Aitken, there is a general feeling in WIC that the women's residence halls would definitely like to try the study open houses on a temporary basis.

Official sees no fast end to Chilean woes

Solutions to Chile's many problems of social and economic development will continue to be slow and tedious, according to James Bradshaw, a government official who has worked in Chile since 1965.

Bradshaw, speaking Tuesday on "Recent Developments in Chile," told a Latin American Studies seminar that Chileans have a desire for development but are unwilling to forego today's advantages for tomorrow's development.

Bradshaw cited numerous problems with which Chile must contend, including low economic growth rates, financial instability, high priced manufactured goods, stagnant agriculture and poor education.

Chile has also experienced a high level of inflation, Bradshaw said, and taxes have been increased at a high rate in the past few years in an attempt to reduce the government deficit.

Speaking of the agricultural deficiency, Bradshaw contended that Chilean farmers could and should produce more. At present, agricultural production comprises only 10 per cent of the Chilean gross national product. A shortage of farm credit and a lack of agricultural improvements are causes of low production, according to Bradshaw.

Abortions are another problem Chile is facing. There is one abortion for every two live births, Bradshaw said, and about 20 per cent of the hospital beds in Chile are occupied by women recovering from poorly performed abortions. Abortions are illegal in Chile.

The Christian Democrats, the party now controlling Chile's government, have made efforts to solve these problems, Bradshaw noted. For example, eight new university centers are being built in Chile and there have been efforts to improve health facilities.

But Chile lacks a program of central developmental planning and the sure knowledge needed to carry out the programs for improvement it does institute, Bradshaw said.

ASMSU officials to speak on tax

Three ASMSU officials will answer questions concerning the proposed student tax hike tonight on WMSN radio from 9:30-10 p.m.

FIRST FATALITY

X15 pilot killed in crash

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (P) — An X15 rocket plane, one of three black darts that have repeatedly probed the heavens helping man learn how to maneuver in space, crashed Wednesday.

The pilot, Air Force Maj.

Michael J. Adams, 37, was killed—the first victim since the X15s began flying in 1959—191 flights ago.

Adams, on his 11th flight, was dropped from a B52 at 10:30 a.m. and shot more than 50 miles high, to about 265,000 feet, on a routine research flight.

He encountered trouble while re-entering thicker air from the fringes of space.

"There apparently was some sort of control malfunction as the pilot attempted to pull out of his descent," a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

Adams did not eject.

The plane crashed on the desert near the mining town of Johannesburg 20 miles north of here.

The three tough little rocket planes had survived ground fires and explosions, aerial mishaps and emergency landings, including two hard enough to cause serious damage. But until Wednesday pilots had escaped with injuries.

The tiny, nearly wingless planes—just 50 feet long—have amassed impressive records.

Speed and altitude records for winged craft of 4,534 miles per hour and 354,000 feet; research into problems of re-entering the earth's atmosphere from space; tests of new propulsion systems and photographs of stars made from above most of the earth's air were all accomplished by X15s. They have survived temperatures of 3,000 degrees and tremendous stresses as they panned into the atmosphere from space.

Adams' flight had a typical goal—testing a heat-resistant paint for the second stage of the Saturn moon rocket.

Tax boost urged to combat inflation

CHICAGO (P) — William McCleskey Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, urged Wednesday a quick tax increase to combat inflation.

He told the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute that a cut in federal spending also is needed.

Martin, whose central banking organization influences the flow of credit and money in the nation, implied that the later a tax boost, the higher it may be.

He recalled that President Johnson has asked in January for a six per cent surcharge on federal income taxes. His request was boosted in August to 10 per cent.

Congress has delayed action on the tax increase proposals.

Martin told the oilmen he is not predicting controls, but later said the nation "may face a wider adjustment than any of us want to see."

He said deficit financing has a role to play under certain circumstances, but added "We are on the road to getting into perpetual deficits."

He suggested it is time for setting a priority in spending.

Martin said he does not oppose anti-poverty and other programs, but an effort should be made to find out how they can be fitted into "an orderly pattern."

Martin said the productivity improvement of business had declined while wage increases have risen. The result, he added, is a cost-push inflation.

There have been a growing number of predictions from government officials that a return to tight money is inevitable without higher taxes.

Martin hinted that the Federal Reserve is ready to tighten money if necessary to restrain inflation, but he added that money policy alone can't do the job.

He favored moderation in borrowing and spending, both governmental and private.

Veterans petition for people, not policies

The MSU Veterans Association has launched a thoughtful attempt to convey Christmas greetings to American servicemen in Vietnam. By signing a petition, members of the MSU community can show their support of these servicemen as individuals.

Thomas J. Hanson, president of the organization, explained that the petition is not political, but simply an expression of the support by the average college student for the individuals involved in that far-away war.

Few could dispute the good intentions of the Veterans Association. Unfortunately, certain local radio stations and other news media are construing the signing of the document as signifying support for the war itself. This actually may serve to decrease the number of signers by alienating many who oppose present policies in Vietnam.

The servicemen in Vietnam have to a large degree suffered individually because of the general unpopularity of the war at home. Personal feats that ordinarily would be highly publicized and glorified in time of war, have gone largely unnoticed against a background of growing dissent.

But no matter how an individual feels about the war, hawk, dove, or somewhere in between, he should be willing to sign the Veterans' petition of non-political support.

Evaluation in action

ASMSU's course evaluation project swung into action last week with the initiation of questionnaire distribution in the four basic University College courses and eight other courses in the University. The success of the program now depends on two variables, in both of which students play a large part.

The course evaluation project, revamped after last spring's feeble attempt, is dependent on ASMSU funds, which are made up, among other sources, of student taxes. The tight financial situation of ASMSU has necessitated a tax increase, subject to approval by the student body in a referendum next Monday. If the increase is not approved, appropriations for course evaluation may be cut. While this is not certain, it is still a strong possibility.

Students will most directly affect the success of the project when they do, or do not, respond to the questionnaire. Only with a large student response will the findings of the study be valid.

And, thus, a student must.

MHA experiment better than nothing at all

It is hard to understand why an enlightened proposal like the one favoring more open houses in residence halls should need an "experimental" stage.

Change, we realize, comes slowly, and if Wednesday's Men's Hall Association (MHA) proposal for experiments with study open houses is the only way to convince the administration of the need for a policy change, then it is obviously needed. But there were no "experiments" when women's hours were abolished and it is hard to understand why one is needed now.

What is most absurd is the vagueness of the whole issue. Present open house policy permits open houses only on Friday evening, Saturday afternoon and evening, and Sunday afternoon. There is a paragraph concerning exceptions but no one seems to know what standard to use in judging when an exception is permissible, as Bill Barr, advisor to the Men's Hall Association, has admitted.

"We have no way of knowing how these study open houses will work," MHA President Bill Lukens said, "because we cannot have experimental ones. And we can't have these study open houses without a policy change."

But what criterion will MHA use in judging the success or failure of such an experiment? Who will judge whether students are studying or not?

There can be no doubt that change is needed in the present open house policy. Even if a liberal visiting policy does not seem feasible now, the MHA "experiment" should be instituted without delay.

For even an "experiment," no matter how uncertain its consequences, is better than the present situation.

Vote 'no' on ASMSU tax

Next Monday, Nov. 20, MSU students will be asked to vote on an all-University referendum that, if passed, will increase ASMSU's funds by 50 per cent and raise the student tax from 50 cents per term to 75.

Before the vote, members of ASMSU will engage in a massive propaganda effort, involving residence hall lectures and newspaper articles. They will try to convince the student body that if the tax is not passed, such things as Winds of Change, Provost lectures, Water Carnival and Pop Entertainment will be severely cut, if not eliminated.

Presently, ASMSU is considering a proposed budget deficit of $20,618.44. The facts are these: ASMSU has been financially irresponsible. It refuses to cut its own inflated expenses and is making unnecessary threats to frighten students who are against the tax increase.

ASMSU is lying to the student body. It does not need the extra funds and, more important, it doesn't deserve them. On the basis of the way it handled last year's money, a stronger case could be made for cutting funds rather than increasing them. As one source said:

"The ASMSU Board has not evaluated their own expenses for the coming budget. They are not willing to consider cutting any of their own expenses, but talk only of eliminating services to the students. They haven't demonstrated financial responsibility, and a defeat of this tax proposal would be the best thing possible."

To illustrate how ASMSU works financially, consider this: the Board has estimated the debt for the year ending Dec. 31, 1967, at $1500 but no one, not even the ASMSU Comptroller, knows exactly how much it will be. Everyone admits it could be larger. The records of additional expenses already spent from this year's budget surplus of $2,581.33 have been recorded only up to May 31.

Even these figures already show a $579.78 deficit.

Now the Board is presenting figures to the student body of requested funds needed by each organization for next year when many of these requests are notoriously overestimated. One girl told the board Tuesday she had already spent $1400 of unapproved money on two lecturers for the Provost series.

There is another fact the board members are not telling the students. It is conservatively estimated that roughly 50 per cent of this year's proposed budget will go for services of board members--the student body will not see a cent. By ASMSU's own figures, available to anyone in the comptroller's office, this is how next year's budget looks:

General Fund, which includes such things as telephone, supplies, postage, labor, debt payment and the like--$21,245.85. (Not one of these items has been cut from last year, some have increased).

Board expenses--$1,190.

N.S.A. -- $1,468.

Total of Board expenses--$23,903.85.

On a budget request of $47,800, that figures out to over 50 per cent that MSU students will never see. Why no cuts here? And this does not include the Student Leadership Conference ($2,000) and other student "benefits."

Consider this:

1. The Board has a "local" phone system which enables members to reach each other's office by dialing only two numbers, instead of five. This service costs between $200-$250 per year.

2. The Board runs a loan service whereby any student can borrow $15 for three weeks with no interest payment. This service is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., five days a week. Why hasn't the board cut this down to 4 hours per day, in the afternoon, and thereby eliminated the extra expense of a secretary and bookkeeper in the mornings. Estimated saving: $1000. Board action: nil. ("Most of the secretaries have nothing to do in the morning anyway," said ICC Executive Vice President Fred Fry.)

3. ASMSU is planning a $350 banquet for the Board of Trustees and itself under the title of "External Public Relations". Last year they even gave themselves plaques. This doesn't include $500 the Senior Council is spending on a banquet.

A few more facts about the "financial reality":

On May 26 of this year, the Board officially went into debt when it used the last $800 in its reserve fund to send delegates to the National Student Association convention at the University of Maryland, knowing full well it didn't have the money to pay for it.

"Most of the members generally had a good time," said member-at-large Harvey Dzodin. "But a couple really learned things. I think it was worth it." Fred Fry said ASMSU has never published a report of just what it "learned." "One is being prepared now," said Chairman Greg Hopkins.

On Nov. 7, the Budget Committee approved the payment of travel and lodging expenses for Bill Lukens and Jim Friel to attend a Student Power conference. When I asked Dzodin why the Board spent money for NSA it did not have, he said something that could apply here also: "I'm sure many board members anticipated this tax."

"When you give something to somebody with no strings attached they tend to lose sight of where the money comes from," a source said. "To ASMSU, the money represent figures it can juggle around."

Finally, the Board is guilty of lying about the programs it says will have to be cut back. Pop entertainment and Water Carnival have their own reserve fund and there is no reason to mention cutting them.

Tuesday night the Budget Committee proposed these actions:

1. Legal Aid, which received $2,000 last year--recommended "cut" from a requested $3000 to $2400--$400 MORE than it received last year.

2. Great Issues--recommended cut from $4,500 to $2,250.

"Financially, the board doesn't have to cut Great Issues," I was informed. "It is strictly a political threat to punish students if they don't approve the tax increase."

The motives of most Board members are, I'm sure, well-intentioned, and many of the programs are real benefits, enough to warrant more money--next year maybe, but not now.

Students should vote "no" on the tax referendum Monday. "It is only 25 cents" or "All the other Universities spend much more" are no arguments. Twenty-five cents is 50 per cent more than last year and 100 per cent more than two years ago, and who knows how the money is spent at other Universities? Why should MSU follow them?

With the phony threats and faulty financing, and with ASMSU's delight in sacrificing all expenses but their own, the board members have shown that they deserve nothing but a good lesson in economics. To give them more money at this time would start a trend that will only encourage irresponsibility.

Vote against the increase Monday, and make it a vote against any government that spends itself into debt and then tries to punish its constituents. Make it a vote against irresponsibility.

OUR READERS' MINDS

ASMSU budget lacks logic

To the Editor:
An open letter to Greg Hopkins, Chairman, ASMSU

Dear Greg,

Recently the point has been made that ASMSU is in financial difficulty. It has been said that if the tax increase is not approved by the student body, then cutbacks in the proposed budget would have to be made. It has been mentioned that among the first programs to get the axe would be Winds of Change, Provost Lectures, Great Issues, legal aid and course evaluation.

It appears to this student that the proposal for cutbacks in the ASMSU budget was made with the same lack of logic with which the budget was prepared originally. ASMSU might better cut the many expenditures for programs that do not benefit the students of MSU either directly or indirectly.

Please note the following allocations in the proposed budget that the board would be wise to reconsider:

That preposterous $3,900 phone bill. The $650 that the board spends on banquets for itself.

The $2,600 with which the board compensates itself.

The $50 that the board spends for pictures of itself.

The $1,160 in travel and miscellaneous expenses of our delegates to the NSA Congress.

These expenses are above and beyond the $300 dues that we were told NSA membership would cost. Since at this date not one of our delegates to last summer's Congress has submitted a written report, ASMSU would be wise to also delete the following waste from its budget.

The $300 per year that you spend on yourself for travel and miscellaneous expenses in connection with the Big Ten Presidents Conferences.

The $425 hospitality fund that you and the Cabinet President spend. This should be eliminated simply because neither of you ever have to account for this money.

The $14,000 bookstore. This figure must be a result of ASMSU committee action.

The $1,200 that the students of MSU pay each year to rent cars to enable the Student Education Corps to get to their classes.

The $900 that MSU students are forced to give to charity in the name of the Campus Community Commission.

The $10,000 outlay for office labor. This could reasonably be reduced by $3,000 or so, although board members might have to begin typing up their own homework papers.

The $750 for office equipment. Since the walkie talkies that the board purchased last year for around $400 have never been used, maybe they should be sold or pawned.

The Off Campus and Senior Class Council budget requests. These total over $2,500, are far out of line and could easily be cut in half.

The $1,500 set aside to cover the debt incurred by last year's board. This debt represents a glaring lack of financial responsibility on the part of the board. The worst thing that MSU students could do is to condone this irresponsibility by increasing the ASMSU tax.

If ASMSU would reexamine its budget as outlined here, it could cut over $25,000 of waste from areas that in no way affect services enjoyed by the MSU student body. The board could then maintain Winds of Change, Great Issues and the other worthwhile programs. It would still have a $5,000 surplus to cover contingencies, or, better yet, to spend on publicity to create a general awareness about what student government is doing.

Sincerely,

Dave Penz

Duffy's great!

To the Editor:

The editorial cartoon concerning the effigy of Duffy inspired us to write an overdue thank you to Coach Daugherty. Two weeks ago he took time out of his busy schedule to discuss informally with the girls in our house the pros and cons of football and the need for school spirit. His witty presentation, willingness to answer questions, candid remarks, and personal enthusiasm proved he is still the epitome of Spartan Spirit.

It was obvious that he is a true friend of MSU. And though our team may not be in the winning column, we still think Duffy is the greatest!

Basketball magician

Meadowlark Lemon, the "Clown Prince" of basketball, will be performing here with the Harlem Globetrotters, Thursday, Nov. 29. Lemon, who has been touring 13 years with the Trotters, will lead his team against the Washington Generals at Jenison Fieldhouse.

Globetrotters to perform here Nov. 29

The world-famed Harlem Globetrotters, basketball's most noted road show, return to Michigan State's Jenison Fieldhouse for the third year on Wednesday, Nov. 29, at 8 p.m.

The traveling basketball wizards together with their variety show company will stage a two-and-a-half hour program. It will be sponsored by the Varsity Club, the undergraduate organization of MSU athletic lettermen. All proceeds will go to the Varsity Club.

The Globetrotters are in their 42nd year of existence and currently are on a campaign that will take them all over the U.S., Canada, Mexico, islands of the Caribbean, Australia, New Zealand and Europe before it is completed next summer.

Tickets for the show now are on sale at three locations—MSU's Jenison Fieldhouse ticket office, the campus Union Building Ticket Office, and the Paramount News Center in Lansing.

Prices are $3.50 for reserved seats, $2 for general admission, and $1.50 for all students.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Triple Crown winner Carl Yastrzemski became the fourth Boston Red Sox star ever to win the American League's Most Valuable Player award Wednesday when he received 19 of a possible 20 first-place votes.

The vote that prevented the 28-year old Yastrzemski from being a unanimous selection went to Cesar Tovar, who played six positions for the Minnesota Twins and finished seventh in the overall balloting by the 20-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Orlando Cepeda, slugging first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, was a unanimous selection this year as the National League's MVP.

Yastrzemski, who led the American League with a .326 average and 121 runs batted in and tied Harmon Killebrew for the home run lead with 44, got 19 first-place votes and one second-place vote for 275 of a possible 280 points. Fourteen points were awarded for a first-place vote, nine for a second-place vote, eight for third and so on down to one for 10.

Killebrew, the only other player mentioned on all 20 ballots, was second in the voting with 161 points, followed by catcher Bill Freehan of the Detroit Tigers with 137, pitcher Joe Horlen of the Chicago White Sox with 91 and outfielder Al Kaline of the Tigers with 88.

Rounding out the top 10 were pitcher Jim Lonborg of the Red Sox with 82, Tovar and shortstop Jim Fregosi of the California Angels with 70 each, pitcher Gary Peters of the White Sox with 37 and first baseman George Scott of the Red Sox with 33.

Fifteen other players, representing seven of the league's 10 teams, received at least one vote. No Cleveland, Kansas City or New York player was mentioned, marking the first time since the award was inaugurated in 1931 that no member of the Yankees received a vote.

Yastrzemski, who won his first American League batting title with a .321 average in 1963, seemed to be at the crossroads of his career when the 1967 season started. He had slumped to a .278 average in 1966 and was a major concern of Dick Williams, Red Sox manager.

Yastrzemski said he was very happy to be so honored but admitted slight disappointment that the vote wasn't unanimous.

"It would have been nice if it were unanimous," he said, "But we won the pennant and that is the only thing I'm really concerned about."

"I don't care what you hear from others," Yastrzemski told Williams last spring. "I am going to give you everything I've got."

Yastrzemski was as good as his word.

He swung the big stick for the Red Sox from the start of the season and was a game-winning hitter in game after game as an unprecedented four-team race developed among the Red Sox, Twins, Tigers and White Sox.

Marshall waits for QB chance

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

"Number 19, now in a quarter-back for Michigan State."

That announcement at South Bend had the faithful scrambling for their programs.

But a quick scan of the program assured everyone that 19 belongs to senior Eric Marshall, 5-8, 165-pounder, from Oxford, Miss. Marshall is the back-up quarterback for Jimmy Raye and Bill Feraco.

Playing time comes hard for Marshall, who admitted that he enjoyed the chance against Notre Dame.

"I was happy and fortunate to get in against a fine team like Notre Dame, but I was disappointed that I didn't get in earlier," he said.

A little scared, Marshall delivered by picking up six yards over left end in a pressure situation when MSU was on its own one-yard line.

Limited action in last year's North Carolina State and Purdue games sums up the college career of an athlete with a busy past as a prep.

A football player since junior high, Marshall was named all-conference four straight years in high school. He threw 52 touchdown passes the last two years. Those two years saw him honored as a high school All-American.

Though Marshall would like to play more often, he realizes that his job on the bench is important to the team.

"You've got to keep the team up, give them all the support you can."

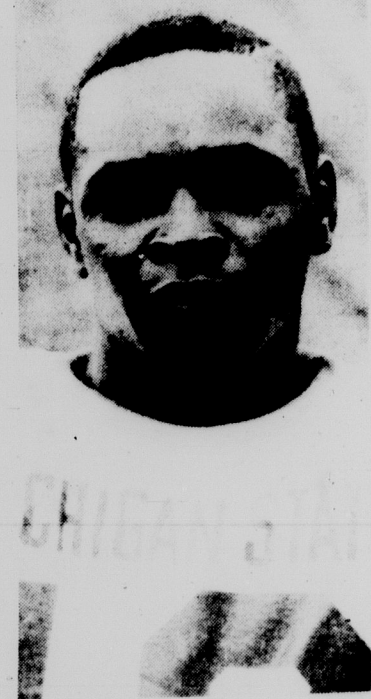

"But for me, as a quarterback, one of the main things I do on the bench is to analyze the defense of the other team, to see which back might be weak. I watch the ends very carefully," he said.

"Football is entertainment," he added, "But it's not like watching a movie. You've got to concentrate on the game."

Marshall, a political science and pre-law major, hopes to attend the University of Chicago next year.

For right now, Marshall feels that the team is a lot better than the statistics show, but it has been held back by numerous injuries.

"I'm ready anytime they need me," he said. "I hope I can do a good job."

TV majors run 'Gamut' to learn

What does a television producer do when he discovers the videotape of a program slated for broadcast the next morning has been stretched, resulting in picture distortion and must be discarded?

This is not the sort of problem a television-radio major would learn to cope with in one of the department's 10-week courses, yet it is likely to occur in the practice of TV production. Happily, the fledgling producer at MSU has another avenue open to him, in addition to his classroom work, through which he may augment his learning with practical experience. This opportunity for "on the air training" is WMSB's weekly television program, "Gamut."

"Gamut" is the product of the MSU Broadcasters, an organization comprised of TV and radio majors and grad students formed last year. The student members of MSU Broadcasters produce the series autonomously, handling production, direction, McKnight, Fenton graduate student, "unless you get 16 in a row." Consequently an effort was made at diversification, experimenting with art forms from pantomime to original drama, and from documentary to rock and roll.

After the producer has decided upon subject matter, he contacts the organization's crew coordinator who puts together a staff to handle lighting, camera work, video switching and other technical duties. The only job not handled by students is the engineering and running of the videotape recorder.

If the producer needs to obtain a certain kind of performer, he consults the program's talent coordinator.

At 8:30 the Saturday morning of the taping session, the staff does a run-through, working with the on-camera participants. This precedes the actual taping at 10:30.

There is currently a 2-week lapse between taping and airtime, but the MSU Broadcasters hope to extend this period to 3 weeks in order to facilitate publicity and technical problems.

A problem recently encountered in the production of a program about soccer is indicative of the complexities that often confront the novice producers. The plan called for film clips of the preceding week's MSU-St. Louis soccer game, but the only available recording of the contest was on videotape. This presented a dilemma since WMSB has only 3 videotape machines, one of which was being used to tape the body of the show. Another was being used to play back a program on-the-air during taping, and the third was set up to record a football game at Spartan Stadium.

It was decided to use the stadium machine employing microwave transmission and cuing by telephone. No small degree of confusion resulted when the line to the studio was found to be busy immediately before the taping.

Robert Schlatter, who serves as faculty advisor to "Gamut," is pleased with the program's success as an instructional tool. He noted "Gamut" was recently syndicated to two commercial outlets and a Detroit educational channel and cites several instances of favorable viewer feedback.

"Gamut" can be seen on Channel 10 at 11:30 a.m. every Saturday.

WITTY FINALE

'Rodeo' number highlights ballet

By JIM ROOS
State News Reviewer

"All's well that ends well," or so the saying goes. As applied to last Tuesday's presentation of the American Ballet Theatre is surely rings true. In a program of four vignettes, divided equally between excellence and mediocrity, the evening ended with a bang.

The finale, Aaron Copland's "Rodeo," is a delightful ballet. Utilizing Agnes de Mille's zippy choreography, it has been an American Ballet Theatre specialty for many years.

Christine Saray, as the Cowgirl, pranced and pantomimed with wit and humor, as did her dashing partners, William Glassman, the Champion Roper, and Ted Kivitt, the Head Wrangler.

In the colorful "Saturday Night Dance" sequence the cast sprung to life, delivering the famous "Hoe Down" with unusual aplomb.

The other success was "The Catherine Wheel," Choreographed by Michael Smuin and set to an appropriately acrid score by Timothy Thompson, it depicts the fidelity or infidelity of man and woman.

Each of the six dancers was well-cast. Edward Verso was a convincingly wicked playboy and Susan Casey provided a fiancée of splendid remorse. Smuin's inventiveness was evident throughout, as was his dancing ability in the role of the Soldier.

The wrong choice of music can sometimes spoil a ballet. With American Ballet Theatre this seems to be a problem. I remember a performance of Anthony Tudor's "Jardin Aux Lilas" two years ago. Set to the music of Chausson's poem, attention that should have been focused on the dancers was often distracted by the beautiful violin solo.

Tuesday night the problem appeared again in "Dark Elegies" and "Harbinger." The former is another of Tudor's mistakes, this time set to Mahler's "Kindertotenlieder." The music is clearly too good for the choreography. Tudor has his dancers roam aimlessly around the stage as Bruce Stevenson lovingly interprets the Mahler masterpieces. As a musical experience it isn't half bad, even with a pit orchestra. As ballet, it simply doesn't work.

There is too much walking and lifting and not enough combination of horizontal-vertical movements. As a result, the "elegies" appear "dead" rather than "dark." They lack movement. As in "Jardin," the gaudy backdrop merely adds to the lethargic atmosphere.

The opening "Harbinger" suffered from similar flaws. Set to all, except the first movement, of Prokofiev's 5th Piano Concerto, the ballet lacks imaginative choreography, cohesion and logic.

It is true that Prokofiev's 2nd Concerto was once considered by Diaghilev for a ballet. However, the 5th, in spite of its motoric rhythms and jabbing accents, is a more complex work.

Consequently, it demands more complex and closely thought-out choreography than Eliot Field could provide.

HOUSE GOP EFFORT

Poverty bill faces cuts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—The House continued Wednesday to beat down all efforts to revise the anti-poverty bill, but it still faced the threat of a final Republican effort to slash the program's funds.

A motion to trim the fund authorization from $2.06 billion to $1.6 billion is expected to be the final GOP thrust before the measure is put to a decisive vote.

The Senate has passed a bill authorizing $2.2 billion, so a compromise will have to be worked out with the House position.

Working swiftly through a dwindling stack of amendments as it considered the bill for the seventh day, the House okayed main features of the legislation as it came out of the Education and Labor Committee.

A key victory was scored by the bill's supporters when they defeated another attempt to delete a provision that would put Community Action agencies under der the control of public officials.

Offered by Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., the amendment would have restored language to the bill permitting Community Action agencies to be independent of any government control.

Hawkins said the committee proposal would destroy the essence of community action by removing a requirement for "maximum feasible participation of the poor" in setting up anti-poverty programs.

"You would make the poor subservient," Hawkins told supporters of the provision. "You would make them go hat in hand to city hall and beg for help. You want them to feel humble and grateful."

Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., who sponsored the provision in the committee, said it is intended to "prevent maximum feasible control by minimum feasible participation."

She said under existing law, representatives of the poor chosen in elections in which only two per cent of those eligible participate, have gained control of millions of dollars without being accountable to anyone.

Hawkins' proposal was defeated 153 to 57 and the House then went on to vote down a string of other amendments in a push toward a final vote.

Among the amendments defeated was one that would have eliminated a requirement in the bill that communities put up 10 per cent of the cost of an anti-poverty program in cash. Present law permits the local contribution to be in services or equipment.

Rep. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y., sought to have the existing provision retained. He was beaten 117 to 95.

One amendment adopted would prohibit attorneys for the poor operating under the program from defending anyone charged with participating in a demonstration.

OCC to handle students' gripes

Off Campus Council (OCC) has found a method to handle grievances of off campus students through local, county and federal agencies, according to Leon Brenner, chairman of the OCC communications committee.

Brenner would not comment on these methods. He said people that have any grievances, ranging from health to economic problems, should contact the OCC office.

A meeting will be held for all people interested in working on OCC projects and being field representatives at 9:30 tonight in 38 Union.

"We will be discussing the proposed bi-weekly newsletter," Brenner said. "At the meeting Sunday everyone agreed to work on it first."

For liberal arts majors

PQT

*Professional Qualification Test—A prerequisite to qualify for a career position with the National Security Agency.

WHEN: December 9, 1967
WHERE: Contact your Placement Office for location of test nearest you, or write to NSA (address below) right away!

If you expect to receive a liberal arts degree before September 1968 register for the Professional Qualification Test. Taking and passing the PQT doesn't commit or obligate you to anything, but we urge you—even if you are not now fully certain of your future interests—to investigate NSA career opportunities.

An Agency of national prominence, this unique organization is responsible for developing "secure" communications systems to transmit and receive vital information. How and why does that affect you? Because NSA has a critical and growing need for imaginative people—regardless of your academic major.

You will participate in programs of national importance, working in such areas as: Cryptography (the making of codes and ciphers), analytic research, language research, data systems design and programming, and administrative management.

At NSA, your professional status and earning power grow rapidly from the day you begin, without having to wait for years of "experience." Starting salary of at least $6,700 (for bachelor's degrees), regular increases, excellent advancement possibilities... and all the benefits of Federal employment. Another advantage is NSA's location, convenient to both Baltimore and Washington and a short drive from ocean beaches and other recreational attractions.

Plan to take the PQT. It could be your first step to a great future!

IMPORTANT: THE DEADLINE FOR PQT APPLICATIONS IS NOVEMBER 27. Pick up a PQT Bulletin at your Placement Office. It contains full details and the necessary registration form. Applicants must be U. S. citizens, subject to a complete physical examination and background investigation.

U.S., Japan plan isle returns

(continued from page one) relationship between our two countries... on an even firmer foundation and would contribute toward the achievement of security and peace throughout the whole of Asia."

Newsman asked Sato if Japan is making similar efforts to obtain the return of northern islands including Sakhalin and the small Habomai and Shikotan islands from the Soviet Union.

"I am going to have direct negotiations with the Soviet government on this question," he replied. He said the Soviet Union had indicated some kind of interim solution might be possible before a formal peace treaty between the two countries is concluded.

Sato was asked what effect a U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam without reaching a peace settlement would have on Asian countries. He said that Johnson has pledged to withdraw U.S. forces when peace has been achieved.

"As far as the Asian leaders are concerned," he added, "until permanent peace is achieved they would not like to see a U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam now."

He was applauded when he said that a U.S. bombing pause in North Vietnam should have some response from Hanoi that would lead to meaningful talks that would open the way to peace.

NSA conference

(continued from page one) Following the opening banquet and speech by Schwartz Friday evening, delegates will discuss in small groups "study power confrontations" and analyze the "power structure" of universities and colleges.

Saturday morning the student representatives will hear from Robert VanWaes, executive of the American Association of University Professors.

Workshops are planned on press tactics, women's hours, student unions, financial autonomy and/or incorporation by student governments, student legal rights, strikes, boycotts and anti-war activity on campuses.

LBJ's chiefs against bomb halt

Instead of a troop increase, the Vietnam advisers believe many U.S. contingents now used for construction and other logistical duties can be assigned to combat because the basic building jobs are completed. Completed jobs include five ports, 68 air strips and eight jet plane fields in the last 2 1/2 years.

The Vietnam chiefs' report is said to shape up like this:

On the military front, the North Vietnamese were not able to score a single victory in the South this year. They suffered heavy losses in battle, and the air raids caused them to put 500,000 more men to work on repairs to keep their war machine going.

The Viet Cong guerrillas in the South also suffered heavy losses.

On the political front, South Vietnam took important strides in holding five elections within the last 14 months, establishing a constitutional government in Saigon and beginning to expand military recruitment and give tax and land reform functions to local governments.

Lang opposed to tax increase

(continued from page one) approved, sufficient cutbacks can be made by cutting the programs he mentioned and the bookstore request of $14,000 to make up the deficit in the proposed budget, pay off the 1967 debt (estimated $1,500), allow for a $4,500 general fund for the Fourth Session and maintain the status quo in other programs.

Ellsworth also added that some money must be found in 1968 to begin building up a special projects reserve fund in case of extensive loss from pop entertainment or Water Carnival. He continued that if several members of the board could be released from "worrying where the next dollar would come from," there would be much more accomplished in the way of policy changes by the board.

Lang noted that perhaps if the tax increase is turned down, the board should consider this a mandate to reevaluate its past and proposed behavior, especially regarding financial matters. He also said students should keep in mind that although taxes were just increased last year, a deficit was incurred this year. "If they feel the deficit was worth it in improving their services, they should vote yes."

Tuesday the board also passed regulation changes proposed by MHA and OCC dealing with women in public areas of men's living units and with off-campus living regulations.

Jim Monton was approved Tuesday as compensation chairman for winter term.
