

McNamara cites N. Vietnam buildup in report to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara reported to Congress Thursday North Vietnam is expected to increase sharply its armed strength in South Vietnam in the next few months.

McNamara's warning, set against a backdrop of guerrilla assaults on Saigon and other South Vietnamese areas, came in a sober accounting of the war effort as he prepares to leave office.

The Pentagon chief's assessment of the conflict, as well as the whole realm of U.S. security matters, was presented to the Senate Armed Services Committee at a closed session. A censored version was made public.

In the strategic area, McNamara disclosed that the Soviet Union more than doubled its force of land-based nuclear missiles facing this nation—from 340 to 720—in the 12 months ending last Oct. 1.

McNamara's 219-page document—his annual "military posture" statement—spoke of both gains and setbacks in Southeast Asia.

At times he pointedly placed the burden of responsibility for lack of success on the South Vietnamese.

"No matter how great be the resources we commit to the struggle, we cannot provide the South Vietnamese with the will to survive as an independent nation... or with the ability and self-discipline a people must have to govern themselves," he said.

In comments prepared before Wednesday's Viet Cong attack on Saigon, McNamara said the enemy has suffered huge combat losses.

Increasingly aggressive guerrilla attacks have slowed pacification in rural areas and "heightened the feeling of insecurity" in South Vietnamese cities and towns, he stated.

In contrast, McNamara said, bigger battles have "conclusively demonstrated that the Communist main force units are simply no match" for allied forces.

McNamara said North Vietnam received perhaps $1 billion in aid last year from Russia and other Communist countries and still has not infiltrated into the South "any very large part" of its active army.

FEB. 21 HEARING

Judiciary schedules ROTC conflict case

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

The Student-Faculty Judiciary has scheduled the ROTC controversy which started fall term for its first case hearing Feb. 21, Skip Rudolph, judiciary chairman, announced Thursday.

James R. Thomas, East Lansing special student, filed his complaint with the judiciary at the beginning of this term accusing the Dept. of Military Science with violating portions of the Academic Freedom Report.

Thomas had written two letters to the State News fall term criticizing MSU's ROTC program and was requested by Dept. Chairman Col. Robert G. Platt to drop the Military Science 100 course he had been visiting fall term.

Herman King, assistant to the process also wrote Thomas a letter informing him that he was disenrolling him through his office.

"This represents an extremely big test case of issues," Rudolph said.

Rudolph said the judiciary has contacted Thomas and will send a copy of Thomas' original complaint to the ROTC Dept., who may choose their own representatives for the hearing.

Thomas said Thursday that he was planning on someone as counsel for the hearing, but had not decided on a particular individual yet.

The judiciary decided at its meeting Wednesday night that the hearing would be closed to the public, although the freedom report instructs Milton B. Dickerson, vice president for student affairs, to make the internal decision.

One reason for the closed hearing is to avoid a "circus atmosphere," Rudolph said. He wants the parties involved to be able to discuss issues openly.

He stressed that he "doesn't want students to get the impression that we decide secret things behind closed doors."

"After we make our deliberations we will give reasons and a rationale behind the decision and also give any dissenting views." The judiciary makes a decision by majority vote.

Rudolph added that the "judiciary will only be good, in my opinion, if we never reach a consensus."

Thomas' complaint to the judiciary includes these main points mostly from Article 2 of the freedom report:

"--Factually inaccurate material was presented as 'truth' in the Military Science 100 course he was visiting.

"--The Dept. of Military Science violates articles 'which encourage the learning process via dissemination of ideas and free exchange of ideas, in that the military, by its own regulations, is excluded from discussing certain topics of a political nature."

"--Col. Platt 'with no valid reason,' disenrolled him from his course.

"--He was disenrolled 'for political ideology rather than class conduct.'

"--'It appears questionable information as to my qualifications for the first year course were presented to the Registrar in order to obtain my disenrollment,' Thomas also wrote.

Spoonful Tickets

Tickets for the Lovin' Spoonful were sold out at noon Thursday. According to Don Banghart, Popular Entertainment chairman, there may still be 50 or 75 tickets on sale at the door at 7 p.m. tonight.

The Lovin' Spoonful will perform at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium.

N. Korea suggests use of old truce commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Responding quickly to a North Korean suggestion, the United States said Thursday it is prepared to try again to seek release of the Pueblo and its crew through the Military Armistice Commission at Panmunjom.

North Korea harshly rebuffed the first U.S. request at the Korean Truce Commission meeting place Jan. 24, just after the Reds had seized the American intelligence ship and its 83 crewmen.

After 10 days of fruitless attempts to win back the vessel and men through the U.N. Security Council, the International Red Cross and various diplomatic channels, U.S. authorities are willing to make a second effort at Panmunjom.

But no one here is predicting early success. The last time the Armistice Commission handled a U.S. prisoner case, it took a year of meetings before the Americans—two helicopter pilots—were freed by the Communists.

The North Korean hint came in an English-language Pyongyang radio broadcast of a statement by a secretary of the Communist Korean Workers Party, Kim Kwang Hyop.

Kim said the United States cannot solve the Pueblo affair by military threats, aggressive war or "illegal discussion at the United Nations." But "it will be a different story if they want to solve this question by methods of previous practice," he said.

Quoting Kim's words, State Dept. press officer Robert J. McCloskey announced "the United States is prepared to deal with this matter through this channel."

"The interest of the U.S. government," he added, "is in obtaining the release of the vessel and its crewmen. I do not want to let modalities and technicalities stand in the way."

Under the procedures of the Armistice Commission set up at the end of the 1950-53 Korean War, either side can request a meeting when it wants to talk to the other.

The chief delegate on the U.N. command side, American Rear Adm. John V. Smith, is expected to seek a meeting promptly, McCloskey said the North Koreans responded within one day to the request for the meeting which was held last week.

At that Jan. 24 session, Smith called for immediate return of the vessel and a North Korean apology.

Fowler leaves door open for backdown on surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the administration is insisting on a 10 per cent income tax surcharge, there are increasing signs that something less will be acceptable.

It undoubtedly will boil down to just how much Congress will approve, if anything. Key congressional leaders have balked thus far at a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes, a measure they have been sitting on since last Aug. 3.

The first firm hint of a possible yielding in administration attitude went virtually unnoticed at a news briefing on the $186.1-billion budget submitted to Congress last Monday.

At that session, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler backed up President Johnson's strong appeal for the 10 per cent surcharge but left the door open for a lesser amount.

In talking of the debate already under way, Fowler said the decision to increase deficit in this and the next fiscal year by $16 billion over-all cannot be delayed much longer.

He followed that up with this statement: "It will be taken by affirmative action on the President's tax proposal as proposed or in amended form or simply by failure to act. This is the first decisive issue presented by the President's budget."

Now it is learned that the phrase "or in amended form" was included deliberately to show that the administration's stand is not an all-or-nothing position; that officials are willing to face reality if Congress comes up with a lower rate despite their belief that 10 per cent is needed.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., said he had consulted closely with administration officials before offering a proposal on Wednesday for a five per cent surcharge on individual taxes and eight per cent on corporations.

He said he had reason to believe this plan might be acceptable to the administration. It's highly unlikely, however, that the administration will formally endorse it, Williams is senior Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee.

During the spending debate last year, Fowler in a speech said Congress has the tools to cut federal outlays if it wants. Congress later approved a resolution cutting more than $4 billion from this year's budget.

High administration officials contended Thursday the President's spending program is realistic and it is unlikely that Congress will be able to cut enough to "alter the degree of tax policy," meaning the 10 per cent surcharge.

Actually, if the surcharge were adopted on individuals by April 1 as proposed, with a June 30, 1969 expiration date, it

Nixon affirms candidacy, GOP primary intentions

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon announced formally Thursday that he is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and said, "I believe I have found some answers" to the problems confronting the United States.

"I have decided, therefore, to enter the Republican presidential primary in New Hampshire," he said.

It was issued in the form of a letter to the citizens of New Hampshire. Nixon prepared to open his drive with three days of appearances in that state, beginning Friday. From there, his office said, he will go to Wisconsin and Oklahoma.

New Hampshire's primary, scheduled for March 12, is the nation's first. Wisconsin follows on April 2.

In his statement, Nixon said the United States is in "grave difficulties around the world and here at home."

He said the efforts to find solutions transcend partisan politics.

"Peace and freedom in the world, and peace and progress here at home," the statement continued, "will depend on the decisions of the next president of the United States."

"For these critical years, America needs new leadership."

Nixon reminded the voters of his 14 years of experience in Washington, during which, he said, "I learned the awesome nature of the great decisions a president faces." He went on:

"During the past eight years I have had the chance to reflect on the lessons of public office, to measure the nation's tasks and its problems from a fresh perspective. I have sought to apply those lessons to the needs of the present, and to the entire sweep of this final third of the 20th century."

"And I believe I have found some answers."

Nixon aides said the letters went to 150,000 homes in New Hampshire, or

INCREASING DEMANDS

Lansing utility plans new power plant

By JIM SCHAEFER
State News Staff Writer

The Lansing Board of Water and Light, presently contracted to MSU to supply stand-by electrical power, and its general manager, a former consultant to the University, announced plans Wednesday to build a one million kilowatt power plant in Delta township.

Presented before various Lansing and Delta township officials, the $200 million project, to be located on a site of nearly 400 acres west of Lansing, is part of the continued expansion program of the municipal utility.

A 138,000 volt substation, built adjacent to the proposed main plant, will transmit power to the utility's distribution system, including East Lansing.

The new plant, serving as the main producer of electricity for the utility, will feature devices for prevention of air and water pollution.

Claud R. Erickson, general manager, said preliminary plans call for an initial 150,000 kilowatt unit to be installed in 1972. He said the ultimate capacity of the new plant, once operating on all five or six generators, would exceed one million kilowatts.

This output would make the proposed plant the largest municipal power plant in Michigan, said Erickson, and it would be among the largest municipal plants in the United States.

The ex-consultant to the University said the new plant would "provide utmost reliability and continuity of service at the lowest possible rates to meet increasing demands."

Erickson also noted that two new generators at the Eckert plant will be added to the electrical system, presently putting out some 249,000 kilowatts. One, to be completed by the end of this month, will produce some 80,000 kilowatts.

At present, the MSU Board of Trustees are negotiating a contract with another electrical utility company, Consumer's Power, to handle the stand-by needs of the University.

The trustees had decided to terminate

VIETNAM CHAOS

4th day of fighting

SAIGON (AP)—Sniper fire in Saigon streets and battle action at other points up and down South Vietnam marked the opening today of the fourth day of a Communist offensive that has cut into resources on both sides.

While the country plunged deeper into chaos, Gen. William Westmoreland painted a picture of the blunting of the Red drive. He told newsmen it was a go for broke proposition and there is evidence to suggest the enemy "is about to run out of steam."

"He has, however, some reserves yet to be committed," said the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam. "We are watching this."

U.S. and Vietnamese troops and aircraft broke up major enemy elements around Saigon, but the Communists carried on harassing operations in small groups.

A large U.S. billet called the Five Oceans came under small-arms fire. There was further shooting around the Tan Son Nhut airbase, northwest of town. South Vietnamese marines tangled with a Communist detachment of undetermined size little more than a mile north of the airbase. North Vietnamese troops were reported operating alongside Viet Cong in Saigon for the first time. Allied authorities said they were among five enemy battalions, perhaps 2,000 men, which opened the attack on the South Vietnamese capital Tuesday.

One of the crises, at Quang Tri City, abated. The U.S. Command announced helicopter-borne troops and gunships of the 1st Air Cavalry Division restored government control of that provincial capital, 19 miles south of the demilitarized zone, part of which was seized Tuesday by about 800 North Vietnamese regulars.

take him many, many weeks to recover, and in some areas many months."

Westmoreland said 5,800 Communists have been killed and allied forces have detained 2,500 suspects. The highest number of the enemy previously reported killed in any one week was 2,868 who fell from last Dec. 31 to Jan. 6.

The U.S. Command said there were 555 allied dead, including 232 Americans. Many civilians have fallen and property damage, including burned buildings, is high.

Hanoi boasted that "the enemy have lost the initiative." The Communist newspaper Nhan Dan declared in a broadcast commentary: "The Vietnamese people and their armed forces... are in a position to win complete victory."

On the other hand, a Czechoslovak news agency dispatch from Hanoi said North Vietnam was bracing for an intensification of U.S. bombing in retaliation. The implication was that jet squadrons, engaged primarily in efforts to cut supply lines, might concentrate on more substantial targets. Neither Hanoi nor Haiphong has been hit recently.

Communist broadcasts declared an "alliance of national and peace forces" had been established in Saigon and that the Viet Cong formed a revolutionary council in Hue, the old imperial capital, where U.S. Marines, Army tank crews and South Vietnamese troops battled to stop them.

Battle for Saigon

Westmoreland told newsmen he believed the Communists' campaign is a prelude for their biggest push of the war, to be staged in the northern sector adjoining the DMZ. This main effort "could come at any time" he said.

In the enemy's present operation, "it was all or nothing," the general said. "He has put forth his maximum effort. He will be very badly hurt. It will be very badly hurt."

Talks cover S.E. Asia

The third talk in a co-curricular series sponsored this term by James Madison College will be given by a former head of the Vietnam Working Group, which handled all American aid to South Vietnam.

William Mazzocco, director of commodity control and surveillance within the Agency for International Development, will speak on the economic development and modernization of South Vietnam at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Wonders Kiva.

The series grew out of a course about Vietnam offered to Madison students. All students in the class have to attend the series as part of their classwork. All talks are concerned with Southeast Asia.

Mazzocco's speech is entitled "Implications of Economic Development for the Modernization of South Vietnam."

The talk will relate to what these implications mean in terms of the U.S. economic, military and political involvement in Southeast Asia.

The ambassador of the Republic of Vietnam to the U.S., H.E. Bui Dinh, will debate David Wurfel, a Southeast Asia specialist from the University of Missouri on Feb. 11.

Cong. Manifesto

A Viet Cong dispatch relayed by Hanoi said the Saigon alliance had issued a manifesto demanding that the United States and other foreign allies withdraw their troops from South Vietnam to end the war.

The organization was reported undertaking to negotiate for the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front "on measures to restore peace and regain national independence and sovereignty."

The Viet Cong army command was quoted as saying: "We will set up a people's power, a power which serves the fatherland and the people."

The Viet Cong command was reported to have appealed to the people to help its troops in their operations.

President Nguyen Van Thieu had issued a call in the same vein on behalf of the allies in proclaiming martial law Wednesday. Thieu urged civilians either to assist the allied forces or clear out when the Communists entered their areas.

In at least two parts of Saigon, men were knocking on doors and announcing: "We are from the National Liberation Front. We have come to liberate Saigon."

Gen. Frederick C. Weyland, commander of U.S. forces in the Saigon area, said the enemy "has the capabilities of renewing" the attacks such as were staged Wednesday against the U.S. Embassy compound, numerous American billets and the Tan Son Nhut airbase.

BIG TEN SURVEY

4 bookstores give discounts

By LEO ZAINEA and STAN MORGAN
State News Staff Writers

Nearly 60 per cent of the university-owned and operated bookstores in the Big Ten offer their customers some type of price discount.

Indiana, under a 60-year-old university policy, gives a 10 per cent reduction on the purchase price; Illinois 4 per cent, Wisconsin a 5 per cent rebate at the end of the school year, and Ohio State resells used books at 70 per cent of the new price, instead of the usual 75 per cent.

Purdue, Northwestern and the University of Michigan operate no bookstores and the University of Iowa refused to comment in an informal telephone survey. Minnesota and MSU offer no reduced prices.

But of those that do provide discounts, Indiana said that needed expansion in space and facilities and services had suffered because of them and it would rather discontinue the practice. "We could have grown larger had we not offered a discount," an IU spokesman said. "We want more space, but where do we get the money?"

Off-campus competitors had given a similar discount but stopped when they found they could not afford it, the spokesman said.

The IU bookstore, with an inventory of $1 million worth of books, furnishes the off-campus stores with copies of textbook lists received from their academic departments for an "administrative" fee of $250 a semester. Over 1,700 class order forms are sent to the faculty and must then be edited and corrected, IU said.

The manager of the IU store, which serves the 27,000 students on the Bloomington campus, minimized the importance of a 10 per cent price cut on new books.

"It really doesn't amount to much," he said.

Manager Charles Journell said that 65 per cent of his sales are books and that he employed 54 appointed personnel and 175 hourly, at peak periods.

He said there are two stores off-campus now and another to be built soon.

At the University of Wisconsin in Madison, the bookstore instituted a plan five years ago whereby customers could receive a 5 per cent rebate at the end of the year by presenting receipts totalling more than $25.

Off-campus stores there give the same discount, he said. When told that the MSU Bookstore offered none, the Wisconsin source said: "They (MSU) would need a good justification not to offer one."

At the University of Illinois in Champaign, the store grants customers a 4 per cent discount on new books when bought. The store sells only books and supply items such as notebooks. When asked how they could give a discount, the manager replied:

"Well, we don't make much money but we do a great deal of volume."

Illinois has given the discount since 1953 and boasts 50 per cent of the sales to more than 30,000 students. Two off-campus stores offer the 4 per cent discount, too.

A spokesman said that academic departments make copies for all of them and the stores share the cost of duplicating and distribution of them.

The Ohio State Bookstore considers its policy of re-selling books at 70 per cent of the new cost "the least it can do," since no discount is given otherwise. There are two off-campus bookstores in Columbus.

All of the stores said what little profit they made was returned to the school in the form of increased services or to scholarship funds.

The MSU Bookstore, under attack from economist Walter P. Adams for offering no discount and for being "inefficient," contends it cannot afford to give any "meaningful" price reductions.

Guatemala teaching plan successful

The Guatemala Project, a program designed for teaching experience in a foreign country for elementary education majors, was successfully initiated this term in Guatemala City, Guatemala.

Seven MSU students are currently participating in the teaching-study program sponsored by the College of Education.

Mrs. J. Yvonne Waskin, a project director, has recently returned from Guatemala with a progress report.

"The students are working in the American School as assistant teachers in the elementary classrooms, conducting classes and helping students individually," Mrs. Waskin said.

The American School was originally formed by wives of U.S. Army personnel so their children could attend school while the family was stationed in Guatemala.

Today the school is directed by Robert MacVean, a graduate of MSU, and employs both Guatemalan and American teachers. The facilities are modern and convenient, being set up like a campus.

In addition to their teaching responsibilities, the MSU students are "meeting, consulting and talking with people from other agencies as the Peace Corps and the Agency for International Development from the United States," Mrs. Waskin said.

The students are living with Guatemalan families chosen by the school.

Students receive up to 15 credits for their experience in Guatemala. They receive 6 to 8 credits for their intern teaching (not a substitute for student teaching) and the remainder of their credits are earned in independent study in education courses.

During the recent outbreak in Guatemala City in which two U.S. Army personnel were assassinated, the students were in no danger.

Four hostages taken after car theft fails

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Two gunmen bungled a car theft and holdup in this Rocky Mountain resort town early today, then took four hostages, including the Vail police chief, as they fled, the Colorado State Patrol reported.

By 11:30 a.m. MST, more than eight hours after the ordeal began, three of the hostages were free. The two robbers, well-dressed and talking with a heavy Texas accent, were believed to be holding another.

It was the second holdup-hostage-chase episode in Colorado this week. Monday, seven hostages were taken and two were slightly wounded before the 250-mile chase ended east of here.

Vail Police Chief Ted Holmes freed himself after the bandits left him handcuffed to a tree about four miles east of here. Chaffee County Sheriff Harold Thonhoff said two others were released at Maysville, about 12 miles west of Salida, some 100 miles south of this ski resort. It earlier was believed the men had headed east with their captives.

Thonhoff said two teen-age hostages were released at a house in Maysville, where the gunmen had been for about three hours. Mrs. Norma Farley, who has small children, said they took her car when they left. She said she talked the men into leaving her behind, because she and her children would make "too many hostages."

The youths who were released were identified as Lee Gonzales, 16, and Antonio Gurule, 17, janitorial workers at a Vail hotel. Still missing was Dick Jordan, 38, manager of another Vail lodge.

A statewide alert was issued for the two men as assault and kidnaping suspects.

There were conflicting reports on the number and origin of the hostages.

"Everyone tells a different story," said Richard Schippers, deputy chief of the patrol.

The latest report from the State Patrol indicated the hostages were Gonzales, Gurule, Holmes and possibly another person taken during a swap of cars in the town of Silver Thorn, just east of Vail.

A hotel employee, Donna Schones, said the somewhat fouled-up robbery and chase developed this way:

The two men apparently were trying to hotwire and steal a car parked outside the hotel about 4:20 a.m. They couldn't get it started, and made so much noise a policeman came to investigate.

Then they entered the hotel lobby, held about four persons at bay with two .38-caliber pistols, and ordered night auditor

Dick Bradley, 23, to open the cash drawer.

The money still was in the safe, so the holdup fell through.

Then, Miss Schones said, the two men ordered Bradley to start his imported sports car. He didn't pull the choke, she said, and it wouldn't start.

"They threatened to kill him," she said, "but he still wouldn't pull the choke."

Bradley said, "They meant business. They held a .38 to my head."

Thwarted again, the two men took two clean-up maids and another janitorial member and Holmes, jumped into a Volkswagon owned by one of the janitors and fled.

Bradley, reported taken hostage in the confusion surrounding early reports of the incident, was left behind.

Inter-frat council elects officers

Inter-fraternity Council (IFC) Wednesday night elected Pierce Myers, Moline, Ill., junior, from Delta Tau Delta fraternity as the new IFC president.

Myers will take office at the IFC meeting Feb. 15 along with the other new officers.

Scott Chrisman, Iton, N.Y., junior, from Farmhouse fraternity is the new vice president for development. His job is to take care of internal affairs.

Alan T. Rose, Rochester, N.Y., junior, from Theta Delta Chi fraternity was elected the vice president for public relations.

The new vice president for rush is Leigh Burstein, Meridian, Miss., junior, from Zeta Beta Tau fraternity.

The post of chief justice will be filled by Pete Rayner, Davison sophomore, from Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

In other action, IFC passed a new constitution and bylaws. Dick Herrold, present IFC president, said there were no major changes. The new constitution and bylaws provided for different officers and incorporated recently passed amendments.

Vietnam: the lessons of an embassy lost

A suicide crew of 20 and a stray rocket and for six hours we lost a $2.6 million attack-proof embassy recently built to replace the last embassy the VC wiped out.

The incident was not isolated. Viet Cong terrorized Saigon and shelled other areas of South Vietnam simultaneously this week in what an AP reporter considered "flaming in unprecedented coordination."

Although the South Vietnamese leaders declared the wave of VC attacks was completely repulsed, the VC succeeded in throwing South Vietnam into rule by decree until further notice and in closing down all places on entertainment.

Again the possibility of a military takeover in Vietnam must be questioned. Although we regained our bullet-riddled embassy, the raid was a moral victory for the North.

What must we do to win militarily in Vietnam? Sink the North? What are we going to secure? If we can't hold our own guerrilla-safe embassy, how can we "secure" a rice paddy?

The embassy raid displays our basic problem of accomplishing anything there. The 20 attackers all had beautifully forged passes permitting them to be on Saigon streets at pre-dawn. Even Saigon is not secured.

North Vietnam has the resources to keep up these infantry and suicide squad strikes for a long time to come. And the North has the mortars and rockets to hit virtually any place in South Vietnam.

Infiltrators and supplies continue to move despite our bombing. And Hanoi seems no nearer the negotiation table.

Over 2,500 VC were killed in a 48-hour period, more than normally killed in a week. The allies lost roughly one-tenth as many. But, numerous civilians paid with their lives as well.

It's quite possible the recent VC raids and the Korean seizure of a U.S. intelligence ship last week will evoke another escalation in Vietnam in order to show our strength and our persistence and our stubbornness and our whatever-else-we-think-we-have-to-show.

But before we push "the button" on Hanoi we must ask ourselves what one more escalation would actually do for our overall objective in Vietnam--unification and self-determination of a people.

The bookstore and you: he who hesitates loses

The implications of Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley's reply to Professor Walter P. Adam's accusations of anti-trust activity in the East Lansing bookstores should cause some reaction on campus beyond let's wait and see.

Kelley stated that he detected "classic marks of price fixing" in the operations of the MSU Bookstore and those off campus. However, due to priorities in using available investigative resources, other cases now pending must take precedence. Adams, who has affectionately been dubbed "the bookstore critic," completely agrees with Kelley's priorities. He has been invited to discuss the case with Kelley to see what possible action may be taken, and to disclose information which he possesses.

The important fact to consider is the length of time which is necessary to dispose of such anti-trust litigation. If Kelley feels there is grounds for court action, it is likely to be a long time before an investigation is begun. If the case finally culminates in a trial, that too is a time consuming proposition, possibly years. There is simply no reason to wait that long.

The University is not likely to initiate any action in this area now, even in light of Kelley's opinion. Too often officials simply sit back, in a matter of weeks student feelings die out, and nothing is done.

Here is a basis for ASMSU to culminate studies, come up with viable alternatives, and coalesce faculty and student opinion behind a proposal.

This issue is not one to be put off until the Attorney General's office can take action. It is affecting the student's pocketbook right now. And right now is when something must be done.

Farewell to the farmers

Well, I got mine.

Today's the last day of Farmers' Week 1968, and I'd like to say it's been a real opportunity to have been associated with the program and that I only regret that there'll always be a Farmers' Week but, alas, for me there'll never be a second time around.

So may I extend my thanks to the many groups and individuals who have made this Farmers' Week a happy one for me. To the farmers' daughters and sons and their childish exuberance as they trample you with their flying wedge en route to a table at Big Boy, and for their consideration in spending the whole afternoon feeding the juke box so that you never get an empty table, nor make your 1:50 class.

To the meetings, seminars and the like which take over our large lecture halls, giving us a chance to finally see the campus, although never quite getting a look at our classroom change. To the cars which make even a special parking permit a joke. And to the farmer who took me to lunch.

Yes, fans, I got mine. Monday, I'd mentioned about taking a farmer to lunch, with all the intentions of doing so. My only problem was that I couldn't find a farmer. Distressed at my state of affairs, I wandered home, downed a can of Metrecal and stood awhile in thought.

And, as in uffish thought I stood, a discriminating farmer rang me up and popped an invitation to lunch... at the Stockman's Inn, of course, right in the heart of Farmers' Week. Not one to pass up a good thing, I stopped in at the Livestock Pavilion Tuesday for a "good piece of beef," as promised.

My farmer turned out to be a delightful fellow student number, but being an animal husbandry major he fit the title well. And so we settled down to a cozy lunch, snug among the checkered tablecloths and the scent of the barn. Being surrounded by farmers and animals--I got to see some sheep, throwing me into a blissful state--eavesdropping on twangy conversations, I began to see what I'd missed, being a cosmopolitan kid.

There was the delightful elderly farmer from Big Rapids who sort of sidled over to my table, flashed a semi-toothed smile and shyly asked to join me. Weather-beaten and wrinkled, just like in the movies, he noted that this was his 25th Farmers' Week, although he confided that for a few years his attendance hadn't been quiet as regular as it should have been.

There were days when the event centered north of Shaw Lane; he seemed worried that he might not find it next year. We had something in common, I soon discovered--both of us found it extremely difficult locating the Natural Resources Bldg, without some practice, let alone Poultry Science.

Overwhelmed with nostalgia, I zipped into the Livestock Pavilion, where I found farmers and businessmen mingled among some lethargic hogs and playful lambs. My heart melted on the spot.

Back in the city room of MSU's metropolitan daily, I couldn't stop thinking of the simple pleasures. And so my invitation remains open.

If there are any of you delightful farmers with nothing heavy to do between 11:10 a.m. and 12:40 p.m., give me a call at the State News office, 355-8252, and we'll have a little lunch. First come, first serve.

And Happy Groundhog's Day.

And Happy Groundhog's Day.

And Happy Groundhog's Day.

And Happy Groundhog's Day.

OUR READERS' MINDS

LBJ timid in Korea

To the Editor:

President Johnson's handling of the Pueblo capture is further example of the administration's timid response to Communist aggression. Preliminary reports from the North Korean government indicate that the Pueblo was in international waters when captured. This coincides with U.S. Navy data. The capture was clearly a crime. President Johnson should have ordered the immediate return of the ship. He should have backed this demand with a pledge to rescue the Pueblo--using the amount of naval force necessary to tow it out of Wonsan Harbor.

Such action would have let the North Korean government know that we mean business and that it would be to North Korea's advantage to return the 83 kidnaped Americans without delay. It would have served notice to communist governments all over the world that similar shenanigans will be dealt with firmly and swiftly. Proving in this way that our patience with such tactics is not to be counted on, would have, as a side effect, dealt a psychological blow to the Viet Cong in Vietnam.

Why does the administration believe that the communists can pirate a ship and kidnap Americans on their own initiative, but that we must plead for the return of our men and ship over a period of days (maybe weeks) in front of a United Nations that is controlled to a large extent by the criminals themselves. This is not justice. We do not know what is happening to the sailors as the hours and days pass. The Vice President of North Korea said Sunday that his nation plans to "severely punish" the crew. Had we rescued our ship by force (after the communists refused to return it), and made clear that refusal to return the men would be met by similar force, the crewmen would have stood a much better chance of an early release. History shows that meeting aggression with force from the onset of trouble prevents largescale wars later on.

Communist propagandists have successfully given rise to the belief that any forceful defensive moves by the United States imperil peace, but that the original aggressive act of the communists does not threaten peace. Why must the administration allow Red propaganda to cajole us into indecisive and weak policies.

President Johnson has caused America to lose prestige and respect. By his weak response, which is so inconsistent with his predecessor John F. Kennedy's handling of the Cuban Crisis, President Johnson is only subjecting America to larger threats later on.

Down with 'pot'

To the Editor:

I was shocked to hear of your editorial supporting the legalization of marijuana. I feel it is a large step backwards when an enlightened nation such as ours feels that the use of drugs can be condoned as long as we make more money from it.

I feel we should find ways to lead our young people to something better than drugs. And an institution entrusted with the education of our youth should stand for right, and firmly so.

I hope you will carefully reconsider your position on this issue.

Patient navigation for Pueblo

The reality is that once the Pueblo was seized, most of the American options went down the drain.

The ideal romantic solution, obviously, would be one of commando derring-do which would parallel the boldness of the original seizure of the Pueblo. There must be many among the younger Navy brass who dream of a rescue expedition swooping down by helicopter from the sky or by destroyer from the sea, rounding up the Pueblo and its crew and getting away with scarcely a shot fired. It would restore the Navy's honor and pride and round out the whole Pueblo chapter without starting a second war or a nuclear chain reaction. But alas, while truth may be stranger than fiction, fiction is still more manageable than the clumsy, ugly reality.

The reality is that once the Pueblo was seized, most of the American options went down the drain. The choices were still there for Comdr. Lloyd M. Bucher when the North Korean craft began harrying the Pueblo: he had to choose between calling in aid, destroying his equipment and scuttling the ship and pursuing a wait-and-see policy.

The choices were there, also, for his naval superiors, whether in the operational theatre or in Washington. They evidently chose the wait-see course, perhaps instructing Comdr. Bucher accordingly, and they chose to work it out as their own problem for decision, rather than inform the secretary of defense and the President immediately. Perhaps they thought it was strictly a matter of military tactic rather than political policy. If so, they were disastrously wrong. As President Eisenhower found to his grief in the U-2 incident, any intelligence service becomes political by the fact of being an intelligence service.

The extremist behavior of the North Koreans--in asserting that the ship was within their waters, in extracting an obviously doctored "confession" from Comdr. Bucher, in threatening dire punishment for the Pueblo's crew--should not surprise the world. The violence of Communist language, which has been somewhat muted in the case of the Soviet Union, still applies to North Korea. The Communists use it not only against America and the West, but also in their intramural struggles, as witness the fanatical tone of the attacks on the anti-Maoists in the case of the Maoists in China. In North Korea's case it is at once an emotional purgative, a mode of bargaining and a conventional mask for concealing some hard power decisions.

Both the language and the power intent behind it are part of a daydream by the smaller Communist nations--including Cuba as well as North Korea--envisioning the inglorious fall of the American Humpty Dumpty. Americans must understand this and shape their course out of a confident patience rather than a prideful anger.

In a recent survey of university students conducted by a national magazine, one-third of the 1,122 interviewed woke up tired each morning.

Evidence of this is indicated by the weary-eyed students complaining of sleepless nights resulting from mid-term cramming.

Although students may doubt it now, by the time they are 30, most will have spent about 12 years asleep. Because sleeping takes up so much time, scientists are probing its nature.

Dr. Nathaniel Kleitman, who has studied sleep-related phenomena for over 40 years, asserts that the necessity of getting eight hours of sleep each night is "no more applicable than an average sized pair of shoes."

Farmer event rescheduled for spring '69

A change in future dates for the annual Farmers' Week was announced today as the 1968 event neared conclusion.

Thomas K. Cowden, dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said that beginning in 1969, Farmers' Week will be held in mid-March during the University's spring break. Since it began in 1914, the event had been held in late January or early February.

The change, approved by a wide majority of agricultural extension personnel throughout the state, will help us accommodate the expanded educational programs presented during Farmers' Week," Cowden commented. "These improved facilities—meeting rooms, demonstration areas and exhibit space—plus the better weather which usually exists in early spring, will increase the potential for an even better educational event."

"Visitors will also have better transportation and parking, food services, housing and use of other University facilities."

The 1969 Farmers' Week has been set for March 17-21, between the winter term final exam period and the beginning of spring term registration at MSU.

Byron Good, Farmers' Week chairman and professor of animal husbandry, said the new dates will allow the University to devote more attention and resources to the event. He emphasized that the "date change will make available all of the general facilities to hold clinics, symposiums, and conferences—resulting in expanded and improved programs for the thousands of visitors who attend each year."

Club to sponsor annual dinner

The International Club is sponsoring its annual dinner "Global Gourmet" at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 17, in the Crossroads cafeteria in the International Center.

Ticket prices are $3.50 for students and $4.50 for non-students. Tickets are on sale in the U.N. Lounge of the Union and in 108 International Center.

The dinner is open to the public.

ATTACKS SPREAD

Thailand protests Communist drive

TOKYO (AP) -- Some Asian nations reacted Thursday with shock, anger and concern to the Communist attacks spreading across South Vietnam.

Thailand, engaged in fighting Communist guerrillas of its own, noted that the latest Viet Cong offensive fitted in with a growing Communist drive in Asia.

The army commander in chief, Gen. Praphas Charusathien, said the Communists had attacked government forces in Burma, Laos, Thailand and South Korea. He urged the non-Communist world to go on "an offensive politically and militarily instead of always being on the defensive."

In the Philippines, the Viet Cong attack on the Philippine Embassy in Saigon set off anger and sparked a demand in Congress that Filipino combat units be sent to Vietnam.

While such action was unlikely, initial reaction provided an unexpected boost to President Ferdinand E. Marcos's campaign to win congressional support for a bill to maintain the Philippines' 2,000-man noncombat commitment in Vietnam. One Philippine congressman called for sending two battalion combat teams to fight along side the allied forces.

Japan, worried over developments in Korea arising from North Korea's seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo, was shaken by the Viet Cong offensive. But it viewed the Communist assaults as "obviously part of a carefully laid plan prepared well in advance."

Kinya Nitseki, spokesman for Japan's Foreign Ministry, said Communist attacks on South Vietnamese cities are unlikely to make a "major change in the course" of the war. He said the assaults were "launched with the aim of exerting a political and psychological influence . . . their scale was not such as to affect the military situation."

Nationalist China's Vice President and Premier C. K. Yen said U.S. forces in Vietnam were engaged in a "bloody battle in the cause of freedom."

Nationalist government officials and military commanders held the view that the North Korean seizure of the Pueblo and the Viet Cong attacks in Vietnam were masterminded by Red China. Hsieh Jen-chao, a leading member of the Legislative Yuan or parliament, said the Vietnamese issue should be settled with Peking, center of Communist aggression in Asia.

In Indonesia, Foreign Minister Adam Malik said "for the moment Indonesia will not take any initiative toward finding a solution for the Vietnam war." He said both the U.S. and North Vietnam would not give ground for a "sincere solution of the war."

The Viet Cong claimed the U.S. and its allies violated the Communist-called lunar new year cease-fire. It said it launched attacks "to punish the U.S. aggressors and their henchmen for unilaterally cancelling their own cease-fire." It asserted the attacks "dealt a telling blow at the U.S. aggressors who insolently slighted the traditional lunar new year festival."

Peking and North Korea echoed similar lines. Both described the Viet Cong attacks as "smashing actions."

New bill urges repeal of psychopath law

A special legislative committee Thursday urged repeal of Michigan's Criminal Sexual Psychopath (CSP) law because it has turned into a means for murderers and other criminals to duck punishment for their crimes.

It was the third time in 17 years repeal of the CSP statute had been recommended. This time, however, a bill to do just that sponsored by 60 members of the house was introduced to back it up. Fifty-six votes will be needed to pass it.

The seven-member committee, headed by Rep. Roy Smith, R-Ypsilanti, studied the handling of sex offenders for more than six months.

They began the study after two men confessed to double slayings but could not be charged with criminal offenses after claiming to be sexual psychopaths.

Under current law, the committee said, "mere sex deviation . . . had become, in effect, a workable defense for first degree murder."

What the committee has proposed, in bill form, is complete repeal of the so-called "Goodrich Act" that was written in 1939 and amended in 1947.

As interpreted by the courts, the law requires that criminal charges be dropped against any person who claims to be a sexual psychopath. He would not have to stand trial.

"The sexual psychopath statute has permitted sex deviates to avoid trial and sentencing for their crimes by committing themselves to the State Mental Health Dept., with all charges and convictions set aside," said Smith.

Smith cited recent cases involving Ralph C. Nuss who confessed the slaying of two boys in Washtenaw County last year and Theodore Williams who admitted the sexual assault and murder of two young girls in Allegan County.

Both invoked the sexual psychopath law and asked to be committed to Ionia State Mental Hospital.

Smith claims the law makes Michigan the only state in the union where a person can plan, commit and confess to murder and then escape prosecution and sentencing by claiming to be a sexual psychopath.

Questionnaire to evaluate open houses

A pre-questionnaire to discover what questions men residence hall residents want answered about study open houses is being filled out by floor presidents.

Men's Hall Assn. (MHA) has a study open house committee working on a regular questionnaire to give to student government, management, the advisory staff and individual students to evaluate the study open houses. The pre-questionnaires will suggest problems anticipated at the floor level so that the committee can design the main questionnaire to help answer these problems, Bill Lukens, president of MHA, said.

The pre-questionnaire asks for the strong points and the weaknesses of the study open houses. It also asks for improvements that can be made and a personal evaluation of the study open houses.

The questionnaires are to be turned in to the hall presidents by Wednesday.

Groundhogs arise!

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Feature Editor

With this week's bleak trend in things meteorological, our best bet in long-range forecasts is for conditions to stay just as they are.

For today is Groundhog's Day, when groundhogs and woodchucks all over the world will be popping out of their holes to give us the word about the next six weeks' weather conditions.

According to tradition brought by German and British settlers to America, the groundhog ends his winter hibernation on Feb. 2 and sticks a sleepy head out of his burrow to check on the state of affairs.

If the day dawns cloudy and overcast, the little fellow will not be able to see his shadow, his equilibrium will remain unchanged and he'll stay out of his hole, indicating that spring is just around the corner.

If it's a clear day with even a trickle of sunshine, the still-groggy groundhog will be confronted by his shadow, considerably jolting him and, in his fright, be sent scurrying back to his hole, where he'll remain for six more weeks of winter weather.

It's doubtful if he ever got the chance to show his face last winter, so we could call it a draw.

But don't spend the day worrying. The Slumbering Groundhog Lodge of Prairieville, Lancaster County, Pa., is at your service.

Organized at the turn of the century, its members don silk hats and canes on Feb. 2 and go into the fields to look for a woodchuck's burrow. When one is found, the members gather around to wait for the animal to awake. They watch his behavior and return to the village, where his actions are interpreted and reported to the public. According to the 1937 records, the woodchuck has an 8-7-5 mark.

According to the U.S. Weather Bureau, today will be cloudy with some rain; the best of all possible forecasts for farmers, groundhogs and anyone interested in sowing wild oats.

Debaters compete in nat'l. meet

MSU varsity debate squad is taking part in national debate tournaments in Virginia and at Harvard this weekend.

Roger Chard, Lansing junior and a pre-law student, and Glenn Foster, Saginaw junior political science major, are entered in the Williamsburg, Va., tournament Thursday through Saturday. David Thomas of the Speech Dept. is accompanying the team and serving as critic-judge for the tournament.

David Case, Judson, Ohio, sophomore, and Douglas Laycock, Wood River, Ill., sophomore, are participating in the Harvard Debate Tournament.

The debaters advanced to the semi-final rounds in weekend competition at Loyola University of Chicago.

Two teams participated in debates at Loyola. The team of Rod Dean, Lansing junior and Larry Bruce, Rensselaer, Indiana, freshman, defeated five teams to enter the semi-final round.

They defeated Iona University, Illinois Wesleyan, Western Michigan, Northwestern and Bradley.

Arkansas continues prison burial probe

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. P -- Authorities quietly continued to probe Thursday into the discovery of three skeletons at Cummins Prison Farm as a legislative group added its voice to the clamor for a full-scale investigation into whether the bones came from a paupers graveyard or a secret burial ground for murdered inmates.

Officers had nothing new to say about the investigation, touched off by Monday's unearthing of the skeletons at the sprawling 15,000-acre prison. Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's office said, however, that the state medical examiner would conduct an analysis of the bones rather than the FBI laboratory at Washington as originally planned.

Rockefeller scheduled a meeting late Thursday with Prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton, who first ordered the search for bodies to check out convict rumors of a clandestine cemetery for slain inmates.

The Legislative Council asked for "a full and complete" investigation by the Criminal Investigation Division of the State Police and by authorities in Lincoln and Jefferson counties, where the two state prison farms are located.

Rockefeller urged Wednesday against bringing "more people into an already confusing situation." The investigation is being conducted by the Criminal Investigation Division.

Meanwhile, a 60-year-old Fresno, Calif., man joined the list of persons identifying themselves as ex-Arkansas convicts who witnessed inmate murders. The man, who asked that he be identified as Thomas Ford, the name he said he used in 1924 when he was sent to Cummins on an automobile theft charge, said he had seen about six men murdered in the 1920s.

"I saw a lot of men die down there on that farm, a lot of them whipped right there in the fields," he said.

He said he remembered the burial area "between the cotton gin and the Arkansas River levee and dying inmates."

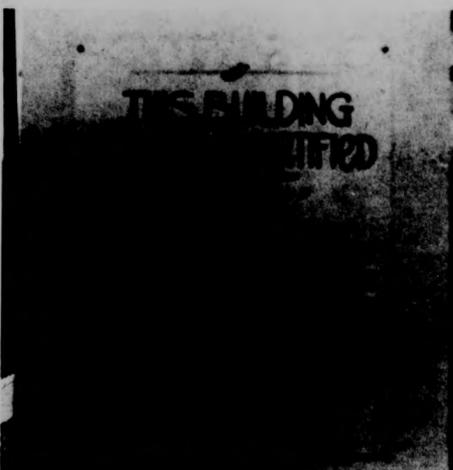

Wednesday, Edward Redmond, 47, of Houston, Tex., who reported that he served 11 days of a 15-day sentence on a vagrancy charge before escaping from Cummins, said he saw five convicts killed 28 years ago.

Pershing Mills, 49, of Reedley, Calif., said in an interview Wednesday that he saw five inmates killed at Tucker Prison Farm near Cummins.

The state Pardons and Paroles Office said it had records of Mills' imprisonment, but found nothing on Ford and Redmond. It said, however, these records might be some other place.

New hall in use

Baker Hall, an office building just completed this summer and adjacent to Giltner Hall, is the new home of the faculties of four of MSU's health-related schools. These include the School of Nursing, the School of Social Work, the Department of Anthropology and 12 faculty members of the Department of Psychology.

Joan Crawford believes star's life loneliest in world

HOLLYWOOD P -- Bette Davis described it in the title of her autobiography, "The Lonely Life." Her one-time co-star, Joan Crawford, is inclined to agree.

"It's the loneliest life in the world," said Miss Crawford in a mood that found her with defenses down.

Miss Crawford is everyone's idea of a movie star, and she has always played the role to the hilt. Even today she will toss off quotes like, "If I had ever been seen on the Sunset Strip with bare feet and my hair uncoiffed, I would have killed myself." She decries the new actresses who so deport themselves; Miss Crawford herself never goes anywhere without the full regalia of a star—hair coiffed; makeup applied, clothes proper.

Such attention to her calling has kept her before the film public longer than any other star. Like all actresses, she doesn't like to be reminded of dates but she made her first film 43 years ago.

She also continues in demand on television. She was here to make her first situation-comedy show, appearing in the role of Joan Crawford on "The Lucy Show." She worked in the assignment between her travels as ambassador member of Pepsi-Cola, of which her late husband, Alfred Steele, was president.

"Last year I traveled 200,000 miles. That's what I mean by the lonely life; there's no time to be myself. I'm surrounded by businessmen all the time. Sure, they take me out to dinner, but they want to talk about business. I can tell you the bottling capacity of every Pepsi plant in the country."

For the past 10 years, Miss Crawford has made her headquarters in New York, coming to Hollywood only for acting assignments or business trips.

'Spoonful,' 'Edition,' movies for full weekend

Well, it's time for the weekly Friday clean-up, and as is to be expected following Farmer's Week, there is a lot to clean up.

Musically, "The Lovin' Spoonful," will be in to chase the dirt away from the acoustically cobwebbed Auditorium rafters. Popular Entertainment has bagged the exceptional quartet for their winter term concert presentation at 8 tonight. The enjoyable blend of country and rock, it should be noted, is particularly appropriate for capping off this week's activities.

After the "Spoonful" scouring, a little antiseptic action at "Grandmothers" where "The First Edition," the new national recording group which boasts Tommy Smothers as a backer, will be performing through Monday. The cover is two dollars and the first show is at 8 p.m.

But if you prefer non-alcoholic soul cleansing, try Mickey's Hideaway Saturday night when Mickey will be hosting "The Metros."

Also worth looking into is the Ingmar Bergman picture "Persona" which opens today at the State Theater. "Persona" has attracted almost unanimous raves from the critical community and thrilled art theater patrons since its release many months ago. In fact, the awards have already begun trickling in for this probe of the psyches of two women, which skimmed top honors from the National Film Critics.

On the opposite end of the scale, The International Film Series is offering a Saturday evening of Walt Disney comedy. Regardless of the appeal of most Disney products, "The Shaggy Dog" and "The Absent-Minded Professor" are two of showman's best fantasy romps.

Harold Pinter's controversial play, on film, "The Caretaker" will be run by The MSU Film Society Friday night in 100 Vet Clinic. The Saturday Film Society feature is a Mae West couplet "She Done Him Wrong" and "I'm No Angel" in 109 Anthony Hall. It should be noted that both West flicks were ground out before the implementation of the film code. There will be

Sergeant Ryker

The premiere segment of the new season of "Kraft Suspense Theater," about five years ago featured a two part story entitled "The Case Against Sergeant Ryker" starring Bradford Dillman, Vera Miles, Lloyd Nolan and Peter Graves with Lee Marvin as Sgt. Ryker.

The television drama was an asset to the "Kraft" program. It was televised and then rerun that same summer, following which it was promptly forgotten. Then Lee Marvin won an Oscar, the Marvin blood-and-guts character became a national standard and "The Dirty Dozen" cashed in.

Universal, ingeniously, took the old films out of storage, blew up the celluloid to 35 mm., designed some distastefully misleading posters bearing no small resemblance to the "Dirty Dozen" promotion materials, and billed the flick as "Lee Marvin as 'Sergeant Ryker'."

Despite the facts that the staples show where the parts were joined, that the scope of the once fine tele-drama is too narrow to pass off to the giant screen (most of the action transpires in the court-martial room) and that the pace rises and falls to facilitate the insertion of commercials, the instant flick has several points of interest—most of them due simply to its age.

For instance, there are interesting comparisons to be made between Marvin, now and then. His style was just beginning to acquire polish then and, oddly enough, several of Marvin's perfectly straight lines evoke laughter from today's audience.

Another contrast with time involves the Impossible Mission Force leader, Peter Graves, who has apparently developed most of the professional finesse which he displays on "Mission Impossible" since the shooting of "Sgt. Ryker."

Senate to have local offices

The Michigan Senate Thursday soundly squashed an afterthought attempt to revoke establishment of district offices for senators that could cost taxpayers upwards of $700,000 a year.

After supporting the plan when it passed 19-11 Wednesday, Sen. Robert Vander Laan, R-Grand Rapids, abruptly proposed a resolution revoking it.

In quick order, Vander Laan was refused support in a Republican caucus, won only three votes besides his own on the floor when he tried to have the resolution considered immediately, and got no other votes in his own committee to send it back to the floor after the resolution had been sent there for consideration.

He insisted he had not been swayed by "back-home pressures" into changing his stand. "It just appeared to me a majority of my Republican colleagues didn't want it," he shrugged. "I guess I was wrong."

Only five of the 19 GOP Senator voted for the plan.

Vander Laan admitted he still favored the idea, but was openly bitter about reaction to it. "We are constantly chided on one hand for not doing our jobs, but when we try to do a better job—when we try to work full time—we are chided for doing that," he told reporters after session.

"You get to feel like a punching bag. Well, I'm willing to take the abuse. But if we (legislators) don't solve the problems facing our people, we are going to have federal chaos in the next 20 years."

"State legislatures have historically been innocuous, meaningless bodies until recently; yet people wonder why the states have lost power and the federal government has gained control. We are under staffed and undermanned, and it's just a darn tough job."

"Certainly the home office proposal is not an attempt to feather our own nests."

He pledged that his committee on Senate business which was authorized Wednesday to set up guidelines for the district offices, would "come out with the best rules possible for the best-run, most efficient system."

After the plan passed, its sponsor, Majority Leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, said those rules would be ready Thursday. Vander Laan, however, said the only rules he had were the ones now used in California for district offices maintained for members of both chambers.

The Senate plan conceives of an office for each senator who wants one, staffed by an administrative assistant and a secretary. It would swell the present Senate budget of $1.5 million by more than two thirds through an estimated minimum cost per year per senator of $19,000, or more than $700,000 if all 38 choose to participate.

Not all will. Republican Sens. Harry Demaso of Battle Creek, Charles O. Zollar of Benton Harbor and Harold Hungerford of Lansing have already said they don't want them.

In Kalamazoo earlier Thursday, State Rep. James Heinze, R-Battle Creek told a luncheon audience of Republicans that House members were "horrorified" at the Senate plan. Other House members, however, were eyeing ways to get a similar setup for themselves.

Some House members, realizing their votes will be needed to fund the Senate district offices, are cheerfully willing to trade those votes for the senators' going along with a constitutional amendment granting four-year terms to representatives. That would have to go to the people for approval; the district office plan will not.

In other legislative action, bills were proposed in the Senate to grant $5 million to the State Department of Education to develop programs for underprivileged children, to require a 5-cent deposit on all glass bottles,

Seniors of the Week

In the lobby of the old part of Kedzie Hall lives Patty Wilson's fairy grandmother, Samantha; somewhere in a far-off field a bunch of beautiful quarter-horses which belong to Steve Rymal are grazing; some day, Rolf Groseth will be proclaimed a great sprinter rather than a distance swimmer.

These are dreams, yet, one could hardly call this trio visionaries. For two thirds of them are dedicated athletes and the other third is an avid writer and director of plays based on fairy tales.

Involvement in their environment is a way of life for these seniors. Their comments on college experience display their varying orientations.

"It's been personally rewarding to me," Rolf said. "I've made friends at all the other Big Ten schools through swimming."

"It amazes me," Patty said, "that the thought of a presidential election and a nuclear holocaust elicit apathy or laughter, while the mention that finals are only six weeks away brings on so much neurosis."

Commenting further on the student subculture in a more serious vein, Steve talked about the relationship between studies and sports.

"The mind is not completely academically oriented," he said. "Basketball and baseball keep me from wasting time, they put pressure on me to study."

Rolf has been a varsity swimmer for three years and was named All-America last year. He is also a member of Delta Tau Delta and Senior Council.

Steve has been a varsity baseball and basketball player for three years. His other activities include Excalibur, Phi Delta Theta and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Steve has applied for admittance to MSU's School of Veterinary Medicine for next year.

As a theatre major and member of the Theta Alpha Phi dramatic fraternity, Patty has directed two children's theatre productions at MSU. Last spring, Patty was one of the readers for Water Carnival.

Noting that she received the Outstanding Freshman Award when she lived in Abbot Hall, Patty said, "My name is on a plaque in the lobby of Abbot that falls down once a month."

ASMSU pushes concert-dance 'rock' program

The ASMSU Pop Entertainment committee is planning to survey students in residence halls to see if there is enough interest to sponsor a concert-dance program with a well-known rock group.

"We would be interested in hiring a group costing between $1,500 and $2,000 for the event," said Don Banghart, pop entertainment committee chairman.

By presenting such a program the committee would be able to offer more concerts with dancing included at a cheaper cost than, for example, The Lovin' Spoonful, Banghart said.

"We don't want to infringe on the mixers, however," he said. The charge for such an event would be $1 per person and probably be held in the Brody multipurpose room, he said.

Disney films

A Walt Disney double feature, "The Absent-Minded Professor" and "The Shaggy Dog" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Auditorium by the International Film Series.

Tickets for these films, both starring Fred MacMurray, are available at the Union ticket office or at the door.

Prof predicts artificial heart for transplants

Current attempts at human heart transplants are bringing us closer to the day when a person with a defective heart can obtain a synthetic replacement more durable than a natural organ, according to M.H. Chetrick, MSU's chemical engineering department chairman.

The use of artificial hearts removes the moral and legal uncertainties of taking a heart from one human and placing it in the body of another, said Chetrick.

"Synthetic hearts would be available in enough quantity to accommodate all potential recipients," says Chetrick, "and could be designed for their recipients with specifications for size and capacity."

Chetrick said synthetic substitutes are the ultimate answer for damaged hearts and "they will probably be developed by chemical engineers working with medical researchers" in the near future.

The chemical engineer will contribute his know how in the areas of materials and fluid flow, said Dr. Chetrick, and the medical researcher will add his knowledge of the biological system. A combination of these results in the "hybrid researcher" or biomedical engineer.

The experimental heart booster tested at Baylor University's Medical College was co-developed by the chemical engineering department at Rice Institute, Chetrick said.

The key to making artificial organs is in the development of synthetic materials with the same properties as human organs, he noted.

This problem is being solved through the use of polymers, said Chetrick. These are substances built of repeating blocks of chemical units. Polymers are found in their natural form in bread starch, meat protein, resins, rubber and gum.

Some things are supposed to be leveler the second time around, so MSU's basketball team hopes that playing arch-rival Michigan again is one of them.

The last time the two teams met, Jan. 13 at Ann Arbor, it was pretty lovely from the Spartan standpoint. MSU gained its only league road victory to date with an 86-81 decision then.

But MSU Coach John Benington is still wary of the Wolverines even though the Spartans will have the home-court advantage at 8 p.m. Saturday at Jenison Fieldhouse.

"The second game is usually much tougher than the first, even though we did win that one on the road," Benington said. "Most people think winning at home after beating a team on the road is easy, but that isn't necessarily so. I'm not as worried about going back to Iowa as I would have been had we beat them here."

The Wolverines will be looking for their first Big Ten victory to climb from last place in the conference standings. Michigan is 0-4 in league play and 5-9 overall.

MSU needs a victory if it is to keep its Big Ten title hopes alive. The Spartans are 2-3 in conference play and in seventh place in the league standings.

Northwestern holds the top position at 4-1 and three teams are tied for second with 4-1 records.

The Spartans are 8-7 overall. Michigan will be coming into the game an underdog. But in the last three meetings between the two teams in three years, the underdog has won each time.

MSU upset Michigan's team, which included Cazzle Russell and Oliver Darden in 1966, 86-77. The Spartans lost last year 81-59 although they went on to gain a share of the Big Ten title and the Wolverines finished last.

Michigan was a favorite in the last meeting.

The Wolverines have been getting consistent scoring from forward Rudy Tomjanovich, center

Dennis Stewart and guard Jim Pitts so far.

Tomjanovich, a 6-7 195 pounder, is one of the Big Ten's top sophomores and is averaging 18.9 points per game. A good outside shot and rebounder, Tomjanovich scored 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds against the Spartans in the first contest.

Stewart is just off a 32-point performance against Ohio State last Saturday, and is averaging 17.7 points per game for the season.

Benington felt Pitts was the Wolverine key before the first contest, and he hasn't changed his opinion. The 6-3 guard plays away-from or close-to the basket, depending on the man who defends against him. He totaled 18 points against MSU in the first meeting, with John Holms defending, and has been averaging 16.4 points for all games.

Forward Bob Sullivan, a 6-4 190 pounder, will start at forward, and Ken Maxey, a speedy 5-9 guard are Michigan's other probable starters.

U-M's top scorer

Rudy Tomjanovich, a 6-7 sophomore from Hamtramck, is Michigan's leading scorer with an 18.9 points per game average. MSU will take on the Wolverines at 8 p.m. Saturday.

EYES A BENGAL BERTH

Phillip's goal: from jail to pros

NEW YORK (UPI) -- Jess Phillips is sure he can make it with the pros.

He has a right to feel that way. One of the reasons he does is because he's making it now in prison where he's doing 15 months to 14 years for forgery. After a fall like that, what's so tough about playing pro football?

Jess Phillips, 20, is a former star defense halfback for MSU who was sentenced last Nov. 13 and could be eligible for parole by October.

At approximately 4 p.m. last Wednesday, some of Phillips' fellow inmates returned from conservation assignments to Camp Waterloo at Grass Lake, Mich.

"Hey, did you hear?" one of them said to Phillips.

"Hear what?" inquired the six-foot, 200-pounder.

"You been drafted to play pro football by Cincinnati. We all heard it on the radio."

The pros don't miss a trick. Jess Phillips played together with such men who have already made it big in the pros as Bubba Smith and George Webster and pro scouts have a way of remembering little things like that.

The Green Bay Packers thought so much of Phillips they rated him among the top five players in the country. But they passed him up in the draft just completed.

Same with the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys were interested enough in him, however, to make inquiries at Southern Michigan Prison where he originally was assigned.

Only Paul Brown, coach and general manager of the AFL's brand new Cincinnati Bengals, wasn't afraid to take a shot.

He drafted Jess Phillips on the fourth round and then said "No comment" when people asked about him. It was no random pick by Brown. He had checked a few things beforehand.

"We looked into the circumstances prior to the draft," says Pete Rozelle, the pro football Commissioner, "and as long as there is no further problem we see no reason why he (Phillips) can't play when he comes out."

Jess Phillips tries to keep in shape in prison by working out as best he can.

He is the camp first aid man and also assists in promoting an indoor recreational program which includes billiards, table tennis and some weight lifting.

It was a miserably raw day at Camp Waterloo Thursday.

There was dampness everywhere from the rain and the fog and the mud didn't help. Jess Phillips didn't let it bother him too much. They say he's adjusting well.

He is generally pleasant but reserved. He doesn't talk a blue streak and when he answered questions put to him by the camp superintendent, he did in near detached fashion.

"I wasn't surprised about being drafted," Phillips said. "I didn't know who would draft me, but I thought somebody would. I'm sure I can make it as a pro."

What about Paul Brown? Had he never met him or spoken with him on the phone?

"Never," said Phillips. "One of the officers here brought in a copy of the Pontiac (Mich.) Press last night and that was where I heard he drafted me. I'm very pleased he did."

Was he anxious to play pro ball? Was he excited over the prospect? "Quite," answered the one-time MSU star.

When the weather warms up, Phillips may get a chance to play a little touch football. Later, he'll get more of a chance with Cincy.

Things are looking up for Jess Phillips. He could have a fine future. All he needs to do is keep that pen in his pocket.

JESS PHILLIPS

Tryouts set for 'S' volleyball

The Men's Volleyball Club will hold tryouts for all interested students this weekend.

The tryouts will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in Gym 1 of the Men's IM, and at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Sports Arena.

2ND STRAIGHT ROAD GAME

Fencers travel to Illinois

Coach Charley Schmitter and the Spartan fencing team take to the road again this weekend, this time meeting Illinois and Chicago at Champaign Saturday.

The Spartans beat Oakland at home Jan. 20, lost at Air Force last weekend, and will not return home until Feb. 24.

Each team at Illinois will meet the other, so the Spartans have a chance to up their season record to 3-1.

Illinois was second in the Big Ten last year and is favored in Saturday's meet.

"Without knowing anything about them I think they'll be tough," MSU coach Schmitter said.

Chicago Coach Marvin Nelson (who coached MSU's Glenn Williams in high school) was pessimistic about his team.

"I've got five back from last year. But I've got troubles," he said.

"We've lost to Wayne State 17-10; we beat Oakland 17-10. And we lost to Cleveland State 22-5."

Starting for MSU at sabre will be captain Charley Baer. Backing up Baer will be Dean Daggett and either Pete Kahle or John Hocking.

"I hope Baer will get back on the winning side after last week," Schmitter said. "I think he will."

The Spartan captain could only salvage one of three bouts at Air Force.

Glenn Williams heads the MSU list in foil, followed by Junior Don Satchell. Brothers Larry and Gary Norcutt should be third men.

Bill Kerner, Jim Davey and Bob Tyler are the top epeeists. Doug Thompson and Tim Tuttle are backup men.

Junior captain Bill Abraham, eighth in the Big Ten in sabre last year, leads the Illini. He is backed up by Junior Karl Pretz and sophomore Steve Kniss.

Chuck Suritz, a junior, leads the foilists. Rod Roberts and Pete Trobe back him up.

Senior Mike Schroeder leads epee, with Harvey Harris (soph) and Mike Vitoux, a senior, backing Schroeder up.

Top fencers for the Maroons are Steve Knodle in epee, Terry Barton in sabre, and Seth Nasia in foil.

The Spartans meet Iowa, Wisconsin (defending Big Ten champs), and Kansas next weekend at Iowa City.

Fresh cagers get 1st test Saturday

MSU's freshman basketball team will engage in its first inter-collegiate contest at 6:30 Saturday night, meeting St. Clair County Community College. It will be a preliminary to the MSU-Michigan varsity contest.

The freshmen have had game action against pick-up teams composed of MSU students before all the varsity home games this season, and have had two scrimmages against the varsity.

St. Clair (formerly called Port Huron Junior College) has a 14-1 record this season against community and junior college opponents, and is averaging 116 points per game. The team's only loss was to Vincennes Junior College of Indiana.

St. Clair will have a height advantage over the frosh.

Its starting lineup will be 6-7 Mike Branaugh, a 230-pounder at center, 6-5 forwards Dan McLemore and John Kirk, 5-11 guard Jim (Bubbles) Harris and 5-10 guard Ben Robinson.

Both McLemore and Kirk are 190 pounders.

Harris is from Lorraine, Ohio, and was an All-State selection. He played against Spartan freshman guard Rudy Benjamin in an Ohio All-State game this summer.

Benjamin, a 6-2, 192 pounder from Dayton, Ohio, has scored over 30 points twice in pick up games, contests and scored 34 against the varsity in a scrimmage. Benjamin has averaged 26 points per game against pick up teams and 23.5 against the varsity.

Benjamin's partner at guard, 6-1, 185-pound Tim Bograkos, is the freshman second leading scorer with a 19.5 average in pick up games and 20 points in scrimmages with the varsity.

A lefthander with a deadly jump shot, Bograkos was a major factor in Flint Central's march to the Michigan High School Class A finals last year. He came to MSU on a baseball scholarship.

Playing forward for the freshmen will be 6-1 Paul Dean, and 6-2 1/2 Steve Sizemore. Dean, from Alma, has averaged 20.7 in pick up games but has just recovered from an injury which made him miss both varsity scrimmages.

Sizemore has averaged 18 points in pick up games but was held to just seven points in the two varsity scrimmages.

Gordon Jamieson, a 6-5, 199 pounder will be the freshman center. He has averaged 7.7 and four points respectively in games before varsity contests and against the varsity.

Two top freshman replacements will be 6-1 guard-forward Eddie Humphrey and 6-3 forward-center David Cook.

Bob Nordmann, the freshman coach, was optimistic despite the lack of size on his team.

"It's hard to evaluate the team because of the competition so far, but I think we can play well with just about anybody," Nordmann said. "What we lack in size we'll have to make up for in speed and quickness."

British art at Kresge

British brass rubbings and prints from the internationally known Winston Collection will be displayed Sunday in the North Gallery of Kresge Art Center.

The prints in the collection represent the techniques of 20th century artists including Miro, Chagall, Matisse and Picasso.

Rubbings, life-size images on plates transferred to paper, represent memorials dating from the 14th through 16th centuries.

The Winston Collection ranges from a 1905 etching by Braque to a 1960 lithograph by Jasper Johns. The rubbings and prints will be on display until Feb. 25.

Works of Clifton McClesney, associate professor of art, will also be displayed during February.

Gymnasts open last half of season against Gophers

By DON DAHLSTROM
State News Sports Writer

MSU's gymnasts head into the second and crucial part of their season tonight against Minnesota at 7:30 at the Men's IM.

MSU goes into action with a 3-0 conference record in dual meets and has four Big Ten teams still to be met. The Spartans are 3-1 overall.

Of the four meets, three of them are at home for Coach George Szypula's crew, including the two big meets against Michigan (last year's runnerup in the nationals) and Iowa (defending Big Ten champion).

This could be especially important for the Spartans who have a 10-meet winning streak at home, dating back to the 1964-65 season when Southern Illinois defeated them 73-64, on Feb. 15, 1965.

The last home conference defeat for the Spartans was Jan. 11, 1964, when they lost to Iowa. Since then, MSU has won 14 straight.

Minnesota stands at 5-2 overall this season and 2-2 in the conference. Last season, their conference record was 1-6. They have defeated Nebraska, Illinois-Chicago Circle, Ohio State, Indiana, Iowa State.

The Gopher scores have averaged about 178 points with a season-high of 179.76 against Ohio State. This is higher than the 178.83 with which MSU won last year's meet against the Gophers.

Minnesota has a young team, with seven sophomores on a squad of 18.

The seven returning lettermen are: Bill Armstrong (horizontal bar and still rings), John Babcock (still rings), Jim Nelson (all-around), John Noer (side horse), Larry Petersen (floor exercise, trampoline, and vault), Dave Stende (all-around), and Paul Welter (horizontal bar).

Stende has scored 51.1 points per meet in all-around. Armstrong has a 9.25 to his credit in horizontal bar, while sophomore Mark Howell scored 9.12 in vault.

The Spartans are coming off their finest team effort of the season against Illinois last week. "This year's team has been steadier than last season's," Szypula said. "We have no real weakness."

So far, the Spartans are undefeated as a team in floor exercise and horizontal bar. They have won three of four times in side horse, still rings, and parallel bar.

Toby Towson is undefeated in floor exercise with a 9.33 average this season. Captain Dave Thor is undefeated in both side horse and horizontal bar with averages of 9.3 and 9.32, respectively.

In event averages, the Spartans have a 27.2 score in long horse, 27.04 in horizontal bar, and 27.0 in still rings.

Szypula expects to enter sophomore Joe Fedorchik in all-around. Fedorchik's averages include 8.95 in floor exercise, 8.88 in vault, 8.81 in parallel bars, and 9.02 in horizontal bar.

Thor's other averages include 9.15 in floor exercise, 9.25 in vault, and 9.28 in parallel bars.

Other top averages include Craig Kinsey, 9.18 in side horse; Dave Croft, 9.1 in still rings; Dan Kinsey, 9.13 in still rings; Ed Gunny, 9.09 in vault; and Norm Haynie, 9.03 in horizontal bar.

In the latest statistics released by the National Assn. of Collegiate Gymnastics Coaches, the Spartans had 13 different entries in the Top 10.

Thor is fifth in side horse, second in vault, first in parallel bars, fourth in horizontal bar, and first in all-around.

Towson is second in floor exercise and Fedorchik is fourth. Craig Kinsey is fourth in side horse, Dan Kinsey is third in still rings, and Ed Gunny is third in vault.

Ryun's marks get committee's OK

LONDON (UPI) -- Jim Ryun's 3:51.1 clocking for the mile and his 1500 meter time of 3:31.1, along with 12 more marks by other Americans, were officially accepted as world records Thursday by the International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF).

Also the 71 foot, 5-1/2 inch shot put by Randy Matson on April 22 at College Station, Tex.; the 17-7 3/4 pole vault by Paul Wilson June 23 at Bakersfield, Calif.; the 13.2-second 110 meter and 120 yard hurdles mark by Earl McCullough July 7 at Minneapolis, Minn.

The IAAF also recognized the 17-7 pole vault by Bob Seagren at San Diego, Calif., June 6 as a world mark until Wilson erased it 17 days later. Somewhat same fate befell Russ Hodge in the decathlon.

Hodge surpassed the old mark with his 8,230 points on July 23-24 at Los Angeles, but K. Bendlin of Germany wound up with the record with 8,319 points May 13-14 at Heidelberg, Germany.

In the relays, the IAAF recognized the 39.6 clocking by the University of California (Okeye, Domansky, Copeland, Busby) in the 440-yard event and the matching time on June 2 by Southern California (McCullough, Kuller, Simpson, Miller) at Los Angeles. Then, the USC crew came along to lower the figure to 38.6 for new records in both the 440 yards and 400 meters.

San Jose State (Shackelford, Talmadge, Evans, Smith) got IAAF recognition at 880 yards and 800 meters for its 1:22.1 time May 13 at Fresno, Calif.

Barbara Ferrell's 11.1 clocking in the Women's 100 meters at Santa Barbara, Calif., July 2 also was recognized.

Among the world marks recognized by athletes of other nations, were an 8:19.8 two-mile by Ron Clarke of Australia June 27 in Sweden; a 2:16.2 by Germany's F. J. Kemper in the 1000 meters Sept. 9 at Hannover.

Pistons swap with Royals; get Hairston

CINCINNATI (UPI)--The Cincinnati Royals Thursday traded their discontented forward Hap Hairston and rookie center Jim Fox to the Detroit Pistons for forwards John Tresvant and Tom Van Arsdale in a straight player swap.

Hairston, a four-year man in the National Basketball Association, has been feuding with Royals Coach Ed Jucker over amount of playing time. He was quoted by Philadelphia papers as calling Jucker "nuts" for the way he handles his players, but later denied the quote.

Hairston, third leading scorer on the Royals, is averaging 17.6 points a game, but lately has been relegated to a reserve role in favor of rookie Bill Dmidwicie.

Fox, used sparingly, has a 3-point-a-game average. Royals General Manager Pepper Wilson said Tresvant and Van Arsdale would add needed rebounding strength. Tresvant was the second leading rebounder on the Pistons and is averaging 13.4 points a game. Van Arsdale, twin brother of the New York Knicks' Dick Van Arsdale, is shooting at a 6.8 clip.

STIFF COMPETITION

Tankers at Indiana

By GARY WALKOWICZ
State News Sports Writer

If strong competition brings out the best in a team, then MSU's swimmers should turn in some fast times this Saturday.

The competition couldn't be much stronger as the Spartans travel to Bloomington to meet Indiana's powerful swimming team in an afternoon meet.

Indiana has won the Big Ten swimming title for the last seven consecutive years and haven't finished lower than third in the NCAA meet since 1955.

Indiana has nine swimmers and divers returning who scored in last year's NCAA meet.

While the Spartans probably are not strong enough to win the team battle against the Hoosiers, they should offer stiff competition in several individual events.

"Our meet objective is to put our men in the events they'll do best in," Coach Charles McCaffree said, "so that hopefully their times will be good enough to qualify them for NCAA competition later."

Only two Spartans, Pete Williams in the 200 individual medley and Bruce Richards in the 200 breaststroke, have had fast enough times to be eligible for this year's NCAA meet.

One of the best races should come in the backstroke where MSU's Williams and Bob Burke will swim against Indiana's Charles Hixcox, who won both backstroke events at last year's NCAA meet and was later victorious at the AAU and Pan-American meets.

In the individual medley Williams will be facing Bill Udey and Steve Ware both of whom have times just slightly slower than Williams in that event.

McCaffree feels the diving competition will be outstanding. His own Duane Green, Jim Henderson, and Steve Reynolds will be meeting the best group of divers in the nation.

Indiana has three divers back, Win Young, Luis Nino de Rivera, and Mick Earleton, who were high finishers in the Big Ten and NCAA.

The area in which the Hoosiers have improved most this season is in the sprints.

Sophomore Bill Burrell has joined Bobby Windle to give Indiana a strong one-two punch in these events.

Indiana also has a great amount of strength in the breaststroke. Ware, Dave Perkowski, and Don McKenzie have the three fastest times in the country this season. Richards and Greg Brown race against them.

McCaffree will have John Musulin and George Booth swimming the butterfly against Indiana's Ron Jacks and Kevin Berry.

Relay races key for track at U-M

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

Heavy emphasis will be placed on the sprint medley, and mile relays Saturday when Fran Ditttrich's track squad competes in the University of Michigan Relays at Ann Arbor.

Teams competing in the varsity division, with finals beginning at 6 p.m., include Western Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Central Michigan, Wayne State, Bowling Green, Ohio University, and several track clubs, in addition to MSU and U-M.

Freshmen will also compete in a separate "novice" division meet today at 5:30 p.m.

"It'll be another one of those real 'rat races,'" said Ditttrich. "We're going to concentrate on the sprint medley and mile relays. We're looking for a little better performance each week."

Although Michigan has a 220-yard track (eight laps to the mile), the same as Jenison Fieldhouse, Spartan times are expected to be slightly slower than last week at Western because of the narrow track and tight turns, according to Ditttrich.

Last week MSU missed the American record in the sprint medley relay by seven-tenths of a second, but because of a disqualification that time will not be entered in the books.

Entered for the Spartans in the sprint medley is last week's quartet of Bill Wehrwein (440), Dan Crawford (220), Rick Dunn (220) and Rich Stevens (880).

The mile relay team, a 3:15.7 winner at Reed Fieldhouse last Saturday, should consist of Wehrwein, Pat Wilson, Stevens and Crawford.

The distance medley relay team, surprising winners at Western, should be Jack Bamford (440), Mike Murphey (880), Dale Stanley (three-fourths mile) and Dean Rosenberg on the anchor mile.

The 200-yard shuttle hurdle relay consists of Steve Derby, Rich Elsasser, Rich Paull and Charley Pollard. The same four will also compete in the 65-yard high and low hurdles.

Roger Merchant, John Spain and Bob Grimm are expected to run the 1000 yard run for MSU, while Wilson and soph Jim Bastian will compete in the 600 yard dash. Clint Harris will run the 60-yard dash.

Art Link and sophomores Bill Bradna and Ken Leonowicz will run the two mile. No team is entered in the two mile relay. Crawford will be trying for his second consecutive winning weekend in the long jump. He won the Western Michigan Relays crown last week with a 23-3/4 leap.

Roland Carter, MSU indoor pole vault record holder at 16-0, will be trying to avenge last week's defeat to Eastern Michigan's Bill Barrett. John Wilcox (15-0, 5th last week) and Tom Sterling will back up Carter in the vault.

Gordie Bowdell and Al Malbach will be entered in the high jump, while strongmen Joe Auffrey, Keith Grantham, Ken Hines and Dennis Lamb will compete in shot put.

'S' IN 2 GAME SERIES

Tech icers seek revenge

KEN ANSTEY
Skater's top scorer

The feeling of revenge is running high on the Michigan Tech campus this weekend, and Amo Bessone wishes that he could take his hockey team some place else.

Tech has not beaten the Spartans since February of 1966, and in 1966 the Spartans dumped the defending NCAA champion Techmen, 4-3, in East Lansing to win the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. playoffs. Last season Bessone's crew stunned Tech in overtime, 2-1, to take the playoffs.

It's Winter-Carnival time at Tech, so the two-game set is doubly important with the Governor's Cup up for grabs.

It is a must weekend for both clubs. Tech, 7-2, needs a victory to continue their pursuit of league-leading North Dakota, 9-2-1. Bessone has made it clear that the Spartans must win seven of their remaining 10 league contests to have a chance for fifth place.

"We are in terrible shape," Bessone said.

The team's No. 4 scorer, Wayne Duffett, is out for the season with a broken jaw suffered against Minnesota, No. 2 scorer Nino Cristofoli and alternate goalie Bob Johnson will sit Friday night's contest because of fighting penalties incurred on the Jan. 20 game with Minnesota.

"Those Indians up in Minnesota killed us," Bessone said. "It looked like we had just come back from Vietnam. They high-sticked us to death."

The situation has forced Bessone into juggling his lines.

"We can get over the bruises, but how are we going to replace the scoring that Cristofoli and Duffett gave us?" the coach queried.

Bessone will try to find the key with a first line of Cristofoli, Ken Anstey and Bob Fallat Saturday night. Nelson DeBenedet will fill in for Cristofoli on Friday night. Lee Hathaway, Bill Enrico and Pat Russo will carry the second line, while Mike Oleson, Chuck Phillips and Bob Pattullo are Bessone's third line.

The fourth line will alternate with Bill Watt seeing action.

Michigan Tech will give Bessone all the headaches that he can handle.

Sophomore goalie Bob Hughes registered a shutout against Minnesota-Duluth Saturday, the first Tech shutout in over two years.

While Hughes was performing his heroics, the Tech skaters were scoring, winning Friday 7-2 and Saturday 5-0. Junior center Al Karlander scored three times during the series, while Captain John Haines, Ed Shillington and Jim Kryway tallied two apiece.

Tech rides a four-game winning streak, and has a victory over North Dakota and a pair over Denver in posting its 13-5 record.

Tech's greatest asset is their ice arena, Decks Arena, where the Huskies are 6-1. The rink is smaller than other rinks and Tech has used it well over the years.

"You can't skate in that rink," Bessone said. "You've got to shoot and keep the pressure on. They'll do it to you. That's their game."

'New' matmen meet Illini

By STEVE LOKKER
State News Sports Writer

The MSU wrestling team will sport a new look Saturday as it faces Illinois at the Men's IM at 7:30 p.m.

Coach Grady Peninger has rearranged the lineup, inserting one new man and changing the weight classes of four other grapplers.

George Hody will make his first appearance since taking a first place in the MSU quadrangle. Hody will wrestle at 125 pounds.

Bob Byrum will move to the 130-pound class. This will put Keith Lowrance at 137. Lowrance won the quadrangle title at 137 when Dale Anderson was hurt earlier in the year.

Anderson will move to 145, forcing Dale Carr to 152. Ron Ouellet, the regular 152 pounder, will not wrestle.

The rest of the lineup will remain the same, with Pat Karlslake at 160, Rod Ott at 167, Mike Bradley at 177, and Jeff Smith at heavyweight.

Illinois' wrestling team will be looking for its first win of the season and the MSU squad will be looking to even its record on the current home stand.

The Spartans have won one of three at home, beating Purdue, 35-0, while losing to Oklahoma University, 16-15, and Oklahoma State, 21-6. The Spartans have an overall record of 4-3 in dual meet action.

With seven returning lettermen and a group of promising sophomores, Illinois was expected to improve its 2-10 record from last year. Things haven't worked out that way for the Illini squad coached by Buel (Pat) Paterson.

The Illinois lineup will be headed by Bob Loffredo, captain, and Roger May, both seniors who have won two varsity letters in the sport.

Loffredo will wrestle at 152 and will face MSU's Carr. He was the most valuable player on the last two Illinois wrestling teams. Last season he won 12 of 17 matches, three by pin. May won one of 16 matches last year.

Sophomore Dave Inman will wrestle at 123 pounds. Another sophomore, Bruce Lauer will compete at 130. Denny Rott will be featured at 137.

Chuck Marshall, the other Illini grappler besides Loffredo who has a winning record, will go at 145 pounds.

Rounding out the lineup will be Bruce Kirkpatrick at 160, May at 167, Kerry Anderson at 177, and Bart Macomber at heavyweight.

The meet, which will be competing for attendance with the MSU-Michigan basketball game, will be the next to last home competition for MSU.

Next weekend the Spartans travel to Iowa for dual matches against Northern Iowa and Iowa University. The Spartans will come home for the last home meet against Michigan, Feb. 4.

Court sets standards for felony guilty pleas

By United Press International

The Michigan Court of Appeals Thursday set forth sweeping, mandatory procedures for Michigan trial judges to follow in accepting guilty pleas from those accused of felonies.

The standards, issued in an opinion written by Judge Horace Gilmore, will apply to all criminal cases now pending trial and will be used by the appeals court in all cases that it receives.

In handling guilty pleas, the court said, a trial judge must:

- Advise the defendant of his right to have a lawyer and appoint one if he cannot afford legal help.
- Make a record of all proceedings.
- Inform the defendant of the charges against him, avoiding "police jargon or catch titles."
- Advise him that in pleading guilty he waives the right to a trial.
- Determine if the defendant has made a confession and if this was a reason for deciding to plead guilty.
- Be sure that the guilty plea was "made freely, understandingly and voluntarily made, without any undue influence, compulsion, duress or promise of leniency."

Gilmore's opinion was written on the case of an indigent man who pleaded guilty to attempted larceny in 1965, Jackson County Circuit Judge John Simpson did not advise him of the penalties attached to a guilty plea and refused to let him withdraw it.

The Appeals Court overturned Simpson's ruling and sent the case back for a new trial conforming to the Gilmore standards.

"Although we have statutory standards for accepting pleas of guilty, and have had such standards since 1875 . . . and although much has been written by the Supreme Court and this court with respect to what a trial court must do to satisfy these standards in accepting pleas of guilty, we have found no case which fully interprets all of such standards," Gilmore said.

"In view of the many appeals reaching this court because of alleged noncompliance with these requirements, we believe a specification by this court of what it considers minimal compliance therewith and a suggested procedure for attaining such compliance will be a service to the trial bench and bar."

He then sketched a suggested step-by-step interrogation procedure for judges to follow with the defendant before accepting a guilty plea.

"In other words, the defendant should be asked to state on the record what he did and the court must satisfy itself from the defendant's narrative or responses that the defendant is actually guilty of all the elements of the crime with which he is charged, and only then, can the court accept the plea of guilty."

The court also upheld a contempt of court citation for a lawyer who refused to handle an appeal for a man whom the court had appointed him to defend. In an opinion written by Judge Robert B. Burns, the court said that Leo W. Hoffman, an Allegan County lawyer, obviously violated a court order in refusing to handle the appeal, "irrespective of personal feelings or motives."

Nixon a candidate

about 85 per cent of the state's households.

Nixon's announcement comes no surprise. For many months he has been speaking and writing about foreign problems -- especially the war in Vietnam -- and the major domestic issues in the United States.

Moreover, various polls showed him well ahead of Gov. Romney, the only other announced candidate for the GOP nomination, and also leading those considered potential candidates.

As Nixon declared his candidacy, the latest Gallup Poll showed him holding a 3-1 lead over Romney and a margin of 3 to 2 over Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Voters in 320 communities across the nation were asked, "Suppose the choice for president in the Republican Convention narrows down to Richard Nixon, Gov. Romney and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, which would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"

The Gallup survey reported 68 per cent favored Nixon to 26 per cent for Romney with 6 per cent undecided. A similar survey last November gave Nixon 65 per cent to Romney's 24 per cent.

In the GOP Convention, the winner of the nomination will need a minimum of 667 delegate votes out of the total of 1,333.

Some political analysts have estimated that Nixon may already have lined up between 350 and 400 delegate votes.

Korea crisis

The chief North Korean delegate, Maj. Gen. Pak Chung Kook, responded with an invective-filled denunciation, demanding a U.S. apology and severe punishment for those who, he said, had committed grave crimes against his country.

The North Korean stuck to his charge that the ship had intruded inside North Korean territorial waters. Smith maintained the vessel was in international waters.

In the helicopter incident, McCloskey recalled that two U.S. pilots were forced down in North Korea May 17, 1963, after they unintentionally strayed over the Demilitarized Zone. The plane and flyers were unarmed.

After numerous requests through the Military Armistice Commission meetings, the American pair was finally released May 16, 1964. The North Koreans did not return the aircraft, and the U.S. side made a written apology before getting the pilots back.

Bhuddist monk

Movement, said. "He speaks a philosophical level and has a humanist message, not a political one. He is telling us about the problems of the Vietnamese people."

is telling us about the problems of the Vietnamese people."

The Buddhist monk is on a lecture tour of the United States under the sponsorship of the Fellowship of Reconciliation (FOR). He has been in the United States since the summer of 1966 and for political reasons, cannot now return to Vietnam, according to Warren Day of the United Ministries.

In Saigon, Nhat Hanh was a professor of religion and director of social studies at the Buddhist university, Van Hanh. He also was the founder and director of the School of Youth for Social Service in Vietnam.

Nhat Hanh is the author of 10 books among them a best-selling volume of poems and "Vietnam: Lotus in a Sea of Fire," both of which have been suppressed in South Vietnam.

"Lotus in a Sea of Fire" is the book in which he presents his views on the solution to the Vietnam war and which provides the text for many of his speeches, Day said.

It has been printed in eight languages and has sold more than 100,000 copies in South Vietnam, though it is banned there.

In the summer of 1966 he issued a joint statement on non-violence with Martin Luther King and in Jan. 1967, was nominated by King for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Moral crisis confronts pervert

NEW YORK (AP)—He's a man in his late 40s, a regular churchgoer. But he's afraid to discuss his problem with fellow believers, or even his minister, lest they ostracize him.

In telling about it, he uses a pseudonym, Marcus Paine. He's what he terms a "hidden homosexual"—one of an estimated two million to 17 million Americans.

"Sadly, I know from other experiences of two others that I cannot confide in my minister either," Paine said.

"I've made some sort of peace with God. I lean on the belief that we are all sinners, and if heterosexual sinners can sit in the pews each Sunday, so can I."

Down through history, Christianity has variously shunned and condemned homosexuality as a special evil, but a growing number of Protestant and Catholic theologians are urging more compassionate understanding of the problem.

Some theologians—both Catholic and Protestant—lately have contended that homosexual relations, in some cases, may not be wrong in themselves—if on a basis of love, permanence and fidelity.

"If God is present in the loving responsible relationship of two homosexuals, then we cannot call that relationship sinful," the Rev. R. W. Cromay, a New York Episcopalian, writes in the weekly, "Living Church."

Judaism maintains strongly that homosexuality is contrary to God's will for human life.

Mosaic law calls lying with another man "an abomination." St. Paul also assails it. The church's condemnation was so severe in the Middle Ages that many homosexuals were hanged or stoned to death.

However, the Rev. Herl J. M. Nouwen, a Dutch Catholic priest and psychologist, says St. Paul "does not condemn homosexuality as such, but as a sin of idolatry. Homosexuality in St. Paul's day was related to temple worship and therefore to the adoration of false gods."

"Neither the Bible nor the practice of the Middle Ages can be used to prove that homosexuality as such is a special perversion which asks for special punishment," he writes in the National Catholic Reporter.

Folk in religion

Folk singing grows as part of liturgy

The singing of folk songs, part of a program begun last April, has become a popular part of the Sunday Mass at St. John's Student Parish.

Progressing from a repertoire of four basic songs almost a year ago, the program has been expanded to a large selection of folk songs.

Masses and several Masses during the week at Alumni Chapel. "Most students feel that it makes the Mass more meaningful and helps them communicate more easily," Steffy Tinkler, Rochester, N.Y., junior, one of the song leaders, said.

Further indication of the seeming popularity is the attendance at Sunday Masses. "The fact that such large groups attend, shows that they enjoy it," Sister Madeline, parish staff member, said.

"There are those who are skeptical about using folk songs in the Mass," Rev. Declan Batt, assistant pastor, said. "But these are the older, conservative people. They like to hear Bach and Beethoven in the Mass because they think God likes to listen to their concerts.

"But I think the Mass is people participating in praising God. Our parish is mainly for the students. And students seem to communicate and participate well in the folk songs in the Mass," he said.

Masses in Masses, Father Batt said, is the old argument of religion being "other-worldly." Folk music is a "this-worldly" form of expression, he said, and "the question is whether the church should be involved in this world or not. Young people say yes; others, no."

The introduction of the program has caused some practical problems. "It is extremely difficult to find capable song leaders," Rev. Francis Zippel, pastor, said.

Another problem is the constant need for new music. "In order to keep the interest up, new songs must be introduced," James Bjorum, Holland junior, said.

Sister Madeline feels that folk singing in the Mass "will evolve with the changing times of the church. Whatever will make the liturgy more meaningful will determine its duration."

Rev. Ward speaks on modern sex ideas

By PAT ANSTETT

One of society's major "immoralities" is that it forces individuals to live in a "sex-centric yet sex rejecting environment," according to Rev. Don Ward, campus minister speaking on Sexuality '68, The College Scene.

This "schizophrenic view of sex which causes a polarity of attitudes, hypocritically tells us to cling to the status quo amid a background of sexual freedom," he said in the second of a series of Brody Complex lectures.

One example of this polarity of attitudes is the "double standard. Man's exploitive use of sex is excused while women are expected to resist any such desire or act," he said.

Man's excused indulgence thus leads his peers, his girlfriend, or his wife to expect him to be a "successful sex technician," Ward said. These expectations push man into the "crowded bedroom syndrome" in which the male's environment expects him to enjoy and excel in this area.

Ward cited the typical bull session, after-the-date remark of "Well, how did you make out?" as one example of this push to high sexual performance levels.

With man's expected experience and knowledge on this subject, women attempt to get informed by other than first hand sources, he said. Sex manuals are one supposed summary of knowledge for the inexperienced female. The insufficiency of these sources was summed up by one woman to Ward as, "it's like taking a road map to bed with you."

Another immorality which Ward cited was the labeling or cultural conditioning of terms or objects. "Sex is negatively connotative to immorality. These senseless stigmas do violence to a free discussion of sex," he said.

"By keeping things the way they are and by insisting on an unchanging authority, we do untold harm to people and wipe out freedom. It is that love that gives sex its meaning. It is that love that gives our very existence meaning."

This discrepancy of values is proved in a 1966 Cornell University survey, Ward said. When women were asked if they were in love with the last person they had sexual intercourse with, 100 per cent said yes. Only 13 per cent of the males answered affirmatively to this same question.

In the same survey, 60 per cent of the women intended to marry the man they had sexual relations with, whereas only nine per cent of the men had any such intentions.

"This creeps permissiveness without affection uses sex as an end in itself. The highest per cent of pregnancies and abortions occur in this area," Ward said.

Another area, permissiveness with affection, is based on the personal opinion that morals are private and that love justifies sex. The majority of premarital sex occurs here, he said.

Backing up this statement, Ward quoted the Cornell survey, which stated that 70 per cent of all engaged women interviewed had intercourse with their fiancé. One half to two-thirds of the women had had pre-marital intercourse with the man they married.

The problem of how we get unthrust from these standards is solved by a "realistic facing up to what sexuality is. We have to sort the facts from the fallacies," he said.

Myths were cited as another social hang-up. "Men can't really have a sure way of telling if a woman has had intercourse, masturbation really isn't harmful, and the dormitories don't really put saltwater in the food to suppress sexual desires," he added.

All these standards centered on what Ward posed as the critical issue. "We must use all our capabilities and potentialities to come to grips with a deeply meaningful relationship," he summarized.

"If we wish to live in a realistic world we have to reach out and erase the barriers. There is no substitute for effort," he said.

Great relationships are not stumbled into, he said. They have to be earned. "It is just one man's opinion, but it seems to me this is what it is all about."

It is not sloppy or sticky nor sentimental—but love, born of freedom, it is that love that gives sex its meaning. It is that love that gives our very existence meaning."

E. Lansing church holds open house

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, 431 E. Saginaw, will hold an open house from 2:30-6 p.m. Sunday.

Tours of the building, a pictorial exhibit from missionaries, and a film, "Man's Search for Happiness," which was shown at the World's Fair Mormon Pavilion, will highlight the afternoon.

Shrine discussion

Francis M. Donahue, associate professor of religion, will discuss "The Christian and Mohammedan Shrines in Israel" and show slides taken on a recent trip there at a supper-forum at the Hillier House, 319 Hillcrest Ave., at 6 p.m. Sunday.

All students are invited and rides are available by calling 332-1916.
