Stevens seeks clarification of Thompson-May interests

By JIM SCHAEFER
State News Staff Writer

The political crossfire between trustee Kenneth W. Thompson, R-Lansing, and Chairman of the Board Don Stevens, D-Okemos, continued Monday with a letter sent by Stevens to the attorney general requesting a clarification on the relationship of Thompson to Philip J. May, MSU's treasurer.

In his statement, Stevens raised the question whether Thompson, as a Michigan Bell Telephone Co. executive whose offices are in the IBM Bldg. near campus, was guilty of a conflict when he voted in the Sept. 20 board meeting to allow May to stay on as the University's financial officer.

Stevens' request followed his reply to Thompson's call for an investigation and legal action by the attorney general against certain campus organizations--the Student Liberation Alliance (SLA) and Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

The attorney general's office said Monday that it had received "nothing yet" as a formal request from Thompson asking the investigation on certain organizations on campus.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Leon Cohan said "Nothing has come over my desk yet" when asked about Thompson's call for such an investigation. Cohan added that until such a request was made, he didn't want to comment on the nature of such a procedure.

In his statement on Friday, Thompson had also reprimanded Stevens for appearing at a rally held last week on campus that discussed the controversial resolution passed by the trustees also on Sept. 20.

STEVENS

Stevens, in his reply to the charge by Thompson that he was "playing into the hands" of SLA and SDS by going to the rally, claimed that he had been asked to appear by Pete Ellsworth, ASMSU president.

Monday, Stevens said his letter to Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley raised the question of a "collusion or conflict of interest" in the relationship between May and Thompson.

The letter notes that a Oct. 5 article of the State Journal stated that Thompson, as an executive for Michigan Bell Telephone Co., "a company that does extensive business with the University, has for some time occupied space rented for him by Michigan Bell Telephone Co. in the IBM Bldg. on E. Michigan Avenue."

"This building, I am told," Stevens said in the letter, "at the time this construction (between Michigan Bell and the Philip Jesse Co., which rented the space in the IBM Bldg.) was agreed to, was owned in part (through the Philip Jesse Co.) by Mrs. Philip J. May."

"The building, I understand," Stevens added, "is still largely owned by relatives of Mr. May."

Claiming that Thompson had cast "the deciding vote that prevented Mr. May's removal as vice president for business and finance," Stevens asked for "an early opinion" from Kelley "as to whether this arrangement constitutes a conflict of interest involving Mr. May and/or Mr. Thompson."

Stevens' letter reopened the conflict of interest controversy sparked more than a year and a half ago by a law enacted in 1966 which attempted to clarify the responsibilities of a public official who also has an interest in a private enterprise that does business with the state or one of its subdivisions.

Of the three MSU officials investigated by Kelley's office due to various requests (President Hannah; C. Allen Harlan, a Democratic trustee from Southfield; and May), May was the only one found to be in "substantial conflict."

May, whose sabbatical leave began March 1, and ended Sept. 20 was allowed to return by that Sept. 20, 4-4 deadlock vote by the trustees over a motion formulated by Stevens to "terminate" his services.

A few days later, May submitted an affidavit of compliance to Kelley's office which stated that the "hypothetical" situation that Kelley considered a conflict in his opinion no longer existed.

Mrs. May had resigned as an officer of the Philip Jesse Co., and had transferred her stock out of her control.

In sending the letter on Thompson, Stevens said he had no "specific laws" in mind to apply, stating that it was "up to the attorney general."

INVESTIGATION CALLED

SDS sees no crisis in trustee accusations

By RON INGRAM
State News Staff Writer

A spokesman for the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) said Monday that the statement by Republican trustee Kenneth Thompson, calling for an attorney general's investigation and legal action against certain campus organizations, was not regarded as a crisis situation by the group.

SDS and the Student Liberation Alliance (SLA) have been attacked by Thompson as using tactics disruptive to the university. Thompson said he could produce a letter from J. Edgar Hoover, head of the ERT, concerning alleged infiltration of SDS by Communist Party members.

SDS has been under heavy attack since last June when the group held its national convention at MSU. At that time reports were issued by the FBI accusing SDS of holding workshops on "sabotage and explosives."

The group denied the reports saying that they were "cleverly devised" and complete "nonsense."

The FBI has also accused SDS of being the instigator and precipitator of unrest and violence on college campuses. The stated purpose of the group is "to bring about social change in America and the world whereby all people may democratically make all decisions affecting their lives."

The SLA is a relatively new group on campus, organized in July with the purpose of "achieving a free university in a free society."

So far this term both groups have been active in fighting the suspension resolution passed Sept. 20 by the trustees. The groups feel their actions in this controversy have been completely in line with their stated purposes.

'U' Council opens doors to students

The Academic Council meets this afternoon in its first assembly of the term - one which will be open to students for the first time.

The council, which meets at 3:15 p.m. in the Con Con Room of the International Center, will hear the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs' report on the trustees suspension rule as well as reports on curriculum changes, changes in the summer academic calendar and implementation of the faculty bylaws.

Students will be represented at the Council meeting with a voice, but not a vote, by Carl Knight, East Lansing graduate student, and two as yet unnamed members of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) Student Board.

The now-required open council meetings and the student representatives to the council are the result of changes in the faculty by-laws adopted this spring.

The Academic Council is composed of President Hannah, Provost Howard Neville, elected faculty representatives of each college and several ex-officio members. Its functions are to advise the president on matters concerning the general welfare of the University, approve or reject major changes in courses and curricula and interpret, with final authority, the faculty by-laws.

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs will state its opposition to the trustees suspension rule and recommend that the council assign that committee in cooperation with ASMSU and the Administration to develop University policy in dealing with emergency situations of student disturbance on campus.

The faculty committee recommendation came at the request of the Steering Committee of the Academic Council that the faculty committee review the suspension rule and report its findings to the Council.

Cash available for Defense loans

Cash for approved National Defense Loans is available now in 101 Administration Bldg. and should be picked up between the hours of 8 a.m.-noon and 1-5 p.m. Wednesday. After Wednesday, all unclaimed notes will be voided.

In the case of National Defense Loans, cash or checks are issued rather than credit. The loans are not automatically applied to deferred payments, but must be signed for each term.

Wallace pledges troops to fight crime in Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) -- George C. Wallace said Monday that if he is elected president he would move up to 30,000 troops into the nation's capital to stamp out crime in its streets.

"I don't care what it takes, this city is going to be safe," Wallace declared.

The former Alabama governor carried his third party campaign to within sight of the White House as he delivered a major foreign policy speech at the National Press Club. He capped the speech with a call to crush out crime in the capital city, which has a predominantly Negro population.

"We're going to put some troops in this city," Wallace said. "You're going to be able to walk the streets if it takes 30,000 troops."

Wallace took a get-tough attitude as he spelled out his goals in foreign affairs and urged an end to what he called a "no win" policy in Vietnam.

The American Independent candidate called for a military victory in Vietnam if the Paris peace talks fail. He urged an end to foreign aid to nations helping Communist countries and demanded reduction of trade with Cuba by this country's allies.

Wallace backed improved aid for Latin America and said: "We will see that the principles of the Monroe Doctrine once again become the cornerstone of American policy in this hemisphere."

He said he would be willing to go to a summit meeting with the Soviet Union and that the United States should not subordinate its interests to the United Nations.

And he asked an end to economic sanctions against the white government of Rhodesia.

Wallace said he is dedicated to peace and he said the best way to achieve it is to maintain military superiority.

Asked at another newsmen's meeting under what circumstances he might drop the atomic bomb is president, Wallace replied, "We will never have nuclear warfare in this world."

He made this statement at a United Press International newspaper editors' conference.

Wallace said he wanted the United States to open up such a military lead over other nations that none would dare attack.

He added, "I would not consider nuclear war at all in Vietnam."

"He hurled charges of treason at anti-war protesters who fly Viet Cong flags and call publicly for Communist victory in Vietnam."

Groucho who?

George Wallace waits to address the United Press International Editors and Publishers Conference, where he said he would not use nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

KALINE HIT DECISIVE

Tiger rally downs Cards

DETOIT (UPI) -- Al Kaline, after 16 years waiting to play in his first World Series, kept the Detroit Tigers alive Monday when he slapped a two-run, bases-loaded single in the seventh inning to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 and send the Series back to St. Louis.

It was an almost storybook setting when Kaline stepped to the plate with one out and the Tigers trailing 3-2 with the crowd of 53,634 at Tiger Stadium exploding in noise after reliever Joe Hoerner walked Mickey Stanley on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases.

Kaline didn't disappoint the Tiger fans who've waited 23 years for a World Series as he poked Hoerner's second pitch to center field for a two-run single that started a three-run rally and narrowed the Cards' lead to a 3-2 in this series.

The teams will now have Tuesday off and the Series will return to St. Louis for the sixth game Wednesday in Busch Stadium with Ray Washburn pitching against either Earl Wilson or Joe Sparrma of the Tigers. The seventh game, if necessary, will be played Thursday.

Kaline's hit gave the triumph to Mickey Lolich, who blanked the Cards over the final eight innings for his second Series victory after being bombed for three runs in the first inning.

The Tigers, who looked stumbling and inept when they were humbled by the Cards before their home fans Saturday and Sunday, finally made the big plays in this game and then came up with a patented late-inning rally that was their trademark in the American League this season. The Tigers won 40 games this year after being tied or behind in the seventh.

The key thing the Tigers did was keep Lou Brock from running them crazy after the first inning. Brock did get three hits but Bill Freehan threw him out attempting to steal second in the third and Willie Horton threw him out at the plate when he tried to score from second in the fifth on Julian Javier's single to left.

Brock probably could have scored if he's tried to slide but he came in standing up and failed to touch the plate when he bounced off Freehan, who took Horton's one-bounce throw from left.

Brock provided a dramatic finale to this game when he came up with two out and two on in the ninth after pinch-hitter Roger Maris struck out.

Brock ticked Lolich's 1-1 pitch back to the mound and Lolich snared it, ran towards first and flipped an underhand toss to Norm Cash at the base.

It was the first time in this Series that the tying runs have been on base when the final out was made and it proved a frustrating finish for Brock, who's been the star with a .524 average on 11 for 21. His lifetime series average of .400 on 32 for 80 is highest in series history.

The way the game started, it seemed certain the Tigers were going to suffer the disgrace of losing three straight series games on their home field. That hasn't happened since 1961 when the Yankees whipped Cincinnati in five games.

Brock led off with a double and after Javier struck out, he scored on Flood's hit-and-run single. Orlando Cepeda then golfed a 3-2 pitch into the leftfield seats on the raw, windy day with the temperature in the mid 50s to make it 3-0.

Cards starter Nelson Briles escaped trouble for three innings but Mickey Stanley led off the fourth with a triple. After Kaline fell back from an inside pitch that hit his bat for a groundout, Cash hit a sacrifice fly.

Court upholds LBJ's call for reservists

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Supreme Court Monday turned down a challenge to President Johnson's mobilization of reservists and freed the Army to send 256 soldiers to Vietnam.

Eight justices joined in the action and gave not one word of explanation for their ruling.

The ninth, Justice William O. Douglas, dissented and said the Army had not lived up to its promise to the reservists.

Douglas, who had temporarily blocked the Army from sending the men to Vietnam, said the issue was not the power of Congress "but how legislation shall be read, in order, if possible, to avoid creating a 'credibility gap' between the people and their government."

The reservists lodged two major claims: 1. That in being called up for 24 months as units they were not given credit for active duty time some already had served as individuals and 2. That they could be called up only in time of war or of national emergency declared by Congress.

Until the law was enacted reserve units could be called to active duty only in time of war or of national emergency.

Douglas had ordered the Army, in some instances at the last minute, not to send the men to Vietnam until the court could consider their pleas. The justices did so at a private conference following this opening day. The Army is now free to send the men to war.

They include 113 reservists from the Cleveland area and with 1002nd Supply and Services Co. at Fort Meade, Md.; 13 members of the 448th Army Coastal Unit of New York City at Fort Lee, Va.; 80 members of the 1018th Service and Supply Co. of Schenectady, N.Y., at Fort Lee; 43 members of the 74th Field Hospital unit from New York and New Jersey, at Fort Lee; and 7 men with the 173rd Petroleum Co. of Greenwood, Miss., also at Fort Lee.

Partisan phantoms and real issues

A statement issued last Friday by Kenneth W. Thompson, a Republican MSU trustee, called for a general investigation by the attorney general of campus groups employing "disruptive tactics," and urged legal action based on the investigation.

According to Thompson, "There are individuals and groups at MSU, both students and faculty, that would have the total administration of the University governed by students and faculty. Such groups as the Student Liberation Alliance and Students for a Democratic Society have as their basic objective a maximum disruption of the University's administration and its educational process."

In his statement, Thompson also claimed to be able to produce a letter from J. Edgar Hoover concerning alleged infiltration of SDS by the Communist Party.

It is sad that a presumably responsible public figure, not to speak of a trustee of a large university, should resort to such hackneyed political devices in the tradition of George Wallace, Joe McCarthy, and other politically ambitious but demagogic figures. The specific details of Thompson's accusations, such as the degree and manner in which the educational process has allegedly been disrupted and in what specific ways, by whom, and for what reasons, are distressingly vague. Thompson's characterization of the campus political situation is not only one-sided and simplistic, but decidedly distorted, as anyone may discover for himself by listening to the SLA and SDS statements of their own goals, which are not at all mysterious or secret but usually openly proclaimed.

The question of Communist Party involvement in campus politics is a traditional rabble-rousing accusation, but hardly applicable to student politics in this country, since the Communist Party is commonly regarded among leftist students as a politically irrelevant and fossilized organization, whose main emphasis is conservative and largely foreign to the idealistic goals of the students.

In Thompson's accusation of "gutter politics" allegedly practiced by Democratic trustees in giving voice to public dissatisfaction with the trustees suspension resolution, the motive and nature of Thompson's statement become apparent. Thompson seemed particularly upset at Democratic trustee chairman Don Stevens' "playing into the hands" of SDS and SLA by speaking at the academic freedom rally held Monday—which was also sponsored by that notorious anarchist gang, ASMSU.

The Democrats, according to Thompson, "are dragging down the image of a great university to a point where it appears that integrity and concern for reasonable authority be damned."

Thompson's statement was a characteristic appeal to partisanship. Damning the Democrats, staunchly affirming unquestionable issues such as maintaining the image of the University, supporting "reasonable authority and discipline," he begged the question of the real issues at stake, namely the nature of academic freedom and the role and nature of student and faculty power at this University, by denying the existence of the very problems which brought about the rally and the alleged "disruptions" in the first place.

"The image of a great university" will take care of itself if those responsible for its administration will keep out of the gutter of partisan politics and deal with the problems of the University realistically and honestly instead of treating them as political footballs.

The overkill combination

On the very first occasion of unveiling his running mate, George Wallace tried desperately to unsay what Curtis LeMay said about using nuclear weapons in Vietnam if necessary. But what LeMay said remains on the record, where it belongs. "I would use anything that we could dream up, including nuclear weapons, if it was necessary."

The evidence that this was not a casual shooting-from-the-hip outburst will be found in LeMay's recent book, "America Is In Danger": "We must be willing to continue our bombing until we have destroyed every work of man in North Vietnam if this is what it takes to win the war."

There is no danger to America when LeMay writes or says what a number of military men feel to be the correct military doctrine. But America is indeed in danger when a man with this kind of all-out military thinking becomes the running mate of a man with far-out racial and political thinking, to form one of the three major teams in the presidential campaign.

In the title of a book of mine five years ago I called ours an "Age of Overkill," feeling that the presence of nuclear weapons would make the overkill effect spill over into other areas of our lives. But it has proved truer than I had bargained for.

In the overkill principle is the use of weapons that would overdestroy the target. Talk much less belligerent than LeMay's by Goldwater in 1964 helped bury him in a landslide, and LeMay's overkill may turn many voters to Richard Nixon who were earlier veering toward Wallace's domestic mood. The people want the war over, but few of them want it after the cost of bringing the Chinese in or turning both Vietnams into a cemetery.

But Wallace and LeMay are better matched than many of Wallace's less hawkish supporters may like to think, because the same overkill principle dominates their thinking—one on military policy, the other race and demonstrations. They form an "overkill" team. In the unlikely but not impossible event of their coming to power, they would tend to strip America of many of its resources of indirect action, moral persuasion and the weapons of ideas, and would leave only naked force as the major weapon to use in crisis at home and abroad. There would be massive demonstrations against them that would be met by a force beyond the needs of the target, ushering in an era of the great repression at home and of the great fear of America in the world.

George Wallace doesn't like this kind of analysis, but he cannot wave most of the American press away as hostile to him. He is a big boy now, and is in the big time. He has to take the logical consequences of the choices he makes, including his choice of LeMay.

Its meaning lies in the alliance of the far-out political right (represented by Wallace) and the all-out military (represented by LeMay). Either element is dangerous in itself if it achieves power. Together the danger is doubled, and more than doubled. The history of bloodshed in Europe and Latin America is witness to what happens when rigid men, themselves under the sway of the tyranny of outworn ideas, attempt to enforce those ideas by a tyranny of their own.

The tragedy of it is that they get help from any of the far-left, who become their targets but who share their fanatic temper and are their unwitting allies. The French were lucky that they had a DeGaulle when the recoil against the left-wing student revolutionaries set in: a lesser man would today be involved in bloodshed. The Mexicans have been less lucky, and the military crackdown in the "Square of the Three Cultures" has left scores of victims.

George Wallace has shown himself master of the art of exploiting the boos and chanting of hostile groups in his audience, using them as proof of the anarchy he promises to repress by any means. These young people have courage, and they scorn to show any fear. But they would do well to reflect that it was the ghetto riots, the march on the Pentagon and the Chicago street clashes which played directly into Wallace's hands and created the support his movement gets.

The young people who abandoned reflective action to engage in deliberately provocative action should learn what the consequences may be in a frame of social anger and polarization. The ethos of "Anything Goes" can be played by the military and the far right as well as by the New Left, and it can be played with overkill effect.

Milestones for Academic Council

Today's meeting of the Academic Council, the first of the school year, may be a milestone for two very important reasons.

First, the Academic Council will consider a recommendation by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs that would in effect rescind the controversial suspension resolution. The faculty committee is proposing that the Academic Council assign the faculty committee, ASMSU and the administration to develop procedures for avoiding and coping with emergency situations of student disturbances on campus.

According to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, the trustees' suspension resolution is an "unnecessary abrogation" of due process as guaranteed by the Academic Freedom Report.

Hopefully the Academic Council will discuss and act on the committee's proposal and come up with a better alternative to the poorly thought out resolution by the board of trustees.

Also at today's meeting, the Academic Council will meet in open session with three student seats for the first time in that august body's history.

These changes, which are admittedly closer to the cherished ideal of academic freedom than before, are the result of several revisions to the Faculty Bylaws as approved by the trustees at the beginning of summer term.

The students, two undergraduates to be chosen by ASMSU and one graduate to be chosen by Graduate Council, will be given a voice in policy making but no vote.

Unfortunately, ASMSU has not yet named the two permanent undergraduate representatives as they are required to do. Because of beginning-of-fall-term confusion, the final decision will not be made until the second meeting of the Council. In the interim, ASMSU plans to appoint two of its members to attend this meeting.

ASMSU's abject position is somewhat understandable, but by putting off such an important decision as this makes it appear that student government isn't particularly interested in the hard-fought battle for student rights.

ASMSU has erred, therefore, in putting off the appointment of permanent student seats on the council. The very fact that the Academic Council will be considering the suspension resolution at its first meeting makes it important that the permanent student members be present.

In addition to this, fall term will be a time of trial for those students ultimately to be appointed to the Academic Council. They should have been appointed well in advance to give the students a chance to familiarize themselves with the body of which they are about to become a part.

And once the permanent seats are assigned, what about the vote? To grant a student a voice in policy decisions but to deny him the vote smacks of tokenism on the part of the faculty and administration.

Both sides in the academic freedom struggle have to live up to their responsibilities. ASMSU, as a student group, must prove to the faculty and administration that it deserves its hard-won student seats by making the appointments quickly and intelligently. On the other hand, the faculty and administration should indicate real faith in the students by granting the student representatives the vote.

Today's meeting, which is the first time the Academic Council has held an open meeting, should prove to be interesting viewing.

Student co-op power

To the Editor:

I wish to commend you for printing the wire service story concerning the Student Cooperative Housing Movement in the United States and Canada. There are probably very few persons at MSU, including most of those living in co-ops, who realize the magnitude of this cooperative housing movement across North America and around the world.

The InterCooperative Council at the University of Michigan recently became the first student organization to receive a long-term, low-interest loan from the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

They received a 50-year loan of over $1 million to finance a co-op serving nearly 300 students. The co-op system at the Berkeley campus in California has total assets of over $3.5 million, and more than 20,000 alumni.

Some colleges in Canada have realized that cooperatives can provide quality housing for students at less expense than the university and can administer said housing with greater efficiency than the university.

As a result, at least two of these Canadian schools have ceased building any further student housing, leaving only the co-ops to provide further accommodations.

The above-mentioned examples, along with numerous others from across the continent, seem to manifest one facet of the rise of student power during the past decade.

Students are now realizing that they can provide their own housing, and that they can do a better job of doing so than their local university.

No lesbian skin flick

To the Editor:

"Therese and Isabelle" fails as a lesbian skin flick—it wasn't meant to be one. It certainly would be considered elementary material by the American Psychology Assn., but that is not the audience for which the movie is intended.

What is good about the film is that it effectively portrays human feelings, emotions, fallacies (including the unfortunate characteristic of thinking, speaking and acting in cliches), and whether this is done using new or old techniques, as long as the idea comes across to the receptive, the artist has accomplished his goal (perhaps you would like to classify blues music as a worthless cliché?).

Perhaps the film director did intend a skin flick and did write the ads himself but if he did, he failed miserably. Instead he produced, accidentally, a work of art.

HHH calls Nixon vacation campaigner

Hubert H. Humphrey opened the final month of his presidential campaign Monday by stepping up personal attacks on his Republican opponent, charging that Richard M. Nixon "has spent most of this campaign vacationing" and "has taken the American people for granted" because polls show he will win.

"But we are coming up fast," the Democratic nominee said.

Campaigning in major Pennsylvania industrial centers, Humphrey drew enthusiastic crowd response with his free-wheeling barbs at Nixon.

In Erie, where a crowd police estimated at 10,000 filled a downtown square, Humphrey said that Nixon "has been playing President so long that I think it's time for a change-let's get rid of him."

Humphrey said the World Series game he attended in Detroit Sunday reminded him of Nixon.

"Nixon is refusing to go to bat, he is looking for a base on balls, he can't hit and he struck out twice before," the Vice President said.

Noting that Nixon as vice president once had a chance to break a Senate tie to pass an education aid bill, Humphrey said, "As usual he ducked. He didn't vote yes and he didn't vote no. He just waited for the confetti and the ticker tape."

the rear of the crowd, but some of these also bore Humphrey buttons. After his speech, many in the crowd pressed forward to shake Humphrey's hand, and the Vice President left the area saying to himself, "Good, good, good."

In a speech prepared for delivery at the University of Scranton, Humphrey said that "outside of his early Congressional campaigns of smear and distortion, Mr. Nixon has compiled virtually no record at all during 22 years of running for office."

He recalled that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, when asked what major decisions Nixon had participated in as Vice President, replied "Just give me a week and I'll think of one."

President also attacked his party nominee George C. Wallace, saying his "only appeal is to people's fears." And he said Nixon "wasn't planning to criticize" Wallace.

"But we changed all that," Humphrey said. "We forced Mr. Nixon finally to say something. And in a rare burst of courage he finally said he really didn't think a man who would run over people in his car should be president."

"That's Mr. Nixon's profile of courage, and a mighty weak profile it is," the Democratic nominee added.

Nixon hints N. Viet aid in peace-seeking move

WASHINGTON (AP)--Richard Nixon said Monday that Secretary of State Dean Rusk has advised him the administration still hopes for progress in the Vietnam peace talks before the Nov. 5 presidential election.

The Republican nominee for the presidency said if those negotiations fail and he becomes president he will seek a settlement of both honor and generosity, offering even to help Communist North Vietnam rebuild her bomb-shattered economy if interference in the South is ended.

Nixon said the American people will have to decide who they want at the conference table after Jan. 20. He said that Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey would have President Johnson's war policy "like an albatross around his neck" if he wins the election.

Nixon told a meeting of United Press International editors that Rusk had briefed him for an hour Monday in New York.

"The secretary of state told me that there was no significant change insofar as those negotiations are concerned," Nixon said.

"He indicated that it was still, however, the hope of the administration that they might be able to make some progress before the election."

Once again Nixon said that for him to discuss what he would do as president would destroy the chance success for progress in the Paris negotiations. On that basis he restated his personal moratorium on talk of post-inauguration policy.

But he eased it a bit, stating for example that he would not as president increase the current level of bombing of North Vietnam.

In a question and answer session that lasted nearly an hour, Nixon talked primarily of the war and said that had the current administration heeded his past criticism of military and diplomatic policy the conflict would be over by now.

Nixon said as president he would place greater emphasis on non-military aspects of the struggle, on training of South Vietnamese forces and would "broaden the diplomatic table" to include items not now in negotiation. He did not spell out the matters he had in mind.

3 astronauts pronounced 'ready' for Apollo 7 flight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)--America's three Apollo 7 astronauts Monday were pronounced ready to fly by a team of medical specialists, as work on their spaceship proceeded smoothly toward a Friday lift-off for the nation's first manned space trip in 23 months.

Meanwhile in Washington, James E. Webb put in his final day as administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). The space agency reins which Webb has held firmly for nearly eight years, Tuesday will be handed to a less controversial man, Thomas Paine, deputy NASA administrator since last March.

A three-man team headed by Dr. Alan Harter, chief medical officer for NASA's Kennedy Space Center here, declared Apollo 7 astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr., Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham physically sound after a thorough 4 1/2-hour examination.

Later, Dr. Charles Berry, director of medical operations at the Manned Spacecraft Center, reported: "they're in excellent shape, fit and ready to fly."

Navy Capt. Schirra, Air Force Maj. Eisele and Cunningham, a civilian astronaut, are scheduled to blast off at 11 a.m. EDT Friday for a mission lasting nearly 11 days in earth orbit to prove Apollo spaceships are safe to fly to the moon.

"If everything works out like it was engineered, we probably have no problems," Cunningham said. "I think our job is to find out, 'will they really work like they were engineered?'"

During the flight, the space-men are to test the Apollo's guidance and navigation system, maneuvering engines and main spaceship motor, life-supporting environmental control unit, and communications systems, among others.

Project officials admitted attempting an 11-day mission for the first manned Apollo trip represents an ambitious undertaking. America's first two-man Gemini flight, by comparison, only went three orbits. The second lasted four days and the third Gemini mission was eight days.

"We're trying to compress all of those Gemini missions into a single flight," said George E. Mueller, NASA associate administrator for manned space flight.

Even if Apollo 7 is terminated early, it could conceivably be considered successful, Mueller said.

"We would expect to complete all of our primary objectives in the first three days," he noted.

Thompson calls for investigation

Statement from trustee Kenneth W. Thompson, R-Lansing, from last Friday October 4:

"I think it's about time that the Michigan attorney general give some attention to student organizations on the campuses of our state supported colleges and universities that are known to constantly create disruptive tactics and have boldly stated their objectives."

"I would support such an investigation and strongly urge the utilization of current legislation and the enactment of any needed legislation to deal with the problems as disclosed by an objective and comprehensive investigation."

Learn how a good reader can read better

Since taking the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics Course more than 2,000 Michigan business and sales executives, engineers, doctors, lawyers, educators, housewives and students have increased their reading efficiency at least three times," McCarthy continued.

"Many of these people, besides reducing their workloads, were able to read daily newspapers regularly and magazines and other publications that should be read for pleasure and information. Before, they had to forego reading these because of the press of reading the mass of professional, technical and trade publications for vital information," he concluded.

These Michigan people are among the more than 400,000 Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics graduates who have increased their reading capabilities. Other graduates include members of the White House staff under the late President Kennedy and members of Congress.

Heat exhausts allied patrol

SAIGON (AP) — A combined force of 3,000 U.S. Marines and 1,500 South Vietnamese infantrymen swept around the abandoned Leatherneck base of Khe Sanh, but they found no enemy Monday except the heat.

Associated Press correspondent John Wheeler reported that the allies' only casualties were felled by heat exhaustion as they hacked their way through dense jungle. In one company alone, 10 men dropped, he said.

Elements of the 3rd Marine Division established Forward Fire Base Nanking on the site of their old Khe Sanh battleground, where 250 Leathernecks died and 2,500 were wounded in a 71-day siege that was listed in April. The base was abandoned in June in favor of a more mobile Marine striking force in the northern provinces.

U.S. spokesmen said Nanking was a temporary fire base, set up only to secure the Khe Sanh Valley. They stressed the Marines intend to stay there.

"Khe Sanh is an emotional thing with the Marines," said one officer. "We want the enemy to know that this is our valley, and we want to show that we can come in here any time we want to."

Purpose of the sweep is to locate North Vietnamese supply caches that might be used in a big enemy offensive, possibly after the northern monsoon season begins in a few weeks. U.S. intelligence indicates up to five North Vietnamese divisions with as many as 50,000 troops threaten South Vietnam's five northernmost provinces below the 17th Parallel.

Spokesmen said some enemy bunkers and munitions caches were found, but there was no indication the bunkers have been used recently. The allies have not been subjected to mortar and artillery fire, although North Vietnamese units are known to be in the Co Roc mountain area six miles away across the Laotian border.

In another Marine sweep still farther north, in the southern half of the demilitarized zone, elements of the 9th Regiment also found weapons caches, including one containing 200 rounds of 152mm artillery ammunition.

It was the first time ammunition for the Soviet-made guns, the biggest in the enemy's arsenal, has been found south of the Paratier, indicating the North Vietnamese might try to move then into the South. The 152mm guns can fire over 10 miles.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported another weapons cache discovery 10 miles northwest of Saigon. It contained four 122mm rockets of the type used to shell the capital and Tan Son Nhut airport in the past.

Thieu sees North shift to political war

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said Monday the enemy has lost the Vietnam war on the battlefield and has shifted emphasis to the political arena to force a Communist-led coalition government on South Vietnam.

"They know they cannot win militarily, so they move to the political phase," he told newsmen at a Senate reception.

He dwelt on the same theme in a speech earlier Monday to the National Assembly, noting that in the past five months "the Communists have been unable to obtain a single military success."

"The scheme of the Hanoi regime is to have us accept that step which will lead to the creation of a coalition government, paving the way for Communist takeover by political means," Thieu said.

Reiterating his conditions for peace, Thieu said Hanoi "has to acknowledge its aggression against South Vietnam and must agree to end that aggression."

"The most reasonable way to end the war is for both sides to scale down the level of hostilities, leading gradually to a cease-fire effectively controlled and guaranteed."

He said that his government would continue to oppose a full bombing halt of North Vietnam until Hanoi says it will reciprocate. He added the Saigon government would never recognize the Viet Cong's political arm, the National Liberation Front, nor agree to accept it in a coalition government.

"The Communists probably will mobilize their propaganda apparatus to focus this time on the question of the NFL and clamor that the only roadblock to peace is our refusal to recognize the front and to accept a coalition government," Thieu speculated.

Warren presides at court opening

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court opened an election-year term Monday with Earl Warren back as chief justice and heard a plea aimed at boosting the presidential chances of George C. Wallace.

"The 1968 term of the Supreme Court is now convened," Warren announced briskly to a packed courtroom, his cheerful manner masking the controversy that has crackled about the court during the summer recess.

Down at the far end of the bench to Warren's right sat Justice Abe Fortas, who was nominated by President Johnson to succeed Warren but whose nomination was blocked by a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats. They attacked the court's liberalism as much as Fortas's qualifications.

One of the 99 lawyers admitted to practice before the court was a legislative assistant to Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R. Mich., captain of the Fortas Republicans.

Lawrence G. Meyer of Grand Rapids, compiled research material for Griffin's attacks on the justice and his relations with Johnson.

However, the court waded directly into election fights, ruling in three cases and hearing a lawyer for Wallace argue that Ohio should be forced to place his name on the presidential ballot for the Nov. 5 election.

The justices were 20 minutes late in convening. The delay was caused by a private conference that led to these three rulings.

1. Virginia's Conservative Party cannot force Wallace to run as its candidate in the state. He will be listed only on the American Independent Party line.

2. Supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., for president, cannot force California this close to election day to put his name on the ballot.

3. California, similarly, will not be ordered to place on the ballot Leroy Eldridge Cleaver, a Black Panther and presidential candidate of the Peace and Freedom Party.

The court does not generally hold hearings on opening day, but granted one to Wallace's attorneys because thousands of new ballots would have to be distributed and voting machines reprogrammed if he wins ballot status.

Wallace is one of the court's severest critics. He has said Warren "hasn't got enough legal sense to try a chicken thief in Alabama."

Ohio election laws are extremely difficult for third party candidates, requiring a party primary and convention as well as signatures amounting to at least 15 per cent of the vote in the last statewide election.

A federal court in Dayton ruled in August that Wallace's name can be written in by voters, but that the state cannot be required to give him a place on the ballot.

If the court rules for Wallace - the decision is expected next Monday - it will mean that he will be on the ballot in all 50 states.

WRITE-IN CANDIDATE

Court asked to place Wallace on Ohio ballot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court was asked Monday to order that the names of presidential hopeful George C. Wallace and candidates for the Socialist Labor Party be on the Ohio ballot on Nov. 5.

Charles S. Lopeman, chief counsel in the Ohio attorney general's office, said any decision which could be compelled with in Wallace's case must be issued by the court before Oct. 15. But he said it would be impossible to get Socialist Party names on the ballot this year.

Wallace, presidential candidate of the American Independent Party, is a write-in candidate in Ohio-as are Socialist Party candidates-but Wallace's name has been printed on the ballot on the theory that it will be easier to delete it than it would be to insert it should the Supreme Court rule in his favor.

No such relief was given the Socialist Party.

The court probably will rule next Monday.

Attorneys for both parties said the state moved in 1948, by amending its election laws, to preclude "third-party" office seekers. They charged that the Ohio laws are unconstitutional.

"The state stands shamefully alone" in denying third party candidates a place on the ballot, Columbus attorney

David J. Young told the high court.

He said Wallace—who was in Washington campaigning but did not attend the nearly three-hour session—is on ballots in every other state.

In Ohio, the write-in relief, granted by a three-man Federal Court in Dayton last August, is negated, Young said, in that none of Ohio's voting machinery is geared for the write-in vote.

Hearing Lopeman note that "history shows us that third party candidates do not win presidential elections in this country," Chief Justice Earl Warren asked "if this is any reason why they should not run?"

Justice Hugo Black also wondered aloud if a state has the right to mandate there should be only two political parties. Lopeman's view was that his state does.

Canadian students oppose campus senate restructure

OTTAWA (CPS) — Two Canadian university student bodies have rejected token attempts by administrations to restructure university government.

The University of Manitoba Students' Union (UMSU) refused to send seven student senators to the university's 90-man academic senate.

At Toronto, the student council declined to accept administration president Claude Bissell's offer of two seats on a commission to examine university government.

At Manitoba, UMSU set the following conditions to their acceptance of the seven seats:

- that the council determine the method of election of student senators;
- that students be guaranteed seats on the board of governors;

-that senate and board meetings be open to the public (two representatives of the council walked out of the senate Wednesday when a motion to open the meeting was tabled).

But the Manitoba administration apparently does not accept UMSU's right to reject the seats. In a letter to student president Horace Patterson, administration president Dr. H.H. Sanderson said he regretted members of council would not be running for senate election, but added "We could hope with the large number of capable students in the university, it should be possible to obtain able representatives of the student viewpoint as members of the senate." In other words, if council rejects the seats, he would expect someone else to take them.

Sanderson was to meet last week with student leaders of the various faculties. There are fears that the meeting, closed to the public, will produce a mechanism by-passing the council.

The Toronto council came back with a counterproposal of a new commission made up of four elected faculty members and four elected student members with ex officio administration representatives.

Horton then clobbered a triple as he went into third base with a head first slide. Jim Northrup followed by slashing a hard grounder at Javier at second that looked like a sure out. But it took a high hop and bounced over Javier's head—shades of the 1960 Series when the ball hit Tony Kubek in the throat at Pittsburgh—for a run-scoring single that made it 3-2.

Briles survived a jam in the sixth when he got Freehan, who is hitless in 16 trips in this Series, to hit into a force out with the bases loaded and two out.

After Don Wert struck out to lead off the seventh, Lolich singled for his third series hit and Briles was replaced by Hoerner—who faced four batters and didn't get anyone out.

Dick McAuliffe singled and Stanley walked to load the bases for Kaline. The situation couldn't have been more dramatic and it was one of the few moments of drama in what has been a rather dull Series.

The Tigers haven't won the pennant since 1945. Kaline joined the club in 1953 and played 16 seasons in frustration before the Tigers won it this year. Then they did it largely without him as he was sidelined with injuries and hit .287 in 102 games.

Kaline, who was the youngest American League batting champion in history when he hit .340 in 1955 at age 20 but hasn't won since, got into the lineup in the series because Manager Mayo Smith switched Mickey Stanley to shortstop to make room for the veteran in the outfield.

Kaline has made the most of the opportunity and he now has a .381 average with eight hits in 21 trips. But on Hoerner's first pitch, he seemed to be gunning for the seats and he swung hard and missed.

On the second pitch he played it like an experienced pro and slapped Hoerner's outside pitch to center for the two-run single to put the Tigers ahead 4-3.

Cash followed with a run-scoring single that made it 5-3 and Lolich protected that margin the rest of the way for the victory while Hoerner took the loss.

A limited number of tickets are still available for the MSU-Notre Dame football game. In addition, some home season tickets remain for student purchase.

Brundage defends Olympic movement

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), formally opened the meeting of the IOC Monday with a ringing defence of the Olympic movement, while admitting that the Olympics have some "problems" which must be corrected.

Before a large audience which included President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico, the 31-year-old IOC president, who is expected to stand for reflection at the current meeting, made oblique references to troubles which have plagued the organization of the games opening here this Saturday.

"The International Olympic Committee may be undemocratic," Brundage said in reference to a criticism that has been made at times about the IOC. "But its members, pledged to the Olympic ideal above their own country or sport, have conducted the games with greater and greater success each time."

"Many of our problems are the result of our own success," Brundage said.

The IOC said that many of the problems of the world have been "dumped on the doorstep" of the Olympic movement even though they still baffle nations. He specifically mentioned China, Germany, Korea, and Vietnam—divided countries in which disputes have arisen over how they shall be represented in the Olympics.

The IOC president also did not refer specifically to Sunday's statement by John Carlos, a black member of the U.S. track team, who said the Black Americans would stage some kind of "demonstrations" during the Olympics. But he mentioned in passing his determination that there will "not be demonstrations of any kind."

Fencing club seeks members

Persons interested in any phase of fencing are welcome to join the MSU Fencing Club. The club is open to all men and women, students, and faculty and staff.

The club's purpose is to make it possible to learn fencing on an informal basis. It meets every Tuesday and Thursday from 7-10 p.m. in 118 Women's I.M. Bldg.

In addition to welcoming beginners, the club hopes to prepare students for competition in the Amateur Fencer's League of America, the official governing body in the United States.

Out at second

After two new series stealing marks, Cardinal base thief Lou Brock is out at second on this throw from Tiger catcher Bill Freehan to second baseman Dick McAuliffe.

UMPIRE MISSED TV REPLAY

Brock safe, Cards say

DETROIT (UPI) — Lou Brock and Red Schoendienst said umpire Doug Harvey blew it—and they said the television cameras back them up.

One of the turning points of Monday's fifth World Series game occurred in the fifth inning when the speedy Brock was cut down at home plate on a strong throw by Willie Horton after Julian Javier had rapped a single to left.

Brock appeared to have Horton's throw beaten and came in standing up, but Harvey called him out, claiming he failed to touch the plate. The Cardinals, leading 3-0 at the time, went on to lose 5-3 to the Detroit Tigers.

"We saw the video tape in the dugout," Schoendienst said, referring to the TV set in the passageway between the dugout and the clubhouse, "and the replay shows where he stepped on the plate."

"The ump said he didn't touch it, but it was obvious he did."

Brock agreed with his skipper. "I'm positive I stepped on the plate," he said. "I didn't think so, I knew it. When he called me out, I asked him 'why?' and he said, 'You didn't touch the plate.' When I went out to left field they were running the video tape on television and I saw it. That was definitely the turning point of the game."

Brock was criticized by some writers for not sliding, and even Schoendienst was baffled at that.

Tigers bounce back with Kaline, Lolich

DETROIT (UPI) — Al Kaline hit he's ever had, "but it sure was one of the better ones."

The hit, a lazy liner looping over second after the veteran Detroit outfielder had swung hard and missed, drove in two runs and gave the Tigers an uphill 5-3 victory, sending the World Series back to St. Louis with the Cardinals leading 3-2.

"I'm happy our team bounced back," said Kaline, playing only because Manager Mayo Smith shifted centerfielder Mickey Stanley to shortstop. "Maybe we can go on to St. Louis and squeeze this thing out—you never know."

Kaline, hitting a robust .353 entering the game, said he thought Smith would come back in the sixth game with "Joe Sparna and the whole bullpen" and pitch Lolich on Thursday—if there's a game.

"It'll be (Earl) Wilson or Sparna Wednesday," Smith said, adding he would know then whether Denny McLain would be able to attempt for a third time to beat Bob Gibson of the Cardinals.

"Lolich definitely will be in the bullpen," Smith said. "And I'm seriously considering starting him in the seventh game."

"But I have no doubts that Denny will be able to pitch the seventh game if there is one.

Smith let Lolich bat in the seventh inning after Don Wert led off by striking out.

"You writers have been doing a good job of running my club," Smith answered questions on that decision, "so I think I'll just let you continue."

Lolich, who said he saw Don McMahon and Fred Lasher warming up and figured there was no way he could hit, responded with a single. Dick McAuliffe singled off reliever Joe Hoerner, Mickey Stanley walk and then Kaline and Cash singled to finish wiping out Detroit's first-inning 3-0 deficit.

"I hadn't warmed up enough," Lolich said of his first inning, when he looked more like the St. Louis batting practice pitcher instead of a man doing a job against the Cardinals.

"I only had 10 or 12 minutes. The National Anthem came when I was about halfway through, then umpires came out... my ball was straight."

Asked what Lou Brock had that none of the other redbirds seemed to possess, the left-hander replied: "He makes contact."

"He sure showed me some-thing," Lolich, who blanked St. Louis on six hits the rest of the way. "At first I thought he just had speed but now I know he can hit with power."

"Orlando Cepeda hit a good pitch," said Lolich, who a Cardinal scout predicted would be the Detroit pitching hero before the World Series began. "It was a curve ball down in the dirt."

"All year that's the type of team we've been," said Lolich, who struck out eight—including pinch-hitter Roger Maris in the ninth with two on and one out. "When we're down, we get the base hit we need."

FINE 'SCHMALTZ' 'Parent Trap': deft farce

Although you may wish to classify this review as a personal confession rather than a general recommendation, "The Parent Trap" completely enthralled me.

Despite its mawkish sentimentality, this 1961 Hayley Mills vehicle remains the finest non-cartoon comedy ever produced by the Disney studios. And for those of us who saw the film when it was first released, there is the added benefit of nostalgia. My crush on Miss Mills was surely only one among thousands which began with this classic.

Miss Mills plays twin sisters, in case you don't remember, who attempt to reunite their long-divorced parents. The plot remains totally predictable, right down to the smiling finale, but getting there is a lot of fun. The dialogue has more wit for adults than any dozen other Disney cream-puffs.

The special effects are so good that the idea of Haley Mills being two people ceases to be a novelty and becomes a simple fact. The frequent slapstick whips past so deftly

And now let us turn to nostalgia. Although the film's basic elements hold up beautifully, a few of its trappings have aged delightfully in seven years. There are pictures of Pat Boone and Rickey Nelson, words like "keen," a few pony tails and most important of all, that classic of pre-twist rock, "Let's Get Together."

Ironically, the song is introduced by the voice of the irrepressible Annette Funicello, who at that time was being eased out of Mickey Mouse Club and into American-International's "Beach Party" gang. Then, near the film's close, the song receives its definitive rendition by the feeble-voiced new queens of Disneyland, Hayley Mills and Hayley Mills.

Although Disney never gave her another vehicle of this stature (with the possible exception of the fine thriller, "The Moonspinners"), Miss Mills continued to turn in performances that placed her with Margaret O'Brien as the greatest actress of all time (Shirley Temple notwithstanding). Hayley Mills did some excellent work before she grew up, and it's a pleasure to have this example back with us.

that even Chaplin fanatics may succumb. And finally, the actors behave as though they were in a genuine farce, not a kiddie movie.

Most of the credit belongs to writer-director David Swift, who seems to have sneaked most of the film past the head offices. Surely a studio which can turn tart "Mary Poppins" into cine-

Strong leadership and more involvement by students and faculty is needed to alleviate the social and political ills that plague our country today, Jim Harrison, U.S. Democratic Congressional candidate from the sixth district, said Monday.

Harrison, speaking at a luncheon of the committee of social workers in Owen cafeteria said, "we must all take a more active role in the political system this year, whether it be for a democrat or a republican."

Harrison, the only democratic candidate from Michigan to receive support from Eugene McCarthy, called for reform in the social welfare system that would better enhance the self-esteem and initiative of those receiving welfare payments.

The welfare system is plagued by inequities from one state to another, and has fostered the "flood of the southern poor to northern cities like Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland," Harrison said.

inated for president. Therefore, all students, politicians and social workers must work together to eliminate the conditions that have caused the inequities of the social welfare program," he said.

Harrison was opposed to write-in ballot for McCarthy in Nov. "Write-ins have a history of failure; instead we must vote for the lesser of three evils," he said.

"I want one political party that will take on the responsibility of healing the divisions in this country. Black people and students will continue to put pressure on the government at all levels to bring about the changes needed," Harrison said.

He said people on welfare should be encouraged to seek jobs and the government should reward them by continuing their pay checks until they are able to support themselves rather than discontinuing their checks.

"We need a redistribution of the taxes for schools. There is no reason for East Lansing children to get a better education than those living in downriver Detroit," he said. Poor housing budgets have been cut and technical foreign aid has been reduced in the last few years in order to maintain the $80 billion military budget, Harrison said, and "it is time for the people to get together, speak out together, and make changes."

Harrison said the government must stop discrimination by the small businessman who receives federal aid to support its job training programs. He cited the building trades as an example. Harrison, now supporting Hubert H. Humphrey for president, said, "All this could have been accomplished had Eugene McCarthy been nom-

'ONE OF BEST'

Draft center aids students

By Ed Hutchison
State News Staff Writer
Foremost in the minds of many young men is the draft. The information they obtain, however, especially from second-hand sources, is often incomplete and inconsistent with current revisions in the draft laws. Hopefully an exception to this is the service provided by the Draft Information Center, 911 E. Grand River Ave. The center is equipped to provide any draft-eligible male with information about his rights and opportunities under the Selective Service Law. Since its opening in April, 1968, the center has provided information to about 600 students.

Many of the inquiries the center receives can be answered over the phone. In cases requiring more specific information, an appointment is made with one of the counselors specializing in the particular area of concern. Questions asked at the center range from explanations of draft classifications to providing information and contacts for potential Canada-bound draft resisters.

Counselors at the center include students, ministers, instructors and Lawyers. There is no professional fee charged the student, except when a case goes to court and court costs and Lawyer fees are involved. In donating his time to the center, G.C. Landon, asst. professor of ATL, said that he is attempting to make some positive effort for young men subject to the draft.

Joe Tuckinsky, an ex-draft counselor at Chicago's Roosevelt University, rated the East Lansing center as one of the best in the country in his recent book. The center is open 1-5 p.m. and 6-8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Phone 351-5283.

ASMSU draft office to continue services

By JEFFREY ALLEN
State News Staff Writer
With all the fears, confusion and anxieties about the draft, it's no wonder that ASMSU is continuing its Draft Counseling Service that was established in February of this year.

Although most of the questions asked by students at the Draft Counseling office are often typical questions, they are indicative of the misunderstanding and naive beliefs held by so many troubled by the draft. Students not only seek advice on the morality of war, but also search for alternatives other than the draft in serving America.

Although the ASMSU Legal Aid Department does provide some draft advice, student leadership felt a need for a specially created branch dealing specifically with questions concerning the Selective Service. Paul J. Graf, vice-president for student services commented, "We, of course, are in no position to counsel resistance to the draft but we are able to answer most questions which a student might have concerning his draft status, including draft laws, board procedures for appealing a classification and related questions."

McCarthyite urges support for New York candidate

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer
Paul O'Dwyer, candidate for senator from New York, needs MSU students.

Such was the plea of Sam Brown, former national chairman of Students for McCarthy, and Jeff Brandt, state chairman of the Young Citizens for O'Dwyer, who spoke on campus Monday to recruit students to work on the O'Dwyer campaign.

O'Dwyer is the only candidate that we who supported McCarthy feel we can legitimately support," Brown said in a press conference, "and this campaign needs us."

O'Dwyer, Brandt explained, has lost the support of many of his Democratic colleagues, labor union leaders and the media because of his rejection of the Hubert Humphrey, the Democratic nominee for President.

"The salvation for the campaign is to get the kids onto the steps ringing doorbells."

Brandt said, "We want to flood the state with young people canvassing for O'Dwyer." O'Dwyer, a liberal candidate for the Senate running against Jacob Javits, refuses to support Humphrey as evidence of his opposition to the Vietnam war and the draft.

As a New York City Councilman, O'Dwyer led a successful campaign to pass a $1.50 minimum wage law.

He also took to the Supreme Court the case of many Spanish-speaking Americans who had to take the literacy test for enfranchisement in English. Those citizens now are administered the test in Spanish.

He has defended civil rights in New York by defending in court the first black tenants of Stuyvesant Town and in the South by marching with James Meredith in Mississippi, helping monitor elections to guard black voters against intimidation and defending a white civil rights worker in 1964 who testified of the brutality of police who arrested her and was consequently charged with perjury.

In the 1968 campaign, O'Dwyer was one of the first to announce support of McCarthy. At the Democratic Convention in Chicago he fought for the minority peace plank on Vietnam in the party platform, supported Julian Bond in his battle for justice for black delegates and walked and talked with young people on Michigan Avenue.

MSU students who volunteer will help canvass the western part of the state, he said. The volunteers will be provided boarding and meals while they work in New York.

"We need people whenever they can get there," Brown said. "If you can go yesterday, please do! The last two or three weekends of the campaign (Oct. 18-20, 25-27 and Nov. 1-3) are the really crucial ones."

MSU students interested in working for O'Dwyer may contact Glenn Nelson during the day at 355-7539 and evenings at 353-0932.

O'Dwyer: solution for liberal politics

Paul O'Dwyer is perhaps the legitimate liberal answer to the "politics of disgust" and to the "liberal rhetoric" of Senator Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.

Sam Brown, former national director of Students for McCarthy, spoke to a small gathering in Kedzie Hall Monday in an attempt to gain support for Paul O'Dwyer, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate from New York.

Brown, a Harvard Divinity School dropout, was instrumental in launching the door-to-door campaign which carried Sen. Eugene McCarthy to several victories in the presidential primaries. Brown is hoping students will again answer a call to canvass for a political underdog.

O'Dwyer, an outspoken member of the New York delegation to the Democratic National Convention, won a surprising victory in his state's primary only days after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. O'Dwyer, a McCarthy supporter, now faces Republican incumbent Jacob Javits in the Nov. 5 general election.

In his short address Monday, Brown asked those present to donate a weekend of their time to working for O'Dwyer in New York.

Brown said O'Dwyer stands for the principles which inspired thousands of students to canvass for McCarthy. And, none of the major presidential candidates can offer these principles, Brown added.

Brown claimed that one of the chief obstacles to O'Dwyer's election is the "misrepresentation" of Javits as a liberal.

"I find it difficult to conceive of such a man as a liberal, no matter what he calls himself," Brown said. "He is a man who has employed liberal rhetoric to achieve his ends. I think it is time that we reject this rhetoric of Jacob Javits."

Brown listed a number of reasons why he has joined the O'Dwyer campaign after working since last winter for McCarthy.

According to Brown, O'Dwyer was one of the first major political figures to endorse McCarthy.

O'Dwyer took the case for literacy testing of Spanish-speaking Americans to the Supreme Court.

O'Dwyer led the fight as a New York councilman for a $1.50 minimum wage in the state.

Brown also referred to O'Dwyer's long opposition to the war in Vietnam and his refusal to support Vice President Humphrey in his bid for the presidency as evidence of his political stand.

"The refusal to endorse Humphrey may have been the toughest decision," Brown said. "This makes campaign money extremely tight."

"Our only way to fight this thing is to go door-to-door ringing bells and telling people how it is," Brown said.

Unhappiness is...
 Ah, despair. Unhappiness is waiting in line on a cold day for the MSU bus to come only to have it pass you by 'cause it is already too full. To make matters worse, the driver will stop but you are at the cut off point when he closes the door.

France denounces Soviet occupation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) -- France asserted today there can be no East-West detente as long as Soviet troops remain in Czechoslovakia.

In a sharp condemnation of the Soviet Union, French Foreign Minister Michel Debre told the 125-nation General Assembly the Soviet military intervention in Czechoslovakia last August "marked another dark day in postwar history."

He said cooperation between Western and Eastern Europe is vital to peace "and there is no detente that can accommodate itself to the occupation troops stationed by force."

"Only the departure of these troops," he said, "and the rejection of all measures inspired by the fatal policy of blocs-whatever name one may give it-can prevent, for Europe first, then for the world, the aggravation of the current tension created by the event in August."

Debre said it had been suggested that the Soviet decision to intervene in Czechoslovakia was due to fears of a new militarist resurgence in West Germany. He minimized this danger, however, and expressed France's continued confidence in the Bonn government.

Noting France's close cooperation with West Germany in the postwar years, he said: "France, as aware as anyone of the demands of her security, is certain of having chosen the true path, the only path that can bring peace and calm. The attacks, the threats jeopardize that evolution."

The French minister appealed for all countries of Europe to contribute to "building our common destiny."

Debre dealt briefly with Vietnam, declaring that the "prolongation of this war, whatever its causes may have been, runs counter to common sense." He repeated France's position that the Geneva agreements of 1954 provide the basis for a settlement.

"As for the initiative that would at least prevent the conflict from spreading," he said.

Freshman opinions vary on convocation interruption

By SUE REBECK
 State News Staff Writer

Much freshman opinion concerning the interruption of President Hannah's convocation speech by the Student Liberation Alliance (SLA) regarded the demands as "justifiable, but out of place."

Many freshmen who attended the convocation for new students during Welcome Week expressed reactions varying from mild disgust to vehement declarations that Hannah deserves the respect of the students no matter how much they dislike his policy.

"The students owe some respect to the office of president even if they cannot agree with the man who holds that office," commented an Ann Arbor freshman.

A few students thought that the interruption could be justified, but more often, even those students who agree with the demands felt that the purpose of the convocation interfered with and hindered the aim of the SLA.

The purpose of the convocation was to introduce the new students to the University, and as it turned out many of the freshmen felt that they were being made the objects of a joke.

"It made the in-coming freshmen look bad because no one really knew what was going on nor who the instigators were," another commented.

Many freshmen simply were confused over the interruptions and therefore were against the SLA protests. They had not received the handout and had not been at all familiar with the SLA goals.

Many students felt that the questions on the sheets were "ridiculous." These students felt that SLA had worded the questions so they would seem more important to the freshmen.

As one asked, "Why were freshmen would become interested with the question of spies in residence halls?"

One Southfield freshman echoed the opinions of many students when she said "if these students cannot abide by the administration, then they should not be here."

"But at the same time, they should have the right to protest when they do disagree with an administrative policy," a South Hadley Falls, Mass., freshman said. Even the students who believed that SLA had the right to protest did not feel that the convocation was the place to do it. "If it had been a general assembly, it would have been okay," another coed said.

"Under different conditions, I am sure that President Hannah would have answered the questions, but the convocation was not a debate, and I feel that Hannah handled the situation quite well," a freshman said.

Isenberg lectures feature Wittgenstein

The Isenberg Memorial Lectures will feature "The Philosophy of Wittgenstein" for their fall term series.

Ludwig Wittgenstein was an Austrian philosopher who is credited with inspiring and at the same time antagonizing contemporary philosophy.

He introduced the theory of linguistic analysis in which he sought an absolute analysis of every word in a statement or proposition. He believed that language was a game that men learned to play.

At the end of his first book he wrote, "My propositions serve as elucidations in the following way: anyone who understands me eventually recognizes them as nonsensical, when he has used them as steps to climb up beyond them."

The first lecture of the series will be "Wittgenstein on the Nature of the Mind" at 8 p.m. Friday in Conrad Auditorium.

It will be presented by Norman Malcolm of Cornell University.

Malcolm first studied philosophy at the University of Nebraska. His graduate work at Harvard was followed by studies at Cambridge University where he met Wittgenstein. Since then much of his work has been an attempt to understand and explain Wittgenstein, and to apply the Austrian philosopher's approach to areas of philosophy not previously examined in this manner.

The second lecture, "Knowledge and Doubt," will be presented by Rogers Albritton of Harvard University Nov. 8.

The third lecture, Nov. 22, will feature Stephen Toulmin of the Brandeis University, who will speak on "Wittgenstein and Psycholinguistics."

The lectures are open to the public and begin at 8 p.m. in Conrad Auditorium.

Both groups are governed by a steering committee which makes policy and issues statements for the groups.

A spokesman in the SDS offices in the Student Services Bldg. said the group would issue no statement on Thompson's charges until the steering committee had met. He did not know when the meeting would be held.

A spokesman for SLA could not be reached for a statement.

The 1966 law, P.A. 317, has since been replaced by two new laws enacted earlier this year, P.A. 317 and 318, which focus on a specific contractual agreement between the public body and private enterprise involved, with rather specific conditions.

AP SURVEY

Half of Senate favors halt to North Vietnam bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Although their terms vary widely, at least half of the 100 U.S. senators say they favor some plan to end all American bombing raids on North Vietnamese territory.

Included in this group are 3 Republicans and 24 Democrats who say they want the bombing ended unconditionally, at least as an experiment to test the reaction and sincerity of the Hanoi regime. Eleven of these senators are seeking re-election this year.

Their position is opposed strongly by 18 senators--10 Republicans and 8 Democrats--who say they are against what one of their number terms "lifting the umbrella" of air support over U.S. combat troops in the field.

Favor compromise

Twenty-three of the 85 senators reached in an Associated Press survey said they favor a halt--but only if North Vietnam responded with reciprocal's action that appeared to offer chances either are de-escalation of the war or compromise at the bargaining table in Paris. This group includes 16 Democrats and 7 Republicans.

Humphrey considers halt

The survey was conducted in the days following Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's Sept. 30 campaign speech in which he said that as president he would consider a bombing halt "an acceptable risk for peace" and would, in deciding whether to take the action,

Thefts reported at Snyder Hall

Two end pieces of a three-piece sectional davenport were taken from Snyder Hall's lounge this past weekend, the Department of Public Safety reported.

The two stolen pieces, valued at $250, are the latest in a wave of thefts this fall of furniture, draperies and paintings from various buildings around campus.

They were taken sometime between four p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Monday.

"place key importance on evidence--direct or indirect, by deed or word--of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam."

"I think Vice President Humphrey's approach--with its ifs and buts and hopefully reciprocal signs from Hanoi--will do nothing but muddy the waters, is too hypothetical for a stable response from North Vietnam and really serves no useful purpose," said Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah.

Goodell opposes

An opposite view came from Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., who was appointed to fill the seat of the late Democratic Sen. Robert F. Kennedy: "Stop the bombing now without any reassurance of a reciprocal gesture from Hanoi. Reassess military and diplomatic developments on a day-to-day basis to review whether escalation or de-escalation is occurring," Goodell said.

The position of Goodell and others was attacked by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who echoed several other senators in saying: "I would take the determination of that question away from the politicians and leave it to the generals and admirals who are directing the fighting from the scene."

Other comments

--Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader: "Unconditional. Period."

--Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky.: "You can't stop bombing the North Vietnamese panhandle as long as you have troops up there. . . . If you're going to deploy troops in the northern part of South Vietnam, you've got to give them tactical support."

--Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind.: "A complete halt in the bombing might bring meaningful peace talks within a week. After the partial halt we got Hanoi to the conference table. As the most powerful nation there is no reason we should not take the initiative toward peace."

--Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn.: "I think we should take the chance and put the burden on Hanoi. I think it's a chance worth taking to move the Paris talks off dead center."
