Chafee overrides Navy brass, halts discipline of Pueblo staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — "They have suffered enough," Secretary of the Navy John H. Chafee declared Tuesday in overriding the Navy brass to save Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher and two other Pueblo officers from possible punishment because of North Korea's seizure of their spy ship.

At the same time the Navy's civilian chief blocked official reprimands against two senior naval officers, including Rear Adm. Frank L. Johnson, who commanded U.S. naval forces in Korean-Japanese waters at the time of the incident Jan. 23, 1968.

But Chafee stopped short of absolving Bucher, the Pueblo skipper, or any of the other officers in connection with the loss of the intelligence gathering ship in international waters.

"I make no judgment regarding the guilt or innocence of any of the officers of the offenses alleged against them," the Navy secretary said.

"I am convinced, however, that neither individual discipline, nor the state of discipline or morale in the Navy, nor any other interest requires further legal proceedings with respect to any personnel involved in the Pueblo incident."

Chafee disclosed that a court of inquiry, composed of five admirals, had recommended a general court-martial on five charges for Bucher.

Generally, these charges covered alleged failure to take steps to prevent his ship from being overrun and failing to block the loss of secret material to the North Koreans.

The court, which sat for 80 days in San Diego, Calif., also called for a general court-martial on three charges for Lt. Stephen R. Harris, who was in charge of the intelligence detachment aboard the Pueblo. His alleged offenses came under the heading of dereliction in the performance of his duties.

The court, a sort of grand jury, recommended a letter of admonition for Lt. Edward R. Murphy Jr., the Pueblo's executive officer, for alleged dereliction in performance of his duties.

The court's findings recommended letters of reprimand for Johnson, who was U.S. commander of naval forces, Japan, but now has another job, and Capt. Everett B. Gladding, who was director of the Navy security group in the Pacific and is now retired.

However, Chafee said Adm. John S. Hyland, commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, rejected the court-martial recommendations for Bucher and Harris, recommending instead letters of reprimand.

Letters, calls bombard Adams after 'Wilson'

By STEVE WATERBURY
State News Staff Writer

Faction to Acting President Adams' harrying of the Wilson Hall cafeteria occupation by black students has come from as far away as California.

Letters and phone calls bombarding the president's office have ranged from extensive praise to outright condemnation of Adams.

A letter from the Interim Committee of the Greater Lansing Community Organization "commended" Adams for "being sensitive to human feelings and needs in a very tense situation."

Adams also drew praise from members of the NAACP. The Lansing Chapter of the NAACP has unanimously passed a resolution supporting Adams and condemning the so-called businessmen who marched on campus during the weekend to commemorate the "death of the MSU Administration."

Several sources present at the rally of about 25 men have expressed skepticism as to whether the marchers were in fact East Lansing businessmen.

Rep. Jim Brown, R-Okemos, introduced a resolution in the House attacking Adams for "totally disregarding the civil rights laws" during his action in last week's Wilson Hall incident.

Brown maintained Adams violated the civil rights of Joseph Trantham and Mrs. Elaine Mishler under pressure of "a cut-and-dried necktie party."

Mail critical of Adams for his handling of the conflict varied from letters critical of the procedural imperfection of the Wilson Hall hearing, to "hate mail" condemning Adams as "spineless and gutless."

Most of the "hate mail" is unsigned.

One of the letters received by Adams reads, "Your concessions to the black students obviously reveals your weak, simple, yellow-back character. There is no place for you at MSU. Our advice to you, sir, is the quicker you get out the better."

RECONVENES TODAY

Council foregoes agenda to discuss Wilson sit-in

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

The Academic Council Tuesday set aside most of its agenda in favor of a discussion of the actions taken during the take-over of the Wilson Hall Cafeteria last week.

The council will reconvene today to continue its discussion and return to the matters on its original agenda.

At the time of recess a motion was proposed to condemn the unfairness of the proceedings towards Elaine Mishler, head manager of Wilson Cafeteria, and Joseph Trantham, food services manager. A substitute motion to form a committee to investigate the situations leading to and the consequences of the "Wilson Hall affair" was also before the council.

C.C. Killingsworth, professor of labor and industrial relations and proposer of the motion to condemn the Wilson actions, said that the University was in "bold violation of its legally imposed obligations" in allowing the Black Students Alliance (BSA) to speak for the employees of the cafeteria and in not providing due process to Trantham and Miss Mishler.

By union contract and by law, Killingsworth said, the union has exclusive rights to represent employees in matters of grievances against management.

Since a union employee made the complaints against Miss Mishler and Trantham, the union and not the BSA has the legal right to speak for the employees, Killingsworth said.

Killingsworth also said that Miss Mishler and Trantham were given "unfair treatment" at the hearing in that they were not extended the "minimum standards" of due process provided in the Academic Freedom Report.

The committee set up by Acting President Walter Adams to hear the issues and recommend solutions was said to be operating under the guidelines of the Academic Freedom Report, he said.

However, it did not notify Miss Mishler and Trantham of the hearing 72 hours before its occurrence as the Academic Freedom Report stipulates, he said. Nor did it give them written statement of the charges against them or tell them how the violations came to its attention. Both actions are required by the freedom report, he said.

"Regardless of what the charge is," Killingsworth added, "you do not punish the man without giving him a fair hearing. This is a question of due process not of whether you approve of what they are accused of having done."

Albert Rabin, professor of psychology, moved that the council appoint a committee to investigate "the Wilson Hall affair" because he did not feel qualified to react to Killingsworth's motion without further information.

Today the council will continue consideration of the motions at 3:15 p.m. in the Con Con Room of the International Center.

Owen grads start boycott over high cafeteria prices

By LINDA GORTMAKER
Executive Reporter

Owen Hall graduate students began a boycott of the hall's cafeteria Tuesday with one-fifth or less of the regular patrons buying meals.

More than 300 Owen residents voted Monday night on the boycott at a meeting with representatives from the administration and management.

Owen Hall Graduate Assn. passed a resolution last week to boycott the cafeteria if a 20 per cent decrease across-the-board in prices was not made by Tuesday.

George Vanburen, manager of Owen

Hall, planned to meet with the association Tuesday night to attempt negotiations with the students again.

"The channels are still open for discussion," Vanburen said.

Acting President Walter Adams set up a special committee last week to study Owen's food prices. The committee included Emory Foster, manager of dormitory and food services; Roger Wilkinson, acting vice-president for business and finance; and Elliot Sanderson and Larry Lang, both Owen residents.

The association sent a letter to Adams Tuesday stating that the committee's appearance Monday night was "to no avail." The committee will submit its report to Adams by the end of this week, Wilkinson said.

"Legitimate questions posed by Owen Hall residents were sidestepped or avoided by the management," the letter stated.

See text of letter, page 5.

According to the resolution, the boycott will continue until the association's executive committee decides the boycott should be terminated.

Arshad Zaman, Owen Hall president, said Tuesday he expected the boycott to "continue effectively," but Foster is not "convinced that a majority of the students really approve of the boycott."

"We want to give the 'silent middle' group a chance to be recognized," Foster said.

Owen's cafeteria is operated much like a commercial cafeteria with students paying for each food item separately. Almost 1,000 students live in Owen. Counting both residents and non-residents, the cafeteria on normal days serves 270 for breakfast and 500 for lunch, Vanburen said.

Estimates by both residents and management show 18 came to breakfast Tuesday and 120 ate lunch.

"It was a significant drop in business," Vanburen agreed.

Residents organized car pools Tuesday to buy lunches and dinners from local eating places (Kentucky Fried Chicken, MacDonald's, and Burger King). More than $19.00 worth of food was ordered through the pool for lunch, and dinner amount was estimated to be even higher, organizers of the project said.

Zaman stressed that one resident has been trying to contact Ombudsman James Rust, the attorney general, and Leland Carr, the University attorney, to prevent encountering legal trouble.

A report by two prominent scientists and a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff calls the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile (ABM) system "insurance against war."

It says, "it may well be, in fact, the single most important step the United States can take toward a real and lasting peace at this moment in history."

The study rejected arguments by ABM opponents that President Nixon's proposed Safeguard system won't work, is unnecessary, is too costly, will stimulate the arms race and will "lead to domination of U.S. society by the military-industrial complex."

A 344-page study commissioned by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy on the Safeguard ABM system concludes that the system proposed by the Nixon Administration "cannot perform effectively the missions suggested for it."

"Our principal conclusion is that there is no need for a decision to deploy the Sentinel-Safeguard ABM system at this time," said the four main authors, Abram Chayes of Harvard Law School and Jerome Wiesner, George Rathjens and Steven Weinberg of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Worsley classifies politics as three-step social process

By JANICE JOHNSON

All actions are political because of their effects on behavior, whether intended or not, a University of Manchester professor said Monday.

Peter M. Worsley, professor of sociology, speaking during a symposium on cross-cultural research, classified politics in three steps.

Politics I, the most powerful, consists of pressure and interest groups both within and outside the government. These groups have enough power to get things done their way although they are not actually in government positions, Worsley said.

Worsley defined Politics II as occurring outside the government whenever people deliberately organize to get their ideas out and to effect change. These political groups do not have much power, he said.

Politics III was defined by Worsley as the most inclusive of the three, occurring whenever people get together to exchange ideas or opinions.

In Politics III there are patterns of behavior that could be called "categories of people who have similar opinions." Worsley said that when these "categories of people" organize into groups, they are involved in Politics II.

"There is an inverse correlation between actual power and publicity," Worsley said. "Groups in Politics I have so much power that it may not develop in overt actions, and confrontations are not called for."

Worsley applied his theory of politics to world revolutions that have been successful such as the Russian, Chinese and Cuban revolutions.

The revolution of Lenin is "classical" in that the ruling class could no longer go on ruling as they were and the masses could no longer go on under such a system, he said.

"As long as the ruling class is strong, a revolution will not go far," Worsley added.

A successful revolution is more than just a sum of its parts; it must be total commitment to the desired change.

Worsley said. "The desired outcome is not the restoration of peace but the defeat of the ruling class and peace on the terms of the revolutionaries who are now in power."

Mao Tse-tung was successful because he not only became active in the causes the peasants were already fighting for, but he also told them what to do and "took what was relevant in theory and applied it," Worsley said.

"Revolutions are not just existentialistic and idealistic, but based on unique utopias that are institutionalized realities. They have made the take-off, and the pure utopia has given way to actual models," he said.

Worsley was a participant in the Revolutionary Ideology and Nation Building Symposium sponsored by the Depts. of Anthropology, Political Science and Sociology.

Milliken praises settling of disorder

By LARRY LEE

State News Staff Writer

Gov. Milliken said he will carefully consider a state senator's suggestions that he meet with college administrators to discuss how to deal with campus disorders at his weekly press conference Tuesday.

But at the same time, he said that "in the main," he has been pleased with the way the problems of Michigan's universities have been handled by their administrators.

The governor has been urged Monday by Sen. Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, to convene state college authorities to draft a uniform policy in dealing with campus disorders.

Lockwood said state schools are being made targets of disruptive forces, and have no common approach for coping with them directly or cooperatively with the governor.

Milliken said Lockwood "has made constructive suggestions and approaches" to deal with the problem.

But he said Michigan has been fortunate compared to other states.

And Milliken reiterated his strong conviction that "acts of violence are wrong and in the end will lead to anarchy and the breakdown of the university."

Referring to the recent Wilson Hall controversy on the MSU campus, the governor said he did not know the full truth of those events.

"I know of very conflicting reports that say several individuals have been made scapegoats," he said, and added that he could not properly assess the situation.

Musicians clarify story containing affiliation quotes

The three musicians arrested Sunday evening as a climax to last weekend's "Haslett Happening" have released the following statement:

"We'd like to clarify quotes of a story which appeared in Tuesday's State News.

"At the time of our arrest, we were serving only in a musical capacity. We are not affiliated with any groups, religious or political. We were just playing for a group of kids who were having a good time and wanted some music," one of the trio said Tuesday.

"Anything that has been said in our behalf by persons other than ourselves has been presented without our knowledge or consent," he added.

At Berlitz, we have a secret device for getting you through language tests.

It's called a Berlitz instructor.

He's a man who's gotten dozens of seemingly hopeless students through dozens of seemingly impossible exams.

He does it by first finding out just how hopeless you are, then he sits with you and virtually brainwashes you until you not only speak the language. You understand.

Of course, all this costs a dollar or two.

But seeing it could make all the difference between making it and flunking, it's a small price to pay.

Practical language lessons

There's a Berlitz Language School near your college and near your home. See your phone book.

It's been single-edged, double-edged, banded, injected, plastic-coated, and now electro-coated.

But it's still straight.

The blade. Whatever else they've done to it, one thing hasn't changed. It's still straight. And your face still isn't. It's round.

The new Norelco Triple-Header gets around this problem. We put our unique rotary blades into three floating heads that follow your face by going in where your face goes in. And out where your face goes out.

This way the new Norelco gets close enough to shave you as close or closer than a blade. As found

'U' can't do too much; man to man relations

The wild frontiers, outer space, disease after disease.

They fall before the mighty mind and sword of man-man the intelligent, man the capable, man the conqueror.

But there remains one savage foe undaunted by man's great and infinite wisdom, unharnessed despite the great force possessed by man-man himself.

Strange that the greatest task before us is still that of teaching men how to get along with men.

We contend that underlying the alleged racism at Wilson Hall's cafeteria is that old and bigger thing—man's inhumanity to man... the international and the very unintentional.

Racism is merely an added attraction.

As economics professor Charles Larowe expressed it in a letter to Acting President Walter Adams last week, "Many (hall managers, food services manager, and other supervisors), I suspect, have had little experience working with black employees, and even less with black employees who refuse to ignore the unintended, indeed unconscious, slights and slurs that are so ingrained in our white culture."

Larowe compared the situation to that of unionization of a formerly all non-union shop-top management feels threatened; workers assert their rights under contract.

When MSU's non-academic workers were unionized only a few years ago a special course was set up for supervisors to "remove the mystery of how collective bargaining works and to alleviate their nervousness about the challenge it posed to their authority."

The suggestion is, therefore, that a similar idea might be needed for food supervisors, hall personnel at various levels, even if the situation is not a clear-cut switch, such as from non-union to union. A course in race relations?

Or, more realistically, a course in human relations, with stress on race relations.

Lyle Thorburn, residence halls manager, and Emery Foster, dormitories and food service manager, said, "This is all very tough on us... We think we've done much more than most in this area of placing blacks." They thought much had been done in supervisor-worker relations.

And they acknowledged, "You can never do too much in this area." Maybe enough hasn't been done. Maybe the question is quality and content of that instruction—maybe some adjustments can be made.

Instruction used by the resident halls and food services programs (using them as an example because of their relevancy of the moment and their position as chief employer of non-academic employees) should be carefully reviewed.

We are not negating their past efforts. Resident halls and food services have an elaborate training program for everyone they employ. However, the Wilson Hall incident has shown that at times it is failing at the day-to-day level.

The tremendous resources of this University—administration people, sociologists, psychologists and labor experts—should be able to develop a program structure that will work to the maximum. If our faculty and administrators cannot together construct a workable program in reality, we question their competence to teach us theories about such things.

We merely ask that MSU take a leading role in the field of race (human) relations—specifically in the area of supervisor-employee relations right here on campus.

MSU hasn't been nearly as lax as some of our peer universities, but has also been guilty of reacting to need, to crisis situations. We urge that MSU set a stiff pace for others to try to follow.

DAVE SHORT

Adams: his own president

Switching from John Hannah to Walter Adams as the president of the University involves quite a transition in the style of handling students and student problems.

Whether you liked him or not, Hannah had his own style as the University president. To many students, he represented the concept of the executive, a businessman's businessman.

Hannah was the man who ran things from the distant confines of his office. He was the main cog in the massive administrative machine.

Although he always had administrative representatives on hand, Hannah seldom ever attended student rallies or protests.

Hannah was a busy man who traveled a lot on business.

Even when he was on campus, he was a hard man to get to see.

But the cigar-smoking Adams has acted differently in his role as acting president.

Whenever a student rally or protest has arisen this term, Adams has been there. When the Movement protested at the Placement Bureau, he was there.

Throughout the anti-ROTC rally, Adams occupied a front row position. During the latest University flare-up, the takeover of the Wilson Hall cafeteria by black students, Adams was on hand every day at the scene of the protest.

The Wilson Hall encounter served as a good example of Adams' presidential technique and its effect.

Many of the Wilson Hall students, protesters and watchers, had never seen Adams in person before. But, for many of them, it became a case of love at first sight.

Adams likes to talk to students and gather their opinions about issues. He talks freely and frankly with students. As one observer at Wilson Hall said of him, "Adams is a professor first, and a president second."

Most importantly, though, Adams listens to what students have to say. And they like that about him.

When Adams first arrived at the Wilson Hall protest last Monday, he immediately listened to the complaints of the black protesters. After he had talked to the blacks, Adams went to the dormitory auditorium to answer questions from the white residents.

One of Adams' major concerns on the first night of the protest was that no group of students try to interfere with the blacks who were holding the cafeteria.

"I urge you not to do anything right now—that's the best contribution you can make," he told the crowd in the Wilson auditorium.

"I give you a professor's solution to everything—go back to your books."

But the white students didn't go back to their books. They stood around and waited to see if anything would happen.

After his discussion in the auditorium, Adams wandered throughout the dormitory and talked to students in an attempt to keep things calm.

Wherever Adams went, a large group of students always seemed to follow. He immediately spoke straightforward with them and joked with them.

Although some of Adams' discussions and jokes became repetitious as the night wore on, neither the students nor Adams seemed to mind.

Adams was not above arguing with students over points though. If he felt a student was wrong in his judgment, Adams told him so. And he got in a couple of point-blank arguments with a few SDS members over the way to carry out reform.

On the first night of the Wilson Hall takeover, Adams spent seven hours on the scene. Although he didn't stay as long as that on the next two days, he returned to Wilson immediately until the protest was over.

Most of the Wilson Hall students seemed to be impressed with Adams and his actions. They liked the idea of a college president showing some direct interest in what they thought about and wanted done.

As Adams moved about Wilson Hall, there were many who asked him questions like "Will you stay on as President?" or "Do you think there is any chance that the board will recommend you to be the permanent president?"

The blacks who took over the cafeteria also seemed to be impressed by Adams' actions. As Sam Riddle, BSA spokesman, said in the Wilson auditorium on Monday, "I was surprised when President Adams conducted himself in the manner he did."

There were many students in Wilson Hall who weren't in favor of the committee's findings or its procedures.

But even when the administration's committee rules in favor of many of the BSA demands, Adams prestige with the students seemed to hold up.

When people are confronted with a situation in which a person they like sides with an issue that they don't like, they either agree with the person, disagree,

POINT OF VIEW

Two day 'rap' session more than a funeral

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following "point of view" was written by Nancy Hack, Mt. Kisco, N.Y., junior.

Last week the State News ran a story on a funeral march that took place at Justin Morrill College. This happened in reaction against a two-day period of discussions among Justin Morrill students and faculty.

The 10 minute funeral march was well described, but the two day "rap" session, the object of the 10 minute macabre anti-demonstration, was hardly mentioned.

This article will hopefully balance the report on this JMC event by covering the actual talks themselves.

A number of Justin Morrill students and faculty, alarmed by the creeping apathy and recent inactivity of JMC students in the affairs of the college, asked that April 24 and 25 be reserved for dialogue among JMC members.

Faculty were encouraged to cancel their classes and to come and talk with interested students about anything and everything that bothered them in the college.

Students were likewise asked to come and open up. Most of the faculty appeared in Snyder lounge at one time or another, many spent half their time in conversation with those students who came. About 150 of Justin Morrill's 800 students put a considerable amount of time into these discussions.

Many of the issues that were discussed were of a practical nature and could be well be acted upon to bring favorable results in the near future.

A number of students were opposed to the one-year concentrated language program which JMC requires for freshmen.

"I am really pleased with JMC's electives, which I find more exciting than those of the university," said one junior "but I don't see why I had to struggle my freshman year with a year of Russia which I already forgot."

Another student fears that because this requirement, Justin Morrill will soon become a college for just language majors, not the well-rounded liberal arts college that he finds it to be.

A possible solution to this problem could be the formulation of a concentrated language program in MSU itself which the university does not have at this moment.

"Too many requirements" was another gripe of the students.

Justin Morrill presently demands that its students take 20 credits of JMC courses in each of the following disciplines: social science, humanities and natural science.

At Friday's end, the prevailing attitude was that a change from 20 to 15 credits in each field was a good idea and various faculty members promised to let what they could toward this end.

More general complaints and disappointments were also aired in the course of the discussions. Many of the upperclassmen were dismayed at the lack of personal contact and informality in this year Justin Morrill classes.

When we were freshmen and JMC was just starting, professors talked with students, not to them like they do now," said a JMC senior. "We seem to be falling in the traditional lecture-notes routine. This isn't the Justin Morrill ideal as I know it."

Some faculty members also expressed this feeling. One professor said that he didn't feel the same rapport with the year's freshman class as with the previous class of four years ago.

That Friday afternoon, I saw both faculty and students of all ages talking with each other, being very frank, even calling each other by their first names.

If nothing concrete comes from Justin Morrill's "Open it up" session, a better understanding of individual and group concerns, needs, problems and desires should underline the future activity Justin Morrill College.

Many of its students hope that the college can again be their college, interested as much in what they want to learn as in what the professors want to teach.

As professor of history, Milton Power said, "We need to start dreaming again; we did when JMC was just beginning. Reality will soon enough hit us in the face."

Black faculty statement regarding Wilson Hall

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is "An open letter to the University community regarding the Wilson Hall incident, written by the Black Faculty Committee. It is a statement of position.

Much concern has been expressed by the white community regarding the Wilson cafeteria protest, subsequent developments surrounding the protest, and certain actions taken by Acting President Walter Adams. We, the Black Faculty Committee of MSU, are also concerned about the protest, the presidential decision, and the alleged racism which lead to the action of the BSA.

Since much of the negative reaction has centered around the hearing procedures and not the substance of the issue, namely racism against blacks at MSU, certain facts should be pointed out.

1. As a result of a series of seminars engaged in by representatives of the administration, faculty, students, and staff members—a recommendation was made that a "Committee of Last Resort" be established to consider cases of this nature. High ranking, well known, and highly revered MSU professors opposed the establishment of such a committee on the basis that such an extraordinary procedure was not necessary.

2. At the February 1969 meeting of the MSU Board of Trustees after cases of racial discrimination involving black faculty and staff had come to light, the "Committee of Last Resort" was explained in detail and again recommended.

3. It has been necessary in recent months for Federal investigators to come to campus to attempt to resolve issues involving discrimination against blacks employed by MSU. Indeed, Federal officials are scheduled to visit MSU this week to hear charges of racial discrimination against a black MSU employee of long standing. If the "Committee of Last Resort" had been established, the type of issues might have been resolved short of Federal intervention. The Wilson Hall incident could have been referred to such a committee.

In the absence of such procedure Acting President Adams has acted, what is in our opinion—a fair and courageous manner, and in the best interest of the total University Community. A forthright action, on the part of the president in this case, was in itself precedent setting. His successful resolution of this issue has not precluded the inevitable surfacing of habitual and latent racism from the campus and the surrounding community.

It is our opinion that the proceedings inside the adjudication chambers were orderly, serious, deliberate (14 hours discussion) and concluded in a manner in which the University should be proud. We would further point out that the adjudicating committee consisted of vice president and three high rank staff members of the residence hall (white), as well as two members of BSA and two black faculty members. It is, indeed, quite difficult for us to imagine such a committee reaching any unanimous decision without grave concern the entire University community are confident that this was their prime motivation.

For too long, there has been discussion of order and procedure, we feel it is time for us (MSU faculty, staff and students) to address ourselves to justice. The Black faculty at MSU is committed to a sense of fairness and justice, the total University community. We feel that recent actions taken by the president administration reflects this same commitment to fairness and justice at MSU.

Greek system insulting

To the Editor:

In support

To the Editor:

Dear President Adams:

The following is the text of a resolution enacted at the monthly meeting of the NAACP, held on May 4.

"The Lansing Chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People supports the recent efforts of the Black Students Alliance at MSU in protest against the treatment of several Black workers. Such efforts are in keeping with our philosophy of social protest and social change, in the quest for social justice.

We further commend and support Walter Adams, acting president of the University, and the administration, for the fair and open manner in which the situation was handled. Such responsiveness and attention will surely lead to an educational climate where the causes which lead to protests will be completely eliminated."

Vence Bonham, president

sidered this a misfortune until I chanced upon Spartanland, Mich. After four years, Sparty and I have reached a state of mutually indifferent toleration. However, the present madness of Greek week is severely testing my endurance level. I do know what good old Socrates would have thought of the "Pan-Hellenic Council." I bet we would never catch him madly pushing a cart around the streets of Athens (although he would be a cinch for the ugliest face prize). If he ever gave a speech, he would be disgusted to hear that most of his audience were there only to secure "participation points" for their "Greek" houses (does Mr. Nader know this?). I suppose everybody is entitled to their own opinion on the merits and demerits of the Greek system. As for me, I simply wish and pray the "Greeks" would be "Greek" no more. It really is not fair. As a matter of fact, I find the whole thing downright insulting.

Fast is a mockery

To the Editor:

Today marks the so-called "All University Fast for Biafra." While this fast is noble in intent, its economic feasibility is ridiculous and thus its actual purpose which is to raise money is severely limited. We agree with the people who will forego dinner so that 50 cents will be donated to this cause. However, those same people will go to the grill and order a snack costing perhaps twice their donation. Hundreds more will order pizzas from an establishment claiming to donate 25 cents toward the relief fund per pizza SOLD TO STUDENTS. Surely anyone can see that this promotional stunt is absurd. The $2 and up a student would spend just to give 25 cents to Biafra and to aid his own stomach could be put to a much better use if the student would donate $1 to the fund and to eat dinner in his own cafeteria, or not to eat at all. Perhaps in the future students will come to realize that fasting is symbolic, while aid to a starving people is economic.

YOU CAN'T EAT A SYMBOL.

Our boycott is necessary

To the Editor:

Dear Dr. Adams:

Regrettably, we must advise you that the Special Committee appointed by you to examine the Owen Hall cafeteria situation, along with members of the University management staff, appeared at a meeting of the Owen Graduate Assn. to no avail.

After abortive attempts dating back to 1967 to obtain for the Owen residents a more equitable food situation, the Owen residents were subjected to a patronizing and condescending treatment by the members of the management staff at the meeting on May 5th.

Legitimate questions posed by Owen Hall residents were sidestepped or avoided by the management. At one point a member of the management staff feigned offense at a query from a resident by asking if his integrity was being questioned. (Of course, it never had been!)

We respectfully submit that we have employed to little effect routine channels and methods heretofore. We are therefore left with no viable alternative than to authorize a boycott as an expression of our long-standing disapproval of management's apathy.

We enclose a copy of the resolution passed by the general body of Owen Graduate Association on May 5th.

Arshad Zaman
President of Owen Graduate Assn.

SN editorial wasted space

To the Editor:

I am writing in answer to some of the questions you raised and statements you made in your Monday editorial.

In the third paragraph, I believe that you made an error. You state that the University is an institution dedicated to social change. The board of trustees say this University is primarily dedicated to the education of people.

Next, you said that the selectivity that fraternities use, constitutes racism. True, both the black and white fraternities on campus are selective, and thus selecting my brothers (six terms as an active and one as a pledge) I have seen one black rushing in my house. How can the members of a fraternity practice racism if there is no one to practice it on? Rush advertisements do not say "Black Only" or "White Only."

The editorial goes on to discuss Greek Week Kiddie-Day, where Lansing children are brought to the campus for a Saturday of recreation with the Greeks. The State News, pertaining to the purpose and motives of this event reads, "Their (Greeks) intents and motives however, must be questioned. Their suddenly benevolent attitude seems more a mask to cover up the overtly racist practices exercised the rest of the year than a sincere attempt to aid those who do not have the resources Greeks do." This opinion as to why the Greeks have Kiddie-Day is totally inaccurate. The children that come to campus are school children that are in programs operated by the Campus Community Commission, a branch of The Student Volunteers. The object of the program is to give these children a positive attitude toward education, and encourage the full use of a child's mental resources. The Kiddie-Day is one part of this program where the children meet college students in a social situation.

In the next paragraph you first imply that the Greeks are all status seeking rich kids. Then you question whether any black children would want the value system of the Greeks. I fail to see how a few persons who inconspicuously happen to be editors of a newspaper can judge to what status approximately 4,000 Greeks seek to attain.

To answer your question on who wants to expose our values to these children, I would like to point out the fact that each child's parent signed a permission slip for each child who was to participate in Kiddie-Day. The Lansing School System and The Campus Community Commission feel that we are an asset to their program, also.

Your entire editorial seems to have lacked any apparent research into the subject, i.e. the "exclusive" Greek system or whether blacks do rush, or an interview for any background on the philosophy behind community projects.

A feeling that your whole editorial leaves me with is one of cynicism. I believe this is no way to approach the problem of "racial segregation." An editorial is merely an opinion, and in this society everyone is entitled to such. However, I see no use in an editorial that offers no facts, nor a useful solution or that attacks the "Problem" being dealt with. This editorial was of this genre, and I feel it was wasted space and an insult to the reader's intelligence. Aside from the fact that I am a Greek, I am also a college student, and would appreciate being treated as such in the future.

Nader urges federal reform to prevent corporate abuse

By MIKE MANLEY
State News Staff Writer

The federal government must re-order its priorities and concentrate on curbing violence caused by sub-standard meat, unsafe autos and environmental pollution, Ralph Nader said Monday night.

In a speech on "Consumer Protection," at the Auditorium, the nationally renowned auto critic said attention must be turned from campus disorders and focused on these problems which are hurting the American consumer.

Nader attacked General Motors for being the major cause of air pollution in the United States today. He said the corporation contributes 35 per cent of our pollution by tonnage.

"Air pollution is the major cause of violence in our country today," Nader said, "but it has a non-discriminatory impact. It does not discriminate on the basis of race, color and creed, otherwise we would be more indignant toward it."

Turning to the meat industry, Nader said that food technology is moving so rapidly that government laws are inadequate.

"The government is spending less on food inspection than it is on the inspection of migratory birds," he said.

Nader said contamination is "ultra prevalent" in the sale of 4-D animals (dead, dying, diseased or disabled), lack of cleanliness and the use of chemicals to induce artificial growth as common practices.

"Most people think that these abuses are mostly found in the fly-by-night operations but the biggest offenders are the blue-chip corporations like Swift and Armour," Nader said.

One reason that the area of food processing has been overlooked, Nader said, because it is not considered an intellectual topic on college campuses.

Focusing on the automobile, which he calls the "favorite industrial art form in this country," Nader noted that more people were killed on the highway last year than in Vietnam since 1961.

Nader, who rocked the auto industry with his book "Unsafe at Any Speed," said the corporations are smothering the potential of would-be reformers coming out of college.

"There are almost no career roles in pre-crash preventive measures," he said, "only post-crash. The people coming out of engineering schools are subservient to corporate dictates."

Nader said there is a lack of information flow from the auto executives to the consumer.

"They are interested in the closed market system and keep it closed by withholding buyer knowledge from the consumer. Men like Henry Ford and Lynn Townsend only pay lip service to free enterprise," Nader said.

He said advertising is perpetuating the unsafe automobile by "diverting attention away from the lack of innovation and safety devices and toward luxury and power."

Turning to his third topic, environmental pollution, Nader said that the situation is becoming so bad that the Buffalo River has been declared a fire hazard.

"One can envision the protesters of the 1970s staging a demonstration by setting a river on fire," he said. "Never has a society had so much and allocated it so badly."

Nader said his goals are really quite simple.

"We should spend as much money on curbing air pollution as we spend on curing halitosis in this country," he said.

Nader also called for the abolition of the double standard of legal sanctions—one for the public and one for the corporation.

"The burden of change lies with the producer, not the consumer as it has been in the past and as it is now," Nader said.

The Nader crusade

Ralph Nader speaking in the ASMSU Great Issues Series urged federal reform to curb the abuses of industry. Nader is a nationally prominent spokesman for consumer protection.

Faculty nominees sought

Suggestions for the Distinguished Educator Award will be accepted by the Senior Class Council today through May 19.

The Distinguished Educator Award is a traditional honor given by the senior class to one or several faculty members for their teaching accomplishments and service to the University.

This year, the council is requesting recommendations from seniors on the award.

Criteria used in judging faculty include ability to intellectually stimulate students, involvement within the University and willingness to support and guide students in scholarly endeavors.

Recommendations should be returned to 312 Student Services Bldg.

Guerrilla war key in conflicts

Guerrilla warfare has become a significant factor in world conflicts since the end of World War II. Baljit Singh, asst. dean of the College of Social Science, said Tuesday at the Faculty Club luncheon.

Singh said that the character of conflicts throughout the world changed to that of guerrilla warfare instead of open warfare.

Singh has written a book on guerrilla warfare.

The rise of Mao Tse-tung brought about a significant change in the concepts of guerrilla warfare, Singh said. Mao has advocated that guerrilla warfare should be a total military and political movement.

Singh said that Mao has stressed that a guerrilla movement must have the support of the people, good organization, a well-trained army capable of taking on the aspect of a regular army, have a systematic knowledge of the country's terrain and must be self-supporting if it is to be effective.

Even if a guerrilla movement does not succeed, it still produces some change within a country, Singh added.

Construction of the two-story building, located on 10 acres of land southwest of the Forest Akers Golf Course, is expected to be completed in 18 months.

It will house facilities for the over 1,000 members of the club. Included are a dining room seating 210-220 people, a bar and a grill, three lighted tennis courts, a swimming pool, a library and several lounges.

The $1.5 million used to finance the building came mostly from donations.

ORSON WELLES PRODUCTION

'Macbeth' leads midweek flicks

Today. Scotland. Tomorrow. the world. That is the way the midweek movies stack up geographically.

Tonight's only on-campus movie, Orson Welles' "Macbeth," is something of an oddity.

Welles takes many liberties with Shakespeare in his attempt at archaeological accuracy. Jeanette Nolan's impersonation of Lady Macbeth is occasionally cited as one of the worst performances in film history.

Welles himself makes a magnificent Macbeth, due to his fantastic voice, his love for Shakespeare and his fascination with the theme of the fall from greatness to horror. At 7 and 9 tonight in 106 Wells.

Kinetic Art Thursday night, three more films hit the campus, all of which will be held over into the weekend.

Among the three, the only unfamiliar one is the third and finest installment of the "Kinetic Art" series. After the uniform brilliance of last Thursday's installment, Part II on Friday was something of a down, so we can only hope that Part III will restore the standard.

Stepping back out on my line, I can at least pin my hopes on the four of the nine films. "Versailles" is Albert Lamorisse's first work since "The Red Balloon," one of the most beautiful and memorable pieces of whimsy ever made. "The Magician" (which I have seen) offers an intriguing animated look at the surrealist world of an unappreciated artist.

"Flower" is yet another cartoon by Yoji Kuri, whose "Two Grilled Fish" beguiled the Part I audience and whose outrageous comment on sex, "What Do You Think," was the only film in Part II that was not too long. Finally, the program concludes with another abstract mind-blower by Jordan Belson, whose "Phenomena" opened the series. (At 7:30 Thursday only in the Auditorium; At 7:30 and 9:15 p.m. Friday in Fairchild.)

International comedies For those who like the internationalism Hollywood style, two comedies, "The Road to Bali" and "The Russians Are Coming," should fill the bill. If you are unfamiliar with the long and successful "road" series, starring Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour, "Bali" is as good a place as any to start. Now that pop culture has pretty well drained the '20s and '30s, we seem ripe for a revival of the '40s. At 7 and 9 Thursday and Friday in 106 Wells).

"The Russians Are Coming," being a fairly recent film, needs no such introduction. This Norman Jewison comedy has been somewhat overrated, but it is still a very, very funny and unusually good-natured film. (At 7 and 9 p.m. Thursday in Brody, Friday in Wilson, Saturday in Conrad.)

Crucial linebacker posts hazardous duty

Few people around the MSU football team will be surprised if the federal government suddenly labels linebacker a hazardous occupation.

In an attempt to shore up an already decimated linebacker corps, the Spartan coaching staff Monday moved defensive tackles Bill Dawson and Rick Benedict to nose linebacker. Dawson left the scrimmage with a broken wrist, while Benedict escaped with a lacerated eye.

The injuries left the Spartans four healthy linebackers—Don Law, Cal Fox, Mike Mahady and Hans Sudar. Of the four, only Law and Fox are normally carried on the first two units.

Linebackers are one commodity the Spartan coaches would prefer to have in quantity this fall. The Spartans, who seldom used more than two linebackers last fall, recently changed their defensive concept to include as many as four.

"You could call it a four-four or a split six," Linebacker Coach Dave Smith said, "but really it's an eight-man front."

On the Spartan defense, the line of demarcation between the linebackers and the linemen is often blurred and Smith admitted even the position names are questions in semantics.

"It depends on who you talk to," Smith shrugged. One way to tell the difference between linebacker and linemen is the linemen's down position, Smith suggested, "Except we've been keeping our ends in an upright position."

Smith, however, said the Spartans' new defense is really not so confusing.

"Defenses really haven't changed much over the years," he said. "Everyone used an eight-man front before the T, but when it couldn't compensate for the T's option, they brought in the Oklahoma defense—the seven-man rover."

The seven-man rover Oklahoma, which reached its greatest heights at MSU during the 1965 season, has failed to cope with the new veer offense developed at Houston by former Spartan assistant Bill Yeoman. Smith said variations on the veer offense would be the next great wave to sweep through college football.

The new MSU defense utilizes two outside linebackers and two inside linebackers with one inside backer—the nose linebacker—playing a position similar to the nose guard in the center of the seven-man front.

Ken Little, a starter at defensive end last fall but currently carried on the injured list, is the Spartans' No. 1 nose with sophomore Gary VanElst, also injured, holding that position on the second unit. Don Law is the Spartans' other inside linebacker, backed up by Duane McLaughlin, another sophomore.

Outside linebackers are separated between the weak-side of speed linebacker and the strong-side or power linebacker. Lining up across from the offense's tight end are Spartans power linebackers Mike Hogan and Dan Kulikow-ski while the No. 1 and No. 2 speed linebackers are Tom Barnum and Cal Fox. Kulikowski's surgery-requiring injury however necessitated Cal Fox's move to No. 2 strong side with Ralph Wieleba moving in on the weak side at No. 2.

Despite the injury rash, the Spartan coaches feel they have the right people at linebacker.

"If we can get them all healthy," Head Coach Duffy Daugherty said, "this year's group will be the best group of linebackers we've had in years."

Daugherty's statement seems almost incredible in light of Rich Saul's loss. Saul, who is still mending from knee surgery last October, is an uncertain cog in the Spartans' linebacker schemes.

Daugherty, realizing this, was quick to qualify his remark. "Saul's a super player," Daugherty said, "and it's hard to ever completely replace a player who has his great abilities."

HALT LOSING STREAK

'S' bats unload on Irish

By GARY WALKOWICZ
Executive Sports Editor

The MSU baseball team broke out of a week-long batting slump with a vengeance Tuesday by beating Notre Dame, 17-12, in a wild slugfest at South Bend.

The Spartans banged out 22 hits, their highest hit production of the season, as they broke a five-game losing streak and upped their record to 17-11.

MSU smashed a pair of home runs in both the seventh and eighth innings, their biggest round tripper spurge this year. Despite a six-run third inning, the Spartans trailed 12-9 entering the top of the seventh inning. They then surged into the lead with a quick four-run rally after two were out.

Rick Miller lashed a double to right and Harry Kendrick followed with his third home run of the season. Phil Rashead then singled and George Petroff connected for his first homer of the year. MSU put the game on ice by tallying four more times in the eighth inning.

MSU 111 600 440 - 17 - 22 - 0
Notre Dame 004 503 000 - 12 - 16 - 6

Maas, Hooper (4), Knight (4), Krueger (6) and Kendrick (4); Arnsen, Schmitz (4), Sinnott (5), Phelps (7), McCarthy (9) and Keenan. WP -- Krueger LP-Phelps HR-MSU: Gavel, Kendrick, Petroff, and Krueger. Notre Dame: Arnsen, Lucke.

Spartan hurler Rich Krueger and leftfielder Joe Gavel led off the inning with back-to-back home runs. Rich Jordan then went all the way to third on a pair of Irish errors and scored on Miller's sacrifice fly.

Kendrick then got his fourth hit of the game, a single. The Spartan catcher went to second on a walk, stole third and scored on a Notre Dame throwing error.

MSU combined six hits and two walks in their third-inning outburst.

A two-run single by Petroff and a two-run double by Mike Olson highlighted the spurge.

Kendrick led the Spartans with four hits, while Gavel, Miller and Petroff each had three.

Petroff knocked home four runs, Olson had three RBI's and Miller, Kendrick and Gary Boyce had two each.

Krueger the last of four Spartan hurlers, picked up the victory, the first of the season for the lefthander.

Boston Celtic Player-coach Bill Russell goes up for two points against Los Angeles star Wilt Chamberlain in the deciding game of the NBA playoffs Monday in Los Angeles. Russell grabbed 21 rebounds in leading the Celtics to a 108-106 win and their 11th championship in 13 years.

MIKE MANLEY

Who's old? ? ?

Celtics outrun age

"The wheel keeps on rolling, it's just the spokes that change." That statement by player-coach Bill Russell tells the whole amazing story of the Boston Celtics—the greatest athletic machine that the sports world has ever known.

Six years ago, when Bob Cousy, the leader of the blistering Celtic fast break, walked off the Boston Garden floor for the last time, the cry went up from every city (except Boston) that the Celtics were dead.

Sure they were.

Every year since then—as the players get a little closer to Social Security and Medicare—the same cries have been heard.

And the Celtics have answered them with championships. Cousy is gone. His runningmate Bill Sharman is gone. So is Tom Heinsohn. And K. C. Jones. Frank Ramsey retired long ago.

But Russell is still there, swooping down the court like a huge, bearded eagle, stalling rebounds and eating up opponent's shots.

At 35 he is still the heart of the Celtics and when the World Championship is on the line—and the bread is on the table—there is still nobody I'd rather have on my team.

He proved it Monday night in Los Angeles when the ageless Celts won their 11th title in 13 years by beating the Lakers 108-106. It's no coincidence that the dynasty began in 1957—the year Russell joined the Celtics.

In the closing two minutes, when the Lakers had cut a 17 point Boston lead to only two points—Russell took over. He blocked two straight shots, grabbed both rebounds and drove the nail right into the Laker's coffin.

It's old hat to Russell but in the locker room after the game he was speechless. This had to be the greatest of all the Celtic championships.

They finished a very tired fourth in the Eastern Division this year—and for the first time had trouble making the playoffs. There was talk of age finally catching them. After all, Russell is 35 as is Sam Jones. Bailey Howell is over 30, so is Satch Sanders.

Their first test was Philadelphia—and the Celtics walked all over the 76ers in five games. Then came the high-flying New York Knicks, supposedly the best team in the NBA. Boston had a little more trouble with them—they needed six games to topple the young Knicks.

Monday night was the final game in a Boston uniform for Sam Jones—perhaps the most underrated man ever to perform in the NBA. Even the partisan Laker fans gave Sam a standing ovation when he fouled out of the game with seven minutes left. He has been the right arm of the Celtics for 12 years and his retirement will leave a huge gap in the backcourt.

But don't sell the Celtics short next season. Winning is an infectious habit. It breeds on itself.

For Boston the game of basketball is a 100 per cent team effort. There is no one outstanding scorer on the team. Each man does his job.

From John Havlicek, probably the finest all-around player in the NBA today, to Emmette Bryant, who the Celtics stole from the Knick's bench before the playoffs, everyone did a great job.

The Celtics are what athletics is all about. It's a team from top to bottom.

And, again, don't bet they won't be there next year. It's been said before.

Bill Russell will play next year, and that fact alone will make them tough. When he retires, they might as well fold up Boston Garden. But until then...

Records set in women's track meet

Three All-University track and field records were broken in the intramural meet for women last Monday.

Jackie Minor, Detroit freshman, broke the record for the 50 yard dash with a 6.4 clocking. Miss Minor also set a new mark in the 75 yard dash with an 8.8 performance. This bettered the old record of Emily Manwaring by .7 seconds.

Gloria Stratton, Wyoming junior, broke the record she set two years ago in the high jump, as she recorded a jump of 5'11".

Miss Carol Harding, director of Women's Intramural Sports, expressed high hopes for Miss Minor. The speedy coed is presently under the guidance of Miss Harding and her former high school coach at Detroit Ecorse, Jim Bibbs, currently asst. track coach at MSU.

'S' track captain proves versatile

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

If the ship is going down, the captain is traditionally bound to go with it. Such was the case last weekend with MSU track captain Roger Merchant.

The Spartans were losing to Minnesota with only the mile relay remaining and although a Spartan win could not salvage the meet, Merchant ran his third race of the day and helped MSU top the Gophers.

In the process of establishing himself as somewhat of an "Iron Man," the Sarnia, Ontario, senior won the 660-yard run and took second in the 880.

Merchant crossed the line with soph John Mock and was timed in 1:19.6, one of the better times in the league this year. He took runner-up honors in the half to Minnesota standout Ed Twomey.

Merchant was pleased with his triple and expressed optimism for the remainder of the season.

"I was rather pleased with how I did," Merchant said, "but it really doesn't mean too much when the team loses. We're a better team than that."

Looking ahead to the Big Ten meet May 16 and 17, Merchant sees the Spartans challenging for a first division berth.

"As for myself, though, I'd just say that I hope I can do as well as last year."

"As well as last year" for Merchant would mean a third place finish. He ran 1:51.9 last spring in finishing behind Michigan Olympian Ron Kutschinski and Wisconsin's three time NCAA champ, Ray Arrington.

But this year the Big Ten has its greatest strength ever in the middle distances, with Merchant, Townsley, Kutschinski, Arrington, Badger, soph Mark Winzenried, and Northwestern's Ralph Schultz all battling for position in either the 660 or 880.

"Roger is a great leader and excellent competitor," Dittrich said. "He gives everything he's got every minute he's out there. He is the kind of guy you love to have on your team."

Merchant and his teammates have a double dual against Michigan and Notre Dame this weekend.

The Spartan captain will be out to justify his coach's praise once again in his last Big Ten meet.

A smashing success

Michigan tennis star Dick Dell returns a shot in his No. 1 singles match against MSU's Tom Gray in Tuesday's U-M - MSU clash on the Spartan courts. Dell won the match, 6-3, 6-2, in leading Michigan to a 9-0 sweep of the Spartans.

Spartans shutout as U-M tops netters

By JOHN VIGES
State News Sports Writer

Tuesday's rain came too late for the MSU tennis team. The Michigan Wolverines shut out the weather and the Spartans 9-0.

The undefeated Wolves stretched their winning streak to seven, all by scores of 9-0 or 8-1. Only three times did the Spartans manage to win four games of a set.

Although shutout, the Spartans battled the Wolverines down to every match point. Their best performances came in the one and two singles with Tom Gray and John Good and the number one doubles where the two joined forces.

Gray was beaten by Michigan's Dick Dell 6-3, 6-2. The match was not one sided, however. Gray displayed excellent serving and carried games to duce many times.

In the number one doubles Gray and Good battled Fishbach and U-M's number three singles player Brian Marcus. Marcus had earlier beaten Rick Raines of MSU 6-4, 6-2 in singles and paced the Wolves doubles victory 6-1.

Eagle returns to nest, Retzlaff named GM

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Pete Retzlaff, who came to the Philadelphia Eagles at the $100 waiver price and who reached All Pro end status in the National Football League before his retirement three years ago, returned Tuesday to the Eagles as general manager and vice president.

His appointments were announced by trucking executive Len Tose who handed over a record $16.2 million six days ago for conditional ownership of the club in a buy from financially harassed Jerry Wolman.

Tose said Retzlaff was given a three year contract to head the club, a record in the history of sport and added that a salary comparable to anyone in the National or American Football Leagues.

Retzlaff, as fast and deft with the quip as he was in snugging passes, broke in with "but considerably less than some of our players are making."

Retzlaff succeeds controversial Joe Kuharich who was dismissed as general manager the day Tose took over the club.

Kuharich has 10 years to go on a 15 year contract generally termed absurd and as general manager.

These, who described Retzlaff as one with executive ability, a desire to win and knowledge of football -- the kind of a man with whom I'd like to be associated," said approval of his choice came quickly from the NFL office.

VARSITY STATUS WON Lacrosse players jubilant

Lacrosse practice reverts back to hard work today, but for the members of the MSU Lacrosse Club, Tuesday, practice was the time of their lives.

The air over Old College Field was split with whoops and cheers. The chants counting out the warm-up calisthenics carried through the spring air to Spartan Stadium.

Earlier Tuesday, the university's athletic council had voted unanimously to give trial varsity status to the Spartan sports club. The move made lacrosse MSU's 14th varsity sport, the first new sport accepted since 1956 when soccer received varsity approval.

"They just went loose when they heard about it," Lacrosse Coach Turt Kauffman said. "They were screaming in the locker room, just going wild."

The news, however, affected no member of the team more deeply than Larry Berger. For the senior attackman, varsity status was an old dream come true.

"It's the biggest thing that ever happened to me since I've been here," Berger said, "nothing else meant more to me."

Berger said he first realized varsity status had been granted when he saw Kauffman.

"I was walking around with a big grin on his face. He wouldn't have been looking like that if we'd been turned down, so I knew then we'd got it," Berger said.

One of the team's three seniors, but the only four-year man presently in the club, Berger said, before this year, he had almost given up on lacrosse every making varsity.

"I came here with the impression it would become a varsity sport," Berger, an all-Delaware Valley high school lacrosse player, said. "But by the time I was a sophomore, I'd pretty well given up."

Berger said varsity status might be the incentive the team needs to post its first winning season in four years. The year's club is currently 4-1 in the season.

"Certainly our morale is going to be boosted," Berger said.

"The key to the program's success is people," Mrs. Alonso said. "Without the help of knowledgeable people in all aspects of the program who bring it to students and teachers, often those who need it would not even know what is available to them."

As a graduating senior, Iravani plans to return to Iran this summer. Ideally, he would like to have enough income from his invention to support himself in additional research. However, even if this invention is not a big success, he said that he hopes there will be others.

SPEND SUMMER TERM AT

You'll never be left out in the warm at Campus Hill. That's because each Campus Hill apartment has central air conditioning that cools the whole apartment at once. And if you should get warm while lounging on Campus Hill's rolling lawns, you're not far from East Lansing's "coolest" refreshment stands.

See Campus Hill today. There are still a limited number of summer rentals available at $45 per person. See our resident manager in apartment 103A or 101E or call J.R. Culver Co.

Mideast war feelings grow

By ELIAS ANTAP

Associated Press Writer

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—A feeling that war with Israel is inevitable appears to be growing in Jordan.

Palestinian guerrilla raids against Israel have boosted the morale of this kingdom while its regular army and its economy were being rebuilt after the disaster of June 1967.

These two tasks are now almost completed and Jordanians are exhibiting a newfound confidence.

In the teeming refugee camps, in the bustling bazaars and shops of Amman, in homes and in government offices, there is the growing belief that a new war is inevitable.

"How long can this situation go on?" asked a wealthy merchant in Amman. "There must be a war even if all the world collapses."

Frustration over Israel's occupation of Arab land is growing. Many Jordanians are impatient with King Hussein's pursuit of a political settlement and his assertion that the United States is seriously working for one.

"All this talk about the United States helping the Arabs is nonsense. We must hit the Jews ourselves," said a young student in his last year at school.

Israel's frequent retaliatory raids along the Jordan River cease-fire line and air attacks on targets deep inside Jordan may have had an effect different than that intended.

Jordanians accept the death toll from these raids with resignation, if not indifference. Down in the flat, fertile lands along the river, the farmers tend their fields when they can. Most houses have a shelter where families take refuge.

Amman, so far spared Israeli blows, looks like an oasis of normality in a country which to all intents and purposes is at war. The streets are full of new cars, and shopwindows bulge with consumer goods. There is a minor construction boom and a nostalgic figure these days, the old camera-festooned tourist in the streets.

But then there is a crackle of gunfire as a group of tough guerrillas trade shots at a policeman at the street corner, and the shopkeepers hastily ring down their iron shutters.

These shootups are isolated incidents and guerrilla military police, in camouflage suits and red armbands, usually co-operate with the authorities in keeping trouble down.

The guerrillas and the king keep up their uneasy coexistence.

Independent observers say the army is still no match for the Israelis if it comes to a new war, but they acknowledge that in some fields the military has improved its prewar position.

The army has been refurnished with American Patton and British Centurion tanks and American artillery and will soon begin receiving British anti-aircraft missiles and American supersonic jet fighters.

"Their ability to shoot down Israeli planes is improving," said a knowledgeable source, while admitting they still have a long way to go.

Group sets Dow protest of napalm

MSU students, professors and East Lansing residents and clergy are traveling to Midland today to protest Dow Chemical Co.'s production of napalm.

The demonstration is being sponsored by the Assn. of Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam. A bus for MSU students will leave the Union at 11 a.m.

Mrs. James Anderson, wife of the director of MSU Honors College, is chairman of the Michigan chapter. She said the group will try to gain admittance into the Dow stockholders meeting to raise questions about napalm production.

Mrs. Anderson said Dow has devised a ticket system to keep demonstrators out of the meeting.

During the stockholders meeting in the Central Intermediate School auditorium, the group will stage a guerrilla theater and demonstrators will pass out leaflets in downtown Midland.

Mrs. Anderson said many Midland residents resented the demonstrations when they protested napalm at Dow last year but said a few people told her they enjoyed "breath of fresh air" and invited them back this year.

The economy is doing better in spite of the loss of the west bank Jordan's bread basket, and the lack of tourists.

Because of financial aid from other Arab countries, Jordan's present foreign exchange reserves amount to $560 million, Economy Minister Hatem Zoubi says.

Unemployment, which rose to 40 per cent of the work force immediately after the war, is now back to a manageable 15 per cent, the minister adds.

The government has started a series of make-work projects such as forestation, road building, extension of irrigation and electric power systems and construction.

Zoubi acknowledges that in terms of development, the economy has slackened and a plan to make Jordan self-sufficient by 1972 has had to be abandoned.

N. Ireland's cabinet grants amnesty to riot prisoners

BELFAST, (AP)—Northern Ireland declared an amnesty Tuesday for all "political prisoners"—and one of the first to be freed was the extreme Protestant leader, the Rev. Ian Paisley.

"We must give the new government a chance to get the country back to normal," the Rev. Mr. Paisley said as he left Belfast jail with two months of a six-month sentence served.

The amnesty was the first major decision of Ulster's three-day-old cabinet formed by Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark, 46.

It will affect 133 people, including some already in jail and others awaiting trial for offenses arising from the past eight months of rioting involving clashes between Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Paisley, jailed in March on charges of unlawful assembly, said demonstrations would not end just because there was a new government. "If there is a need for further demonstrations, then they will have to take place," he said.

"We are not capitulating to anyone."

The amnesty was praised by Catholic-supported civil rights groups.

Chichester-Clark was elected prime minister last Thursday, replacing Terence O'Neill. O'Neill resigned because he was unable to end feuding over demands of the Catholic minority for voting reform and equality in jobs and housing.

"It is the earnest hope of the government," Chichester-Clark said, "that all persons in the community will recognize that these decisions have been taken solely in the interests of restoring peace, and will respond to them in spirit which acknowledges that all citizens share with the government a responsibility to that end."

ABANDONED BABIES

Coed, nun aid 'lost' tots with home in Honduras

By IRENE PINCKES

State News Staff Writer

Babies abandoned soon after birth and children roaming the streets without enough to eat are some of the conditions facing Honduran children today.

In order to provide a place for some of these children to live, a Franciscan nun, Sor Maria Rosa, has opened a home for abandoned children in Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

MSU coed, Bobbi R. Melvor, Ann Arbor sophomore, became interested in Sor Maria Rosa's work last year when she was in Honduras as part of the independent study program of Justin Morrill College.

Sor Maria Rosa is taking kids off the streets and giving them love and education, Miss Melvor said.

Assistance program

While in Honduras, Miss Melvor helped the nun and she is now trying to continue that help by organizing an assistance program that she calls "Amigos de Los Ninos."

Miss Melvor said that the idea of the program is to raise $16 a month for the support of one child in the home. As many children as possible can be "adopted," providing there is enough money.

She has organized a committee of six people to recruit help from students in Snyder and Phillips dormitories.

"The best way to try and get $16 was to work in the dorms," Miss Melvor said.

Hall adoptions

If students on a dormitory floor are interested in "adopting" a child, they can do so for 50 cents per person per month, she said.

The child would then become "their" child and the students would receive a picture and biographical information about that child, Miss Melvor said.

She stressed the fact that if a floor or dormitory decides to "adopt" a child, they must follow through with their payments. She said that to keep the money coming to the child during the summer, each person could pay $1.50 before the end of the term.

Driver charged for drunkenness

A Lansing resident was arrested Friday evening after University Police had observed him speeding, weaving and running off Forest Road.

Charged with driving under the influence of liquor, Gerald L. Frisbie was arraigned before Judge William K. Harmon of the East Lansing Municipal Court Monday afternoon.

Pleading "not guilty" to the charge, Frisbie was released on $95 bond. His trial date was set for 2:30 p.m. July 23.
