Soc Dept includes students in policy making

By JERRY PANKHURST Editorial Editor '68-69'

By a decisive vote, the faculty of the Dept. of Sociology approved Thursday a motion to include as voting members students, both graduate and undergraduate, on the committee which determines personnel decisions -- hiring, firing, promotion and tenure.

Though the particulars are not vet worked out, observers say the decision sets a precedent at MSU, and possibly nationally.

The motion, officially announced Friday states that there shall be undergraduate and graduate students with votes sitting on the departmental committee which deal with personnel decisions and reports recommendations directly to the department chairman. An amendment to the motion provides that there shall also be student representatives on all departmental standing com-

The motion was in response to the actions of the Ad Hoc Committee to Restructure the Sociology Dept., and the coalescing of faculty opinion last week.

The Ad Hoc Committee-- including six sociology majors, two divisional social science majors and one humanities major with areas of concentration in sociology-was tormed during winter erm to circulate a petition advocating the reconsideration of the non-reappointment of Harry Webb, asst. professor of sociology, and the establishment of a tenure committee which "fairly represents the Sociology Dept. as a whole." In considering Webb, the petition explained the "this occasion must be used to reevaluate and change the criteria and procedures by which faculty are hired, fired and promoted in the depart-

'We considered our petition at best a moderate success," Mrs. Skocpol said. Shortly before the committee was to present the petition to the department. William A. Faunce, chairman of the department, requested a meeting with the Ad Hoc Committee.

On May 8, the Ad Hoc Committee presented to a meeting of the sociology The aim was to establish a greater faculty a four-page statement, including the request for student seats on the personnel committee.

At that meeting, much of the discussion was concerned with establishing a broader view of "research" than simply "publish or perish" which would be more meaningful, Allen Radtke, an Ad Hoc Committee member, said.

Faculty coalesced

For many of the sociology faculty, this was their first exposure to the ideas of the Ad Hoc Committee. But during the following week, the liberal 'faculty and those "in - between" coalesced around the issue, according to William Ewens, asst. professor of

Seventeen sociology faculty signatures were gathered during the week on a petition which stated:

"Since there exists sufficient concern on the part of the faculty, undergraduate and graduate students concerning the evaluative procedures involved in the termination of Harry Webb's contract, we the undersigned faculty move that the termination of Prof. Webb's contract be reconsidered.

The motion for student representation was originally submitted to the sociology faculty on Thursday as stated by the Ad Hoc Committee, with the support of both the student advisory committee to the department and the MSU Sociological Assn. (the graduate student associdepartmental concerns. According to Faunce, because of the possibility that the Advisory committee's personnel functions may be separated from other functions which do not concern students, a new motion was presented to state the intent of including student in the personnel policy decision-making body.

A decision on the ultimate form that the representation will take is being worked out this week, with a final decision to be made Friday.

Faunce expects that the provisions of the final policy will be implemented immediately after the decision.

"I presume the executive department will undertake the most thorough screening of possible nominees before their names are submitted to the Senate. It will then be our duty to make our own inquiry into the background of the nominees and it must be extensive.

Mansfield took no official position on for a further inquiry into Fortas' acceptance and later rejection of a $20,000 annual retainer from the family foundation of Louis E. Wolfson, convicted Florida financier.

'The questions raised by members of both houses will have to be referred to the Judiciary Committees of the two houses for any decision on further investigations. he said. "I am not in possession of facts that would warrant my taking a position on the matter.

Asked about demands by Sen. John J. Williams. R-Del., and others for an investigation of fees paid to Justice William O. Douglas by a private foundation. Mansfield replied that this is an old matter which has been threshed out before and he knows nothing new about it.

Mansfield said he assumes Nixon will move deliberately in naming successors to Fortas and to Chief Justice Earl Warren who retires in June.

I am sure the President will be very careful whom he appoints. He will need time for an executive department investigation before he acts. It will not make too much difference if the vacancies are not filled before the court takes its usual summer recess.

Mansfield made it clear that if Nixon names two Republicans to the court this demands in both the House and Senate will be accepted by the Democrats who control the Senate machinery as one of the realities of politics.

The Apollo 10 mission is somewhat like a coed's first date--planning to do everything but

The trouble with this nation is that it operates under a double standard. One: set of rules for Congress and another for the Supreme Court.

The threshold of a dream

Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp. or what's a heaven for

-Robert Browning Today man stands on the threshold of realizing a dream that has occupied his mind for eons--putting a man on the moon. In pure awe of this imminent feat, I think of the tremendous output of human energy and ingenuity it has taken (plus the lives given willingly) to bring us this far and I am appalled by the lack of respect and enthusiasm with which many people view the space program.

In May 1961, when 37-year-old Alan B. Shepard made America's first manned space flight, the entire United States was gung-ho for space. We had just been severly embarrassed by the Russians' success with Sputnik and were out to show the world we would not be outdone. The teaching of science was emphasized in classrooms across the nation. We had a goal set by President John F. Kennedy: a man on the moon and back safely within the

It looks like we are going to make it. but attitudes have changed in eight years. Sadly, science in the classrooms has been somewhat subordinate in view of our pressing political (Vietnam) and social (civil rights) problems.

Funding of the space rogram has been drastically curtailed and there are too few plans for follow-up programs after Apollo missions are completed. I believe we are making a serious mistake

There are those who seek to change or abolish the space program. These critics generally fall into three categories: 1) those who would change the space program into a military operation. 2) those who think it's all too expensive and there is no practical reason for it anyway, and 3) those who believe space research has its merits. but is too expensive and should be postponed until we first solve our problems here on earth.

Led by President Richard M. Nixon and Sec. of Defense Melvin R. Laird, the first group is the most dangerous

A desire to transform U.S. scientific skill into military might was expressed by President Nixon before his election. "We deplore the failure of the Johnson-Humphrey Administration to emphasize the military uses of space . . . " he said

Nixon is believed to prefer a strong military space position before considering spending any money for peaceful exploration. In this case, the United States will be in danger of undermining if not directly violating) the U.N. Treaty on Peaceful Uses of Outer Space.

We have enough weapons here on earth to annihilate ourselves. To pollute space with military apparatus will only serve to instill suspicion in other countries and increase the arms-race and in ternational tension.

The second group of objectors are possibly the most uninformed and easiest to dismiss. There are a plethore of immediate and practical applications for space

Weather satellites are already saving up to $6 billion per year by providing advance storm warnings. Photographs of the earth from space are providing lead to sources of food and energy. Oil, gas and other natural resources have been spotted, water supplies mapped and crop censuses taken where regular aerial photographs had previously proved inadequate.

These functions, by their global nature. will encourage world cooperation so we may better understand, predict and conserve our atmospheric and oceanic environment for the good of all mankind.

Communications satellites may soon provide direct television links between nations serving to lessen international misunderstandings. Space medicine has provided new ways to monitor the human condition, while business has been shown the way to new long-term power sources and new metal allovs.

The computers that were developed to program complex space shots can be turned to attack the problems of the cities with the same technical skill that managed the Apollo missions.

Speaking of practicality, the moon is 14.6 million square miles of real estate (the size of Africa and Europe put together). The Russians sold us Alaska when no one thought it would ever be more than a wasteland. It's unlikely that they will make a similar mistake with the moon.

Perhaps the greatest contribution is being made in education itself. As one observer said, before we were able to view the earth from space. "we were like a fly walking on the Mona Lisa." The view from space has given us a new perspectivea realization of what and where we really are. We can still look to the heavens for our salvation, but not from superstition or man-made gods, but through the knowledge that there is no reason to suspect there is anything we cannot do.

The third type of space critic-he who would insist we solve all our pressing problems on earch before spending monev for space ventures-can probably claim the most popular support. I believe they are basing their argument on a false premise. however. That is, that it is possible (or even desirable to solve ALL earth-bound

Suppose we could solve all our major problems. What does a world do when it has nothing to strive for anymore? Where would we be if Columbus was told to forget a new route to the East until all Europe's needs were taken care of? There's an old theory, but I believe it to be a valid one, that man must have the challenge of a frontier or he will stagnate to the point of destroying himself

America's push westward was not just a physical migration. It was a momentum in the hearts and minds of the entire population. Even those who stayed home helped to build the West-it was the cause that wound the country up and made her

But America closed her continental frontier some time ago. We can only look in at ourselves now and it is not a pretty sight. Are we stagnating? Check the choices offered in our last presidential election; or our entanglement in an endless war. Does it seem like we are making much progress toward solving our problems? I think not. The eyes of humanity must first turn outward in contemplation, to return with new perspectives, new ideas, new philosophies and new directions for society.

Those who colonized and built America created a society which far outdistanced their mother countries and then returned home to show their new ways. We may even be able to expect greater things from our returning space pioneers. for only the finest minds and healthiest bodies will explore and colonize outer Columnist Dick Gregory has lamented that we can get men to the moon but we can't get a few blacks into the suburbs. Actually we can do both, it's just that for the latter we may first have to break out of our terrestrial prison.

I believe that space is one of the areas that will have to be in the president's recommendation for budget cutting." President Nixon has said. The question is, can we really afford to cut the space budget?

The United States has amassed vast centers for space research. The growing slowdown has already been called a multi billion-dollar blow to business" by U.S. News and World Report. Budget cuts have ended all plans to explore Mars and Venus. and work on a nuclear rocket engine has been cut back, according to the magazine.

Public apathy plus the cost of the Vietnam war can be blamed, and since it takes several year's preparation time for complex space missions, many opportunities

For instance, 1972 will be an optimum time to fly a spacecraft by both Mercury and Venus at the same time. In 1977 there will be a once-in-160-years chance of sending a probe by Jupiter, Neptune and Urahus at once. But we need funds now to bre

To the Editor:

I was delighted with Professor Sharma's letter attacking me. For a few days I had shuddered to rumors that Professors Killingsworth and Lanzillotti were in the lead for the Bigot-Of-The-Year Award. Let it be known that I cannot bear being No. 2 in any contest. It is thus reassuring to know that I can count on Professor Sharma's vote when the chips are down.

Professor Sharma, of course, uses a technique which was perfected by the Nazis. The recipe is clear: start with a few misquotations. sprinkle in an innuendo or two, baste with generalities, and garnish with a nonsequitur. Voila! An indict-

To be specific

(1) The misquotation. I did not state that I doubted the existence of any legitimate grievances at Wilson Hall. My letter reads as follows: "If legitimate grievances exist (and it is not clear that they do), they must be adjudicated by legitimate means This sentence has a very different connotation from Sharma's reinterpretation of it. I am saying that we simply don't know whether legitimate grievances existed. Sharma's statement would lead one to beheve that while I was not certain. I thought that no such grievances did, in fact, exist. Professor Sharma chooses to ignore this

(2) The generalization and nonsequitur Sharma concludes that since I do not categorically admit the existence of legitimate grievances at Wilson Hall. I must therefore doubt whether the black race has ever had any legitimate grievances at any time! On the basis of what I said such a conclusion could be drawn by no reasonable man with normal intelligence.

(3) The innuendo. No clear-cut accusation here. A brief reference by Sharma to James Earl Ray and how the system which I am defending shielded the real culprits responsile for his murder. From this perhaps-following the impeccable Sharma logic--we are to conclude that I approve of the King slaving. Who knows, Mr. Sharma? Perhaps I was actually in on the slaving! And all this from my position that anyone should be accorded due process whether they be black white. vellow, or green!

Of course. Sharma and his ilk, being expert scholars all, have done exhausconcerning the rights of black people in order to come to the conclusion that I am a racist. In their ceaseless efforts to uncover the truth, however, they seem to have overlooked a few simple facts about my past record in racial affairs. I shall not inflict the boring details on the reader of this letter: but I would be most happy to reveal my entire past to Professor Sharma should he so desire. The recitation is a

To put it in a phrase. Mr. Sharma, to deny someone due process in order to expiate the sins of two centuries is to compound those sins. And to call anyone who defends due process a racist.whether explicitly or by innuendo is to recompound then.

Green swamps White with TD barrage, 82-0

By MIKE MANLEY

State News Sports Writer Suspense-wise, Saturday's Green and White football game ranks just behind the 1964 Johnson-Goldwater election and Custer's last stand.

Running the Spartan's new triple option offense to near perfection, quarterback Bill Triplett led his Green teammates to an 82-0 dismantling of the Whites before 5,218 chilled fans.

"The whole thing in this offense is execution." Duffy Daugherty said after the game. "Triplett was almost perfect today. He called most of the plays himself. It was an excellent performance.

The amazing thing about Saturday's game is that the same two teams played a week before in Flint with the Greens winning 21-6.

But this week was a different story. The prospects of a close game faded during the Green's first touchdown drive. Eric Allen took the opening kickoff, found himself boxed in, made a couple of moves that would have made James Brown envious--and brought the ball out to the 47. From there it was downhill.

Five plays and 53 yards later halfback Don Highsmith drove in from the seven-Hans Sudar kicked the first of 10 extra points--and the Greens were off.

Four minutes later, before the White team could catch its breath, split end Frank Foreman beat White defensive back Doug Barr and hauled in a perfect pass from Triplett for a 57-yard touhdown. The score quickly moved to 14-0.

But the Greens were just getting warmed up on the chilly. damp afternoon. An interception by Harold Phillips gave the Greens the ball on their own 35. It took them seven plays to go 57 yards for the score.

Something about the next touchdown should have told the Whites it was going to be a long afternoon--if they hadn't guessed it already. With the ball on the five, Triplett saw Foreman open in the end zone. White defender Tim Jones made a beautiful diving deflection of the pass but the ball landed right in Bruce Kulesza's hands for a touchdown. Four minutes later the Greens struck for their fourth score of the quarter when fullback Kermit Smith--following crunching block by Ron Saul--rambled 13 yards into the end zone. That made it 28-0 and it started to look like a Notre Dame-Pittsburgh game. The Spartans number one unit didn't let up though. They got the ball at the start of the second quarter and moved in for their fifth touchdown with less than two and a half minutes gone. Allen capped the 67 yard drive by slashing over from four yards out.

The Greens moved 92 yards the next time they had the ball with Anderson going over from the one to make the

After another Green score--this one by Anderson-the Whites finally started to move the ball. Steve Pirc passed them all the way to the Green 33. Then disaster struck. With only 13 seconds left in the half--Piro threw agair Only this time the ball landed in defensive back Clifton Hardy's hands who sprinted 67 yards making it 48-0 at the

The second half was anti-climatic as the Greens rolled for five touchdowns. Triplett scored the first one from one yard out to make it 55-0 at 9:29. Halfback Tommy Love scored three of the last four touchdowns in the long afternoon-on runs of one, two and two vards. For his excellent performance, Triplett was voted the outstanding Green back. The junior quarterback completed 13 of 15 passes for 206 yards and added 59 yards on the ground. Foreman, who was voted the outstanding Green lineman, grabbed five passes for 118 yards and tight end Bruce Kulesza caught eight for 82. Piro and end Frank Butler were voted the outstanding White players. Highsmith, who was the most consistent runner for the Greens, Allen and Love paced the runners with 85. 66, and 55 yards respective.

And for the fans, it's an opportunity to preview what they can expect to see next September.

If the Green's 82-0 romp Saturday is a true indication of their strength, then the players have certainly adapted to any new plays or patterns the coaching staff has developed. the coaches may be wondering just where the weak spots are and fans may be thinking of spending Christmas under the balmy California palm trees.

The Iowa City freshman was a little shaky at the start, possibly surprised at the adequate protection he was getting --something he received little of in the first half. But the 6-2. 180 pounder relieved the coaches and fans voicies when he smoothly guided the Spartans to their last three scores, including a 10 vard dash himself.

Despite playing only half of the game on the Whete's squad, he was named their outstanding back, edging out Pat Miller who spent most of Saturday afternoon painting to the Green's Eric Allen.

Being a former lineman myself, my sympathy and attention often focused on the men up front who have to crack. heads and open up the holes so that the likes of Kermit and Darvl Smith can ease through

For the Green's offensive line, the task proved relatively easy. Tackles Dave VanElst and Craig Wycinsky, guants Ron Saul. Mike Tobin and Errol Roy and center Tom Bear continually paved the way for their backfield mates. On the Spartans' fourth touchdown, a 14-yard gallop by Kermit Smit: Saul opened up a hole wide enough for the entire backfield to go strolling through side by side Before the game, Duffy had high praise for this year's

"We haven't been able to run this type of offensive in previous years," he said, "mainly because we didn't have the lineman that could operate this type of offensive. This is the best line we've had in several years.

With their counterparts grabbing all the glory by scoring 11 touchdowns, the defense turned in just as superb, a performance, scoring once themselves and usually leaving the offense in good field position.

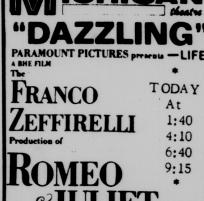

It's hard to single out any particular player as out-doing his teammate. Garv Nowak took a liking to several of the White's passes and knocked them down before they got by the line of scrimmage. At the other end, Wilt Martin is hitting opposing quarterbacks more and more like Bubba Smith use to.

Tackles Ron Curl. Bill Dawson and Ron Joseph used their combined weight of 760 pounds to stop the White's running attack cold.

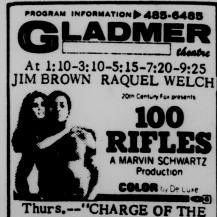

Behind this tough and frightening fivesome were the Spartans' hard-nosed linebacker trio of Don Law. Mike Hogan and Tom Barnum. All three looked exceptionally well, in covering the short swing passes and the dive play straight ahead.

If the Spartans do have a weakness in their attack it may lie in their defensive backfield. Harold Phillips. Jay Breslin.

Clifton Hardy and Brad McLee manned the deep secondary on the number one unit, probably the toughest spot to play The foursome had their hands full all afternoon as the White's pass receivers-Steve Kough, Billy Jo Du Pree
