

Apollo adventure ends, took world along by TV

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) -- Apollo 10 went to the moon and took the world along.

It was there to be seen: from the spacecraft's lofting into the heavens through the majestic voyage around the moon to the billowing of candy striped parachutes that set the space ship gently on the ocean.

Anyone who turned on a television set could feel the joy as Thomas P. Stafford, Eugene A. Cernan and John W. Young stepped onto the deck of the carrier Princeton Monday--eight days and 200,000 miles of exploration behind them.

"It gave people the feeling that they were right along," President Nixon told the astronauts.

The President's words encompassed the whole mission.

Never before had such sights been brought into living rooms.

--The earth looking like a delicately shaded marble, swaddled in clouds that covered whole continents and whole seas.

--The moon with its pock-marked surface resembling grayish-brown pancake batter with bubbles.

--An outsized moon dropping back as Apollo 10 sped away--but still larger than the earth from 240,000 miles distance. And later two equal sized celestial bodies, earth and moon. And still later the same day--reflecting the speed at which the spacecraft returned home--earth larger than moon.

--The aerial ballet of the lunar landing craft being pulled out of the booster stage that pushed the mother ship and the lander into orbit; and later the lander moving out.

--The interior shots of the often-clowning astronauts at work and play in weightlessness.

--And one last transmission of the approaching earth before entering the atmosphere Monday morning, with Young saying:

"We've felt very strong about sharing the adventure, the challenges and rewards of these eight days with the world through television. We hope we've made the millions of people of the world more a part of the history that's being made in our day and age."

It continued with the emergence of the space ship in the sky, flaming as it went through a barrier of friction.

As Apollo 10 appeared on television screens as a pinpoint of light in the semidarkness of dawn on the Pacific, Stafford's voice crackled: "Tell the medical officers to relax and take a couple of aspirin. We feel great."

And great they looked as they stepped from the hatch of the giant helicopters that plucked them from the sea, 30 minutes from splashdown--a record time.

The sailors on the Princeton cheered. "Well, first of all, it's really great to be back from the moon, Stafford said, his bald head covered by a baseball cap lettered in gold "Astronaut Stafford."

"We think we've increased the knowledge of man's environment. We're going to press on here. It was a tremendous team effort and it was shared by all of us."

In the background the other two astronauts did a little dance--it was hard to tell whether from joy or to work out the kinks of long confinement.

"You know the thing that made this possible is being part of the greatest country in the world, and it's great to come back here," said Cernan.

The control center in Houston was filled with people who had worked in other rooms during the flight. There were as many cigars as men. They faced a huge screen and watched the scene on the Princeton.

"It's always good to see a big part of the U.S. Navy waiting for a small part of the U.S. Navy," said Young, like Cernan a Navy commander.

Cernan, the most unhibited member of the crew, was jumping around the deck, punching his welcome joyfully.

President 'Walter Mitty' congratulates space trio

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Nixon telephoned congratulations to the Apollo 10 astronauts Monday and declared he wished he were young enough to go on a space mission himself. He is 56.

Talking to the trio aboard the recovery aircraft carrier Princeton from his White House office, Nixon said, "This is a proud moment for the country."

He spoke about a minute to each of the three.

It was to Navy Cmdr. John W. Young that he said he would like to make a space flight but did not think he could "check out" as an astronaut.

Talking to Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford, Nixon said he wanted to join millions of others in offering congratulations "for this magnificent achievement."

He invited the astronauts and their wives to join him and Mrs. Nixon for dinner at the White House at an early date still to be determined.

The chief executive said he thought one of the most impressive aspects of the newest moon mission was that the astronauts relayed to earth excellent television pictures.

"It gave people the feeling that they were right along," he said.

To Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, Nixon said he was pleased that Cernan had represented his native California aboard Apollo 10.

Cernan told Nixon the mission had been challenging and that he was pleased he could represent 200 million Americans who, he said, made the flight possible.

Stafford described the flight to Nixon as a "fantastic adventure" and said he was pleased that much of it was shared with the world.

WAIVER CLOSES DOOR

New trial denied to Ray; judge upholds guilty plea

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) -- James Earl Ray was denied a new trial Monday in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Judge Arthur C. Faquin Jr. ruled that Ray's March 10 guilty plea to the slaying closed the door on another trial, an appeal or any other type of post-conviction action by the defense.

In addition, Faquin held, Ray had voluntarily signed a waiver of these rights and had stated in open court he did so with full understanding and at his own free will.

J. B. Stoner of Savannah, Ga., one of Ray's three attorneys, noted an exception to the decision. Later he told newsmen that "some moves" would be made by the defense team, but he said just what moves would be made--and when--had not been decided.

"As the judge read the lengthy opinion, Ray, clad in a brown-checked sports coat, olive pants and yellow tie, fidgeted in his chair directly behind his lawyers. He alternatively crossed and uncrossed his legs and at times leaned his head on his hands."

After ruling, Faquin ordered that Ray be returned to his maximum-security cell in the state penitentiary at Nashville to continue serving his 99-year term. Sheriff William N. Morris said later that any time the state wanted Ray back, "It can come for him."

The hearing before Faquin, who succeeded the late Judge W. Preston Battle in the case, was devoted to lengthy legal citations and arguments on fine legal points. Ray at times seemed disinterested and gazed around the counsel table. He did not take the stand.

At the outset, the defense struck from its new trial motion allegations that Ray had been denied effective counsel when he pleaded guilty and that there had been conflict of interest.

Academic Council to air student participation report

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

Academic Council will hear reports on student participation in academic government, ROTC, and campus disorders plus a proposal to increase the powers of the Student-Faculty Judiciary at its final meeting of the term today.

The student participation report recommends that student members of faculty committees hold a vote as well as a voice in the proceedings. Gerald Massey, chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee on Student Participation in Academic Government, will introduce the report.

It proposes an increase in the number of students on standing committees and the Academic Council.

On the department level, the report recommends student members be on the dean's committee or a student advisory committee as well as establishment of a teaching committee of equal numbers of faculty and students to advise the department on teaching evaluation procedures.

The teaching committees will evaluate each faculty member who comes up for reappointment or promotion.

The Educational Policies Committee (EPC) and the Curriculum Committee will recommend that ROTC be retained in its academic status but that a faculty member from each department teaching ROTC courses be granted adjunct membership in the Dept. of Military Science of Aerospace Studies and that a committee of faculty, students and the chairmen of the Depts. of Military Science and Aerospace be appointed to supervise ROTC programs.

Two reports from the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs subcommittees on rules and regulations and campus and classroom disorders will be presented.

The subcommittees were established early fall term after the controversy over the legality of the suspension ruling passed by the trustees. The ruling, which was later repealed, allowed the president of the University to immediately suspend any student who was disrupting the operations of the University.

The proposal to increase the powers of the Student-Faculty Judiciary calls for elimination of the vice president for student affairs' right of veto over judiciary decisions.

In the event of a judiciary decision that regulation or administrative action is inconsistent with the Academic Freedom Report, the proposal stipulates that that decision or regulation be immediately null and void.

The proposal was made by the ASMSU Board and was passed by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs in April.

Also the council will hear reports on curriculum changes, the election of new members to the Steering Committee of the Faculties, changes in the Committee on Business Affairs and the winners of the Excellence-In-Teaching and Teacher-Scholar Awards.

Bender fearful of revolt by campus chipmunks

By WHIT SIBLEY
State News Staff Writer

Louie Bender, Mazola Party candidate for the MSU presidency, railed the credibility of the current campus chipmunk policy during a press conference Monday at his campaign headquarters, the Coral Gables.

Bender said that he had been approached by the representatives of the campus chipmunk population who said that they were through with being blown around by the Grounds Dept.'s leaf blowers.

"They have threatened to start an epidemic of Creeping Liverwort named German Speedwell, which would attack Phillips Hall, the Women's I.M. and the Administration Bldg. if all leaf blowers are not removed from campus," Bender warned.

He said that the chipmunks are up in arms over the fact that duck molestation carries a fine of $25 while the chipmunks have no protective fines in their behalf.

"I am worried about this because their demands seem to be non-negotiable," Bender said. "If we have fines for the molesting of ducks and chipmunks, then the next step will be to have fines for the molesting of coeds. And we cannot have that."

Bender said that he also plans to see to it that the Armor Star truck route no longer will include stops at Olin Health Center and the Veterinary Clinic.

"I will also take steps to eliminate Olin Health Center doctors from moonlighting at the meat counter at Eberhards," Bender promised.

Bender was asked to give his views on Sen. Huber's R-Troy, recent proclamation that sex education is a Communist plot to undermine American youth.

Gunderman silent on recent charges of biased reporting

By TRINKA CLINE
Executive Editor

The Lansing State Journal plans no reaction to the recent charges of "biased and inflammatory" reporting of the Wilson Hall cafeteria take-over by black students April 28.

Kenneth L. Gunderman Sr., managing editor of the Journal, said, "I don't want to discuss it at all," referring to the 12-page report written by the Greater Lansing Community Organization (GLCO) and the Lansing NAACP.

The report will be submitted to the Michigan Press Assn. and Michigan Civil Rights Commission for a public evaluation, according to GLCO chairman H. Lynn Johndahl.

GLCO and the NAACP used the Kerner Commission Report as a guide to media responsibility in handling tense community situations. Johndahl said. Gunderman

RFK honored at memorial

By BARB PARNES
State News Staff Writer

Robert F. Kennedy was a man who was responsive to the needs of his time, Acting President Adams said Monday at a memorial program for the late senator in Conrad Aud.

"He was in tune with his time by being sensitive to the problems of his time," Adams, introduced as one of the earliest Kennedy supporters, said in his brief talk.

He said that Kennedy heard the cries of injustice "from the grape fields of California and from the ghettos of New York and Chicago."

Adams, quoting the words of playwright Henrik Ibsen, said that the late senator, who was assassinated one year ago next week, was right because he was "in league with the future."

The acting president said that Robert F. Kennedy, like John F. Kennedy, brought a "certain style and grace and humor to the American political scene." He also said that both Kennedys possessed the "courage to confess that they were wrong."

Adams cited Robert

Kennedy's renunciation of his involvement with Joseph McCarthy in the early 50's and John Kennedy's admission of his errors in handling the Bay of Pigs invasion as examples of their ability to admit error.

"Bobby Kennedy," he said, "was a man of courage. He fought for a better America and a more decent world. And all we can say is, may he rest in peace."

The Rev. Truman A. Morrison of Edgewood United Church, East Lansing offered a meditation and spoke on the meaning of Robert Kennedy's life and work.

"In a day when huge separate chasms separate the classes and races, he was one whose life and spirit comprised a bridge of understanding," Morrison said.

He said that by following the example of Robert Kennedy, we can try "to make our lives truly relevant to the needs and issues of our day."

He said that this should be a time for re-dedication to the goals and values, the concerns and hopes of Robert Kennedy and to those meanings which his life has for each of us.

The memorial, sponsored by the Early Movement for Kennedy, also included the playing of a tape of the eulogy delivered by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy at his brother's funeral in St. Patrick's Cathedral in June 1968.

The film "Robert F. Kennedy Remembered," originally shown at the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago, was also shown as part of the memorial program.

Lantern Night procession honors 50 senior women

Fifty outstanding senior women will be honored by Mortar Board, Tower Guard and AWS during Lantern Night ceremonies at 7 p.m. Sunday in front of Beaumont Tower.

The Lantern Night ceremony traditionally has been held during the seniors' last weekend on campus and has symbolized the passing of authority and tradition from the old class to the new. Kathy Sedlacek, Lantern Night chairman, said.

As the campus grew larger and students identified less with their class grouping, the ceremony's emphasis was placed on honoring the top 50 graduating women.

These women are chosen by their peers in Mortar Board on the recommendation of academic departments, living units and other sectors of the University, Miss Sedlacek said.

The ceremony begins with a procession of Mortar Board, Tower Guard and AWS members who carry lighted lanterns and sing traditional songs.

When they reach the Tower, the prospective honorees are called forward by the University president. Each is given a certificate and a rose and is presented a lantern.

OVERSEAS STUDY

Soc. course to hit London

By KATHY MORAN
State News Staff Writer

An overseas study program is being planned for the Social Science 232 and 233 sequence in the summer of 1970, much like the summer Humanities program in London.

Newly initiated by Edward Duane, instructor of Social Science, and J. Oliver Hall, professor of social science, the program will be offered in London, using the dormitories and classrooms of the University of London.

The program offered through the American Language Educational Center (AMLEC), will last for seven weeks, from July 6 to Aug. 22, 1970. Students will be able to earn eight credits.

"We are trying to cast the net wide so we can make the course available to as many students as possible," Duane said.

A special Social Science 231 course will be offered in the spring of 1970 which will involve British and American ideas and comparisons and will be like orientation for the London experience, but it will not be a requirement.

Rather than using the texts normally used in the social science classes, the overseas classes will use American and British paperbacks and readings from the British press and periodic literature.

The tests will be subjective, rather than the objective tests usually given in social science, and there will be small papers required.

In addition to lectures given by the MSU professors, lecturers will be invited from local and national government, the embassies and other public services outside the University of London.

The trip will cost approximately $800 plus additional expenses. The $800 includes the enrollment fee, tuition, room and breakfast and round trip air fare from New York.

Though it is expected that most of the students will be from MSU, the program is open to other universities across the country.

Additional information may be obtained from the AMLEC office, 107 International Center.

Aretha's father on marijuana charge

DETROIT (UPI) -- Police have arrested the Rev. C.L. Franklin, pastor of the New Bethel Baptist Church and father of soul singer Aretha Franklin, on a charge of possessing marijuana.

The marijuana, police said, was found in four pieces of luggage belonging to the minister that came in on a plane from Dallas. Also charged was the Rev. Franklin's chauffeur, Ralph Williams, 38.

The two were arrested Saturday at the minister's home, but were later released and ordered to report to police this morning.

The Rev. Franklin, whose church was involved in a shootout between police and Black Nationalists earlier this year, said he returned from Dallas Friday, but the luggage was delayed. It was picked up Saturday by Williams.

The minister said he had no idea how the drugs might have been placed in his luggage between Friday when he left Dallas and Saturday when the luggage was retrieved at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. State Rep. James Del Rio, D-Detroit, Sunday urged a citizen investigation into the charges against the Rev. Franklin in telegrams sent to Dr. Charles Williams, President of the Baptist Ministers' Conference, of Michigan, the Reverend Roosevelt Williams, president of the Detroit Council of Baptist Pastors, and Ernest Mazey, director of the Michigan chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, Del Rio requested.

... an independent evaluation and investigation of the marijuana charge lodged against the Rev. C.L. Franklin of Detroit. Lost baggage in interstate travel that turns up hours later with criminal accusations raises many unanswered questions.

Del Rio supported the Rev. Franklin's contention that he was innocent. The lawmaker said there were two marijuana cigarettes broken into four pieces in the baggage when the minister's chauffeur picked it up.

'U' departments re-accredited

The Dept. of Advertising and the School of Journalism were recently re-accredited by the Accrediting Committee of the American Council on Education for Journalism. Frank B. Senger, chairman of the School of Journalism, said Friday.

The dept. and school were required to show that they were fulfilling their stated objective. This was shown through the records of graduates, the faculty, the facilities and the students.

After going over the report submitted by departments, the committee came to MSU on the invitation of the President.

The new leftist regime in Sudan proclaimed itself a staunch enemy of Israel Monday and said it stands opposed to any nation which supports the Israelis in their struggle with the Arabs.

"We are Arabs and fanatics as far as the Palestine question is concerned," said the new prime minister, Babakar Awadallah. "We shall not allow any abandonment of one inch of Palestinian land to Israel."

Czechoslovak Communist party boss Gustav Husak arrived in East Germany Monday for his fourth visit to the Soviet bloc nations that invaded his homeland last August.

The official East German news agency ADN said Husak was greeted by East German leader Walter Ulbricht. He had previously visited Warsaw and Budapest.

A Soviet space scientist praised the Apollo 10 crewmen Monday for keeping their sense of humor and said their mission was a "big event in the history of cosmonautics."

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin said Monday the Paris talks aimed at ending the Vietnam War "have not yet yielded positive results," the Soviet news agency Tass reported. Kosygin spoke at a reception in his honor at Kabul, Afghanistan, during an official "friendship visit."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers told the Ministerial Council of the Central Treaty Organization Monday that four-power talks on the Middle East have made "some progress." But he warned, "Fundamental differences remain." Rogers said the talks were aimed at finding a solution "acceptable to both sides" and that there would be no sellout of Israel's interests to the Arabs.

National News

Experts steering Americans to the moon said Monday that the three Apollo 10 astronauts "have given us the final confidence" to aim toward a lunar landing July 20.

Thomas O. Paine, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the lunar landing is "a celestial Mt. Everest to be climbed" that will demonstrate the capability for interplanetary travel. "Today we know we can go to the moon and we will go to the moon. Men working together with modern technology can extend the domain of terrestrial life throughout the solar system," he said.

The Warren Court served notice Monday that it will pass into history without ruling in a major test of power of juries to condemn men to death. A spare one-sentence order by the obviously divided court took the celebrated case of William L. Maxwell, a black facing death for rape in Arkansas, out of the hands of the Warren Court and passed it on to be headed by Justice Warren E. Burger, assuming his confirmation by the senate.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford told a group of bankers Monday that President Nixon's proposed extension of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge may be in trouble in Congress. According to reports from aides, the Michigan lawmaker said, there is significant opposition in the House to renewing the surtax, which would expire June 30. Ford added that failure to extend the surtax would amount to a tax cut and in view of rising prices and other inflationary pressures. "A tax cut would not be fiscally sound at this time."

Mayoral foes claim victory edge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thomas Bradley, a black city councilman leading in the polls, and Sam Yorty, showing some gain battling to hold his job, made final victory predictions Monday as Los Angeles voters prepared to choose a mayor.

City Clerk Rex Layton held to his estimate that up to 75 per cent of the city's 1.27 million registered voters will go to the polls Tuesday in the climax of one of the city's most bitter elections.

Bradley's aides said he was heartened by the Los Angeles Times poll showing him maintaining a lead over the two-term mayor, 53 to 36 per cent, with 11 per cent undecided.

The Field Poll, released over the weekend, showed Yorty trailing 43 to 38 per cent with 19 per cent uncommitted. This represented a gain for Yorty from early in the month when the poll had him behind, 52 to 35 per cent.

"I think we're in," said a Bradley aide. Even before the Times poll, Bradley said: "We're going to do it."

Yorty, declaring "I think we turned the corner quite a while ago," said he expected to win. He added: "With a heavy vote, we'll do better."

Yorty had no immediate comment on the Times poll. But an aide said, "It looks to me like some sort of desperate poll. It differs sharply from our poll and the Field Poll."

If Bradley wins, he would become one of the nation's most influential black political figures as mayor of the third most populous city. Gary, Ind., and Cleveland, Ohio, also have black mayors.

Los Angeles' black population is estimated at 15 to 20 per cent.

In addition, there are other minority communities from which Bradley hoped to draw support. One is the Mexican-American community, with about 15 per cent of the vote. Another is the Jewish community, with about 8 per cent.

Yorty's strength has been in the predominantly white suburbs of the San Fernando Valley and white working-class areas around the harbor.

But the Times and the Field polls showed him trailing in a contest for the white vote now. The Times also said Yorty was leading among Mexican-Americans, 47 to 46 per cent, and among Orientals, 45 to 40 per cent. Bradley led among blacks 94 to 1 per cent.

Bradley, 50, tall, broad-shouldered veteran of 21 years in the police department and six in the city council, paid a last-minute visit to his campaign headquarters and told cheering supporters he was confident of winning "but not overconfident."

SOCIAL RAPPORT

Activists meet party foes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some youthful followers of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, conducting a dialogue with some of President Nixon's younger aides, find the rapport more social than political.

"They may be the most liberal elements in the Nixon Administration," David Hawk, 24, Vietnam and draft coordinator for the National Student Association, said, "but on the issues, we're still very far apart."

"They don't seem to have learned the lessons of 1968," David Mixner, 23, said of the White House assistants after the latest meeting earlier this month. But he added, "It was a friendly, cordial evening."

John Campbell, 25, a former youth leader in New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's presidential campaign and now a White House aide, explained why the young Republicans are getting together with the Democratic activists.

"It is important for the younger people in the administration to understand the underlying ideas and have a dialogue with people like that," he said. "The important thing is for those of us on the inside to know what young people are thinking."

Mixner, a youth leader in the Minnesota Democratic Senator's 1968 presidential campaign, held the last dialogue in his Washington apartment. His guests included about 25 fellow student activists a half-dozen White House staff members and a handful of those from the over-30 set, including McCarthy himself.

"The whole idea was not to forge an alliance but just to get a few of our feelings across to them," Mixner said, who was appointed this year to a Democratic party reform commission headed by Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D.

Mixner said the activists tried to get across their fear that unless substantial progress is made by fall towards settling the Vietnam war, "there may be utter chaos on college campuses."

"I'm not usually the alarmist type," he added, "but it's going to make this spring look like a picnic."

Mixner, who has known a number of White House assistants through various activities the last three years, said he thinks "the Nixon people left a little puzzled and confounded."

Laird urges top Canadians to slow troop withdrawals

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — U.S. officials said Monday that U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird Monday urged Canada to slow down plans for pulling the bulk of its forces out of Western Europe, lest other members of the Atlantic Alliance decide to cut down their strength too.

Laird and Canadian Defense Minister Leo Cadieux conferred for an hour at the Brussels headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Later it was announced only that Cadieux "outlined in general terms the Canadian plan for an adjustment of Canadian forces in Germany."

One source said the Canadian plans were known to the U.S. government in considerable detail. They are due to be laid on the table Wednesday at a meeting of defense ministers representing 14 of the 15 countries in the Atlantic pact. France does not take part.

Canada is reported planning "a phased reduction" what in three years will withdraw all Canadian troops except for a light mobile reserve group. Canadian troops in Western Europe now include a mechanized infantry brigade of 5,500 troops, four strike-attack squadrons and two reconnaissance squadrons equipped with CF104 Starfighters—about 10,000 men in all.

Laird was said to want the withdrawal made slower, so that the withdrawals would be small in any one year.

U.S. officials also would like to delay formal approval of the Canadian plan by the rest of NATO. Said one: "When the United States pulled out some of its troops a couple of years ago, it took from April to December before the decision was approved. If the Canadians think they can give a first indication in April and get a final okay in May so they can make their firm announcement in June, they're going to make a lot of defense ministers mad."

In practice, NATO approval cannot be withheld. Member countries are obliged only to consult one another. All recognize that each government in the end makes its own decisions.

"We're still in the negotiating process," he told a reporter. U.S. officials fear that if large numbers of Canadians are pulled out quickly, there will be heavy pressure from Holland and Belgium to reduce their commitments, too. Other countries would be likely to follow, since military spending is a favorite target of budget cutters in Europe, as elsewhere.

The Americans find the Canadian move especially exasperating at a time when they are urging NATO members to increase their commitments, as was promised last year after the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia.

You Can Help Revitalize the Greatest City in the World

New York City — a city of constant challenge — offers a variety of opportunities for Engineers who would enjoy a demanding career, that is personally rewarding.

Engineering careers with the City of New York offer excellent opportunities for advancement and better salaries than ever before. But real job satisfaction can come from helping to improve life for over eight million people in the greatest city in the world.

For the Engineer this means helping to plan and construct new schools, hospitals, subways, bridges and miles of new highways; to devise lower cost housing; to eliminate air & water pollution; and to plan & implement sanitary engineering programs. This means you will be participating in programs of essential public service as well as great professional challenge.

These are just some of the many exciting projects open to you as a City Engineer. Nowhere else, will you find greater opportunities for such valuable experience to broaden your specialty.

Immediate openings are now available in many of our City agencies for trainee, junior and assistant level Engineers.

June graduates will be hired as Junior Engineers. Students receiving degrees in June, 1970 can be hired this summer as Engineer trainees — and then take leave of absence to return to school for degree.

New York City is, of course, an Equal Opportunity Employer. Please write or call and we will send you full details.

Ferris State currents foam into Big Rapids

EDITOR'S NOTE: Staff writers Chris Mead and Denise Fortner went to Ferris State College this weekend. The following is their impression of the situation there.

The only good nigger is a dead nigger.

One MSU professor recently referred to Big Rapids, Michigan of Ferris State College as a "neanderthal" community. Perhaps that's too unkind. Call it Gopher Prairie come of age if you will.

Big Rapids has all the classic ugliness of most small northern Michigan cities. The American Legion and the Elks Club buildings dominate the downtown area while the fringes of town are the usual string of neon eateries and grocery stores.

But Big Rapids probably wouldn't exist at all if it weren't for Ferris State College—a late-blooming school devoted to "Serving Michigan Uniquely" in the words of its motto.

Founded in 1895 by Woodbridge N. Ferris as the Ferris Institute, it became a state college in 1963. Traditionally Ferris has been a "trade school" and its curriculum still places heavy emphasis on industrial and commercial vocational training. Many of its programs are two-year courses of such marginal importance as cosmetology and truck driving.

In terms of rules and regulations, Ferris seems to be somewhere in mid 1954. An 11 p.m. curfew is imposed on all women students and the administration exacts detailed dress regulations requiring students to conform "to the standards of our society reflecting cleanliness and decency."

Ferris is what would be called a "straight" campus. Princes and crewcuts have captured the male hair-grooming market and bell-bottoms are practically non-existent. And the girls believe in boys in pants and girls in dresses, according to an article in the student newspaper.

All in all, Ferris has earned itself the reputation as one of the best schools of pharmacy around and one of the quietest "non-protesting" campuses in Michigan. Then came March 3, 1969.

Self-defense sit-in

On that day over 50 black students took over the college library for what they termed self-defense. The incident that touched off the sit-in, as best as anyone can remember, occurred two months before when white students allegedly threw acid at a black couple as they were returning to their dormitory from a date.

The incident was followed by a series of "jumpings"—a sort of Ferris tradition according to many students.

Things built up to the point that black students sought protection by holding up in the library. When their numbers grew to 265 out of a total of 360 black enrollment, they moved to the Starr Educational Center.

Ferris President Victor Spathelf called in the state troopers who removed the blacks from the building. The following day, Spathelf released a rigid set of rules calling for the expulsion and criminal prosecution (in that order) of persons who incite campus riots.

Don Scannell, director of College Relations at Ferris, said that although all of the students arrested in the March incident were black, there was no racial discrimination on the part of the police.

"The students knew what the situation was, and the fact that the students who were arrested were black was because they were the ones who caused it (the incident) to develop."

The white students were not arrested because they were obeying the rules of the police. They were told to move back and they moved back. The blacks were violating the law. They were given 15 minutes to leave the building and they didn't come out.

"Hostile" president

Unfortunately for everybody concerned, the administration, and particularly President Spathelf chose this time to clamp up. According to a report by MSU's Black Students' Alliance, Spathelf refused to talk with the parents of black students some who had come all the way from Pennsylvania, until the following day. The parents reported that his attitude was "hostile."

Other than the childish jumping incidents, Ferris at this point, Ferris was in a uproar. Rumors, which had been circulating pretty well for the previous two months, took on hysterical proportions. Both whites and blacks feared retaliation by the other in the form of armed bands.

Considering the violent reaction this article caused, it should be quoted in full. The misspellings are probably intentional.

"When is the last time you saw a pig? I see them all the time. And 99 per cent of them are black. I work in the cafeteria, so I see who does what. Its the black students that give us most of our trouble in the dish room. When

Then on May 15, a highly inflammatory article appeared in the Travis News, a mimeographed scab sheet published for students in Ferris' Travis Hall.

The editorial was written by Tom Avery, mustachioed editor-in-chief of the paper. As he sat in his cluttered apartment in Ferris' large married students complex, he reflected on his editorial stance.

Assuming a strict middle of the road position, Avery blam-

"I consider myself a liberal," he said, "but when kids start rioting and causing damage through pure malice, it's about time somebody starts taking a lead."

Miller sported a white lapel ribbon with the latest Ferris rallying cry: "I've Had It -- Let's Start Living and Working Together Now."

"The silent majority is starting to talk a little bit," he said.

"The ones causing the trouble are in a minority -- a vast minority."

Miller said he thought President Spathelf was a "cool dude," but he criticized him for not authorizing the police to use tear gas, MACE, billy clubs and slippery turf.

"I'm fed up with this baloney of having a few kids ruining our education," he said.

Silent majority speaks

Miller's analysis of the situation started out on a moderate tone, but after he was hit in the head with a large floor ashtray at one of the melees, he began drifting into a "we-they" approach to the situation. For we, read whites and for they, read blacks.

"We're beginning to think we're dealing with beasts," Miller noted as he gestured toward a group of black students playing billiards in the Student Center lounge.

"The ones that start it are those you gotta grab," he said.

"They're the animals, the unthinking beasts."

Another white student, Myke Jacobs, said he didn't agree with Spathelf's handling of the latest incident.

"It's hard for him to let loose," he said, "because he's been here for so long and this place is his baby."

Tonight one black boy wouldn't put his silver in the sink, so it was done for him.

When they don't bring there trays up like everyone else has to they leave there tables looking like a sh't house. No wonder no white guys want to sit with them. Are Calt, isn't a ghetto. Playwright Abrams stages two short plays in theatre

By ROSA MORALES

A Canadian journalist-turned-playwright will present two of his short plays, "And No Ceremony" and "Amoeba," in the Arena Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Tevia Abrams, former newspaperman with the now-defunct Montreal Herald, wrote the half hour play "And No Ceremony" in 1967 for a Canadian centennial playwrighting competition. The play won an award out of 600 entries and was produced on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation television network.

"And No Ceremony" is concerned with the inevitability of war in a modern interpretation of an ancient Nordic legend about the twilight of the gods.

The characters are Binky, played by Peter Landry; Slip, played by Michael Oberfield; and an officer, played by Jim Springston.

The play has been described as a ritualistic dance of death," Abrams said. "And I think it is an appropriate play as we approach the Memorial Day holiday."

The second show, "Amoeba," is a 15 minute play about the two-way relation of objects to human beings. The play touches economic and social scenes which are current in the West today, Abrams said.

The three characters are Klara, played by Marion Sakaluskas; Pamela, the Amoeba, played by Linda Lashbrook; and a ragged man, played by Paul Meacham, who is also the director.

"The players use a lot of physical contact rather than speaking with each other," Abrams said. "The play was originally part of an experiment when I was involved with an actors' workshop in Montreal. The play just naturally evolved and I still see it growing organically into a much larger work."

Abrams said that the tactile approach of the play gives any director a great deal of freedom in the re-creation of the "Amoeba."

In the play, an over-sized paper-mache head is used to illustrate the grotesque reality of the theme.

Both plays will be performed at 8 p.m. Wednesday and at 10 p.m. Thursday in the Arena Theatre. Admission is free.

Abrams, originally from Montreal, Canada, is working on a doctoral program at MSU. He is a graduate assistant in Asian theatre studies in the Dept. of Theatre.

Abrams attended Sir George Williams University and the University of Montreal in Canada.

SPACE CENTER Houston (AP) — The Apollo 10 astronauts shattered all television duration records during their eight days as high-flying color television stars.

'FINNEY'S' SCENES LACKING

Hare's touch saves film

Judging by the standards of "Finney's" advertising slogan, "Beautiful photography and music, and something to say," Bill Hare's first feature film is a total success. Unfortunately, the film's individual scenes rarely add up to anything beyond that.

It's very hard to pinpoint what is wrong with "Finney." Certainly, the plot is strikingly original, the story of a man torn between football and painting—sort of a portrait of the artist as a young jock. And the film's dramatic structure, which lets these two polarized worlds pull Jim Finney apart, could hardly be improved upon.

In addition, Bill Hare has directed this story with great con-

Even in a film like "Start," which suffers from the most trite plot in cinema history, the predictable events are written with enough humor and unexpected twists to keep the barrel rolling. You can't, for example, have a wife leave her husband and expect it to be moving. She must leave in an unusual way or have a memorable panting line, so that even if we are not surprised by her departure, we are interested in her method.

Finney Produced, written and directed by Bill Hare, photographed by Jack Richards; music by Dick Reynolds and Les Hooper; song "Littleboy" by Dick Reynolds and Eli Wolf, filmed in and around Chicago and Denver, 75 minutes, in black-and-white and color.

Hare's technical effects are frequently enough to sustain interest in themselves, even when they do not totally relate to the plot. But since his actors are merely adequate (lacking the professional nuances which make someone like Julie Andrews interesting—even when her lines are not), the film is weakest whenever Hare's technical tricks are not

Generation gap wide, CBS finds

MARK McPHERSON

State News Reviewer

Another clue towards filling in the missing pieces of our so-called "generation gap" has been made by a CBS Television News Survey.

The conclusion suggests that young people today want "something different" from life than their parents desire. Surprising?

A full 95 per cent of all Americans, young and old, agree that there is a "generation gap", and six out of ten young people say they want a change from life other than what their parents want.

These are two of the key findings of CBS News' national opinion survey measuring the extent of the "gap" revealed on the first of a three-part series, CBS REPORTS: "Generations Apart."

One measure of the distance between the generations brought out on the broadcast is the response to the survey question: "Do you feel your own personal values and point of view are shared by most Americans?" A majority of the young (51 per cent) said no or were not sure. Two-thirds of their parents (67 per cent) said yes.

Nearly 2,000 interviews were conducted across the country in March and April among a representative sample of youth between the ages of 17 and 23 and their parents. The results reveal that the "generation gap" is both deep and wide.

Today's youth still do accept many traditional principles. For example, more than seven out of ten believe that "hard work will always pay off" (74 per cent); that "competition encourages excellence" (80 per cent); and that living a "clean, moral life is very important" (71 per cent).

However, what young people define as "clean and moral" frequently differs sharply from adult standards. Other areas money, religion, sex and drugs.

Money: a majority of parents (53 per cent) and nearly half their children (44 per cent) agree that the older generation is more fearful of financial insecurity. Non-college youth tends to share more closely the older generation's goals of careers and money. Eight out of ten college students believe strongly or in part, that America's wealth is unjustly distributed.

Religion: Only four out of ten college students say organized religion is important. The more radical the youth politically, the more likely is a rejection of the religious values of adult society.

Sex: Love, according to nine out of ten young people, is very important in their lives. Nearly half of all American youth and two out of three of the college students surveyed say having sexual relations before marriage is not a moral issue. Nearly nine out of ten parents say it is morally wrong. A majority of college students strongly or partially agree that sexual behavior "should be bound by mutual feelings and not by formal and legal ties."

Drugs: A majority of young people (67 per cent) in American approve of the laws forbidding marijuana. But half of the college students (51 per cent) and three out of ten non-college youth (28 per cent) said they either accepted the restraints reluctantly or rejected them outright.

Biblical reading ends local Pentecost rally

A reading of Chapter two of the Book of Acts followed 20 minutes of singing at a Pentecost rally Sunday afternoon. One hundred and fifty MSU students were present at Beaumont Tower, united in a demonstration of Christian unity.

Four Christian folk songs were sung with guitar and tamborine accompaniment. Corwin Smith, staff worker at University Reformed Church, read from a modern translation of the New Testament. Bob Seal, Farmington junior, closed the 30 minute formal gathering with a short prayer for unity and effective Christian witness on campus.

Fred Herwaldt, Flint senior and master of ceremonies, expressed his outlook on the purpose of the rally.

"This type of gathering serves as a great reminder of the continued presence of that same Holy Spirit of the first Pentecost. It should also remind Christians of our responsibility to each other and to others, our responsibility as Christian brothers and as neighbors," Herwaldt said.

Seal saw the rally as "a starting point for unity" among different denominations and Christian groups. He stressed the importance of Christians working together for common goals.

"I'm pretty pleased with this whole thing," Dave Chinnard, Bangor junior and a coordinator for the rally, said. "There's a real excitement here among the kids getting to know each other at last. This type of thing is sorely needed on this campus, after all, we're not protesting. We're proclaiming."

Shelling, gun fire by cease-fire line disturbs Mideast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Shelling and gunfire broke out between Jordan and Israeli forces at two points along the Jordan River cease-fire line Monday. On the Suez Canal front, four Israeli soldiers were wounded by a mine.

A Jordanian army spokesman in Amman said the Israelis suffered some losses in the Jordan Valley fighting, but he did not go into details. An Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv said an Israeli tractor driver was wounded by Jordanian light arms and bazooka fire near Ashdot Ya'Agov, south of the Sea of Galilee.

The Israelis charged that the Jordanians shelled Moussa El-Alami, an agricultural study farm near Jericho, a few miles north of the Dead Sea. A Tel Aviv spokesman said the Israelis returned fire in both incidents.

Spartan Stickmen drop final game to Chicago 6-5

By DAVE WEST
State News Sports Writer

The MSU Lacrosse Club dropped their final game of the season Saturday, 6-5, to the Chicago Lacrosse Club in a road contest.

"We just couldn't get going," MSU Coach Turf Kauffman said. "The lay-off last weekend might have had some effect on us."

The Spartans were first to draw blood, but from that point in the first half, Chicago took over for five of their six goals.

"In the second half we started to run, and it showed in the score," Kauffman said.

In the last two quarters the Spartans began to close the gap with two goals in each of the final periods, but the game ended too soon.

"Those quarters seemed awfully short to me," Kauffman said. "I think that they might have left the clock running during the timeouts.

"The shorter the game, the better it was for them," Kauffman said. "They weren't in as good of shape as we were."

The Spartans gave their one-two punch with Larry Berger and Ron Winter scoring two goals and one assist apiece. Berger and Winter finished one-two in total points in the club division of the Midwest Lacrosse Assn. Tom Bowman picked up the only other score for the Spartans.

The Midwest Lacrosse Assn. had their meeting Sunday to pick their all-conference team, but failed to do so. Not all the coaches attended the meeting, and consequently no selections were made.

ter comprised Holden Hall's winning quarter. The foursome shot 350 to easily win over second place East Shaw who finished with 366 strokes.

John Ross, competing for the Chunks, an independent team, was the tournament's medalist, shooting a nifty 75.

The Spartans had played only one of the teams that was represented, and in the one vote that was taken, neither of the Spartans' top men, Berger or Winter, made either of the first two teams. The coaches then decided to select the team by a vote through the mail.

Bat sophs gained experience

By GARY WALKOWICZ
Executive Sports Editor

MSU Baseball Coach Danny Litwhiler was "disappointed but not discouraged" by his team's play in 1969.

"I expected to win the Big Ten title this year, but things just didn't fall right," Litwhiler said.

"Our pitching was near the top of the conference, but we didn't get the hits when we needed them."

A look at the Spartans' final statistics clearly emphasizes Litwhiler's point about the lack of hitting.

MSU had only one regular hitting over .300 and the team batting average was .262, down 38 points from last season's team.

Even centerfielder Rick Miller, who led the Spartans with a .356 mark, went into a hitting slump during the middle of the conference season and his average dropped from .390 to .333.

"The season certainly wasn't a disaster, however," Litwhiler commented. "We had a lot of sophomores and newcomers who got plenty of experience and playing time this season."

The Spartans will have an entire infield returning next year.

Sophomore Tim Bogrkos started at first base before a hitting slump forced him to the bench. Litwhiler did use him during the last several weeks as a late-inning defensive replacement to take advantage of his fine fielding ability.

Dick Vary, Larry Rettenmund and Mike Olson, who split the second base duties, will all return next season.

Sophomore Phil Rashead and junior college transfer George Petroff were regulars all season at third base and shortstop, respectively.

Sophomore Gary Boyce, whose bat won him a spot in the lineup late in the season, could be one of the Spartans' big hitters in the 1970 season.

Joe Gavel, Harry Kendrick and Rich Jordan are the graduating regulars, while junior outfielder Miller will likely sign a professional contract.

Miller will be taking advantage of the collegiate rule which allows pro baseball teams to sign a collegiate player once he turns 21.

"We have some good freshmen coming up who should help us in the outfield or somewhere next season," Litwhiler said.

"Kirk Maas and Phil Fulton will be the core of our pitching staff and Rick Kreuger should have a good year if he avoids any injuries."

"To this we'll add some good upcoming freshmen pitchers."

Under the new Big Ten rule, Litwhiler will also be able to use next year's freshmen on the varsity.

"Next year's team will be in about the same position that the 1967 team was," Litwhiler said. "We'll still be a relatively young team, but should have a shot at winning the championship if things go right."

"Then the following year's team is the one you expect to win it."

Litwhiler named a trio of Spartans as most deserving of post-season awards.

"Rick Miller should definitely be an All-Big Ten choice and could make All-America."

"He's quite a ballplayer, but we'll probably lose him. He'll likely go high in the upcoming draft and probably will sign."

Miller led MSU in most offensive categories this year. He batted at a .356 clip with seven home runs, 36 RBI's and 70 total bases.

He was also an outstanding defensive outfielder with great range, a fine glove and one of the most powerful and accurate arms in collegiate baseball, as many opposing baserunners will attest.

"Harry Kendrick should be the All-Big Ten catcher for the second consecutive year," Litwhiler added.

"Dan Bielski probably won't be named as a first team pitcher, although he deserves it in my book. His conference record was an unimpressive 3-2, but he allowed only three runs in those two losses."

Bielski's conference victories were over Michigan (18-3), Wisconsin (1-0 in 11 innings) and Minnesota (5-2).

IM golf tournament crowns team winners

The IM Golf Tournament concluded last weekend with winning trophies going to the Baumbadiers, Phi Delta Theta and Holden Hall.

The Baumbadiers won the Independent crown and finished with a team score of 328 for four men. Members of the team were Shawn McMeel, Gilles Gagnon, Roger White and Ken Mills. The Impressions finished second with a total of 339 strokes.

Phi Delta Theta took first place honors in the fraternity division with a 328 shot effort. Bill Vandermass, Joe Newton, Doug Osborn and John Kehrl competed for the Phi Deltas. Delta Chi took runner-up honors with a team total of 343.

Tom Kueny, Tom Fodell, Mike Sansone and Paul Schlac-

ter comprised Holden Hall's winning quarter. The foursome shot 350 to easily win over second place East Shaw who finished with 366 strokes.

John Ross, competing for the Chunks, an independent team, was the tournament's medalist, shooting a nifty 75.

The graduation car. Any questions?

Q. Why did we make it this size?

A. Maverick pinches pennies, not people. We gave Maverick more leg room. More shoulder room. More luggage room. Maverick's front seat offers nine inches more shoulder room than the front seat of the leading economy import.

Q. What do I get for the price?

A. You get your money's worth. A complete, built-for-Americans kind of car. Room. Hot styling. Color-keyed interiors.

Q. What kind of gas mileage can I get?

A. That depends on you as well as the car. You can get as much as 25 or 26 miles per gallon—if you have an educated toe and the right road conditions. If you have a lead foot, or do a lot of city driving, you will get a lot less. In tests by professional drivers at our tracks, where we do our best to duplicate actual driving conditions, Maverick averaged 22.5 mpg.

Q. What kind of power does Maverick have?

A. Maverick's Six lets loose 105 galloping horses. That's 52 more than you get in the VW 1500. Maverick can cover 417 feet in ten seconds from a standing start. When you enter a 70-mph turnpike, you won't feel like a retired bookkeeper thrust into the middle of a pro football game.

Q. If it has an eight-inch longer wheelbase than the import, does it still handle and park easily?

A. Maverick's turning circle is 35.6 feet (vs. 36 feet for its leading import rival). Maverick can slant through traffic like a halfback. It makes you a better driver because of the nimble way it handles in traffic, goes around corners and slides into tight parking spots.

Q. Can a small car be safe? And how safe is safe?

A. This small car incorporates all the latest advances in engineering. Its brakes are as big as a standard compact's—designed to stop cars weighing hundreds of pounds more. Maverick gives you weight . . . power . . . stability . . . designed for greater peace of mind on high-speed turnpikes where so many Americans spend so much of their time at 70 miles per hour.

For an authentic 1/25 scale model of the new Ford Maverick, send $1.00 to Maverick, P.O. Box 5397, Department UN-59 Detroit, Mich. 48211. (Offer ends July 31, 1969.)

PROGRAMS PROBE REASONS

Churches combat racial hostility

By PAT ANSTETT
Campus Editor '68-'69

Black identity is a stone that gathers hostility—not moss.

Reactions varying from vocal opposition to hostility have characterized the reactions of many white Christians toward the recent drive for black identity and power.

The predominantly white, Christian church is faced with the problem of understanding its black brothers and providing its people with help—not hostility—to combat ill feelings between white and black people.

Many clergymen contend that it is more important to first make white Christians aware of why they have hostile or indifferent feelings toward black people before offering specific programs to combat racism on a wide-scale basis in the church.

They say it is more important to find out why for example, a white elementary education teacher resented a black man calling her, rather than telling her how to specifically combat her problem, which she resented even being told she had.

A group program started in Grand Rapids and beginning in Lansing this fall, attempts to combat attitudinal racism among white people.

This newly-created program, People Against Racism, attempts to bring a group of white people into dialogue about personal race problems.

Under the direction of a group leader, the program's participants discuss a race problem that they have experienced. The group then selects one member to be put on the "hot seat," originally called the "help seat."

Through an interrogation of the person occupying the "hot seat," the group attempts to create an awareness of the underlying factors which cause attitudinal racism.

Race and Religion

Second in a series

At a recent demonstration of this "Guided Group Interaction" technique on the Michigan State University campus, the groups discussed a middle-aged white man's "uneasiness" to the entry of several black panther youths on a Philadelphia municipal bus.

The middle-aged man said he was bothered by his own feelings of uneasiness and wanted to discuss why he felt this way.

Another woman in the demonstration group brought up for discussion her similar uneasiness and outright staring at racially-mixed couples.

The reactions of these people are typical of many church and non-church people.

The problem lies in combatting such attitudinal racism.

"We have found that this is just one way attitudinal racism can be dealt with," Rev. Truman Morrison, chairman of the Greater Lansing Inter-Faith Council on Race and Religion, said.

The 52-year-old clergyman, pastor of Edgewood United Church in East Lansing, said that individual pastors have a "tremendous role" in combatting racism, but that the critical question is making the congregation aware of these issues.

Once an awareness to the underlying factors has been created, many pastors think that an implementation of this awareness is also necessary.

Ecumenical Associates, a two-year-old church-funded organization in Lansing, attempts to orient social action-oriented church people into channels of para-political and social activity.

This organization, however, "does not try to persuade people whose perception of the church is wholly different than what we are doing," Rev. Charles Millar, executive director of the Ecumenical Associates, said.

"We found that we often ran into collections of concerned church people. The question was, how to pull these people together?"

The 35-year-old Millar is himself an example of the church person who questions the institutional church's ability to make viable contributions to political activity.

Millar served as an Episcopalian rector in Flushing, Mich. "I couldn't do what I wanted to do where I was," he said.

He then joined with Rev. Robert Richardson and designed and created Ecumenical Associates.

Since their start in 1967, Millar and Richardson have organized anti-racism teaching design groups in communities, directed People Against Racism "graduates" into political activity and set up a program, "Changing Communities Intentionally."

Millar said that people "can lambaste the church for being a terribly conservative institution in society, but should realize that the church has moved more deeply and quickly than most secular and governmental organizations working in the area of race relations."

Some area churches have also attempted to combat racism through economic coercion.

Many churches participate in Project Equality, a plan which encourages churches to buy supplies and services from equal opportunity employers. Lists of the names of these employers are sent to individual pastors, recommending that they buy supplies from these organizations.

One Catholic Lansing parish, the predominantly Mexican-American Cristo Rey, is faced with similar race problems.

"The primary purpose of Cristo Rey is to extend the church to the Spanish-speaking people in the community. Fr. Eugene Sears, pastor, said."

He said that many highly religious Mexicans are turning away from the church because they have no interest in local parishes that discriminate against the Mexicans.

He contends that Cristo Rey cannot afford to operate in a vacuum, therefore the parish has added 5 men from Lansing churches to the 10 parish men on its Board of Directors.

This group attempts to bring Mexicans back into neighborhood parishes.

Once we get the Mexican back to the church, we attempt to identify him in the parish he should be living in, Sears said.

Sears and many other clergymen hope that the church can get not only the Mexican but also the black man into the parish he should be living in.

They hope that black and white people may some day be rolling aside the weather-worn stone of racial prejudice.

'Outrage' slates Biafran programs

Operation Outrage has been active recently in its attempts to raise funds for the relief of children in Biafra.

On Saturday, 20 students from MSU and Lansing Community College (LCC) collected about $812 in downtown Lansing and at East Lansing Greenwich Village Days.

Operation Outrage will sponsor a mixer in Hubbard Hall from 8-12 tonight. The mixer, "Beautiful Cat's Ball," has been organized by students from LCC.

Four bands and a light show will provide continuous entertainment. They include the Woolies, MAXX, Tobie Bates Blues Band and Plain Brown Wrapper.

The bands are donating their services and proceeds will go to a Biafra-Nigeria relief fund. Admission is 50 cents per person.

At 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union Parlors, Operation Outrage will sponsor "Life for Biafra Relief." Sen. Sander Levin, state Senate minority leader, will speak on the Nigeria-Biafra conflict.

The talk will be followed by film or slides on Biafra, and a candlelight march from the Union to Beaumont Tower.

Mickey Davis, co-chairman of Operation Outrage, said that the purpose of the march is "to express our concern for the tragic starvation of thousands of children."

The University of MAN will sponsor a class in anarchy and libertarian philosophy at 7:30 tonight in the Union Grill and at 8:30-11 p.m. in the Mural Room of the Union.

The Council of Graduate Students will meet at 7:30 tonight in 338 Natural Resources Bldg.

Beta Beta Beta, biological sciences honorary, will meet at 7:30 tonight in 404 Natural Science. James Trosko of the Dept. of Natural Science will speak. The provisional members will be promoted to full membership.

The Outing Club will meet at 7:30 tonight in 116 Natural Science Activities and programs for summer and fall terms will be discussed.

Operation Outrage will sponsor a charity dance from 8-12 tonight in Hubbard Hall. Featured will be Maxx, Woolies, Tobie Bates Blues Band and the Plain Brown Wrapper. An atmospheric environment will be provided by "EYE See the Light."

The Chess Club will meet at 7:30 tonight in 304 Bessey. All interested persons are invited.

The Pre-med Society will meet at 8 tonight in the Gold Room of the Union. Elections will be held for next year's officers.

Students for Effective Education will meet at 8 tonight in the Union Ballroom. Everyone is invited to this recruitment and information meeting for the soon-to-open Crisis Center.

The Young Socialist Alliance, the GI-

Civilian Anti-War Alliance, BSA, New University Conference and ASMSU will hold a Teach-In on GI Rights today in 106B Wells Hall. Workshops will be held at 2:30 and 4 p.m. with army recruitment films and a lecture by Alan Myers on "GI Organizing." At 7 p.m. Delmar Thomas will speak on "Fort Jackson: GI's United." Myers will speak on "Fort Dix: Free Speech Movement" and Maurice Geary will speak on "GI Civil Liberties Defense Committee."

The Association for Computing Machinery will meet at 7 tonight in Room 215 Computer Center to elect next year's officers.

Auditions for Cole Porter's musical comedy CAN-CAN will be held from 7-10 tonight in Demonstration Hall. All students, faculty and staff are encouraged to audition for the parts of singer, dancer and actor.

The Rodeo Club will elect officers at its meeting at 9 tonight in 131 Anthony.

The Sailing Club will meet at 6 tonight at the club's Lake Lansing site.

The MSU Jewish Faculty Study Group on Israel and the Middle East will meet at 9 tonight in the Oak Room of the Union. Everyone is welcome.

All undergraduate sociology majors will meet at 8:30 tonight in 122 Berkey to discuss how majors should make use of their voting seats on the Sociology Dept's Advisory Committee, a body empowered to make advisory decisions about faculty hiring, retention, promotion and tenure.

Gunderman silent said, "The Kerner Commission was dealing with a specific situation. I do not see the relevancy of the Kerner Report to Wilson Hall. I'm sorry, but I don't see it."

Dhirendra Sharma, associate professor in philosophy and Justin Morrill College, told the State News of a problem similar in nature that he had had with the Journal. Concerned over statements printed about him involving the demonstration protesting recruitment on campus by the Oakland Police Dept., Sharma talked with Gunderman twice and submitted two letters which he said were never printed.

Sharma said he is still receiving a few threatening and harassing calls as a result of the Journal's articles. Speaking of his meeting with Gunderman, Sharma said he was "disrespectful and discourteous. Both incidents (Wilson Hall and his own) involve non-whites. 'I didn't view it in this way at first, but maybe there is a racial bias there,'" he said.

Asked about Sharma's complaints, Gunderman said, "I am not anxious to discuss this with the whole world."

"This is a matter of each individual's interpretation," Gunderman said. "Dr. Sharma has his opinions about what we should or shouldn't print about him. Apparently the NAACP has its opinions about what we should say about Wilson Hall. I have my opinion."

One Journal article noted Sharma's Indian origin and an editorial stated "... a professor from India on the faculty lectured him (Adams) on what the American taxpayers would not stand for."

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The new Teamsters-Auto Workers Alliance for Labor Action Monday launched an ambitious economic and social program which won Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz's pledge that "We want to work with you."

Shultz's speech and his appearance as a Nixon Administration leader reportedly ranked AFL-CIO president George Meany, who views the alliance as a rival labor federation and has threatened to oust any of the AFL-CIO's 122 unions that seek to join it.

Observers from several AFL-CIO unions attended the founding conference of the alliance but made no public comment.

Auto Workers president Walter Reuther and Teamsters' acting president Frank E. Fitzsimons insisted their new organization is not set up to compete with the AFL-CIO.

"We have not come together to divide the labor movement; we have come together to revitalize the labor movement," Reuther said.

But in an obvious dig at Meany's camp, the red-haired Reuther said, "We do not accept the proposition that any organization has a divine right to sit upon its paper jurisdiction claims and block the organization of a million unorganized workers in America."

Reuther pulled his 1.6 million-member Auto Workers Union out of the AFL-CIO last year after many attacks on Meany's leadership and formed the Labor Alliance with the two-million-member Teamsters Union, which was expelled from the AFL-CIO 12 years ago on corruption charges.

AFL-CIO headquarters declined official comment but an informed source said there was unhappiness among Meany and his associates over Shultz's appearance.

The alliance delegates, whose programs will be financed with more than $4 million a year from Teamsters and Auto Workers dues, made a $25,000 contribution to striking hospital workers in Charleston, S.C.--the same amount the AFL-CIO contributed recently.

Alliance delegates also adopted resolutions calling for a vast federal low-income housing construction program, national health insurance to cover all Americans, tax reform to plug loopholes for the wealthy and numerous other measures aimed at solving the nation's urban and social problems.

Louis Bender Blues

"Sen. Huber has said that education concerning communism is good because we must know our enemy," Bender said. "What he does not realize is that to many of us, sex is a friend and not an enemy."

Bender, a decorated war veteran, said that his first official act as president will be to move the office of the President from the administration building to the Rathskeller of the Coral Gables.

He said that he was concerned with armed campus police and planned, after his election, to disarm the campus guardians.

"I will replace their weapons with Matty Matel burp guns and Greenie Stickum caps," Bender said.

Bender plans to rename several MSU buildings after he is elected president.

"I will rename Cowles House 'Bender House,'" he said.

Bender also pledged to change the MSU Sewage Treatment plant to Huber Hall, after Sen. Robert J. Huber.

Bender has decided that Demonstration Hall is appropriately named and will remain Demonstration Hall.

He said that he would relocate Sparty at the MSU Experimental Muck Farms and replace him with a bronzed statue of Biggie Munn.

"A bronze statue of the body of Biggie holds great esthetic value for many MSU students," he said.

Another Bender policy will be to aim the Frandor Super-slide into the I.M. pool, which he plans to fill with Mazola Oil.

Bender's next official campus appearance will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday on the banks of the Red Cedar by the Auditorium.

He will continually be making appearances all over campus to shake hands, kiss babies or discuss politics.
