Bomb quest evacuates 'U' buildings; man held

By JOHN BORGER
State News Staff Writer

The Administration Bldg. was evacuated for nearly three hours Wednesday as police searched for a suspected bomb. No explosives were found.

Arrest of Jack R. McKinney, 22, no known address, charged as a disorderly person in connection with the incident, was delayed until Wednesday night or today, East Lansing Associate Municipal Judge Jonathan E. Marie said.

Marie said McKinney had refused to enter any plea without consulting an attorney during an arraignment Wednesday afternoon.

The evacuation incident began when Administration Bldg. employees called campus police to report a "suspicious character" wandering in and out of offices and randomly punching computer keyboards.

Campus police, arriving about 10:30 a.m., found McKinney barricaded within a women's lavatory in the Administration Bldg. basement. Police said he "acted dazed" when they apprehended him.

Several employees had reported that McKinney was carrying a briefcase earlier, but he did not have one with him when apprehended. Upon questioning by police, McKinney could not account for the briefcase.

Police said the missing case gave them reason to suspect a bomb. They evacuated the building, while conducting a search and continuing questioning of McKinney.

The 5'11" blond McKinney was carrying a New Mexico driver's license and an Army identification card, police said.

Police said McKinney has apparently been attempting to register as a student here.

The police search for explosives spread to a yellow and white mini-bus parked in the Computer Center loading zone, which McKinney had told police belonged to him. The bus bore black and gold California license plates.

At 11 a.m., the Computer Center was also evacuated and the entire area was roped off.

The state bomb squad and explosives truck were called in as police searched through pipes, wire, tools, canned food, a sleeping bag, clothing and other assorted contents of the bus, but no explosives were discovered.

At 1 p.m., employees re-entered the building to aid in the search for the missing briefcase, but found nothing. Half an hour later, the building was re-opened to the public.

Neither briefcase nor explosives were discovered during the afternoon.

McKinney, charged as a disorderly person and in contention, was scheduled for arraignment before Judge Marie Wednesday. After Marie informed him of his rights and the ways he could plead, McKinney refused to enter any plea without consulting his attorney, the judge said.

Marie said McKinney did not mention his

Poll shows drug use increases in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 53 per cent of Army enlisted men polled in a "bench-mark" survey admitted using marijuana at least once, and one in six said they used it 200 or more times yearly, the Army said Wednesday.

The survey, taken a year ago in Vietnam, showed 46.5 per cent of the enlisted men polled believe marijuana should be legalized and 27 per cent declared they would continue using it.

The survey results were unveiled before a Senate subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics.

Army officers testified no research has been undertaken to learn the impact of drug usage in combat situations. One of them said he did not believe it was widespread during combat, but was fairly common when troops were relaxing after battle.

Capt. Morris D. Stanton, chief of the psychology section at Ft. Meade, Md., told the senators he surveyed 2,372 men — ranging from private to lieutenant colonel at a Cam Rahn Bay replacement battalion in November, 1969.

About half of those sampled were entering Vietnam for the first time and the other half were leaving it after one-year tours.

This was the major finding: "Results showed that of the 994 outgoing enlisted men surveyed, 53.2 per cent reported having tried marijuana at least once in their lives. About half these men — 50.1 per cent — reported using marijuana in Vietnam and 31.4 per cent reported use before entering Vietnam."

"One out of six of the 994 was a habitual user in Vietnam. In other words, he used it 200 or more times a year or more often than once every other day."

And he said his study revealed a "noticeable increase" in the percentage of heavy and habituated marijuana users compared with the only other similar study taken two years before.

These were the survey's other major findings:

- The use of opium — usually in the form of marijuana cigarettes dipped in it — tripled in Vietnam. The outgoing group reported 6.3 per cent had used it before entering the country, and 17.4 per cent said they used it while in Vietnam.

- While not the only factor involved, there was an indication of "a slightly greater incidence of marijuana use in areas where combat is heaviest."

- The use of heroin, morphine and "acid," or LSD, did not show increases in Vietnam, and there was an indication of a drop in LSD use.

Former agent denies Army 'spy' presence

By BARBARA FARY
State News Staff Writer

An MSU student, formerly with U.S. Army Intelligence in Lansing, said in an interview Tuesday that the involvement of military intelligence agents in the antiwar movement at MSU is "minimal."

He was replying to the charge made on a national television program, "First Tuesday," by five former Army agents who accused the Army of building a "secret police force" to gather information about antiwar and civil rights movements, and elected public officials.

"There's more long-haired finks with beards on this campus than Army agents to worry about," he said.

The former agent, who was with the military until April of last year, said the Army agents would only be involved in campus affairs if there was a possibility of

Wharton included on list for Harvard presidency

President Wharton is one of 23 semi-final candidates being considered for the presidency of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., according to the Crimson, Harvard's student newspaper.

House panel blocks plan to aid buyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Creation of a Consumer Protection Agency to represent shoppers in the courts and government was virtually killed Wednesday when the House Rules Committee refused, on a tie vote of 7-7, to send it on for full House action.

A similar bill passed the Senate Tuesday 74-4.

The tie vote in the Rules committee against sending the bill to the House floor for action means there is no chance for final congressional approval of the bill in the remaining few weeks of the 91st Congress, although there are rarely used and seldom successful procedures for bringing up a bill without Rules committee approval.

The first list of candidates included 69 names.

"I have had no contact regarding this matter from Harvard University, and therefore, it would be presumptuous for me to make any comment," Wharton said Wednesday.

Earlier Wednesday, Wharton reported that he is going to Cambridge next week to meet with Howard Johnson, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He did not disclose what would be the nature of their meeting.

A spokesman for the Crimson said the semi-final list of candidates included two current university presidents. The other president being considered is Robben Fleming of the University of Michigan.

Other candidates on the list, the spokesman said, are 11 Harvard people, including five deans.

"There is no indication either way," the spokesman said, "whether the president will be chosen from inside or outside Harvard University."

The paper received its list of candidates unofficially and no official comment on the candidates for president has come from the selection committee or the Harvard Corporation, the governing board of Harvard University.

Wharton is reportedly the only black man on the list.

The Crimson spokesman said he expects the field of candidates to be narrowed down to five or six by Dec. 20. A formal announcement of the name of the new president will be made Jan. 5, if the selection committee acts according to its schedule.

The spokesman said they are not sure the schedule will be followed.

Wharton, 44, was named president of MSU 13 months ago and began his term of office in Jan., 1970. Wharton had been vice

Out to lunch?

An onlooker passing by the Abbot Hall cafeteria might wonder if ASMSU is out to lunch. However, first glances can be deceptive. The ASMSU board defeated a proposal that would have given them a total of $805 in compensation for fall term at their meeting Wednesday.

The ASMSU Student Board defeated a proposed compensation schedule by an 8-6 vote at Tuesday's meeting, which means board members will not receive compensation for fall term.

The compensation vote followed an hour-long battle over the proposed budget for next year. The proposed budget, submitted by ASMSU Comptroller Grant Greco, was finally sent to the budget committee, which will work out the details. The committee will return the budget with its recommendations in early winter term for the board's approval.

The proposed compensation schedule would have paid the ASMSU chairman $70, the vice chairman $50, the comptroller $35, the secretary $15, each district representative $30 and the heads of each major governing group $25, for a total of $805.

In a roll call vote, Buckner, Bathurst, Austin, Gillum, Wilson and Guthrie voted for compensation while Farley, Stempel, Jones, Anderson, Kibbey, Korda, Rosenthal and Urban voted against it, with three district representatives absent.

The defeat of this term's compensation means the fate of compensation will probably be left to the student body. A

Prosecutors announce permit probe decision

By JAMES SHELDON
State News Staff Writer

A decision has been reached by Ingham County prosecutors regarding further action to be taken against persons allegedly involved in the illegal sale of student driving and parking permits for campus areas.

However, Thomas Rassmussen, asst. prosecuting attorney, declined to release the decision Wednesday afternoon until he first notified Richard O. Bernitt, MSU director of public safety, of the action prosecutors will take.

Bernitt himself could not be reached for comment late Wednesday afternoon on whether he received word of the decision, but the chief investigating officer on the case said no word had as yet been received by the Dept. of Public Safety from prosecutors.

The officer added additional evidence has recently been uncovered by police through further investigation could possibly change the prosecutors' decision.

The officer declined to explain the nature of the new evidence but said he would contact Rassmussen about it as soon as possible.

MSU police announced Nov. 9 they had begun investigation into allegations that illegal campus driving and parking permits were being sold through intermediaries for $55 each. Permits are issued free to students meeting the requirements.

Police were seeking criminal warrants against those allegedly involved in the sale.

Rassmussen said he was instructed by Raymond L. Scodeller, Ingham County prosecuting attorney, to inform the University officials of the decision before releasing it to the public.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS

The United States called on Israel and the Arabs Wednesday to act "prudently and with restraint" to preserve the Middle East cease-fire. A State Department spokesman said in Washington conditions are "propitious" for a renewal of the stalled peace talks.

Meanwhile in Beirut, an Al Fatah communiqué said Palestinian guerrillas blew up a Jerusalem-Haifa train Monday, killing or wounding a number of Israeli passengers. Al Fatah said the train was derailed and several carriages destroyed by the explosion, which occurred just south of Jerusalem.

Portuguese Premier Marcello Caetano proposed constitutional revisions Wednesday that would grant a measure of independence to Portugal's African territories, where the government has been battling guerrillas for nearly 10 years.

He told a joint session of Parliament that the African territories of Angola, Portuguese Guinea and Mozambique would get their own laws, elected government, finances and budgets under his plan.

They would be "autonomous within the unitary Portuguese state," Caetano said.

Taking advantage of moonless nights, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are stepping up rocket barrages against towns and military bases almost the entire length of South Vietnam.

More heavy shellings appear likely for the next two or three nights under the darkness that helps prevent detection.

In the 24 hours up to daybreak Wednesday, Communist command troops shelled 22 allied military installations or populated areas. These targets included three air bases, three province capitals and two district towns.

National News

The United Auto Worker's top negotiator at Ford Motor Co. said Wednesday in Detroit there will be no further extensions of the Union's contract with the auto company past the strike deadline of midnight Monday.

A strike, either nationwide or at the local plant level, will be avoided only if a new, three-year contract is agreed upon to cover the union's 150,000 members at Ford, said Ken Bannon, Chairman of the Union's Ford Department.

"It is a very real deadline. There are no thoughts to extending anything," said Bannon at the conclusion of Wednesday's sessions. "We're working against that deadline."

HARRIMAN

Former Ambassador - at - large W. Averell Harriman said Wednesday President Lyndon Johnson considered sending a rescue team into North Vietnam to free prisoners of war but abandoned the idea as not feasible.

Harriman said the deciding factor against the plan was lack of knowledge of the prisoners' location. "The plan was considered but never developed in detail," the 79-year-old Harriman told a news conference in Norfolk, Va.

The former New York governor expressed "great admiration" for the manner in which the recent unsuccessful rescue attempt at Son Tay was conceived and carried out.

The environmental Protection Agency came into formal existence Wednesday while its first chief was receiving Senate committee endorsement. It marked completion of a year of restructuring of federal environment functions, with still more restructuring probably lying ahead.

The Senate Public Works Committee gave unanimous approval to William D. Ruckelshaus as director of EPA.

The MSU coed said she hopes to use it to finance further studies in insect life so that she can work in maintaining the balance of nature.

Grand Valley State College Wednesday announced it has made application to the Federal Communications Commission for a license to operate a new west Michigan educational UHF television station for Channel 35.

Arend Lubbers, president of the college, in a progress report Wednesday, said $275,000 had been pledged on a goal of $500,000 for the project.

Cantlon plan adds 2 students to board

By MICHAEL FOX
State News Staff Writer

The College of Communication Arts Student Advisory Committee will meet at noon today to consider a proposal from Provost John E. Cantlon on expanding student representation on the deans' search and selection committee.

Cantlon's proposal, approved by the College Advisory Council Tuesday night, would add two nonvoting student representatives in addition to the two voting student seats now allotted.

The search and selection committee will also consist of six faculty members — one from each department in the college and an at-large member chosen by the provost — and a representative of the provost's office.

The School of Journalism Student Advisory Committee (JSAC) voted two weeks ago to boycott procedures to select the undergraduate representative because of its token nature. They recommended that the number of voting students be expanded from two to five representatives.

William Rintelmann, chairman of the College Advisory Committee, said his group "decided to go along with the notion of using alternates."

"No formal ratification is necessary by the faculty of the college because the voting structure remains the same," he said.

Rintelmann said the legislative decision of the College Advisory Council and the provost is all the action necessary to revise the dean selection procedures in this case.

"If the Student Advisory Committee of the college elects to use alternates they can have up to four members on the search and selection committee, but still have only two votes," Rintelmann said.

The two extra slots would be for an undergraduate and a graduate student, he said. The committee will review nominations to replace Jack M. Bain, dean of the school, who is returning to full-time teaching.

The search and selection committee will present a slate of no more than five to the provost for consideration who in turn makes a recommendation to the president.

Rintelmann said the provost's proposal for two nonvoting alternates did not represent a compromise with the JSAC protest and was not necessarily forced by their boycott.

LACK SAFETY VALVES

Court fines oil companies

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three major oil companies were fined more than half a million dollars in federal court Wednesday after pleading "no contest" to charges they failed to have safety valves on offshore oil wells in the Gulf of Mexico.

The three companies — Humble Oil Co., Union Oil Co., and Continental Oil Co. — each received the maximum fine of $2,000 for each count in the indictments.

A fourth company, Shell Oil Co., which is currently fighting a blazing offshore oil well fire, pleaded innocent and U.S. District Judge Fred J. Cassary said he would set a trial date later.

The action came at an arraignment on indictments brought by the federal government in November.

Humble was fined $300,000 on 150 separate offenses involving 33 offshore wells; Union, $24,000 on 12 counts involving eight wells; and Continental, $242,000 on 121 counts involving 24 wells.

Shell is charged with 170 separate offenses involving 40 wells. No pollution was involved in any of the offenses. Firms were indicted after a grand jury investigation which stemmed from the massive Chevron Oil Co. offshore fire and oil spill last February. Chevron paid $1 million in fines after pleading no contest to 500 counts in that investigation.

The government has said all the companies are now complying with the law and emphasized that the offenses listed in the indictments were for past actions.

Since the Chevron spill, which went uncontrolled for a month, the federal Interior Department has doubled the Gulf Coast oil inspection force and a further expansion is planned. The man who ordered the expansion, Walter J. Hickel, was fired from his post as U.S. Interior Secretary last week by President Nixon.

Hickel had also suspended further leasing of offshore oil sites until Dec. 15.

ENVIRONMENTS DISC TWO CAN HELP YOU FEEL.

We'll spare you a science lesson. This is a new type of sound — in astonishing stereo. It can do for your mind what a massage does for your body.

Environments, Disc Two has two sides, each superb in its own way.

Side One is Tintinnabulation, the sound of bells. The most unusual bells you've ever heard. You can play it at any speed — 78, 45, 33, 16 rpm. In full stereo. At each speed, the record becomes a totally new experience.

No one has yet been able to satisfactorily explain how it does what it does. Listen to it for an hour and you find your problems weren't really so important after all. You'll feel totally relaxed without falling asleep. Your mind will think different thoughts. Colors and smells will become more vivid. What else it can do for you, we don't know exactly.

Side Two is Dawn at New Hope—a superb re-creation, in stereo, of rural America as it might have sounded 100 years ago. Peaceful. Pleasant. Unspoiled. Many people swear they feel gentle breezes and smell newly-cut grass when they listen to this side. Leave it on long enough and you'll forget it's a phonograph record. Close your eyes and the walls of a room seem to vanish.

Altogether, this is an incredible album. It took a year of experimentation and research to produce. For those of you who have waited for our second release—we think it was worth waiting for.

Witness refuses to testify at Calley's trial

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — A My Lai veteran of Lt. William Calley Jr.'s Charlie Company platoon Wednesday became the first witness at his court-martial to invoke the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination and refused to testify.

The witness, Allen Boyce, 22, of Bradley Beach, N.J., had been listed in published reports as present when Calley allegedly directed the execution of at least 30 Vietnamese civilians along a trail inside My Lai March 16, 1968.

Boyce took the Fifth Amendment at the first question put to him relating to My Lai — whether he had ever served in Vietnam. Upon the insistence of the trial judge, Col. Reid Kennedy, he finally answered in the affirmative.

But from there on out Boyce took the Fifth Amendment eight times, each time defying Kennedy's order that he answer the question. Finally, the judge said:

"You don't want to testify to anything that occurred in the village of My Lai?"

"That's right," replied Boyce. In his refusal to testify, Boyce was following a personal pattern he set last month at the Ft. Hood, Texas, court-martial of one of Calley's squad leaders, S. Sgt. David Mitchell.

Boyce was called there as a defense witness but refused to answer any questions. Mitchell was acquitted of charges of assault with intent to murder 30 of the alleged Vietnamese civilian victims who also figure in the Calley trial.

Earlier, two former GIs from Calley's old platoon placed him in their testimony near the My Lai ditch where he was accused of engineering another mass execution of unarmed Vietnamese civilians. They said they heard automatic rifle fire but could not swear it was his.

Sgt. Lennie B. Lagunoy, 26, Waipahu, Hawaii, dark-haired, slightly built, former assistant machinegunner in Calley's 1st Platoon, testified he saw Pfc. Paul Meadlo pointing his M16 automatic rifle shortly before a burst of fire was heard, and "Lt. Calley was someplace behind him."

Following Lagunoy as a witness in Calley's court-martial was Charles Hall, 23, Columbus, Ohio, a tall, reddish-blond who was a member of the same machine-gun team. He testified he saw Calley in the area of the ditch, heard automatic rifle fire and later saw some 30 to 40 freshly bloodied bodies in the ditch.

Calley, 27, is being tried on charges of premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians during Charley Company's search and destroy assault on My Lai.

Another former Calley machine gunner, Robert E. Maples, testified Tuesday he saw Calley firing his automatic rifle into the ditch — which the witness called a hole — and that "the lieutenant asked for me to use my machine gun."

SN correction

Roger Funk, associate professor of art, will discuss "Photographic Possibilities with a Christmas Theme," not the "Pornographic Possibilities" as reported in Wednesday's State News.

The discussion, sponsored by the MSU Business Women's Club, will be held at noon Dec. 9 in 114-A Kresge Art Center.

The State News apologizes for the error.

"I refused," Maples added.

"Calley came over to the ditch.

He herded the rest of them

Vietnamese to a hole where him and Meadlo was firing into the hole. Meadlo was crying," he said.

On cross-examination

Wednesday, Maples was asked:

Q. Did you say Lt. Calley gave you an order to fire and you refused?

A. I stated Lt. Calley came up to me and asked me to use my machine gun.

Q. Did Lt. Calley ever give you an order to shoot into that hole?

A. He did not give me an order.

Q. Did you see the trajectory of the bullets?

A. I just saw them fire into the hole. I don't know whether they hit anyone or not.

Neither Lagunoy nor Hall went as far as Maples in testimony for the government. Lagunoy told of entering the village of My Lai after a helicopter lift and was asked:

Q. What happened after you got into the village?

A. I see some troops guarding civilians, they were mostly composed of women and kids.

Q. Did you see Lt. Calley at any time?

A. You mean inside the village?

No, I didn't.

Nixon's greeting included in Christmas mail to GIs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed Wednesday a Christmas card that will be included in "Mail Call Vietnam," a project launched by Villanova University students to send holiday mail to over 300,000 servicemen in Southeast Asia this year.

The students will try to get some deliveries through to U.S. prisoners of war in North Vietnam, three student representatives said at the White House after receiving congratulations from Nixon for their effort.

Robert Breslin, 20, Thomas Creagh, 21, both of Manhasset, N.Y., and Thomas Treacy, 23, a graduate student from Plainview, N.Y., told the President of the five-year-old project, now on a nationwide basis, that they are operating with the help of other colleges in hopes of getting Christmas mail to every American serviceman in Southeast Asia.

Nixon's card will be dropped in at random in their mailings to be delivered to some GI. It will have a note attached so he'll know it came from the President, the students said.

Nixon told the students that their effort was "going to mean a lot." He said the response to it — more than 250,000 cards, letters and packages already dispatched — "shows that a lot of people care." The President noted that "somebody has to do something to start it" as the Villanova group did.

Along with his congratulations, Nixon gave the students a presidential letter opener — a new souvenir he is dispensing — and a pen of the type he uses to sign official documents.

The students were among a variety of visitors Nixon greeted during an open house at noontime.

The president of Ohio State University, Novice G. Fawcett, brought Nixon a gavel made of 100-year-old walnut to commemorate the university's centennial year and also two tickets to the Rose Bowl in which Ohio State will play Stanford University New Year's Day.

"You can't do that," Nixon laughingly told Fawcett regarding the football tickets. "I might scalp them."

And, the president of New York City's Uniformed Firefighters Assn., Michael J. Maye, finally got in for a delayed presentation of a fire hat cigarette lighter to the President. He had planned to make the presentation on an earlier visit to the White House. But the Secret Service checked the box and did not return it in time.

DURING REGISTRATION

Students urged to obtain applications for aid soon

Students who wish to be considered for financial aid, including Student Aid Grants, scholarships, National Defense Student Loans, Educational Opportunity Grants and work-study jobs, from fall, 1971, to spring, 1972, should obtain applications at early registration next week.

"The financial aid office hopes to begin processing awards earlier than last year, so that students may know the status of their application as soon as possible," L. Michael Smith, work-study coordinator and asst. director of financial aids, said.

"For this reason, and because of the increasing number of applicants that appears to exceed the aid available, students are urged to complete the application and return it as quickly as possible," Smith said.

He said applications will be processed in the order in which they are received. Late filing of the Parents' Confidential Statement (PCS) by students last year resulted in delay, he said.

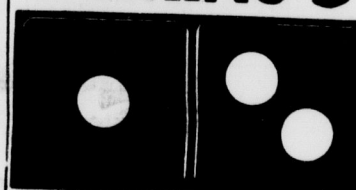

"The final date for applying for financial aid for the 1971-72 school year is May 1, 1971," he said. "However we are encouraging students to submit their applications over Christmas break."

He reminded students that the College Scholarship Service takes four to six weeks to process PCS and SCS (Student Confidential Statement for independent students) before they can be analyzed by the Financial Aid Office.

Applications will be available at early registration and regular registration and in 264 Student Services Bldg.

ISSUE STATEMENT

Blacks hit inaction by 'U'

By JEANNE SADDLER
Associate Campus Editor

Black student groups involved in the African Studies Center issued a statement Wednesday indicating that since the administration has not moved to begin negotiations to hire a permanent director for the center, the alternatives now must be action.

The students, members of Pan-African Students Organization in the Americas, the Black Liberation Front, International, and the Black Graduate Students Organization, are members of the Plenary Group, the center's governing body, which also includes the core faculty of the center, several white student groups and the acting director of the center, Victor Low.

The Plenary Group has moved that the appointment of a permanent director is its first priority.

"The parley sessions dealing with the questions of racism in the African Studies Center at MSU," the statement read, "have produced nothing except rhetoric from both the University administration and concerned black and white students. As a result of approximately one year of meaningless discussions, black students no longer want to talk or be talked to unless there is immediate action to redress past and present grievances."

"The so-called 'legitimate' channels have been exhausted by both black and white student organizations and the so-called 'responsible' manner of acting on the past part of black students have been met with unresponsiveness."

"MSU has not shown any sincerity and commitment in past discussions. It seems as though Marcus Garvey's words still holds true, 'men are not satisfied or moved by words and prayers.' Power only respects power whether the power exerted be constructive or destructive."

"The bigots, pigs and lackeys of racism by their actions have decided that black people will not be allowed to express themselves constructively. So the alternative now must be action."

Introducing the fastest ladies' shaver in the whole wide world.

You know those timid little ladylike shavers? Well, forget them. Because the big, all-new Lady Norelco 20L is here. And it's the world's fastest ladies' shaver.

It has the biggest shaving head of all the ladies' shavers. The largest active cutting area. And an extra-thin shaving head to shave extra close and smooth. Which means you can shave your legs and underarms 40 to 50% faster than with any other ladies' shaver in the world.

The new Lady Norelco is a beautiful poppy red, and it comes in a shiny black case. And that makes it the fastest, prettiest ladies' shaver in the whole wide world.

Supersonic transport unwise U.S. undertaking

The Senate votes today on a $290-million appropriation to build two supersonic transports (SST). The issue at hand is not one of throwing money away; the government will be repaid with interest as the planes are sold by domestic aircraft corporations.

The problem centers around national priorities. The Nixon administration wants to invest money in a program which will benefit only two groups: the elite who would be able to afford supersonic transatlantic flights and those associated with the aircraft industry.

Nothing is really wrong with these causes; it is just that there are so many better ways to invest $290-million. Housing, schools, hospitals, job training, mass transit; the list is endless.

The environmental horrors which may emerge from full-scale use of the SST make the investment even less attractive. The SST probably will not be used for overland flights; people will not tolerate sonic booms on a massive scale.

New evidence recently submitted to Congress by the Citizens League Against the Sonic Boom makes transoceanic flights a debatable proposition. This group has shown that each SST route over the sea might create a 100-mile wide zone upsetting migratory birds and fish. The effect of sonic booms on plankton, the foundation for life as we know it on this planet, should also be considered.

Numerous other possible dangers of the SST have also been pointed out. The SST could create an oil shortage in the 1980's. If the airlines fly their SST's enough to make the operation profitable, by the middle of the 80's, the SST's will be using more oil than the continents of Africa and South America combined. In the long run the earth's oil reserves may reach a premature death because of the SST.

In light of this evidence, the rationale for investing in the SST becomes shaky. The government is out to save the American aircraft industry, the belief being that if there is no American SST, the industry will not be able to compete with Europeans.

However, at this juncture, the chances of the SST ever getting off the ground are slim indeed. It is inconceivable that man would drive the nails into the proverbial coffin of his only home for the sake of saving two hours on transatlantic flights and bailing out the American aircraft industry.

The SST is one instance where the doctrine of laissez faire can be well applied. If Boeing or Douglas want to put up their own funds to complete final research on the SST, it's their business. But the U.S. government should keep its hands off of the matter.

When one considers all the other things in which the government could invest and all the havoc which could be wreaked upon the environment by the SST, the investment loses its enchantment. All the talk about misplaced priorities in America becomes empty if the Senate passes the SST appropriation Thursday.

Responsible handling of students' tax dollars

In an unexpected move the ASMSU Student Board voted down financial compensation at last Tuesday's meeting.

The board actually rejected the proposed pay schedule for fall term only. Legally the board could vote themselves retroactive compensation next term. More encompassing, however, than the rejection of compensation for fall term was a constitutional amendment introduced Tuesday that would permanently abolish compensation, if passed by the board and the student body.

Compensation represents an issue that has come full circle in the past few years. Board members received no reimbursement for their services under the original ASMSU charter. In spring of 1967, however, board members rallied sufficient student support under the banner "without compensation only the rich will be able to serve in student government," to push through a constitutional amendment providing for compensation.

But times have changed. The new system of district representation diminishes the possibility of having solely wealthy students in government. Besides, the $5 a week simply does not make the difference between poverty and plentitude.

The attitude of the student body has also changed. Intolerance to past boondoggles has grown, and if nothing else, the board action Tuesday could prove to be good politics. The board members' constituencies do not want more fiscal waste — even a token amount. And with ASMSU pushing for a tax increase next term, Tuesday's move shows an increasing sensitivity to fiscal responsibility.

Motives aside, abandoning compensation was a wise decision for the student board. We sincerely hope that subsequent actions support our optimism for responsible handling of fiscal chores.

'Titanic' council: a sinking ship?

Amidst the bickering in Academic Council over the number of council seats to be reserved for non-white minority students, the suggestion was made that council members seemed to be "rearranging deck chairs on the Titanic."

This statement seems to me to sum up the general theme of the first four November sessions of the council. There was constant rearranging of the Special Panels Report on Student Participation in Academic Government and by the time it was done, the deck chairs were in much worse position than when they started.

Now the deliberation has subsided. The chairs have been arranged to suit the crew and the Titanic headed for that inevitable iceberg, the Academic Senate.

On deck we find most of the chairs occupied by council members clutching their inflatable life rafts and waiting for the appearance of the iceberg. We also find 31 additional chairs on deck and we understand that the crew has expanded by that amount. But where are the new additions? They are below deck! Yes, the crew of the Academic Council has been expanded by 31 severely limited students.

Inconsistencies

The council seems to me to be plagued by inconsistencies.

First, the council appointed a special panel to develop a report which would rework the points that led to senate rejection last spring. After the panel labored for nearly a month consulting with various people and rewriting the report so it might have a chance in the senate, the council tore it to a point of near nonrecognition.

Another POW rescue mission that failed.

The Little Red Creek fiasco

WASHINGTON — "I've got it! I've got it!" Sam Craftsman yelled as he rushed into the office of Darryl Kleigfoot, the head of Metro-Mogul studios.

"What have you got?" Kleigfoot said, slightly annoyed.

"An idea for a new cowboy picture. It's the greatest thing since 'How the West Was Won.'"

"All right, but give it to me fast." "I was reading a history book the other night and discovered that President Rutherford B. Hayes was very disturbed because a bunch of Apache Indians were holding several American soldiers as prisoners. So he ordered his secretary of war, Alexander Ramsey, to get a rescue operation under way."

"Continue," said Kleigfoot.

"Can't you just see it as a film, Chief? We get John Wayne to play the colonel of the U.S. cavalry and Frank Sinatra as his cocky first sergeant."

"The secretary of war, played by Ronald Reagan, calls in Wayne and Sinatra and tells them he wants them to organize an expedition to go into Apache country and rescue the American prisoners. He tells them that unimpeachable intelligence sources indicate that the Apaches are holding the men at Little Red Creek and the President says they can have anything they want as long as they get the men released."

"Wayne and Sinatra go back to Fort Frontier and, with the aid of captured maps, build an entire replica of the Indian village of Little Red Creek."

"Then, with a hand-picked crew of cavalrymen, they rehearse the attack on Little Red Creek. For three months they go over every detail."

"Come on, come on, get on with it," Kleigfoot said angrily.

"All right. The secretary of war reports to President Hayes that everything is in order and so President Hayes writes him a note and says 'Proceed as planned.'"

"Wayne is notified and he orders all his men to mount. They ride off into Apache country."

"Good," the studio head said. "The plan is to attack at night so the Apaches will be surprised. So they wait until midnight, and then, firing all their guns, they ride into the sleeping village of Little Red Creek."

"It should make a good fight scene," Kleigfoot said.

"Wrong, Chief," Craftsman says. "There's no one in the village. The soldiers go from one tepee to another and find they're all empty."

"Oh, my God," said Kleigfoot. "Apparently, the intelligence was wrong or else the Apaches were tipped off and moved out."

"So what happens?" Kleigfoot said. "The cavalrymen ride back to Washington, D.C., where the secretary of war calls a press conference and introduces Wayne and Sinatra to the reporters."

"The secretary of war calls it one of the most successful operations against the Apaches in military history. It was not only pulled off with precision, but did not produce one single casualty. The only way they could have improved on it was if they had found the prisoners."

"President Rutherford B. Hayes sends his personal congratulations to Wayne and tells his press secretary to announce that this should be a lesson to the Apaches once and for all."

"We end the film with the secretary of war awarding Wayne a medal and Sinatra getting the girl."

"I don't know, Sam. There's something wrong with the story. Don't you think the public will be let down a little at the end, when the cavalry finds nobody there?" Craftsman said, "I don't see why."

OUR READERS' MIND

'U' ignores important fact: parking

To the Editor:

In the Nov. 23, 1970 issue of the State News there appeared an article discussing the towing of cars from the east complex area. The sad part of this is the fact that with the approach of winter the problem is going to get worse rather than better.

Ironically enough, as the University apparently tries to improve the reputation of residence halls and its attempts to lure people back to the dorms, they are ignoring one important factor. Parking!

As a resident of Hubbard Hall I am elated if I get a parking place in the complex on a weekend. With the showing of movies in Conrad and the abundance of students owning cars, the lack of parking facilities is atrocious. Even after double parking in front of the hall for a couple of minutes to let your date off so at least she won't have to walk, there is nothing like a ten minute stroll from X lot in sub-zero weather with a 30 mph wind blowing you off the sidewalk.

The most aggravating part of this entire situation is the availability of potential parking spaces in close proximity to the dorm. The size of the Akers parking bay could easily be made half again as large, and the parking at Fee could be easily double if not tripled.

Until the University wakes up and does something to improve living conditions on campus they are going to continue losing thousands of students to the more up-to-date apartments. Granted, gripes about parking, food service, open housing regulations etc. are relatively petty, but the building up of a number of small things can cause as much dissatisfaction as one large problem. Whoever it is out there that makes this University work, (students, faculty, or trustees?) let's start getting some of the things done that the students want. After all, who is this University here for.

Coalition to confer in Chicago

The National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC) will hold its national convention Friday through Sunday at the Packing House Labor Center in Chicago.

NPAC, the sponsor of antiwar referendums in Massachusetts, Detroit and San Francisco, is cohosting the convention with the Teamsters Union and the Amalgamated Meat Cutters Union.

Speakers at Friday's meeting will include Harold Gibbons, international vice president of the Teamsters; Patrick Gorman, international secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters; comedian Dick Gregory; and the Rev. Charles Coen of the Cairo, Ill. Black United Front; Carol Litman of the Student Mobilization Committee; Mike Fowler, University of Chicago student body president, and one of the 25 Kent State University students under indictment in connection with last spring's disturbances on that campus.

A business session will be held Saturday to determine the course of NPAC's spring actions. There will be workshops Saturday night and Sunday.

Mike Kelly, a member of the NPAC conference staff, said that between 1,200 and 1,500 delegates are expected to attend the three-day session.

PROSECUTOR REVEALS

Tip given in girl's death

A Lansing man told Ingham County prosecutors he thought he saw Marie Jackson riding in an automobile in Lansing the night before her body was found Nov. 21 in a pine grove by MSU.

Raymond L. Scodeller, Ingham County prosecuting attorney, said at a news conference Wednesday that the information was obtained last week from a man who in the past dated the 18-year-old Lansing girl.

Release of the information was delayed until prosecutors confirmed the tip in an interview with the man Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Jackson's near-nude body was discovered by a man looking for a hunting site. Coroner Jack Holmes said the body showed no evidence of being beaten or sexually assaulted.

Miss Jackson is believed to have been a passenger in a white or tan, two-door Chevrolet Impala which may have had an out-of-state license.

The man said the vehicle had wide oval black-wall tires mounted on magnesium rims, each with three gray spokes, a chrome strip around the outside rim, and a chrome center hub.

The vehicle was observed heading east on Saginaw Street between Washington and Cedar Streets on November 20, the man said.

The informant said the driver of the car appeared to be a 25-year-old white male wearing a blue-colored bush jacket.

Intraparty clash develops in Senate over SST funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spirited debate highlighted by an intraparty clash erupted in the Senate Wednesday as it moved close to a vote on the administration's request for funds to develop the supersonic air transport. The showdown is expected today or Friday.

The debate, mainly between Republican Sens. Charles Percy of Illinois and Barry Goldwater of Arizona, broke out even before the Senate began formal consideration of the Dept. of Transportation appropriation bill containing $290 million for the SST.

In an effort to ease fears of uncommitted senators, one of the SST's leading backers, Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., sought early consideration of a bill barring any civilian flights at boom-producing speed over the United States.

Magnuson and his fellow Washington Democrat, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, are leading the fight for the SST. The unemployment-plagued Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., will do most of the work on the proposed two prototype models of the plane.

Approval of the funds was predicted by Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. "I would think there are probably enough votes to pass it," he told reporters.

But Percy said if the United States goes ahead with the SST "we'll be the prize, biggest polluter in the world."

Goldwater, however, defended the project as vital to U.S. world leadership in the aviation industry.

If it is beaten, he contended, "everyone in this chamber will live to regret it, having denied this nation continued leadership in the one industry in which we still maintain leadership."

William Proxmire, D-Wis., a leader of the anti-SST forces, called it a "Heads I win, tails you lose," proposition for the aircraft industry, claiming that at best the federal government will get a return of 4½ to 6 percent on its investment, less than the interest it is paying to borrow funds for it now.

POLICE BRIEFS

MSU police reported Wednesday they received three complaints this week of property stolen from students living in residence halls.

The breaking and entering incidents occurred in East Holden and Emmons Halls. Police said the students' room door was probably left unlocked in each incident.

A theft of record albums and a class ring worth $75 reportedly occurred about 12:40 p.m. Monday in East Holden Hall. No arrest has been made.

Police are investigating the theft of $18 taken Tuesday between 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. from a student's wallet in Emmons Hall. Police have a description of a person seen leaving the room during that time.

Also in Emmons Hall, a student reported Tuesday someone stole his wallet and the money valued at $20. Police have no suspects in the incident.

In addition to the thefts, police are investigating complaints of larceny from a vehicle and of a check forgery.

A tape deck and three tapes were reported stolen between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday from a student's car parked in the service drive north of Yakeley Hall. Police said they have no leads on the incident.

Another student told police Monday his scholarship check worth $100 has apparently been stolen from his room and cashed by someone else at the Administration Bldg. Police have no suspects.

PAC's 'Royal Hunt' -- bold, spectacular

Peter Shaffer's, "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," imported from London to Broadway in 1965, is a dazzling spectacular. Currently playing in Fairchild Theater, this latest Performing Arts Company effort, directed by Peter Landry, instructor in the Dept. of Theater, is bold, innovative, striking and superbly acted.

"Royal Hunt" is a reenactment of the rape of the Inca civilization by Francisco Pizarro and his men in the 16th century, in the author's words, "the active iron of Spain against the passive feathers of Peru."

It is the conquest and pillage by 167 soldiers of the cross and sword of an empire of 24 million in the name of Charles V, Christ, Pizarro's ego and greed.

According to Shaffer, his work is "a play about a man's search for immortality. It is his private tormented and lonely journey that I want most actively to chart."

"Royal Hunt" is also a play which exposes hypocrisy in the church and concentrates on the faith of the Inca and the lack of faith of the European.

The action takes place as a series of flashbacks narrated by the sole survivor of Pizarro's expedition, Martin Ruiz, who acts as the play's conscience. Pizarro, who was born a bastard and started life as a pigherder, now has the power and capability to carve for himself a place in history.

He "despises the keeping and loathes the losing" and functions between these two hates. Pizarro captures Atahualpa, the chief of the Incas, and the "Son of the Sun," also a bastard.

Atahualpa thinks Pizarro to be another god and expects benediction from him. Instead, he is abducted and the price of his freedom, which subsequently is denied him, is the filling of the royal chamber with gold for Pizarro and his men.

Although Pizarro holds Atahualpa by physical means, the situation is the opposite spiritually.

The church and the hypocrisy of religion are under constant attack. The cross is used as a weapon to kill innocent people, and death decrees are pronounced on the pagans without the slightest hesitation. Two priests accompany Pizarro as part of the white man's burden, but they are going to get a good share of the booty.

Shaffer's play is engrossing, and Peter Landry's direction is marvelous. Both have made full use of "theatrical license."

Irena Narell, who has done research on Pizarro and Atahualpa explains that "Royal Hunt" is not entirely accurate historically, as Pizarro never befriended Atahualpa nor was the latter so pure and blameless as he is portrayed.

PANORAMA: THEATRE

"He did not have the stature of his illustrious ancestors, and that is why the Inca civilization collapsed," she said.

At times the play is hard to believe. We are expected to swallow the fact that 3,000 Incas were massacred in less than four minutes by a handful of men.

Also, communication between Pizarro and Atahualpa is sometimes incredible. In one instance an interpreter is needed and a few minutes later the two are conversing like old friends, and a bit later the interpreter is there again.

However, these faults do not subtract from the total effect of the play. Effective use is made of the soundtrack from "Fellini Satyricon," and there is stunning and artful use of nudity, which is a first on the MSU stage. Costumes and set by Gretel Stensrud, instructor in theater, were magnificent.

Louis Bauer, East Lansing junior, in his exquisite interpretation of Atahualpa, created one of the most memorable performances at MSU in recent years.

Also excellent was John Goodlin, East Lansing graduate student, as Pizarro, and Frank Krenz, Carson City freshman, as Fray Valverde.

Admirable support was given by Eric Tull Metuchen, N.J. sophomore, as young Martin, Dana Charette, East Lansing junior, as old Martin, and the rest of the cast.

"Royal Hunt" will be performed through Sunday at 8 p.m. in Fairchild Theater. In spite of its few weaknesses, the play is a memorable occasion and experience. Tickets are $2.

Student makes armor quicker

By KENNETH STERN
State News Reviewer

Making armor and duplicating ornament for the stage has traditionally been a laborious and time-consuming task, not to say expensive, and necessitated either many hours of human labor or the out-right rental of the material.

Chuck Leibel, East Lansing

graduate student and theater technician for the Performing Arts Company, is in charge of making armor for the current production of "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," and has found an inexpensive and quick way of making armor.

His objective, he said, is to make an inexpensive machine capable of turning out large quantities of the materials with enough scope so that many different applications could be found for it in the MSU theater department.

Leibel built a vacuum-forming device out of an old Hoover vacuum cleaner and brooder lamps. Vacuum forming is one of several techniques used in forming rigid plastic vinyl sheets into complex shapes. This allows innumerable copies of intricate molds or actual original pieces to be made very quickly.

The process of vacuum forming began with the ancient Egyptians several thousand years before Christ. They used slaves to hold the inside layers of tortoise shells, a natural plastic, over fires and then formed it over molds by use of a bellows.

Leibel went to Tobin Lake Scene Studios, where Charles Muntz has built an elaborate array of equipment for vacuum forming plastic for commercial purposes. His research in building the equipment had taken several years and the end result cost several thousand dollars.

However, Leibel said his type of machine would have been economically prohibitive for college and community theaters concerned with cutting costs. An ingenious and simple solution was developed. By making a heating unit from 250 watt infrared brooder lamps, the kind used in raising chickens, Leibel and his associates were able to heat styrene plastic sheets and then draw the heated plastic over a mold to make the armor for PAC's current production.

By using an old Hoover vacuum cleaner, air is driven out from beneath the mold, causing air pressure to force the plastic tightly down on and around the mold. The styrene cools in about 10 seconds, retaining the impression of the mold.

Using this system, it was possible to have made all the necessary ten sets of armor for the show in one day, at a cost of less than one-third of the price if the armor was made with more conventional materials.

Another advantage is that the pieces retain a quite metallic appearance and texture when painted.

"It makes making armor as easy as cleaning your rug," Leibel said.

Art display, sale presented at mall

MSU art students will present an art show and sale Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Meridian Mall.

The show is sponsored by the Student Advisory Committee (SAC) of the dept. of art and will feature paintings, prints, photography, ceramics and jewelry.

According to Kathy Kobylarz, Warren junior, chairman of SAC, the art show was formerly an annual student-faculty project held at Kresge Art Center. However, due to low sales the show was moved this year to the Meridian Mall.

The art show will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

URBAN SOCIOLOGY

Class to focus on Detroit

By MICHAEL FOX
State News Staff Writer

The Dept. of Sociology's Urban Sociology 429 course will be offered winter term with a special focus on the city of Detroit, with Mel J. Ravitz, current president of the Detroit Common Council, serving as the main instructor.

Ravitz will teach the initial session in each two or three week unit of the course, with other civic leaders from Detroit to handle areas in which they are particularly knowledgeable.

The course runs for two terms, with four credits offered each term. Enrollment in spring term requires enrollment in the course winter term. The prerequisite is Sociology 241, "Introduction to Sociology."

He said the course is being offered for two terms because the terms are so short and because Ravitz was able to work both terms. Ravitz, a professor of sociology at Wayne State University in Detroit, has served as a councilman for several years and has been acting mayor of the city.

Scheduled for 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with the Thursday night sessions the discussion periods led by four teaching assistants. Faunce said visitors would be welcome to sit in on a lecture.

"Learning from people who have had experience working in that area will probably be more interesting," Faunce said. Grades would be assigned for winter term, but "we hope people who come in the first term will stay all the way through," he said.

Units to be considered winter term include "An Overview of the Contemporary Urban Condition," "Urban Education: Today and Tomorrow," "Changing Technology: Work and Leisure," and "Renewing Our Environment: Pollution of Land, Water, and Air."

Trucks to collect glass containers

A Saturday glass collective drive, co-sponsored by Students for Environmental Quality (E-QUAL) and the Greater Lansing Community Organization (GLCO), will be held on campus through truck pick-ups at each residence hall.

Off-campus residents may deposit glass at four area shopping centers: Meridian Mall, Lansing Mall, Frandor and the Meijers South Pennsylvania Ave.

Hice said volunteers are needed and may contact the E-QUAL office in 4B Student Services Bldg.

Collection trucks will stop at campus locations at the following times:

10 a.m., Spartan Village; 10:30 a.m. Holden; 10:45 a.m., Wilson; 11 a.m. Wonders; 11:15 a.m. Case; 11:30 a.m.,

Lansing grandfather plays Santa Claus all year long

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Twelve years ago, retired grocery store owner, Reuben J. Schaeffel of Lansing wondered what he could do to make life brighter for the needy children who lived in his neighborhood.

So his wife suggested that he use his newly found spare time and his carpentry skills to make toys for the children. And that's been his full-time job ever since.

Schaeffel, now 82, made 25 toys that first year. His output has climbed each year and he has 800 toys ready for Christmas this year.

"I just started doing it 12 years ago and never stopped," said the silver-haired great-grandfather. "I love children — all ages."

Money and materials for the toys are provided by local volunteer groups and area merchants, although Schaeffel supplies his own if he has a shortage.

In recent years, Schaeffel's toys have been distributed to children from low-income families by the Toys for Tots program sponsored by the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve.

Schaeffel begins his daily Santa Claus operation in his garage workshop in the early afternoon and works through the evening. A daughter who lives at home helps out with the painting.

Throughout the year, Schaeffel also receives discarded toys. He tries to fix them up, but if they are beyond repair he saves the parts for new toys.

Although he doesn't seek recognition for his efforts, the county Bar Association last year awarded Schaeffel its Liberty Bell Award for outstanding community service.

Poll finds legal pot favored

Copyright 1970, Unidex Corp.

In the eyes of the nation's college students, a real and dramatic difference exists between smoking marijuana and using heroin, LSD or other more powerful drugs.

A clear majority of students polled in a recent national survey favored the legalization of marijuana while at the same time, only one student in 20 endorsed the legalization of heroin or LSD.

Similarly, though less than a third of the collegians called for harsher penalties for persons convicted of selling marijuana, over two thirds of the students voted for stiffer sentences for those convicted of selling "hard" drugs.

Interviewers surveyed 1,190 students at 47 representative colleges and universities across the country. Interviewing was conducted by telephone the week ending Nov. 7.

In determining opinions on campus concerning marijuana, interviewers asked: "Do you feel the use of marijuana should or should not be legalized?"

The students answered:

marijuana should be legalized	56.6%
marijuana should not be legalized	36.5%
no opinion	6.9%

However, when the students were asked their opinions about other drugs, a different attitude prevailed. Both heroin (and related opium derivatives) and LSD (along with other "synthetic" drugs) were condemned by an overwhelming majority of students.

Heroin and drugs similar to heroin were rejected by a somewhat greater margin than were LSD and the new generation of manufactured drugs.

The questions and their responses on campus are presented below:

"Would you say the use of drugs such as heroin and other opium derivatives should or should not be legalized?"

Do you feel that drugs such as LSD, "speed" and other synthetic drugs should or should not be legalized?"

	Heroin and other opiates	LSD, "speed" and synthetic drugs should be legalized	4.6%	8.3%
should not be legalized	93.2%	88.6%
no opinion	2.2%	3.1%

Student attitudes toward penalties meted out by courts to persons convicted of selling drugs followed the same pattern as their ideas about legalizing them, with the exception that some students felt that laws and penalties already on the books are adequate. The students were asked:

"Would you favor or disfavor harsher penalties for persons convicted of selling marijuana?"

would favor harsher penalties	32.0%
would disfavor harsher penalties	61.6%
no opinion	6.4%

When asked about penalties for those convicted of selling other drugs, the number of students in favor of tougher sentences more than doubled:

"Would you favor or disfavor harsher penalties for persons convicted of selling other illegal drugs?"

favor harsher penalties	68.4%
disfavor harsher penalties	24.9%
no opinion	6.7%

No significant correlations were found on the basis of sex, except that college males favored legalizing marijuana slightly more than did females.

IFC takes action to rectify discontent among members

By DONNA WILBURN
State News Staff Writer

The writing of a new constitution and the ousting of fall term officers are indications that Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) has taken action to alleviate discontent among its members.

Joseph Ditzhazy, Northville junior and co-ordinator of IFC's new efforts, said the action evolved through discussion among four houses that continued to attend IFC meetings.

"No policy was established in the old constitution to eliminate it—but we decided many aspects were thoroughly out-dated," Ditzhazy explained.

"In addition, we asked the former officers to resign, rather than begin impeachment proceedings."

The new co-ordinator said previous officials were requested to resign because of a lack of substantial progress over the term and a lack of effective action.

Thirteen out of 32 fraternity houses were represented Nov. 24 when delegates unanimously ratified a new constitution and former IFC officers relinquished their positions.

The new constitution is to be circulated among the remaining houses before a formal vote is taken soon.

"Those houses that are interested will voice an opinion during the final voting," Ditzhazy stated. "A nonresponse will be counted as an affirmative vote."

Ditzhazy said interim officers elected by the 13 represented houses are now functioning as the co-ordinators of IFC, and when the new constitution is ratified, these people will then become the permanent officials.

"If the constitution and new officers are accepted, my fraternity (Beta Theta Pi) and other houses will take action to withdraw from IFC—even if it means student judiciary hearings," Ditzhazy asserted.

The newly formulated IFC constitution provides for reforms in several areas:

The elimination of a $5 charge for registering pledges. In addition, IFC dues will be based on $2 per student or $50 per house, whichever is lower.

• IFC will move from a policing agency and provide more leeway in areas of rush regulations and social policies.

• Fewer representatives will be needed to make rules and conduct IFC business. A minimum of four persons will be able to make changes.

• The structure of the group will be set up like the federal government. In addition to the IFC officers, two governing bodies will be operating as a check and balance system.

The new constitution also provides: • A president's council, to be composed of the presidents of each fraternity. It will function as a legislative as well as an advisory body.

• An assembly will be made up of representatives from each house and will vote and pass laws to keep IFC operating on a day-to-day basis.

Objectives for winter term have also been determined by the acting coordinators.

Ditzhazy explained that at present no one knows the financial standing of IFC, but that the debt is about $1,500 to $2,500.

Therefore, he said, one of the primary concerns is to pay off the debt.

After re-evaluating IFC's position with Panhellenic Council it was decided to allow the fraternities the option of continuing relations with the sorority system.

Israel seminar

Gidon Sde-Or, asst. Midwest director of the Israel government Tourist Office, speaks to students attending a conference on Israel and prepares to show them a short travel film on Israel.

State News Staff Writer

Israel is "a small country with astonishing complexities," Lee Shulman, professor of medical education and research development, told a conference on Israel Tuesday.

"I found after I'd been in Israel three weeks that I knew everything about the country," Shulman said. "But the longer I stayed, the more confused I became."

Shulman, who recently spent a year of sabbatical leave in Israel, addressed a conference on "Israel and You, Now." The conference, sponsored by Students for Israel, provided information on Israel-related programs for students and faculty.

Shulman said the kibbutz, found only in Israel, is a fascinating and uncharacteristic institution in Israel.

"The kibbutz is a relatively small institution in Israel," he said. "Although there are several hundred kibbutzim, they contain only 4 per cent of the population."

"The fascinating thing about the kibbutz is that its influence has been far out of proportion to its population."

Shulman said that there is no such thing as a characteristic kibbutz, since they range from being extremely orthodox to non-religious. Kibbutzim are found in an "incredible variety of locations in Israel," he said.

"The kibbutz is well worth consideration as a unique experience," he said.

Shulman said he found Israeli students very different from American students.

"First of all, they're older," he said. "The men have spent three years in the armed services, and the women 20 months. Then they have a way of disappearing for 40 days during the school year, to satisfy the yearly requirement for active service in the army."

Shulman said Israeli students rarely had a "free ride" in college, and most held jobs while in school.

"Israeli students are very serious," he said. "They usually carry nine or ten year-long courses simultaneously, with all exams in June."

Shulman said he did not find the tension in Israel that he had expected.

"I felt much more tension vicariously reading about American problems than I did about Israeli problems," he said.

"The tensions there are of a different kind — a bitterness about the Swissair incident and the machine-gunning of the school bus, the sorrow of parents who have lost a son."

Shulman's speech was followed by a brief presentation by Gidon Sde-Or, asst. Midwest director of the Israel Government Tourist Office.

After a film on Israel, approximately 100 participants in the conference split up into six workshops, on kibbutz living, study programs, tourism opportunities, job opportunities, immigration and campus activities.

Further information about any of the programs may be obtained from Hovav Talpax, coordinator of Students for Israel.

Persian dinner at Owen features Far East cuisine

For most students who miss home cooking, their desires are quickly satisfied by going home for Sunday dinner or asking mom to send a care package. But what if Mom lives in Persia?

To meet the needs of foreign residents and those who think exotic cuisine is better than mom's pot roast, Owen Graduate Center will sponsor candlelight international dinner tonight.

The dinner, a cooperative effort of the Owen Graduate Center food committee and a Persian foreign students group, will feature a la carte delights from far-off Persia.

Among the courses designed to please the Persian palate is cutlet a la sousan, which is a loaf of potatoes, eggs, onion and ground chuck, exotically seasoned with saffron and cinnamon and drenched with tomato sauce.

The cafeteria has also been alerted to implement their best recipes for median meatballs, Persian rice and salad Tehran.

Dessert will include Kurdish cookies and Xerxes delight, a mixture of rice, almonds and sugar with maple syrup.

The price of most of the food offerings will be kept between $1 and $2, Eugene Kales, chairman of the Owen food committee and dinner coordinator said.

Statement Ending The Fall Term, 1970

Moratorium On Transfers To Teacher Training Programs

(The following statement was approved by the University Curriculum Committee on November 19, 1970.)

Obligations to students presently enrolled at the University are of paramount importance. Simultaneously, a balance between numbers of students and available faculty resources necessary to the maintenance of a quality program must be considered. The schedule below is one factor in the attempt to balance these two considerations.

OPEN PERIOD FOR TRANSFER TO TEACHER TRAINING PROGRAMS January 11 - February 5, 1971

Transfers from other colleges within the University will be accepted during this open period. To be eligible for transfer the student must not have completed the bachelor's degree.

Implementation Steps

1. Each student wishing to transfer will first report to the Undergraduate Student Advisement Office, 134 Erickson Hall, where he will be given clearance to process his transfer. (Juniors and seniors must bring their folders from the office of their Assistant Dean. This is necessary in order to check eligibility for dual enrollment in the College of Education.) This will make possible the solicitation of accurate data from each student regarding the exact term he wishes to enroll for the required courses in the Education sequence. A place will then be reserved for him that term and that term only. Changes in schedule will have to be arranged in advance in the Advisement Center of the College of Education. This will make possible accurate predictions of enrollments in Education courses and careful planning for the instruction of these students.

2. Enrollments in the required Education sequence for Winter Term, 1971, and thereafter, will be open only to those students who have been officially admitted to teacher preparation programs and are so coded. Exceptional cases meriting deviations from this requirement will be handled through the Undergraduate Student Affairs Office of the College of Education.

3. Transfer students from other majors in the University will not be accepted after February 5, 1971 until October, 1971 when another opportunity for transfers will be made available. At that time, a total admission limit will have been agreed upon, the number of vacancies for students known, and admission criteria established.

Exceptions to this policy during this February to October period will be dealt with by the Director of Undergraduate Student Affairs of the College.

Students accepted as incoming freshman or transfer students for Winter, Spring, Summer and Fall, 1971, with a declared major in Education will be accepted automatically as a part of the group guaranteed admission to Teacher Education Programs in October, 1971.

4. A limited number of transfers from other curricula within the University will be permitted in January, 1972 and April, 1972. The numbers accepted will depend upon attrition from the group admitted in October for the 1971-72 school year.

5. The Education Study Committee has proposed that for students entering the University in the Fall of 1972 and thereafter, admissions counselors representing the University indicate to incoming freshman students that admission to teacher education programs will take place at the end of their freshman year (May, 1973). Applications for admission to teacher education from students wishing to transfer from other institutions to MSU will be considered at the same time they are admitted to the University. Criteria for selection will be spelled out by this time, and selection procedures agreed upon and implemented.

Belt-tightening necessary for survival of athletics

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

Worsening financial situations have become a way of life for college athletic departments, but numerous solutions have been offered in recent months and some may be acted on in the near future.

Revenues have leveled off and costs have kept rising, so the natural thing for departments to do would be to reverse the expenditure club and try to find new sources of revenue.

One of the most profitable sources of new income throughout the nation has been the 11th football game, which the Big Ten approved recently for the 1971 season, with the stipulation that the new opponent be a conference foe. MSU has drawn Illinois as its opening game opponent in this extra game, so a game next year at Illinois could be profitable, if fans in Champaign decide to take a look at their new coach and a much-improved team.

At MSU, added revenue from other sports could help ease the money problems. MSU students, unlike those at other Big Ten schools, do not pay to see a basketball game in Jenison Fieldhouse, while students are only charged $.25 for admission to the popular hockey contests.

Student opposition forced an end to plans for an all-events building here last year, a building which could have increased athletic revenue through charges for basketball games.

Another way to raise athletic department income at MSU would be through an increase in student football ticket prices. At $2, students are seeing Spartan football for $4 less than the regular price paid by the general public. But the move to $2 was made only a few years ago and athletic officials would be reluctant to increase the price again.

Many proposals have been made for professional football offering additional incentives. Laetz said various areas of the nation have become known for their excellence in different sports and may give scholarships on that basis. For instance, a tennis player might be able to colleges, has taken steps to help its members cut costs.

Recruiting has been limited, both with numbers of visits a coach may take to visit a prospective athlete and a prospect may make to any one campus. No longer is the high school coach allowed to travel with his boy for a full paid visit. This has helped cut costs, but recruiting still is expensive. Football recruiting alone at MSU costs over $17,000 a year.

Transportation costs also are climbing and MSU teams will travel by bus, train and car this year as Laetz tries to fight the high cost of travel. No longer are the university's athletic squads eligible for the 20 per cent discount on travel for non-profit organizations.

It all boils down to trouble with money. MSU is in better shape than most schools, but the financial problem in the athletic department here is still greater than it has ever been.

"We're still surviving and we'll continue to survive. We'll continue to seek new means of revenue but in the meantime we'll just have to tighten our belts."

And as long as football attendance stays high, MSU will be in the black. But when that goes bad, then the worried looks will appear, because football is the name of the financial game.

—MSU Athletic Business Manager John Laetz

contests in college owned structures, but the Big Ten has repeatedly refused its members permission to lease or rent to the pro teams on Sundays. One can't help but wonder about the revenue MSU would get from a Sunday game between, for instance, the Lions and the Bears.

So it seems the athletic department is stymied on any plans for increasing income, apart from any added revenue which may come from the extra football game. A reduction in expenditures has thus become a necessary and major part of the solution of financial problems.

A cut in athletic scholarships, technically known as grants-in-aid and generally called tenders, has become a necessity at most schools, including MSU. But this step has not been enough in many cases because smaller schools have been outclassed in recruiting by larger schools with huge budgets.

As a result something more drastic may become necessary. Athletic Business Manager John Laetz said the problem has become acute with many schools seeking the talented athlete and get a scholarship only in the South or Southern California. A golfer may have to go to Texas or Florida. A hockey player may have to look in the far North for a tender, while a gymnast may look to the Big Ten and a wrestler to Oklahoma.

These areas are rather well established now and Laetz noted it would be no great problem for something like this to happen. Schools are unwilling today to spend money on scholarships for sports with no tradition of excellence or chance for much success.

One other solution in the grant-in-aid area, Laetz said, would be the elimination of athletic scholarships. If this were universal, then schools would have to sell themselves, their coaches and their programs to the prospective athlete and would not have to engage in competitive bidding to snare an athlete.

For many years the situation was just this and scholarships were awarded simply on the basis of financial need. But although MSU spends over $500,000 each year on athletic scholarships, it would be difficult to convince MSU or any other school to abandon its grant-in-aid program unless all other schools were willing to do so.

Bouncing Brian

Spartan forward Brian Breslin (42, white) goes up for a shot against Northern Illinois Tuesday night, while Brad VanPelt (10) waits for a possible rebound. The Spartans, who lost this game, 76-75, meet Toledo Saturday.

'S' lack of board strength evident in opening loss

By JOHN VIGES
State News Sports Writer

If MSU is going to win their fair share of basketball games this season they are going to have to improve in the area that hurt them so much in their 76-75 loss to Northern Illinois Tuesday night, rebounding.

The problem is not new for Spartan Coach Gus Ganakas. He has known it would be there since the beginning of fall practice. Although the Spartans have fair height, they do not have the brawn that is needed underneath the boards.

This was all too obvious to Ganakas Tuesday as the Huskies pulled down 48 rebounds while the Spartans could only manage 38.

"A difference of seven rebounds may not sound like a lot," a glum Ganakas said Wednesday, "but it makes a big difference in the play of the game. They were able to get off more than one shot from underneath the basket while we were often limited to one."

One advantage that helped NIU was their experience. Their entire forecourt played together last season and they knew how to position themselves in relation to the basket, their teammates and the MSU players.

The Spartans need experience and they are going to have to work hard on their rebounding. Since Ganakas can not trade for new players or put more beef on the ones he has he must get them to improve their positioning under the boards.

"I think we can do a better job on rebounding," Ganakas said, but we are going to have to improve our technique. We've got to work on boxing out the other man and getting the right position. We must be conscious that we are not a brawny team."

Ron Gutkowski and Brian Breslin led the Spartans with nine rebounds apiece but both were four behind NIU's 6-7 substitute Dennis Taylor and one rebound shy of Jerry Zielinski. Rudy Benjamin pulled in a surprising eight rebounds from his guard position and center Bill Kilgore had seven.

Another facet of the game that didn't go as planned for the Spartans was their play as a unit.

Ganakas was disappointed that they did not play well together, especially since this is what he has stressed in practice sessions.

A press by the NIU guards, something which is hard to prepare for early in the season, hampered MSU's guards throughout the night and it upset the tempo of the Spartan offense.

With MSU's guards bottled up by the NIU press they could not move the ball as effectively as they wanted to and MSU had trouble getting a man in the clear for a shot.

A collapsing zone defense by the Huskies kept the Spartans outside most of the game. Kilgore had trouble even getting the ball and the Spartan sophomore finished the game with only two shots at the basket.

The two Spartan forwards also had trouble breaching the NIU zone. Most of Gutkowski's baskets were from over 10 feet away Breslin hit on only two shots from inside.

The Spartans are not a fast break team and much of their future success, or lack of it, will depend on whether they can get the ball to their men on the front line for the close in shot. To do this they will "need more men in motion and more motion of the ball" according to Ganakas.

Things were not all bad for MSU. Ganakas was pleased with the Spartans' defense. He felt that they did a good job of shutting off the Husky fast break and he was pleased with the 3-2 zone defense the Spartans used in the second half.

"Our defense did a fine job," Ganakas said. "Aside from the defensive rebounding I was pleased. The zone worked well and we'll continue to alternate between that and a man-to-man to keep the other team off balance."

Another good point for the Spartans was the play of senior guard Paul Dean. Dean hit on all three shots that he took, played a good defensive game and he handled the ball well on offense.

Big Ten teams split eight non-conference games Tuesday as conference teams saw their first competition of the season.

The Big Ten winners were: Illinois (113-102 over Butler), Wisconsin (102-84 over Eastern Illinois), Minnesota (85-61 over North Dakota) and Indiana (99-82 over Eastern Michigan).

In addition to MSU the Big Ten teams that dropped their openers were: Purdue (84-82 to Indiana State), Michigan (94-81 to Notre Dame) and Northwestern (115-100 to Kentucky).

9 TEAMS HERE SATURDAY

'S' gymnasts hold meet

The University of Michigan, present NCAA gymnastics champion, will be out to prove that their prestigious title is no fluke this Saturday in the second annual Big Ten Invitational Gymnastics Championships hosted by the Spartan Gym team and Coach George Szypula.

The Wolverines will join MSU, five other Big Ten schools, and two other Michigan universities not affiliated with the Big Ten.

Western and Eastern Michigan Universities will infiltrate the ranks of the until now all - Big Ten meet. Wisconsin will be the only league team that will not be represented, while Purdue and Northwestern do not carry gymnastics as a varsity sport.

The preliminaries will start at 11 a.m. in Jenison Fieldhouse, with the finals at 7:30 p.m.

Students and children will be charged a fee of $1 for the finals.

MSU will rely on their impressive threesome of Charley Morris, Mickey Uram and Sophomore Randy Balhorn in their bid for an upset.

Morris is a handicapped junior who managed to overcome his setbacks in becoming the National AAU champion in side horse competition last spring. Morris is also very effective on the parallel bars and rings.

Senior captain Uram is also a three - way threat on the horizontal and parallel bars and rings, while Balhorn is Szypula's most outstanding all - around performer.

Although those three hold the best chances for individual honors, Szypula will be relying heavily on depth for any team honors his squad might acquire in the nine - team tournament.

Dave Ziegert, specializing in floor exercise, and all - around performers Ken Factor, Fred Zafram and Al Beaudet will likewise carry a heavy load for the Spartans.

Other competing Spartans will be Paul Arnold, Dan Balogh, Larry Lad, Dick Manning, Mike Mantos and Don Waybright in the meet.

Youth Club

in dual meet

The Spartan Youth Gymnastics Club, made up of talented girls from the area, will meet the Champagne (Illinois) Olympians in a dual meet as a prelude to the Big Ten Invitational at 7:30 p.m. Friday night in Jenison Fieldhouse.

The Spartan Youth Club, Midwest Open Champions, won last year in the battle between the two, but the Olympians also pride in an impressive group.

14 - year old Theresa Felicia of the Olympians and Cherry Almy of the Spartans should be the two to watch in the meet, which will cost $1 for adults and $.50 for students and children.

Duffett closes college career

stands out with the names of recent day college stars who have successfully made the transition to professional hockey.

One of the defensemen is a former University of Denver player, Keith Magnuson, who now stars as a blue liner for the Chicago Black Hawks. Heading the list of forwards is a Michigan Tech alumnus, Al Karlander, who spends his winters patrolling the center ice zone for the Detroit Red Wings.

One of the members of that honor roll seems to have been overlooked: a player who fought his way to the top at hockey's toughest position and braved the offensive thrusts of college hockey's biggest name scorers. His name: Rick Duffett, then a sophomore goaltender for MSU.

That year, Duffett posted a 2.7 goals against average and turned aside an average of 30 shots a game.

Last season, added pressure was dealt to Duffett, as he was forced to play the majority of the year without an experienced back-up netminder, in addition to the chore of defending his All-America laurels.

As a result, the Kirkland Lake, Ont. senior had his goals against average climb to 4.1, as well as having to face 250 more shots on net.

This year, Duffett will not be given a complete chance to prove to his critics that his year as a

Spartan goalie Rick Duffett

super-sophomore was not a fluke. His eligibility will be exhausted at the end of fall term, leaving Jim Watt as the lone, experienced Spartan goaltender. As a matter of fact, Duffett will play his last games as an MSU hockey representative this weekend against Michigan Tech.

Coach Amo Bessone said that Duffett will definitely start against the Huskies Friday night.

Duffett has a personal grudge against the Upper Peninsula school.

"Last year, Tech kind of did us in," Duffett said. "I'd like to get back at them with a couple of wins this weekend. I'm especially glad that my last home series is against them."

The slender Canadian, win or lose, is a picture of poised professionalism. With speed as his soundest means of defense, Duffett often challenges the potential scorer.

Against Minnesota in the Spartans' lone WCHA win,

Duffett halted two Gopher break-ins (both in the first period) to project MSU to a 2-1 victory.

"If Duffett gets competition, he'll rise to it," Bessone said. "He's a real competitor."

"He's as fine a goaltender as any who have played in the WCHA," Bessone continued. "I'd have to rate Duffett with any goaltender we've ever had — and we've had two other All-Americans."

Rick Duffett is indeed a fine goaltender. He has been on the Red Wings' negotiating list since he was a sophomore, and would very much like to go into pro hockey.

"I talked to some scouts last year, and talked to some up in Minnesota this year," Duffett said. "I don't know what they have planned for me yet, though."

If Duffett does go on to play professional hockey, he will not be the first from Kirkland Lake to do so. Current NHLers Dick Duff, Ralph Backstrom and Tom Webster all hail from Duffett's home town. Also, one of the greatest goalies ever to play in the National Hockey League, Bill Durnan of the Montreal Canadiens, came from the same town.

Duffett is easily recognizable on the ice not only by his masked appearance and his ardent protection of the Spartan goal, but also by the number he sports on the back of his jersey — 25. In times where goalies don either numbers 1 or 30, Duffett feels confident with his 25.

"I started wearing the number as a freshman," Duffett said. "I had a lot of luck with it, and consequently decided to stick with it. I'm happy with 25."

Goalies have had success with uniforms bearing two digit numerals with "5" at the end. Tony Esposito, an All-America with Michigan Tech a few years back and now possibly the top netminder in the NHL, wears number 35. Esposito set the NHL modern day record for shutouts last season, and walked off with the Vezina Trophy (with lowest goals against average) as a result. "If Esposito can play pro hockey, so can Rick Duffett," Bessone praised.

And that's saying quite a bit.

Sports of sorts

First team All-America honors have gone to 41 MSU football players since 1949.

MSU trackmen placed seventh in the 1970 NCAA indoor championships, scoring 12 points — best for the Spartans in the six-year history of the meet.

MSU ranks 11th in the listings of the nation's major college football teams in won-loss percentages in the last 25 years. The Spartan record over the period is 158 wins, 70 losses and seven ties for a percentage of .693.

Pirates trade Patek to KC in 6-man deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, who came close but missed winning the big prize in 1970, bolstered their bid for the 1971 flag Wednesday by acquiring another starting pitcher, Bob Johnson, in a six-player trade with the Kansas City Royals.

The Pirates obtained Johnson, who had an 8-13 record with the Royals, in a deal in which they gave up three players in exchange for three.

In addition to the 27-year-old Johnson, the Pirates obtained reserve shortstop Jackie Hernandez, and for reassignment later to a triple-A farm team, catcher Jimmy Campanis. The Pirates gave the Royals 5-foot 4-inch shortstop Freddy Patek, catcher Jerry May and pitcher Bruce Dal Canton.

NATO countries agree to build up forces

BRUSSELS (AP) — Fourteen countries of the Atlantic Alliance resolved Wednesday night to strengthen their air, land and sea defenses from the Arctic to the Mediterranean in the 1970s in the face of mounting Soviet might.

Their statement of intent was published after allied diplomats disclosed Russia last month accepted, then turned down, a new Western plan for a Big Four settlement of the Berlin problem.

All North Atlantic Treaty Organization members except France — which stays out of the military set up — accused Russia of jeopardizing East-West conciliation by pursuing ever greater political and military power.

They said the Russians have been increasing real military spending by 5 per cent every year, since 1965. In contrast there was a 4 per cent decline in real NATO defense spending from 1964 to 1969.

"Whether east-west relations can in these circumstances be significantly improved," the statement said, "will depend mainly on the actions of the U.S.S.R. and its Warsaw Pact allies and on the attitudes they bring to negotiations now in progress or in prospect."

This was in reference to current big four efforts to come to terms on Berlin, which the allies have turned into a touchstone of Communist good faith.

Leaders of the seven Warsaw Pact governments and Communist parties now are meeting in secret session in East Berlin.

The 14-nation NATO statement insisted: "The position of the alliance... would be weakened if NATO were to reduce its forces unilaterally... at a time when it is confronted with a steady growth in Soviet military power which manifests itself above all in the strategic nuclear and maritime fields."

Against that background, the allies listed their priority needs for a stronger defense posture through the 1970s, calling for better:

- Armor and antiarmor potential.
- Air defenses including airplane shelters.
- Over-all naval forces including antisubmarine units.
- Protection of NATO's

northern and Mediterranean flanks.

Ground force deployment. Mobilization, reserve and communications arrangements. At the same time the statement urged closer military collaboration among members along with a fairer sharing of the over-all burdens of defense.

The allied ministers pledged to go on searching for agreements with the Communist powers on disarmament, on balanced force cuts in Europe and on Berlin.

The coming decade "might also see convened one or more conferences on European security and cooperation," they said.

Informants gave this account of the West's three-stage approach to the Berlin settlement:

- In the first stage the United States, Russia, Britain and France would negotiate a written agreement defining allied rights of access to and from Berlin, the rights of West Berliners in the divided city and the nature of West Germany's links with West Berlin.

In the second stage the United States, Britain and France would delegate to West Germany and Russia would delegate to East Germany the task of negotiating detailed arrangements to carry out the basic Big Four agreement.

In the third stage, any disputes between the two German governments, either over interpretation or fulfillment of the agreements, would revert to the Big Four who would play the roles of umpires.

The informants reported

Russia's representative on the big four negotiating group, Pyotr Abrassimov, accepted this acceptance 14 days later.

a riot occurring. "Our main interest in the 1969 October moratorium was to protect the ROTC building," he said. "That's like watching to see that your house doesn't catch fire."

He termed Army Intelligence "a necessary evil" to collect background information about Army personnel for security reasons.

"Someone has to investigate the men who will have access to classified information and it's cheaper to have the Army conduct its own investigations," he said. "We go to a house, identify ourselves and ask questions. We don't wear uniforms because they intimidate people."

He emphasized that this "background work" is 99 per cent of the Army's intelligence work.

"The other one per cent involves cases like the moratorium where there may be violence and troops called in."

The former agent said the Army agents work through the campus and Michigan State Police and get most of their information for reports from them.

When asked if the Army was investigating the activities of radical groups here, he said MSU is one of the quietest campuses in the country.

"No one here has any guts to do anything," he said. "It either rains or it's too cold, and all the talk results in no action."

Capt. John C. Burke, asst. professor of military science, said he is convinced no Army intelligence agents are "on or anywhere near" the MSU campus.

"If I thought for one minute that there was an Army secret police, I'd walk out the front door of this building," he said. "I wouldn't want any part of it."

Burke said that when the antiwar movement first came to the forefront, many investigations were conducted by federal agencies, including the Army.

"Everyone wanted to know what the threat was," he said. Since these initial investigations, this work has ceased, Burke said.

"The military was one of the agencies conducting its own clandestine investigation," he said. "But Congress slapped its hands and it stopped snooping. Today the Army is very careful not to involve itself with the antiwar movement so it cannot be accused of anything."

Burke said he saw the first half of the controversial "First Tuesday" program.

"Those people must have been referring to the way things were four years ago," he said. "The Army is leaving the snooping to agencies like the FBI and the CIA. You didn't see agents swarming this campus during the strike last spring, did you?"

He said he turned the program off to finish reading his copy of "Catch-22."
