Nixon wins first battles in cutback fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave President Nixon a series of victories Wednesday by rejecting two proposals to cut U.S. European forces and a third urging American talks with its allies and the Soviets on possible troop reductions.

The votes bolstered the likelihood that the President's backers would be able to ward off all moves for a unilateral U.S. troop reduction.

The debate stretched into the evening as amendments were proposed and then withdrawn, giving senators a chance to make speeches on the basic issue.

Opposing amendments, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., appealed for a direct vote on Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's original troop cut proposal. The Mansfield amendment, target of a massive administration counter-offensive, would require a 50 per cent reduction in the 300,000 U.S. troops in Europe by the end of 1971.

The Mansfield amendment draws the issue clearer and firmer, Stennis declared. Before getting to the Mansfield amendment, the Senate voted:

63 to 26 against a proposal by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., for a phased 50 per cent cutback of the troops over a three-year period unless East-West talks start promptly on mutual troop withdrawals.

81 to 13 against a move by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., that urged U.S. talks with allies for greater assumption of defense

Allen to seek increase in proposed tax raise

By JEFF SHELER
State News Staff Writer

Glenn Allen, Gov. Milliken's top budget officer, said Wednesday he will advise the governor to raise his proposed income tax increase to keep the state fiscal 1971-72 budget in the black.

Allen said Milliken's proposal last January to raise the state income tax by one per cent beginning Jan. 1, 1972, will not be enough.

"Based on the facts in the past six months, it is clear that we either need a higher tax rate or we'll have to advance the collection date," Allen said.

He said an extra .6 per cent to 1.0 per cent should be added to Milliken's proposed tax increase to offset a projected deficit at the end of fiscal 1971-72.

The state budget director told legislative experts Tuesday that Milliken's proposal to raise the tax rate from 2.6 per cent to 3.6 per cent would suffice if it took effect this July 1 or if expensive legislative programs were cut back.

Otherwise, he said, the state would fall into a deficit which some officials estimate would range from $357 million to $627 million.

Meanwhile, Milliken said Tuesday those "represent the worst that can happen — not what is going to happen."

"The statements do, however, emphasize the necessity for the legislature to control spending, as I have recommended, and to move immediately to complete action on budget and revenue bills before July 1," Milliken said.

House Speaker William A. Ryan, Detroit, said Wednesday that Allen was "trying to give us the ifs and buts of what would happen if the legislature acted in a certain way."

"But we haven't decided on the

Wilkinson noted the possibility of a "short-term financing method" which would permit the University to continue operating after the end of the current fiscal year and before the enactment of an appropriation bill.

Last year, under somewhat similar conditions, both houses of the legislature approved a resolution that would have allowed the budget director to authorize University expenditures on a monthly basis until the approval of an appropriation bill.

Continuation of University functions during the interim would be on the same level of funding as the previous year, according to the resolution.

Wilkinson said a plan like this one would entail little difficulty for the University administration and as "far as the University community goes, you wouldn't notice any change in operation."

A second and potentially more confusing effect of a delay in legislative action would be on the preparation of a 1972-73 University budget request.

In the normal chain of events in past years, the budget request is submitted by the board of trustees in September to the office of the governor who makes his recommendations concerning funding in January. The Senate Appropriation Committee then meets with University financial representatives usually in February to hear the University defend its requests.

China, Laos list terms for release of POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist leaders in Laos and mainland China have given the conditions under which they will release American prisoners of war, relatives of captured and missing servicemen reported Wednesday.

Spokesmen for the National League of Families of American Prisoners or Missing in Southeast Asia said the Chinese said they would release the American airmen they are holding once the United States adopts a one-China policy.

The Pathet Lao formula for release of Americans captured in Laos was based on a bombing halt similar to the one effected for North Vietnam under the Johnson Administration.

The spokesman said the terms were disclosed at the World Peace Council in Budapest last weekend.

The one-China policy reportedly being sought by Communist China would require U.S. disavowal of the Nationalist Chinese government in Taiwan and recognition of mainland China as the only China.

The communication on the prisoners held in China was the first of its kind. It also was the first time the Pathet Lao have given any definite word on the prisoners it is holding.

Seven American airmen are listed as missing in China, and the Pentagon says two have been identified as being prisoners. The Pentagon lists 263 Americans missing in Laos but says it has confirmed only three as having been captured.

Mrs. James B. White, who talked to both the Pathet Lao and Red Chinese officials, said both told her the prisoners would be released immediately once the conditions were met.

Academic Senate OKs revised Taylor Report

By SYLVIA SMITH
State News Staff Writer

A revised version of the Taylor Report on student participation in academic government cleared its last hurdle Wednesday as it passed the Academic Senate on its way to a second consideration by the board of trustees Friday.

The amendments approved by the senate provide for 10 at-large student positions on the Academic Council, of which at least six seats are for nonwhites and at least five are for women students.

The slate of candidates - at-large will be chosen by a Student Committee on Nominations consisting of the student member of the Steering Committee, three undergraduates (at least two nonwhites and at least one woman) appointed by the chairman of ASMSU, and three graduate students (at least two nonwhites and at least one woman) appointed by the president of COGS.

Ruth M. Brend, asst. professor of linguistics and oriental and African languages, objected to the references to the inclusion of women in the amendments because they imply women would not otherwise be elected.

"They are a real insult to women in general. I realize it is for protection, but I protest it and urge their deletion," she said.

Milton Powell, associate professor of Justin Morrill College and chairman of the University Student Affairs Committee, (USAC), told Miss Brend the references to women were recommendations originating with the board of trustees.

The trustees referred the amendments back to USAC so the provisions for women representatives could be incorporated into the amendments.

A recommendation endorsing providing nontenured faculty members who are not reappointed with written reasons upon request was passed by the senate but a motion to recommend an extension of the contract of all nontenured faculty members who were not reappointed for the 1971-72 academic year failed by a slim margin.

Nontenured faculty members who did receive reasons for their nonreappointment were not included in the second recommendation.

The approved recommendation, as presented by the University Tenure Committee, also specifies that the "terms and conditions of employment shall be provided in writing" at the time of appointment.

AS TRAIN SERVICE RESUMES

Senate to scrutinize strike-reform motion

By The Associated Press

The Nixon administration, frustrated for months in its efforts to have Congress consider permanent transportation strike legislation, has won assurances that its measure finally will receive Senate scrutiny.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., the administration's top Senate transportation strategist, said Wednesday the agreement was reached during behind-the-scenes negotiations this week to settle the rail strike.

Stalled freight started moving again and commuters found their regular trains running Wednesday, as the nation's railroads struggled back to normal after the two-day signalmen's strike.

Industries that had closed down or curtailed operations moved quickly to make up lost time and profits. The Ford Motor Co., for example, put two key assembly plants on overtime.

Resumption of train service started after President Nixon signed emergency legislation Tuesday night ordering the men back to work. But there were indications that it would take some time before all was normal again.

Griffin, sponsor of the administration's strike-reform bill, said, "I indicated I was going to offer an amendment to force the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee to report out with or without amendments — the administration's strike reform bill within 45 days."

The tactic prompted Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, to give a very firm commitment that the panel will hold hearings on the measure within weeks, Griffin said.

The administration measure, which has languished in committee for months, would give the President three options which could be employed after an 80-day cooling-off period.

Negotiations resumed to prevent another walkout when the legislation expires Oct. 1.

White House gives up on SST revival

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House gave up Wednesday in its long fight to persuade Congress to underwrite the cost of developing an American supersonic transport plane.

A presidential spokesman conceded the doom of the SST — condemned by its critics as a dangerous billion-dollar boondoggle and hailed by its supporters as vital to continued American dominance in the field of commercial aeronautics.

The concession, announced to newsmen by presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler came a few hours before the Senate was scheduled to vote on a House-passed amendment to revive the SST development halted by Congress in March.

Reporting on two days of negotiations with the SST contractors, Ziegler placed the chief blame for the denouncement on the Boeing Co., and said the firm had demanded $350 million extra for the development of new engines.

Before that demand, Ziegler said, the White House had been confident the total costs of restarting the program would be less than the costs of killing it.

APPEALS TO PARLIAMENT

Queen seeks pay hike

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has asked Parliament for a pay increase for herself and other members of the royal family.

The queen asked for no specific amount but told the legislators Wednesday the royal housekeeping books were at their disposal. Court sources said she needs about $1.92 million. She now gets an allowance of $1.02 million.

The government prepared to push legislation through before the summer holiday — but one opponent of the monarchy served notice of a battle ahead.

The queen's appeal to the House of Commons came on the 19th anniversary of her last request to Parliament for a raise. That was at the start of her reign.

"Her majesty regrets that developments in intervening years have made that provision inadequate for the maintenance of that standard of service to her people to which she believes they wish her and her family to adhere," her message said.

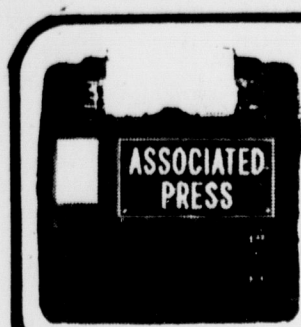

The queen offered to give up the pound equivalent of $144,000 that Parliament allots her each year for purely personal expenses.

The Queen's request came as no surprise to Parliament or the nation. Her husband, Prince Philip, who reportedly oversees the royal bookkeeping, told an American television audience in November, 1969, that the royal family would be in the red by the end of 1970 if something wasn't done.

Court sources said at the time the remark angered the queen — which may be one reason why she waited so long to put in her bid for a raise.

The queen has to pay from her allotment for the upkeep of two royal residences, Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle, and the tremendous staff that looks after the trappings of monarchy.

Base hunt begins

A 700-man force of elite South Vietnamese commandos has begun a hunt for a major North Vietnamese base in the central highlands near the Laotian border, military spokesmen reported Wednesday in Saigon.

The commandos, highly trained infantrymen, were flown from Saigon Tuesday after captured soldiers and defectors told allied intelligence officers that the North Vietnamese had 50 tanks hidden in caves there.

The scouting operation centered on the southern Laos border 10 miles northwest of Ben Het.

Seamen discuss dispute

An 11-man U.S. delegation boarded the mother ship of the Soviet Union's Atlantic fishing fleet Wednesday to discuss alleged Russian harassment of American lobstermen.

The American delegation, headed by Donald T. McKernan of the State Dept. rendezvoused with the commander of the 357-foot ship Eykhe near Nantucket Lightship, about 80 miles southeast of Boston.

The delegation was greeted warmly.

Deliberations begin in trial

A panel of Soviet judges began deliberations in Moscow Wednesday on the fate of nine Leningrad Jews accused of plotting to hijack an airliner and slandering the Soviet Union.

The news agency Tass said the Leningrad city court finished hearing the defendants' final statements Wednesday morning. It said all of them had confessed and "repented." The trial began May 11.

Tass has never given the precise charges against the Jews.

Market talks look up

EDWARD HEATH

Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain arrived in Paris Wednesday for two days of talks with President Georges Pompidou that are expected to finally bury the veto Charles deGaulle placed on British entry into the Common Market.

Both sides have said that the summit meeting would not have been scheduled unless Pompidou and Heath were convinced that it had excellent chances of success.

Nash dies at 68

Ogden Nash, whose hard-to-forget rhymes deflated the pompous and cheered the troubled, died Wednesday. He was 68.

Nash had been receiving kidney treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital following abdominal surgery in March.

Higher interest rates rejected

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns rejected higher interest rates Wednesday as the way to improve the dollar's world position.

The head of the nation's central bank said a tough anti-inflation fight, complete with direct government intervention in the marketplace to hold down wage and price increases, stands at the top of his list of remedies.

"The overriding need is to restore price stability even as the present slack in our economy is taken up," Burns told the Senate Banking Committee.

Four-day week studied

A decision on whether to begin pilot programs on a four-day, 40-hour week at Chrysler Corp. may be reached within the next two months, UAW Vice President Douglas A. Fraser said in Detroit Wednesday.

But he said that workers in any plant involved in the pilot programs should be allowed to vote on the switch to the shorter work week before it is made. Chrysler would be the largest company in the nation to make the switch to the four-day week if both the union and company agree it is possible for such a large manufacturing operation.

Beetles hatch in diseased elms

By MICHAEL FOX
State News Staff Writer

Elm tree beetle eggs started to hatch this week in felled diseased elm trees stockpiled about four miles southwest of campus, Helmut Riedel, Austrian graduate student in entomology, said Wednesday.

Nearly 3,000 diseased and infected elm trees that present a potential threat to the University's 1,700 elm trees located on campus were given to a private concern, Peterson's Wood Chips at 3101 Pine Tree Road, by the city of Lansing. President Wharton wrote a letter April 22 to the state Dept. of Agriculture seeking support in an effort to prevent the eggs from hatching.

Since that time, however, the Michigan Dept. of Agriculture, the city of Lansing Forestry Dept. and University officials have said there is nothing they can do about the current situation.

Riedel is conducting a research project on the diseased elms and the beetles to determine how much of the wood is actually infected and how far the beetles can travel.

He said the cold spring delayed the beetle's emergence from the stockpiled elms, but his traps at the Peterson location began to collect large numbers of beetles Monday. He has located traps at the site and on a straight line between the location and campus, with traps set about every three-quarters of a mile.

"In the literature, it says that the beetles can travel two to three miles, but there is no data to substantiate this," Riedel said. He plans to mark beetles at a later time to gauge their traveling ability.

Elliott G. Ballard, assistant to President Wharton, said Wednesday there is no action the University can take to lessen the potential threat to campus elms.

"We have expressed our concern for this situation, but there is no legal action we can take," Ballard said.

"We're just unfortunate to be in the way of the emerging beetles," he said.

Milton Baron, director of campus parks and planning, said the use of a helicopter to spray the stockpiled elms was ruled out because there is no persistent spray that could be used other than DDT.

He added that there is no way to reach trees stacked at the bottom of the wood piles and that, because the location is off campus, University equipment could not be used.

Riedel had high praise for Peterson's operation, pointing out that if it were a mile or two further from campus it would be great.

"Wood chipping fits into the ecological theme. In the past, cities would burn or bury wood from diseased elm trees," Riedel said.

"For the first time, the Peterson brothers have tried to use this valuable resource. There are many possible uses for the chips, for instance, replacing straw in stables or in construction they can be sprayed on grass to prevent erosion," he said.

"I am glad to see his operation underway," Riedel said.

Housing committee hears abuses of absent landlords

By RANDY GARTON
State News Staff Writer

Absentee landlords who do not maintain their property are responsible for many unsightly homes in the East Lansing area, the East Lansing Joint Housing Committee was told at a public hearing Tuesday night in the East Lansing council chambers.

James D. Davis, asst. professor and operations manager of closed circuit TV, said five rented houses in his area were owned by a man who lived in Detroit.

"The students are being taken," he said. "One of those houses is in really bad shape, and it's the landlord's responsibility to maintain it."

Davis had no complaint against the students living in the house, saying he got along well with them.

He was one of several persons at the hearing, attended by about 50 East Lansing residents who cited absentee landlords for contributing to East Lansing's housing problems.

They were responding to a statement by committee member Joseph V. Dibello, who said that the primary problem facing the committee was the high density of persons living in some of the old homes in the Grand River Avenue area.

Ronald Horvath, asst. professor of geography, said that University residence halls have a higher density than the houses in question, but their neat appearance precludes any complaints.

"The main problem isn't density," he said. "It's up-keep." Mrs. B.C. Jenkins of 813 Ann St. disagreed with Horvath's analysis.

"The more people there are living in one home, the more noise there is," she said.

Mrs. Jenkins said that the noise around her home last weekend continued until 4 a.m.

Nat Hammond, agent for Cedarview, Americana and other apartments in East Lansing, said that in his experience, more persons living in a house meant higher maintenance costs.

"There's a direct correlation between the number of students living in an apartment and the landlord's maintenance costs," he said.

Most persons present agreed with Davis' original contention, that landlords are responsible for maintenance of rented property.

Procedures for licensing landlords were proposed numerous times throughout the hearing. It was generally agreed that the city should set up basic housing standards for landlords to follow.

One landlord, who said he wished to remain unidentified, said he was in favor of licensing.

"You can't legislate morality," he said, "but I think licensing would drive some of the bums out of this business."

He said that more low-cost housing in East Lansing would not solve the problem unless the landlords maintain decent conditions on their property.

The committee also heard many suggestions for limiting the number of automobiles in East Lansing. The committee revealed that the high number of cars in student housing areas is a prime cause of complaints.

Horvath said he was concerned with the number of cars in the city. He presented a map showing the paved areas of East Lansing and suggested that the committee recommend that no more parking facilities be built.

Though most persons at the hearing, including committee members, agreed that automobiles were a significant problem in East Lansing, the practical problems of eliminating cars were thought to be enormous.

OF BEATING CHARGES

Black lawmen acquitted

OPELIKA, Ala. (AP) — An all-white jury acquitted black Sheriff Lucius Amerson and his black chief deputy of beating a black prisoner after a jailhouse gunfight.

After 65 minutes of deliberations Wednesday, the jury returned separate verdicts finding Amerson, 37, and Chief Deputy Richard Coleman Jr., 27, innocent of violating the civil rights of the prisoner, Wilbert Dean Harris.

The two officers were indicted by a federal grand jury after Harris complained that he was beaten and kicked after he surrendered following the shootout in the Macon County jail in nearby Tuskegee last Aug. 22. Harris had been brought to the jail after being arrested on drunk driving charges.

Amerson, who took office in January, 1967, as the first black sheriff in Alabama since Reconstruction days, said after the trial that he felt the verdict from the jury of seven men and five women "indicated justice can prevail and did prevail."

He said he felt the absence of blacks on the jury was a "tremendous opportunity to show the people throughout the world that there was no race in this thing."

The sheriff congratulated the jury which acquitted him, and the grand jury which indicted him, for performing its duty as it saw fit.

Earlier, Amerson blamed the indictment on what he called a "band of willful men who are obsessed with the idea that black people should not hold office in Macon County."

The sheriff said that with his acquittal, "the only thing left for me to do now is to go back home and do my job and to treat people with courtesy."

"I may say," he added, "that I felt all along that I would be dealt with according to the law in this case."

After the verdict was read, Amerson, Coleman and their attorneys were called into the chambers of U.S. District Court Judge Robert E. Varner for a brief conference.

The sheriff declined to disclose what was said.

If convicted, the two men could have been sent to prison for a year and fined $1,000 each.

The trouble at the jail began after Harris, a resident of Tuskegee, pulled a gun and started shooting at Amerson, Coleman and other officers while he was being booked.

The government contended that the two accused officers attacked the prisoner with the intent to inflict summary punishment.

Students pick 'Civilization' as subject of symposium

"Civilization," with Sir Kenneth Clarke as the main speaker, has been tentatively chosen as the 1972 University College Symposium topic, Eric Lunde, asst. professor of American Thought and Language and chairman of a planning committee for the symposium, said Wednesday.

Clarke was chosen as first second or third choice by 644 of the 869 students polled. This accounted for 73 per cent of the responses.

"The committee found this result surprising," Lunde said. The art historian had the largest percentage of first choices with 38.4 per cent.

The results indicated that 47 students chose "Human Justice," 356 chose "The Role of the University," 325 chose "Politics of the Future" and 222 chose "Technology" as their first, second or third choices.

"Politics" polled the next highest percentage for first choice with 23.7 per cent.

Seven topics were offered from which the students could choose with an eighth space provided for write-ins. The committee tallied very few write-ins, Lunde said.

If Clarke is unable to participate in the symposium the "Civilization" topic will not be followed, Lunde said.

"We will instead combine politics and human justice, the next favorite choices, to form a new topic dealing with both topics," Lunde said.

Army officers censured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, a former West Point superintendent, was demoted, censured and stripped of a high decoration Wednesday for not conducting a more searching investigation of the My Lai massacre.

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor ordered Koster, once considered a rising star in the Army's officer corps, reduced one grade in rank to brigadier general and his Distinguished Service Medal revoked for his performance as Americal Division commander at the time of the My Lai incident in March 1968. Resor also directed that Brig. Gen. George H. Young Jr., who was asst. division commander, be censured and his DSM withdrawn. However, the secretary rejected the recommendation of Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland that Young be demoted to colonel.

Koster, 51, and Young, 50, can choose either to retire or remain in the Army. For Koster, demotion means a cut in both his active-duty pay and retirement benefits.

Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., a member of the House Armed Services Committee which conducted its own investigation of My Lai, said the punishment "amounts to little more than a slap on the wrist."

is under a court-martial sentence of life imprisonment for his role in My Lai, the question of whether the top officers did or did not deliberately try to hide the facts of My Lai can only be properly answered in formal court-martial," Stratton said.

The Army earlier had dismissed criminal charges accusing the two generals of covering up the slaughter of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai by Calley's company.

But Resor, in announcing his action in a nine-page statement, said "an officer's performance of duty not only must be lawful but also must conform to the established standards of his profession."

The dismissal of criminal charges, the secretary said, "meant that further prosecution under the criminal law was deemed unwarranted; it did not necessarily mean that the individual's performance had been adequate by professional standards."

At Ft. Meade, Md., Koster called Resor's action "unfair and unjust since the evidence makes it clear that I had no knowledge of the tragedy . . . until it became public about one and one-half years ago."

Ice rink plan hit at ASMSU meet

By MICHAEL FOX
State News Staff Writer

Criticism of a proposed $4.4 million ice rink for the University was leveled in a student's presentation to the ASMSU board meeting Tuesday night.

Seth Parker, East Lansing student, asked the board to consider a resolution against construction of the proposed ice rink. The motion was sent to the agenda committee and will probably be reported out at next Tuesday's meeting.

In his presentation, Parker stressed that the primary function of the University relates to academic rather than athletic matters and that with the current financial strain the University should direct its money to classroom activities instead of the ice rink.

"The amount accumulated from student football ticket fees to pay for the ice rink is about $1.5 million. The balance is to be borrowed and repaid using student football ticket fees," he said. Parker also included in his suggested resolution a statement that ASMSU "prefers that the yearly central fund allocation to the Athletic Dept. cease except for the net amount of the department's intramural expenditures."

He said $380,000 was allocated to the department from central funds for 1971 on the basis of a $10 per student formula.

The Athletic Council submitted the proposal for a new ice rink to the administration in early March. Any new buildings must be approved by the board of trustees before planning or construction can begin.

Harold Buckner, ASMSU chairman, told the board that he doubted the ice rink would come before the trustees at Friday's meeting because it is not included on the agenda.

The board defeated in a 5-12-1 roll call vote a motion that "the student board lend its support to the proposal to create an economic boycott of 'nonessential' goods in the MSU business community by helping to create a committee to coordinate the actions of this proposal."

The proposal had been submitted to the board by Charles Piper, Flint sophomore, as a plan to force Grand River Avenue businessmen into taking stands against the war in Indochina.

SEEKS NEW MEMBERS

Group offers political data

By JUDY YATES
State News Staff Writer

The Michigan Youth Political Institute (MYPI), an organization designed to educate young people in the realities of the political system, will launch membership drive next week. The institute was organized by the 1970 elections by Edward Kruch, East Lansing senior student; James Paquet, senior; Morris senior, and Thomas Ventimiglia, East Lansing senior, in an effort to educate students more politically.

"Young people are alienated from politics in general, and we are afraid that they will not take advantage of the opportunity given them by the 18-year-old franchise," Kruch said. Paquet said MYPI "will continue its membership drive through a notice in 'It's What's Happening,' leaflets in mail boxes, posters on campus and discussion groups in the residence halls. He invited anyone interested in the institute to stop by the office in the Student Services Bldg.

"We're especially looking for individuals from minority groups and Women's Liberation Front," Paquet said. MYPI, a nonpartisan organization initiated last year, organizes teams of researchers to collect data on all governments and their actions. The group, which includes nearly 250 people, adds another 300 people, Paquet said. MYPI has been endorsed by U.S. Reps. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Michigan; James G. O'Hara, D-Michigan; and William Ford, D-Michigan; and August "Gus" Scholle, president of the Michigan AFL-CIO.

The institute is looking for further endorsements from businessmen, industry leaders and politicians, Kruch said.

MYPI, focusing on people who will be working throughout the state this summer, needs volunteers to do background research on community leaders, the education structure, kinds of programs in the area, and general characteristics of the local government.

Data collected will be made available to all interested individuals and groups in the form of films, pamphlets and a team of speakers will remain available to travel anywhere in the state to give presentations. MYPI is also seeking young people who will assume positions as precinct delegates in the local party of their choice.

Each precinct delegate will be responsible to establish and maintain contact with his constituents, serving as their representatives and providing organizational skills or educational information where appropriate.

MYPI will advise youth groups on the mechanics of establishing local political organizations, provide information for the community on practical politics and coordinate voter registration.

The institute will operate primarily off campus, using the University as a resource for personnel and information. Funding sources will be donations and foundation grants, he said.

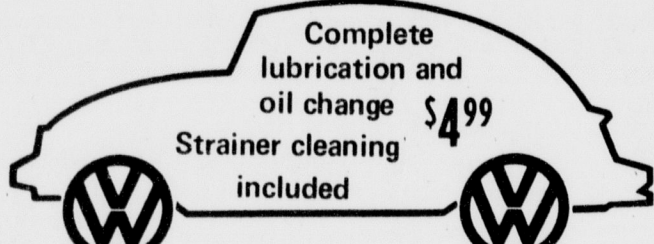

MYPI asks that local political groups contact them to reduce duplication of information.

For abortion reform? Write your legislator

Reliable sources estimate that a clear majority of the Michigan House of Representatives is in favor of the abortion reform bill passed by the Senate. Yet Rep. Richard Allen, R-Ithaca, house floor leader for abortion reform, candidly states "If the vote were taken today, we'd lose by about three or four votes."

Simply, many representatives are worried about the political consequences of a "yea" vote on this issue. They have a very good reason to be worried. The antiabortion forces have a degree of organization that far outstrips efforts put forth by the eclectic pro-abortion faction.

That the antiabortionists are in a minority is a well-known fact, but it is equally well known to the representatives that their mail is running 20 to one against abortion reform. And elections are often decided by agitated minorities, not apathetic majorities.

Now is the time for action. The abortion bill will be before the House in, at most, several weeks. This is not a great deal of time to counter the highly effective onslaught of the antiabortionists.

Below is a list of House members considered "swing votes," caught between their consciences and their constituencies on abortion reform. Representatives who have taken a position clearly pro or con are not included.

The strongest weapon the antiabortionists have is a letter-writing campaign, and we can utilize the same strategy. Write your representatives in support of the abortion reform bill and urge your friends, the members of your residence hall or fraternity house to do the same.

On your letter be sure to list your home address rather than your campus address, and if possible, try to mail it from your hometown. If you neglect this there is a high probability that your message will never get past the representative's secretary. House members seldom have or take the time to read mail that is not immediately recognizable as from their district.

Make the letter a statement of friendly, concerned support for the measure, rather than a polemic threatening dire consequences if the legislator votes against the bill. The most effective communication should say something to the effect of "I'm for abortion reform and so are many of the people that I know. I hope you will vote for it. We will back you in the next election if you do."

Do it now - today. We must have immediate mass action if abortion reform is to become a reality in the state of Michigan.

The following Representatives are either leaning in favor of abortion reform but need the support of their constituents or are as yet uncommitted:

Pool pass the answer for IM financial woes

Starting this summer, students will be charged for using the outdoor pool at the Men's Intramural Building. The fee of 25 cents may chase many students away from the locale where many of them had passed many summer terms.

In the past, the Athletic Dept. has paid for the cost of preparing the pool for use. Now the department finds itself with a lack of funds (what cost Tartan Turf?) and unable to pay for refurbishing the pool.

Rising costs have also played a role. Last year it cost $5,000 to prepare the Men's IM pool for opening day; this year, the tab will be closer to $8,000.

The fate of the pool may not yet be completely sealed. The intramural department is looking for help from the University maintenance fund. If money can be found from some source, charging fees may become unnecessary.

However, even if the figurative cavalry does not arrive at the last minute to save the fort, the intramural department should consider another means of paying pool costs besides a quarter a day flat rate.

A happy medium might be found in providing students with the option of buying a pool pass good for the entire summer term.

The rates are being charged to pay the cost of opening the pool; the amount of pool use has nothing to do with this cost. A pool pass would enable the IM department to collect about the same amount of money and allow students to go swimming as often as they wish.

Clearly something must be done. It's going to be a long, hot summer here at MSU.

POINT OF VIEW

By SETH PARKER
E. Lansing Graduate Student

At their May 21 meeting, the MSU trustees will vote on the proposed ice rink. I write to oppose the building of this rink.

A few years ago, the Athletic Council instituted the student football ticket fee and indicated that the monies from this fee were to be used only to improve athletic facilities. Although it has been alleged that the students approved of this plan, the fact is that no student referendum was ever held. Some students were contacted about the matter through meetings in residence halls. Since no referendum was held, the restriction as to the use of the monies was not made by "the students;" it was merely decided upon by the Athletic Council.

However, while the Athletic Council was accumulating about $1.5 million to improve athletic facilities, the Athletic Dept. was receiving about $3.8 million from the General Fund of the University. Most of the state appropriation and all of the students' fees go into the General Fund. Yearly a substantial allocation is made to the Athletic Dept. for student admissions to athletic events. This allocation, termed a "subsidy" by the state auditor, amounts to $380,000 in 1971. The total of the General Fund allocation to the Athletic Dept. since 1963 is $2.6 million. In addition, through 1969, the Athletic Dept. received indirect General Fund support by being permitted to pay in-state fees for out-of-state athletes. These benefits from 1963 to 1969 amounted to about $1.2 million.

Were a new ice rink built, the student football ticket fees would be used to repay the approximately $2.9 million that will be borrowed to build it. During the next fifteen years, while the ice rink loan is being repaid, the Athletic Dept. presumably expects to continue receiving an annual General Fund subsidy. How much this subsidy might be is anyone's guess; athletic receipts and expenditures have not been projected beyond next year. Although the supporters of the rink frequently refer to its revenue potential, they offer substantiated figures neither for this revenue nor, significantly, for the additional operating expenses the rink would incur.

Unless the Athletic Dept. continues to receive the General Fund subsidy, it cannot afford to build the new ice rink. My concern is not whether another ice rink is the most critically needed athletic facility. My question is: in this time of financial pressure on the academic departments, can the University afford to continue subsidizing the Athletic Dept. with General

OUR READERS' MIND

Blindness no drawback in enjoyment of Spring

To the Editor:

"Lucky you that you're not blind." But don't pity me for not being able to see. You close your eyes for five minutes and felt the "insecurity, doubt, fear, apprehension, and isolation." My eyes have been closed for twenty years, yet I am unable to feel this nightmare which you so tag onto the 300 blind students here at MSU. You can experience spring - watch the trees bud, the grass become green, the so called "flesh - shows" which indicate to you that summer is coming. But I too can feel that spring is here. I can feel the warmth of the sun, the sweet spring breeze. I can hear the birds singing, the Frisbee games being played. I haven't been isolated from the beauty of spring in any way.

Maybe it's because I've adjusted to my "dismal darkness" or because, in my heart, I won't be satisfied until I've reached the status of Stevie Wonder. Or maybe it's because I feel that the friends I've made and the experiences I've had, because, and not in spite of, my blindness have made me proud to be the person I am today. Going to my classes, when I cross the street or board the busses, and have difficulty with either, I will testify that the people around me do "give a damn." You ask what it's like to be blind? Hope that you never have find out. But . . . please, respect I am blind, and not because I am blind.

May 5 March

To the Editor:
Dear Chief Husby:

I urge you to exercise your wisdom as peace officer before taking action against the MSU students who marched to the Capitol on May 5 to participate in peaceful demonstration in protest of the Indochina war.

The marchers incited no riots. They did not slash tires or harass pedestrians. They did not loot stores or abuse police officers. All they did was march to the Capitol act on their constitutional right to assemble and peacefully demonstrate.

I submit that we need to recognize democratic protest. We who are in public office are often challenged by this sort of citizen activity and I think this is healthy.

Although we have focused a considerable effort on making government more representative of the people's needs, our government is still not responsive to the ideas expressed by these peaceful demonstrators. We must work to make our responsiveness we have talked about reality.

It is for this reason that I was so acutely affected by the mention of mass arrests discipline the young citizens who committed no crime. Their purpose seemed to have become crime, however, in today's America. They felt compelled to protect the actions of a government which will listen to them.

When government evolves into an agent that virtually ignores the wishes of the people it was originally conceived to represent, then it is not only the right, but the duty of concerned citizens to bring before that body the needs for which they could not otherwise get an audience. We need them to keep us moving in the direction we should go, no matter how painful their criticisms may be.

I cast my single vote as a state lawmaker and as chairman of the House Standing Committee on Youth and Student Participation, for no mass action to be taken against those who marched to the Capitol to exercise their constitutional right of peaceful assembly. I respectfully request you to reject any contemplation of mass action in this case. I would be happy to meet with you to discuss this matter further.

TRB FROM WASHINGTON

With friends like John Mitchell . . .

By RICHARD LEE STROUT

Little Martha Mitchell has been relieving her tensions again, and her husband will be leaving the Justice Department any day now to run Mr. Nixon's 1972 presidential campaign, so the time has come to take another look at the Mitchell team and what it means to all of us. The Attorney General is probably the second most powerful man in Washington because he gives advice to the most powerful man, and the latter takes it. This is odd because the advice has been so bad that the string of defeats and humiliations is like an unraveling ball of yarn that has no end.

In the same paper last week in which John was likening the antiwar demonstrators to brown shirt Nazis of Germany in the 1920's, Martha was telling a home town TV station in Pine Bluff, Arkansas that they were dirty: "You can't stand to get within 20 feet of them." Whether Martha is a restraining influence on John or John on Martha is a matter of dispute; some think that Martha just says in public what John says in private. Referring to the recent unanimous decision by the Burger Court upholding school busing, Martha said, "I could not sit here and believe such a thing could come to happen." Apparently John couldn't believe it either, until the court slapped him down. But so many things have happened in the experience of John in the past two years that his credulity must by now be severely strained.

Some people don't like politicians. After a good many years in Washington TRB feels that the country is safer with politicians than with the business - type like the Attorney General who never dabbled in politics so far as is known until he undertook to get Mr. Nixon elected. He elected him, too. He started Mr. Nixon off with a 16 per cent lead over a lethally wounded Humphrey after the Chicago convention, and managed to finish with a less than 1 per cent lead, no mandate and a Democratic majority in Congress. Under Mitchell's astute handling, Mr. Nixon got 2.4 million votes less in winning than he got in losing in 1960. Since then there have been even more impressive accomplishments.

A politician, by the nature of things, has to know people, and have some sense of the popular will and the public mood. A non-politician who comes late to public life from business, say, nearly always has a simplistic notion that problems (often insoluble) can be solved readily by business methods. That was true of poor Hoover, and also of the crew of Republican millionaires who took over the cabinet in

"When you first meet Mitchell," goes the saying, "he seems cold on the surface; but after you get to know him you realize that that is only the tip of the iceberg."

The extraordinary partnership between Mr. Nixon and the Attorney General comes from a certain temperamental similarity of two self-made, successful and essentially private men. Neither gets on easily with crowds of people. They trust each other and the one on the pinnacle needs the absolute self-confidence of the other as a

The fact is, Mitchell's record as a presidential adviser leaves something to be desired. He almost succeeded in losing the 1968 election and he helped botch the preposterous 1970 election with the unsuccessful effort to cash in on supposed popular dislike of demonstrators and college students.

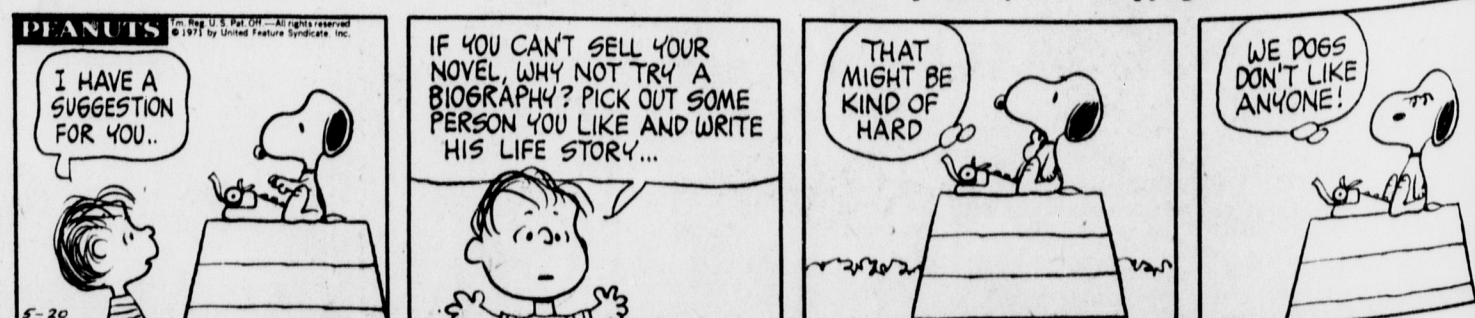

General Eisenhower's day. Mitchell is an independent-minded, very intelligent, man with a Roman nose like Douglas MacArthur's, a pipe that is always glowing, a voice that is calm, composed and righteous, a managerial efficiency unencumbered by ideology, and a bagful of facts many of which aren't so. Nothing in his life has brought him in contact or sympathy with the poor, the black or the young. What he sometimes seems to lack is human understanding and maybe, compassion. His features are so under control that they seem stony.

sounding board for opinions. Mitchell is utterly without political ambitions. His advice goes a lot further than legal matters. He screened 2000 names for subcabinet posts when the Administration started; he serves on the National Security Council and participated in the Cambodia and Laos decisions; he helped nurse Mr. Nixon's wounds on the presidential yacht Sequoia after the Carswell defeat and stood by the President's side when they returned as the latter delivered his bitter tirade against the Senate, declaring that he had "reluctantly concluded - with the Senate presently constituted" that he couldn't get southerner confirmed to the Supreme Court. It was a total, extraordinary misreading of what had happened, and this obtuseness, this tin ear, insensitivity to certain gut issues of American life that may help to unite two men.

The fact is, Mitchell's record as a presidential adviser leaves something to be desired. He almost succeeded in losing the 1968 election and he helped botch the preposterous 1970 election with the unsuccessful effort to cash in on supposed popular dislike of demonstrators and college students. He presided over effort to blunt the drive for civil rights with two extraordinary, unanimous, decisions by the Supreme Court to which Nixon had named two members. And led his boss into the humiliation of Haynsworth - Carswell rejections would seem to have severe ties any indissoluble. "Mitchell should go!" Life magazine. He is still around; the trusted counselor.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Ruckelshaus ran the Senate in Indiana. Unsuccessful. Deputy Kleindienst ran for governor, Arizona. Unsuccessful. Asst. Atty. Gen. Will Wilson tried for senator and governor in Texas. Unsuccessful. Head of the Rights Division, Jerris Leonard, ran for senate in Wisconsin. Unsuccessful. Re have the halls of justice been politicized. Probably this fall Mitchell stepped down. A skeleton "Nixon for 1972" team is already forming and he will be. If this frightens Democrats they concern Copyright THE NEW REPUBLIC.

POINT OF VIEW

Nixon wants re-election, not justice

By JOSE TREVINO
Chairman, MSU Chicano
Veterans Assn.

In a beautiful example of what could aptly be described as protective self-criticism the Konfused Kitchen Cabinet of Konspirators in Washington proceeded to expose us over the past few months to one of its classical displays of American hypocritical justice at its best. The think tank saw fit to set up the mock trial of a tiny insignificant army lieutenant plus a couple of grunts for "war crimes and crimes against humanity."

(shades of Nuremberg). How clever can you get.

This adroit action was to serve the multi-purpose effect of: (1) transferring the responsibility and the blame for the genocide in Vietnam off the shoulders of the high government / military / industrial / leaders in this country; (2) deceiving the American people and the rest of the world into believing that this was truly an isolated incident committed in the heat of battle; (3) convincing nonbelievers and wavering ambivalents such as MSU's silently suspicious but frightened faculty, the eternal triumph of American justice.

Justice be damned; it is salaries and positions that count.

And when it doesn't it is simply because more repressive laws are needed to bring these dupes to justice, of course. The fact that the entire spectacle is falsely manufactured by the brain trust in Washington, D.C., to bail the conspirators out of trouble is of no concern. The "arrest" of several "suspects" in the bombing of the can incident and the judicial innuendoes against the Berrigan brothers fall into that class. Nobody is ever actually tried. And if they are they are naturally not convicted for lack of evidence. The object, of course, is to subject these bodies to public verbal flogging, which brings discredit to them and proves that a "conspiracy and national crisis of internal security" does, in fact, exist. The real cerebral coup is in the general propaganda value of the think tank's actions.

So, in less time than it takes the Klan Klavern Kleagel to incinerate a Kross in Kalamazoo, God fearing and benevolent America raised a hue and cry over the conviction of said William L. Calley, Lt. U.S. Army, such as has not been witnessed since Georing euechered the hangman at Nuremberg. And in even less time than that the all pervasive institutionalized racism in this country quickly reared its ugly head to do bigoted battle.

On nationwide TV the national commander of the VFV brought his heavy verbal artillery along with his racist scrambled brain to deliver a salvo claiming that Muhamed Ali was receiving better treatment than national hero Calley. His words were still ricocheting through America's living rooms when another patriot quickly picked up the tempo. This time the standard of measure was sister Angela Davis, an admitted Communist! Thus, the racist tone was set and the bigoted interrogatives and parallels drawn and tossed about. Was the president to intervene in their case and would they be convicted? The arguments were no longer revolving around Calley's conviction for horrendous crimes against humanity but around whether Muhamed and Angela would and should be convicted. Before long we could almost swear it was Ali and Angela who were really to blame for My Lai 4. If past experience serves our memory correctly, once the media and the patriots begin to tap the beat America will pick up the rhythm.

Meantime, Madman Milhous' sales force was out en masse surveying and assessing the situation with the entrepreneurial zest of a gilet eyed banker making a loan on a cornfield. They promptly counseled our leader that his rapidly sliding popularity rating could be quickly attenuated if he, the Madman himself, were to, very subtly of course, deftly snatch the opportunity, tactfully mind you, and offer some kind of consoling word in condolences to the bereaved but convicted aforementioned.

The Madman's sheer unadulterated joy knew no bounds. The priceless opportunity to ingratiate himself with the masses and advance the cause of re-election! He who hesitates is lost. He descended upon the sorrowful and tragic scene with the solemnity and prudence of a jackass having a bowel movement. He ordered the immediate release of the convicted criminal and in so doing left justice blindfolded, raped and bleeding on the steps of the National Shrine. The masses cheered and applauded lustily. He then called a press conference to put the proper finishing touch to this masterful ploy of political genius. Justice be damned; its re-election that counts.

But in the end frightened faculty, racism, et al, there might yet be a bright side to it all, though difficult it may be to discern. If Madman Milhous wants to sell himself to the American public badly enough he might just pull more troops out of Vietnam. No heavy bombers, though, rest assured of that.

And hope against hope, he may even negotiate for troops and arms reductions in Europe. Lastly, if he continues to play ping-pong with the Chinese, Sour puss Agnew not withstanding, America may even crown him king. And that is the final goal.

POINT OF VIEW

OCC cannot aid Greeks

By JOHN HAGEN Member of the
Off-Campus Council

A clarification of Off-Campus Council's position regarding Greek units and cooperatives is in order, in response to the editorial in the Tuesday, May 18, State News.

When the students voted in this term's ASMSU elections to give Residence Hall Assn. (RHA) and Off-Campus Council (OCC) voting seats on the ASMSU board, Pan Hellenic Council (Panhel), Interfraternity Council (IFC) and Inter-Cooperative Council (ICC) were left out, under the assumption that all students were represented through either RHA or OCC. This rationale was in disregard of the OCC constitution which states that OCC represents "all undergraduate students not currently residing in residence halls, fraternity, sorority, or University-recognized cooperative houses."

The referendum proposal was approved by the students, and at that time it was brought to the attention of OCC that Greeks were not represented. (No one seemed to be concerned that students living in co-ops were not represented). OCC members proposed an amendment to allow for proportional representation on OCC to students living in Greek houses and co-ops, immediately upon learning of the problem.

This proposed amendment to the OCC constitution was defeated at the following meeting of OCC for two reasons: one, the two votes that Greeks would get would reflect paternalism and tokenism (there are eleven voting seats on OCC); and two, Joe Ditzhazy (at that time president of IFC) requested that OCC retain its original constituency exactly, omitting Greeks, so that following impending merger of IFC and Panhel, the new "Inter-Greek" would be able to bargain for a separate vote (on the ASMSU board). In light of the differences between Greek interests and OCC interests at ASMSU meetings, OCC felt the separation would be amenable to both parties. Since the IFC had no interest in the OCC, the IFC was forced to also exclude Greeks (which had never been an option, anyway.) and leave the constitution intact exactly the same regarding constituency of OCC.

Nevertheless, there is a question regarding the intended constituency of OCC. Members of OCC contend that the interests of students living in apartments and houses are totally different from the interests of students living in Greek units and co-ops. (Generally, students residing in co-ops and Greek houses do not have problems related to landlord-tenant differences, signing leases, return of security deposits, maintenance, automobile parking, etc.; and generally they do not buy and prepare food on an individual basis.)

Thus, their concerns are unique, and OCC cannot possibly serve their interests adequately in addition to serving the needs of the thousands of independent dwellers and tenants of small houses in the Lansing-East Lansing area.

For the welfare of the students represented by OCC, the council has helped resolve the IFC and OCC conflicts and grievances. In the future, OCC has no intention of being a Campus Council. The campus council, which has been established, is a separate entity, and its members are not to be confused with the OCC members.

Other brochures and pamphlets regarding such things as how to Sue Someone in State Courts "court" are available for the taking at the Office at 316 Student Services. These are being compiled on all landlords, and the faculty and practicality of a tenant's union are being seriously considered and investigated, in addition to other miscellaneous work. So, it can be easily seen that OCC is serving the needs of the thousands of off-campus students who comprise a specialized interest group. The solution to the dispute regarding the enfranchisement of IFC, Panhel, and ICC is, then, not to represent them through OCC, but for OCC to consider its vote on the ASMSU board (along with RHA). This must be done through constitutional amendments approved by the students in a referendum.

'Place' takes complex look at racially oriented roles

After months of being dark, Detroit's off-Broadway oriented Vest Pocket Theater has finally reopened with a stunning production of Charles Gordone's 1970 Pulitzer Prize winning play, "No Place To Be Somebody."

Gordone is a new black playwright, and this is his first work. "No Place To Be Somebody" isn't just another black protest play, but one which delicately massages the question of appropriate roles people should play in terms of black, white, black-white and white-black relationships.

It is a complex work, and perhaps this is a fault. This play demands more than one viewing,

By KENNETH STERN
State News Staff Writer

for it is a bit much to swallow all in one sitting. "No Place To Be Somebody" is not a great work of theater, but an excellent start for a good new playwright very rare these days, and it warrants one's attention.

Gordone does not provide any easy or pat answers. His effort reflects the difficulty and complexity of interpersonal and intrapersonal relationships, and this is marvelous until he gets bogged down in melodramatic climatic endings.

After the violence has ended, the survivors seem to be the Coretta King types. Gabe Gabriel (note the religious connotation), who is the author of the play - within - a - play that comprises Gordone's work, dons black clothing, wraps it around his head and begins to look like Mrs. King.

Other survivors are those who act in consistency with their skin color. The blacks who seem white and the whites who try to be black are ridiculous, and only really exist when they begin to act like blacks or whites, according to Gordone's view and philosophy of the situation.

This is far more complicated than it would appear, and Gordone sets the stage for his audience to decide and think for themselves just what it is to be black or white, and what difference it makes.

Charles Gordone has directed his work at the Vest Pocket and the evening, until the end, is totally absorbing, quickly paced and at times brilliant.

The cast, headed by Philip Thomas and Terry Alexander, is superb, and Gordone has brought out from his actors and actresses the feelings and moods of his play to near perfection.

I had some trouble with the dialog, for some of the blacks in the cast could have had improved diction, but the feeling was there. I do not profess to have totally understood Gordone's play, for there is quite a lot there to understand, but I think that this is one play you should not miss.

MONEY, TIME TO SPARE Trips ready from 'U' to world

By DAVID BASSETT
State News Staff Writer

A globe-circling panorama of tours and trips is available in the near future to students, faculty, staff, administrators and alumni with a fair amount of time and money on their hands.

Sponsored by the Alumni Assn., the Union Board and Moosuski, these excursions vary from a canoe trip on the AuSable River to 16-day tour of Scandinavia.

A four-day 65-mile "luxury tour" of Michigan's AuSable River hosted by Moosuski will leave Roscommon May 28 and arrive in Mio two days later.

Spokesmen for Moosuski report the trip will feature a sirloin steak dinner Saturday night and a barbecued rib and chicken dinner Sunday night.

All equipment, including tents, electric generators and "all the 'un-cola' you can drink," will be provided.

The cost of the entire trip is $18 per person. The trip is open only to Moosuski members. A representative of Moosuski said, however, that membership still can be purchased for $4.

Those whose idea of a good time is a 13-day tour of Miami, Montego Bay in Jamaica and Curacao and Aruba in the Caribbean will have their fancy suited by Moosuski in June.

The trip will begin June 13 with a 747-jet flight to Miami for a two-night stay at the Fontainebleu Hotel. The tour will then make a three-night stop in Curacao at the Hilton Hotel, stay four nights at the Holiday Inn in Aruba, three nights in Montego Bay and return June 25 to Detroit via Miami.

Total costs of the trip vary from $380 per person for a four-man room to $434 per person for a two-man room.

The trip is open to anyone, and a 60 per cent reduction is available to children under 12 who share a room with a parent.

The Union Board is presently taking reservations for a $219 package tour of Europe which will leave Detroit on July 1 and return from Frankfurt, Germany on Aug. 1.

A similar Union Board-sponsored trip to London will leave Detroit July 9 and return Aug. 14. The cost of this trip is $199. Both are open only to students, faculty and staff and their immediate families.

In addition to these trips, the Union Board also offers a wide variety of services including Eurail Passes and tours offered by private agencies.

Members of the Alumni Assn. and their families are eligible for a four-day trip to New Orleans and the MSU - Georgia Tech football game in Atlanta next fall.

The tour will leave Detroit Sept. 16, stay in New Orleans for two days, stop over for two more days in Atlanta and return to Detroit on Sept. 19. Total cost of the trip is $293.

The Alumni Assn. also will sponsor an 11-day "Roman Adventure" next October. Cost of this trip is $389.

Job outlook dim in civil service

By JOANNA FIRESTONE
State News Staff Writer

A spokesman for the U.S. Civil Service Commission said Wednesday that only one out of every 25 eligible Michigan students will be hired for civil service positions this summer.

Ona Tannehill, personnel specialist for the Michigan area, said some 4,700 students have qualified for civil service positions.

"It looks as if there will be only 150 to 200 jobs available through the commission this summer," she said. "The last test for summer eligibility was in March, and if students did not score in the high 90 per cent, they had better not count on a government job this year."

Miss Tannehill said that although job openings are fewer than last year, Michigan ranks fourth in the nation in the total number of positions available to students.

Chicago, Ohio and Washington, D.C., all placed ahead of Michigan in summer government openings.

Commission officials blame the general U.S. economic climate for employment slowdowns and cutbacks.

"Summer positions are not the only market hit," Miss Tannehill said. "The commission has not been hiring its normal number of college graduates either."

Job prospects are better for students with typing and clerical skills, she said, since most major cutbacks have been in the area of defense programs and construction.

"Reductions in troop force and the cancellation of military projects in general have ruled out these job areas to a large extent."

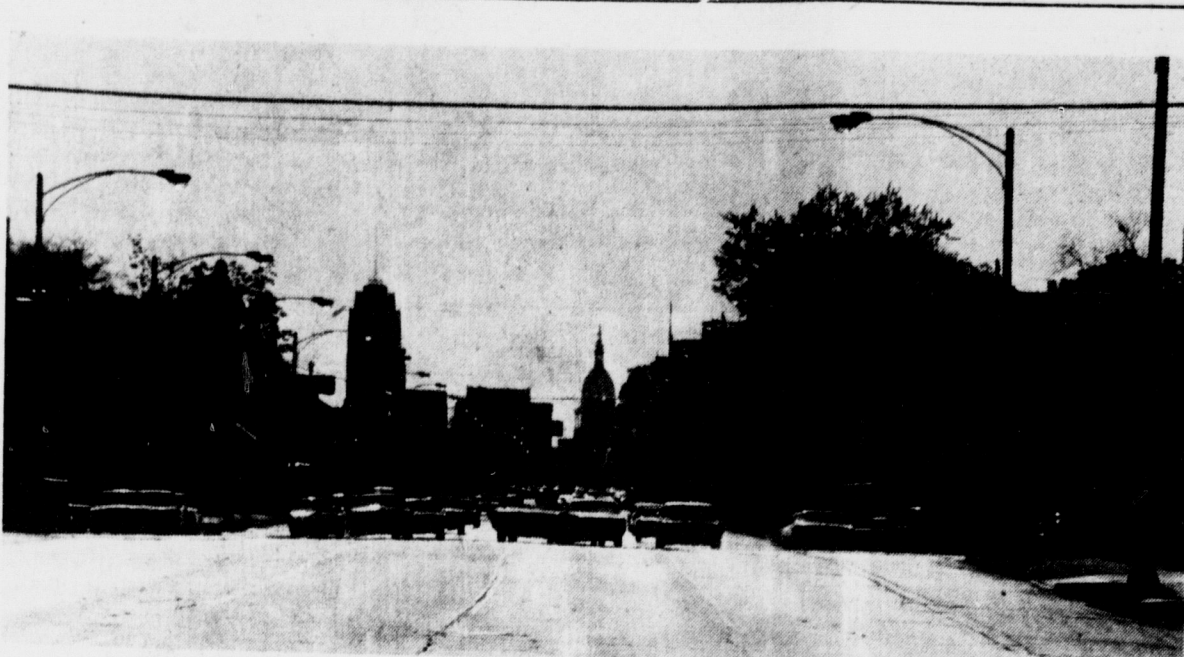

"If a student has secretarial skills and or is mobile and willing to move away from home to work for the summer, he has a much better chance of securing a government position. Thank god there will always be red tape and paper work to preserve at least the clerical jobs."

Miss Tannehill said students who have worked for the civil service commission in past years have an edge on inexperienced students, although test scores are the primary selection factor.

"If they have not yet received notification of eligibility," she warned, "there is little chance of a summer position."

Miss Tannehill said there has been somewhat of a slowdown in processing applications due to the tremendous increase in application numbers. "In our office, however, this problem seems to have been cleared up," she said.

Nationally, President Nixon is expected to extend his 1970 proclamation urging government branches to hire one needy student for every 10 employees.

Fight called 'hard to film'

By JONATHAN KAUFMAN

An award-winning black cinematographer told an audience of more than 100 people Tuesday in Conrad Hall auditorium that "Fight of the Champions," his 26-minute film of the Ali-Frazier fight, was "the most difficult thing I ever tried to film in my life."

Emmy Award winner William Greaves, former executive producer of NET's "Black Journal," said the fight reminded him "of the gladiatorial fights in Rome." Greaves said he used 12 cameras to film the fight, then edited 40,000 feet of color film in 24 hours to get the film to the theaters on time.

The second film Greaves showed, "In the Company of Men," won eight film festival awards. It is a documentary of a sensitivity training session between white supervisors and black "hard-core unemployed" assembly line workers in an Atlanta, Ga., auto plant.

The film was commissioned by Newsweek.

"I wasn't terribly excited by it but once I got into working on the project I became fascinated by it," Greaves said. He said it was a "mind-expanding experience" in exploring, researching and finally filming.

The film was shot in the "cinema verite" technique, in which each scene is shot as it actually took place, with no retakes. Using sensitive film emulsions, it can be shot with relatively lightweight cameras under room lights, instead of using the giant spotlights of the "standard Hollywood approach" to filmmaking.

Greaves said he expected to see the cinema verite technique used to a greater extent by young black and white filmmakers.

Greaves said he began acting on Broadway and in films in the '40s. The "Uncle Tom" roles he was constantly offered made him decide to get behind a camera and make films himself.

After spending more than $2,000 on filmmaking courses at the City University of New York, he came up against what he called the "incredible Iron Curtain" of the film industry in this country that prevents blacks from making films.

After unsuccessful attempts to get support from Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and others, he went to Canada to join the production staff of the National Film Board.

Greaves returned to the United States 11 years later to become producer for United Nations television, before starting William Greaves Productions.

THE POSSIBILITY OF CALLING FOR the legalization of marijuana is on the agenda of the Michigan Public Health Assn.'s meeting to be held this week in Grand Rapids.

If the proposal passes at the meeting, a spokesman has said a statement will be attached to the measure saying that the resolution does not condone the use of marijuana but that the association thinks removal of criminal penalties for its use would be appropriate.

Board recommends level population goal

By United Press International

Gov. Milliken's Advisory Council on Environmental Quality said Wednesday the state should adopt a goal of achieving zero population growth as soon as possible.

But it said that even if the goal of zero population growth were adopted immediately, it would take 70 years before the population stopped growing.

It said zero population growth could be achieved with today's conditions by averaging two children per family with mothers approximately 27 years old producing the children. But it said since one-half of the population is under 28 years of age, the full 70-year period would need to expire before deaths equaled births.

"Most animal populations utilize migration and high death rates to serve as population controls," it said. "Human populations are no longer utilizing either of these two mechanisms. Population can only be obtained through the regulation of the number of births per family unit in human society."

The council recommended that Milliken appoint a team of personnel to develop details of a zero population growth program immediately.

It said two types of cultural changes will be necessary to stop the population increase: "Reduce the desired size of families and reduce the social pressure to marry and have a family."

It said large families traditionally have been desired "because of the uncertainty that any one child will survive to adulthood, because of the value of children as old age security to parents and because of the economic value of children as income producers for the family."

It said for the "already affluent middle class, larger families can be made an economic liability by increasing the incentives for and the costs of advanced education for their children."

If zero population growth is to become a reality, the report said, all members of society must "have adequate knowledge about and access to medically and aesthetically sound birth control methods."

TRACKS ERIC ALLEN

"The Flea" keeps jumpin'

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

"The Flea" keeps jumpin'. And with him go some high hopes for the Spartans' first conference track championship since 1966.

"The Flea," of course, is Eric Allen. And any who saw him dancing around opposing defenders last fall might rightfully wonder what he's doing on the track, or rather, in the field, and in the triple jump.

Well, Duffy Daugherty saw no great need for MSU's most valuable player of last fall to risk injury in spring practice. Not to mention, he's got a starting berth sewed up. So to the track he went. And has he gone!

Last Saturday it was 49-5, almost a foot better in the old hop-step-jump than Jim Garrett had gone in the days when the triple jump was a novelty and not a regular event.

But Allen has it down to a science now. The science is simple. It means getting his steps and taking off at the right spot.

It involves timing, and this is something Allen knows.

His timing, and his jumping, was good enough to win the Big Ten indoor title for him in 1970. It was not good enough indoors this year and his foul by one inch on a 48-7 jump cost him runner-up honors in the meet.

But not top honors, because Wisconsin has come up with a triple jumper, a freshman out of Kenya named Patrick Onyango who's rewritten the Big Ten records in the event.

Yet Spartan Coach Fran Dittrich figures that Allen's 49-5 of last week shows a lot, even though its strict legality is probably questionable because of windy conditions which may have aided the 160-pound South Carolina junior.

"I think that he's a fine, all-around athlete," Dittrich said, "and because of this he's a top competitor. He always rises to the occasion."

Dittrich, an all-America triple jumper himself in his days at MSU, pointed out that Allen could probably be much better in the event if he'd put more work into it.

Allen is seemingly not concerned with how far he jumps, but just with whether he wins or loses. And that, Dittrich thinks, is the way it should be.

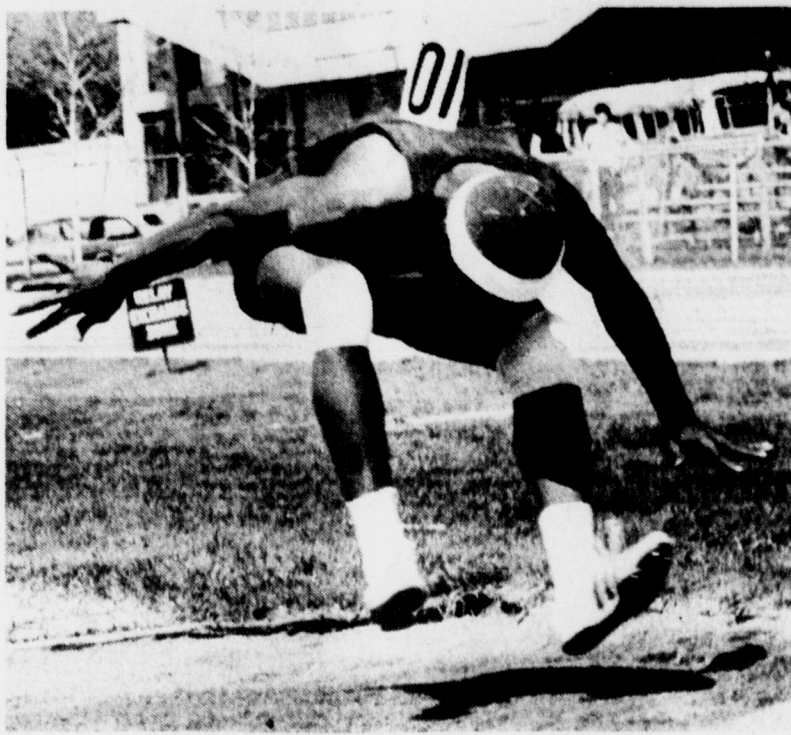

"He's quite a team man," the Spartan mentor said. "He talks with everybody, kids around and keeps things loose."

Allen will have to be quite a team man next week. He rates second to Onyango in the league's triple jump listing and the Spartans could use the eight or ten points that a second or first place finish is good for.

Dittrich anticipates no problems for Allen like those he encountered outdoors. He has fouled seldom in this outdoor season and his jumps generally have been in the 47-48 foot range, which would still place him fourth or so in the league if his top rivals all had good days.

"When everything is right, he's one of the best," Dittrich enthused.

Everything will have to be right next week for Allen. If it is, he might even win at his favorite card game.

Cowboys' Thomas remains unsigned

By MILTON RICHMOND
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Duane Thomas lost me somewhere.

He's the fine running back for the Dallas Cowboys or maybe you'd better make that he was their fine running back.

Duane Thomas says he's quitting the Dallas Cowboys and those people who claim to know him best say whenever he says anything he means it.

A three-year contract seems to be at the seat of all the trouble. The three-year contract has Duane Thomas' name on it and calls for approximately $22,500 a year plus a few fringe benefits. Thomas thought it was a pretty good contract when he signed it a year ago, but he doesn't think it's so good anymore. He wants a new one, for more money, naturally.

Multiple-year contracts are much more common in pro football and basketball than they are in baseball because the football and basketball whiz kids coming out of college generally are in greater demand by the pros than their baseball brethren.

Maybe you've heard of the Yiddish word "chutzpah," technically it means nerve but that's losing a lot in the translation. Actually it comes closer to meaning gall, brass and pure affrontery all put together.

Until now the classic definition of the word was best illustrated by the famous story of the young man who murdered both his parents and then asked the court for mercy on the grounds he now was an orphan.

But these athletes who insist on signing multiple-year contracts are showing some "chutzpah" too.

What frequently happens in football and basketball with those who sign these three-year contracts is that they have a good first year, like Thomas did, and then demand to re-negotiate their contracts. If that first year happens to be a poor one, they simply keep playing for the original amount.

Duane Thomas isn't really that much to blame. He is only trying to do what he has seen so many others do. One of the things that bothered Thomas had to do with a provision in his contract calling for him to receive an added sum should he be voted rookie of the year.

Dennis Shaw of Buffalo and Bruce Taylor of San Francisco were voted to two rookies of the year by the UPI which selects from both conferences, while the AP had Shaw alone.

Thomas still felt he was entitled to the money set for in his contract because he was named Rookie of the Year by magazine. That prompted the wag to say "then let the magazine pay him the money but the Cowboys paid it. Thomas nonetheless.

He says he's quitting any

Duane Thomas didn't do badly for a 23-year-old rookie. Along with his salary got an additional 1/14th of amount for the division playoffs an added $8,500 for the NFL championship; an extra $7,500 for the Super Bowl, plus the Cowboys gave him for being named by the magazine.

"There is no possible way give a player a sizeable bonus a one-year contract," says an NFL general manager. "This simple economics.

RICK GOSSELIN

Who really won and lost the Cup

Gone are the days of the glorious Canadiens. The national heroes of Quebec. No longer do the French Canadian names fill the Montreal roster. No longer do the famed "Flying Frenchmen" carry the Montreal play.

Yes, Montreal won the Cup. And yes, it's only the fifth time in the last seven years that the Habs have copied it. But this year, for some strange reason, it was different. It just wasn't the same as in the past when the Frenchmen took the Cup.

In the past it was always a Beliveau, or a Savard, or a Rousseau, or a Laperriere who cashed in when the chips were on the table to give the Canadiens the Cup. This year, it was a Dryden. And a Mahovlich. And to go even further, another Mahovlich. And all of a sudden the French matinee idols are playing second fiddle to three gangling English-speaking Canadiens.

It just wasn't the same feeling. Dynasties are fun, but only for a certain length of time. Then the feeling inside gets sort of hollow. And after watching Montreal take the final game from the Black Hawks and clinch the Cup — well, the feeling was hollow.

I wanted Chicago to win. They deserved to. But you'll say Montreal deserved to win also. They had to bump off Boston in Boston in the last game of the quarterfinals to advance, and that alone should have merited the Cup. Then they had to come back from a two game deficit to overtake the Hawks in the finals, and that also is clutch hockey. And to top it off, the Habs had to beat Chicago in Chicago — in front of 20,000 screaming fans — to secure hockey's most coveted trophy. And were successful in its efforts.

But this wasn't the same fluent, easy going bunch of Canadiens who have for so long dominated hockey. They got down in the series early, and had to scrap just like the lower echelon teams had to against Montreal in earlier days. They had to accept the type of goals that they normally would have thrown back a few years ago. They even had a tough time disposing of Minnesota. In short, they finally had to work for a Cup.

It's not that I wanted Montreal to lose, it's just that I wanted Chicago to win. Paradoxical? Well, not if you look at two players, Bobby Hull and Jean Beliveau.

One of them had to lose, and one of them would have to win. Beliveau, like so many times in the past, won. Hull, like so many times in the past, ran out of time. Bobby Hull never loses. Great men just don't lose. Time always runs out on them.

Rumors have been floating around Canada that this would be Beliveau's last season. The least the NHL could do for this man would be to let him go on the Cup once again. He's not only been the greatest center iceman ever to don skates in the NHL, but also a distinguished gentleman whose presence adds dignity to the game.

To appreciate the game, you've got to watch Beliveau stickhandle. He doesn't make mistakes. He is the epitome of hockey excellence. Winning and Beliveau are synonymous. He deserved to win. He always does.

But Hull, he has never had the luck that Beliveau has had. Hull has always carried his team. He's the type of player that feels he's not doing his share if he's not tugging 200% of the load.

But in recent years he has mellowed. He has taken focus off of the net and aimed his sights at setting up goals. Now he is accused of passing off too much. He has become a complete team player. But the Golden Jet is still flying high.

Tuesday night when the Hawks were down, the Chicago team was forced to look for Hull. They needed Bobby to shoot. Bobby strained to add every extra ounce of power on every shot. He wanted that goal. Not for himself, but rather for his team mates. In this situation, the best way for him to serve the capacity of being a team player would be to score.

The effort was there, but the goals were not. When the final buzzer sounded, Hull was there smiling and offering his congratulations. Montreal had won the Cup. There would be no tomorrow for Bobby Hull and the Chicago Black Hawks. Time ran out on Bobby Hull. But one of these times time won't run out on Hull. I was hoping that it would be this year.

Batsman Rashead ends slump

By JOHN VIGES
State News Sports Writer

Exhilaration and frustration. An unusual combination at best, but Phil Rashead has felt both throughout the baseball season.

The tremendous feeling that everything is right with the world comes when you are a member of the best team in the Big 10 and will close your college career with a championship.

Frustration sets in when it seems that everyone else on the squad is driving in and scoring runs, but you return directly to the dugout after each at bat.

For Rashead, the frustration is now a fading memory.

The Flint senior is once again an integral part of MSU's hitting attack, as he proved against Wisconsin and Northwestern.

"I knew that I would come out of my slump eventually," Rashead said, "and this helped cut the frustration some, but it was bad for a while. I couldn't figure out what I was doing wrong."

He was pulling his head, lunging at the ball and not attacking it, but this is never apparent when in the middle of a slump.

For a long time it seemed as if he wouldn't discover the problem but after hours of self analysis he realized what was going wrong and corrected it in time to collect six hits over the four game weekend.

Rashead has been having hitting problems ever since returning from Florida. His average was just above the .200 mark and during one stretch he was 0-17 at the plate.

Even the hit that broke the hitless streak, was of the infield variety. Whenever he did hit the ball solid it always seemed to be right at a fielder.

"I felt bad that I wasn't pulling my weight," Rashead explains. "Everyone else was hitting and I wasn't. You get the feeling that you're not contributing anything."

"It was frustrating but I didn't lose my confidence. Although it hasn't been this bad before, I usually start slow and really get going by the end of the college season and the start of summer ball."

The long drought on RBI's came to an end when Rashead hit a base loaded single against Indiana.

Three days later, against Notre Dame, the hits began to come in quantity as he had three in a double header.

Against Wisconsin and Northwestern, the Spartan third baseman put it all together with four hits against the Badgers, including a double and a two run homer. The next day a double and single accounted for five MSU runs in the 16-6 route of the Wildcats.

"Playing with a good club, it's easier to work out mistakes," Rashead said. "I knew that I would work things out if given the chance and I was. It feels a lot better now that I'm contributing."

Rashead's "contributions" have raised his batting average back to a respectable .246 and he has four important conference games and possible tournament games in which to raise it.

Rookie Dryden gets Conn Smythe Trophy

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ken Dryden, the sensational rookie goaltender for the champion Montreal Canadiens, was an overwhelming winner in the balloting for the Conn Smythe trophy, awarded annually to the outstanding player in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Dryden, a 6-4 law student at McGill University, received 47 of a maximum 55 points in voting conducted among members of the National Hockey League writers association. Frank Mahovlich of Montreal and Bobby Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks were second and third, respectively, in the voting.

Dryden, who appeared in only six regular season games after being called up from the minors, set a record by taking part in all 20 of Montreal's playoff games.

The Canadiens won the Stanley Cup Tuesday night by beating the Black Hawks, 3-2, in Chicago and Dryden received the Conn Smythe Trophy from NHL President Clarence Campbell after the game.

Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins won the Smythe Trophy last year.

POLICE BRIEFS

A 23-YEAR-OLD MAN, who gave no permanent address, remained in Ingham County Jail Wednesday after he failed to post $3,000 bond at arraignment Tuesday on charges of forging a check.

Fredrick W. Rogers was arrested about 1 p.m. Tuesday and later stood mute at arraignment in East Lansing District Court. Police said Rogers is also wanted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for parole violation and will be turned over after East Lansing prosecution is complete.

MSU police said the man allegedly signed someone else's name to a check and then paid it to a student organization. Police declined to release further details on the incident to avoid influencing opinion before the case comes to trial.

SIX BICYCLES, with a total estimated value of $345, were reported stolen Tuesday by students who reportedly parked the bikes in campus areas. Tuesday's thefts bring the total stolen bicycles this week to 16, the total value of which is estimated at $1,167.

An MSU officer said Wednesday he was not certain whether a connection exists among this week's thefts. Police reportedly have found no evidence of an organized bike theft effort. * * *

AN ESTIMATED $40 in damage reportedly occurred sometime between Monday and Tuesday to a 1969 Chevrolet parked in the Shaw Lane ramp when someone apparently used a sharp instrument to slash the convertible top of the vehicle owned by Christopher P. Laboskey, Flint graduate student.

out of phase with the typical cycle," Elliot Ballard, assistant to President Wharton, said Tuesday.

Wilkinson said University financial officers will start on the 1972-73 budget request before they know what the legislative appropriation of 1971-1972 is.

Both said one of the most difficult problems involved is anticipating the types of information and statistics the legislature or governor's office will require in evaluating the request.

To facilitate the preparation of the budget in a short time, University financial officers must consider all the alternatives before they happen, including appropriation increases and decreases, Ballard said.

University administrators refuse to be critical of the delay in legislative action.

"The state government is in a really terrible bind right now and of course we're going to help them," Ballard said. "Our problem is a function of their problem. They're mutual. We are a part of state government."

Wilkinson said he was confident of the success of "the constructive efforts of those in the legislative and executive branches of government who are acutely aware of their public responsibility in resolving these problems."

They're off!

questioned the advisability of adopting the recommendation because it "leads toward an instant tenure system," according to Manfred D. Engelmann, professor of natural science.

He suggested "some sort of weasel wording" to assure that quality and judgmental reasons be legitimate for nonreappointment.

Engelmann said reasons such as a faculty member's scholarship or fitting into the department "are passe reasons when we get to the courts."

Wilbur B. Brookover, professor of sociology and member of the Tenure Committee, said "there is no indication" in the recommendation that judgmental reasons are not "perfectly legitimate."

The senate also approved the Graduate Student Rights and Responsibilities document. The recommendation to include the Graduate Council in the Bylaws of the Faculty also was approved.

It was announced at the meeting that the three victors in the steering committee election were James T. Bonnen, professor of agricultural economics; Beatrice Paolucci, professor of family ecology; and Walter F. Johnson, professor of administration and higher education. They will serve two-year terms on the committee.

Frederick Williams, professor of history, was elected to serve as the chairman of the new University Committee on Faculty Affairs and Faculty Compensation.

Three nominees for seats on the Athletic Council also were announced. The new council members are Wilbur B. Brookover, professor of sociology; Reed Moyer, professor of marketing and transportation administration; and Irvin E. Vance, associate professor of mathematics.

A vigil, planned to continue as long as the jury deliberates a verdict for Bobby Seale and Erica, is expected to begin Friday afternoon in New Haven, Conn., according to a local coordinator of the May Day continuations group.

May Day Continuations and other interested groups are seeking attendance and support for the vigil to show the jury "that the people know that Bobby and Erica must be set free," the spokesman said. Information on the vigil may be obtained by calling 203-777-3185.

On May 27, the spokesman added, the Indiana Youth and Students for a People's Peace are also planning demonstrations in Indianapolis during the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's (NATO) Conference on Cities, to run from Tuesday to next Friday. The conference is expected to seek to change NATO's image from military concerns to model cities projects.

Demonstrations will be aimed at confronting the government with demands for a people's peace and at showing the international delegates "that Nixon does not represent us," he said.

Invitations have gone out from President Nixon and from Indianapolis Mayor Richard Lugar to 2,000 delegates from around the world and to 1,000 members of the press and other media. Vice President Spiro Agnew will address the group on Tuesday, and Nixon will deliver a closing speech on Friday.

Thursday's demonstrations will begin, with a counter-conference focusing on the People's Peace Treaty, how it relates to NATO and how NATO relates to cities' problems. On Friday, a morning rally with speakers is planned, in addition to a nonviolent confrontation that afternoon when Nixon speaks.

Emphasis of these actions centers on ratification and implementation of the peace treaty, specifically in the Indianapolis area. Housing will be provided for demonstrators, who are asked to bring sleeping bags.

For this summer, People's Peace Treaty workers in the National Treaty Office in New York City are calling for a return to grass roots tactics to talk about ending the war in Indochina.

Focusing on the peace treaty, the office says, "Summer '71" will serve as a foundation for a communications network to respond to military or political crises in Indochina or at home. The office in New York will publish a weekly newsletter and coordinate treaty efforts.
