Thieu wins landslide 'vote of confidence'

Thieu casts vote

President Nguyen Van Thieu casts his ballot in Saigon Sunday in the presidential election in which he is the only candidate. "Another four year term is less important to me than the opportunity to bring peace to Vietnam," he said.

SAIGON (AP) — Early results from South Vietnam's presidential balloting indicated Sunday night an overwhelming "vote of confidence" for President Nguyen Van Thieu in an election marred by enemy shelling, terrorism and bloody street rioting.

Final results from 13 of 56 electoral constituencies, posted before the National Election Center closed for the night, showed an average of 96.2 per cent of the votes for Thieu and only 3.8 against him.

Thieu was the only presidential candidate. Citizens could vote against him by mutilating or defacing the ballot or by putting an empty envelope in the ballot box.

Go Cong province in the Mekong Delta had the highest pro-Thieu vote with 99.7 per cent, and Thieu's home province of Ninh Thuan reported 99.25 per cent of its ballots for the president.

The lowest reported figure was 74.4 per cent in Da Nang city, where at least 57 persons were wounded in anti-Thieu rioting. Unconfirmed reports said nine others were killed, seven of them combat policemen, during day-long clashes in the nation's second-largest city.

Nationwide, at least 20 persons were known dead and more than 100 wounded in rocket and mortar attacks, terrorist incidents and antigovernment demonstrations.

With figures complete for 53 of the 56 constituencies, election officials said voter turnout averaged 89.2 per cent of South Vietnam's more than seven million registered voters.

Final results are not expected to be available before late Monday.

Thieu has specified 50 per cent of the vote as necessary for his "vote of confidence," and said he would resign if he does not get it.

But when casting his ballot at Saigon's city hall, Thieu told newsmen that even if he gets the 50 per cent, "it does not mean I will immediately accept another term. I will consider all the factors."

He repeated that he plans to retire when he achieves peace.

"Another four-year term is less important to me than the opportunity to bring peace to Vietnam," he said. "The important thing is that I achieve peace, whether that be in three to five months or in one to two years."

He also declared the enemy had failed in its efforts to disrupt the voting.

In a day of recurring street clashes between rioters and police and troops, at least 57 persons were wounded, Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from Da Nang.

The wounded included nine policemen and 48 civilians. Of the total, Jensen said, 31 were wounded by gunfire and 26 by grenade fragments.

Heavy voter sign-up to slow paperwork

By BOB ROACH
Executive Reporter

More than 7,500 persons, predominately students, got together in the last two weeks to solve one problem in the emotion-laden East Lansing political scene, but inadvertently caused another.

The first problem was: "Do students care about local political issues?"

Changed name

Circuit Court Judge Norris Maloney has granted permission for Mrs. Richard Smuckler, 23, of Madison, Wis., to change her name to her maiden name of Stephanie Twin. Her husband of three years encouraged her to make the change. The court said there is no law requiring a married woman to take her husband's name.

Close to 7,500 students — more than one-third of the estimated 22,000 eligible but unregistered voters at MSU — effectively silenced those who said they were apathetic.

The voting rolls for the Nov. 2 city council election have now swelled to nearly 22,000 from the 14,000 voters registered for the August primary. Observers say many students over 21 were on the rolls then. The 7,500 who joined them signed up between the opening of school Sept. 20 and Friday night's deadline.

But the 7,500 new registered voters must now be processed into precinct books before the election day and the massive paperwork involved may prevent candidates from learning which students are registered and where to reach them.

Neil Colburn brought this second problem to light Sunday.

Colburn worked in the recent push for student registration and is now coordinating the campaigns for his brother, George A. Colburn, and George L. Griffiths, both of Project: City Hall. They have formed an alliance with Chuck Will of the Coalition for Human Survival. Will was defeated in the primary and will run as a write-in candidate.

Colburn said the most optimistic observers were predicting 3 - 5,000 persons would register between the return of students for fall term enrollment and the registration deadline. The 7,500 who actually registered match the total number of voters in the primary — when a record 54 per cent of the 14,000 registered voters went to the polls, he added.

City Manager John M. Patriarche Sunday verified the two-week total of 7,500 registrants, including 2,119 who signed up on the Friday deadline. An estimated 1,600 of these were students enrolled at the Union by volunteers from the League of Women Voters.

'U' sex inequity seen in pay

By DIANE PETRYK
State News Staff Writer

MSU hires women only if they can buy "slave labor," according to Vicki Neiberg, coordinator for The Alliance to End Sex Discrimination at MSU.

At a meeting of about 70 University women Thursday night, Ms. Neiberg said MSU has its own documented evidence of inequities concerning administration and faculty women, but nothing is being done to correct the situation.

She referred specifically to the Report on Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action at Michigan State University 1970-71 prepared by the vicepresident for University Relations. In Appendix II of the report, titled, "A Compilation of Data on Faculty Women at Michigan State University Report No. 2," a summary of data states:

"The average salaries of men with doctorates at all ranks are somewhat higher than those of women with the same degrees, at the same rank, in the same colleges, employed the same number of months, except in a few cases. (See Table 16 for exceptions.)"

"When you look at Table 16," Ms. Neiberg said, "you see what 'somewhat higher' actually means. To me, $4,000 is not 'somewhat' higher."

In a separate State News calculation, Table 16, which gives average salaries of 10 and 12-month faculty with doctorates by college, rank and sex, showed in almost all cases, that men are paid more than women on the average at the same rank in the same college.

Diplomas

Students who plan to graduate at the end of fall term and who have not yet made application for a diploma should do so immediately in 150 Administration Bldg.

Table 16 did not mention tenure, total length of employment, number and types of degrees or class loads.

Subtracting the women's salaries from the men's for 12-month faculty at the professor level, the differences are as follows:

In education, the average amount men receive more than women is $784; in Human Ecology (formerly home economics) $1,633.

For 10-month faculty, in Arts and Letters, $1,249; Business, $4,809; Education, $1,534; Natural Science, $1,775; Social Science, $3,777; University College, $1,047.

The lone exception is in Veterinary Medicine, where a woman professor (there is only one) earns an average of $2,500 more than her male counterparts.

Since deans, department chairmen, directors and those in the central administration were omitted from these averages, it cannot be assumed that the male average is higher due to the higher salaries paid these positions, almost exclusively filled by men.

At the associate professor level, for 12-month faculty, the average male is paid $1,020 more in Education; $8,067 more in Human Medicine; $480 in Natural Science; and $1,092 in Veterinary Medicine.

For 10-month faculty, the average male associate professor is paid $86 more in Arts and Letters; $1,963 more in Communication Arts; $1,604 in Education; $525 in Human Ecology; $2,002 in Natural Science; $916 in Social Science and $633 in Veterinary Medicine.

In University College, 10-month faculty women associate professors are paid an average of $37 more than their male counterparts.

At the assistant professor level, for 12-month faculty, the average male is paid $1,625 more in Human Ecology and $2,294 more in Human Medicine.

In Education, 12-month faculty women assistant professors are paid an average of $1,747 more than their male counterparts

Heavy demand depletes 'U' funds for financial aid

By BILL HOLSTEIN
State News Staff Writer

Even though more financial aid is available to students this year than last, increased demand for money has surpassed the increase of funds, the director of the Office of Financial Aids said Friday.

Henry C. Dykema said several sources of financial aid, including Educational Opportunity grants (EOG) totaling $13. million for the 1971-72 academic year, have already been "committed" to students for this year. A source is "committed" when its funds have been promised to students over a period of three terms.

Other programs are close to being committed. National Defense Student Loans which will provide about $3.2 million this year compared with $2.5 million last year, are within a few thousand dollars of being depleted, Dykema said. Dykema said his office anticipates a number of students, who have been promised financial aid, will drop out of school during the year thus making possible distribution of those funds to other students.

"According to past history, we'll pick up a few thousand that way," he said.

Two sources of financial aid are more readily available this year to students than other programs: Student Aid Grants and Guaranteed Education Loans. MSU provides the Student Aid Grants, while a student gets a Guaranteed Education Loan by going to a bank or other lending agency. (Dykema can provide students with names of institutions willing to make loans to students.)

The Student Aid Grant program was created during 1969-70 as a replacement for the Fee Reduction program. During the 1970-71 year, 7,374 students received aid totaling $2,186,860 for this program.

Some financial aid programs, even though increased in size, are particularly strapped for funds, Dykema said. Loans and grants for health profession students and law enforcement students are two programs where demand surpasses money available by a wide margin.

About $189,000 was given or loaned to students in nursing, osteopathy, veterinary science and human medicine during 1970-71. Dykema said MSU students needed $364,900 for the current year but will receive only about $298,000. These funds are provided by the federal government and MSU on a matching basis.

Similarly, MSU asked the federal government for $337,700 to support the Law Enforcement Education Program (LEEP) but only received $192,000 with a "strong promise" of another $30,000 sometime during the year.

"There are 200 students who qualify for this program," said Dykema. "I can't give 'em a dime — not a dime."

In both of these cases, Dykema explained, the number of students enrolled are increasing at a considerable rate. MSU's colleges of medicine are in the early stages of growth while the more established law enforcement program is growing at a 25 per cent per year rate, he said.

Dykema gave three reasons to explain the increased demand for financial aids:

•The University is encouraging more students from lower economic backgrounds to enroll. Consequently, the composition of

Russia's probe orbits

The Soviet Union's newest moon probe, the unmanned Luna 19, entered a lunar orbit Sunday and was functioning as a moon satellite, Tass announced.

The official Soviet news agency gave no word about the precise mission of Luna 19, launched Sept. 28 following three consecutive space failures by the Soviet Union.

But the working of announcements about Luna 19 caused some Western scientific observers to speculate it would not land on the moon.

Pacifists protest election

Four American pacifists set up their own "American Embassy" on Sunday "to represent the people" in one of the sideshows to South Vietnam's one-man presidential election.

"We feel there should be some kind of alternate presence which really represents the majority of the American people," said Father Harry Bury, who Saturday had chained himself to the U.S. embassy gate. "We went to see Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker yesterday and we tried to express this to him," he added. "We found that he is alive and well and living in 1950s."

Right to leave proposed

Eminent Russian physicist Andrei D. Sakharov has proposed that the Soviet Union grant all citizens the right to leave the country. He said such a right is "an essential condition for spiritual freedom for everyone."

Sakharov, developer of the Soviet hydrogen bomb and a champion of human rights, proposed the free emigration policy in an open letter to the Supreme Soviet.

He recommended that the legislative body revoke the current law that permits persons fleeing the country to be tried for high treason. The scientist also asked for a general amnesty for persons detained in labor camps or mental hospitals because they had tried to leave the Soviet Union.

Humphrey not satisfied

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is not a man of the temperament to settle for a back-bench role in the Senate, and he may one day be seeking to reclaim the Democratic leadership position he once held.

There is evidence the junior senator from Minnesota, who has spent 15 years in the Senate and four as vice president, is not satisfied with the way things are being run now.

At the moment, Humphrey's political goal lies beyond the Capitol. He is preparing for what is likely to be a bid to run again in 1972, for the second time, as Democratic nominee for the White House.

Strikers still negotiate

The dock strike that closed ports from Canada to Mexico enters its 96th day on Monday, making it the longest in West Coast history, and mediators said Sunday the negotiators were making some progress.

Negotiations in the East Coast dock strike — that started Friday and produced the first coast-to-coast longshoremen's walkout — were scheduled to resume Monday. Union negotiators in the mine workers' walkout were to report to their members Monday.

J. Curtis Courts, the chief federal mediator who has been meeting with both sides in the West Coast strike, said Sunday in San Francisco, "We are nearer a settlement than we were before and we're still trying."

Lindsay not 4th party

Mayor John V. Lindsay practically ruled out a four party candidacy for the presidency Sunday.

Lindsay said in a television and radio interview that he switched from Republican to Democrat because he felt the Democratic party represents "the only real hope for a realistic chance in 1972."

Lansing gets U.S. transit aid

By RANDY GARTON
State News Staff Writer

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe announced at a Lansing Civic Center press conference Saturday a grant of $616,411 to Lansing for the purchase of 21 new buses, including six electric, battery-powered models, the first electric bus experiment in the nation.

Volpe called the introduction of pollution-free, mass transit vehicles an "ecological breakthrough," and predicted that Lansing's "pioneering effort will be widely observed and can be expected to have an impact upon the improvement of mass transit technology."

The grant from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration's (UMTA) funds will cover the entire cost of the six electrically-powered vehicles and two-thirds of the cost of the conventional buses.

The remaining funds for the $924,617 project will be jointly provided by the City of Lansing, the Lansing Model Cities Agency and the State of Michigan.

VOLPE

Bureau of Transportation.

The 15 conventional buses will be used to augment the existing bus service and enable its extension into the Model Cities areas. The electric buses will be used in a new downtown bus distribution system.

Volpe commented that the Lansing grant was the latest in a series of efforts by the UMTA to improve public transportation in the United States. He said UMTA funds have helped purchase 6,500 new buses across the country.

Lansing has had a troubled public transportation system compounded by a devastating bus strike last fall. City officials are hopeful that the UMTA grant will contribute to the construction of a viable public transportation system in the city.

Volpe was in Lansing to address a Christopher Columbus Day banquet sponsored by the Lansing Italian-American Club. Also present at the banquet, but not participating in the press conference, were U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., and Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain, R-E. Lansing.

In his prepared remarks,

Volpe blasted what he called the "campaign trail rhetoric" employed by some critics of President Nixon's economic policies.

Volpe said that the attacks of politicians campaigning far from Washington were "irresponsible" and designed to "produce generous campaign contributions and local publicity rather than constructive alternatives."

Volpe called for an end to what he termed "absentee criticism" and a return to responsible criticism in government.

Senators petition for antibusing law

By RANDY GARTON
State News Staff Writer

State Sen. John T. Bowman, D-Roseville, announced at a Friday press conference that he and Sen. John E. McCauley, D-Wyandotte, will sponsor a senate concurrent resolution when the legislature returns Oct. 26. The resolution will call for an amendment to the U.S. Constitution that would end massive busing of students to achieve racial integration.

Bowman said the resolution was prompted by the recent ruling by U.S. District Judge Stephen Roth, that Detroit's school system must be integrated.

"In order to protect the people from these arbitrary and unreasonable decisions, we should clearly spell out by constitutional amendment the will of the people," he said.

Bowman said he was in the process of contacting every legislative leader in the nation to collect support for the amendment.

The amendment reads, in part: "No student shall be assigned to nor compelled to attend any particular public school on account of race, religion, color or national origin..."

Bowman said the wording of the resolution is similar to that in a law passed by the New York legislature recently.

Bowman said that it will take three-fourths of all the states to pass a similar resolution petitioning Congress to submit to the states a constitutional amendment with the same language.

He said he hopes that if enough pressure is brought to bear upon Congress, the amendment will be passed in Washington and given to the states for ratification.

"It would be much easier and faster," he said, "if the members of Congress would immediately submit to the states a constitutional amendment of the same nature."

Bowman said he had not talked to any Congressmen about the matter.

The Roseville Senator denied that the anti-busing measure was racially motivated, saying that recent polls indicated that most blacks disliked busing as much as whites.

"Black parents are no different from white parents in that they both love their children, and want them to go to the school around the corner, rather than be bused miles away," he said.

The main issue, he said, was whether parents or the state has control over the children.

Although most legislators were out of town and unavailable for comment, one state representative who is still in Lansing reacted negatively to Bowman's announcement.

Rep. Jackie Vaughn III, D-Detroit, said the antibusing resolution was a "tragedy" and that Senators Bowman and McCauley were giving "aid and comfort to bigotry."

"I am totally opposed to it," Vaughn said, "and I hope the legislature doesn't waste much time with it."

CITIES 'MINOR MISUSES'

Ryan raps annual audit

By JOANNA FIRESTONE
State News Staff Writer

Speaker of the House William A. Ryan, D-Detroit, said Friday that Gov. Milliken's recent call for an annual audit on the state legislature is "politically motivated" and "anti-legislature" in tone.

Ryan noted that the House and Senate were audited by the Auditor General in 1967 and that "only very minor" instances of fund misuses were found.

"Even though the legislative budget is minuscule in comparison to the rest of the state budget, we still try to keep our workings an open book to the press and public," he said.

"All the trouble seems to be stirred up by representatives wanting to get a little ink back home. These same legislators are usually the ones who, the next day, are in my office asking for favors."

Ryan appeared on a panel with Republican State Senate Leader Robert VanderLaan, R-Kentwood, and Asst. House Republican Leader Thomas G. Ford of Grand Rapids as a part of a public affairs conference sponsored by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

VanderLaan and Ford, who disagree with the speaker, said the legislature should be submitted to the same financial scrutiny as other state supported agencies.

"I personally have no objections to such an audit," Ford said. "The people you read about who object to control are just prima donnas when they're supposed to be the equals of all the other members of the legislature."

Ford disagreed with Milliken's criticism of Capitol remodeling, however.

"I guess that walking by the governor's office, which is always undergoing remodeling, just gave us the idea," he said. "But seriously, the need for office space is very important to efficient and conscientious work by the representatives."

VanderLaan supported Ford's defense of capitol construction, but called on the legislature to "get out of the construction business" by turning the planning over to an authority that would oversee future building and remodeling.

"Despite all the other problems we had this session, I think the state houses made great achievements this year," VanderLaan said.

"We operated under an extremely difficult political situation. The governor is Republican, the House Democratic and the Senate is split, making it hard to reach a compromise on many issues."

VanderLaan said one of the major accomplishments of the session was the wiping out of a $150 million deficit that faced the legislators at the beginning of the year. The state showed a $700,000 surplus at the end of the fiscal year which ended July 1.

VanderLaan and Ryan predicted that the state will not pass another tax increase next year.

"Like the president, I am optimistic that the economy in 1972 will take an upturn that may make a tax hike unnecessary," Ryan said.

"If we can convince our citizens to pay for their own basic needs and can use our total resources to get full employment, I am confident that we can bypass higher taxes in the next fiscal year."

Pay hike delay faces House test

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a party-line fight, both House Republicans and Democrats marshaled forces Sunday for a Monday vote on President Nixon's postponement of government workers' pay raises.

Leaders of both parties sent out telegrams over the weekend urging members to be present Monday for the vote on a resolution to veto the President's postponement. Usually, attendance in Congress is down Mondays because many members take long weekends.

In a last-minute appeal Saturday, Nixon conceded Congress is under "political pressure" to veto the 6-month delay — from Jan. 1 to July 1 — of the pay raises for more than four million federal workers, including the military.

The President has issued an executive order putting off the pay raises for 1.4 million civilian and 2.9 million military personnel as part of his new economic policy to halt inflation and cut unemployment.

The 6-month delay is intended to save $1.3 billion to help balance the revenue loss resulting from proposed tax cuts designed to stimulate the economy.

White House sources have said that a separate $2.4 billion pay raise for military personnel designed to stimulate enlistments and the move to volunteer armed forces would go into effect Nov. 13 when the wage-price freeze ends.

Voted as part of the draft-extension bill, this raise was to have been effective Oct. 1 but Nixon postponed it until the end of the freeze and proponents have not fought this delay.

Passage of a resolution in either the House or the Senate to veto the postponement of the scheduled Jan. 1 raise would override the President.

Leaders of the veto move in the House are Democratic members of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, mainly Chairman Thaddeus J. Dulski, D-N.Y., and member Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif.

The move in the Senate to veto the postponement is expected to be made Monday by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., who announced last week he will introduce an amendment to a pending defense procurement bill.

Thieu says attacks failed to disrupt S. Viet election

SAIGON (AP) — Communist command forces launched 60 small attacks across South Vietnam and pressed their offensive along the Cambodian border into a second week Sunday, but President Nguyen Van Thieu said they failed in their plans to sabotage the presidential election.

At least 28 South Vietnamese and one American were reported killed and 139 Vietnamese and one American wounded in enemy shelling, terror incidents, an accidental bombing by U.S. aircraft and street rioting by antigovernment demonstrators.

On the basis of still incomplete reports, eight of the dead and 38 of the wounded were casualties suffered by South Vietnamese troops on the Cambodian side of the border.

There was concern about Firebase Alpha and some U.S. senior officers expressed disappointment that the South Vietnamese had failed to launch a strong infantry and armored assault to relieve it from the artillery siege instead of depending on U.S. air power.

The South Vietnamese sent a Ranger battalion from Khek eastward toward Alpha on several occasions but it has been stopped along Highway 7, which is cut, and has returned to Khek. Patrols are operating outside of Alpha during the day, but returning at night without venturing very far.

On the plus side, the South Vietnamese were able to move a convoy north along a section of Highway 22, the first road traffic since three regiments of North Vietnamese troops cut the 30-mile corridor leading from Tay Ninh to the Cambodian border last Sunday.

The truck convoy was moving up and down a 20-mile stretch of Highway 22 from Tay Ninh to Firebase Tran Hung Dao, 20 miles to the north. The convoy brought supplies to the firebase, which had been under siege until a relief column reached it Friday.

The trucks also carried wounded soldiers and their families, who had been living on the base with them, back to Tay Ninh.

Thieu, after casting his ballot at City Hall, said the Communists had planned an offensive to coincide with the election a long time ago.

"They would like to attack in the demilitarized zone," Thieu declared. "They would like to attack anywhere they can. But we have gone first in the DMZ. We have organized operation Lam Son 810 and we have disturbed their plan. So the only thing they could do is try to launch an offensive in Cambodian territory north of Tay Ninh."

"But they have not succeeded in that. We have inflicted heavy casualties. So they failed on their plan to disturb the election. Once again we show to the Communists we are able to disturb them and to prevent them from any plan against us."

In the hours just prior to the opening of the polls, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces launched rocket and mortar attacks on at least nine major cities, including Saigon, Da Nang, Tay Ninh, Bien Hoa, Vung Tau, Can Tho, Dalat, Vinh Long and Quang Ngai.

Student opposition to a proposed cross-campus highway continued to mount over the weekend with various environmental and ad hoc organizations formulating plans for the Oct. 14 public hearing on the route.

EQUAL, a campus-based ecology group, plans a discussion on the cross-campus highway at 7 p.m. Tuesday in 31 Union. An ad hoc organization known as SCAR (Stop Campus Access Route) plans a meeting Thursday night, but has not yet determined location or time.

The public hearing on the highway is destined to provide a forum for University trustees to hear private and public commentary on the route.

President Wharton will chair the hearing, with the State Highway Dept. opening with a presentation on the highway plans.

One change in previously announced details for the hearing was announced Friday by Robert Perrin, vice president for University relations. Perrin said the 1:30 p.m. Oct. 14 hearing will be in the Big Ten Room of Kellogg Center instead of the Lincoln Room.

The change in location to the Big Ten Room, which has a capacity of about 850, was necessitated by the anticipated large attendance at the hearing, Perrin said. Only three groups and/or individuals had registered as of Friday with Perrin's office to reserve a time to speak at the hearing.

"We are not making advance notification a criterion to speak at the hearing," Perrin said.

He added, however, that priority will be given to groups, and then individuals, that reserve a time to speak by notifying the office of the vice president for University relations before the meeting.

Tim Hiltz, an East Lansing graduate student in resource development and SCAR coordinator said Sunday the SCAR group would serve as a voluntary coordinating unit for the many campus and off-campus groups expressing concern and interested in the proposed highway.

"As an informal unit we have been approached by several representatives of groups for information. As a result of some of the latest contacts, we now feel it wise and incumbent to act in a more formal manner," Hiltz said.

"Our most important objective is to uncover and develop as much factual information as possible in the hope that a more informed University community can deliberate and act in a reasoned and responsible manner. Much ambiguity and misinformation surrounds the proposed cross campus highway," Hiltz said.

The highway, extending from the I-496 intersection at Trowbridge Road, would relocate M-43 across University property, eventually joining Grand River Avenue at Park Lake Road, east of East Lansing. Current State Highway Dept. plans route the highway parallel to the north of the Grand Trunk railroad tracks.

"As a coordinating unit and an interested party, we hope to have other cooperating groups or our members, addressing several specific issues and problems at the hearing. These include potentially hazardous conditions, economic justifications, alternative proposals, environmental disturbances, aesthetics, disruption to campus buildings and activities, and several other issues presenting questions of compatibility with the university community and functions," Hiltz said.

Hiltz noted that his group hopes to establish contact with organizations that appear to be affected by the highway.

Groups that might be potentially affected by the highway include the College of Human Medicine located south of the proposed highway, the Pesticides Research Center

Pope calls for aid to refugees

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI appealed to the world Sunday to donate food, clothing, medicine and money to help the eight million East Pakistani refugees.

To underline his appeal, he asked those of all faiths to observe a day of prayer and fasting next Sunday.

The Pope told a crowd in St. Peter's Square that many of the refugees are "on the brink of death." He said he made his appeal "especially for the 800,000 exhausted, sick and undernourished children" in the refugee camps.

Whether Miss or Mrs., from now on you're 'miz'

Miss and Mrs. designations of women will be replaced by Ms. in all State News stories beginning today.

The policy change reflects current trends toward the elimination of women's titles based on their marital status. Ms. (pronounced "Miz") is a neutral substitute for Miss and Mrs., both of which identify a woman exclusively in terms of a wedding ring, proponents of the monosyllable title say.

"Women are harassed daily by government interrogation into their marital status," commented Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., recently. "The thousands of government forms which make up red tape require women to designate Miss or Mrs., while men, apparently, are sufficiently described as Mr."

The State News editorial board, which approved the policy change last week, said difficulties with wire service stories necessitate differentiation through titles for men and women. Wire service stories often refer to a woman as "Mrs. John Brown" and fail to give her first name.

'Grad stack' permits: time-consuming waste

Undergraduate students with research work often must utilize the east wing of the Library. But first they must go through the somewhat degrading, time-consuming, and ultimately absurd process of obtaining an entry permit to the "grad stacks."

To gain admittance to the graduate library for one day, an undergraduate is required to pick up a pass at the reference desk on the first floor. To be admitted to that section for a full term, the pass must be signed by a professor.

At one time, all parts of the library were open to all students. Two years ago, however, the second, third, and fourth floors of the East wing were closed off to undergraduates. Library officials claimed that the permit system would cut down on the "heavy traffic" in that section, prevent high school and non-University people from using research resources, and reduce the number of staff who would normally have to patrol the floors.

Similarly, any marginal savings to be gleaned from a slight manpower reduction hardly seem sufficient justification for establishing an educational caste system at this University. Further, in the case of non-university persons it would seem that a simple show of ID would serve as a sufficient regulator.

In effect, the permit system serves only to differentiate undergraduate from graduate library and, thereby, imply a sort of elitist stigma to the latter. It accomplishes no more.

The system is in fact, self defeating. Students have found many easy ways to beat "admittance by permit." Any student, if so inclined, needs only to use an old permit (they're seldom checked) or the basement elevator (it's seldom guarded) to bypass the checking gate. In the end, the permits only create more busywork for library personnel who undoubtedly have better things to do than sign white slips all day.

The obvious solution to this bureaucratic boogymongle is either to tighten security or to abolish the system. By tightening security, however, the University would put itself in the embarrassing and ironic position of hiring more people to keep some students out of a Library that should be freely accessible to them.

The University is allegedly an institution whose main function is education. It seems only logical that all students should have equal and unlimited access to any resource that might further their education.

Overcrowded dorms: 'U', student can profit

Currently some 1,200 students, mostly freshmen, are involuntarily living in tripled-up residence hall rooms. The overcrowding has presented problems for University officials, residence hall managers, and especially for the students living in overassigned rooms.

Essentially, more freshmen were admitted than could be housed, causing the University to place 400 of these students in already filled two-man rooms. MSU currently owes money on bonds which were sold to build some of the residence halls, and the additional revenue ($216,000) gained from the "extra" students helps to repay those bonds. In the process, though, some students are forced into the uncomfortable and unsettling position of living in an overassigned room.

The overcrowding problem could be turned to the advantage of both student and University, however, by altering the tripling-up process. Normally, tripled-up students receive a rebate — $3 a week. ($30 a term). If the University substantially increased that rebate to $5 or more a week and made tripling voluntary for the individuals in overassigned residence halls, enough students would probably take advantage of the low rates so that no one would be forced to live in an overassigned room. The University would lose no more than $72,000 in rebates this year on increased rebates and still retain the $216,000 in revenues gained from the overassignments. Students would also have the opportunity to live in the dorm at a considerably lower rate.

Understandably the University does not want to lose any student-based revenue. However, it should consider the students' interest as well, seeking to achieve some sort of satisfactory compromise between the University's financial needs and the students' simple living desires.

AP NEWS SPECIAL

Taking advantage of the POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The young woman seemed to be fighting back tears as she talked on the telephone about the prisoners of war in Vietnam.

"Well, the publishing charge runs a total of $5, and God knows we need the help if we're ever going to get our men out of there," she said.

That appeal brought in thousands of dollars from residents of Orange County, Calif., who thought they might help the POWs by placing their names, for $5 each, in an obscure tabloid called Veterans News.

The Orange County district attorney's office closed the operation by court injunction this summer, charging it with "false, fraudulent, deceptive, or misleading" representations, and found a convicted armed robber in charge.

The incident is just one of an increasing number where self-promoters have capitalized on public sympathy for the plight of the POWs or on the tendency for families of prisoners or men missing in action to grasp at any hope.

In recent months:

• A California promoter now in jail on a bad-check conviction gained the cooperation of POW-MIA family groups in California and Arizona for fundraising activities which left one organization holding the financial bag.

• An ex-convict operating from a succession of locations has raised large sums with his claim he can negotiate prisoner release through Asian contacts.

• A Texas promoter lured an Atlanta POW group into grandiose plans for a benefit show, then abruptly departed town, leaving a string of unpaid bills behind him.

There have been others, some successful, some not.

A man who claims he's a lawyer and lists addresses in Idaho and Amsterdam has approached POW family groups in Miami, Norfolk, Va., and Phoenix, asking $25,000 to finance negotiations with Buddhist monks to care for prisoners in North Vietnamese camps. So far as is known, he hasn't collected a dime on his pitch.

Four men and a woman, however, hired teenagers to solicit, on street corners in Jackson, Miss., for the POW cause, and got heighten public concern and outcry over the fate of the POWs and the MIAs. They also have financed trips abroad by relatives or others who have sought to meet with North Vietnamese or officials of other countries to try and negotiate release of prisoners.

Another group which has had some success is the Committee of Liaison, headed by Cora Weiss, in New York. Mrs. Weiss says the committee has spent $10,000 over the past 18 months. Most of the money, she said, has come from small,

The girls, each of which used the name Kathy Johnson, told people: "What we're doing is printing a special edition of the Veterans News for the POWs. We're sending copies to every congressman, senator, as well as to President Nixon, the Pope and world leaders everywhere."

out of town a step ahead of the police after three days of collections.

As the petition-signing and letter-writing for the POWs and MIAs has mounted nationwide this year, so has the fund raising.

The State Dept. privately takes a dim view of most of it. Officials question what could be done with the money that would benefit imprisoned or missing men. An exception is the National League of Families of Prisoners and Missing, to which the government lends its tacit support as representing POW and MIA relatives.

The family and other POW groups finance publicity programs designed to unsolicited donations. The committee has established contact in North Vietnam, and brought out letters from the POWs.

Increasing public awareness of the POW-MIA situation, brought on by legitimate organizations, such as the League and the Committee, has opened the door to fast-talking operators.

Veterans News opened its Orange County operation in May. Its leader, Jack K. Armstrong, served time in jail during 1965 after pleading guilty to armed robbery. His record also lists a bad-conduct discharge from the Marines and court-martial convictions for unauthorized absence and theft of a .45 caliber pistol.

POINT OF VIEW

We cannot sit back in silence

By RON McLELLAN
E. Lansing Senior

The Nixon administration and the Pentagon have been telling us all for some time now that the war in Vietnam was winding down, that it is just about over. The newspapers, TV, and radio news report the light casualties. What a difference from 6 months ago. We really want to believe it so bad. Now we can just relax, just live for now. God, I know the feeling . . . just aching for a quiet spot along some endless lake with a fishing pole and a case of beer, along with the attitude of "just screw everything." Sometimes this idea stayed for days — this summer it won. The endless beach, the beer, and just being left alone; just being for yourself — oh, it felt so wonderful. Deciding not to work with Veterans for Peace because it just brought up those wordless thoughts and memories, "Please just leave me alone" was the answer given to anyone who asked for any help in the organization. What good does it do? Christ! just let me be.

Then, a couple of weeks ago, I received orders to appear for a periodic physical at the Great Lakes Naval Hospital, near Chicago. It was like being awakened in the night from a beautiful dream with news that a loved one had dropped dead. Having spent many months there at one time in my life, I had sworn never to re-enter or even set eyes upon that chamber of horror again. But here were these orders and — without really stopping to think about it — I went for the physical.

After the routine exam, as though pulled by an invisible force, I wanted to visit my old ward and talk to a few of the wounded guys there. But, Jesus! . . . as I reached the ward and saw the torn bodies lying in beds and the corpsmen going about their jobs, it hit me . . . my feet could go no farther; my muscles tightened to a paralytic state; my gut began to heave. My mind was shocked back to 1968 when I was there, too. I could hear the screams and the crying of the wounded soldiers; the smell of ether, dirty bandages, and the odor of human flesh. I saw the skeleton faces of many friends coming out to greet me. The faces of the corpsmen who had taken care of me and who were now dead. The ward began echoing with pleas for help. The faces of the wounded, of the dead seemed to follow me. "Don't give up . . . This war is WRONG . . . Try and do something!" could go no farther in the ward; I couldn't even go say "Hello, how ya doin'?" to the wounded guys in the beds.

You know, we are accustomed to the suffering and death of the very old. But hell, these are young guys in wheelchairs, teenagers without arms and legs. Compared to thousands of others, these are the lucky ones . . . young soldiers blinded; some without faces . . . now nothing but vegetables. You expect to see these young men driving up and down the homeward roads having a few beers, smoking a little dope, sitting around the Union or classrooms, or standing on Grand River trying their luck with chicks. But look around . . . there are so many empty seats and there's a lot of standing room. But you know what really hurts! all this empty space was for nothing . . . NOTHING! . . . oh Jesus, how many more.

Now here it is, another school year and the war still going on. So if you're a Veteran for Peace, let's speak up now. Let's not sit in silence as past veterans have.

OUR READERS' MIND

New bookstore needs support

To the Editor:

Your article, in Monday's paper, did not give a clear picture of the past problems of Man and Nature Bookstore, and by doing so, it gave the impression that last year's management was inept in its operations. It is true that last year the bookstore did exhibit financial problems, but the problems exhibited in April, 1971, were far less severe than those of August, 1970.

When Elizabeth Linhart, the bookstore's former manager, was handed the store in the summer of 1970 the store's debt was twice that of the one in April, 1971. At that time the stock was dimly poor (literally a handful of books) and the bills were awesome enough, in proportion to the store's assets, to make any manager shudder. It wasn't until April, 1971, after the debt had been cut close to half that ASMSU chose to investigate the financial problems. Without ever giving a word of thanks to Mrs. Linhart for keeping the store open despite its obstacles, they voted, without any word of warning or notice, to close the store, freezing all business, until an investigation was completed. Whether or not an investigation was in fact needed somehow seemed secondary to the seemingly insulting way that the board handled the procedure. Lizzie, received this heavy handed action as a personal offense; following which she lost all of her participatory interest in the store. It wasn't until after her falling out, that the store was run incompetently and allowed to fall into a business slump.

The new bookstore, which now is in affiliation with ASMSU, has smoothed over the difficulties of the past and hopes to put away those problems into history. With a strong complementary support between ASMSU and this year's staff and management, hopefully, a strong, operatively forward looking "non-ripoff" store will not only succeed, but grow within the University. The store is planning to expand its services to become what proudly can be called a students' bookstore. But this store would not have been possible without the positive contributions of the past and will only succeed with the support of those who are now affiliated with it.

Remodeling gives grill updated decor

By CINDI STEINWAY
State News Staff Writer

Students who have not already discovered the "new" Union Grill will find it different these days.

Michael J. Dmochowski, Union manager, and Geraldine Laetz, interior designer for residence halls, began remodeling the grill Aug. 1.

"Brown-wooded tones, tables with red and orange chairs instead of booths and new lighting fixtures done by Mrs. Laetz, have changed the total atmosphere of the grill," Dmochowski said. The grill was open for business Sept. 18, and the char grill opened just last week, he added.

"Installation of a microwave oven later this term will offer a new menu of dinners, steaks and casseroles," he said. When the oven is in operation and the remodeling completed, Dmochowski plans to have a special open house.

"The method of food preparation is out front with a one-line scramble system. Students can choose whatever they want from the sweet shop, sandwich shop, grill, salad section and fountain," Dmochowski said.

"Any other restaurant remodels every few years and we have not changed in over 20 years. The same, stark atmosphere was fine for times past, but this year it needed updating," he stressed.

To finish decorating the restaurant, Dmochowski would like to enlist student participation.

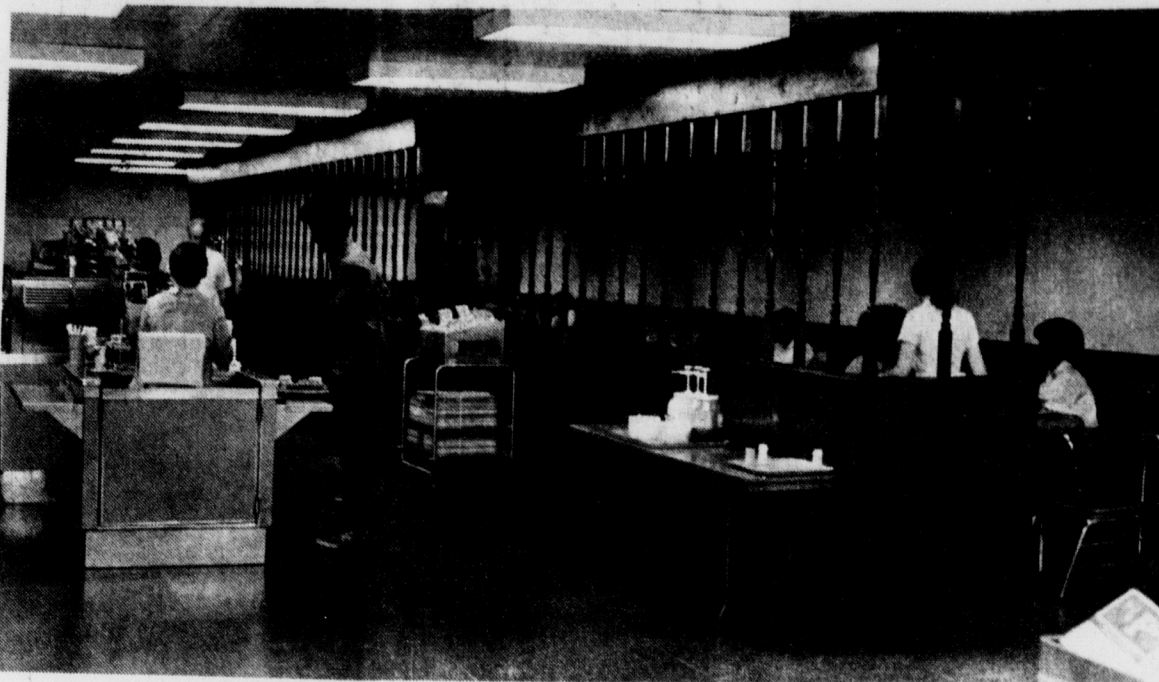

"The University did 'the guts' of the grill, what had to be done. We want to know what the kids want," he explained.

He believes the Advertising

Club and the Graphics Dept. could be helpful in sponsoring a contest to complete the decor.

The manager said the remodeling cost was covered by an appropriation approved during the summer by Roger E. Wilkenson, vice president for business and finance. Dmochowski gave a figure of $20,000 as a rough estimate of the total cost involved.

The grill is open from 7:15 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday.

Classy

The remodeled serving area of the grill in the Union adds a new face to an old friend. The construction was completed in September.

Pig, freak 'trip' to aid leukemia

Local pigs and freaks will be at it again this fall and the confrontation moved a stop closer early this morning when a local longhair along with an East Lansing policeman embarked on a "trip."

The trip is for real, however, and will take Charles Rose, of Freaks Inc., and Officer Michael Harrington to Hollywood, Calif., for a conference with entertainer Danny Thomas, national head of Aid to Leukemia Stricken American Children (ALSAC).

ALSAC's St. Jude Research Hospital in St. Louis will receive all proceeds from the second annual "Bull Bowl" football game to be played Nov. 7 in Spartan Stadium. The freaks last year lumped local lawmen 12-8 before 7,000 people at East Lansing High School.

Rose and Harrington will tape an interview with Thomas for later media use to promote the game.

Action will pit members of Freaks, Inc., which Rose describes as a paper organization to bring together street people, against representatives from the Capitol City Lodge for the Fraternal Order of Police.

Tickets cost $1 and are now available at the Jenison Fieldhouse ticket office.

VA hospitals struggle under backlog

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veterans Administration hospitals, struggling to cope with the medical needs of a growing veteran population, have built up a waiting list of 6,300 patients even though they are rejecting four of every ten applicants.

The waiting list of eligible patients for admission to the VA's 166 hospitals has more than doubled since the first of the year.

The statistic reflects the growth in veterans rolls resulting from the Vietnam War, plus the fact that World War II veterans are growing older and more in need of medical care.

It also reflects annual operating budgets that are too small to permit full utilization of facilities.

While conceding that the 6,300 patient list is the highest in recent years, VA Administrator Donald Johnson said in an interview that it is only a fourth of the peak year, 1958, when 25,000 veterans were on the waiting list.

The VA, Johnson said, is treating more patients than ever before. Last year, it cared for 818,000 patients in its hospitals while logging 8 million "ambulatory care visits" — outpatient treatment or treatment by private physicians at VA expense.

And Johnson said his agency is steadily improving the quality of care in its hospital network. "I firmly believe," he said, "the VA today is rendering better medical care to more sick and disabled veterans than ever before in history."

Interviews with scores of patients at a dozen VA hospitals disclosed that most of them are, in fact, satisfied with the care they're getting, once they get in. Almost invariably, complaints involved delays in gaining admission, although some complained of inadequate attention.

Ted Chute, 23, a paraplegic from Puxport, Maine, who is a patient at West Roxbury, Mass., VA hospital, said: "I can't turn over in bed by myself and I have to be turned every two hours so I don't get sores. There have been a lot of times I've had to wait 3½ or 4 hours to get turned. I don't know if they don't have enough aides or if the aides don't care, but whatever it is, I haven't always gotten what I'm supposed to get."

Similarly, at Hines VA hospital near Chicago, Glenn Mayer, 46, paralyzed from the waist down, said: "One day they took me down to the central bath for a shower at 10 a.m. I didn't get back to the room until 2. My lunch was here waiting for me, but it was cold."

Most patients, however, said they were pleased with the care they're getting. "They're doing all they can to help us," said amputee Tommy Clark, 24, a patient at the Atlanta VA hospital.

Wanye A. Webber, of Foxboro, Mass., left a paraplegic by a helicopter crash agreed. "They're treating me great," said Webber, a patient at West Roxbury. "The people here really helped me along."

On a typical weekday morning at the Atlanta VA hospital, every chair in the long, narrow waiting room is filled and dozens of people are standing against the walls awaiting treatment or examination.

Upstairs in the orthopedic ward, a 24-year-old Vietnam amputee, former Marine Sgt. Richard Evans of Macon, Ga., said he had no complaints about the quality of care, but "it took me three days to get into the hospital," where he is learning to walk on his artificial leg.

"I came in one day and waited from 8 till 4 without being seen," Evans said. "I finally saw the doctor the next day, but he told me to come back the next day. Then I had to sit four hours that day before I got a bed."

"That shouldn't happen," said the hospital director, Dr. Julian Jarman, when told of Evans' complaints. He said the average waiting time is less than two hours, although there have been "one or two instances where people have gotten lost."

Another Atlanta patient, Walter Johns, 22, Pearson, Ga., lost his leg to a Vietnam land mine. He said he had to make repeated trips to the hospital before being admitted for fitting of an artificial leg.

Jarman said Johns' account didn't gibe precisely with hospital records, and said admission was deferred because his stump had not fully healed from earlier surgery. Whatever the reason, Johns is unhappy.

Patients with service-connected injuries or illness receive priority for admission, a requirement set by law. Veterans with ailments unrelated to military service are treated on a first-come, first-served basis, in the case of crowded hospitals, on a sickest-patient-first basis.

Atlanta's waiting list of 14 patients also is one of the longest in the country. Yet the hospital, which opened five years ago with room for 500 patients, has been operating with an authorized average daily patient census of 410.

On the hospital's top floor, several rooms designed for patient use are filled with records, supplies or equipment. Rooms elsewhere in the hospital have been converted into offices for the staff.

THE MICHIGAN SUPREME COURT has revised general court rules to eliminate payment of fees and costs in all state courts, and Detroit's Common Pleas Court, for indigents or persons receiving public assistance.

The court fees and costs are to be suspended when persons submit affidavits to court clerks verifying they receive public assistance. The clerk is authorized to suspend the fees and costs. In the case of indigency, where the person is not receiving public aid, the affidavit showing inability to pay must be submitted to the judge of the court where litigation is assigned. The judge will order that payment be waived, or he can suspend payment of fees or costs until the litigation is ended.

GOV. MILLIKEN and governors from seven other states will leave Friday on a two-week trip to the Soviet Union and Romania.

The trip, arranged by the U.S. State Dept. is part of President Nixon's effort to achieve world peace, Milliken said.

The governor will reportedly explore possible iron curtain markets for nonstrategic Michigan exports.

Show indicates art directions

By WILLIAM BRUZY
State News Reviewer

The Kresge Art Center Gallery is currently showing two exhibitions. Drawings by 76 American artists, circulated by the Minnesota Museum of Art, occupy the north gallery. The show is titled "Drawings USA/1971." The entrance gallery is housing a collection of work by local photographers titled, "MSU Photo Lab Photographers." Both shows will run until October 26.

Cleve Gray, artist from Cornwall Bridge, Connecticut, and juror of the "Drawings USA" show, said his choices are representative of the "renaissance of drawing" that is occurring in this country. The 76 drawings of the show seem to say something quite different. What Gray has taken to mean a rebirth of the medium is rather an indication of the many directions being taken by American artists.

The drawings are generally limited to familiar drawing media. They also deal with the generally accepted range of subject and style. The most that can be said of the show, as an entity, is that it is diverse, but not necessarily experimental.

There are a few highly marketable pieces and some street fair art. There is realism and fantasy. There are also a few names like Willem de Kooning, Larry Rivers and Mark Tobey thrown in to lend weight to the body of work.

The show contains a range of technically competent art worth viewing, simply for its diversity and interest.

The second show, "MSU Photo Lab Photographers" is not as diverse. There is a definite demarcation between the good and the bad. The photographs of William Mitcham being good.

The other photographs are all technically excellent. It is the graphic element which is crippled. Most of the pieces have the picture postcard values and the rigid esthetics of a Kodak bulletin. It is professional photography in its most limited sense, that of technician, not artist.

William Mitcham's photographs are more at home in a gallery. His subjects, though not unique, are treated creatively and sensitively. His technical work is fine and diverse, his work worthy of an audience.

The Kresge gallery is open from 8 to 12 a.m. and from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Women's pages criticized by speaker at workshop

By ROBERT BAO

A phantasmagoric slide presentation and a barrage of risque one-liners highlighted a journalism workshop at Kellogg Center Saturday.

The event was sponsored by the Michigan Women's Press Club (MWPC) as an educational seminar to probe into facets of the newspaper business of interest to women journalists. 52 MWPC members registered for the two-hour morning session which featured two speakers, both men.

J. Bruce Baumann, editor of the "Flair" section of the Grand Rapids Press, spoke on "Pictures and Words."

Baumann said editorial abuse is most extensive in women's pages, which tend to treat women as "dull marbles" and "social nitwits." Women especially write down to female readers and, as a result, many female readers become "insecure, bra-burning creatures," he said.

"It's usually not the female reader who is a mental midget," he pointed out, "but the editor himself."

Baumann then explained that "Flair's" coverage of food and fashion goes beyond gourmet recipes and the latest styles to stories on such related topics as rising food costs, the undernourished, overpopulation, the killing of near-extinct species, and the Mafia's penetration into New York's garment district.

Baumann complemented his speech with slides. One sequence, a series of ghetto scenes, designed to evoke hope in the face of gloom, was shown with the Beatles' haunting "Eleanor Rigby" as background music.

A provocative slide sequence depicted a Ku Klux Klan cross-burning. Baumann said the filming was hazardous, since the Klansmen usually carry 30 loaded rifles to be fired on any intruder.

Don Easter, assistant to the managing editor of the Detroit News, began his discussion of "The Man's View of Women and Newspapers" with a confession: "I consider myself a good writer and a damn fine editor — that is, for a man."

Easter stated that as women break into the newspaper business, either they become ruthless, enamored of power, always climbing to the top, or they turn into "foul-mouthed cynics."

Easter admitted to having two prejudices against women: first, their use of wiles for ulterior purposes, and second, their naiveivete about double meanings.

"Women who don't know double meanings are either utterly ignorant or else the world's greatest put-ons," Easter said.

A RESIDENT OF an apartment at 913 Cherry Lane reported to officers that she saw a man looking in her window at 10 p.m. Thursday. Officers responded to the call and caught a 29-year-old graduate student on his knees, hands shielding his eyes, peering through a lighted window at 911 Cherry Hill Apts. Officers said the man has been referred to the prosecutor.

AN OBSCENE TELEPHONE call was reported to officers by a female resident of Holden Hall. The girl told officers the man called at 4:45 p.m. Thursday and after a normal conversation propositioned her in a vulgar manner, at which point the coed answered, in no uncertain terms, that the conversation was terminated and hung up. Police are investigating.

Meeting to feature candidate

Chuck Will, the Coalition for Human Survival's write-in city council candidate, will be featured at a coalition meeting at 7 p.m. today at the New Community Co-op, 343 Albert St.

Coalition spokesman James Heyser said that Will, encouraged by the recent registration of more than 7,500 student voters, will offer ideas on student issues in East Lansing.

The meeting will also feature discussion of a proposed system of bicycle paths for East Lansing and the formation of an opposition group to preserve the Linden Street area from the city's "peripheral route plan" to route through traffic north of Grand River Avenue.

Heyser said the coalition is seeking manpower and ideas to help on any or all of the issues.

TWO JUVENILES, AGE 13 and 14, were arrested at 1:20 a.m. Friday after officers observed them stealing a bicycle from the racks near Brody Hall. The student-owned bicycle was valued at $120. Officers said the youths have been referred to probate court for a juvenile hearing.

A STOLEN PIZZA valued at $2.37 resulted in the arrest of three MSU students as officers observed them taking it from a Domino delivery truck on the loop near Hubbard Hall shortly after midnight Friday. They have been referred to the prosecutor, officers report.

A STUDENT REPORTED to police that a battery worth $30 had been stolen from her car in the northeast sector of Lot X sometime between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 3:15 p.m. Thursday. Officers said the battery had been replaced with a dead one, which had been properly wired and bolted in place. Investigation is continuing.

AN 18-YEAR-OLD resident of Snyder Hall was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct at 11 p.m. Saturday. Police report the student was sent to University Health Center after he punched his hand through window. His unruly behavior did not permit treatment and officers were summoned. The student was subsequently subdued, treated and placed overnight in jail.

How to be Happy, Secure, and Inundated with Sound, and still have some money left over:

Buy our Advent, Kenwood, Garrard, Shure system for $400* complete.

If you have begun to look around for a good home music system that won't set your bank account back by more than four hundred dollars, you may have become confused by the vast selection of components now on the market.

If you have tried to educate yourself by reading up in some audio magazines, you have probably become further confused by hard to believe and perplexing advertising claims.

You figure that of all the products available, some might sound Wonderful, some Mediocre, and some Terrible. Some will prove to be Ultimately Reliable, and others will more or less quickly Disintegrate.

Clearly you want a music system which will be both Wonderful (so you will be Happy,) and Ultimately Reliable (so you and your investment will be Secure.)

We can help you; please read on.

We describe a four-hundred dollar component system which represents more value and reliability than has previously been available. (A year ago it would have been necessary to spend at least five hundred dollars to bring home this amount of performance.) Two new products make this system possible: the new Smaller Advent Loudspeakers and the new Kenwood KR-4130 FM stereo receiver.

The Smaller Advent Loudspeakers are just like the original Advent Loudspeakers in every quantifiable and audible respect, except that they are smaller, less expensive and won't play as loud. This means that on most kinds of musical material, and under most listening conditions likely to apply in most homes, the Smaller Advent Loudspeaker is the equal of any loudspeaker system available.

The Smaller Advent is the only speaker under one hundred dollars which can reproduce the lowest tones of a pipe organ (if they are on the record!) and which maintains a satisfying octave - to - octave musical balance on almost all source material.

"Sounds unbelievable," you say. "How can they do it?"

The Smaller Advent Loudspeaker is miraculous, but it is not a mystery. It is based on proven, albeit creative, acoustical engineering. To build a loudspeaker with full low bass capabilities Advent has had to give up a small amount of efficiency.

The Kenwood KR-4130 that we are recommending provides more than enough power to satisfy both you and the Advents:

it delivers 21 watts RMS into four ohms across the entire audio range, at less than 0.5% total distortion. (RMS is the most demanding of the various power-rating systems, and is the one used by engineers rather than by advertising men.)

Because the Kenwood KR-4130 and the Smaller Advent speakers are of such high quality, they will together cleanly produce any distortion, rumble, wow, or flutter that is contributed by a less than excellent turntable/cartridge combination. We therefore recommend the Garrard SL55B automatic turntable with a Shure M44E cartridge. The 55B has a good heavy platter, a smooth and gentle changing mechanism, and a convenient cueing control. The Shure cartridge reproduces high frequencies with exceptional clarity; it therefore complements the high frequency capabilities of the Kenwood receiver and the Advent loudspeakers.

The system price is $399.95*. All components are guaranteed for two years, parts and labor. There are no little options to surprise you. Only good sound and sheer product value for your dollars.

So you can sit back and be Inundated.

Spartan defense brilliant as Irish, refs dump MSU

By GARY SCHARER
State News Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — The phrase "if only" is the traditional excuse to heal all ills, but after MSU's game with Notre Dame Saturday, the Spartans are left without much to say.

They played well in the sweltering 85-degree sun bowl, losing 14-2 before a capacity crowd of 59,075 and millions of television viewers. The Spartans need not say "if only" since films and instant replays will talk for them. The officiating was inept at best and took away momentum from several Spartan drives.

"I think this is the worst officiated game that I have seen in all my years of coaching," Coach Duffy Daugherty said.

The blasting of officials came somewhat as a surprise since Daugherty is not usually critical. The officials called 18 penalties, ten against MSU for a total of 91 yards and this does not include the infractions that Notre Dame declined.

"It's a frustrating thing to have kids play their hearts out and then to have this happen," Daugherty said in the locker room after the game. "I'm damn sick about it. But there is no recall. There's nothing you can do about it."

There was nothing that the Spartan defense could do to stop the Irish in their first drive either. After Borys Shlapak booted the football out of the end zone to open the game, Notre Dame marched down the field for 80 yards in 17 plays for the first touchdown.

Indications of a frustrating afternoon were evident as three penalties against MSU were called inside the Spartan 9-yard line and provided additional life for the Irish offense.

Bob Minnix plunged in from the 1-yard line for the score, and Robert Thomas converted the extra point.

The Spartan offense then took control of the ball and promptly ignored the famed Notre Dame defense.

Eric Allen raced around right end for 14 yards on the first play from scrimmage. On the next play Frank Kolch unloaded a 52-yard pass to tight end Billy Joe DuPree that would have given the Spartans a first and goal from the six-yard line had not an off-side penalty been called against MSU.

Two plays later Henry Matthews fumbled a pitchout and Notre Dame recovered on the Spartan 17-yard line.

Seconds later Minnix scored from the five-yard line for the game's final touchdown although play was still in the first quarter.

Trailing 14-0 early in the game, MSU had its back against the wall but did not fold.

"We had to change our game plan after we got behind 14-0," Daugherty explained, and then praised his players. "Our team could have easily fallen apart but they played hard and kept their poise.

"I don't think that there are too many teams in the country that could have played Notre Dame under our circumstances today," Daugherty continued. "But this helps us prepare for competition against teams like Michigan."

Later in the opening quarter after the second of three Kolch to DuPree completions was called back because of penalties, sophomore Bill Simpson booted a 58-yard punt to the Irish one-yard line. On the next play all-America candidate Ron Curl slammed Irish halfback Larry Parker into the end zone, forcing a fumble. Notre Dame quarterback Bill Etter recovered, but Ron Joseph secured the tackle, giving MSU a safety and two points. The safety was also the last scoring of the game.

The second quarter until the finish of the game became characteristic of Spartan offensive miseries and a tough MSU defense that continued to shut off Irish scoring attempts. The Spartan defense blanked Notre Dame for the final 55 minutes of the game.

The Irish defense continually rushed Kolch and often reached him before he had time to look downfield for receivers. Simpson came in on fourth downs, usually fielded ground balls because of poor snaps from center and barely got his punts away.

Twice Simpson nearly got blown into the end zone tunnel, but the officials refused to call roughing-the-kicker penalties. At one time, the entire stadium erupted in boos, Irish as well as Spartan fans, when Simpson was knocked on his back and no flag was thrown.

In the second half, the Spartan offense lost momentum and could not mount another scoring drive or even get good field position.

Considering the circumstances, Daugherty said that Saturday's game against Notre Dame would make MSU a

Daugherty, who wore a long sleeve sweater in the humid heat was asked if he was hot dressed that warm and replied, "The only place I was hot was under the collar."

"I was quite outspoken with the referees," Daugherty said. "I hope it wasn't audible on TV. My mother or wife would not have been pleased with my language used in talking to the officials."

"They did not keep us informed on the bench when penalties were called, who they were called against and what kind," Daugherty complained.

"The scoreboard clock didn't work, but they didn't tell us the time. There was no communication from the officials to the bench like there is supposed to be."

The MSU stoppers

MSU safetyman Brad VanPelt (10) puts a halt to a Notre Dame running advance near the Spartan goal line early in the game Saturday. Though the Spartans lost, 14-2, the MSU defense was its usual great self in holding a powerful offensive unit like Notre Dame. The Spartans will face another tough offensive unit this week as they meet Michigan in East Lansing.

Officiating hurts Spartans

By RICK GOSSELIN
State News Sports Editor

MSU came right back, but after a heart-breaking offside call that cost Billy Joe DuPree a 52-yard pass reception that would have spotted the ball first and goal at the Irish six, the Spartans gift wrapped Notre Dame's second touchdown with Hank Matthews' fumble that the Irishmen recovered on the MSU 17.

"Our team could easily have fallen apart but they kept on playing hard," Coach Duffy Daugherty praised his players. "We reacted well under pressure."

The Spartans were continually left in the hole from what Duffy termed "the worst officiating in all my years of coaching." The Spartan coach has in the past earned a reputation of soft peddling bad officiating, never taking unnecessary potshots at game officials. But Duffy couldn't hold it in Saturday after the game.

"It (the officiating) was inexcusable," Duffy said. "I think we should let the players take the game over and decide the outcome instead of them."

One Spartan in particular, punter Bill Simpson, was given as rough a time by the officials as he was by the Notre Dame punt rush unit. Besides fielding four bad snaps from center while in punt formation, Simpson also had to fend for his life on two occasions when Notre Dame rushers left him on his seat after the punt had been projected. Neither time was a roughing call flagged by the refs. The first roughing in particular left Simpson wondering where all the blocking went as Clarence Ellis stunned him with a flying body block.

"If that wasn't roughing the kicker then I don't know anything about football or its rules," Duffy fumed.

"I didn't see it but the referees told me that Ellis was blocked into their punter," Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian commented. "If the impetus is supplied by the blocker, then no penalty is called."

"It was clear that Ellis just jumped right over our blocker," Duffy retorted. "There should have been a penalty called."

Without a doubt the most outstanding MSU player on the field, recognized by the ABC-TV crew as the outstanding defensive player in the contest, was safety Brad VanPelt.

The muscular safetyman led the team in tackles with seven and assists with 14. The Owosso junior was literally all over the field. VanPelt keyed three goal line stands that kept the Irish score stagnant at 14 for the final 55 minutes of the game.

The Spartan defense proved once again that it could play on any field at any time with any offensive in the country. A few offensive breaks and the MSU boys might have had the biggest upset of the still young NCAA football season.

BVP for MVP?

MSU safety Brad VanPelt was introduced as a member of the Spartan defensive unit before the game. He was named the outstanding member of it afterwards.

'S' booters squeak by Wooster, 3-1

By CRAIG REMSBURG
State News Sports Writer

As the saying goes — "It's better late than never," but the MSU soccer team almost waited too long in their contest with Wooster Saturday.

Offensively weak for the first three quarters, the booters came to life in the last quarter to tie the score, then took two overtimes to finally finish off the scrappy Scot squad, 3-1.

Key goals by Lennox Robinson and Junior Higgins turned the trick and a final tally by Gerry Murray iced the win before a good crowd on a very hot day.

The victory gave the Spartans a 2-0 season won - lost record while the defeat left Wooster coach Bob Nye's team at 1-2.

"Our forward line is weak, they are just not doing their job," complained Spartan coach Payton Fuller after the game. "I'm not really pleased with my team. We have the potential to do much better," he added.

The Wooster squad put continuous pressure on the booters all afternoon and it finally paid off at the 10:47 mark of the third quarter.

Scot center forward Pete Barrett bounced a shot over MSU goaltender Jim Stone into the right corner of the net to give Wooster a 1-0 lead.

That lead held up for the rest of the quarter and into the fourth and it appeared that the Scots were headed for a victory over the listless Spartans.

But a near miss on a breakaway by Rudy Mayer, who was a doubtful starter because of inflamed shin splints, seemed to wake up the Spartan booters. The fourth - quarter shot went just wide of the right goalpost.

At 4:02 of the quarter Robinson put a shot past Wooster goalie Geoff Hughes for his third goal of the year to tie the score. Gerry Murray drew an assist on the tally.

Regulation time ended with the score tied 1-1 and the two coaches agreed to play two 5-minute overtime periods to determine a winner.

determine a winner.

It only took the Spartans 1:57 to settle the issue as Higgins took a throw - in from Mayer, moved right in front of the Wooster goal and blasted a shot into the left - hand corner of the net.

Murray scored an insurance tally at the 38 - second mark of the second overtime on a setup from Robinson. Scot goaltender Hughes managed to get a piece of the ball by diving to his left but it still went into the lower right corner of the net.

Even though not too complimentary about his team's general performance, Coach Fuller was pleased with the fine play of goaltender Dave Goldman and center halfback Steve Twellman.

Goldman started the game and played the first half before yielding to Stone in the last half in Fuller's two - goalie system. But the Spartan mentor removed Stone in the fourth quarter and replaced him with Goldman.

"Stone looked a little tight out there so I put Goldman back in," Fuller said. "Our defense generally held up although it was their fault on the Wooster goal," he added.

Fuller hopes that he gets some improvement in his offense in the next couple of days as his booters are slated to take on the Michigan soccer squad in a game Wednesday. The contest will begin at 3:30.

Without some added offensive punch, it could turn out to be a very long afternoon.

Off and flying

Spartan booter Gerry Murray, who scored a goal and added an assist against Wooster Saturday, scrambles for the loose ball with a Scot. Murray appears to have the upper hand in the race because of his airborne tactics.

POPEJOY TAKES FIRST

Harriers trample Tennessee

By GARY KORRECK
State News Sports Writer

Jim Gibbard called it the hottest day he'd seen for a cross country meet in 14 years.

Gibbard was not the only one burning up at Forest Akers Golf Course Saturday. His barriers, led by Ken Popejoy, scorched a young Tennessee squad 19-39.

Popejoy ran to his first college victory and, in all, the Spartans placed seven runners in the top ten.

Randy Kilpatrick was third for MSU just :05 seconds behind Tennessee's Doug Brown. Rob Cool, of MSU, was fourth, followed by his captain, Dave Dieters, and his twin brother Ron.

Popejoy, whose continued placement in the top five earned him All-America honors last year, turned in a time of 25:22 for the five-mile course.

"I'm quite surprised," said Popejoy, "I expected him (Brown) to come up a lot faster."

Ken was as much pleased with his time as his victory, noting disappointment with his time against Miami (Ohio) last week.

Kilpatrick, looking more like a sprinter than a distance runner in the last 100 yards, was not dismayed with being nosed out for second. "I waited too long to start my sprint," said Randy.

Gibbard was satisfied with his team's easy victory, adding the times were quite good considering the heat, which was approximately 85 degrees at meet time.

"I thought we ran better as a team this week," said Gibbard, "they showed me a few things we could work on in practice, otherwise it was a good performance."

"We've still got to work on our fifth man," he said, "we've got to get him up with the rest of the team." Dieters and Ron Cool, the fourth and fifth finishers for MSU were nearly 50 seconds behind third man Rob

Cool.

Tennessee cross country coach Stan Huntzman called State's squad, "A close-knit, strong unit; they did a fine job against us."

Gibbard mentioned, as did Huntzman, that Tennessee was used to running in hotter weather, though it appeared to have little effect on the Spartans.

Saturday's meet was the last for the harriers over five-mile courses. This week they move up to six miles, beginning with Ohio State, at Columbus, on Saturday. Gibbard plans extra sprints and hill work to sharpen his team for the longer routes.

Saturday's meet was Tennessee's first of the year, and one which they will probably remember longer. For MSU it was a giant step towards another conference title.

As Ken Popejoy puts it, "That's the one we're looking forward to."

Lions battered; still nip Falcons

DETROIT (UPI) — Errol Mann's seemingly innocuous 13-yard field goal with 4:35 left in the game proved to be the difference Sunday for the Detroit Lions when the Atlanta Falcons last - ditch rally fell short, 41-38.

Detroit's drive which culminated in Mann's second field goal of the game consumed the first 8:37 of the final quarter of the wild National Football Conference game.

Dick LeBeau intercepted the 59th pass of his career, his second of the game, moving him into the no. 3 spot in the all-time list, to stall one Atlanta drive after that field goal. However, the Falcons scored with 32 seconds to play when Jeff Van Note blocked a Herman Weaver punt and Tom Hayes plucked it from a mass of players on the 20 and ran it in for a touchdown.

The Falcons tried an onside kick but reserve tight end Craig Cotton fell on it on the Atlanta 48. The Lions then ran out the game.

Quarterback Greg Landry had hit wide receiver Larry Walton with a "impossible" 56-yard touchdown pass to pull Detroit from a 17-24 deficit and give them a 28-24 lead on the last play of the first half. Atlanta had seven players back to prevent against such a play but Walton took the ball on the right sideline, faked linebacker Don Hansen and safety Tom McCauley to score untouched.

Tight end Charlie Sanders took a 16-yard scoring pass from Landry in the third quarter and LeBeau set up an 18-yard field goal by Mann in the same period with his 58th career interception. This gave the Lions a 38-24 lead.

Wide receiver Ken Burrow, who ended with six receptions for 190 yards, took a 25-yard scoring pass from Atlanta quarterback Bob Berry to cut the gap to 38-31.

Berry, who completed 13 of 23 passes for 309 yards, had hit Burrow with a 56-yard touchdown pass in the 17-point Falcons' second quarter.

Atlanta fumbled five times in the first quarter, with safety Mike Weger returning one of them 52 yards for a touchdown, and fullback Steve Owens plunging two yards for a touchdown after another. Owens carried 22 times in the game and gained 98 yards. Ron Jesse returned a kick-off 97 yards for a touchdown after Bill Bell had kicked a 36-yard field goal for the Falcons.

Berry also hit tight end Jim Mitchell with a 13-yard touchdown pass and Art Malone scored on a one-yard run for Atlanta.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The poised Baltimore Orioles showed why they're the world champions when they spotted fireballer Vida Blue a three - run lead and then charged back with a four - run rally with two out in the 7th inning to beat Blue and the Oakland A's 5 - 3 Sunday, in the first game of the American League Playoffs.

A run - scoring pinch double by bench warmer Curt Motton that tied the game 3 - 3 and a slashing two - run double down the third base line by Baltimore to boost its perfect three - year playoff record to 7 - 0.

Blue, who boasted a 24 - 8 record during the regular season and humbled the Orioles twice on a pair of four - hitters, was staked to a 3 - 0 lead in the fourth inning.

Two-China policy faces test in UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Delegates of many nationalities and convictions were agreed Sunday that the United States faces hard going with its proposal to keep Nationalist China in the United Nations while inviting Communist China to come in.

A few predicted outright that the Communist People's Republic of China would be in and the Nationalist Republic of China out before the end of the General Assembly's three-month 26th annual session, due Dec. 21.

But most of those speculating on the subject were saying that it was a tossup whether the United States would win, and that two or three votes one way or the other would decide the issue.

That was the situation as Secretary of State William P. Rogers prepared to go before the assembly with a general statement of U.S. policy, including a defense of the two-China scheme he announced in Washington on Aug. 2. His announcement was that in the assembly the United States would "support action . . . for seating the People's Republic of China" in the United Nations but "oppose any action to expel the Republic of China." Rogers said that was "fully in accord with President Nixon's desire to normalize relations with the People's Republic of China" — dramatized by Nixon's July 15 announcement that he was going to Peking some time before next May.

The secretary of state will speak in the 130-nation assembly's general debate at 10:30 a.m. EDT Monday.

His speech of 30 to 40 minutes will dwell, among other things, on his initiative toward an Egyptian-Israeli agreement for reopening the Suez Canal and on Soviet-U.S. relations.

But he is expected to devote a large part of it to an explanation of the United States' gestures toward Peking and its simultaneous defense of the U.N. seat of Taipei.

With the cosponsorship of 16 other countries, the United States is pushing a resolution to leave Nationalist China seated in the assembly and seat Communist China both in the assembly and on the Security Council.

But its main hope of saving the Nationalists' assembly seat lies in another resolution, cosponsored with 19 other countries, that would designate the ouster of Nationalist China an "important question," requiring a two-thirds vote for a decision.

That proposal is directed against the so-called "Albanian resolution," sponsored by 21 countries, to oust the Nationalist while giving everything to the Communists.

The China debate starts around Oct. 18 and the voting is expected around Oct. 27.

The guessing is on whether the United States can get the simple majority necessary to adopt the "important question" proposal and pull the teeth of the Albanian resolution. It goes both ways.

SLAVE LABOR

Pay inequity noted

and $1,033 more in Veterinary Medicine.

For 10-month faculty, male assistant professors are paid an average of $409 more in Arts and Letters; $1,010 in Communication Arts; $1,408 in Education; $470 in Engineering; $855 in Social Science and $222 in University College.

In Natural Science the average 10-month faculty female assistant professor is paid $2 more than her male counterparts.

In some categories no comparisons were possible.

"When the University finds out by its own data that there is discrimination it should be changed immediately, not re-reported year after year," Ms. Neiberg told the women.

An independent task force with the purpose of "presenting realistic and hopeful solutions to sex inequities at MSU," the Alliance was denied permission this week to present information on pay and positions that are not now part of the Affirmative Action report at the Board of Trustees meeting Oct. 15.

"Why does the University write an affirmative Action report when nothing is done about it?" Ms. Neiberg asked.

Referring to hiring goals, she said:

"When Affirmative Actions means percentages of women drop every year, I don't call that Affirmative Action. The University says they are waiting for qualified women — this University can't find qualified women for anything."

"Women make up 5.5 percent of the full professors," she said. "When there starts to be money to be made, women just aren't hired or promoted. It's remarkable how women disappear as rank increases."

She also said women are frequently kept on temporary status although they may work at MSU for most of their careers, so they do not have to be promoted.

"Women are invisible on this campus," she said.

Those attending the Alliance meeting responded by telling their own experiences with discrimination.

One woman, with a master's degree and administrative experience said she was told if she wanted to get into the administrative field at MSU she would have to start as a typist "to crack the system."

"I asked the man in personnel how I would 'crack the system' if I were a man and didn't have these secretarial skills," she said. "He just smiled and I had made my point."

Another woman said she had been told the University would not consider a male typist because they would have to pay him more than a woman.

"No matter how many degrees a woman has, she has to take a typing test at the personnel center," she said, "but they won't allow men to take the typing test."

Help!

Paula Wild, Ann Arbor sophomore, was enjoying the exhibits in the MSU museum when she apparently got caught in the jaws of this beast. She doesn't seem upset about it though.

Landslide Thieu victory marred by street rioting persons, six of them combat policemen, were killed by exploding grenades hurled by Vietnamese during the disturbances. The reports could not be confirmed.

Monks at the Tinh Hoi Pagoda, local headquarters of the militantly antigovernment An Quang Buddhist sect, also claimed that a 17-year-old boy and a man, 42, were killed. This could not be confirmed either, Jensen said.

Hurling firebombs and rocks as well as grenades at police, the demonstrators virtually paralyzed the voting process during the morning and early afternoon. But officials in Saigon reported as the polls closed that 63.4 percent of Da Nang's registered voters had cast ballots.

Sixty miles farther north, in Hue, 500 to 1,000 students, many of them of high school age, clashed with police in another demonstration that began with a march from the Bo De Buddhist high school.

They threw firebombs and were driven back by tear gas. Police also fired guns in the air but there were no reports of anyone being killed or wounded on either side. Some demonstrators were clubbed and beaten by police, witnesses reported, and a number were arrested.

It was the second day of such clashes in the old imperial capital. Fourteen persons were arrested there Saturday including the alleged leader of the protests, a 55-year-old Bo De high school teacher named Ngo Kha.

In Qui Nhon, another coastal city that is traditionally a center of antigovernment feeling, voting went smoothly although snipers wounded three governments militiamen at a polling place in the surrounding province of Binh Dinh and fired on others around a voting booth.

The election climaxed a tumultuous three months of bitter political maneuvering and, in recent weeks, recurring violence stemming chiefly from reaction to Thieu's decision to run alone.

Thieu's name became the only one on the ballot after his two rivals, retired Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, dropped out of the race claiming that the election was rigged.

The situation has proved a major embarrassment to the United States, which had made a democratic election with multiple candidates a cornerstone of its Vietnam policy.

Last Friday 130 U.S. congressmen signed a statement calling the election a "mockery . . . an exercise in totalitarian rule" and protesting it "in the strongest manner possible."

While setting 50 percent of the votes cast as his standard for remaining in office, Thieu has indicated several times, as he did again Sunday, that he might consider resigning even if he got less than 60 percent.

Patriarche said the city won't release any voter information until all the registrations are processed, but he couldn't say when they would be completed. The city has never had to process any more than 600 registrations at any one time.

"We've never had anything like this before and I can't say how long it will take," he said.

The process, Patriarche said, involves placing each name in the appropriate precinct book, sending each voter his official notice and then counting all the registrants so that enough voting machines can be ordered.

The city has been offered volunteer assistance from Asher House, a Christian Science Dormitory, the League of Women Voters and Project: City Hall, he said, but all volunteers must be trained and must work in City Hall.

"We have to be very careful about this because we can't have someone come in and say they registered and we must have lost their forms," Patriarche said. "This has happened before."

Whatever the processing requirements, Colburn sees the absence of voter registration information as critical to the campaign.

"If the city manager claims all 7,500 registrations are 'in-process' and won't be available to us until election day, then he is, in effect, denying us knowledge of who is registered to vote," Colburn said.

Colburn estimated that between 2,000 and 3,000 registrations are already processed, in part at least, through the efforts of the many volunteer typists who worked on campus with the League of Women Voters.

The registration forms are now stored in plastic tubs in a vault, he said, and the public, including candidates, should be at least allowed to record the information from the tubs not in process at any particular time.

"The use of the term 'in-process' seems a front to not let us see the books," Colburn said. I say this with some assurance because last summer some of us were allowed to look through one tub while the others were processed."

Information from the registration rolls is crucial to the type of campaign a candidate may run, he explained.

Will, Griffiths and Colburn (candidate) plan to go directly to student voters to discuss local issues on a grass-roots level, he said, but this will be impossible without voters' names and addresses.

"If we can't get the lists, then we won't be able to run a people-to-people campaign, and the election might become just a matter of who can buy the largest and greatest number of newspaper ads," Colburn said.

"So the city's decisions to hang on to the voter registration lists is truly an advantage to those who have large campaign funds to draw on."

Colburn said a court order may be sought if the city persistently refuses to make the information available.

Financial aid funds depleted by demand the student body is shifting, making it necessary for the University to support more of its students.

• The number of students who cannot find adequate summer jobs has increased over the last two years.

• The number of students who are not supported by parents is also increasing. Dykema said he is concerned that with the age of majority bill making students legally adults at 18, more parents will not support their children past that age. He said this would put further strain on financial aids.

Dykema released the totals for financial aid during 1970-71. His information does not include all financial aid that students receive, because other offices in the University also administer some financial aid. A report which includes information and figures from the financial aids office and all other offices administering aid will be submitted by Dean of Students Eldon Nonnamaker to the board of trustees at its October meeting.

According to Dykema's information, 10,186 students received grants during the 1970-71 year for about $3.4 million. About 12,850 students had loans totaling 6.9 million while another 6,453 students had scholarships worth $3 million.

In the work study program, 2,263 students earned about an average $670 or $1.5 million altogether.

Nonnamaker's report will include other sources of financial aid: $14.8 million was made available through student labor, assistantships, grants and fellowships, raising the total assistance for students during the 1970-71 year to $29.7 million.

ORIGIN

Early American Indians, before gathering around a fire to talk peace, buried their hatchets, scalp knives and war clubs, since it was a rule of the "Great Spirit" that they put all their weapons to the ground. The expression "bury the hatchet" still signifies the burial of differences in arriving at peace terms. Arrive at peaceful terms in your household by turning to the STA'E News Classifieds. It's the best place to look for that second car, and settle the differences in your people.
