Man robs city bank, kills branch manager

By RICK WILBINS CINDI STEINWAY

State News Staff Writers

A man described by police as slender, husky-voiced and dressed in woman's clothing, shot and killed a First National Bank branch manager early Monday afternoon and fled with what was first reported to be $20,000.

Killed in the robbery was Stanley Irish, 62, of Webberville. Irish had been manager of the bank for the past two years. The bank is located in an underdeveloped section of Lansing Township at 3332 Lansing Road.

The assailant — believed by police to be operating alone - escaped from the scene in a green Mustang, according to a Michigan State Police report. Roadblocks

The woman said the robber looked like a woman, but she said she believed him to be a man because of his deep voice.

The assailant apparently entered theone-room bank about 1:45 p.m. Monday police said, and ordered Irish to open a small safe in the manager's office. MILLIKEN PROPOSAL

Brickley backs plan for primary in state

By RANDY GARTON State News Staff Writer

Lt. Gov. James H. Brickley Monday endorsed Gov. Milliken's recent proposal for a May presidential primary in Michigan, calling it a "very significant and important election reform measure for the State of Michigan.'

Brickley said in a prepared statement that a presidential primary would help insure the full political participation of the state's newly - enfranchised young voters while avoiding the "pitfalls" of an April precinct election, a proposal backed by Michigan Democrats.

While the specifics of the governor's plan have not yet been released, there are several possibilities based on the operations of the growing number of states holding Presidential primaries.

Under the "winner take all" system, the candidate who wins the primary, whether by a close vote or a landslide, would receive the 1st ballot votes of the state's delegation at the national conventions. Under the "unit system" the delegation's vote may be split, depending upon each individual precinct vote.

A third possibility would be a percentage system. For example, if Candidate A received 51 per cent of the vote and Candidate B received 49 per cent, A would receive 51 per cent of the delegation's vote, and B would receive 49 per cent.

Brickley also took a swipe at the Democratic proposal for a spring precinct primary, saying that the plan would "only have changed the date of selecting these delegates.

Democratic response to Milliken's proposal has been non - committal. Robert Mitchell, deputy chairman of the Michigan Democratic State Central Committee, said

Students on council now a reality

By S. A. SMITH State News Staff Writer

News Background

The idea of student participation in the major governing body of the University has crystallized gradually in the minds of students and sympathetic faculty members. Today 31 students will sit among 104 faculty members and administrators to discuss and vote on some of the issues that may radically affect student's academic lives. The Academic Council has emerged in the past several years as the most powerful faculty body on campus. At 3:15 p.m. today the faculty will embark on a new direction in the area of faculty power: it will, for the first time in MSU history, share its advising and rule - making authority with student council members.

Decisions on changing the grading policy, advice on financial and budgetary matters, curriculum revisions and "any matter pertaining to the general welfare of the University" will no longer be the exclusive province of faculty members of the Academic Council. Fourteen student representatives from the colleges, 10 student representatives - at · large, six representatives selected by the Council of Graduate Student (COGS) and the student member of the Steering Committee will have full membership privileges on the council at the first meeting of winter term today. Although there are 16 colleges, only 14 representatives will be seated today. James Madison College has yet to select its representative and the College of Human Ecology is scheduled to select a replacement for Clyde Best, Brooklyn, N.Y. junior, who was selected student member of the Steering Committee. All council members will be seated alphabetically in the Con Con Room of the International Center in an effort to eliminate any feelings of unfamiliarity among the students. In the past, faculty and administrative members of the council sat in undesignated seats in the large conference room.

A reception and dinner at Kellogg Center Monday evening was planned by the President's office so that the student Academic Council members would have an opportunity to meet with the faculty and administrative council members informally before the first official Academic Council meeting. Introductions were scheduled for Monday evening so that time need not be reserved for today's meeting to present the 31 students. A long agenda, filled primarily with informational reports, is planned for the council meeting.

One item in particular, the informational report on modifying the general educational program at MSU, should claim student interest and comment at today's council meeting.

Drafted by the Educational Policies Committee (EPC), the plan offers a method for increasing the alternatives for students in meeting the 45 required credits of general education. Currently all general education requirements must be met within the University College.

The EPC proposal will be offered for discussion today but formal action on the plan will not be taken until the February Academic Council meeting.

The EPC is one of 12 University standing committees which function in specific areas and recommend proposals to the council for action. Student membership on all but the Faculty Tenure Committee was authorized by the Bylaws for Academic Governance, approved last May. Student membership on the committees is divided into undergraduate, graduate and members

- at - large (who may be either graduates or undergraduates.)

Undergraduate student members of the committees are chosen by their colleges, the graduate student members are selected by COGS, and the at - large members are appointed by the student members of the Academic Council.

None of the 22 at - large committee members have been appointed to 11 committees yet. The difficulty in making the appointments can be charged to a lack of interest among students and a bottleneck created by a time - consuming injunction involving procedural illegalities in the at - large election to the Academic

Despite the difficulties surrounding the selection of the at - large committee members, student representatives to the Academic Council are in for a highly educational experience today.

Peking plans successful

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, returning from an advance trip to China, said Monday in Washington the visit to make arrangements for President Nixon's Peking summit was highly successful.

Terming the preliminary meetings "very successful," Ziegler said, "And the representatives of the Peoples Republic of China with whom we dealt could not have been more cooperative."

In a planeside news conference at Andrews Air Force Base, Ziegler said the advance party which left for Peking Dec. 29 would report to President Nixon and details would be released later. He declined to say whether additional preliminary trips will be necessary before Nixon goes to Peking next month.

Solar explosion recorded

A solar explosion so violent it might have rocked the earth back on its heels a bit - had it been aimed in this direction - has been recorded by an optical device for the first time.

Solar physicists of the Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) were elated not only at the dramatically informative pictures themselves but at the demonstration of a completely new method for observing solar flares.

Major explosive outbursts of the sun's atmosphere cause such effects on earth as blackouts of long distance radio communication and even of telephone service, spectacular displays of the northern lights, and geomagnetic storms in the earth's natural magnetic field.

Consolidation ordered

A U.S. district court judge has ordered the consolidation of the mostly black Richmond school system with the predominantly white systems of two neighboring counties next September.

Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. said Monday that the Constitution clearly required breaking the lines of separate jurisdictions to bring about meaningful integration, which he called essential to quality in education.

"If there is to be public education it must, under the Constitution, be afforded to all on an equal basis, Merhige said in a 325-page opinion granting the consolidation request of the Richmond City School Board.

Gravity causes bounces

Gravity highs and lows caused spacecraft orbiting the moon to bounce by as much as 100 feet, a scientist said Monday at the Space Center, Houston at the opening session of the 3rd Annual Lunar Science Conference.

W.L. Sijogren of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., told some 600 scientists that positive and negative gravity anomalies, or irregularities, toy with orbiting spacecraft about the moon, causing them to change altitudes frequently.

He said a setting of radio tracking data from Apollo 15 confirmed and closely defined areas of intensified gravitational attraction on the moon.

Court to rule on visa denial

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court agreed Monday to rule on the government's power to keep Marxist visistors from speaking in the United States.

The issue will be aired at a hearing later in the term in a case concerning Dr. Ernest E. Mandel, an internationally known Belgium writer who was denied a visa to lecture at American colleges, universities and conferences.

In granting the review of a Justice Dept. appeal, the court gave the government a chance to fight for retention of sections of the McCarran Act that were declared invalid by a three - judge federal panel in New York City last March. These sections ban visas for aliens who advocate or teach "the economic, international and governmental doctrine of world communism."

The lower court, in a 2 - 1 decision, held the law denies the freedom of Americans to receive information.

The court backed away from a ruling on use of church property because of a change in Florida law. The case concerning parking facilities exempt from taxation and used during the week by the Central Baptist Church in Miami to collect fees.

Two Miami residents, Florence Diffenderfer and Nishan Paul, claim the exemption is unconstitutional preference of one religion over others. The Florida legislature, in changing state law last year, exempts church property from taxation only if it is used predominantly for religious purposes.

Mandel was admitted to the United States in 1962 and 1968. He was denied a visa in 1969, the government said, because of his WAHINGTON (AP) - Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld suggested Monday that the government more actively protect the health of cigaret smokers and nonsmokers through new laws.

There is "no longer an honest disagreement among medical scientists" that "cigaret smoking is deadly," Steinfeld said at a news conference in releasing a sixth major report to Congress linking smoking to fatal diseases.

The Tobacco Institute immediately described the report as false, misleading and "a gross insult to the scientific community.

"Once again the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare has failed to make the objective report on smoking and health research required by Congress," said William Kloepfer, senior vice president of the institute which is the voice of the industry.

have it reviewed prior to publication by a number of persons known to share his opinion of smoking," said Kloepfer. "They were just as careful not to submit the report to any of the many scientific experts who disagree with it."

Steinfeld, a nonsmoker, avoided proposing specific legislation to curb smoking or protect public health. But he said reforms could include setting maximum limits on tar and nicotine in cigarets or taxing each brand by content, ending tobacco subsidies and banning all cigaret advertising.

The 226 - page report lists tar, nicotine and carbon monoxide as smoking ingredients most likely to be harmful.

It said even nonsmokers can be harmed by prolonged exposure to large amounts of cigaret smoke in a small room. Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, immediately announced that his Senate Commerce subcommittee will hold hearings Feb. 1, 3 and 10 on a bill limiting tar and nicotine. He said Canadian studies have shown that when those substances are reduced, carbon monoxide generally declines also.

Moss said his consumer subcommittee will look also into the advertising of small cigars which, "look like cigarets and, more importantly, are inhaled like cigarets." He said they avoid the broadcast advertising ban on cigarets and cigarets' taxation.

Health Secretary Elliot L. Richardson has told Congress he supports Federal Trade Commission efforts to require health warnings and tar and nicotine listings in all cigaret ads but will again recommend legislative action if regulatory efforts fail. Health warnings now are required only on cigaret packages.

Steinfeld said that though 44 million Americans smoke, another 29 million have stopped smoking due to "concerted governmental and citizen campaigns." But he said the government has not succeeded in discouraging youth from taking up the subversive affiliations and his "flagrant abuse of the oppo afforded him" during the 1968 visit.

Student leaders' support of delegate election sags

By JOANNA FIRESTONE State News Staff Writer

A state wide campus drive to muster support for a proposed special April election of precinct delegates drew a lackluster response from MSU student leaders on campus Monday in the wake of Gov. Milliken's Friday announcement that he will support a full-fledged presidential primary in Michigan.

The April election proposal, designed to pull newly enfranchised 18 - 21 - year - old voters into the political system, calls for a special election to select new precinct delegates. Supporters of the move say a special election will guarantee that the new voters' voice will be heard through their delegates at the forthcoming presidential nominating conventions.

Gov. Milliken, however, took away much of the enthusiasm proposal by his unexpected

"I welcome the governor's belated move in the direction of youth representation through a presidential primary," Vaughn said, "but I question some aspects of his proposal.

'The governor's proposal excludes minority representation and appears to violate the one person - one vote principle mandated by the U.S. Constitution," he said. "Because no Democrat has actually seen the governor's proposal it is difficult to make a thorough Milliken's announcement took analysis of the proposal or its implications.

'My main hope, however, is that the governor will not place insuperable obstacles in the path of this much needed reform by proposing a presidential primary full of complications that are impossible of solution."

EDITORIALS General ed proposal merits implementation

Today the Academic Council will receive "A Proposal for Modifying the General Education Requirement at Michigan State University." If implemented, this document could greatly expand the limited general education curriculum currently offered by University College.

Under the proposal, all colleges in the University would be urged to develop options to American Thought and Language, Natural Science, Humanities and Social Science, tailored to the specific needs of their own college's students. This process would in some cases involve the designation of already existent courses - usually of an introductory nature - as fulfilling the college's general education requirement, or in other cases require the creation of altogether new course listings.

It would be understood, however, that such courses would constitute have the flexibility to tailor their substitutes for the University College's general education program which would remain in existence. The proposal would retain the four-year general studies programs in University requirement that there be all the colleges, there would no 45 credits of general education

The reasoning behind the proposal is very sound. The purpose of general education is to insure that every student at this University obtains a "rounded education" within the parameters of his specific major. Requiring all students to take the same inflexible general education course sequence often results in needless duplication of material, wasting both the student's and the University's time and money.

Proviso

There is one other proviso, however, that should be added to the passage of the general education proposal. The various colleges must make a concerted effort to create truly worthwhile educationally. It would be exceedingly unfortunate if the colleges only duplicated the pap presently being offered in many of the University College courses.

Further, the rationale for maintaining an inflexible 45-credit minimum for general education course work is somewhat wanting. Perhaps if the college general education surrogates are truly upgraded this 25 per cent of an undergraduate's career will not seem like such a waste. Again the onus is upon the colleges to see that the "modification" of the general manifest improvement rather than a rearrangement.

With these reservations we feel that the general education proposal constitutes a constructive modification of the fabric of the educational process, and one which should be most welcome to the students of this University.

Accompanying the general education proposal is a second proposal which advocates the creation of four-year, degree-granting programs in "general studies" within the various colleges. In effect, such a proposal would offer a degree program for students who don't want a single area of concentration in the form of a traditional major. It would also take the pressure off students who are presently forced to declare a major after two years even if they have no special interest area in mind. Still other students would degree program to their individual

With the implementation of longer be a need for the longstanding proposal to elevate University College to a four - year, degree granting program institution. A four - year University College degree granting program would only duplicate the general studies programs of the various colleges, resulting in extra expense unjustifiable in terms of the U's tight

Indeed, with the several colleges offering four - year general studies programs and taking over much of the responsibility for meeting the 45 - credit general education requirement, the role of University College will undoubtedly be a shrinking one in the coming years. general education sequences that are As its share of the general education burden is reduced, fiscal adjustments will have to be made by the provost's office.

The concept of a general degree program, along with the general education proposal mentioned above, will help bring greater flexibility to curriculums often strictured by arbitrary requirements not always in the best interests of the students. In the same stroke, the overextended University College program can be returned to a more manageable shape, hopefully with a consequent improvement in the quality of its course offerings. education program represents a Eventually, as general education phases into the rest of the 'U', simple matter of bureaucratic University College may well be

Challenge for Mujib

Monday, amid the tumultuous welcome of hundreds of thousands of Bengalis, Shiek Mujibur Rahman finally set foot on his native soil again. Hailed as "bangapita," the father of his nation, Mujib's task has only just begun.

From the moment of its inception, Bangladesh was one of the most impoverished! nations on the globe. Even if the scars of the Pakistani civil war can be healed, massive amounts of foreign aid will be necessary to set Dacca on its fiscal feet.

Before anything can be done, however, Mujib must obtain diplomatic recognition from the community of nations. Clearly, reaching some sort of accord with West Pakistan will be in Dacca's best interests if these diplomatic ends are to be achieved. It is doubtful, for example, that Washington would even remotely consider dealing with Bangladesh without a go - ahead from Islamaba.

By releasing Rahman, West Pakistan's new President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto made the first overture toward some sort of settlement. We are not advocating the surrender of Bangladesh's independence, but if Mujib is truly intent upon his statement that "we have no enmity" he would do well to return Bhutto's gesture.

A year or so ago a friend of mine in a relatively nigh student post stated that the one thing he wanted most was to "get out

At the time I was perplexed. Why, I thought, should he be in a hurry to bust out of a prestige position that had taken four years to earn? Why hurry the advent of adulthood when college life can be such a gas?

I have since come to understand his Periodically when I used to get really bummed out by the incessant bickering, backbiting and treachery that accompanies any quasi-political student undertaking I'd tell myself "Pull it together: college is simply life in microcosm. Hassling is the nature of all things and if you can't make it now you sure as heck won't be able to make it out in the real world.'

It's a pretty standard rap: you've probably heard it several thousand times

The problem is that its wrong. There's something very unique about the student organization trip. Simply, playing at but not quite accomplishing "real" living is not, in general, typical of life "out there." That we fail to realize this is due only to our lack of meta-perspective; to the fact that most of us have never been "outside,"

"No, we're really not living in a microcosm of life here at all. The University operates as its own universe of discourse with its own axioms and corollaries. Petty hassling may be the name of the human game, but usually not of the same order or intensity as is the student case.

having spent all our lives within the student

It has to do in part with not really believing in yourself because there is always an overseer, the University. Students and the organizations they form are in many ways reminiscent of notorious bodies such as the South Vietnamese Diet - the similance of meaning is there while the substance is wholly lacking.

And, indeed, with this "student council" mentality it is doubtful that they would even be able to seize the opportunity to rise to functionalism were it presented.

Knowing that someone or something else has final authority in most cases tends to generate an unreality in the dynamic of student organizations. It doesn't really matter if you're not quite as competent as you might be since, in the final analysis, it doesn't really matter - there is always a bail-out. So what if you waste a few thou? The "U" won't go broke. It's not like the fate of the Free World depended upon your decision or anything.

In fighting the war for student power we have hailed the drafting of "Freedom" documents crying "In loco parentis is dead." But "in loco parentis," the University as parent, is a state of mind. We may have freed ourselves from the social and political shackles of administration control, but we still have not broke bonds of the parent-child matrix.

That's probably why student types want to hassle endlessly over they're trying to attract attention, trying to be "functional" and "rel and "meaningful" and the best student board member (read: lo there is and, thereby, be patted if head for their efforts.

TRB FROM WASHINGTON

Nixon: politics by indirection

By RICHARD LEE STROUT

First there was an advertisement of Montgomery Ward, and then one for the March of Dimes, and after that the announcer, as though apologizing to millions for depriving them of their favorite broadcast, took us into the White House and there was Dan Rather about to ask Richard Nixon questions for the next hour. It carried right back to 1960.

Only in 1960 it wasn't a respectful newsman asking questions but young Jack Kennedy in the Nixon - Kennedy debates, a relatively unknown Catholic senator, running for the Presidency, with most of the press against him, a ghastly campaign deficit and the polls giving Vice President Nixon a comfortable margin, 50-44, after the conventions.

Mr. Nixon last week may have recalled 1960. He is a man of television; the Checkers speech was a brilliant tour de force; the 1960 debate probably cost him the election; the 1968 victory was an expert job of packaging; the ill-natured Phoenix speech in 1970 (attacking youthful dissidents) helped create Edmund Muskie. Since then he has used TV time and again for stunning, dazzling prime-time announcements while almost dropping old-fashioned press conferences

Thought There is a school of thought in America that regards the President as sacrosanct, a kind of monarch, who shouldn't be questioned by lesser folk and who, to attack, is lese majesty. It is a tough assignment for a critical interviewer, knowing that he is talking to a man who is part political leader and part Sacred Cow, trying to be respectful without being obsequious and all the time pushed forward by professional pride in his craft. Dan Rather for CBS, was calm, dead-pan, matter-of-fact, with an icy delivery of questions some of which were brutally direct. Of course everybody watched to see how the President reacted in this, the evident opening of his "nonpolitical" campaign for re-election. It was all on a very, very high level.

"Mr. President," Rather said in effect. "you told Time magazine last week that Vietnam will not be an issue in the campaign 'as far as this Administration is concerned because we will have brought the American involvement to an end.' Does ending American involvement mean total withdrawal?' Mr. Nixon said no, it didn't, not so long as Hanoi holds a single POW. (A good many of us wonder whether Mr. Nixon is holding U.S. troops there to get the POWs out, or using the POWs as an excuse to keep troops in.) "Mr. President," continued Rather, "you said in March, 1971, that 'under no circumstances' would you normalize realtions with China if that meant Taiwan's expulsion from the UN. How come?" Mr. Nixon said it was a good thing to end the freeze with China

Question

His interlocutor paused with an expressionless face and then asked the next question. It was all quite impersonal. Polls, he said, gave Mr. Nixon high marks for decisiveness, for willingness to change. But about half of those queried, he noted, 'said that you had failed to inspire confidence and faith and lacked personal warmth and compassion. Why," asked Rather, with the interest of one housewife asking another about a biscuit recipe, "do you suppose that is?"

The question may have been unfair, but the situation, like the debate with Jack Kennedy, was one that Mr. Nixon had brought upon himself. It is a crucial issue, too; the election may turn on it - the question of presidential personality. Mr. Nixon replied reasonably enough that "my strong point is not rhetoric, it isn't showmanship; what counts," he said, "is performance.'

A valid answer, we think. But the President couldn't quite let it go at that or carry it off. It recalled that uncomfortable defensive look when he was under the hot lights in Chicago in 1960 in the first debate with Kennedy. Teddy White recalls it in his "The Making of the President, 1960," -"tense, almost frightened, at times glowering, and occasionally haggard-looking to the point of sickness... half slouched, his 'Lazy Shave' powder faintly streaked with sweat, his eyes exaggerated hollows of blackness, his jaw, jowls, and face drooning with strain."

DOONESBURY

MICHAEL, FROM THE LOOKS OF THINGS SO FAR, I THINK MY COFFEEHOUSE HERE IS

Nothing like that now; just a hint. He conceded that he had made mistakes, but couldn't quite let things drop at that. He explained, a little defensively, "My strong point, if I have a strong point, is performance. I always do more than I say. I always produce more than I promise.' After making this breathtaking comment, he dashed off to California to Minister Sate to try to square thing Japan, which shows some alienation. We wonder how long Mr. can sustain this peculiar mixture of rhetoric, rapid movem self-righteousness, and politics

To the Editor:

I congratulate you for publishing H.R. Hoppe's letter dated Dec. 3, 1971. His racist attitudes were expressed so eloquently that I knew immediately that he must surely be a professor of English.

The professor points out that he too comes from a multi-ethnic background. Four nationalities, all white. His very existence is proof of the "Great Society's" acceptance these white "ethnic" groups.

The United States Constitution excluded blacks and Indians specifically when it was written. The only reason Chicanos weren't mentioned is because The good ole' USA wasn't into its imperialist bag yet. Of course, the Civil Rights Act changed all that. Hah! Tell that to George Jackson, Thomas Whitehawk or Caesar Chavez. There are a lot of you who don't even know those names. We know them and we know your culture also. We know that in Ireland two groups of Christians are fighting over the same God! We know that West Germany supplies Portugal with arms to suppress blacks in her African colonies. And finally, we know that a man from Austria with his racist ideas almost wiped

"Contrary to what many law enforcement people have said, the law is enforceable and the penalty more nearly reflects the nature of the crime," Traxler said.

Fraternities Offer Opportunities

The deep need of man is the need to overcome his separateness. Fraternity, based on this concept, while also drawing its purposes from the needs of today's society, offers individuals the opportunity to develop themselves as whole persons. Education for the fraternity member is a time for intellectual and personal growth; an exciting opportunity to work with others and to share with them the joys and problems of the group. It is a dynamic experience where man can begin to understand others, and therefore to understand himself.

Each of the twenty-nine National Fraternities chartered at Michigan State University is in some ways unique. Similarly, each person within a particular brotherhood is a separate entity, each with his own interests, ideas, goals, and personality. Therefore, the fraternity is also a forum which considers not only those short range goals of chapter programs and campus activities, but also those issues which confront the University and the total society. It is a catalyst to help individuals observe, evaluate, learn, and then act.

Fraternities share common underlying principles though manifested in different forms. Fraternity living is a conscious way of life. It is founded upon friendship and responsible action for the common good, while at the same time encouraging individual self development and discovery. It treats innovation and change openly, while offering opportunities to grow, to learn, to participate, and to be challenged. Look to MSU's fraternities for a total experience.

The Lansing State Journal reported in late December that MSU, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University had violated the 1956 Electrical probably assume the Administrative Act, which required employes of the state Electrical Administrative Board or local building inspectors to Emory G. Foster, asst. vice examine newly constructed buildings.

Police said they are no longer bicycles from bicycle racks, but

Clayton McCoy, administrative secretary of the Electrical Administrative Board agreed with Foster's statement, adding that "inspection should be initiated."

University inspectors have used codes which are "frequently more stringent than that used by the state board," according to a letter written Wednesday by Roger Wilkinson, vice president for business and finance to the Lansing State Journal. The paper had charged that MSU, and other state universities, were "defying" the state inspection code.

HARLOT IS HELD!

Hours: 8:15 A.M. - 4:30 P.M.

BEAL FILM GROUP PRESENTS FOR PERSONS OVER 18 YEARS OF AGE -

NEW LOCATION: 106B Wells

Wolf Wolf Wolf

Everyone has heard the story of the little boy who cried wolf, until no one would believe him when there really WAS one. Well, the Beal Film Group knows that many persons feel that way about ADULT FILMS. Often, the audience has been promised everything - only to be given nothig.

The film with word of mouth

is a complete departure from anything we have ever shown previously. HARLOT has broken records in New York, San Francisco, and Los Angeles; over 200,000 people have seen the film - many have come twice. HARLOT is the film that makes all other adult films immediately passe. HARLOT is the film to which all others will be compared in the future. It is the ULTIMATE adult film.

A hard act to follow

The minimum admission was set by the distributor at $2.00. The distributor felt that a $2.00 admission would discourage those who were merely curious - those who hadn't seen an erotic film before and wondered what they were like. After viewing the film ourselves, the Beal Film Group agrees -HARLOT IS NOT FOR BEGINNERS. (The theatrical price was $5).

Those desiring admission to this film must sign the following statement: a) I am 18 yrs of age (or older), b) I am aware of the nature/content of this film and came of my own free will (not coerced in any manner to attend), c) I believe that the state should not interfere in the private behavior of adults which does not adversly effect others.

HARLOT IS RATED X - INCREDIBLY X

You must be 18 yrs of age and able to prove it. All persons must have ID those without will not be admitted. NO EXCEPTIONS will be made.

rates, over those who come to the University from other states and who have made no financial contribution to its support.

Students who are designated as nonresidents by MSU can presently gain resident status if their parents move to Michigan and reside for a period of six months. If the student is over 21, he can secure resident status by residing in Michigan for six months while not attending the University. Present University policy is likely to be altered. In November, the trustees tabled proposed regulations governing admissions, fees and tuition

Guidelines accompanying the proposed regulations, which will be considered at the January board meeting, provide that:

*A minor student will be classified as a resident if the parent or legal guardian is employed full time by MSU, or at least one year immediately the student's family moves prior to his initial enrollment. k long · haired. Lecture series set for this term

The College of Communication Arts and its alumni association are sponsoring a lecture series this term on "Human Communication: International and Cross-Cultural Communication.' Four speakers, among them an MSU faculty members, will discuss the lecture series theme. All lectures are open to the public and will be held at 7:30 p.m. in 116 Natural Science Bldg. The lecture series began last month when Warren J. Mitofsky, director of the CBS News Election Unit, spoke on "CBS News and Elections: Some Implications for Cross-Cultural Communication." Mitofsky called the election process a "bore" and said election laws needed much reform. He said he did not believe the 18 - year - old enfranchisement would affect the national elections significantly. Joseph L. Stewart, a communications disorder specialist with the Indian Health Service of the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) will be the second speaker in the series. On Jan. 17, Stewart will speak on "Communication among the American Indians" in a lecture sponsored jointly by the American Indian Programs of the MSU Center for Urban Affairs.

Walter B. Emery, from the Dept. of Speech at Ohio State University, will speak on "Broadcast Censorship in the Communist World" on Feb. 17.

On March 2, Alfred E. Opubor, director of the African Studies Center here, will discuss "Prospero and Caliban Revisited: Sociolinguistic Aspects of International Communication."

Raymond A. League, president of Zebra Associates in New York, will be the final speaker in the series. He will discuss the implications of the fact that "Twenty - three Million American Consumers are Black," on April 6.

Terry said 1,650 students have pass book savings accounts with the cashier's office, although no interest is paid on such savings accounts. At the end of fall term, some $200,000 was on deposit in the bank.

Terry said the net balance on deposit in the savings accounts fluctuates considerably, averaging between $100,000 and $150,000 with a low of around $50,000 reported at the end of summer term. The University maintains the standard security procedures including a heavy duty vault and alarm systems
