McGovern hopeful of nomination

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern said Wednesday he is an even-money bet to win the Democratic presidential nomination after his peak-through victory in the Wisconsin primary.

As the candidates broke camp to head for new primary contests, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey surveyed his third-place showing in Wisconsin and claimed it really wasn't very significant.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who wound up second, said he had given "I am a viable candidate."

And Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, a poor fourth in Wisconsin, said the national campaign now is a tossup. "I think I'm a strong contender," he added.

Another Democrat, New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, dropped out of the national race after a fourth-place finish.

Complete Wisconsin returns compiled by the News Election Service gave McGovern 30 per cent of the record primary vote, Wallace 2 per cent, Humphrey 21 per cent and Muskie 10 per cent.

McGovern gained 54 national convention delegate votes by sweeping the statewide contest and capturing seven of the nine congressional districts.

Presidential Nixon swept the Republican primary with 97 per cent of the vote, and captured 28 national convention votes for nomination.

N. Vietnamese open 3rd front, battle within 60 miles of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese tanks and troops opened a third front Wednesday, slashing 20 miles across the Cambodian border to within 60 miles of Saigon. President Nguyen Van Thieu declared South Vietnam is fighting for its existence.

On the major front south of the demilitarized zone, other North Vietnamese battled to cut off the provincial capital of Quang Tri from the south while advancing from the north and west on that city base 19 miles south of the zone. Enemy tanks were also on the attack in the central highlands.

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, commander of South Vietnamese forces on the far northern front, told newsmen North Vietnamese MG1 fighters appeared over South Vietnam for the first time in the war. He said two flew over his lines but did not attack. Informed sources in Saigon denied the report, but three Americans in Quang Tri said they had seen MIGs over South Vietnam in the past few days.

In the ominous new drive north of Saigon, South Vietnamese troops and eight U.S. advisers withdrew by helicopter from the big base camp at Quan Loi, 60 miles north of the capital, after an attack.

Fifteen miles to the north, enemy infantry led by seven tanks drove to within a mile and a half of Loch Ninh and then loosed an artillery attack on the district town.

Also under attack was the provincial capital of An Loc, 10 miles south of Loch Ninh. Loc Ninh and An Loc are in Binh Long Province, one of three northern tier provinces forming a buffer for Saigon.

South Vietnamese bombers attacked a tank column and at least one was reported destroyed. Field reports said the North Vietnamese moved 105mm howitzers across the border and shelled Loc Ninh, a town of 4,000. Most residents are Montagnard tribesmen who work on coffee and rubber plantations. Refugees streamed out of the town when the fighting broke out.

South Vietnamese warplanes also hit and apparently knocked out two of the howitzers, which were emplaced in a camouflaged bunker between Loc Ninh and An Loc.

The attacks were launched by a regiment of the North Vietnamese 5th Division, field reports aid. South Vietnamese infantry reinforcements moved north in efforts to check the enemy advance.

South Vietnamese officers said they were hampered by lack of air support because many of their aircraft had been moved to the northern front.

There was no letup in the far north, where fighting raged through the seventh day. Enemy troops seemed bent on seizing Quang Tri. Gen. Giai declared he could hold the city unless more enemy troops are thrown into the battle.

Two battles erupted six miles south and nine miles southeast of Quang Tri, where the enemy was trying to cut Highway 1, the vital supply line.

Reinforcements were rushed up to defend the highway after the enemy cut it for 30 minutes.

Gen. Hiai said the primary target now is Quang Tri. He also acknowledged that the North Vietnamese are capable of attacking Hue, the capital of Thua Thien Province 33 miles southeast of Quang Tri. Fighting was reported west of Hue and some U.S. officers thought it also was a prime target.

Closed hearing OK'd for Van Tassell case

By BARBARA PARNES

State News Staff Writer

The appeal hearing for Eileen R. Van Tassell, asst. professor of natural science, before the University College Faculty Affairs Committee (FAC) will be closed and will not include legal counsel, according to procedures approved by the committee.

The committee has also agreed that no public statements will be made on Ms. Van Tassell's case. No date has been set for the hearing.

Ms. Van Tassell is appealing the decision of her department not to renew her contract which expires in August. If FAC rejects the appeal, the case will go to the University Tenure Committee.

FAC met last week to consider procedures for a hearing suggested by Ms. Van Tassell, including the rights of counsel, to cross-examine witnesses and to an open proceeding.

In a letter to Ms. Van Tassell Monday, Peter A. McKinnon, FAC chairman said Emmanuel Hackel, natural science department chairman, rejected an open hearing. FAC procedures require both parties to approve an open hearing.

Ms. Van Tassell said Wednesday she is disappointed with the procedures approved by FAC.

"I am responding to this letter expressing disappointment that the committee did not provide me with fairer procedures," she said.

FAC rejected Ms. Van Tassell's request for legal counsel, saying that "at this level we believe legal counsel is not appropriate since we are not functioning as a court of law."

"Something doesn't have to be a legal proceeding for a person to have counsel," Ms. Van Tassell said. "It's a constitutional right."

In March the board of trustees amended procedures for hearing before the tenure committee to include the right to lawyers and to cross-examine witnesses.

The FAC procedures will allow Ms.

Van Tassell and Hackel to each bring one faculty representative to the hearing. Cross-examination of witnesses will be by committee members only.

"I'm especially disappointed that I won't be able to ask questions of the witnesses against me," Ms. Van Tassell said.

FAC procedures require Ms. Van Tassell to prepare a written petition telling why she believes the department's decision is unjustified, the names of witnesses to support the claims and the type of testimony each witness will present.

Hackel will then have the chance to file a written response to the petition, admitting or denying the charges and listing his witnesses and the type of testimony to be presented.

At the hearing, both parties will be able to submit and examine documentary evidence and summarize orally their claims. The FAC decision will be presented in an advisory report to the dean, who has the final decision on the appeal within the college.

Following a March 24 meeting with FAC, Ms. Van Tassell told the committee that she wanted the chance to cross-examine Hackel before the committee to determine "what he means by the reasons he gave me for not reappointing me and what evidence there is to support it."

Berrigan convicted of smuggling letters

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Rev. Philip Berrigan and a nun who served as his lieutenant in the antiwar movement were convicted Wednesday of smuggling letters in and out of a federal prison, but a jury deadlocked on charges that they conspired with five other defendants to kidnap presidential aide Henry Kissinger. The five were freed by the jury deadlock. "These verdicts are yours and yours alone, and you don't need to justify them or explain them to anybody," U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman told the nine women and three men as he dismissed them after their week-long quest for a verdict that ended with the split decision.

At the heart of the government's case was the three-pronged conspiracy charge — accusing the "Harrisburg 7," of scheming to kidnap Kissinger, blow up government heating tunnels in Washington and vandalize draft boards in several Eastern cities.

But this went by the boards as a result of the jury's verdict.

Instead, Berrigan and his assistant in the Catholic antiwar left, Sister Elizabeth McAlister, were convicted of smuggling half a dozen letters in and out of the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary after the priest entered in 1970 to begin a term he still is serving.

Position open

The State News is seeking applicants to fill a faculty seat vacancy on its board of directors. The position is open to any MSU faculty member and the term of office is two years. Anyone interested should send his name, title and a brief statement of why he would like the position to the State News Board of Directors, 345 Student Services Bldg., by April 7.

The North Vietnamese Wednesday opened a new front 70-75 miles north of Saigon in their seven-day-old offensive. The offensive also is threatening the provincial capital of Quang Tri.

Packaging school helps firms

By BILL HOLSTEIN

State News Staff Writer

At first glance, one might be inclined to say that the MSU School of Packaging — which is aligned closely with industrial needs and interests — obviously has no place on a university campus.

Consider these items:

- The packaging building, a low slung little building tucked away on the southern edge of campus, was built completely with industry funds in 1964.

- In the past six months, the school has accepted nearly $30,000 from companies to conduct basic research on how to control damage of goods in distribution. These companies include Ford Motor Co., Dow Chemical Co., Gerber Baby Foods, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. and others.

- The research operation at the school is funded by industry. About one-third of the school's budget consists of research grants from industry with the rest of the budget supported by the University's general fund.

- Companies with problems in packaging often come to the school for advice. Kellogg, for example, has had problems with one of its products, Pop-Tarts, breaking in the toaster from damage incurred in distribution. The school is currently seeking a solution to Kellogg's woes.

In short, MSU School of Packaging would seem to be a handmaiden of industry — a research operation designed to further the interests of big business.

Not so, says James W. Goff, the school's director.

"I don't think we cater to industry as much as we lead them," the greying but energetic Goff claims. "We're challenging the industry to do a better job."

Goff maintains that, while the school undoubtedly does help some companies save millions of dollars, it also pushes them into adopting new packaging techniques which will serve "human needs." Goff said the school serves these needs by helping cut down on packaging costs that are invariably passed on to consumers, by conserving natural resources which otherwise would be gobbled up for packaging materials and by helping to protect the consumer from defective packaging.

Goff said most industries either rely on past experience with packages for a new product or use very crude instruments to make an estimate on package specifications.

But the School of Packaging has sophisticated equipment that can specify precisely what shocks an object is likely to sustain, what shocks it can take and what materials or combination of materials will best cushion it. Hence, using these newer techniques, a package can be constructed with minimum waste of materials and minimum cost.

But the industry is often tradition-bound and reluctant to pay for the expensive machinery, Goff indicated.

The school is also experimenting with recycling various packaging materials.

Goff said the school is also serving these "human needs" in trying to develop better packages from the consumer's point of view. He said the school has a commitment to protect the consumer from what's in the package as well as from defective packaging.

"The package has a responsibility to people," he said.

In fact, Goff said, many companies resent the School of Packaging because it is applying pressure to adopt newer techniques which are also more expensive. One machine the school uses, for example, costs more than $100,000, while many companies use a much cruder instrument, which costs about $5,000 and will serve the same purpose.

"If we can show that it can be done, then people will demand that it be done," he said. "We are the people that can make industry change."

Stocks up, volume high

Stock market prices soared as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed Wednesday at its highest level in almost three years. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was very active.

Analysts said investors were buoyed partly by the market's ability to continue rising despite news of the Communist offensive in South Vietnam. This market resiliency encouraged new buying, they said.

Big Board volume was 22.96 million shares compared with 18.11 million shares Tuesday. Advances held a very strong lead over declines on the Big Board.

Bombs break Irish calm

Two bombs shattered a calm in Northern Ireland Wednesday as the outlawed Irish Republican Army debated possible peace moves.

The bombs in Belfast, one of which was found and intentionally detonated by troops, caused no casualties. They came amid reports that William Whitelaw, the British minister named overseer of Northern Ireland, soon will order the release of 60 suspected guerrillas interned without trials.

Welfare bill OKd, 11-0

The Senate Finance Committee agreed 11-0 Wednesday to liberalize welfare payments for the aged, blind and disabled. The action would help remove four million of them from poverty.

The proposed new plan still would leave 2.4 million of these needy persons below the poverty line but would give them substantially increased benefits over what they now receive.

Under the new provision, all of the persons in the three categories would be guaranteed a cash payment of $130 a month paid by the federal government if they have no other income.

Avon reveals contents

The nation's biggest cosmetics producer, Avon Products, is breaking the industry's tradition of secrecy by providing users with listings of ingredients in its products.

Doctors and government officials advocating cosmetic ingredient disclosure said the move should help Americans avoid or get treatment for the estimated 60,000 cosmetic - reaction injuries every year.

Charge hurts sergeant

SGT. DONALD L. FRYER

A decorated Army sergeant told a Senate hearing Wednesday his career was nearly wrecked, his citizenship questioned and his adoption of a Vietnamese War orphan delayed when he was wrongfully accused of drug abuse.

Staff Sgt. Donald L. Fryer, 31, of Alhambra, Calif., told the Senate's Drug Abuse and Alcoholism Subcommittee his troubles began when a medical report on his departure from Vietnam stated he was heavily under the influence of heroin.

Fryer said doctors ignored subsequent checks showing him to be free of heroin or any other drug.

'Thunder' found on sun

Following up the chance observation of a student assistant, solar astronomers have discovered what they believe is thunder on the sun.

Astronomers at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena have observed gigantic waves undulating outward at speeds up to 25,000 miles per hour from the center of sunspots, the puzzling dark blobs on the sun's surface that often are larger than the earth.

The waves are 1,600 miles from crest to crest - the distance from Los Angeles to Seattle - and act like sound waves as they move through the sun's gaseous atmosphere.

Educational needs studied

By BILL HOLSTEIN
State News Staff Writer

The Lifelong Education Task Force has begun meeting to determine how the University should respond to the educational needs and interests of the "educationally neglected" persons in society.

The task force, financed by an $80,000 grant from the Kellogg Foundation, is an outgrowth of a recommendation from the Admissions Commission to study lifelong education.

It is also an outgrowth of what has been described as a personal concern on the part of President Wharton that MSU address itself in the area of lifelong education more vigorously.

"Lifelong education" is a term which refers to the possibility of providing some form of education, whether formal or informal, to persons who have long since graduated from college or who never went to college.

These people - the "potential clientele" - include the poor, criminals, the handicapped, the elderly, minorities, businessmen or professionals and housewives.

President Wharton met with the task force at its first meeting Feb. 28 and issued a "charge" to the group to set forth goals and responsibilities.

Wharton asked the group of some 22 administrators, faculty, students, alumni and large members to design an organizational structure for MSU that will ensure the lifelong educational unit is "soundly and fully integrated into the rest of the University."

He also asked that whatever structure is developed include a means for "refocusing and marshalling institutional resources to facilitate lifelong education," a reward system that puts lifelong education on the footing with undergraduate education in the eyes of faculty and staff.

The task force is being chaired by Wharton with John E. Cantlon as vice-chairman. The director of the group, who works closely with the members but does not chair the meetings, is William R. Wilkie, special assistant to the president.

Wilkie, 30, is in the final stages of completing a study of the Admissions Commission which issued its report last year.

Wilkie said Wednesday that his role is primarily "facilitator."

The task force has had four full meetings to date in the midst of reviewing continuing education and cooperative extension to see what the University is already doing in the area of lifelong education. The next meeting, Wilkie said, would be to look at the people whom the University has not served historically to see where the University can serve them.

Wilkie noted, however, that "MSU can no longer concentrate on everything to everybody" and hence may have to concentrate on a few specific areas.

The task force is scheduled to finish a preliminary report on its findings by Sept. 1, 1972 with the final report Jan. 1, 1973.

FOR BARGAINING CARDS

AAUP slates signup

The MSU chapter of the American Assn. of University Professors (AAUP) will conduct an intensive two-hour collective bargaining authorization card campaign today at three locations.

Booths will be stationed outside the Union cafeteria, the Crossroads cafeteria at the International Center and the Owens Hall cafeteria between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

AAUP spokesmen said the group is less than 90 signatures away from the 30 per cent required to permit them to petition to meet with the administration to negotiate over the composition of the collective bargaining unit.

The MSU Faculty Associates (MSUFA) met last term with the administration after claiming to have signatures from 30 per cent of the faculty. However, after the unit was agreed upon, MSUFA found itself short of the required number of signatures.

If AAUP obtains the necessary signatures before MSUFA collects theirs, AAUP will be eligible to negotiate with the University administration over the unit composition with the possibility of a redefinition.

James W. Trow, chairman of a MSUFA signature committee, said Wednesday the collective bargaining contender is about 40 signatures short of its goal.

"We've almost closed the gap," he said. "We should be ready in a week or 10 days."

After MSUFA reached an agreement with the administration on the composition of the

Powell dies Tuesday, remains spur dispute

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell, the preacher who rose to power as Harlem's man in Congress, remained a controversial figure Wednesday even in death.

As the ex - congressman's body lay in the Jackson Memorial Hospital morgue, family members gathered with Powell's girl friend from Miami to discuss handling of the body.

Powell, 63, died Tuesday night of cardiac arrest after dropping to under 100 pounds and living on medical machines for weeks. The dispute over his remains began days before as Powell lay in a coma.

Yvette Powell, the congressman's wife, was to meet his Bahamian companion, Darlene Expose, in the offices of Powell's attorney in Miami.

Adam Powell III, 29, was also flying from New York, and Yvette Powell was bringing another son, Adam Powell Diago, who lives with her in Puerto Rico.

The eldest son, whose mother was pianist Hazel Scott, the congressman's second wife, is married to Beryl Slovic, a socialite descendant of American pioneer Miles Standish.

ASMSU, COGS probe at-large issue

By DANIEL DEVER

State News Staff Writer

The heads of ASMSU

and the Council of Graduate

Students (COGS) will not point anyone to the Student Committee on

Nominations until satisfactory answers are provided to the questions surrounding the Academic Council representatives - at large.

In a joint statement issued Wednesday night,

Harold Buckner, ASMSU

chairman, and Tom Lewis,

secretary of COGS acting for President Robert

Menson, said that they would consider any attempt to hold another election before those questions were answered, "a farce."

The statement came during a hearing of the subcommittee of the Committee on Academic Governance which is charged with investigating and discussing the section of the bylaws for Academic Governance which requires that at least six of the 10 representatives - at - large be nonwhite and at least five be women.

The questions Buckner referred to stem from alleged vagueness of the bylaws in determining what constitutes a minority student and how they are to be elected.

Buckner presented a plan to the subcommittee that he said would eliminate many of the problems which occurred in last fall's election.

The plan, which would require no change in the bylaws, would simply instruct the Committee on Nominations to construct a ballot which would guarantee that six nonwhite and five women would be elected.

The bylaws give the committee full reign in setting up the election which includes determining the procedures.

Buckner initiated a recommendation winter term that was passed by the Student Affairs Committee.

The recommendation called for revision of the bylaws to allow 10 students to be elected at - large without regard to race or sex.

"I still prefer the first proposal of eliminating the minority distinctions, but at the normal pace of the Academic Council this could not be set up in time for an election this term,"

Buckner said Wednesday night.

Ron Johnson, student member of the Academic

Council, said Buckner's

second plan presented to the subcommittee did not deal with his objection to the bylaws, however,

because it would still permit minority representatives to be elected by the entire student body.

"How can you say that at

- large candidates elected by the majority can represent the views of the minority?"

Johnson asked.

Johnson's views were echoed by Gerald Evelyn,

Detroit sophomore: "It is very racist to determine minority views by minority faces."

Both Johnson and Evelyn proposed that the minority representatives to the Academic Council be elected solely by minority students.

The legal and mechanical problems involved in setting up such a system were pointed out by several persons at the hearing.

Mark Bathurst, former chairman of the Committee on Nominations, said such a plan would carry with it the same problem - his committee had last fall - determining who is a minority student.

MSU votes aid LCC levy

By CRAIG GEHRING

State News Staff Writer

Overwhelming support by

East Lansing voters helped carry Lansing Community

College's request for an additional mill for operations to victory

Wednesday. The approval for the increase came by a 904 to 13,315 vote in the LCC election officials described as a "surprising" turnout.

East Lansing voters

approved the LCC millage by the widest margin - nearly five to one - with a 3,769 to 784 vote. Though the proposition carried in all eight East Lansing precincts,

the three MSU precincts

almost unanimously voted for the increase.

Red Cedar precinct, comprised primarily of married housing, passed the measure by a vote of 469 - nothing.

43. Students living in dormitories carried the request 581 - 20.

Officials who had expected to carry East Lansing, said the margin of victory was greater than anticipated.

They termed the outcome

"rewarding" and the result of an "outstanding cooperative effort."

The millage increase also passed in the Lansing,

Okemos, Haslett, Waverly

and DeWitt school districts.

It was turned down in

Mason, Williamston, Holt,

Leslie, Grand Ledge,

Dansville, Bath, Stockbridge

and Webberville.

Lansing election officials were also pleased over the outcome of the first election to use the new computerized punch card voting system.

Lansing city clerk Theo

Fulton said no difficulties were encountered in processing the ballots. She explained that all tabulating of the 16,111 votes was completed by 10:30 p.m.

and no ballots were mutilated or rejected by the computer.

Ms. Fulton anticipates making only minor adjustments for handling the upcoming presidential preference primary. She said the only problem might be the more complicated ballot to be used. Ms. Fulton said this difficulty can be overcome through instruction of election workers.

East Lansing voters will use this punch card system for the first time in the May primary.

High court denies plea by antiabortion group

The Michigan Supreme Court Wednesday refused to hear a case asking that conditions collected to place an issue of legalized abortion on the November ballot be thrown out on technical grounds. The court said the case back to a lower court of appeals for a hearing.

Cases bypass appellate courts in extreme emergencies only, a spokesman for the high court said, and the abortion case did not warrant immediate attention.

The suit was brought by

Louis Beechna of Ravenna,

Virginia McClure of Lansing and James Flickinger of Grand Rapids. Attempts to contact them, and their attorney, Stuart Hubbell of Traverse City, were unsuccessful.

The motion to intervene

on behalf of abortion reform advocates was filed by attorney Shirley Burgoyne

of Ann Arbor.

In the meantime, counting of the 287,000 signatures collected for the petition to have state laws prohibiting abortion rescinded continues. The secretary of state's office Wednesday revealed that 60 per cent of the signatures had been counted and 80 per cent of those are valid. The deadline for counting has been extended for a week, and should be concluded by mid-April.

However, improvements must be made in the present system. First, the East Lansing City Police Dept. should supervise all towing. When towing becomes necessary, a complaint would be filed with the police. The police would then

The East Lansing City Council should move immediately to effect these changes. Interested students would do well to write council members and attend meetings to make their feelings known. There is no reason why this new towing program should not be implemented immediately. It's time to tow the wreckers out of town.

Old habit

The United States might not find itself in such diplomatic imbroglios if it would divest itself of its persistent habit of becoming involved with totalitarian — though stable — regimes, spurning popular fronts. Had Nixon not felt so beholden to Yahya Khan he might have been able to take a much more realistic stance in the early days of Bangladesh.

After all, when you are at the bottom of the ladder, the only way you can go is up.

Rite of spring: income taxes

By RICHARD LEE STROUT

And awe and salutation to the puckish inventor of Part IV instructions ("Figure your tax on the amount of Line 50 by using Tax Rate Schedule X, Y or Z, or if applicable, the alternative tax from Schedule D, income averaging from Schedule G, or maximum tax from Form 4726").

The tide of estimated individual income taxes this year is $93.9 billion. Your drop may be small but even a few hundred dollars are welcome; it will

Poisonous or not, what other rite draws the nation closer together? The U.S. income tax ritual is the wonder of the world. The cheapness of collection is a marvel; it costs only 51 cents to collect every $100. European countries

"The great income tax flow rises like maple sap in the spring . . . And recall Robert Frost — 'Never ask of money spent/Where the spender thinks it went. Nobody was ever meant/To remember or invent/What he did with every cent' "

Income taxes demand faith. Yes, there is still a belief in America that neighbors are honest and are paying their taxes as you are going to. If that belief disappears (and it is as intangible as gossamer) the whole system collapses. Today it is a question of whether it will last. And what is killing this very precious tradition is not the suspicion of deliberate dishonesty but Income taxes were used by both sides in the Civil War, then dropped. President Cleveland tried to revive them in 1893. "Socialism, communism and devilism!" exclaimed Ohio Senator John (anti - trust law) Sherman. Another senator saw the thing as the work of "the professors with their books, the socialists with their schemes, the anarchists with their bombs."

Democrats went ahead anyway and tax flow rises like maple and recall Robert Frost — pent/Where the spender dy was ever meant/To passed the iniquity in 1894 (with a two per cent rate) and the Supreme Court tossed it out. Then after 15 years, a funny thing happened. The opponents told reformers, "Sure, go ahead and amend the Constitution and we'll help you (chuckle)!" They were sure the states wouldn't ratify. By an ironic twist the adversaries helped launch it, the states ratified it, and it became the 16th Amendment in 1913. Rates: 1 to 7 per cent.

It helped finance two world wars.

Nonsense. Special interest provisions were added from the start. As early as 1926 came the granddaddy of them all, the percentage depletion allowance on oil which, as John Brooks writes, let the owner of a producing well deduct from taxable income 22.5 per cent (then 27.5) of his gross annual income and keep deducting that much year after year, "even though he had deducted the cost of the well many times over." That's why the giant companies pay such light taxes.

All of a sudden tax reform is a hot issue. Henry Reuss, D - Wis., would close loopholes to save $ 7.25 billion; McGovern - Humphrey group would save $16 billion; Sen. Muskie's goal $25 billion.

Soaking the rich is all right if it means equalizing tax burdens. But it's no fooling the public that this will solve the problem. From time to time a brainy man comes forward to say what we know, the dirty little secret that we need higher taxes. Cities, schools, crime, garbage collection; there's just one solution; more taxes. We have private affluence, public squalor.

Can we trust Congress to reform taxes? Frankly, no. At the last session Congress scattered more tax gimmicks around, mostly for corporations, calculated to cost the Treasury $100 billion in the next 10 years. The magazine asked last month: Can the nation go broke on a trillion dollars a year? Sure it can, if it turns tax laws into a sieve! loopholes have eroded the progressive feature of tax laws. Result: the rich - and - poor gap is widening. The lowest fifth of American families get 3.2 percent of the national income; the top fifth 45.8 percent.

So that's the thought to go with your Form 1040. Every recent survey shows that the low and the middle income Americans pay more than their share of taxes and get back less in public services. The Tax Foundation in 1998 estimated that families earning under $10,000 a year paid 28.6 per cent of their income in taxes; those of income of $1 million or more paid 28.4 per cent. So goodbye little Form 1040. And remember as you depart those 1040 taxpayers with incomes of $200,000 or more who last year reported no taxable income at all.

STRESS: thumbs down

That incident touched off the first serious criticism of STRESS. Everyone is currently jumping on the "dump STRESS" bandwagon, primarily because of that incident. The shootout tragedy tended to dramatize the failures of the "special program." However, to really appreciate the cruel ineffectiveness of STRESS, you have to look at its history and the other facts.

STRESS was started by Detroit Inspectors James Bannon and Gordon Smith in 1971. From its inception the STRESS had to follow great acts like the Tactical Mobile Unit. TACTS were specially equipped units that intensified the battle against crime but did little to bring the crime rate down. STRESS proposed to intensify surveillance of the streets, deterring possible crime. However, that wasn't innovatively different from what TACTS and other special units were doing. The major difference was that STRESS was to employ decoy

Commissioner Nichols has vehemently supported STRESS in the past, considering it an effective program. According to statistics from a report done on STRESS by MSU's minority pre-law organization, street crime went down 4.3 percent between August 1970 and August 1971. Some say that a 4.3 percent reduction isn't a large enough figure to relate to STRESS effectiveness; however, let's review other stats from the report. From Jan. 15 to Aug. 31 1971, STRESS officers made 1,363 felony arrests. This seems impressive enough until you investigate further and find that only 190 of 1,363 were convicted for the charges brought against them. In other words only 14.67 per cent of those arrested were guilty.

Though the decoy method is getting one-fifth of total STRESS activity, the method is only responsible for 3 per cent of the arrests. "Too much killing," is a major criticism of STRESS. Well, it's frightening to discover that the decoy method is responsible for 90.8 per cent of all STRESS fatalities.

The shortcomings of STRESS don't end there. According to a poll on drugs and crime by the Detroit News, the controversial program has

It is doubted here that STRESS is a more effective deterrent to crime than an appreciable reduction in the number of police officers. The program's officers are "volunteers" and there is no special training. It's about time criminology and law enforcement were updated. Fifty per cent of Detroit's street crime is related to the drug problem. STRESS is not prepared to deal with crime as a drug problem, nor is any other police program. Criminologists and specialists believe crime can be deterred by special programs implemented correctly. In my view, this is a false assumption. Law enforcement is dealing strictly with the symptoms and not the cause. Criminal science concentrated on preventive criminal methods instead of the specialized, mechanized entrapment of the so-called deviant crime rates would be appreciably lowered.

A few unsteady percentage points does not justify the failures and errors of STRESS. It is evident that the STRESS is not solving problems. Instead it had "become" a problem, and a pretty distressing one at that.

Kelley ruling upholds library's regulations

By JUDY YATES
State News Staff Writer

The Library's policy whereby library users are not identified by name or materials checked out was enforced Wednesday by a statement from Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley.

In reply to a letter from William Slemmer, director of the Macomb Public Library, Kelley said that he would advise the library to adopt a policy recognizing circulation and other records which identify library users by name and specific materials as confidential.

The MSU Library policy is to release the names of library users and the books they check out except in certain cases, Richard E.

Chapin, director of libraries, said Wednesday.

Chapin said that in the event a student wants a book which has been checked out and is over due he will authorize the release of the borrower's name.

The Council of the American Library Assn. recommended in January, 1971, that all libraries adopt the same policy. Slemmer and the Macomb County counselor were in disagreement as to whether the policy was in conflict with a state statute.

The statute in question states that any officer who will not release county, city or township records for inspection is guilty of a misdemeanor.

"It does not appear that circulation records of a county library operated by its own board of trustees are included in 'county public records,'" Kelley said.

Kelley said that no criminal liability would be incurred by any agent of the library under this statute were the library board to adopt the protective policy.

"But, I caution that in carrying out the policy, no court-issued subpoena may be disregarded," Kelley said. "In case of any doubt, your constituent should seek immediate counsel and have counsel request the court for a protective order."

Chapin said that if he were subpoenaed to release the name of a library user he would take it to court.

"It's a matter of intellectual freedom," Chapin said.

"Although the names of all borrowers are recorded by computer, the computer operators have been given strict instructions not to release the names without my permission," Chapin said.

Kelley also pointed out that there is no legislative enactment either requiring libraries to maintain circulation records after books are returned, or providing that such records, if kept, be confidential.

Why doesn't General Electric talk about thermal pollution when they talk about nuclear power plants?

General Electric has been talking nuclear power plants ever since we pioneered them in the fifties. And we think they can help solve America's energy problems in the 70's and 80's. But we're also aware that nuclear power has problems of its own.

Problems worth talking about. Like the environment. Actually, we felt one of the greatest advantages of nuclear power was environmental.

Unlike fossil-fueled power plants, there is no smoke to pollute the air. But like fossil-fueled plants, there is warmed water released to surrounding waterways.

Cooling it. We recognize thermal pollution as a serious problem. And GE and America's utilities are working on thermal problems at nuclear sites on a plant-by-plant basis.

Many people don't realize, for example, that utilities are required by federal law to design and operate their plants within temperature limits prescribed by the states.

So utilities are spending millions of dollars on dilution control systems, cooling ponds and cooling towers to comply.

But, in addition, utilities are sponsoring basic research on heat exchange and its effect on aquatic life. More than 97 utilities have been financially involved in over 300 such studies.

Good effects? It's been found, in some cases, adding heat to water can actually be beneficial. Warm irrigation water has extended growing seasons.

Warm water has created new wintering ponds along waterfowl migration routes. Florida is using it to grow shrimp and lobster. In Texas, it's increasing the weight of commercial catfish by as much as 500%.

Work to be done. Listing these benefits is not to beg the issue. Thermal effects remain a tough problem to solve at many sites. Each plant must be considered individually, in its own environment, and this is being done.

General Electric, the utilities and environmentalists will continue to work hard. Because we think the advantages of nuclear power far outweigh the disadvantages.

Why are we running this ad? It's one ad of a series on the problems of man and his environment today. And the ways technology is helping to solve them.

The problems of our environment (not just nuclear power problems) concern us because they will affect the future of this country and this planet. We have a stake in that future. As businessmen. And, simply, as people.

If you are concerned too, we'd like to hear from you. Write General Electric, Dept. 901-CN, 570 Lexington Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022.

U-M students request end to out-state tuition

Six students at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor will return to Washtenaw County Circuit Court today to request an injunction against the U-M to prevent the university from charging out-of-state tuition to students with Michigan voting status.

The same court refused an injunction request last Friday, which was the U-M's deadline for paying tuition. At the time the court had indicated it was not sure if the class action suit came under its jurisdiction.

The office of Arthur Carpenter, attorney for the students, said Wednesday that if the injunction is refused the suit will be appealed to a higher court. The injunction would prevent U-M from charging the higher out-of-state tuition for students registered as Michigan voters.

U-M, like MSU, classifies students for tuition purposes on the basis of initial acceptance information. At MSU, the age limit of 21 to establish independent status as a Michigan resident has not been lowered to 18 in accordance with the new age of majority legislation.

Jack A. Breslin, MSU executive vice president, said recently that the University is awaiting the results of court tests on the right of universities to have tuition residency requirements which are tougher than those for voting in Michigan.

The University stands to lose up to $4.5 million in tuition now collected from out-of-state students if the courts hold universities to the same requirements as established for voting.

The Michigan attorney general's office in March said it could not rule on a request for clarification of the relationship between tuition residency and voting residency. State Sen. Phillip O. Pittenger, R-Lansing, had requested the attorney general's ruling on Jan. 24 because of a state supreme court ruling last year allowing students to vote in their college towns.

Data sought on rent fee

By LINDA WERFELMAN
State News Staff Writer

At least ten residents of Haslett Arms apartments are expected to withhold half of their April rent in response to the management's failure to disclose the whereabouts of their security deposits.

"We have no physical evidence that we will get our deposits back," Stephen Kirouac, Grosse Pointe senior, said Wednesday. "Just the fact that the management will not prove that they have the deposits is reason to suspect that they do not have them, and if they do not have them now, it's not likely that they will ever have them."

An undetermined number of tenants had paid only half of their April rent by 4:15 p.m. Wednesday, 45 minutes before the deadline for rent payments, Lee Halstead, manager of Haslett Arms, said.

He disputed Kirouac's claim that he refused to reveal the location of the deposits, adding, "I've told them right from the very first that the security deposits are in the Bank of Lansing."

His reluctance to discuss details has been based on the belief that the bank's records of the account should not be available to the public, Halstead said.

The situation could be settled by allowing a person trusted by both tenants and management to inspect the records and to assure tenants that the money is in the bank, Halstead suggested. Information regarding the account would remain confidential, he added.

Halstead said he would refuse to disclose additional information unless he is given a legal reason for doing so.

Residents of the building have a legal right to sue Halstead to demand that he reveal the location of security deposits, Edwin Bladen, assistant attorney general in charge of the consumer protection division, said.

"If Halstead refuses to disclose where they are being held, this would produce a serious question of whether he is in compliance with his own lease," Bladen added. "This is a covenant that is mutual with the covenant to pay rent."

Tenants have a legal right to information concerning security deposits because they are "legal beneficiaries for that fund," Bladen said.

The 1968 tenants' rights statutes guaranteed the right of tenants to withhold rent for failure of management to comply with other portions of the statutes regarding repairs and other housekeeping responsibilities of apartment management, Bladen added.

A February case before the Michigan Court of Appeals extended the right to tenants to withhold rent in cases involving attempts of apartment management to evict tenants.

City council to examine towing rules

By BILL WHITING
State News Staff Writer

A number of complaints were filed with the East Lansing City Council Tuesday to review the current ordinance on towing and to seek the aid of the Lansing Chamber of Commerce in alleviating a problem aired by a group of students.

Council members spent an hour listening to a range of complaints by the students who aimed primarily at what they charged were the discriminate towing practices of State Towing and Storage Company of Lansing.

Only one student out of twelve who spoke to the council said he was satisfied with the service provided by the company, and he was employed as a resident manager of an apartment on Delta Street.

"State Towing and Storage Company has a virtual monopoly in this town for towing cars off private property," said Robert Bao, East Lansing graduate student living at 223 Delta Street.

"But their practices in many cases exceed all reasonable bounds," Bao related his experience with ST&T in which his car was towed from the parking lot behind the Taco Bell Restaurant on Grand River Avenue March 22. He indicated his car was towed while he was inside eating dinner.

Bao explained he was not notified of the towing because Taco Bell has a contract with the towing company to remove cars parked longer than 30 minutes. He added that the restaurant manager refused to do anything about it when he went back to complain.

Several council members told Bao that the issue was out of their hands because the incident took place on private property and suggested he take other courses of action.

"Why don't you tell Taco Bell you aren't going to eat there anymore?" Councilwoman Mary Sharp said. "I think you ought to get out and picket them and their rotten sign. Get the whole student crew out and picket them."

A spokesman for Taco Bell said Wednesday, however, that they were placing an attendant in their parking lot in an effort to avoid mistakes in the future.

Several other students related similar experiences with ST&T, including mistaken towings and damage allegedly done to their vehicles when they were towed.

They charge that the six-mile distance to the storage lot was excessive and not easily accessible for students, and suggested that the city council limit the distance a car can be towed and require city patrolmen to issue tickets before they are taken away.

East Lansing's current towing ordinance, revised only last year after considerable controversy, calls on towing companies operating in the city to notify city police after a car is towed and post their price list with the city and at their place of business.

"I think the ordinance is loose and needs working over," said Councilman George Griffiths. "The ordinance appears to give protection to the wrecker service."

Councilman Robert Wilcox, however, called the proposals for increased city surveillance of towing "way out of line" and an invasion of privacy.

"I don't want to see our police department tied down to writing tickets on private property," Wilcox said. "And I, for one, would not be willing to pay taxes for the time and manpower which would be needed for that."

Wilcox suggested that those with complaints send a letter to the chamber of commerce and the city for study. He indicated that he did not favor changing a city ordinance to conform to what he considered exceptions to the rule.

Wilcox added that he knew of situations where attendants' lives have been threatened by people who disregard parking regulations.

Mayor Wilbur Brookover noted that the complaints from those attending the meeting seemed to come from different areas than in the past. These included primarily businesses and areas outside of East Lansing.

Several students pointed out that Lansing and Detroit have ordinances which require city police to issue tickets before a car can be moved from private property. One employee of a car rental firm in Lansing indicated that city police make an attempt to contact the owners of vehicles illegally parked before they are towed.

In other action, City Attorney Daniel C. Learned told the council that the current city ordinance on marijuana, which is now harsher than reduced state penalties, is now invalid and advised that no further arrests be made under it.

Some people call him an evangelist, some an itinerant philosopher or a prophet. But to himself, Edward English, 56, is just a black poet who has learned the value of love, charity and hope.

English travels from campus to campus, country to country reading selections from the 3,000 poems he has written since 1957. His basic philosophy that can be seen in all of his poems is that God is Man and Man is God.

"People want God to be outside of themselves so they go searching all over the world for Him when all the time He is right inside of them," English said.

France," English said. A native of Selma, Ala., English moved to Chicago and began a successful painting and decorating business.

The easy-going man with a grey-streaked beard, wearing a plaid tam-o-shanter and an army fatigue jacket, has traveled all through Central America, Europe and Northern Africa reading his poems. English was often funded by the State Dept. as part of a cultural program to other countries.

English hopes to give some performances at MSU but has not found a person or group on campus that is willing to sponsor him. Anyone interested in organizing a performance can contact English at 353-0950.

Rarely having any definite plans as to his next appearance and occasionally finding himself without traveling money, the poet sometimes gets stranded during his tours.

"Once in London I didn't have any money to go anywhere so I wrote the Queen a letter telling her about my problem," English said.

"A few days later I got a letter asking me to give a performance on BBC. That one got me 50 pounds and I was able to take a train to

Packagers help firms

Students enrolled winter term, attracts students from all over the globe — Israel, Japan and Sweden for instance. It is one of the few packaging schools in the nation and a "world leader," Goff said.

The school was started in the early '50s with the first student enrolling in 1953. Goff said two pressures helped form the school — MSU alumni in packaging wanted to start a training program for packing personnel and MSU needed new programs to attract students to fill the dormitories during the slack years of the Korean War. Goff has supervised the packaging curriculum since 1952.

Today the laboratory classrooms are well stocked with equipment — about $50,000 worth — purchased by the school and other $250,000 on loan from the companies that make the equipment.

With the equipment, students can actually make most types of packages from a wide array of materials.

"Most of our students have here knowing more about packaging than the people they're going to work for," Goff said. Most packaging grads take jobs in the management angle of packaging, he added.

Goff claims that all research the school undertakes is directly related to the teaching effort there. The school does not accept all industry problems that come to it but rather "we describe what we want to do and sell it to the industry."

When a company comes to the school for help, the company is asked to sponsor a research program for a $5,000 fee. Goff said the school does not accept money or research problems from industries if the school is not already concerned with that area of research.

Many companies like Kellogg, IBM, Wickes, Dow Chemical and the C & O Railroad sponsor research at the school.

Two 'S' gymnasts perform in NCAA

Though the final results have yet to be tallied, Spartans' Charley Morse and Randy Balhorn are expected to place high in the individual standings of the NCAA gymnastics championships that are winding up today in Ames, Iowa.

Morse, a senior and captain of the 1977-78 MSU gymnastics team, performed on the parallel bars in the national competition, an event he dominated for the Spartan g-men during the regular season just completed. Morse averaged 9.0 points out of a possible score of 10 every time he competed this year.

Balhorn competed in the all-around event and hoped to perform well in both compulsory and optional routines.

Stickmen get first loss as late rally falls short

By JOHN FRAZIER
State News Sports Writer

Spurred on by a large and optimistic crowd, the MSU lacrosse team staged a valiant fourth quarter comeback but fell on the short side of a 15 to 13 count to Michigan Wednesday.

Outscored by a 6 to 2 margin in the last period the maize and blue was forced to bring its first string goalie, Mark Johnson, back into the game.

"We turned hot but the time simply ran out," MSU Coach Ted Swoboda said.

MSU started the game in a hurry as it converted the opening faceoff into a goal by Paul Safran. In the next faceoff, MSU center Val Washington won the draw and scored an unassisted goal while on the run. Michigan then called on time out to regroup.

After the stoppage, the Wolverines reeled off seven straight goals in a stretch carrying into the second quarter. The Spartans scored three times before the half to narrow the gap to a 9-5 deficit. But while it was two men up, MSU failed to convert on many scoring opportunities.

Michigan opened the scoring in the third period on a fluke play as MSU goalie

Fred Hartman made a spectacular save only to knock the ball into the net seconds later. Jim Walters soon countered for State, the only goal the Spartans could muster for the remainder of the third period. Michigan scored last in the period on a goal that was set up by goalie Johnson, who ran 25 yards down field and then passed off to a teammate.

Then came the fourth quarter which found an individual performance the Spartans which nothing short of outstanding.

Washington blitzed in goals in the final period. Tom Larkin and Don G. who played an exciting hustling game, also Larkin was hurt late in game with an injury to eye. The extent of the was not immediately

WEATHER HURTS PRACTICE

Trackmen look solid

By GARY KORRECK
State News Sports Writer

If track coach Fran Dittrich had his way nothing would change, except the weather. MSU won the indoor title going away this winter and Dittrich commented, "I don't know how any of the other teams look this spring, but I hope things go the same as they did indoors."

"It hasn't been easy getting in shape in this weather; we've been out there freezing every day and we'll just have to stick to basic stuff until it gets warmer."

"We've been running mostly overdistances and underdistances and working on technique," he said, "We're also trying to establish some goals for this season."

The main goal, of course, would be the Big Ten outdoor title, but Dittrich has more than faint hopes for an NCAA title — something a Spartan track team has never won. "Keep asking me about it," he said, "And I'll let you know when I think we can take it."

According to Dittrich, the squad is pretty much set. "Everybody knows where they are going to be running," he said, "And unless there are some drastic changes we will begin working each man in his respective race beginning next week."

For now though, Dittrich must be content with general workouts and warming up sessions. "We're just trying to build up our strength now; when it gets warmer we'll do the heavy work."

Some of the heavy work will include transitions for some of the Spartans. Returning hurdlers John Morrison, Dave Martin and Rich Jacques will have only one outdoor hurdle event to go in the 120-highs, almost twice the distance of the indoor meets.

Two-miler Randy Kilpatrick and Big Ten 600 - champ Bob Casselman will be putting in some work on the sticks also. Kilpatrick is moving to the steeplechase outdoors (there is no two-mile) and Casselman will work on the intermediate hurdles, along with extended distances as he prepares to defend his outdoor 660 title.

Rob Cool will be working overtime as he takes over in the three - mile and Marv Roberts will be going in the discus, along with his shotput work. The sprinters, Herb Washington, Marshall Dill and LaRue Butcher will have extra jobs this spring, too, dividing time between the 100, 220 and 880 relay.

"I don't think anybody will have much trouble adjusting," Dittrich said, "They know what they have to do and I don't really see any changes in the future."

The Spartan trackmen will officially open their season Saturday, April 15 when they travel to Lafayette for a run-off with an improving Purdue squad.

Hardly! Aside from the financial benefits (on the average, it's cheaper to live in a fraternity house) the food (it's better) the social life (parties, house functions, sports, serenades, little sisters) there must be something that holds some 1500 MSU men to 26 houses.

Is it the advantage of a highly evolved form of self-government? Costs are lower because we call the financial shots, set the house bills, decide on what our money goes for. We don't pay for administration or maintenance — we handle it ourselves.

IM softball season ready for opener

GARY SCHARRER
Assistant Sports Editor

the softball program and Frank Beeman, director of MSU intramural recreation, expects the number to be greater this spring.

By the end of the season, playoffs will have determined champions in the Women's softball league, coed league, open fast and slow pitch men's league, residence hall, fraternity and independent leagues. And the relative efficiency that provides softball competition for thousands of MSU students generally reflects upon the entire intramural framework.

Last year Beeman and Associate Directors Larry Sierra and Russ Rivet organized 30 different sports for 19,803 participating men. Associate directors Carol Harding and Penny Knapp planned 14 women's IM sports activities for 2,906 participants.

Although the MSU

intramural program is recognized as one of the biggest in the country, Beeman and Sierra emphasized their concern with adding personal flavor to the structure of its student services.

"Our basic philosophy is that people are more important than things," Beeman said. "The opportunity for students to intermingling in small groups in recreative activity re-establishes the uniqueness of the individual and reduces the impersonal setting created by the large educational institution."

Beeman cited Sierra's responsibility of programming sports and arranging schedules to meet students' conveniences as one of the more difficult jobs.

Many times teams cannot play on certain days and Sierra is confronted with the task of satisfying all concerned.

"We could say that events have to go on schedule, but we bend the other way even though it makes more work," Beeman said.

The department is continually trying to improve its services and conducts research projects before initiating any changes.

Until two years ago fast pitch softball was the major league but after research was done in an experimental slow pitch league, it was decided that slow pitch could replace the former style.

"I personally was very astounded that the game was not as high scoring as I thought it might be," Sierra said. "We could put 10 men rather than nine on the field. And the game averaged about one hour, the same of fast pitch."

Student reaction has been favorable since the change and a fast pitch league still remains for those teams wishing to enter.

"I really like the slow pitch because it gives more people a chance to participate," Paul Schlacht a Holden Hall RA said.

Dave Weirauch Frankenmuth senior and an independent manager also likes the slow pitch league.

"It's much fairer now," he said. "In the old days a good fast pitcher could dominate the league. The pitcher used to be the key and teams could hardly enter without a good pitcher. Slow pitch also offers more activity and action."

Lanny McLeod, Tau Delta senior and a member of the all-University softball champions praised the overall structure of the IM program but issued his disappointment in the elimination of the all-University championship tournament.

The IM Directors said expansion of playoffs within each league allows more teams to play a greater number of games and was one of the major reasons for the dropping of the all-University championship. The department is also planning to experiment with six and seven inning games and is hopeful of eventually lengthening the present five inning game.

Play ball!

With warm weather around the corner the IM fields will soon ring with the sound of softballs as the season is scheduled to open Sunday, April 9. Last spring 369 teams were entered in men's competition and the number will likely increase this year.

Men's IM

men's single paddleball tournament deadline for entry is Friday, April 7. Play begins at 5 p.m., Monday, April 10 and ends at 5 p.m., Thursday, May 25. A corecreational tables Ladder will be conducted if sufficient interest is indicated.

Slow pitch softball schedules for the first scheduled week of play beginning Sunday, April 9 will be available 5 p.m., Sunday, April 7 at the Mens' IM.

You shell out $130, and get a Student-Railpass. All you need is the bread and something to show you're a bona fide student between 14 and 25.

Our Student-Railpass gives you all that unlimited rail travel on the 100,000 mile railroad networks of those 13 countries. For two foot-loose months. So with low air fares and Student-Railpass you've got Europe made.

Our Student-Railpass gets you Second Class travel on our trains. You'll find that there's very little second class about Second Class. Besides being comfortable, clean, fast, and absurdly punctual, the European trains have some other advantages for you. They take you from city center to city center, so you don't have to hassle airports. And the stations are helpful homes away from home, with Pictograms that give you information in the universal language of signs, and dining rooms, bookstores and other helpful facilities.

Now, here's the catch. You can't get your Student-Railpass or the regular First Class Eurailpass in Europe—you have to get them before you leave the country. So see your Travel Agent soon. Meanwhile, send in the coupon for a free folder, complete with railroad map.

THE SEARCH

Still It Moves

IN THE COMPANY OF MAN, an experimental theater ensemble presents a unique work enveloped in the Planetarium - A Theater piece engaging intellect and instrument - an attempt to probe the depths of the universe and mind seen in one man, Galileo Galilei, who dared to reach up and place his eye into the night. A striking set reaches up into the sky enabling the actors to work in the total environmental art medium of the geodesic dome - incorporating life-size puppets, film and abstract lighting effects.

TWA INTRODUCES THE 1972 GETAWAY* PROGRAM.

This ad wasn't written to amuse you. It was written to get you to think. To think of how few school vacations you may have left.

Before you know it, the 9 to 5 hassle will be starting. So this summer may be your last real chance to travel. To help you plan your getaway, let us send you our free Getaway* Kit.

With The Kit you can get:

TWA's Stutelpass.***
A coupon booklet that gives you a room and continental breakfast in either a guesthouse or student hotel in Europe for only $4.80 a night.

No advance reservations are needed. Also included are free coupons that can be used for bullfights, use of a bicycle, theater tickets, sightseeing and more.

TWA's Bed and Breakfast Adventures.

2- to 7-day guesthouse packages to any of 50 European cities. Among them Amsterdam, where you can spend 3 days for only $22. And Athens, where 3 nights cost only $16.

TWA's Getaway* Card Application.

With TWA's Getaway Card, you can charge airfare, hotels, meals, car rentals, Getaway packages and more. And then take up to two years to pay.

It's the most widely distributed, widely accepted airline card in the world. And it's free.

TWA's Youth Passport* Card.

If you're 12 thru 21, you can get 1/3 off normal domestic coach flights, on a standby basis.

Plus discounts on over 20 other airlines in the United States, Canada, and Europe.

The card also gets you discounts at over 700 shops and hotels around the world.

TWA's Getaway* Guidebook.

A 224-page guidebook highlighting 19 of the most popular cities in the world.
