

Consumers lured into 'get rich' trap

Reduced by visions of money, mink and Cadillacs, hundreds of Michigan consumers, including MSU students, are paid up to $5,000 each hoping to attain "riches and one's fondest dreams."

What they get, more often than not, is bankruptcy. The scheme is perpetrated under the guise of "Dare To Be Great" (DTBG), a success - motivation course that sells degrees of self - confidence at varying prices.

But the main appeal of buying DTBG is the opportunity to sell the course at a commission to others, in turn can sell to others, and so on in a progression known as "pyramid selling."

Like chain letter operations, those near the apex can make mink coats for their poodles, while the vast majority at the bottom usually lose their shirts. Of course, DTBG salesmen neglect to point this out, emphasizing only the potential for making big money.

The mastermind behind this scheme is Glen W. Turner, a Florida multimillionaire who occupies the pinnacles of several pyramid selling operations.

On Jan. 14, the Michigan Court of Appeals enjoined Koscot from expanding its distribution network here, calling it "a blatant attempt to extract money from investors through the use of misrepresented facts, exaggerated claims and statistics, undisclosed facts and false advertising."

Similar actions have been launched in 30 other states against what the Iowa Supreme Court labeled "a cancerous vice."

The Michigan court ruling — upheld in March by the Supreme Court — charged Koscot with violating state lottery laws, deceptive advertising statutes and public policy.

But this same, basic illegal scheme is now being unleashed by the DTBG operation.

Statistics gathered by attorney generals in other states are revealing:

In Pennsylvania, 845 residents enrolled in DTBG last year, but only 72 recouped more than they put in, while 656 failed to get a single penny back.

In New York, out of 1,604 investors, only 79 recouped their initial investments of $5,000.

No figures are available in Michigan, but the Consumers Council is rapidly accumulating complaints, often by "tearful women whose marriages are broken and bank accounts emptied."

Theoretically, one can realize unlimited profits by enrolling in DTBG. As salesmen point out, the commission for enrolling someone else for $5,000 is $2,000. Thus, if one averages two sales a month, one's yearly commission total becomes $48,000.

Of course, DTBG salesmen emphasize, if one works hard at it, one can easily make $250,000 in one year.

But while they tantalize the prospective customer with the arithmetic of success, they ignore another set of calculations that destroys the plausibility of any such get-rich-quick plan.

To make $250,000 a year, one would have to average 12 sales a month. Suppose one person recruits 12 customers the first month, who each recruit 12 more the second month, and so on. After one year, there would be 8,916,100,488,256 people enrolled in the program — a figure more than 2,000 times the population of the entire world.

3 SHOT DOWN

U.S. Navy jets attack N.Viet interceptors

SAIGON (AP) — Carrier-based Navy jets shot down three North Vietnamese MIG interceptors 80 miles south of Hanoi, the U.S. command announced Sunday. Other American aircraft knocked out scores of North Vietnamese tanks and supply trucks attempting to breach South Vietnamese defenses around Hue.

Command spokesmen said a Navy A7 attack plane was shot down by a surface-to-air missile Saturday in continuing air raids over North Vietnam, and the 7th Fleet destroyer Hanson was hit by shore batteries while bombarding the North Vietnamese coast from the Gulf of Tonkin.

The pilot of the A7 was reported missing. The U.S. command said there were no casualties aboard the Hanson, and damage was "minor."

Hanoi claimed three U.S. aircraft were shot down in North Vietnam.

In a delayed report, field sources said a U.S. F4 Phantom fighter-bomber hit a South Vietnamese village by mistake Friday and killed nine Saigon marines and wounded 21 at the northern defense line at My Chanh, 20 miles north of Hue.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said such an incident occurred but referred all questions to the U.S. command. The command said it had no reports of marines being killed but added that a ground commander reported some of his troops had been "dazed" Friday when bombs from a U.S. plane were dropped too close to South Vietnamese lines.

While the South Vietnamese defense lines north of Hue held firm, North Vietnamese forces threatened to tumble three frontier base camps in the central highlands to the west and northwest of the provincial capital of Kontum City, itself said to be a target of the North Vietnamese offensive that began March 30.

A new tank threat was reported for the first time in the populous coastal lowlands 75 miles to the east. The Saigon command reported that three armored vehicles were sighted in the southern part of Quang Ngai Province, 90 miles south of Da Nang.

The Saigon command said South Vietnamese bombers attacked the tanks and a large column of North Vietnamese troops, knocking out all three tanks and killing 50 of the North Vietnamese. There was speculation that the tanks were American-made vehicles lost by the South Vietnamese when they abandoned the northern part of Bin Dinh Province just below Quang Ngai.

The three Soviet-designed MIGs shot down Saturday matched the biggest single kill this year, on April 16 southwest of Hanoi. The last previous time American pilots downed three MIGs in one day was on Oct. 26, 1967.

The aerial engagements swirled over the Bai Thuong airfield, northwest of the coastal city of Thanh Hoa, around the 20th parallel, 215 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

Decision on Vietnam said near THURMONT, Md. (AP) — President Nixon summoned Secretary of State William P. Rogers home from Europe Sunday and called a National Security Council meeting for today — a pair of indications that a major decision on Vietnam is rapidly approaching.

The White House made the disclosures while Nixon worked and relaxed in the seclusion of his Camp David retreat near here.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said the chief executive asked the secretary, who was in Bonn for meetings with West German officials as part of a series of talks with European allies, "to come back for a National Security Council meeting tomorrow and for other consultations."

Warren provided no information on what prompted Nixon's moves. "I can't give details on the meeting or say what they will be discussing," Warren

NATIONAL MEETING

AAUP endorses unionization

By S.A. SMITH
State News Staff Writer

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Collective bargaining as a national policy was endorsed by the American Assn. of University Professors (AAUP) by a margin of 373 - 54 at the organization's annual meeting Friday.

The vote represents a significant change in the AAUP's attitude toward faculty unionization which traditionally has been one of "only if we're forced into it" by competition.

AAUP, affiliate of the National Education Assn. (including the MSU Faculty Associates) and the American Federation of Teachers are the three contenders in the collective bargaining arena in higher education.

AAUP has 91,000 members and is the largest of the three. However, it has been slow in pursuing collective bargaining.

Both the National Education Assn. and the American Federation of Teachers have taken an activist role in higher education collective bargaining since faculty unionization began to gain popularity several years ago.

Historically the AAUP has been concerned with applying its principles of academic freedom and shared authority in academic governance rather than adversary negotiations over faculty salaries, fringe benefits and possibly class loads and teaching assignments — all areas for negotiation under collective bargaining.

The new policy statement says the organization will "pursue collective bargaining as a major additional way of realizing the association's goals in higher education, and will allocate such resources and staff as are necessary for the vigorous development of this activity beyond present levels."

AAUP is one of two contenders in the collective bargaining race at MSU. The MSU Faculty Associates last week filed for an election with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission, the supervisory agency in collective bargaining elections.

A contender must have 30 per cent of the signatures of the proposed bargaining unit before it can successfully file for an election. The

CLA board censured for firing Angela Davis

By S.A. SMITH

NEW ORLEANS, La. — The American Assn. of University Professors (AAUP) censured the board of the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) over the firing of activist Angela Davis.

The university was censured for a report of the AAUP's investigative committee concerning the removal from UCLA of a faculty in 1970. The report charged a lack of process in her dismissal.

The report was delivered to the AAUP at its annual meeting Friday.

The association also adopted a series of political resolutions.

The resolutions included:

- Call for the creation of a federal grand jury at Kent State University and the reopening of the federal grand jury at Jackson State College "to confront the issues in these tragedies and to establish both the appearance and the reality of full and equal justice under the law."

- Call for the immediate end to all

Wallace, Humphrey compete for support in West Virginia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, whose victory in the Alabama Democratic primary moved him into second place in national delegate strength, takes on Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in West Virginia's presidential primary Tuesday.

George S. McGovern, who has the largest number of national convention delegates, hopes to win in his native state Tuesday in the Nebraska primary.

Wallace passed Humphrey in delegate strength after he defeated former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford Tuesday in Sanford's own state. It was the Alabama governor's second primary victory in three days.

Humphrey is a heavy favorite against Wallace in West Virginia where the two are alone on the ballot. In Nebraska, McGovern and Humphrey are the top contenders, but Humphrey conceded in an Omaha news conference last Friday he was waging "an uphill fight."

Both the West Virginia and Nebraska primaries are solely popularity contests. Delegates are chosen separately, 35 in West Virginia and 24 in Nebraska.

Humphrey has been endorsed by the AFL-CIO in both states. The former vice president carried West Virginia as a presidential candidate in the 1968 general election.

In Nebraska, the 11 candidates on the Democratic presidential ballot include several who have abandoned active campaigning in primaries or dropped out of the race altogether.

Local candidate organizations are stepping up the political war effort as the Michigan primary draws near.

Less than two weeks ago, the only active campus group was the Students for McGovern, which is better staffed, funded and organized than any other campaign.

Since then, however, the Students for Humphrey and the MSU Committee to Re-elect President Nixon have blossomed, supporters of Rep. Shirley Chisholm have begun to organize, and Students for Muskie has disbanded.

The student effort for Gov. George Wallace has remained largely invisible but is building some strength.

Other candidates on the May 16 ballot, Indiana Sen. Vance Hartke, Rep. Paul McCloskey and Sen. Henry Jackson, have no student following. Hartke and McCloskey have dropped out of the presidential race.

Students for McGovern, which now contains about 30 organizers and over 700 volunteers, is equally as well financed as it is staffed.

Over $1,500 has been collected for the campus campaign, Sally Podulka, Glenview, Ill. freshman, said.

The McGovern group recently opened a campaign office at 207 Bogue St. Campaign booths have also been set up in the Union, International Center, Bessey Hall and several residence halls.

The McGovern people are canvassing the residence halls and married housing with their large staff of volunteers. Plans have been made to continue the canvassing until the primary, concentrating on voters who have indicated that they are uncommitted.

Rap sessions are planned for the next two weeks in 11 halls. East Lansing councilmen George Griffiths and George Colburn and Lynn Johndahl, candidate for 59th District representative post, will participate in the discussions.

Students for Humphrey formally organized three weeks ago, but have failed to get off the ground because of funding problems and a lack of coordination with the national and state headquarters.

Located in the alcove of the UN Lounge in the Union, the Humphrey campaign effort still is under-staffed. About 30 or 35 people are actively involved according to Joe Ditzhazy, Lansing senior and MSU coordinator for Humphrey.

Ditzhazy indicated that plans are being made for Humphrey to come to

Storm plagues Chile

Thousands of Chileans were left homeless Sunday by driving rain that inundated shanty town settlements, flooded roads and disrupted electric and telephone service.

The rains, caused by a cold front sweeping in from the Pacific Ocean, began Friday night and continued through Sunday. The rain was accompanied by near-freezing temperatures, signalling the advent of winter in this south-of-the-equator country.

Hardest hit, as always during such storms, were residents of dozens of shanty towns built on vacant lots around the periphery of the capital.

Money talks to start

Finance ministers from major nations will begin writing new international monetary rules this year, making decisions that will affect world economic conditions for decades.

U.S. officials estimate that the process of rebuilding a new monetary system will take at least a year, maybe two. Some say longer. And no one in the Treasury Dept. is willing to guess at the outcome.

Americans rescued

Trapped in North Vietnamese — held territory for 13 days after their helicopter was shot down, five Americans stayed alive with the help of a South Vietnamese soldier who vanished six hours before they were rescued.

The five, who included three U.S. Army advisers and two helicopter crewmen, told their story in a Vietnam hospital. They were rescued Saturday, more than a week after being given up for dead.

Two planes hijacked

A detachment of Honduran army troops searched an isolated mountain region Sunday for a well equipped hijacker who parachuted from an Eastern Airlines jet with the ransom. His was the second hijacking of the weekend and both appeared politically motivated.

The other incident involved a Western Airlines jet which was commandeered over Utah and ordered to Cuba by a young Vietnam war protester who vowed to sneak back into the country and hijack more planes. A neighbor of the youth said he was due to be inducted into the Army.

Plan taken to voters

Angry with a state government they say has bowed to special interest groups, a former used car dealer and six college students are taking a sweeping antipollution plan directly to California voters. It's titled the Environment Initiative on the June 6 California presidential primary ballot.

The initiative proposal would ban DDT and related long-lasting pesticides from California, phase out lead compounds in gasoline, outlaw offshore oil and gas drilling and place a five-year moratorium on construction of new nuclear power plants in the state.

WWI hero's son shot

Tom York, a constable and the youngest son of World War I hero Sgt. Alvin York, was found shot to death early Sunday in Jamestown, Tenn. beside the body of a man he had arrested and was taking to jail, authorities reported.

They said York died of a single shot in the head from a .38-caliber derringer. The other man, who had been involved in a car accident and was to be charged with drunkenness, was struck twice in the arm and once in the chest by three shots from York's service revolver.

Busing issue delays aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A six-week effort by the House and Senate to reach a compromise on a massive education bill has yet to produce agreement on any of the major points at issue. The chief issue still unresolved deals with busing for the purpose of school desegregation, on which a deadlock is developing that could doom the entire $20-billion measure. The main provisions in the bill apply to higher education and include new and broadened student-aid programs and an important new program to help colleges meet operating expenses.

Before passing the bill last November, the House added three tough antibusing amendments that would prevent the use of federal funds for busing, make it difficult to spend state or local funds, and keep any court busing order from going into effect until all appeals are exhausted.

The Senate, after narrowly defeating similar proposals, adopted compromise language that would permit federal funds to be spent for busing at the request of local officials, or where the Constitution required it, and would delay the effective date only of court orders affecting more than one school district.

There are many other provisions in the huge bill, including a new program designed to help schools desegregate, a National Institute of Education to support research for the improvement of education, and a costly new vocational education program.

When House and Senate conferees began their effort at compromise in mid-March, more than 200 differences between the two versions of the bill confronted them. Within three days a week, the number steadily whittled down.

However, the four problems that were the most contentious remain. They are busing, student aid, aid to colleges and the desegregation program.

Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., as chairman of the conference, hopes that the area of agreement broadens and more provisions are added to the bill the desire of the members to get a final bill will be strengthened.

He hopes that agreement can be reached on everything but busing, the pressure of the college and other groups that benefit from the bill will be so great it will force compromise on busing.

The difficulty facing Perkins is that the House conference, vote overwhelmingly that the busing amendments to the House bill. And the Senate conferees are urged by powerful civil rights groups to stand by their version even if it means a deadlock and a bill.

TO END VIETNAM WAR

Kennedy blasts Nixon plan

By RAY ANDERSON

State News Staff Writer
DETROIT — Sen. Edward Kennedy delivered an emotional attack on the Nixon Administration's bombing escalation Friday in Detroit's Sheraton Cadillac Hotel.

The Massachusetts senator's attack came at a $50-a-plate fund-raising dinner for state Democratic legislators, in which he asked for a one-point plan to end American involvement in Indochina.

With a quivering voice, Kennedy, who earlier declared he would not even accept a draft for the Democratic presidential nomination, said the United States should end the fighting and negotiate for the release of the 400 American prisoners of war who are rotting in jails in North Vietnam.

He questioned the intelligence of a program that required the heaviest bomb attacks in history to quell 17 million people who in no way threaten U.S. security.

"There is a greater danger of internal conflict if this war continues, than was ever imposed by 17 million peasants 10,000 miles away."

He said President Nixon has failed in his commitment made three and one-half years ago to end the war, and asked legislators and wealthy Democrat revenue producers why a one-point plan of securing the release of prisoners of war has not been tried.

"What have we got to lose?" he implored the cheering crowd.

The noncandidate also charged the Nixon Administration with preferential treatment of big business in the face of spiraling inflation, which is affecting all Americans.

"This administration is pursuing the economics of ITT, rather than the workers of the United States," he asserted.

He said the administration should be seeking action to provide funds for improving education, providing welfare reform and decent incomes for the nation's elderly, instead of resorting to excuses and explanations for funds being spent to prosecute the Vietnam War.

Earlier Friday, at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, Kennedy said the Democratic candidate who wins the primaries in New York and California will win the party's nomination for president. Each state carries over 270 delegate votes. It was at that time that he emphatically said he would not accept a draft, but in a lighter remark made later he reflected on a six-state tour he was making with his wife during the past week.

"I'm just beginning to realize Joan must be running for something," he quipped.

In a theme specifically related to Michigan, the Massachusetts senator struck at the dehumanizing conditions of mass production, auto construction and the drudgeries and danger of coal mining.

He suggested a federal accident prevention program for protection of American workers be implemented to prevent the 15,000 deaths and 9 million injuries that industrial workers suffered last year.

"If we can send 70,000 people to Vietnam to protect the South Vietnamese, we can send 4,000 people in factories to protect the American worker," Kennedy said.

He implied that the biggest issues of the 1972 campaign would be security and peace abroad, health, housing and tax reform.

RHA proposal on tax faces vote by students

An amendment to the Residence Halls Assn. (RHA) constitution which would allow RHA to tax each student as much as $2.50 each term will be voted on Tuesday by undergraduate students living in residence halls.

Voting booths will be located in all residence hall lobbies Tuesday from 10:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. - 7 p.m.

The proposed amendment would require students to pay residence hall dues during registration instead of at the time they move into the residence halls.

The amount collected would be distributed to individual halls on the basis of the number of students living in that hall each term. RHA would keep no more than 15 cents of the amount assessed each hall resident.

Each hall's governing body would also have the option of taxing their residents as much as $2 per person each year if two-thirds of the voting hall residents approve the revenue collection.

A second amendment on the ballot would provide for the creation of an RHA judiciary, responsible for cases involving violations of the regulations by individuals whose governments have assigned responsibility for individual violations to the RHA judiciary.

The judiciary would consist of nine members, including chairman and an associate chairman, chosen by selection committee established by RHA.

All members of the judiciary would be students in good standing with the University and live in the residence halls.

TO END N. IRELAND STRIFE

British weigh UN intervention

BELFAST (AP) — British authorities are seriously considering the possibility of United Nations intervention if Northern Ireland slides further toward civil war.

This intervention, a well-placed source said Sunday, could come about if militants among the province's million Protestants go on the offensive, as they threaten to do.

And it would come at the request not of the British but of Ireland's prime minister, Jack Lynch.

In the past, Britain has rejected any UN involvement in Northern Ireland on the ground that the troubles here are a domestic matter. A clear inference now exists that this veto policy may change.

As the British see it, they took a gamble in March this year when they deposed the Protestant-dominated provincial government and assumed direct rule. They see little evidence so far that the gamble will succeed.

Looking back over three years of violence, in which more than 300 persons have died, the British see themselves involved in the third and crucial stage of a race against time.

In 1969 the race was to press the provincial government into reforms fast enough to keep the outlawed Irish Republican Army from winning sympathy among the Roman Catholic population. That race was lost.

Last year, with the introduction of internment without trial, the race was to imprison as many IRA men as possible with such speed that the organization could not regroup. That race was lost, too.

Now, with the provincial parliament suspended, the race is on to find a new political formula designed to persuade Roman Catholics and Protestants that they are getting a fair deal and so wean the Catholic minority away from support for the gunmen before the Protestant community takes the law into its own hands.

No one yet has a clear idea of what this formula may be. The race to find it is not yet lost but it is far from won.

Discontent in the Protestant community and fears of a sell-out to a Catholic-dominated United Ireland are at such a pitch that the British believe one major IRA outrage could set off an eruption by the Protestants.

The IRA would be likely to retaliate by taking over predominantly Catholic towns such as Newry and Strabane — just as it already controls the main Catholic areas of Londonderry.

Protestants might then cross the border to attack known IRA bases in Ireland and Lynch certainly would call on the United Nations to end the threat to peace.

British troops came under fire six times in Belfast and Londonderry during the day. No army casualties were reported from the sniping attacks on military posts.

Shots from a passing car hit a 17-year-old youth in the head as he strolled along Belfast's Springfield Road.

Police said the youth, who was expected to recover, apparently got in the way of bullets fired at an army emplacement.

Three bombs blasted a health center in the Northern Ireland town of Rathfriland, 35 miles south of Belfast early Sunday. The center, still under construction, was badly damaged. Troops discovered a fourth bomb before it exploded and later detonated it. No one was injured in the explosions. Security authorities were baffled by the attempt to blow up an unfinished building.

Public opinion sought on trustee selections

By BARBARA PARNES

State News Staff Writer
The Alumni Assn. Democratic Trustee Selection Committee will hold an open hearing at 4 p.m. today in the Union Gold Room to solicit views from the MSU community on trustee qualifications.

State Rep. Nelis J. Saunders, D - Detroit, and ASMSU Chairman Hal Buckner are expected to be among those testifying before the committee.

Patrick J. Wilson, committee chairman, said the hearing is being held to find out "what kind of person should be directing the policies of the University for the next eight years."

Wilson said students, faculty members and area residents are invited to present views on the types of people the Democratic party should nominate to fill two trustee positions to be vacated in December.

The hearing is not intended for the purpose of announcing candidates, but Wilson said the names of prospective candidates and their qualifications will be welcome.

Saunders said she will attend the hearing as a representative of the Michigan Black Women's Political Caucus.

"I will talk about the fact that the Democratic party has never elected a black woman to an educational post in the state," she said.

Buckner said he will not endorse a candidate at the hearing.

"But if they're clever, they might figure out who I'm talking about," he said.

Donna O'Donohue, a March MSU graduate seeking a Democratic nomination, said she is considering attending the hearing. She said she expects some of her supporters to attend.

O'Donohue endorsed the hearing as a means of getting community input into the decision-making process.

Nancy Waters, aide to House Speaker William Ryan who has expressed interest in a Democratic nomination, will not attend the hearing.

"I do not plan to be present, but I've received some calls from people who intend to be there to testify on my behalf," Waters said. She said she expects to make a final decision on her candidacy before June.

Italian vote to test strength of leftists

ME (AP) — A massive vote of Italians voted in parliamentary elections that may shift this Alliance nation's political balance back to the left after 10 years of rule by the right.

The bitter political fight that started with the election of a center-right government ended with the election of a new government, a neo-fascist candidate by the "red brigades" of the left.

They were checking a candidate's report he had been kidnapped, and stood in armed guard to the candidate's house, which ends this week. The outcome of the election will be known before Tuesday.

The voter turnout in the national elections was the war has averaged 60 percent, but polling this said the balloting on Sunday noon was even higher than usual.

Italy's future for the next five years was at stake. The election was held to show whether the biggest Communist party in the West has lost its first time in a national election here since World War II. It also was held to show whether the neo-Fascist Italian Movement has made its bid to double its vote in its biggest come-back since Benito Mussolini's death 27 years ago.

If votes continued to slowly away from the largest party, an end to strengthening of parties of the center would let the Christian Democrats form an all-center majority alliance.

The Socialists said they wanted a "new equilibrium." That meant they would return to a coalition with the Christian Democrats but reserved the right to join Communists in regional alliances and vote with the Communists in parliament on reform measures.

Chisholm bypasses Lansing airport stop

About 333 disappointed Shirley Chisholm supporters went home Sunday without seeing their candidate, who bypassed Capitol City Airport because of the cold, rainy weather.

Elizabeth Santos, acting coordinator for the Chisholm organization in Lansing, said the lack of a dry place to hold the rally caused Chisholm, a New York congresswoman, to fly straight to Detroit to keep several speaking engagements.

"Her campaign manager called ahead to ask if it was raining," Santos said. "We told him it wasn't that bad — just drizzling — and to come ahead."

She said that efforts to obtain a shelter tent failed "because the businessmen we talked to said 'we don't want to get politically involved.'"

A later communication with the Chisholm entourage explained the situation and the scheduled stop was canceled.

A few Chisholm supporters, upset because the rally was not held in the airport terminal, claimed that the airport manager told Chisholm there was no room for a rally at the terminal. Manager Russell Brown, however, said that "no one asked anything of the airport," and coordinator Santos echoed his statement.

"I just want to say that the airport people were more than cooperative — they were very generous in their help," she said.

House should ratify forceful antiwar bill

The Michigan House of Representatives took a small step in the right direction Wednesday in calling for an immediate cease-fire in Vietnam. The amended antiwar resolution also called for new elections in South Vietnam which would be internationally supervised, with all political elements including the Communists participating in and helping to run the elections.

The resolution does a fine job of echoing Nixon's stand on the war. It rehearses the exchange of prisoners issue, states that too many Americans have died in the Indochinese War, and resolves that means other than killing human beings be found to attain peace.

Rep. Earl E. Nelson, D-Lansing and sponsor of the bill, said he did not want to take any credit for the resolution which had been amended to reflect the nonproductive statements of the past.

"It's the same rhetoric that we've been hearing for the past several years from several administrations," Nelson said.

The rhetoric has been heard from all elements concerned, stating that war is not very nice and it's high time America stopped all that awful fighting over in rice paddy land.

If the Michigan Legislature is to go on record as being strongly opposed to the Vietnam War it will at least need a resolution with more teeth in it than the amended resolution has.

The original resolution, sponsored by Nelson, stated "Whereas, The Administration has assured as that Vietnamization of the war and pacification of the countryside are now successful; and Whereas, In view of the nature and outcome of the recent presidential election in South Vietnam our presence there is no longer necessary..."

The resolution demands an "immediate cease-fire and withdrawal from Indochina of all U.S. ground, air and naval forces."

This resolution, far more realistically assesses the Vietnam situation, and makes provisions to end it.

The Hanoi peace plan calls for President Nguyen Van Thieu's resignation and a "specific terminal date" for troop withdrawal.

Nelson's original proposal would have made headway in negotiations with Hanoi, whereas the resolution as passed simply compliments Nixon's foreign policies.

The House has done its good deed for the day. Its members took a very nice stand against the war. Tomorrow's deed should be passage of a forceful petition to Congress to set a withdrawal date and cut funding for the war effort. Then, perhaps America will go in the right direction to end the vicious war in Vietnam.

City needs controls
over sign pollution

The proliferation of commercial signs in East Lansing has become such a public eyesore that governmental action is necessary to control and limit their size and location.

Last month, the East Lansing Planning Commission adopted a sign position paper which observes: "The quantity of street graphics in the environment has reached the saturation point in America, and it has become necessary for public control of both the numbers and the characteristics of street graphics."

Perhaps the concept of the city council regulating the location and size of commercial signs bothers store owners and carry-out food entrepreneurs. Commercial businesses utilize signs to such an extent that it seems the signs rather than the products are competing.

For a long time, the laissez-faire attitude of local governments has prevailed in the domain of commercial signs. As the signs have inched closer to the streets and higher into the sky, however, the situation has become one where the government should be concerned not only with the ethics, but also the esthetics, of local businesses.

The most colorful example of this sign pollution is on Grand River Avenue, east of Bogue Street, which might rightly be called "franchise row."

Signs are functional necessities to inform people about the existence and location of a particular business establishment. At the same time, however, signs can be both traffic hazards and visual pollution.

Citizen concern about environmental quality has grown over the past few years. Many East Lansing residents would enjoy a more spacious Grand River Avenue if offending signs were regulated as to size and location. The need for control of these commercial signs warrants the intervention of the East Lansing City Council into this environmental menace.

SN terminates 'Ms.'

Effective today, the State News will no longer use "Ms." as an identification in any of its news copy.

Because of the relatively short time we have used the title and because of the symbolic value "Ms." has acquired in some segments of the women's liberation movement, an explanation of the shift is necessary.

Two terms ago, the State News editorial board decided to use "Ms." instead of "Mrs." or "Miss" in the second reference to all women in news stories. We felt — and rightly — that there was simply no good reason for designating a woman's marital status in the majority of news stories.

We balked, however, at dropping sexual designation entirely, partly because there were times when some designation would be essential (as when a husband and wife are both mentioned in the same story) and partly because the Associated Press — which is not as "progressive" as we believed we were going to be — often refers to a woman as "Mrs. John Jones" without giving her own name and without some sort of title there would be no way of distinguishing which Jones was which.

So we opted for "Ms." and as it turns out that was a meaningless compromise. The title may be fine in business correspondence or personal conversation, but it is ridiculous in news copy.

Newspapers, with the notable exceptions of the New York Times and a few similarly inclined publications, are irrelevant. We have no use for titles unless they carry some meaningful information.

And in most cases, words like "Mr.,"

"Miss," "Dr.," "Mrs.," and "Ms." fall this test of meaningfulness. They are words of respect, properly used in letters or in conversations but a waste of space in news copy.

In the future, second reference to individuals mentioned in State News stories will be by last name only, with the following exceptions:

- When several people with the same last name, particularly husband and wife or members of the family, are mentioned in a single story, second reference in all cases will be by full name, first name only (in light feature stories or as appropriate) or title and last name. Titles used will be "Mr.," "Mrs.," or "Miss," as in these cases the titles carry information useful in distinguishing individuals.

- Spouses or other family members of a prominent individual will be identified by title, even if mentioned in the story, to prevent confusion; the prominent individual when spouse or family members referred to in the same story.

- Thus, Pat Nixon will remain Nixon, whether Richard is mentioned or not; Nixon will in most cases simply Nixon. Similarly, Chisholm will be Mr. Chisholm. Shirley will usually be Chisholm.

- Family members of the same prominent individual will be identified with appropriate adjectives as "the young" Jones, etc.

- A married woman will be identified by her first name, not her husband's ("Alice Jones," not "Mrs. John Jones") whenever possible; the use of "(husband's name)" will be used only when the woman's first name cannot be obtained, as in national copy.

- A married woman should state her own right as a news source. If her husband's position is significant in the news story, the relationship should be noted separately, not in the title. Thus, reference might be made "Dolores Wharton, wife of President Wharton" but not to "Mrs. Clifford Wharton." A similar rule will be applied to men whose wives' positions are significant to a news story.

- "Ms." will not be used at all in sex, and while such information is significant to a given story, information is already sufficiently provided by the use of pronouns as "she" and "her."

With this new policy, we hope to have the flexibility to use titles only when such identification is really necessary and not when some rigid rule requires. There may be some initial confusion as we put the policy into practice, but we hope to work this out quickly.

POINT OF VIEW

Adopt selective recruitment

By BOB REPAS
Professor of labor
and industrial relations

A university has a choice of three policies in regard to the use of its facilities by business and government agencies for recruitment of personnel. It can institute a policy of open recruitment, a policy of selective recruitment, or a policy of no recruitment. In theory this University has had a policy of open recruitment. In practice, however, this policy has been, in fact, one of selective recruitment; because only the large companies and government agencies, such as the CIA and the military, have the money and manpower to tour the academic sawdust trail. The practicalities of life are such that no open recruitment policy currently exists nor will there be one in the foreseeable future.

If one believes that universities can be divorced from real life, a compelling argument can be made to justify a position that no one should be allowed to recruit, for it is difficult to see the relationship between recruitment and the education process which is the central purpose for a university's existence. However, universities today are more than mere dispensers of knowledge, and therefore must face up to the question of making value judgments in regard to many matters.

Can a case be made for selective recruiting whereby a university exercises a value judgment as to whom should have such a privilege and who should not? Before examining this specific problem it is essential that one distinguishes between free speech and engaging in activity advocated in those speeches. A university has an obligation to allow all shades of opinion to be heard on the campus. On the other hand, a university has no obligation to provide facilities for the concrete activities that may be advocated. The following example illustrates this point. Timothy Leary should be allowed to speak on this campus or any other campus. However, his right to speak in no way commits the university to provide a lounge and other facilities for Leary to practice what he preaches.

If one believes that universities can be divorced from real life, a compelling argument can be made to justify a position that no one should be allowed to recruit, for it is difficult to see the relationship between recruitment and the education process which is the central purpose for a university's existence.

The basic argument made against a selective recruitment policy is that the university would be required to make a value judgment and thus presumably discriminate against one group and in favor of another. This kind of university action is not quite as novel as it may appear at first glance. The University has, in fact, exercised a value judgment in many other areas. For example, a decision was made to become involved in Vietnam even though it was obvious that certain related activities violated the terms of the Geneva agreements.

Admittedly, exercising a value judgment is never easy, but merely because it may be a difficult task does not mean that it should be discarded.

There are two specific institutions which have been responsible primarily for creating the debate over recruitment policy throughout this country. They are: 1) the CIA, and 2) the armed forces. The very job requirements of the CIA make its purposes incompatible with those of a university. A CIA employee is prepared to engage in practices from lying to murder. Furthermore, an employee is subject to prosecution if he discloses the nature of his job activities. The history of CIA in subverting student groups at some universities, including this one, is too well known to bear recounting. The most precise description that can be accorded that agency is the functions as an international Mafia.

Though the CIA should not be allowed to recruit on a university campus, its representatives should be given the right to express their views in open forum on a campus. It would indeed be a welcome opportunity to have the head of this agency attempt to publicly defend its practices.

Military recruitment should also be banned, though here too representatives should have the right to express their views in open forum. One of the major factors facing both American society and general and American universities is the threat of domination by military-industrial complex. University should not be an appendage to this complex. Unfortunately, however, long strides have been made down this path. Classroom research, the antithesis of free inquiry, exists on many campuses. Furthermore, the insatiable appetite for military manpower is determining university policies in a number of areas.

Psychologically, universities have already accepted some of the premises of the military. Traditionally, military recruiter has urged enlistment to "beat the draft." Apparently it never occurred to even one university to ask: "Why does no federal agency set up a table for the recruitment of conscientious objectors as a way of 'beating the draft,'" since this is a perfectly legal alternative to current law.

The test that should be applied to the agency seeking recruiting personnel is "Does it perform a social redemption function?" In the case of universities such as the CIA the answer is a clear cut "no." In other cases where the answer is not so clear, joint faculty-student committees should reach a decision based on individual merits of each case.

To the Editor:

Finally, the number of candidates for the new athletic director has been narrowed down to three individuals. Now, the University is faced with the problem of selecting one of those three. In order to facilitate the appointment and ease the burdens of our top executive, we suggest that the final decision be left to the students in the form of a campuswide ASMSU election. As we are all familiar with the efficiency of ASMSU in holding elections, this would be the fastest method in reaching that final decision. Who knows, with no complications and invalidations the new athletic director could be in office in time to throw out the first ball for the 1974 Spartan baseball season.

2. If the U.S. really supports self-determination, what should it do to help the South Vietnamese?

Art show reflects student education

By BILL BRUZY
State News Reviewer

There is a student art exhibit in the Kresge Art Center Gallery. I don't know what to say about the show except that it may reflect the condition of undergraduate and graduate education. Students' work is either ignored or they are asked to feed the egos of instructors by acting as though they are being 'influenced' by his (there are no women painting instructors) work and opinion.

This is not the case with the instructors, but a majority. The main need of students is to learn how to operate in the art world. They need to learn the real criteria of excellence, they need a methodology of knowledge, but they are only given chronisms for their own.

Two faculty members are doing work at Central Michigan University. Irving Adams was recently at Kresge Art Center, but work of James Adley, a professor of art, has been public for a while. Adley's work can be described in mathematical terminology. His work is, if there is such a thing, can be differentiated from social and other conceptual realities, but his work can be realized in words like function, matrix, etc.

The paintings cover a 10-year period. They show a concern with defining modular elements as a function of variables. In earlier pieces the elements define themselves and are distinct from the background. Another set of smaller components defines an axis of symmetry. In the last painting the modular elements are totally integrated in function with equal importance of variables. The smaller components have developed from elements defining a secondary axis to random elements, perhaps defining a basic world view of random order as an overlay on symmetric and integrated principles.

Adley's work is the reflection of basic patterns of mental activity. The paintings relate directly to the format and structure of thought. They are intellectual and visual, but the visuality is only partly optical, hence they are difficult to get into, but well worth the effort. They work with an important interface between two separate epistemological domains and they are important devices. Simply, they are profound.

The student exhibit at Kresge runs through May. Gallery hours are 9-12 a.m. and 1-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 7-9 p.m. Tuesday and 2-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The Central Michigan show runs through Wednesday.

DIVA VITALIZES OPERA

Sutherland recital: thrilling

By KENNETH STERN
State News Staff Writer

It was an exciting evening. The great diva Joan Sutherland filled the vast spaces of the Auditorium with exquisite tones—singing rare songs and arias in English, Italian, French and German, and pianist Richard Bonyne provided perfect accompaniment.

Although La Sutherland "doesn't fancy herself a recitalist" she took the stage with complete confidence in a lovely green and orange gown, her red hair beautifully done, and caressed the notes as only she can do. The Sutherland voice is one to luxuriate in, to treasure and enjoy, and her thrilling top notes are goose-pimple inducing.

"La Stupenda" began the program with three Handel works—"Care selve" from "Atalanta," "The Soft Complaining Flute" from "Ode to St. Cecilia" and "As When the Dove" from "Acis and Galatea"—in which she demonstrated her mastery of the style and gave living proof that she is "the greatest Handel singer that's ever been" as anyone who has heard her recordings of "Alcina" or "Julius Caesar" can attest to.

Haydn's "She Never Told Her Love" was dramatically compelling, delicately shaded and sung with amazingly rich and pure tones. Purcell's "Music for a While" was stunning, and La Sutherland made the difficult coloratura requirements of Meyerbeer's "Guide au bord ta nacelle," Rossini's "Chanson de Zora" and Donizetti's "Il Sospiro" seem effortless.

Glorious fun was had with Abt's "Sage mir Vogel" in which the diva delighted the audience with the "cuckoos," and she gave a brilliant rendition of Sir Benedict's "The Gipsy and the Bird" as well as Ticci's "Io non sono piu l'Annetta," a favorite of the great Adelina Patti's which was included during the encores.

Once Joan Sutherland thought the "canary stuff" of coloratura singing was beyond her capabilities, but years of patient training, hard work, and direction from her husband Bonyne has made Sutherland unbeatable in the field of the florid bel-canto singing.

Thanks to the dedication and artistry of this fabulous couple, contemporary audiences can hear such neglected works as Bizet's "Pastorale" and Arne's "When Daisies Pied" in all the purity of style they demand. Joan Sutherland has a "Golden Age" voice, and the includes any "Golden Age" one might refer to. The "dramatic coloratura," once thought to be an extinct species, has been resurrected through the efforts of Joan Sutherland and Richard Bonyne. Their work has been an inspiration not only to myself but to others who will, or are working to revive the great art of bel-canto operas of the 18th and early 19th centuries.

Not only was the recital highly entertaining, but it provided a glimpse of what great bel-canto singing is, and, given proper treatment, what it can be.

The YMCA is sponsoring a recreational and leadership training group of junior-high-age boys. Most of them are black kids from the west side of Lansing. They are looking for someone to help out on Thursdays from 6-9 p.m. Since the program includes mostly minority kids, they would prefer a black volunteer.

Sandy is a 10-year-old girl who has been given the title of "slow learner" by her school but she's not slow enough to be placed in a special class. Her counselor suggested that someone from MSU might be able to help her with her studies. Her mother is looking for a tutor to help out sometime after 4 p.m.

Someone with physical therapist training is needed by an East Lansing stroke patient. The house is within walking distance of campus and the patient needs to be exercised on a regular basis.

Community Mental Health is setting up a sheltered workshop for mentally retarded adults. They are looking for both male and female volunteers to help evaluate the people who will enter this program. They will need the volunteers to help out with the workshop once it gets going too. They are looking for people five days a week at arranged times.

Council awaits report on legality of pot laws

By CAROL THOMAS
State News Staff Writer
The pot law question is in the hands of the city attorney until the next city council meeting, when the council will receive a report on the legality of legalizing marijuana in East Lansing.

"The question is, can the City of East Lansing make something legal that the State of Michigan says is illegal?" commented city manager John M. Patriarche. "The matter will be considered at the next council meeting," Patriarche said. "The city attorney is considering the matter, and I think he will have a report for us by then."

The next council meeting will be held on May 15, instead of May 16 because of primary elections.

At Wednesday's meeting, the council referred the issue to the city attorney for an opinion after attorney Dennis E. McGinty advised that the penalty for possessing marijuana can be no higher than a low misdemeanor is punishable by 90 days in jail and/or a $500 fine.

"The council presently has five alternatives before it on the question of marijuana.

"The first alternative involves simply repealing present city ordinances, leaving the City of East Lansing without laws against the possession and use of marijuana.

"An ordinance was previously introduced levying a $1 fine for the possession and use of marijuana.

"For the third alternative, councilman George M. Colburn suggested that the city adopt present state statutes as its own. This, he said, would simplify prosecutions.

"In addition to any other ordinances adopted by the council, council members concurred on the idea of adopting a statute making it illegal to sell marijuana to minors if it were otherwise made legal.

"Finally, if the city attorney's decision states that it would be possible to legalize marijuana, councilman George W. Griffiths said that he would introduce an ordinance to make pot legal in East Lansing.

Club organized for Europeans

The European Assn. of MSU, (EAMSU) a newly formed organization for European foreign students and those interested in that field of study, became the 15th international club on campus last week with the writing of their constitution.

The purpose of the association is to promote unity among the 125

European students campus and to be a source of information for those interested in the cultures of the European countries.

A unique feature of EAMSU will be an extensive alumni organization throughout Europe so that returning foreign students will be able to keep in touch professionally and even after graduation.

Christos Kamezis, native of Greece and president of EAMSU, said that the organization originally intended to be only a continuous link between European alumni in the future but that it expanded to serve as an active campus club. The EAMSU plans to present seminars during term in which European American professors discuss certain aspects of their work which they have done in Europe. A cultural program is also being planned.

Panel to study addition of 'lifestyle' to city code

The Human Relations Commission appointed a subcommittee recently to define and study the desirability of adding "lifestyle" to the city's antidiscrimination code. The commission's reconsideration of the term

"lifestyle" was prompted in part by a letter from councilman George Colburn inquiring what action if any they were going to take on the issue.

"Lifestyle" in some form, whether cultural orientation, physical appearance, or sexual orientation, has been before the commission since February.

Due to the vagueness of the term which seemed "to bog" the commission down, "lifestyle" appeared to be dismissed.

Last month the commission did recommend to East Lansing City Council that sexual orientation or homosexuality be added to the city discrimination policy. The recommendation, however, turned out to be invalid because of a lack of quorum.

A report is expected in June from the three man subcommittee headed by commissioner Margaret Liedholm. Commissioner John Des Jardins and alternate commissioner Bill Bunt are the other two members.

Women reps plan proposal meeting

Representatives from the Women's Steering Committee will meet at 9:15 tonight in the Williams Hall cafeteria to discuss student proposals to be included in the special report to President Wharton on May 30.

Some of the issues to be discussed include the marching band, admissions policy, women's athletic student spouses, academic advising and financial aids. All interested students are welcome to attend.

John gives 'fantastic' show

By JOHN LINDSTROM
State News Reviewer

Once in a great while a performance occurs that is so moving, so fantastic that it is virtually impossible for a writer to describe.

The Elton John Concert last Thursday was just such an event.

John defies every superlative word known in the English language.

Suffice it to say that Elton John is the most creative and talented individual rock performer today.

"This will be a gig to remember," the English pianist told the near capacity audience at Jenison Fieldhouse. That it was. By the end it had turned into a gigantic party with 9,000 dancing, singing participants.

Bounding onto the stage in a sparkling, pink, Norfolk jacket, John and his band, Nigel Olson on drums, Dee Murray on bass and Davey Johnstone, gave an electric performance.

Part of John's concerts are his stage antics. At this show he knelt while playing the piano, did handstands on the keyboard, danced on the piano top, played with his feet and posed for photographers while playing.

Between numbers he pranced about the stage, dancing and saluting the audience. By the show's end he was conducting the audience in singing and clapping.

But his performance was not all acrobatics. His music, from the opening number "Tiny Dancer," to the finish, "Honky-Tonk Women," showed his great versatility. John's music sticks to no one musical form, but runs through every style, from country-rock to rock and roll.

Three numbers that particularly showed the range of John's talent were "Levon," "Madman Across the Water," and "Can I Put You On?" Each number went from a soft, slow piano solo to a pounding jam, then back to the slow piano solo.

As a pianist John is nothing short of a virtuoso. His playing showed astounding maturity and sensitivity and yet power. He pounds the piano so hard that it seems that he could pound it into slivers with relative ease.

John's voice, too, has both clarity and power, and never once wavered throughout the entire evening.

John's band, too, are excellent performers. Nigel Olson could very possibly be the best rock drummer since Ginger Baker, and both Dee Murray and Davey Johnstone are exceptional musicians.

Opening this memorable concert was an excellent but little known blue-grass-country rock group, the Dillards.

The group features Rodney Dillard on guitar and lead vocals, Mitchell Jayne on bass, Dean Webb on mandolin, Billy Ray Latham on banjo and Paul York on drums.

The group is not only a fine musical troupe but also good comedians, and are visually a bizarre group to watch. Dean Webb looks like a cadaver, and Billy Ray Latham has a ghoulish laugh that sounds like it came from an old Bela Lugosi flick.

"We've put out five albums, and you've ignored every one of them," Jayne said. Indeed we have. But perhaps now the Dillards will get the recognition they deserve.

RHA proposes policy for uniform hall hours

In all - University residence hall closing policy, from 1 to 6 a.m. daily, was initially proposed by the Residence Halls Assn. (RHA), RHA president La Fochman said Monday.

The proposal is a move to increase security across campus due to a rise in robberies in the residence halls during the last two months, Fochman

The proposed policy has been approved by ASMSU, the University Student Advisory Committee (ASAC) and the dean of students.

Residence hall closing hours are currently from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. on weekdays and 1 to 6 a.m. on weekends. The men's residence halls that are open for 24 hours would be subjected to the closed policy.

"We thought it would be better if closing hours were the same every night," Fochman said.

Fochman said.

Individual halls can expand the guidelines set by RHA on the recommendation of the residence hall's council.

"It's an avenue the individual halls can utilize, like leaving the middle doors open between the wings of coed halls," Fochman said.

'S' breezes past OSU on legs of distance men

By GARY KORRECK
State News Sports Writer

Three Ralph Young Field records were set Saturday, two by Spartans, as MSU trackmen outlasted Ohio State 95-58 before a crowd of approximately 1,500 for their second dual win in as many tries.

The score was tied at 29 early in the meet, but the Spartans placed at least two men in the top three places in eight of the next 10 events and won the mile relay going away.

Freshman sprinter

Marshall Dill and junior long jumper Del Gregory established Field records for MSU, but it was the performance of the Spartan distance men, who outscored the Bucks 23-4, which made the big difference.

Rob Cool, Randy Kilpatrick and Steve Rockey shut out Ohio State in the 3,000-meter steeplechase, with Cool coming in with a season's best time of 9:03.8. Kilpatrick and Cool finished 1-2 in the three-mile, burying OSU's Joe Corry with a 60-second quarter on the gun lap after Corry had hung close for the first 11 laps.

Ken Popejoy, nursing a strained leg, sprinted away from Gary Kurtz to take the mile in 4:12.6 and Ron Cool raced to third. Cool and Phil Siebold finished 2-3 in the 880 after Kurtz outkicked the Spartan junior to win by less than a second.

Dill, seeing action for the first time in two weeks, was scheduled to run in the 440 relay and in the 220. A dropped baton prevented him from running in the relay, but he came back to post a Field record 21.2 clocking in the 220. LaRue Butcher and Herb Washington finished 2-3 for the trackmen to complete their second sweep of the meet.

Washington and Butcher went 1-2 in the 100 as the Buckeye sprinters failed to crack the 10-second barrier. Washington's winning time was 9.7.

Del Gregory bested Paul Warfield's, a former OSU trackman, Field mark in the long jump by soaring 24-10 and teammate John Ross placed second with a jump of 23-11½. Gregory added a strong 48-4 effort in the triple jump, but the Bucks'

Doug Colucci established a Field record with a 49-½ performance to take first place.

Bob Cassleman just missed setting a Field record in the 440 intermediate hurdles as he ran away from the field for an easy victory in 52.7, 1 off the mark set by Spartan alumnus Bob Steele.

The trackmen also received firsts from Mike Holt, in the 440, Dave Martin, in the 120-yard high hurdles, and Bill Nance in the 660.

The mile relay unit of Al Henderson, Nance, Holt and Cassleman ran to a 3:16 clocking, leading the Bucks by about 50 yards at the finish.

The Buckeyes picked up three other firsts in the field events behind pole vaulter Jeff Linta, discus thrower Kevin Farrell and high jumper Dean Young. Linta outvaulted the Spartans' Tom Wilson in his specialty to win with a vault of 14-0. Farrell threw the discus 154-8 to top the Spartans' Marv Roberts. Roberts had earlier won the shotput with a toss of 54-6.

Young took the high jump with a best of 6-2. MSU high jumper Ralph Simpson also went 6-2, but Young won on fewer misses.

Distance aces

Rob Cool (r) and Randy Kilpatrick (l) exchanged 1-2 finishes in the steeplechase and three mile, respectively, as the MSU trackmen pounded Ohio State 95-58 Saturday.

Stickmen stung by Kenyon, 4-1

Playing through a threat of rain, the MSU lacrosse team absorbed a 4-1 setback at the hands of Kenyon Saturday, yet the loss didn't dampen the team's performance.

"This is the best game we've played all year," Coach Ted Swoboda said.

Defense was the key to the low-scoring contest for both squads. Ron Hebert, who had 20 saves for the day, reached a total of 209 stops for the season and in so doing established a Spartan lacrosse varsity record beating the old mark of 199 set by Bill Herrmann in 1970.

Merl Truman and Mike Moody also played inspiring defense. Truman blocked several shots in support of Hebert while Moody, as he has been all season, was the major link in the Spartans fast break.

The game's scoring was opened by Kenyon's Dave Cronin, the league's leading scorer, as he tallied in the first period.

MSU then countered with Paul Safrans' 11th goal of the season which came in the first period. Following a missed Spartan shot, Safran knocked the ball into the Kenyon net with his stick to collect the Spartan's only score of the game.

Kenyon scored twice in the second stanza and once in the third while the fourth quarter was an offensive stalemate as neither team could crack the other's defense. The Spartans' next games are away against Denison and Ashland on Saturday and Sunday respectively.

Golfers ninth in IU tourney

By STEVE STEIN
State News Sports Writer

MSU's golfers suffered through another tournament this past weekend at the Northern Intercollegiate Invitational in Bloomington, Ind., but the Spartans hope they can turn things around when they host the Spartan Invitational Friday and Saturday.

Indiana, the favorite to win the Big Ten championship in three weeks, won the tourney on the home course with a team score of 1490. "They played exceptional golf" Spartan coach Bruce Fossum commented.

Miami (Florida) was the Hoosiers' nearest competitor, finishing 25 strokes back at 1515.

The Spartans placed ninth in the 15-team field with a total of 1541 and sixth among the conference schools that competed in the 72-hole event.

Iowa, Purdue, Michigan and Ohio State placed third through seventh and ahead of the Spartans. Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Northwestern rounded out the Big Ten standings.

Gary Biddenger, a Hoosier freshman, was the tourney medalist with a four-round total of 293.

Brad Hyland, a Spartan freshman, continued to play excellent golf and led the MSU contingent with rounds of 75-75-78-73-301 and also finished tenth in the individual tournament standings.

"Brad seems to be mentally ready to accept the challenge," Fossum said. "He's giving each shot every bit of his thought—I'm very pleased with his play."

Dick Bradow and John VanderMeiden both totaled 310, the former on rounds of 80-75-75-80 and the latter on 78-76-79-77 during the two-day tourney on the Indiana University championship course.

Steve Broadwell finished with a total of 312, Dick Dickens carded 313 and Bill Marx scored 314 to round out the Spartan team total.

Fossum wasn't too pleased with his team's performance.

"We know that we're better than sixth in the conference," he said. "We've beaten or tied every team that finished in front of us except Michigan and Indiana this season."

This week is "Spartan Week" with the huge Spartan Invitational coming up Friday and Saturday. It will be the final tournament competition MSU will engage in before the Big Ten championships.

There will be 33 teams representing 30 schools from all over the Midwest playing on the Forest Akers course in one of the "largest and most famous tournaments in the country" according to Fossum.

MSU will enter two teams and six men have gained berths already—VanderMeiden, Bradow, Hyland, Mark Timyan, Jeff Klingbiel and Bill Bradford because of their fine play in a 72-hole intrasquad tournament last weekend.

Oakland University will face the Spartans in the meet this afternoon that may be part of an intrasquad playoff to determine the other four Spartans that will compete in the tourney this coming weekend.

VINCENT CANBY, N. Y. TIMES: "...superior fiction, as implacable as 'An American Tragedy,' as mysterious as 'You Can't Go Home Again,' as funny as 'Why Are We in Viet Nam?' and as banal as 'Main Street.'"

PHILIP ROTH: "Nothing so comically grotesque as Nixon's transformation into a President has happened since Kafka's hero turned into a cockroach; MILLHOUSE faithfully records that horrible American metamorphosis."

LEONARD HARRIS, WCBS TV: "One thing is sure...as you watch...the campaigns against Voorhis, Helen Gahagan Douglas, Stevenson, Kennedy, Humphrey, the Hiss case...the farewell speech in California...as you watch, you'll be chortling or fuming. No one will sleep through MILLHOUSE."

JULES FEIFFER: "A zapped portrait of Nixon from Voorhis to Vietnam: part camp, part Horatio Alger run amuck—the dark side of the American dream."

KEVIN SANDERS, WABC TV: "It's probably the most devastating attack on one man ever put together on film."

ALBERT GOLDMAN: "'Millhouse' is funnier than any current comedy. The only sad thing is its truth."

JERRY PARKER, NEWSDAY: "...howlingly funny...a film to make you wish we didn't have Nixon to kick around any more."

JAMES A. WECHSLER, N. Y. POST: "...the predominantly young, anti-establishment audience howled with a kind of ecstatic laughter."

JAY COCKS, TIME MAGAZINE: "A funny likeness of the 37th President. Nixon seems to emerge as the kind of bunko artist of whom W.C. Fields always ran afoul."

Batsmen split with U-M

CRAIG REMSBURG
News Sports Writer
ANN ARBOR — What ended out to be a good game for the MSU team ended on a note Saturday
noon in the University
Michigan's windy Fisher Stadium.
Spartans were double as they dropped a 7-0 loss to the Wolverines lost Jerry Sackmann for remainder of the season

when the outfielder collided with teammate Shaun Howitt and broke two bones in his left hand.

Greg Buss blooped a fly ball to shallow left centerfield in the fifth for the U-M squad, whom the Spartans defeated 8-0
Friday, and Sackmann and Howitt both dove for the ball.

"Neither of us called for it and I thought he (Howitt) was 10 feet away," a dejected Sackmann recalled later. "I caught the ball but we collided and hit heads. He knocked me out and I guess the ball came out of my glove."

"I must have fallen on my hand at the same time."

Howitt was able to finish the game but Sackmann was taken out and given medical attention.

The loss evened the Spartans' Big Ten record at 3-3 (the same as U-M) and made their season record 19-9-1.

Righthander Mickey Elwood hurled a fine one-hitter for the 12-10-1 Wolverines, giving up only a line single to left by Ron Pruitt with two outs in the eighth. Elwood struck out four and walked four MSU batters to gain his first victory of the year as opposed to three defeats.

Larry Ike and Elliott Moore pitched for the Spartans and starter Ike was tagged with his second defeat this season. He went six full innings, gave up seven hits, two runs (one earned),
walked none and fanned two. Ike was trying for his sixth win this year.

Moore was touched up for four hits and five runs (one earned) in his two-inning stint. Four Spartan errors, two of them committed by catcher Pruitt, hurt both hurriers.

It was a different story
Friday, however, as Brad VanPelt left 16 Wolverine runners stranded on the bases in pitching the batsmen to an 8-0 shutout. It was VanPelt's second whitewash of the year, the other coming in a 1-0 win over Illinois.

Howitt gave VanPelt a 4-0 lead in the third, after Pruitt had knocked in Bailey Oliver with a single to center, with a three-run homer to left.
Howitt had two round trippers for the game.

"Both were hit on fast balls and the first one was down low and inside," an elated Howitt commented later.

"I'm a better low than high ball hitter and I pretty well knew the first one was out."

Oliver made it 6-0 in the sixth with a 360-foot blast to right after Steve Cerez had walked and John Dace had forced Cerez at second. It was Oliver's second home run this season and moved his RBI count to 25, one less than team-leader Howitt.

Single shots over the fence in left by Pruitt (his third) and Howitt (his seventh, tops on the team) in the seventh only served to give VanPelt some breathing room.

The big righthander, now 3-3 on the year and 2-1 in the Big Ten, gave up eleven hits but key defensive plays by Howitt, Rick Carrow, Pruitt and John Dace helped keep the Wolverines off the scoreboard. VanPelt walked five and struck out 10 while serving up a total of 184 pitches. Pete Helt (4-3) was the loser.

The University of Detroit comes in Tuesday for a twinbill with the Spartans, who play at home this weekend in doubleheaders against Indiana and Ohio State.

All eyes upward

Spartan batter Shaun Howitt looks up in time to see his three-run homer in the third disappear over the fence in Friday's 8-0 MSU win over Michigan. Howitt hit two blasts in the game but was blanked in Saturday's 8-0 loss to U-M at Ann Arbor.

MSU grabbed the who occupied the number strong second half for Drobac, and helped provide needed strength from the bottom of the lineup, which the varsity tennis mentor of fourteen years pointed out, would be necessary if the Spartans were to enjoy a winning season.

MSU swept the doubles

reverted back to the doubles combination which he implemented in early season play. Vetter and Williams topped Plumb and Tom

Fodell and Rosen then

Jacoby and Olson, who

Rod Johnson and Andy

Friday's heartbreaker Illinois resulted from the Spartans' inability to capture the doubles competition after splitting the singles with three victories each. The Illini then copped two out of three in the doubles to gain the victory.

MSU's tennis agenda
includes post season tournament action in the Big Ten and NCAA championships. The two-day battle for the conference title will be played in Madison, Wisc., this weekend and could be an opportune time for the Spartans to require Big Ten foes for services rendered during the regular season.

Scheme traps consumers

Though Turner's perpetual money hoaxes have been repeatedly exposed by consumer protection agencies, courts and the press, people continue to join the juggernaut.

Last week, for example, at least 100 gullible consumers, including some from MSU, signed into DTBG.

What's going on here?

The catalyst that triggers the sales, that turns skeptics into true believers, and the keystone to the growth of Turner Enterprises, is the rousing, two-day sessions known as "Golden Opportunity Tours," or simply "Go-Tours."

Getting people to attend is the main battle. Recruiters prowl in the streets, restaurants and even bathrooms to round up prospective customers, who, without being told the nature of the business, are invited to spend two free days at the Detroit Hilton hotel to find out how they can become successful, or synonymously, "filthy rich."

Among other things, one is enticed by the flashy clothes, Cadillac Eldorados and thick wads of $100 bills flaunted by the salesmen, who promise that the secret of their apparent success will be revealed over the weekend.

Once someone attends a Go-Tour, the chances are four out of five that he gets nailed down for a $2,000 or $5,000 contract, according to DTBG President Al Smith.

This impressive rate is undoubtedly fostered by the nature of Go-Tours.

In atmosphere, they resemble revival meetings held by speed freaks, only money becomes God, Turner becomes the Messiah, DTBG becomes the gospel, rags-to-riches testimonials become the miracles, money cheers, songs and chants become the hymns, and "fantastic" and "great" take the place of "praise God" and "Amen."

In Turner's cosmology, heaven is big money and easy living, while hell consists of edging slowly, on $7,000-a-year incomes, towards social security and medicare.

For two continuous days, with breaks only for bed and toilet, guests are bombarded by "You Were Born To Be Great" sermons, by maudlin appeals to American patriotism, and by tear-jerking movies.

All this time, one's watchdog host keeps pounding away with high-pressure pitches, smiles, jokes and apts-on-the-back to break down resistance.

Amazingly, it works. The average guest tends to be a frustrated, unhappy worker. Faced with futures knee-deep in grease, they are easily goaded into plunging neck-deep in debt for a chance at fulfilling the American dream.

Those who refuse to join on the spot are embarrassed in front of the throngs, numbering between 500 and 700, and even browbeaten to the point of nervous breakdown.

One 19-year-old East Lansing resident who refused to buy DTBG last weekend was hounded to the point of tears. Albert G. Isaac, of the attorney general's office, said the Consumer Protection Division is currently gathering evidence for a case against DTBG.

But Al Smith, president of Turner Enterprises, insists that nothing will stop "the unstoppable" Glenn Turner from further expansion.

"We're opening up 500 new companies within the next year," he announced at a recent Go-Tour in Detroit.

Like a Bobo doll, Turner intends to bounce back to haunt the Michigan consumer no matter what happens.

AAUP backs unionization as national policy

Faculty Associates filed in March but were found to be lacking in the number of required signatures on authorization cards.

Sigmund Nosow, MSU chapter president of AAUP, said last week that the AAUP also would have the required number of signatures before the employment relations commission scheduled a meeting among two contenders and the administration to debate the composition of the bargaining unit.

AAUP and the faculty associates differ basically in their proposed definitions of the unit in that AAUP would include department chairmen and assistant and associate chairmen.

If both groups have the necessary number of signatures, the employment relations commission will schedule hearings to determine the appropriate bargaining agency.

The ballot of the ensuing election would list both groups and any other contenders which had collected 10 per cent of the signatures of the faculty and a "no union" choice.

If "no union" receives a majority of the votes, a one year statute of limitations would be in effect before another election could be scheduled.

The vote at the national AAUP convention echoes a position taken last fall by the association's council in support of collective bargaining.

No specific budgetary resources were allocated for the AAUP setup in collective bargaining.

Board censured for firing

American military involvement in the war in Southeast Asia. The motion specifically criticizes the possible sending of marines to Vietnam.

Call for "a nonretributive universal amnesty," so that expatriated or imprisoned war resisters and conscientious objectors can return to the United States without legal penalty.

Praise "initiatives toward normalizing relations with the People's Republic of China."

The censure action against the Administration of UCLA added that university to a list of 25 other colleges and universities on the AAUP censure list.

AAUP considers censure a warning to the academic community that conditions which led to a major violation of academic freedom and tenure at an institution have not been corrected.

The investigative committee on the Angela Davis case concluded that the regents moved to withdraw academic credit from Davis' courses in disregard of accepted academic procedures.

Relating to status: that the regents vetoing Davis' reappointment because of her public utterances was in violation of her academic freedom; that the regents failed to show these utterances demonstrated unfitness for a faculty position; and that because the regents failed to reappoint Davis in spite of the chancellor's recommendation to reappoint and because they did not give her an opportunity to be heard, Davis academic due process was violated.

Decision on Viet war said near responded to a question. But it was clear the President was at the point of decision on future U.S. diplomatic steps and on ways to cope with the continuing North Vietnamese offensive which threatens Hue. Before Rogers left Bonn an aide said the talks "will include the situation in Southeast Asia."

The Security Council, whose staff is headed by presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, includes the secretaries of state and defense, the vice president, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The group meets infrequently and its sessions sometimes coincide with major policy decisions by the President.

Warren said the exact time for the NSC meeting had not been set.

He said it is anticipated that Rogers will return to Europe after the White House consultations and resume his schedule.

Rogers was recalled from Bonn even before he had talked with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt. The return forced indefinite postponement of planned visits to Paris and Rome.

And it coincided with word that Kissinger's planned trip to Japan had been postponed until after the Moscow summit meeting May 22-29. He was to have gone to Tokyo May 11.

India donates aid to families

NEW DELHI (AP) — All but 83 of the 3,214 Indian service men killed in last December's war with Pakistan were married and left families that have become wards of the government, the Defense Ministry said.
