Initiation of witches stresses rituals

They even ince some friends to join their coven, promising that they'd be able to hex their professors.

of course, the road to becoming a n honestly say he is a witch?

The justifications vary. Some argue that a family history of witchcraft automatically influences the offspring.

"My mother was always kind of psychic," Luisa, an ex - MSU student and witchcraft or Olde Religion believer, said "and I think that's why I'm so intuitive."

But another occult believer said that heredity may have little influence on whether a person is a witch. John claims he met a married "white" witch in England whose young son seemed normal, without any apparent extrasensory powers.

An advanced state of sensitive spirituality is also a prerequisite for true witches, some believers say.

"A friend of mine kept trying to convince me to get into witchcraft with witch is not so simple. How can a him because he was almost sure that I had a 'female soul,' and my psychic powers were pretty strong," Rick, an MSU senior said.

Rick didn't enter the coven, though, because he was skeptical of some of the powers witches are supposed to possess.

East Lansing, Michigan

Joining an established coven constitutes formal recognition by other witches. Most covens do not solicit membership and entry into the select group can be a difficult process. Curiosity seekers are kept away from covens by holding rituals in hidden or little known places.

But some self - make witches at MSU refuse to acknowledge the importance or necessity of covens.

"Man, all that readin' and running' around naked in graveyards just to say I belong to a coven is definitely not for me," Nadine said in reference to the study preparation and rituals required by some covens.

"I can do all my spells right here in my own room and get just as good results,"

The young woman's residence hall on the sunny day of the interview was dark because the window was purposely covered with material ("I like darkness. It makes me feel happy," Nadine said). Aside from a few candles, the room was void of any known witchcraft figures or symbols.

Nadine explained she had recently removed the most noticeable signs of black witchcraft from the ceiling - red paint splattered to resemble blood

"I guess I originally did the blood painting because it made me happy, but I got tired of looking at it, so I washed the ceiling," she said.

Just as orthodox religion demands an extensive self - evaluation process and adamant faith, so does witchcraft. Both acknowledge the existence of a supreme force - God for orthodox religion and the Life Spirit for witches.

As the Judaic - Christian faiths have 10 commandments to follow, so do witches have "tenets" or principles to pattern lifestyles after. Among the most important tenents are those of trust, humility, tolerance, reincarnation and that of a "balanced life."

Meditation and concentration provide direction for witches' lives and serve as guiding forces, much as prayers do for some religions.

"It's extremely important that you decide to become a witch of your own volition," Diana, an East Lansing resident who became interested in witchcraft three years ago, said.

She explained that witches - to - be are usually helped and taught by current coven members, but emphasized that the guidance is secondary. The decision ultimately lies with the person.

One of the other busing provisions would prohibit use of federal funds for busing to desegregate a school system Roger E. Wilkinson, vice president for business and finance, is today expected to advise the Business Affairs Committee to withdraw its recommendation to abolish the present policy of deferred payment of tuition.

Wilkinson hinted at this move during the opening minutes of the committee meeting two weeks ago which was interrupted by antiwar demonstraters for such busing unless it is required by staging a takeover of the Administration Building.

At its April meeting, the committee voted to forward a recommendation to Wilkinson calling for elimination of the portion of the present policy which allows students living on campus to defer payment on up to 50 per cent of their tuition fees, which is then paid in two equal installments during the term.

Wilkinson, however, declined to make a decision and requested that the committee discuss the issue further because of concern expressed by some students. "I think the committee should give more consideration to the matter . . . I am not sure that the committee understood the full impact of the recommendation," Wilkinson said. "My request is that they review the various opinions expressed by the students involved," he added.

The committee's recommendation came as a result of objections raised by some off - campus students alleging that the present policy discriminates against them, since off - campus students must pay the entire tuition fee at the time of registration.

These students requested that the deferred payment policy be opened to all students. But University officials said this would not be feasible because of limited funds.

In other business today, the committee will also discuss a report from a subcommittee charged with studying University investment and purchasing policies.

The comprehensive bill sponsored by Rep. Roy E. Nelson, D - Lansing, would provide strict guidelines for both tenant and landlord, but would ensure that the security deposit would not exceed two months rent payable within four months of occupation.

The proposed bill requires the landlord to keep the security deposit in a separate interest bearing account. The landlord will further be

Bremer goes to court

Arthur Herman Bremer, smiling and appearing at ease, pleaded innocent Wednesday in Baltimore to federal charges arising from the attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and the wounding of three other persons at a political rally May 15.

Making his first public appearance since the night of the shooting, the 21 - year - old unemployed busboy from Milwaukee replied in a firm voice to formal arraignment questions asked by Chief Judge Edward S. Northrop in the 16-minute hearing in U.S. District Court.

U.S. soldiers killed

Two bombs exploded in parked cars outside the headquarters compound of the U.S. Army in Europe on Wednesday night in Heidelberg, Germany, killing three U.S. military personnel and wounding three other persons, the Army reported. It said the bombs went off 10 to 15 seconds apart and tore a hole in one building. Windows were shattered in other buildings.

A number of cars in he parking lot were extensively damaged, the Army report added.

7 missing after blast

An explosion at an ammunition plant near Kiln, Miss. Wednesday left seven persons missing and set fires in forests nearby, authorities said.

The authorities said 150 persons were in the multibuilding complex when the blast occurred.

Sources at the scene said the explosion touched off fires in woods around the buildings and one fire had come within 20 feet of a shed where more powerful explosives were stored.

The plant, belonging to Ingram Industries, is in a forest area near Kiln, about 12 mils north of Bay St. Louis.

Tax hike predicted

Either a tax increase or a cut-back in federal programs - or both - will be inevitable if the government undertakes any new high -priority initiatives, a Brookings Institution study indicates.

Defense outlays will rise rather than decline, the report predicts. It says total expenditures under present and proposed programs will run $15 billion to $20 billion beyond revenues by 1975 even if the country achieves full - employment prospertiy.

Reps receive warning

Rep. William. S. Broomfield, R-Mich., warned House colleagues in Washington Wednesday to be alert for violence similar to the firebombing last week of his district office in Royal Oak, Mich.

In a speech on the House floor, Broomfield, author of an antibusing measure now being debated in Congress, said the firebombing and other recent incidents of violence call for caution.

"As we near the autumn elections in the wake of the attempted assassination of Gov. (George) Wallace and the recent bombings in the Pentagon, perhaps my experience may be of some value to all of you," he said.

Israel may hold land

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Wednesday Israel might have to hold on to occupied Arab territory for another 10-15 years, and had to build a military machine that could rebuff Arab attacks cheaply and fast.

"In the absence of a peace settlement, we may have to remain on the present cease - fire lines until 1980 or 1985," he said.

However, he did not envisage renewed warfare in the Middle East until early 1973.

COALITION PLANS RALLY

Summer antiwar action set

By KATHERINE NEILSEN State News Staff Writer

After a lull in campus antiwar action following the Grand River Avenue demonstrations, the antiwar coalition showed what could be new signs of life Tuesday when members made plans to continue organizing through the summer.

City police to face no group actions

By KATHERINE NIELSEN State News Staff Writer

The MSU Defense Coalition for arrested Grand River Avenue demonstrators plans no group legal action against police for alleged brutality during the demonstrations, spokesmen said Tuesday.

Coalition members decided, after a meeting with Zolton Ferency, chairman of the Human Rights party, that nothing happened during the recent demonstrations that would provide the basis for a successful test case by the coalition acting as a group.

Some of those arrested are still considering countersuits as individuals, however, spokesmen said.

One demonstrator, who asked to remain anonymous, said she will discuss a countersuit with her lawyer, but she is afraid of police "harassment and trouble."

"I'm afraid the officers involved would really get down on me if I started complaining," she said. "I want to get my case dropped."

Alex MeGehee, East Lansing junior who alleged in a State News article after the demonstrations that he was assaulted by members of the East Lansing police after his arrest, said he will not consider legal action until after his trial.

MeGehee said he has decided it would be difficult if not impossible to win a countersuit "when it is just one citizen's word against that of three policemen."

The commission has been studying the problem of discrimination because of lifestyle in the city including homosexual lifestyle. MeGehee said an ordinance prohibiting discrimination in housing and certain kinds of employment is needed. MeGehee also said he felt police showed bias against him during his arrest because he is gay.

Many of those allegedly treated unjustly by police during the demonstrations have also charged that officers were not wearing badges or name plates, thus making identification, and countersuits, impossible, Deborah Miller, Troy freshman and coalition member, said. However, out of approximately 30 persons who have signed affidavits concerning demonstration incidents, many said they had seen police brutality, Miller Miller also said the coalition is considering discussions with the state police about requiring troopers to wear identification. The coalition would also like to see the use of gas in demonstrations banned by city ordinance, she said.

She suggested demonstrators now concentrate on what can be learned from the experiences on Grand River, and how negative aspects can be prevented from recurring.

He noted, however, that there is always the option of walking out if it seems the committee is unlikely to accomplish anything.

Six representatives of the demonstrators are included in the 22 - member ad hoc committee. The mayor or city council will choose three representatives from the nominees presented by the demonstrators, and President Wharton will choose three.

Objections to the ad hoc committee include its stated purpose, the channels of procedure any committee recommendation would have to follow and the committee representation.

The demonstrators would like to see representation divided equally between the groups involved and have the committee report directly to the city council or board of trustees, by passing other committees. They also call the proposed purpose too vague and say it doesn't give the committee and "mandate."

Stengel pointed out that the proposal leaves the option of writing a minority report, which they could use if they disagreed with the committee conclusions.

Less aid to MSU hinted

By RAY ANDERSON State News Staff Writer

As the state House bogged down in its passage of budgetary measures because of the lower chamber's taxation committee failure to discharge a state income tax extension, the appropriations committee chairman hinted MSU appropriations may be less than expected next year.

Though figures are as yet unavailable, Rep. William R. Copleand, D - Wyandotte, said all his committee's appropriation bills have been less than the governor's recommendations except the social services bill. He indicated the recommended $410.6 million higher education package will be no exception.

The House budgetary delay has been caused by a number of factors, the most important being a failure to make permanent a income tax increase.

N.J. little league makes grave error

Individuals should be judged on the basis of their individual qualifications for a position rather than on their sex.

Several institutions in the society, including the National Little League, are attempting to perpetuate a male - bias despite nationwide advocacy of equal rights for females.

Last week, the National Organization of Women (NOW) filed suit with the News Jersey Division of Civil Rights against the National Little League for forcing a 12 - year - old girl pitcher into early retirement. The suit was precipitated when the National Little League revoked the charter of the Hoboken, N.J. little league for allowing Maria Pepe to play on one of its teams

The little league uses public land for its activities, but has a rule against allowing girls to play on its teams. The league maintains that baseball is not safe for subteen girls because of physical factors.

Of course, the little league fails to realize that baseball is not safe for some subteen boys because of physical factors. But the best approach would be to judge the physical capabilities of each child for baseball on an individual basis of the Journal of College Student rather than with a male - bias.

Citizens must continue to challenge laws and policies which discriminate against women or any other group without allowing for individual assessment of qualifications. Charge one error to the National Little League.

CRAIG GEHRING

Political order changes

If last Tuesdays presidential primary accomplished nothing else, it signaled the beginning of a new political order in Ingham County.

Gone are the three decades of undisputed Republican domination of county politics.

The reason for the change is clear, the 18 - year - old vote. No one really doubted that Sen.

George McGovern would not gather the majority of votes among students. What was not expected was the impact it had - and will have in the future - on the county political scene.

While Gorge Wallace was sweeping the state and most of Ingham County in devastating fashion, the overwhelming support of McGovern by students was enough to make Ingham one of only four Michigan counties which went into the South Dakotan's column.

votes. Wallace gathered a whalloping 14 votes and Hubert Humphrey, 11. Countywide, McGovern defeated Wallace by some 28,000 votes to 22,000. In East Lansing alone, McGovern piled up nearly an 11,000 vote margin over Wallace. If you take out the East Lansing totals, Wallace becomes the winner in the county.

Looking at the East Lansing returns on a precinct by precinct basis, the significance of the students voting to county politics becomes evern more magnified.

In Precinct 16, which contains Mason-Abbot and Snyder - Phillips residence halls, McGovern received an almost unbelievable 645 out of the 702 Democratic votes cast, or 91 per cent. The best that the other candidates could do was Shirley Chisholm's 19

Compound this with the fact that only 17 persons in Precinct 16 voted in the Republican portion of the primary and it becomes quite clear that a GOP candidate is going to have a rough go of it in East Lansing.

In Meridian Township, the effect of student voting power was almost as great. Precinct 5, which includes East Complex living units, accounted for two-third of McGovern's townshipwide victory over Wallace of 3,510 to 1,921.

At the vangard of the changing political order, is what may be the nation's first youth - political machines. Though still in its infancy, Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago would be proud that a tradition as old as politics tself is being carried on in East Lansing. The machine began over one year ago as Project: City Hall and elected to student - oriented councilmen with tremendously effective grassroom campaign, which included a mass absentee ballot effort.

One year, many changes and seve coalitions late, the youth machine transformed its energy to McGoven presidential bid. They used the sa methods as they did before with the same degree of success. The "bosses" of the machine do no particularly care to hear - publicly, least — the phrase "political machine" attached to their movement.

But a political machines is not judge by what it says, rther, it is judged by what it does. And, by any measure, E. Lansing's unique youth politics tremendously successful.

One criteria of a machine effectiveness is how well it gets out the vote for tis candidate. The East Lansin machine passes this test with flyin colors.

Concentrating on areas of McGoven support near campus, the youth machine conducted a grassroof campaign which resulted in the higher voter turnout in the entire state. An unbelievable 69 per cent of the registered voters turned out to vote, and in areas of McGovern support it we much higher, ranging to a high of 79 per cent in Precinct 13, Holden and Wilson halls. In contrast, the areas in which McGovern support was not as strong were the areas of the low voter turnout. Precinct 25, which includes the Whitehills area provides an excellent example.

In the world of "political boss" George Colburn, East Lansing has become "politicized." And for that reason, politics will never be the same in Ingham County.

to speak out against the belief, so popular nowadays with the young, of change for change's sake. Two, whenever there's a conflict between an individual and the 'U', you have to be on the side of the 'U'.

Three, you have to believe faculty's here to teach, students are here to learn. Four, you have to be the type who, from time to time, goes up to the attic to try on your high button shoes - you know, the kind "Dr." Hannah used to wear - to see if they still fit.

For weeks, CPACs been working hard doing the initial screening. You can imagine, initial list of candidates ran into the hundreds. It's down now to eight finalists, but viable entries will still be considered if they're submitted with strong supporting evidence, and postmarked no later than midnight, Wilbur Brookover, for tacking the "no solicitation on company time" amendment onto the city council policy prohibiting discrimination against gays; and for stealing a plank out of Mickey's platform, telling we antiwar protesters on Grand River we should be devoting our energies to promoting love and peace in East Lansing.

John Cantlon, for sturdily opposing the reckless idea of using State as a proving ground for new - fangled experiments like due process; and for his oft - repeated dictum: "Extremism in defense of academic excellence is no vice, and moderation in pursuit of quality is no virtue."

Trustee Huff, for turning for leadership to the two Republica holdovers from the Hannah regim every time the going gets rough on the board of trustees.

Herbert Rudman, for refusing to b stampeded by the popular demand for open salaries, explaining to his colleagues on the Academic Council "What the mob wants isn't always best for the 'U'; and for telling the councilat its last meeting, "I wasn't present when White and Repas were censured, but if it came up today I'd vote for it."

Ralph Smuckler, for taking the rich experience and wisdom we've learned from our Vietnam Project and applying it to Iran.

Harold Spaeth, for fearlessly announcing the results when his computer printout proved that Justices Rehnquist and Powell are going to be more conservative than the Warrer court.

Trustee White, for taking a no nonsense stand on an administration supported experiment in dorm living explaining his stand with the classic statement: "I just don't think state owned residence halls should be used as hot - sheet motels."

One major problem MSU - 2 faces is the question of representation on either ASMSU or COGS because MSU - 2 represents both undergraduate and graduate married students, primarily living in married housing.

ASMSU has voiced the belief that MSU - 2 should be represented in their organization because of its residential lines. COGS. however, has insisted that they remain separate from ASMSU because of the academic divisions.

Hekhuis pointed out the possibility that MSU - 2 could be represented on both organizations.

"Because MSU - 2 represents such a wide spectrum it is entirely feasible that they will be represented in both organizations," Hekhuis said. "No other groups have dual representation because they have specific jurisdiction that doesn't cross lines."

Under the provisions of the bill, sponsored by Rep. William M. Brodhead, D - Detroit, safety glazing materials would have to be used after Janaury 1, 1972 in all new construction, in "substantial" remodeling, as replacements in commerical and apartment buildings, and in all new storm doors, tub enclosures, shower doors and patio doors.

Brodhead, however, said he was disappointed that the House voted to exempt the replacement of glass in existing family homes and to exempt penalties for the sale of replacement glass in violation of the act.

Last weekend, with Butchee on the sidelines, the foursome of Casslemen, Mike Holt, Washington and Dill posted a 40.7 clocking at the Eastern Michigan Open a time that puts the Spartans up with the U-M and Purdue as favorites for the title.

competition and Nance rates as a darkhorse in a field of 12, all separated by less than two seconds.

Washington, Butchee, Murphy, Holt, Morrison and Cassleman all scored points in last year's Big Ten meet and together were responsible for 44 of MSU's 75 points.

Like all coaches, the Spartan staff has done some pre - meet prognosticating and one member came up with a prediction of 110

That seems like quite a jump, but the trackmen didn't have Dill or Nance last year, not to mention freshman John Ross, and junior college transfers Del

Gregory and the Cool twins. At any rate, the Spartans will be depending on their speed to get them started and just by comparing times, an inconclusive measure, MSU stands to pick up at least 58 points in the eight events from the 100 to the 660, including the two relays.

That would give them more than half of the predicted total without taking into consideration the possibilities extra effort produces.

The Spartans went into the indoor final a slight underdog to defending champ Wisconsin and buried Nance, both beset by minor everyone while Wisconsin

Burton in both events - if anyone should recall the Spartan Relays in March it was Burton whom Dill drove into the indoor Tartan turf in his world record

Council garners acclaim, criticism

By CAROL THOMAS State News Staff Writer

As a political body, the East Lansing City Council has its actions always open for close scrutiny by the public, but the present council has taken on more than its traditional quota of public criticism in the past several months.

Actions by the council have drawn barbed comment from many sectors of the city. Few incidents however, received as much popular attention as the council's recent adoption of an antiwar stance.

Coming along second as a controversial issue in an informal East Lansing telephone survey was the council's favorable reaction toward legalized marijuana. Last, but uppermost in the minds of most of the Camp two, which included a number of faculty members, students and young working people in the East Lansing area, said they thought that the ideas and actions of the council as a whole were a step toward better town and gown cooperation in city government.

State Rep. Jim Brown, R - Okemos, whose constituency includes East Lansing residents, said he thinks it is really too early to judge what effect the council's activities have had, even though he did disagree with some of the things it did during the demonstrations.

"Those who spoke out against State Police probably did not understand that control was out of their hands at the beginning. The power of the state supercedes local control in any incident of this sort," Brown said.

By CRAIG GEHRING State News Staff Writer

Elected to East Lansing City Council to the joy of many voters and the chagrin of others, George A. Colburn said he is "still enthusiastic and hopeful over the city's future."

It is six months since Colburn and fellow liberal George Griffiths were swept into office on a tide of student votes. Colburn reflected on those six months and on East Lansing's future in a recent interview.

Colburn said the election marked "the beginning of a long change in the philosophy of government in East

That change is reflected in the new city budget which includes, among other things, $18,000 for the Drug Education Center (DEC) and $12,000 in the contingency fund earmarked for social services.

"I really did not think that at budget time 1972, council would contribute that kind of money to the DEC. There is clearly a movement on the part of the city to offer more social services to the community."

The target of several "hate letters" each week, Colburn believes that the hostility among the older residents is due to the fact "those who are satisfied with the status quo are frightened with the inevitable change."

"When I ran for council, I wante make people aware there was a council," he said. "We have done East Lansing has become politic There is never going to be a lace interest in city council."

And Wilcox is not pleased with

Wilcox said he was unhappy when he saw the results of last November's election. "I would have said we were in for an extremely difficult period of readjustment," he remarked.

However, Wilcox said he was encouraged at the amount of cooperation there had been on council. "It is greater than I would have though," he said.

"I feel a little more comfortable with this new liberal thinking, but I am not satisfied with the direction we seem to be moving."

The first term councilman is not happy with what he sees as the politicization of the council, "The last thing council should be considering are national issues," Wilcox indicated. "Some of our decisions are more worldly than I find it proper."

Wilcox believes that the politicization of city council has polarized the "town versus gown"

"This has been caused by the imposition of a new knd of life style an the long term residents are used to," he said.

Brookover works to keep peace

By KAREN ZURAWSKI State News Staff Writer

The pivotal vote in many cases on the East Lansing City Council, Mayor Wilbur Brookover does not want to aggravate the differences in the community or to antagonize different In an effort to play peacemaker, Brookover often remains noncommittal or says he is waiting for a committee report.

Including housing, mass transit and cable television as top priorities for East Lansing, Brookover, in a recent interview, was uncertain on what could be done in theses areas.

"A crucial problem is rental housing," he said. "The issue is how to get an ordinance passed to deal with it.'

Sitting in the wings off stage is a housing report done last year which since his election. would form a housing commission. The student vote, above all other factors, has had a dramatic effect on policies and city government in East

Lansing, according to Patriarche. "Anytime that you drop a large number of people in the middle of a small community you have problems,"

Of the many problems this student vote entails, Patriarche said that the most serious problem was a large bloc of student voters who do not live in the community all year but must try to orient themselves to local tax and school issues.

"This creates a lot of hard feelings among the town residents, many of whom feel that while the students should be allowed to vote on some issues, they have no business whatsoever meddling with taxes and school boards and anything that doesn't directly concern them," he said.

Taking off from the original dislike of demonstrations widened the original gap to new proportions. You take a confrontation like that and it will wreck two or three years of hard work of trying to bring the students and the townspeople together," he said.

"This is their town and nobody wanted to see their property torn apart."

Patriarche pointed out that students are active in volunteer work, and that they aid the community people in many

"But many, many people can't see any further than the broken Jacobson's windows," he said.

After discussing myriad traffic, transportation, building, budget and welfare problems - all urgent and all pressing, Patriarche gazed out the office window to the heavy traffic.

Indulging in a crystal - ball gazing, he commented:

"Most of all I'd like a new Grand River Avenue."

Wilcox gave as examples, "the onslaught of the new can make a resolution on liberal thinking, amplified anything we think is music, new habits of dress and mass demonstrations.

"These are just very difficult to digest on the part of the longer term residents, who live, work and have their being in this community."

Wilcox said that a need exists to review and revise ordinances as "they affect people's living habits." He also emphasized that the city will have to deal with the problems of physical upkeep of houses caused by what he termed a change to communal living patterns.

In response to the changing mix of the community, Wilcox said that the council will have to react to the increased demand for community services.

Wilcox further mentioned that the city will have to accommodate its present transportation system to bicycles, motorcycles, small cars and

Veteran's plan to help returning Gls readjust

Four students who have been in military service will be hired for 20 hours a week as veterans assistants to bolster the on - going MSU Veterans Affairs Program.

Several students from Vietnam are seeking help from MSU service groups and organizations to launch a book drive aimed at replenishing the libraries of several universities in South Vietnam.

Tran Quoc Hue, Cantho, S. Vietnam graduate student, said the group is trying to collect books, journals and research material of an educational nature.

A similar drive was started winter term, netting about 1,500 books and journals that were sent to the University of Cantho, a fiveyear - old medium sized school in the Mekong Delta.

Nonnamaker said the assistants would conduct out - reach programs to contact veterans returning to the area. The assistants would counsel the veterans on educationl benefits available to them and discuss enrollment requirements at MSU and other schools.

The assistants will also work with enrolled veterans on benefit rights or readjustment problems. coordination efforts will be made with the Lansing Area Veterans Task Force on general problems affecting veterans.

"More than 40.000 discharged veterans are returning to Michigan each year," Nonnamaker said."MSU presently has more than 2,500 enrolled, and we expect this numer to increase rapidly.

The federally funded program, hich will be under the direction of Don Svoren, MSU veterans coordinator, is expected to last at least through March 1973. Svoren said an important part of the project will be to "provide peer input into the

"I hope to have the assistants into the field in the next two weeks," Svoren said, "but I will have to refer my nominees to the Dept. of Veterans Affairs in Ingham County for final approval."

The assistants will be given training in liaison work with various veterans' agencies and will receive administrative experience in veterans' programs, Svoren said. He said the assistants will also help make returning veterans more aware of their educational benefits under the GI bill. Under the Emergency

Employment Act, funds are made available to provide jobs at the state and local level. Those to be hired under the new program, in addition to being veterans and enrolled at the University, must have been unemployed at least one week and live in East Lansing.

Albums enrich funky sound

By PATRICK SHUBRAE Reviewer

Two albums have come out recently which both aspire to funkiness as some albums aspire to soul. One of them, King Biscuit Boy's "Gooduns," succeeds, but the other one, "Good Times A' Comin," by Hookfoot, doesn't really make it. Richard Newell, the King harmonica player, and from such musicians as Rick Bell (from the Full Tolt Boogie band) on piano, and Larry Atamanuik (from Seatrain) on drums, he gets some great musical accompaniment. He uses songs by some like theirs. His style is very heavy blues - boogie - rock, and all of it sounds straight out of New Orleans and Mississippi. If you want an album that's "so down home it gets you right to the bone" you couldn't find a better one than "Gooduns."

The lyrics to the song Sweet Sweet Funky Music" by Hookfoot arouse expectations that the song will be full of that nitty gritty funkiness. But, unlike 'Gooduns," which immediately reeks of a bluesy piano and harmonica, this one is sweet, but not very funky. It has a light, exhilarated style, with acoustic guitar and vocal harmonies. The most striking part of the sound is the lead guitar, played by one Caleb Quayle, who has a quickly - changing, smouldering style that is very fine.

The delicate, crystal like quality of the group is best served by one song called "Living in the City." It starts off with echoing chimes of acoustic guitar, and ends with a focal harmony without instrumental accompaniment.

The last song on each side contains long instrumental parts where the music speeds along so wildly that it threatens to pitch into chaos at any second. In places like that Hookfoot proves itself a fine group, but most of their songs are rather simple and monotonous.

"Gooduns" doesn't he that drawback, (excellent blues song is "Y Done Tore Your Playhou Down Again," with by such as: "Well, I asked y to take out the garbage of and you took out garbage man/You were l seen heading down High 27, with a bottle of gin your right hand."

'Support' for bare-look rises with temperature

State News Staff Writer

As any evil - eyed fleagle may have noticed this spring, the no - bra look has evolved into the "bare look," a combination braless - see - through - peek - a - boo that is zooming in popularity among female students.

Leading this fashion wave is the "halter top" a triangular diaper with strings that tie around the neck and waist, leaving the back exposed.

"We're selling them all out," said one sales girl, reflecting the general trend in local clothing stores and boutiques. Actually, halters are not new. Its name inspired from the hangman's noose of lynching days, the style had been popularized in the 1920s by such tease artists as Greta Garbo. Its resurgence began last year on the French Riviera. After getting strong support from the haute couture, it trickled into campuses across the country. "I like what I see," said Steve Michalski, St. Clair Shores freshman, as he strolled along East Grand River Avenue one day recently.

Simple style

Halter tops come in a variety of colors, shapes and sizes at prices ranging from $4 to $11. Most are made of interlocked cottons or antron nylons. Some have straps that cross in the back, others wrap around the front, and a few have buttons. Because of their inherent simplicity, they can be easily made with scarfs or bandanas.

Jazz musicians to play at concert

The Oakland University Student Concert Lecture Series is presenting the Herbie Hancock Sextet, Leon Thomas, Rahsaan Roland Kirk and the Vibration Society and Shoo-bee-doo in concert 7 p.m. Friday at Oakland University's Baldwin Pavilion.

Herbie Hancock has spent years on the jazz circuit, notably with Miles Davis. He has a solo album on the Warner Brothers label.

Leon Thomas was selected as the top jazz vocalist of the year by Jazz and Pop magazine. His latest Atlantic album was recorded in Berlin.

Rahsaan Roland Kirk's combination of mood and music can best be studied on his Atlantic album "Inventions: Black Root."

Shoo-bee-doo is a bassist attending Oakland University He has provided much jazz in that area. Tickets are available at Marshall Music.

"Very few of our halters can be worn with a bra," noted Mattie Foxall, department manager of Jacobson's Miss J An employe of the Tog Shop, however, said that a popular variant is the midriff top, which can be worn with bras. "They can wear them with bras if they so desire, but they don't desire," she said. Most exponents of the bare look say that halters are cool. comfortable and convenient. Out of two dozen wearers interviewed in a recent survey, none cited "attractiveness" as a reason for wearing one. A Birmingham senior in Justin Morrill College, who asked not to be identified, explained that the preference for bralessness is part of the feminist philosophy that a woman should not modify her natural shape to suit the taste of men.

New philosophy

She noted. however, that this philosophy often creates unintended results.

"A friend of mine put on a white, transparent tank top and went to a bar," she recalled. "All the men she talked to just gaped at her chest, mumbling unintelligently. She got really versus no - bra issue is a queston of freedom of choice. "Some women can go without bras but some can't," she said. "Feminists believe that a woman should have the choice, with no social stigma attached to it one way or the other.' Mattson added that though she agrees with women's liberation, she was not speaking for the group. While the braless - bare fashions are backed by such stylistic powers as Women's Wear Daily and Mademoiselle, many Maidenform diehards remain unmoved.

Louise Mattson, Edmore, sophomore, explained the bra

Supportive issue A Holland sophomore, who asked not to be identified, said bras serve a useful, supportive function.

"I wear it for the same reason men wear jockstraps," she said. "They stay in place better."

Another female student said halters may be dangerous. "I've heard that you can get pendulum breasts," she said. Some feminists resent the current concern over halter tops, which they view as one more example of the chauvinistic fascination with breasts that produced, among other evils, topless bars, silicone injections and the shape of capitol

When questioned about her opinion on halter tops, one feminists replied angrily, "Why don't you go out and write a story on male underwear?" Whether the halter trend will last remains a question. The buyer for one local boutique predicted a short longevity becaue "the cat pack" of "jet - setters and rich socialites who spend all their time buying new clothes" will soon start a new bandwagon rolling. "The fahsion world is a fast - track," she noted. "Next week, they might very well begin to hate halters."

Initiation of witches stresses rituals

(Continued from page 1) Initiation into a coven is very ritualistic and solemn, one sorceress said, who compared initiation to an ironic mass or other religious service. All the witches and the prospective member are usually clothed in long black loose garments. The high a high priestess is present, she is clothed in white.

The security deposit under the act could be used for these purposes only: to reimburse the landlord for actual damages to the rented unit that are the result of negligence or willful misconduct not reasonably expected in normal wear and tear; pay the landlord all rent that was not paid under the lease agreement, including rent for early departure; and to pay the landlord for costs of re-renting the vacated apartment.

To ensure landlord and tenant compliance with the proposed bill an inventory check of damage would be made at both the beginning and end of the rental period. The inventory list would include all reasonable property involved and be signed by both the tenant and landlord. The tenant would be permitted to see the list signed by the previous tenant to check for irregularities.

If the apartment is damaged at the time of a tenant's departure the landlord has 10 days in which to notify the tenant of estimated cost of repair and the amount he will take from the security deposit. Should the landlord fail to notify the tenant of the amount of damage within 10 days the proposed law would prevent the landlord from taking any of the security deposit.

But if the tenant fails to respond within seven days of Council, and serves as an ex obtaining the landlord's damage assessment the landlord is only required to return the remainder of the deposit and accrued interest within 30 days of the renters departure.

The proposed law also provides for the case of both parties to agree on damages. The landlord would be required to file suit in court to obtain the right to use the security deposit for claimed damage.
