State senators to request move denying Hanoi aid

The Republican president pro tempore of the Michigan Senate and a Democratic state senator will introduce a resolution today asking the U.S. Congress to reject President Nixon's request for an estimated $2.5 billion in aid to North Vietnam.

The two senators say they expect unanimous or near - unanimous support for the resolution in the Senate.

Some sources expected that $7.5 billion would be distributed in Indochina, with $2.5 billion going to North Vietnam, the Associated Press reported last week.

Rep. Charles Chamberlain, R-6th District, Wharton said: "Critical problems are arising

On Monday state Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, and four others, including ASMSU president Ron Wahula, and Frank Beeman, director of MSU intramural sports director, publicly denounced the measures and threatened that legal action may be taken against them.

The rulings issued by HEW call for more stringent monitoring of all federal aid and counts a student's job against his financial aid if he has a loan. The rulings also demand that he be terminated from his work - study job once he has earned his allotment.

Already these rulings have had a significant impact on MSU students receiving financial aid, causing some to repay their student loans and others to lose their jobs.

inequities remain. Both the faculty associates and the American Assn. of University Professors, which urged the unionization of the faculty in the October election, are continuing their efforts. Representatives of both groups said in a State News article Monday that conditions for the faculty have not improved since the election.

The Committee for Concerned Faculty was the third organization active in the faculty election and urged a "no union" vote.

"We originally organized because of the election and had no intention of continuing after the election was over," Henderson said.

At the meeting, the council decided to meet with the administration to discuss faculty attitudes. They met with President Wharton and Provost John E. Cantlon three weeks ago.

Topics discussed included the growth of the administration and committee structures, faculty salaries and faculty attitudes toward the administration. Henderson views the growth of administration red tape as detrimental to the University community and wishes such committees as the Educational Policies Committee had about 15 members instead of the 40 members it has now.

Women's unit faces change

By MAUREEN McDONALD State News Staff Writer

The 6th District Women's Political Caucus will have to restructure its organization to meet the newly - formed national guidelines, the regional delegate said Tuesday.

Vicki Neiberg, a member of the Alliance to End Sex Discrimination, who was to the National Women's Political Caucus at the first Houston, Texas, last week cited the coming changes.

"Every women's caucus in the country will have to adopt the feminist goals drawn up at the national convention in order to stay in the organization," Neiberg said.

Caucus goals include working for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, lobbying state and local governmental bodies for action on women's issues and achieving better pay for Local caucuses will have to take strong steps to insure participation of women from all levels of society according to the national guidelines.

To meet national specifications, a local caucus must be divided into identifiable units such as city government boundries, state affirmative action goals to meet the national feminist goals, include all members for voting and ac tively seek membership from all levels of society.

The 6th District caucus is too large to be effective in the national organization, Neiberg said. The present caucus includes all of Ingham County and parts of Jackson and Washtenaw counties.

Neiberg said she sees several reasons for restructuring the local unit. "The National caucus has

Fund cuts decried by D.C. marchers

WASHINGTON (AP) - Thousands rallied at the Capitol Tuesday after a day of protests against cuts in antipoverty funds and the closing of the Office of Economic

Rep. Bella Abzug, D - N.Y., told the crowd at the rally on the Capitol grounds to mobilize "against the horror budget" submitted to Congress by President Nixon.

Among the protesters was a group of mayors seeking to prevent a big reduction in federal grants to the cities. Mayor Moon Landrieu of New Orleans, representing the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said reductions should be made in federal spending. "But the battle shouldn't be fought on the sweat, on the backs of the poor who live in the cities," he said.

While the protesters gathered, two administration officials appeared before the Senate Appropriations Committee to defend budget cuts. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Roy L. Ash, head of the Office of Management and Budget, said Congress voted so much money last year that Nixon was left with no alternative but to make cuts.

The crowd at the rally on the Capitol grounds was peaceful and attentive.

Capt. L.H. Ballard of the Capitol police estimated it at eight to ten thousand long before the steps and walks became jammed with people.

Mayor Kenneth Givson of Newark told them "We are not here as beggars. "Don't tell me your country can't deal with the people in Newark when it can deal with the people in North Vietnam," he said.

The program will not pressure the intern to become an administrator, nor will there be a guaranteed position at MSU.

The first internship will be in the College of Human Ecology because that department has a number of women with top level credentials, Arata said. Eighty - four per cent of its faculty in the tenure system are women.

Two other internships, to be funded by grants outside the University, have been approved. One will be in the Provost's Office, and the other will be selected by an intern and a dean.

Candidates for the internship positions must be associate or full professors, and not younger than 25 or older than 48. A selection committee comprised of a Provost Office representative, Dean Lund and two other deans appointed by the provost, will choose an intern before June 1.

The program has been recommended for five years.

Waste authority asks 'U' for truck

A motion that the University buy a truck for the campus newspaper recycling program was accepted for discussion at a meeting between the Waste Control Authority and University adminstrators Tuesday.

I seem to have a lack of nipples unless my breasts are carressed for a long period of time and even then, they still do not remain for long. Other girls have no problems along this line. Is something wrong with me?

Nothing is wrong. The degree of protrusion of nipples varies considerably among women. Many women have nipples such as yours, still others have nipples which tend to be slightly inverted. Nipples have a small

The area around the nipples is quite sensitive to touch and occasionally may be painful to touch, just as you describe.

When I obtain an erection, my penis is 51/2 inches in length, which is just fine with me. However, when my penis hangs limp it can vary from one inch to four inches in length. Is this normal, or would you advise seeing a doctor? I purposely stay out of any situation which might involve a shower with other men because I am embarrassed.

You describe a perfectly normal situation. The size of the unerect penis is not related to the size of the erect penis. As I have stated before, the small ones get much bigger while the big ones increase only slightly. Any man who has been watching his penis will observe that it can vary tremendously in size depending upon body temperature and degree of activity, among other things. Throw away your tape measure and live a

I know that electrolysis is the best way to remove unwanted hair from a woman's upper lip. A few girls I have talked to feel that shaving off such hair will cause it to grow back darker, coarser and thicker. I find it very hard to think that shaving will cause more hairs to grow out of one's face, i.e. new ones in addition to those cut off before.

Shaving does not change the quantity of hair. However, the blunt ends that result give a false appearance of thickness and they do feel bristly. Small amounts of hair on the upper lip can be managed by shaving, cutting closely or by using a bleaching cream to lighten them and make them less conspicuous. Such a cream can be made of 6 per cent hydrogen peroxide and soap flakes or a solution of 1 once of peroxide and 20 drops of ammonia.

I have been using a commercial hair remover. The label states that it contains calcium thioglycolate. What is that? My face is red and inflamed for about 24 hours after use. If it destroys hair, what is it doing to my skin?

Hair removers contain various chemicals which break down keratin, the stuff the hair if make of. Those designed for use on legs are far harsher than the ones that are designed for use on your face. Make sure you are using the right one. In any case, if it is causing the reaction you described, it is too harsh for your skin and should not be used.

How long should a donor wait to donate blood after experiencing asthma or hayfever, in order to insure that nothing in his blood would cause harm or discomfort to the eventual recipient?

Blood is accepted from people with asthma or allergies. But, such people should not give blood on a day when they have had an asthmatic attack or if their allergies cause difficulties. If they have received a densensitization shot, they should wait one week before donating. The use of antihistamines and most other medications that prevent an attack of asthma, do not prevent a person from being accepted as a blood donor. The guiding principle behind accepting blood donors is that they should not have anything in their blood which could cause a reaction or infection in a recipient. It is believed that there may be substances in the blood of people with certain types of active allergic reactions that could produce similar reactions in recipients.

Federal budget hits home government decentralization seems to motivate the budget curtailments proposed by President Nixon in his $268.7 billion budget for 1973 - 74.

For most citizens, the immensity of the total federal budget is not as important as the portion of the budget federal budget, however, will not deal A fundamental philosophy of with the huge size of the budget in this nation where one out of every seven employees works for the government.

The debate in Congress over the

which hits home: the library program to be slashed; the summer youth employment to be ended; the student financial aid to be reshuffled.

Nevertheless, the call by President Nixon to reduce the impact of federal government on the citizenry offers an ironic paradox. The big corporation known as the U.S. government wants to reduce its power over states and communities, but the states and communities respond by demanding federal funding.

Nixon, in his 1,100 page federal budget delivered Jan. 29, calls for radical changes in the federal budget.

"Rarely is a budget message perceived as a dramatic document. In a real sense, however, the 1974 budget is the clear evidence of the kind of change in direction demanded by the great majority of the American people," Nixon said.

"No longer will power flow areas of federal funding now provided inexorably to Washington. Instead, the power to help meet local needs will be returned to where it belongs - to state and local officials, men and women accountable to an alert citizenry and responsive to local conditions and

Though the federal government will continue to collect its taxes, Nixon proposes extensions of the general revenue sharing authorized by Congress. The general revenue sharing, designed to dispense $30 billion over a five - year period, has given states and local communities varying amounts of revenue for projects decided on by the states and communities.

Nixon wants four areas of special revenue sharing: $2.3 billion for urban community development; $2.5 billion for education; $1.3 billion for manpower training and $.8 billion for law enforcement.

However, that special revenue sharing would replace 70 different

- ranging from free legal aid for the poor by the Office of Economic Opportunity to administrative funding of state departments of education. The ire in Congress over Nixon's budget proposal is not at all philosophical, but rather simply selfish - each representative and senator, every bureaucrat and lobbyist wants his pet program - be it farm subsidies or model cities.

The Nixon reasoning is sound, however, in his endeavor to cut federal expenditures and return power to the people. In a democracy, the attitude of the people becomes unhealthy when the federal government is viewed as an endless source of funding for local and state projects.

One must reluctantly accept the Nixon domestic economic approach lest the states and communities be mere extensions of the federal government. Ironic as it seems, it is power hungry Richard Nixon who seeks to relieve the spector of federal control over every aspect of our lives.

Integration

. AND I'LL KEEL-HAUL THE NEXT MAN I HEAR SINGING, "WHAT WILL WE DO WITH A PREGNANT SAILOR?"!"

To the Editor:

In his point of view which appeared in the State News Thursday, Billy R. Malone implies that integration into white society has become the cry of naive "pseudo - liberals." Obviously, he is exhibiting the same perceptual distortion which he accuses whites of possessing. I would like to ask Malone a question. How can a black man logically interpret a white man's perspective of the black man's plight?

I agree that blacks and whites have different perceptual models, but this fact alone should not preclude honest attempts to legislate basic human rights programs which Malone alludes to as "wasted efforts" on the part of white society. Integration involves assimilation of both white and black values from both whites and blacks. In 1968, the President's Crime Commission observed that our country was becoming increasingly polarized into two societies, black and white, and that efforts to curtail this movement must be initiated. Since that time, many whites have modified their position in terms of black - white relations. Malone seems to disagree with the adoption of this new philosophy and seems to condone that which pervaded the inane, illogical, and myopic mentality of both blacks and whites in Detroit in 1967 and Watts in 1965.

Stringent attempts to contain white libertarianism will negate the human progress, however small, of the black man. Perhaps Malone should open his eyes and acknowledge that some whites do empathize with the black struggle for integration in spite of their racial barrier, instead of weakly using Cicely Tyson as a black illustration of white prejudice. 355 - 5681

POWs

The State News has done it again. Ostensibly in the name of "the public's right to know" it has published an article in such obvious poor taste that one begins to wonder how the State News could avoid thinking of itself in any context other than The Sensational State Scandal

I refer to the front - page article:
"Wife says love for POW has gone cold." Is the quality of the paper so poor that this is the only way it can drum up readers?

After five years away from one's husband - especially the formative years between the ages of 16 and 21 it is not hard to imagine how a woman left alone to raise a child could say "I can't say that I love him." It hardly seems necessary for the media to print front page accounts of a delicate situation that should remain between a man and his wife.

The POWs have certainly been through enough without subjecting their personal affairs to public scrutinization. Imagine coming home to find that thousands of people know everything concerning your alleged press releases while in prison camp, not to mention choice details of your domestic situation.

The POWs are, at long last, being released. With so much for us all to be thankful for, I hardly see the need to turn it into a cheap stunt for a news

Women

To the Editor:

After reading Nancy Stuart's article in the last Thurday's edition of Counterpoint, I was bitterly disappointed at her lack of real understanding of the plight of modern women in today's society. Stuart strongly states that wants to be treated equally with met and to break away from the typical social conditioning that we women al go through. However, si simultaneously assumes that dating game plays on" just like hercut flirting and false image to the opposite sex. If a permanent change is to conabout in women's status, hypocritical attitude must abolished. Women must stop bein attractive playthings for men exploit.

Stop plucking eyebrows, Stuar and realize that you have opportunity to perpetuate women growing status in the world. Thro away that short skirt and wake up the fact that we are just as equal men. Simply signing your name, "M Stuart," won't do the trick!

(inwardly or outwardly, black, white ourselves in others and others in or whomever) then we refuse understanding and negate all possibility of unity among people, culturally or interculturally, by our own volition.

To give a personal example: if someone told me that I could not interpret the actions of a white student because I am a black teacher, I would take serious issue with the speaker's statement. Furthermore, if I suspected any truth in such a fessionals -- physicians, statement, I would question seriously my own existence. A similar statement might be made in relation to a colleague or a friend who happens to

> The stand taken here is not to imply that I condone the application of labels to, or the judgment of any group. That is not an interpretation of actions; it is simply a case of ethnocentricism, the tendency to project a superiority of one set of values as opposed to another. I suspect, though, that the first writer would condone the latter given the "proper" conditions.

I propose that no one, including a writer, has at his command such a body of expansive and final facts that he can project an impasse as this writer has done in saying one cannot ourselves. By so doing we will allow for a practical illustration of human understanding. Certainly if we can understand and interpret the volcanic erruptions on the moon, we must have some potential for understanding the person on the next street or in the next office.

I detest polarity, segregation, distrust, disunity, and the lack of love among people. We are all members of mankind, and if we could but admit that there is similarity among us, a commonness of interest and a depth of interest, then we would also allow for genuine understanding, and ultimately we would allow for that overused, though rarely applied word -- love -love for self and love for all mankind.

precise character of the peace settlement is a result type of war America was waging there. Common to cal critiques of the Vietnam War was the charge that S. was engaged in an imperialist war carried out was an imperialist war because the aim of U.S. ntion was to deny the people of Vietnam the right to determination, the right to determine their own form emment, free from foreign intervention or control. as not an aberration, but a common characteristic of America's foreign policy since World War II when the sumed the role of policeman for world capitalism. ct that there were regimes in Saigon which "asked" S. help does not alter this fact, since they were all regimes bought and paid for by the U.S.

only just settlement of the Vietnam War, therefore, be one which allowed the Vietnamese people to their own future without foreign interference. This entail a complete end to U.S. intervention. Thus the dof the antiwar movement was not for negotiations, he U.S. had nothing to negotiate for, but for complete and unconditional withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Indochina and an end to all military aid to the Saigon

The peace settlement is therefore an imperialist one. It is, of course, a compromise, but a compromise forced upon the Vietnamese people by U.S. imperialism. To the extent that the agreement allows continued U.S. interference in Vietnam is also an imperialist victory.

Much publicity has been given to the fact that the bombing is over and all U.S. troops are being withdrawn from Vietnam. But that does not end U.S. intervention. It is estimated that at least 11,000 "civilian advisers" will continue to work in Vietnam, which the Saigon army could not function without. The agreement also recognizes the legitimacy of the Thieu regime in those areas of the country it controls, and this regime is merely an extension of American military policy in the area. The U.S. maintains the right to continue to finance and supply arms to Thieu's armies (which includes now the third largest air force in the world). If that is not sufficient, the U.S. now has thousands of troops in Thailand and in the waters around Vietnam which are a club to force NLF - PRG compliance with the

The job of the antiwar movement is not over, nor will it be finished until U.S. imperialist involvement in Indochina is completely ended. As we have demanded no imperialist war, so also must we now demand no imperialist peace.

We'll meet with college seniors and graduate students on some 67 campuses this spring.

We're listening. To what new engineers and computer science graduates have to say. About their goals. About their professional responsibility to Spaceship Earth.

We're also talking. About the opportunities at Boeing this year. And the years that follow.

Frankly, we want the brightest graduates in the country to be inspired by our work and the Boeing environment. To feel a compatibility. And to rank Boeing as No. 1 job choice.

Before we get together, you should know a little about us. Naturally, much of our business is related to the airline industry.

Jetliner orders have come faster than we ever predicted. Orders from the 727-200 have passed the 1000 mark. We've sold ten 707s to China. The 747 continues to be queen of the sky. And we're looking into a brand new jetliner now labeled the 7X7

Boeing is involved in a number of defense programs, space projects, development of a short takeoff and landing (STOL) aircraft, and missile and helicopter

Boeing Computer Services, Inc., is concerned with general business and financial systems, medical systems, automated manufacturing techniques, inventory management, scientific and engineering problem solving techniques and computer operating systems.

We have also started programs on: 1) people movers to help unclog traffic problems in cities; 2) hydrofoils to move people and freight over water faster; 3) reduction of aircraft noise; and 4) pollution control processes that have application in desalination and as treatment of industrial waste. We are also at work on programs that can lead to better understanding of this planet's natural resources

If this sounds like the kind of equal opportunity employer you're looking for, let's get together at the Placement Office.

Our interviewer will be on campus next week interviewing EE, ME and CS graduates.

BACKS PRIEST'S MARRIAGE

CMU parish holds vigil

MOUNT PLEASANT (UPI) - Student and faculty arishioners of a chapel on the Central Michigan University ampus are fighting to retain the services of a priest who as announced his intention to marry.

The most Rev. Francis Reh, bishop of the Roman atholic Diocese of Saginaw, ordered St. Mary's Chapel but following Sunday masses because its copastor, Father oger Dunigan, has announced his plans to get married. But members of the St. Mary's parish council voted 186 n to defy that order. They began an around - the - clock rayer vigil Sunday night which enters its third day parish is legally closed," John Petras, a sociology professor and president of the parish council, said.

"Let him [Bishop Reh] close the parish, not the people," Petras said.

At least 30 students and faculty members have kept a vigil in the chapel since the council's vote. As some members leave to eat or sleep, others return to the church to take their place.

Among them was Kitty McCarthy, a Detroit freshman. "I like the idea of the church staying open and Roger Dunigan staying with it," McCarthy said. "Why can't the church allow priests to marry? Other faiths allow it, and we're no different than anyone else."

The chapel crisis has become a frequent topic of discussion in classes across the campus. The university has 13,500 students, 4,500 of whom are registered Catholic.

The diocese was expected to close the church through legal action today if the parishioners continued their vigil, one spokesman said. The parishioners have indicated they would leave the church if such action was taken.

"There will be no interference with the law," Petras said. Father Dunigan was suspended by Bishop Reh after the priest announced his intentions at an informal gathering of parishioners to marry a CMU graduate.

The suspension prohibits Father Dunigan from performing his priestly or pastoral duties.

Energy, 'raunchiness' key to Cody's success

The commander has gone big time now. The only times he ever hits his home state are on tour and about the only places he can play are concert halls. That's what a single like "Hot Rod Lincoln" can do for a group.

Commander Cody's music belongs in a bar. One can hardly be expected to sit still in section A, row 13, seat five and absorb the commander's music. If concert halls could sell beer and liquor it would be okay. But they don't and if you don't get rip - roaring drunk during the commander's show, you are wasting your decades.

MANY FACETS OF ART

New music effective

By DAVID M. BURGE

STATE NEWS Reviewer If the Premieres of New Music concert Friday evening reminded one of anything it was of the many facets of the art. During the concert there was something for everyone, from songs of the whale to jazz improvisation. All these selections were competent at their least, with some of them being very effective.

The first selection, "Chamber Music for 10," by Alexis Turkalo, was based on the idea of pitting groups of instruments against each other. Though there was some pitting, the piece achieved most of its effects through instrumental contrast, an on - going melody and a general drive that made the work enjoyable.

"Here Lies Love," by

had a dance - like quality to it. But, because of the independence of the lines, one could not hear the seventh and ninth chords that were supposed to be one of the features of the piece, until the end. One also felt that perhaps a less dance - like treatment of the text would have helped. It was a competent piece though.

"Le Prime Donne," by Charles Ruggiero, was a disappointment considering other works by this composer. The piece, which was for percussion, piano, combined with a tape with real African drumming and the songs of the whale and the wolf, did not seem to have any real connecting thread, though the elements the competent use of a nice were used competently.

for a small group of voices "Mystichord," was one of slides, the work which mad in the style of a ballet, it the highlights of the use of Japanese poetr program. The piece, which achieved a delicate aspe was for chamber ensemble and voices, was very expressionistic, using textures reminiscent of Schoenberg's "Pierrot Lunaire." These were used skillfully, with a nice blend being achieved between the chamber group and Suzanne Wernette, Juanita Greene and Nathaniel Trudel, the vocalists, who did such things as moan and (I swear that this is true) call hogs. The next selection, "Wind Music," by Eugene Kulczycki, was also based on the idea of pitting various instruments against each other. There was a bit more pitting in this piece, but it was not enough to save it from sounding like Michael Zinn's "Spring Storm," was one of the most effective numbers on the program. Written for chamber ensemble accompanied by tape, the work achieved a delicate instrumental blend in spots, with the tape fitting the structure perfectly. Because of this the piece was successful in picturing a spring storm.

"Ein Japanisches Liederbuch," by Greg Steinke, was also successful. Making use of chamber ensemble, soprano voice and My personal recommendation is Adler's interesting creation, a sandwich which combines, all of things, london broil and stroganoff.

The Banquet's spontaneity, originality and unpretentious flavor are extends to the restaurant's decor and atmosphere. Completely remodeled by the owners and staff (they worked 16 hours a day for 30 days), the bar and restaurant is "a combination of old western saloon and stand up bar along with modern art," Rose said.

eurig—"Doc" or the athletes By RICHARD GIETLER

Dr. James Feurig, director of the University Health ter and physician for all MSU athletes, is a man who bys working with young people.

Feurig said the type of medicine he practices is called lolescent medicine."

Doc" Feurig engaged in private practice in Milwaukee World War II, but after recurring malaria attacks, was ed to give up his private practice.

Specialists at Wlater Reed Hospital told me to take it after my malaria treatments," Feurig said, "so I went the University of Missouri to work as the athletic sician for one year. Going to Missouri brought back to the idea that I wanted to work with young people. I by it and had a strong desire to keep doing it.

If first enjoyed working with young people when I was a up flight surgeon in World War II," he said.

Feurlg, who graduated from Marquette University dical school in 1941, came to MSU in January 1953 in the University of Missouri.

Feurig, who says he is interested in all sports, was once a fessional football player. He played offensive and happy with ensive end for the Green Bay Packers from 1933 - 1935. Since Feurig's playing days and his tenure at MSU, he seen numerous changes. "The passing of an era, changing techniques and nging of the rules has given us a different type of ete," Feurig said.

"In the athlete today, we look for such things as quickness, agility and speed," he said. "Though athletes of today are bigger and stronger, both types of athletes past and present are about the same," he added. "Years ago, the athlete had his good attributes and used them well."

Feurig is proud that there have been no athletic fatalities since he came to the University.

"The worst injury I've seen here at MSU was on a trampoline during a meet in Jenison Fieldhouse," Feurig said. "A University of Minnesota gymnast missed and went head first into the trampoline. The athlete sustained a dislocated neck and a split spinal cord. This injury paralyzed the athlete.

"In athletes, naturally te going to have injuries. In football there are tearing injuries of the muscles plus bone and joint injuries. In ey, the problem is in cuts. In every sport there are rent types of injuries," Feurig explained.

Last home meet slated for MSU track seniors

By CHARLES JOHNSON State News Sports Writer

The MSU track team goes up against the Indiana Hoosiers in a dual meet contest Saturday at Jenison Fieldhouse and for eight members of the Spartan squad, this meet will be their final opportunity to compete indoors in front of the home fans.

The Spartan tracksters will lose the services of Ken Popejoy, Del Gregory, Rob Cool, Ron Cool, John Morrison, Mike Murphy, Marv Roberts and Cuba Gregory in June, all having contributed greatly to the squad during their MSU careers.

Leading the list of departing seniors is NCAA mile champ Ken Popejoy. The Glenelyn, Ill. senior has racked up a ton of records since coming to MSU in 1969, including the varsity indoor record of 4:00.9 and the school outdoor record of 3:59.7. His outdoor time made him the first ever to run under four minutes in the mile.

"Pope is definitely the greatest miler Michigan State has ever had," assistant track coach Jim Bibbs said. "He has been a great attribute to the team since he first came."

In addition to his track merits, Popejoy was an All American in cross - country in his junior year.

In the field events, the Spartans have two competitors year. who will be making their final indoor bow in the likes of long jumper Del Gregory and shot putter Marv Roberts.

Gregory, since transferring from Grand Rapids Junior College in 1971, has been a standout in the triple and long jump events, just last week capturing the varsity record in the varsity indoor record and outdoor mark with tosses of 53 feet 5 inches and 55 feet 8 inches respectively. The hefty senior has recently been drafted by the San Diego Chargers.

Quarter - miler Murphy has been a mainstay on the Spartan squad as a member of the Spartans swift mile relay quartet. He will also be making his farewell indoor performance Saturday.

Murphy, a senior from Midland, is a three - time varsity letter winner and was an all - American selection last year, as the MSU mile relay team placed third in the NCAA championships. He has run a best individual time in the 440 yard dash of 47.5.

The Spartans will suffer a double loss, as the identical twins Rob and Ron Cool will be on hand for their final indoor home meet.

Ron is currently sitting out the season because of ineligibility but has been a standout in the half mile previously. Rob placed fourth in the Big Ten steeplechase event last year and has been a strong distance performer.

Hurdler Morrison, from Detroit Redford Union, has placed in every Big Ten meet in which he has competed. Morrison is a strong contender for the high hurdles title this Rounding out the list of seniors is Cuba Gregory from Detroit Southeastern. Gregory has run in the shadows of such greats as Herb Washington and Marshall Dill during his collegiate career.

The MSU trackmen will be gunning for a victory over the Hoosiers in preparation for the Big Ten meet at Purdue

MSU basketball coach Gus Ganakus has received few daughters Monday night came at a good time. MSU

By GARY KORRECK State News Sports Writer

Usually, when a team loses four games in a row it is willing to settle for even a close loss. Not Gus

"I think we're going to win our last four," Ganakas quipped between cigar puffs at the weekly basketball press luncheon.

"We've been playing good ball the last couple of games - our rebounding's better, our spirit's good - we haven't won but it's been a helluva lot of fun," he said.

Ganakas and his traditional green cigar are about the only items still in one piece during a season which started like a four - alarm fire and is closing in puffs of smoke. MSU's overall record was squared at 10-10 with Monday's loss to Indiana and a 3-7 Big Ten rating is about as low as one can go before shaking hands with Northwestern. "At the start of the year we were fighting for the conference title, then it was the NIT, then the first division and now maybe even that's over," Ganakas said.

"Remember, the POWs are home," he commented. "There's a lot to be thankful for.

"Lots of bad things happen when you lose, but you do find out who your friends are."

He read some encouraging words, written by his daughters, and explained how his ballclub could win four in a row.

"Our bench is strong and we're going to have to start using those guys; if you're losing you have to," he said.

Ganakas was slapped with a pair of technical fouls Monday, his only ones this year, and he explained those, too.

"The ref blew it," he said.

Ganakas insisted his club has not collasped and he said more work from individual members would help.

"We're not getting the type of game we want out of Lindsay Hairston, but he's been caught having to play in a year where there is a vintage crop of seniors - he'll be good before he leaves MSU," Ganakas said.

Terry Furlow and Tom McGill saw heavy action against Indiana and may see more against Illinois. MSU needs to win its last four if Ganakas hopes to post his best mark as a coach; his squad was 13-11 overall and 6-8 in the conference last

$225,000 FOR FOOTBALL

Recruiting expensive

By LYNN HENNING State News Sports Writer

Those who say the Big Ten has been playing second fiddle to the Big Eight and Pacific Eight in the collegiate football wars have a legitimate argument.

The days when the Big Ten ruled the roost in the national rankings and subsequently mopped up the opposition in the Rose Bowl have tentatively passed, excepting Ohio State and U-M who have fared well everywhere except at Pasadena.

But there's a possible explanation based on a look at some interesting statistics.

Air Force, Dartmouth, Yale, Cornell, and Ohio State MSU annual allotment sponsor more sports on the for football scholarships is in collegiate level than MSU, the $225,000-25,000 bracket.

MSU sponsors a whooping Hockey has an annual

Ohio State sponsors a volleyball team, accounting for one more sport than

"Consequently there's an economic value in having fewer sports because then you can progress to the Big Eight or other school concept of pouring more money into a specific sport as opposed to running a complete program, Athletic Director Burt Smith said. "The Big Ten is only limited in its desire to have a complete sports program for as many Only six schools, Army, students as they can possibly provide." MSU annual allotment the success they 14 sports compared to some scholarship budget of $49,000 and a six tender limit. Basketball's yearly recruiting figure is $45,000 but it must not have any more than 18 players on tender over a four year period.

Baseball, wrestling, track and swimming operate on an equal yearly program of six tenders and a $29,000 budget, while golf, gymnastics and tennis are held to a $9,500 annual allotment.

The only varsity sports that do not offer athletic tenders at MSU are lacrosse, fencing and soccer.

Smith said that while no scholarships were available for the three sports he was particularly satisfied with were enjoying, especially the fencing team.

MSU's diversified athletic program prevents the school from concentrating its funds on a few specific sports, such as football, but Smith said he wouldn't change a

"I think the Big Ten has been criticized unmercifully because of its inability to beat Big Eight schools," Smith revealed. "But the amazing thing is the Big Eight is adopting policies that we've had in effect in the Big Ten so we can't be altogether bad."

To achieve some degree of equality in the number of football scholarships colleges hand out, the NCAA has limited the number of tenders a school the minimum, can offer over a four year explained.

Beginning this fall colleges must initiate a program that confines the number of tendered football players to 105 in any four year period. In other words, the Big Eight or any other conference cannot pour its resources into an unlimited football recruiting program.

Smith concedes that the Big Ten may be at a disadvantage to other conferences in trying to sponsor a full program.

"To a certain extent, yes, we might be at a disvantage because of the total program we're attempting to sponsor as opposed to

POINT OF VIEW

Rodeo comes to MSU

Allen Park senior

Intercollegiate rodeo competition will come to MSU this weekend.

This affords students and area residents an opportunity to witness the sport of rodeo as practiced on the college level. MSU has the distinction of being the only institution of higher learning east of the Mississippi River, which conducts an annual rodeo and maintains its own traveling rodeo team in an effort to promote the sport of rodeo.

What is the difference between professional rodeo and collegiate rodeo? Very little. The same stock (horses, bulls, steers and calves) is used for both levels of competition. As a matter of fact, since college rodeo is not controlled by AAU or NCAA regulations, the professionals are allowed to compete as long as they meet the intercollegiate eligibility requirements. Consequently, the amateur college cowboys compete on professional stock and oftentimes against professional

The events which the college cowboy or cowgirl compete in are the six standard rodeo events - saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, bull riding, steer wrestling, bulldogging and girls barrel racing.

There are also three events which are exclusively college events -- men's ribbon roping, women's breakaway roping and women's goat tying. Let's take a little closer look at these various events and consider what one should look for when Saddle bronc riding, bareback riding and bull riding are considered the three "rough stock events." These are the events which the cowboy attempts to stay aboard the horse or bull.

But there is more to it than just staying aboard his mount. In saddle bronc riding the rider must have his spurs over the break of the shoulders and touching the horse when its front feet first hit the ground after emerging from the chute.

A braided rope rein attached to the horse's halter helps the rider to maintain his balance. The rider can be disqualified for being bucked off, changing hands on the rein, losing a stirrup or touching the animal, saddle or rein with his free hand.

A fast paced thrilling event to watch. bareback riding requires a ride of eight seconds. This event's objective is similar to that of saddlebronc riding.

Bull riding was voted the most dangerous sport in the world several years ago by the Sports Writers of America. The ride is made for eight seconds with a bull rope which is held, not tied, by the contestant. After the cowboy is thrown, the bull often comes after a thrown cowboy. This is dangerous. The other six events are all races against the clock. Steer wrestling and calf roping are both examples of the teamwork of man and horse in an attempt to throw a steer or rope a calf faster than any other horse and rider team. Barrel racing, breakway roping and goat tying provide cowgirls with the opportunity to display their roping and tying abilities without handling the larger used in the men's competition.

Breakaway roping is similar to calf roping except the women never leave their horses. A piece of twine attached to the saddle horn and to the rope breaks when the calf is caught. When the calf is roped and the twine breaks, the time is clocked.

The last event, which is also collegiate only, is the men's ribbon roping. This is a combination of calf roping and a track meet. The cowboy ropes his calf just as in calf roping, but instead of tying the calf, he removes the ribbon and runs back to the starting line.

Rodeo is a unique sport in that each entrant pays his own way and takes all the risks. It is truly an individual sport in every sense of the word. Man against animal with animal having the advantages. Rodeo is one of the few endeavors in existence today which exemplifies the rugged individualism of the old West.

It is the embodiment of western tradition and attitudes. Intercollegiate rodeo desires to promote interest, understanding and appreciation of western life, culture and western affairs.

HAPPENING Science fiction works take on new direction

By ANNETTE HOWARD

Science is being de - emphasized, of all places, in science fiction novels, Doug Bache, president of the MSU Science Fiction Society, says.

"Things like interplanetary space travel now seem so inevitable that predicting the future no longer is a major concern of most science fiction writers," Bache said.

Bache said most of modern futuristic science fiction mainly deals with sociological and psychological possibilities in the future.

"This is the kind of story that appeals to the masses," said Glenn McGregor, a The MSU Horticulture Club member of the science fiction society. invites all to a meeting at 7 p.m. "Actually it's science fiction for those who can't stand technology."

> However, there are new concepts in modern novels such as "slow glass," created by author Bob Shaw.

> "Slow glass" is glass which slows down the light passing through it by catching it in a spiral continuum. A scene occurs on one side of the glass but those on the other side won't see it until months or years later, depending upon the thickness of the glass.

where writers can get around this," said Bache. "There are such zones as 'no space', 'negative Zone', and a familiar Star Trek trick of 'warped space'."

Members said a good science fiction novel is really matter of taste but the exploration of futuristic possibilities is most important. Joan Hunter Holly, East Lansing author, will be the Society's guest tonight. She has published nine novels including "The Bache said there are also standard Flying Eyes" and "The Green Planet."

appeared they had knowledge tending to prove or disprove the commission of a crime. Ervin's qualified privilege bill also provides that a newsman may not be forced to disclose his notes, tapes or other documentary evidence unless they tended to corroborate or contradict the newsman's testimony in court or before a grand jury.

In contrast, Sen. Alan Cranston, D -Calif., a former newsman, testified in support of a bill he has introduced to provide newsmen with an unqualified privilege in federal and state proceedings against disclosure of confidential sources and information.

He said his bill, drafted by the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., was "designed to protect the public, not merely, the newsman and his source."

"The press in America must be able to protect its sources so as to continue to expose curruption and lawlessness in high places, in and out of government,"

Jack C. Landau and Fred P. Graham, testifying for the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, also urged an absolute privilege against forced disclosure of confidential information or sources before any federal or state executive, legislative or judicial body.

They said it would be only "a pyrrhic victory" if Congress passed a newsmen's shield law that did not apply to the states. Their view was supported by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D - Minn., who said that "the great majority pf the recent jailings and harrassment of newsgatherers' have resulted from state proceedings. Mondale is a sponsor of a bill that would give newsmen a qualified rather than blanket immunity from disclosing

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D - Mass., a member of Ervin's subcommittee, said he favored "federal legislation providing newsmen with an absolute and unqualified privilege from compulsory process in both state and federal forums." Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R - Fla., another subcommittee member, said that if Congress was going to enact new legislation to protect freedom of the press, it also should revise the libel law to guard against irresponsible reporting and character assassination and the media should establish enforceable ethics in their profession. Gurney proposed creation of a broadly representative "truth in news commission" to hear complaints of false news publication and to require the correction

Ervin noted that newsmen's privilege bills have been introduced since 1929, but that Congress has refused to pass any of them. He said, however, that some 18 states have passed laws of this type. He said that since the Supreme Court's constitutional right to refuse to disclose confidential information to grand juries, his subcommittee has received a substantial volume of mail indicating public concern that the ruling may stifle access to news. Ervin said the public also worries that

Interpreter finds order in speaking in tongues

State News Staff Writer

"Then it happened that my tongue became caught and I felt an impulse to speak. I wanted to stop talking. I heard my own words, I didn't understand them, but I kept feeling my tongue pushed to talk."

These are the words of one man explaining his feelings during a trance state when he began speaking uncontrollably in incomprehensible speech called glossolalia.

Some may believe that glossolalia or speaking in tongues is meaningless gibberish. But Felicitas Goodman, author of "Speaking in Tongues, A Cross - Cultural Study of Glossolalia," disagrees. Goodman, an in ternationally accredited translator and interpreter and an assistant professor at Dension University, will show her slides on her field study in the Yukatan in Mexico with the Maya Indians and speak on new approaches to the investigation of speaking in tongues at 4 p.m. Thursday in 104 B Wells.

"I've invited Goodman to speak in hopes that she will show students how linguistics can be relevant in explaining mystical experience through language," John Eulenberg, asst. professor of linguistics from Stanford University,

In early days glossolalia was thought to be related to schizophrenia, epilepsy or hysteria, but today modern researchers have observed significant differences between the utterances of individuals suffering mental disorders and those participating in religious activities involving glossolalis.

Goodman indicates that the pentecostal, a religious participant in the speaking in tongues, is well - adjusted to his social environment and behaves normally except for his tongue speaking. Tests often indicate that the pentecostal is less subject to suggestion systems across all seven
