A graduate assistant in the Dept. of English says he fears that he may be iscriminated against in future employment because he is white and because he is male.

"Though I have not been refused a ob because I am a white male, I know people who have and it is getting out of hand," the angry man exclaims.

The graduate assistant is voicing a tear that other white males in the University community have begun to alk about — that a priority on women and minorities in hiring may spell fewer jobs for qualified white males.

But University administratiors say in the hiring of new MSU faculty. the fear is unfounded.

Herman King, asst. provost, and Mary Sharp, asst. director of the office of Equal Opportunity Programs, both stress that hiring quality people regardles of race or sex is the University's primary concern.

The new practices in faculty hiring may cause white males who are applying for a faculty position to be apprehensive, because now they will not receive first consideration.

Also, because of the growing goals - not quotas - are being stressed members by 1974.

Indians refuse to leave, make additional demands

Indians holding Wounded Knee ignored a government offer to evacuate the village on Monday, but said they were "holding the offer in abevance.'

A scheduled parley in a Sioux tepee near Wounded Knee was delayed several hours while the Indians, who took over the village last Tuesday, drew up new counterproposals.

Attorney William Kunstler, who is working with American Indian Movement leaders in Wounded Knee, said the new demands included an option to purchase the 40 - acre site of a historic battle in 1890.

Movement leaders also amended leave. The Indians said the marshals and FBI men may stay or leave, but the Indians want protection from Richard Wilson, president of the 13,000 - member Oglala Sioux tribe, most of whom reside in the Pine Ridge Reservation. Wounded Knee is located on the reservation.

The struggle for women's rights has moved from nonpolitical areas squarely into the political arena, four area women's groups claim.

Involving local women in the political mainstream is the major emphasis of the National Organization of Women, the Michigan Women's Political Caucus, the 6th District Political Caucus and the 6th District Democratic Caucus. SAIGON (AP) -- A North Vietnamese official said Monday the neetings of the Joint Military mmission because of a dispute over he exchange of Vietnamese war

The official, Col. Bui Tin, said the mmunist side would return to the ilitary commission meetings only fter the Saigon government agreed to elease a number of Communist war fisoners "in accordance with the ems of the Paris agreement."

A spokesman for the U.S. the Philippines after being released by delegation said, however, there was no ommunists would boycott further immediate indication that future release of American prisoners would be affected by the threatened boycott.

"We have always insisted that the only condition for the release of American prisoners is the rate of withdrawals of U.S. troops," the U.S. spokesman said. "There are no other conditions."

Meanwhile, 34 more American POWs, whose release had been delayed last week, arrived at Clark Air Base in the Viet Cong in Hanoi.

They joined 106 POWs freed Sunday by North Vietnam. This first group spent Monday speeding through medical checks in preparation for a possible Wednesday flight home to the United States.

These chalky - faced prisoners released by the Viet Cong were in noticeably poorer shape. One was hauled in a litter from the plane that ferried them in from Hanoi. Another hobbled off on crutches. The left arm of a third appeared to dangle limply at his side.

But their joy was evident as they joined those released Sunday in enjoying the small pleasures of life denied them in prison. They gobbled down steak and eggs, telephoned their families back home and tinkered with their hospital television sets.

Bugging memo reveals secrecy

Officials of President Nixon's re-election committee tried to keep the truth from federal agents investigating the Watergate bugging conspiracy, an FBI memo says.

The memo, made public Monday, quotes an unidentified source from within the Committee for the Re-election of the President as telling agents:

"Committee officials during interviews with federal investigators were sending FBI agents on fishing expeditions to keep them from getting the truth."

Calling marijuana laws unjust and cruel, a mayor's committee in Washington recommended Monday that the District of Columbia "decriminalize" possession and use of the drug by removing penalties.

The report stopped short of recommending legalization of marijuana but said it supports the concept of government regulation of growth, manufacture and supply.

"Apparently," the report said, "there is a vast difference of potential mental and physical detriment between the use of marijuana and other drugs, such as heroin, amphetamines, barbiturates, and the hallucinogenic drugs. It is our opinion that the law should reflect, in its penalties, the reality of the difference."

Peking Broadcasts usually refer to China's population as 700 million. But a recent United Nationals report listed China's population in mid-1971 as 787,176,000, growing at an annual rate of 1.8 per cent.

5 ATL profs work to boost new women's study topics

Five American Thought and Language faculty members have formed the Michigan Women's Studies Assn. to further women's programs on the college level.

The association hopes to encourage the development of courses on women's issues, instructional material and programs, Gladys Beckwith, associate professor of ATL, said.

"A good deal of interest in women's studies has arisen since the women's liberation movement, and it seemed like a good time to bring people's concerns in this area together." Beckwith said.

The association hopes to be a communication and exchange link with other colleges regarding their development of women's courses and

The association will send letters to colleges in Michigan to identify what courses are being taught. Interested faculty from other schools will be invited to a conference in May to discuss women's programs. At that time, specific goals will be defined, Beckwith said. A more in - depth conference is planned for fall.

The women's studies group also plans to publish a newsletter containing articles on women's issues.

Beckwith and four other founding members of the Dept. of ATL, Albert Karson, Sandra Gustafson, Houce Ladenson and Joseleyne Tien, all teach a series of three courses entitled "Women in America."

Dollar recovers from record low dollar generally recovered Monday from record lows in Europe, but remained below internationally agreed exchange rates in some key centers where limited trading continued.

European governments have agreed to keep their official money markets closed all this week to give themselves time to resolve the latest monetary crisis. The trouble was caused by a speculative onslaught last week that pushed the dollar below permitted floor levels to record

Closing the official exchanges meant government central banks were no longer required to intervene and support the dollar at internationally agreed rates, but a relatively small amount of trading continued between commercial banks.

In some of these dealings the dollar already was changing hands at new low rates that had the effect of another, though unofficial, devaluation.

In Frankfort, for example, the dollar closed at 2.8100 West German marks, up from 2.7650 marks Friday. That was still below the official floor of 2.8350 marks, the lowest level permitted under current international agreements.

The pattern in Amsterdam was similar.

The U.S. dollar improved there from Friday's level of 2.80 guilders and closed at 2.83 guilders.

When the markets reopen, government banks will have to buy dollars to drive the rate back up past the floor, or accept another realignment of official rates.

The realignment could take the form of another package of devaluations and revaluations, or of floats outside fixed exchange rates. These are the questions finance ministers from key industrial nations will be discussing at an urgent meeting Friday in Paris.

President Nixon vowed last week that his administration will not devalue the dollar officially again. He has presided over two devaluations since coming into office, the first in 1971 and the second Feb. 12.

The dollar remains in trouble, however, because the Feb. 12 devaluation did not steady money markets as intended.

The United States continues to spend more abroad than it earns overseas.

Speculators who had made money on the Feb. 12 dollar devaluation turned to gold, driving the price of the metal to record highs and creating new uncertainties in currency dealings.

Drifting on poverty straits

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The United States government announced today that the War on Poverty is over and United States has won. In a historic ceremony at the White House, the President signed the peace treaty which had been negotiated over a period of several months.

The terms of the treaty were outlined for reporters:

"The United States will withdraw all troops from the War on Poverty within 30 days and will no longer supply financial aid to war - strewn poverty areas.

"Poor people will be allowed to choose their own destinies without interference from outside sources. "All advisers to the War on Poverty will be brought home. "Attacks on health problems, unemployment, housing and education will cease at midnight. "Legal aid for poor people will be withdrawn from combat areas.

"Poverty victims will remain in their own homes and will be forbidden to move into other territory while the treaty is in force.

"All weapons used to fight poverty will be removed, crated and shipped out of the fighting areas.

"Those who were wounded in the "Prisoners of Poverty will not be exchanged. They must remain where they are until they are able to figure out a way to escape from their ghetto.

"As soon as the peace treaty goes

War orphans ignored

(c) 1973 NEW YORK TIMES NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON - The American Troops in Vietnam are now down to about 11,000 and the prisoners, despite some delays, are coming home. But nothing has yet been done about the orphans of the storm, and particularly about the children fathered and then abandoned in Vietnam by American serviceman.

This is one of the continuing tragedies of the war. The State Dept. and Defense Dept. say they have no official figures on the number of illegitimate children left behind by departing GIs, and no way of getting accurate information on the problem. But private estimates range from 15,000 to over 100,000.

Even in the case of an American soldier wanting to bring his own illegitimate child back to the United States, the problem of doing so is very complicated

An illegitimate child born in this country naturally acquires all the rights of a citizen because of the place of its birth, but one born overseas must be "legitimate" or face an almost impossible set of legal complications before being allowed to enter the

Also, the law insists that the father of the child must have lived in the United States for 10 years before the birth of the child, and five years after the age of 15, before the child can be considered for entry into this country.

Harry J. Hennessy of New York City raises a moral question about this situation: "The progeny of our military personnel and Vietnamese girls," he writes, "are often branded as outcasts or half-breeds in Vietnamese society. Yet by virtue of blood, these children have as much right to be citizens of the United States as of Vietnam. Don't we Americans have responsibilities, morally compelling ones, to these children? To me they are the most pathetic of all the victims of the war."

This, of course, is a highly controversial question both within the executive and the legislative branches, but is at least timely.

Sen. Harrison Williams Jr. of New Jersey has introduced a bill, now buried in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, to create a temporary Vietnam child care agency particularly to help those children fatheredby U.S.

The South Vietnamese government however, places strict barriers against permitting children of GIs to leave the country, and also objects to special aid for the half - American children if it is not also available to Vietnamese children whose parents were killed in

The U.S. Embassy in Saigon, which is closer to the problem of the abandoned children than officials here, has been urging the South Vietnamese government to pass a modern adoption law that would allow Vietnamese children born out of wedlock to be adopted by American families, "while protecting the rights of the children." But even if this were done, the laws of the United States, passed in 1952 to deal with normal situations, are not relevant to the special conditions of

The State News welcomes all letters. They must be typed on a 65 space line and double spaced. Letters must be signed and should include hometown, student, faculty or staff standing, local phone number and local address. Letters will not be edited for content.

To the Editor

I am writing this letter as a result of the article "Canadians tour area co ops" by Diane Silver, which appeared in the Feb. 12 State News. Our talk with Silver was a lengthy one, so some items did get a little mixed up.

First of all, we in Science '44 do our own meal planning and cooking. We do have a purchasing agent who supervises the proportioning of food. He is the only full - time paid employe. Our bookkeeper is a part time employe and only works three hours a day, five days a week.

Our financial structure is slightly different than it appeared in the story. Members of Science '44 Co - op (a corporation under an Ontario charter) pay their rent to a central office which is located in one of our houses. All accounts are processed through this office. They are subdivided into major and divisional accounts. The latter accounts are administered by the division (we have three divisions, each having seven houses) while the former accounts are spent on all houses under the discretion of our general manager (appointed from the membership).

During the course of the interview, we attempted to compare our co - ops with those we saw in East Lansing. We feel a co - op is a function of its members. Students create and take responsibility for the kind of home environment they desire. The co - ops in East Lansing have their particular features which are governed by the needs of their members. Our co - ops here in Kingston fulfill our needs and have their own particular features. As long as individual members are happy and content with what they have, nothing else really matters.

We, in the interview may have intimated that we felt our setup was better, but perhaps that was due to the fact that we helped to create what we have today, and so this alone would lead to a biased viewpoint. I hope this letter will clear any haziness that may have arisen due to the article. Our stay in East Lansing was truly a remarkable, fun - filled weekend. We thoroughly enjoyed the company. Hopefully, this exchange will be continued year after year and include individuals not living in co ops as well. Thanks again, East Lansing!

Animal act

To the Editor:

Last week I was telephoned by one of your reporters concerning the upcoming inspection of animal care the reporter did not reflect the full context of our conversation.

facilities at the University. I noticed the Feb. 19 article in the State News which was derived from our conversation. I find that your reporter was so lax in reporting our conversation and in pursuing the subject of his article that I seriously wonder about his competence. I wish to protest certain implications of the article, which are misleading because

I made it explicitly clear that I am not an authority on the Animal Welfare Act of 1970 and am in charge of only one of many facilities on campus. Yet, the reporter quotes me with the implication that I am in some special position to know about the act and attributes a statement to me which applies to "University animal care facilities" in general. As a generalization, the statement may or may not be true. I don't know, and your reporter knew I didn't know.

I encouraged your reporter several times to read the Animal Welfare Act for himself and base his story on that and not on my comments. He obviously did not do that.

The inspections planned this week are not by federal inspectors. They are by a committee of authorities invited by the University. One of the purposes of this committee's visit, as I understand it, is to help us to interpret the Animal Welfare Act relative to our own facilities. Your reporter knew all this but missed the point again.

I did not make a general statement that the federal regulations are vague. We were talking about our facility here in the Museum, and I said that the regulations were somewhat vague (meaning, subject to some range of interpretation) as applied to our particular animals and type of facility in the Museum. For your reporter to extend this to the regulations as a whole was grossly misleading and negligent. I do not find the regulations at all vague in their treatment of certain other types of animals and

Neglecting pro sports

Why do you neglect professional sports in the State News? It is a very significant part of our society, but you almost completely neglect professional sports. The only coverage you have of pro sports is when it is absolutely inescapable or necessary, for example, the Super Bowl or the World Series.

The students here are quite interested in pro sports. If you do not believe me, just check out the number of students gathered around a residence hall copy of the Free Press every morning reading the sports

I am interested in MSU sports, but I get tired of reading, all five days of the week, how the Spartans lost the game Saturday, how they are going to win this week, how Bob Cassleman set a new world's record, or how Allen Smith expects the University to pay for his extraordinary clothing needs. When the Spartans win, that's great, when one of them sets a new record, that's great, but one or two day's coverage of an event is enough. Five days of the same thing is ridiculous. You repeat things so many times to waste space. Why not use this space usefully by having coverage of pro

The sports section here stinks. It comes out a poor second when compared to the sports section of the Michigan Daily at U - M. We have access to the same wire services as the U - M paper, but only U - M has news of what went on the previous day in the world of professional sports.

I do not expect change because those who are set in their ways are afraid of anything new. I would like to know why there is no coverage of prosports in the State News, but an answer is probably too much to

A recent survey conducted by city Traffic Engineer Gordon Melvin cites increasing MSU traffic as one of the causes of parking problems and congestion on residential streets in East Lansing.

Student drivers linked to lack of city parking

By JANE SEABERRY State News Staff Writer

Residential parking problems in East Lansing can be traced to MSU, according to a report by Gordon Melvin, asst. city engineer.

The report, which Melvin started in 1971 and completed Feb. 20, states that the problems can be traced to two basic causes: relaxing of off - campus housing regulations by MSU and increased motor vehicle ownership and usage by MSU students.

"Additional demands are being placed on our streets every day by increased traffic volumes, more bicyclists, more pedestrians report states. "The street unrelated people live in a.m. system is simply not capable of safely meeting all these ever increasing demands, and the only element that can be reasonably provided for off street is the parking."

The study recommends that MSU provide a parking and transportation system which would encourage campus bound traffickers to park at their lots rather than on residential streets. This would include persons visiting or attending MSU.

The report also recommends the enactment of a licensing procedure for all rental property to regulate the number of parking spaces per apartment based on interior and exterior standards. This would relieve parking on city streets.

When the student apartment boom started in 1962, apartments were required to supply only one parking space for every three occupants. In 1963 a change in the ordinance required two spaces per apartment unit to reflect the increased vehicle use.

Also, older single - family structures are being rented for occupancy by many present controls seem to be adequate to meet parking demands for student a partment residents, but additional problems developed. An increased demand was caused by the large number of unrelated persons occupying houses designed for occupancy by single families whose need for off street parking was not as great.

The report cites parking in front yards, tandem parking in driveways, encroachment of vehicles upon open space and the use of public alleys and streets for parking as major problems.

The report also reviewed the effects of overnight parking on East Lansing streets. Presently, no cars are allowed on East Lansing

The report stated that overnight parking would be detrimental to the city though benefitting the private citizen.

Curb parking, the study said, has been a contributing factor to congestion and accidents in the area between Collingwood and Abbott and Albert and Burcham streets.

Forty traffic accidents were recorded in the area during 1971. Fourteen of the forty accidents involved parked cars and five of the remaining 26 accidents were caused by parked cars or cars entering or leaving parking spaces.

City - wide, of the 1,303 traffic accidents reported in 1971, 59 involved parked vehicles and 21 involved a car entering or leaving a parking space.

Nationally, the Highway Research Board lists five primary causes of parking accidents. It cites vehicles parked in the roadway, vehicles leaving and entering a parked position, passengers leaving a vehicle on the street side and pedestrians crossing between cars as the major causes of accidents.

The defendants are control over information Espionage Act, as its name espionage, not at leaking information, and the particular section invoked against the defendants has been used in the past only against persons alleged to have passed to a foreign country information that would damage the national defense.

In this case, however, the government is in essence trying to convince the judge and the jury that the disclosure of documents merely marked "top secret" is damaging to the national defense and helpful to a foreign country. This concept of top secret designations rests not on law, but on Executive Order 10501, which was 1953, and has since been superseded by an act issued by President Nixon, but was effect at the time that Ellsberg and Russo allegedly committed the crimes.

The government goes even further in its theft charges. It contends that because the information contained in the Pentagon Papers was classified "top secret" under Executive Order 10501, it owns that information, and that the information itself, as distinct from the paper it was printed on, was therefore subject to theft.

Again, there is no statute that defines the classification of documents as a "lawful government function" and again, the government has never made such a contention in any previous case. If it is upheld in this case, the Justice Dept. could then invoke the general conspiracy laws issued by former President against government officials Eisenhower on Nov. 5, and newsmen who act together to publicize classified matter.

> Since the trial judge has refused thus far, to allow the "right to know" issue to be raised before the jury, it must be done indirectly, and that will be through the defense attack on the classification system, which will take place this week if all goes as scheduled.

Cooperatives, student shops may group into one-stop mart

A community market housing an organic food store, book store, handmade clothing store and other cooperatives and nonprofit businesses may soon become a reality.

Fantasy Foods, a cooperative organic food store being developed by former members of Family of Man, is looking for other non- profit businesses to join it in renting part of the second floor of the old Knapps building on Albert Street and MAC Avenue. Its goal is to create a community market where people could shop in mostly student run, nonprofit shops.

"The more businesses, the more variety, and the better we could meet the people's needs," said Chuck Will, Fantasy Foods member.

Many businesses in one area could generate a heavy traffic of shoppers insuring the success of the individual businesses, Will said.

The owner of the building has agreed to rent the floor to Fantasy Foods if the cooperative can find enough businesses to pay the rent. Fantasy Foods would act as an intermediary between the owner and other stores, Will said.

People interested in the market should call 355. 8300 during the day and 694 - 7211 after 6 p.m. and

States study measures to OK death penalties

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS court ruling left the way

Legislatures in almost two - thirds of the 50 states are considering measures to reinstate the death penalty and lawmakers in four other states already have passed bills bringing back capital punishment.

The Supreme Court ruled last July, in cases involving Georgia and Texas, that the death penalty, as imposed in most states, was unconstitutional. The 5 - 4 open for legislatures to reimpose the death penalty, providing it was applied uniformly.

An Associated Press survey showed that the question of capital punishment was an issue in almost every state. Most of the proposals provided execution as the punishment for killing a policeman or fireman, for airplane hijacking and for various types of murder, including murder committed during the course of another crime.

'Our interpretation is that the Supreme Court is not barring the death penalty if it is mandatory," said Sheldon Beycheck chairman of a special Louisiana commission on capital punishment. "That is," he added, "the penalty must be imposed on both the rich man and the poor man.

Supporters of capital punishment cite the death penalty as a potential deterrent to crime and coddling of felons.

"Some people are out to protect the blood - thirsty animals that go out and rape people and kill them, but not me," said South Dakota State Rep. Bernie Kopecky, chief sponsor of a bill to make the death penalty mandatory for certain crimes. The bill passed the House by a narrow margin and is pending in the state Senate.

Ohio, Wyoming, and Florida have already reinstated executions, the Georgia general assembly has passed a measure to restore the death penalty and Gov. Jimmy Carter has said he will sign it.

The Ohio measure, enacted last December as part of a revision of the state's criminal laws, is typical. It defines capital murder -- that for which a death penalty may be imposed -- as premeditated murder, murder by concealed weapons and felony murder. It states that complain about the the death penalty can be

Independent study underused

By TERI ALBRECHT

State News Staff Writer The independent study program on campus has had high appraisal from professors and students alike.

But with all the approval and good results, limited statistics show that students still are not using independent study to its fullest potential.

This is particularly surprising because a frequent student complaint about MSU is that there is too much of an "impersonal atmosphere" on the campus of 40,000 students and that large lecture halls are not conducive to high - quality academic work.

"There are so many untapped resources on this campus," Mary Thompson, associate director of the Honors College, said "Many recently. academically - related areas could be delved into for further study and research yet we cannot hold a traditional course in the chairman yet they took

She emphasized that the greater freedom afforded by an unstructured independent program on a 1 - to - 1 ratio with a professor is invaluable on a campus this size.

"All three professors were extremely helpful and encouraging," he said. "One was even a department my own personal situation." However, this is precisely one criticism which University officials say hurts MSU in making a bid for legislative appropriations.

The legislators would rather see a professor's time whole does not actively directed towards large lecture halls and teaching en masse instead of spent with one or two independently researching students, the administrators say.

Other arguments from University officials have charged that it is an uneconomical use of Morry Waksberg, a senior professor time because there teaching reduction for taking on the additional load.

primarily honors students and also others into doing independent research. The main student criticism is that the lack of publicity about the program discourages an average student from taking the iniative to work out a study program with a professor. For this reason, the report by the Honors College lists every department and its receptivity to students interested in independent work. Waksberg said that it was through his encounter with the booklet that he initiated an interest in his studies.

The booklet is available to any student through the Honors College office in Eustace Hall.

Waksberg was enthusiastic in emphasizing a direct benefit from taking Pros and cons about the advantage of independent

One other complaint about the program is that it is impossible for every MSU student to take special faculty time and supervision. It may be unfair, the report says, to offer special privileges to some students.

However, Thompson said, with the limited use of independent study this has not been a problem.

Soldiers shift to new roles

WASHINGTON (AP) - Except for a small - and undisclosed - number of men shifted to Thailand, most American troops leaving South Vietnam are returning to the United States for discharge or assignment to new peacetime military roles.

Harpist Zabaleta to give solo show

World famous harpist Nicanor Zabaleta, who has presented more than 3,000 harp recitals throughout the world, will be heard in concert at 8:15 tonight in Fairchild Theatre.

Zabaleta, who has also been soloist with more than 150 of the world's symphony orchestras, is performing as part of MSU's Chamber Music Series.

The harp, says Zabaleta, offers more than most people realize in a serious original concert repertory spanning four centuries.

His programs are primarily original works for harp.

Tonight he will perform J.S. Bach's "Bourree - Menuet - Gavotte en Rondeau" and Beethoven's "Six Easy Variations on a Swiss Theme," plus works by Albeniz, Bochas, Viotti and Marcel Tournier with whom he studied in Paris.

Since music for the harp was scarce when the artist began his career, he searched libraries in Europe, finding harp music by Bach's sons, Beethoven, Handel, Viotti, and early Spanish, Portuguese and Italian composers.

Many modern composers have written works especially for Zabaleta, including J.M. Damase, P. Glanville - Hicks, A. Hovhaness, D. Milhaud, Walter Piston, Villa - Lobos and Josef Tal.

Zabaleta plays on a special harp, built to his own specifications. Every harp has seven pedals with which to make the chromaticisms, Zabaleta's has eight, the additional one to stop the vibrations of the "Nuclear energy... safe and essential"

Many people fear nuclear power. So, let's talk about it.

This is Consumers Power Company's Palisades Nuclear Plant. Instead of coal or oil, it uses uranium. Nuclear fission makes steam, that spins a turbine, that makes electricity.

That big concrete cylinder has walls 31/2 feet thick. Inside is the reactor vessel with steel walls 8 inches thick. Nuclear reaction is contained entirely within that vessel.

You could live where I'm standing 24 hours a day, for a year, and receive less radiation than if you made one crosscountry trip in a jet airplane.

With more than 120 reactor years of operation, not one known injury or death ever has been caused by radiation in a commercial nuclear plant, anywhere in the United States. It's something to think about!

Consumers Power is as much concerned about safety as you are. Their future depends on it as much as yours.

Your future depends on ENERGY 6

Mis message is paid for by the owners of Consumers Power Company be making a timetable for supporting women's compliance.

"He has also not seen that enough appropriations have been given women's programs. I think if the top office doesn't participate in genuine affirmative action, you don't get it from the lower departments," Popp

The Michigan Women's Political Caucus is concerned with many of the same issues as the National Organization of Women, Nancy Hammond, a member of the women's steering committee of the caucus, said. "But we narrow our focus to political issues," Hammond added.

The group trains women to run for office or manage political campaigns, among other activities. The state caucus is involved in studying the voting records of legislative members on women's issues. "We want women who want to work within the political system," Hammond said. "We emphasize goals that women have as women -- not as imitators of the traditional system."

A state caucus convention is slated for April, to define target areas for this year. The women's organizations hope the convention will cement the groups into a unified body to work for feminist goals.

The 6th District Women's Political Caucus concentrates on grass - roots political activity, according to Jean Tubbs, Chairwoman of the district caucus. "Many women in

Lansing can't identify with the power structure in Washington D. C.," Tubbs

said. "So we try to give women a chance to change things in this area."

candidates for county commissions, city council and other city government organizations. The caucus stresses an educational approach to showing women who have not had any political experience that they can make changes, Tubb said. Women have the voting majority, she said, and should be able to ally their political efforts. The Caucus is currently working with the Black Women's Caucus to form an alliance of goals. They are also studying the Lansing City Council to determine how many women are employed, in what positions and its voting records on women's

Men: you've come a long way

By JIM KEEGSTRA State News Staff Writer

Men, there is hope for you yet. Women are no longer the only ones liberating job roles. Four men on campus have also broken the sex barriers.

Charlie Hagerman is a secretary. Tony Dunaske and Dave Chambers are telephone operators.

A fourth, Steve Apmann,

Smith said that he has always had two or three women working there part time, but winter term Apmann was the only applicant.

Hagerman, 21, is a full time clerk in the economics "It's a different type of department office along with five women. He likes along well with the other people in the department.

"I think there would be a problem if I was in a typing pool with a lot of females," Hagerman said. "But here the work is divided and it is a small office.'

He said that before World War II almost all secretaries were men. The women took their place during the war and just stayed on.

"They have the advantage of a dress," Hagerman said, smiling. Eva Beckley, the chief telephone operator for MSU, said that Dunaske and Chambers have worked out marvelously. "I would be happy to hire more if they were Chambers said that some people are so stunned when he answers that they think they have a wrong number and hang up. Some girls have told him that it's really pleasant talking with a guy.

"I answer the next call with a smile in my voice,' Chambers said.

Chambers said that he has gotten enthusiastic responses, from men, such as: "A dude operator Men's Lib - right - on!"

not shove something down people's throats," Sharp said. "Our philosophy is to help open doors but not to interfere in interpersonal relations (in the department)."

Sharp said the recruiting of women and minorities is necessary to create a new social situation and to show the good intentions of MSU.

'There is a real feeling among white males that they are being discriminated against," Sharp said, but added that the United States needs to have every qualified person working.

"Our goal is to have each person considered on an equal basis," she said.

Sharp stressed that the University is not trying to lower the quality or the number of standards. "We want to make sure everyone faculty concern is that the has a direct chance at the Johnson, an Art History major, began playing pool in 1969 while working as a drummer in a touring U.S.O. show in Vietnam. She spends from two to three hours a day practicing.

"I'd like to be the best player in the world," Johnson said.

Johnson has been in a number of professional tournaments. However, she says her most exciting game was an exhibition match with Willie Mosconi. Mosconi, who holds the world's record with a 326
