U. S. accuses Hanoi of pact violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Tuesday formally accused North Vietnam of an illegal troop and arms buildup as well as assassinations and kidnappings in South Vietnam in violation of the Paris cease-fire agreement.

In a note to 10 other nations that it signed to guarantee the Jan. 27 pact, the U.S. said: "It is abundantly clear that the main obstruction to peace consists of the military activities carried out by the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and forces under its control in South Vietnam."

Specifically, the State Dept. charged Hanoi with infiltrating more than 30,000 army personnel into South Vietnam through Laos and Cambodia, sending in anti-aircraft artillery units and ringing the Khe Sanh airfield with SA-2 missiles, and the clandestine shipment of more than 400 tanks and armored vehicles.

The department said Hanoi has used these forces to attack villages and military positions throughout the country while its agents "have continued their acts of terrorism, including assassinations, tossing grenades in public places, minings of public thoroughfares and widespread abductions."

Of particular concern, the note said, was North Vietnam's failure to provide full information about Americans missing in action in Indochina or known to have died there.

Earlier this month, Hanoi and the Viet Cong accused Washington and South Vietnam of "grave violations" of the agreement. The U.S. reply called the charges "utterly groundless" and said they were an ill-disguised attempt by Hanoi to divert attention from its own violations of the cease-fire.

Meanwhile, in other developments: The State Dept. confirmed that some 300 Cambodian military personnel are being trained by the U.S. in Thailand in such aviation techniques as maintenance and radar. John F. King, a spokesman, said the training did not involve "military activity in the classic sense."

Saigon offered to release 750 civilian prisoners, and the Viet Cong renewed an offer to release 637 civilians they are holding.

Refugees fill capital in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Six thousand rebels are hounding the outer defenses of Cambodia's capital, but an even larger army has invaded already — a patient, helpless army of refugees.

Hundreds more arrive daily, fleeing U.S. bombing, antigovernment attacks or both. Westerners here fear that before long they will overtax the government's ability to provide even the scantiest aid.

No one can say with confidence how many refugees there are in Cambodia. Statistics here, as elsewhere in Indochina, are a compound of facts, guesses and fabrications that mount as they pass through the bureaucracy.

The government's latest estimate is 500,000 registered displaced persons nationwide with another 200,000 unregistered. A consultant to a U.S. Senate subcommittee estimated recently that as many as 3 million of Cambodia's 6½ million people have been forced to leave home at one time or another during the country's 10-year war.

Abernathy urges unity in fight for civil rights

He has been jailed 34 times fighting for the rights of all people. His church and home have been bombed. His closest friend was shot down and died in his arms on April 4, 1968.

Despite these unforgettable experiences, Rev. Ralph Abernathy who spoke on campus Tuesday has continued his struggle to fight for the rights of people in every segment of life.

Since the death of Martin L. King Jr. Abernathy has carried on the Southern Christian Leadership Conference that King started. But, he stated that America has been so cruel it expects him to be another King and not himself.

Abernathy explained to a large audience at the first Michigan Convocation for Racial Justice that "America has never been America to me."

"I have been beaten until thought to be dead and dumped out of a car on a lonely road," Abernathy emotionally explained. "But God sent somebody by to breathe the breath back into my body and took me on to a hospital."

"I've been sued and all of my earthly possessions have been taken. America has never been America to me but I'm not going to give up," he continued.

Abernathy charged that America will no longer fool the people by telling them it has no money for social programs. He also stated that America has spent several billion dollars on the Vietnam war, the longest and most destructive war in history, but the country has failed to improve the conditions of the poor, he said.

COMMITTEE NOMINATIONS OPEN

Bylaw review hinges on panel

By TERI ALBRECHT
State News Staff Writer

The outcome of the required review of academic governance bylaws will not be determined in part by who sits on the reviewing panel.

The question of who will sit on the ad hoc committee that will conduct the review of the Academic Council and its various committees is currently being debated.

The proposed objectives of the review include the definition of the purpose of academic governance, the evaluation of the governing structure and judicial systems, and the recommendation of appropriate action for improvement.

James Bonnen, chairman of the Steering Committee of the Academic Council, which initiated plans for the review, said he is accepting nominations from the University at large of qualified students, faculty and administrators to sit on the committee. The nomination deadline is May 18.

The Steering Committee had drafted a proposal earlier this week which specifies the composition and charge of the ad hoc committee. It will be submitted for approval by the Academic Council next week.

The proposal is the result of recommendations concerning the review made by various standing committees during the past month. Included in every recommendation was a suggestion that the ad hoc committee be limited in number, thus preventing the burden of action in large committees.

Melvin Buschman, chairman of the Academic Governance Committee, said he saw the proposal of the ad hoc committee as logical and manageable, though his committee had initially felt it should conduct the review.

"We had seen this as our realm of responsibility, but then we realized that our perspective was probably too narrow and our committee too large to conduct the review," he said.

But Buschman added that his committee clearly wants a direct channel for making recommendations to the ad hoc committee and be able to work closely with it.

Specifically, the recommended committee profile includes two students, one undergraduate, one graduate; four faculty members, including one current or recent chairman or director; and one administrator, from the level of dean or higher. Bonnen also left a provision allowing for two additional members should the committee decide additional expertise is needed.

Steven Chazen, graduate representative to Academic Council, said Tuesday the proposed ratio of students to faculty and administrators on the committee was "reasonable"

Women still hopeful on rights measure

By LAURA MILLER
State News Staff Writer

Local women's rights supporters are still optimistic about the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment which would bar discrimination on the basis of sex, despite recent defeats in several states.

There are still six more years to go, Patricia Silea, director of the Michigan Women's Commission, said. "I'm confident the amendment will be ratified in the time allowed."

The amendment must be approved by 38 states within seven years for it to become a law. Thirty states have approved the amendment, including Michigan. Sixteen states have rejected the amendment with recent defeats in Ohio, Indiana and Florida. These states may reconsider their negative stance until 1979.

While the amendment may not pass this year, Nancy Hammond, a member of the Michigan Women's Political Caucus, said, the chances of passage are still good.

Equality is an idea whose time has long since come," Hammond said, "and women will not be denied this right."

Carol MacIntosh, state coordinator of the Michigan Women's Political Caucus, said she was also optimistic about the amendment's ratification despite setbacks.

MacIntosh said the amendment had been defeated in some states, because people misunderstood the issue.

"It appears there's so little there, because the wording is so simple," she said, "but it is really so comprehensive."

Many people are afraid of things that are not specifically defined in the wording, MacIntosh said.

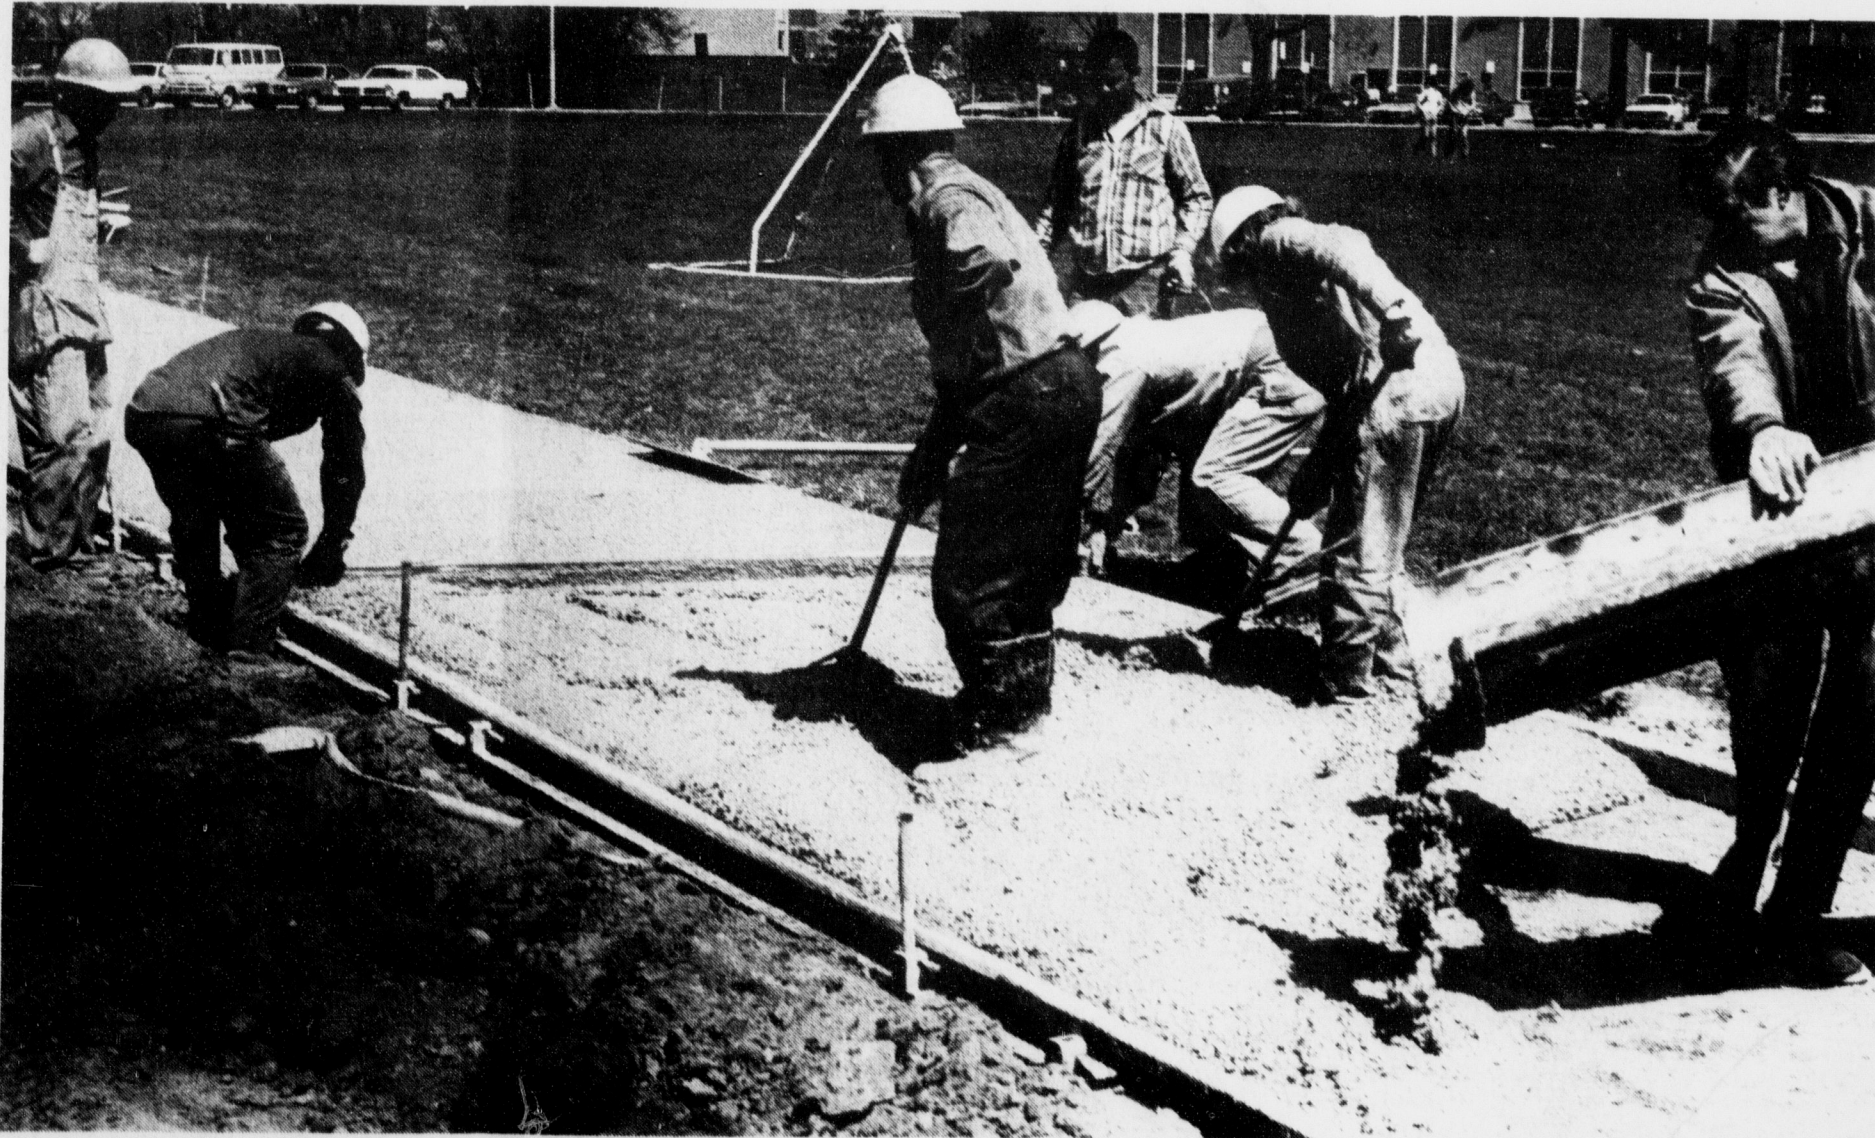

"They are thinking it's going to open Pandora's Box," she said.

A number of active groups with lots of time and money are lobbying against the amendment, Hammond said. Rep. Josephine Hunsinger, D-Detroit, continues to head opposition in Michigan despite its ratification.

Hunsinger will conduct a public hearing May 16 in Detroit to discuss rescinding the Michigan ratification.

New walkway on campus

Since Holden Hall opened in 1967, many residents had to walk through mud and grass to get to classes. But sometime this week we'll see a change for far-walking students as these workmen pour cement for a new sidewalk. The new walkway will run from Holden Hall to the railroad engine at Stadium Road.

Authority to classify reduced

The Florida White House reported Tuesday progress in making public once - secret documents and in reducing sharply the number of federal employees authorized to place classification stamps on government papers.

The report was released as President Nixon announced the resignation of John Eisenhower, son of the late former president, as chairman of the Interagency Classification Review Committee created last June 1. To succeed him on an acting basis, Nixon designated James B. Rhoads, archivist of the United States.

Hormone residues evident

Residues of a cancer - causing hormone still are showing up in meat, three months after the government banned the hormone from cattle feed but permitted implanting it in the ears of cattle.

Permitting cancer - causing additives in food is forbidden by federal law.

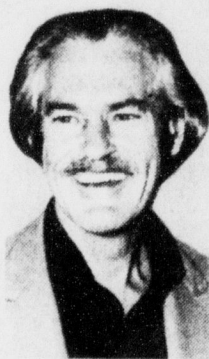

In banning the hormone diethylstilbestrol, or DES, from feed, the Food and Drug Administration had hoped to eliminate residues.

Leary sentenced for escape

Timothy Leary was sentenced in San Luis Obispo, Calif. Monday to from six months to five years in state prison for escaping the California Men's Colony here three years ago.

The courtroom was packed with his admirers as the one-time LSD advocate was led in, handcuffed, chained and wearing prison denims.

Superior Court Judge Richard F. Harris ordered the sentence be served consecutively with Leary's original six - months to 10-year term for possession of marijuana.

Opposition paper buried

With a great rumble, a loud whoosh and a boiling cloud of dust, the Spanish government's most persistent critic in recent years was buried in Madrid Tuesday in exactly two seconds.

Demolition experts blasted apart the newspaper Madrid's empty building.

It was a dramatic and symbolic end to one of the country's few independent voices. Despite a court battle still to be decided, few present expected the newspaper would ever return. The government closed the paper 17 months ago.

Tornadoes strike South

Tornadoes and savage winds mauled nearly a dozen communities and injured some 45 persons Tuesday in Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas.

A twister tore into an elementary school near Sumner, Miss., injuring 37 pupils and a schoolteacher. Two more children were hurt when high winds struck another school near Greenwood.

Most of the injuries were minor. No fatalities were reported.

Rhodesian troops killed

African nationalist terrorists have killed four members of the Rhodesian Security Forces - three whites and an African - in a battle on the northeast border of Rhodesia, Security Forces headquarters announced Tuesday in Salisbury.

This brings to 11 the number of Rhodesian troops or police killed by terrorists since their campaign started toward the end of last year.

ASMSU delays OBA funds action

By LINNEA SLATER
and
WOODY AYEN

State News Staff Writers

The Office of Black Affairs (OBA) again asked the ASMSU Student Board at its meeting Monday to release its funds now that the hearing on the ASMSU cabinet is over, but the board delayed action until next week.

Joe Davis, one of the directors of OBA, brought the complaint to the board: "Is OBA supposed to wait for funding until the policy committee tracks down all the board heads?" he asked. "We're taking the burden for the other cabinet heads' slowness to get around."

Davis asked the board to overrule the rider on OBA funds.

A rider attached to the ASMSU budget has withheld most of OBA's funds until the relationship of the ASMSU cabinet to the board was clarified. The policy committee held hearings on cabinets last week, but OBA was the only member of the cabinet to show up. The policy committee is presently talking with other cabinet heads, and has not yet finished.

Mary Flood, College of Communication Arts representative, stated that she thought it was ridiculous not to act on the OBA's motion during the present meeting.

Flood made a motion to remove the rider and give OBA the funds, because only the Office of Black Affairs suffered due to the negligence of the other cabinet heads. The motion was passed and went to the policy committee for study.

Flood's motion insures that the board will consider the OBA request at the meeting next Sunday whether or not the policy committee has completed its clarification of the cabinet's relationship to the board.

In other action, a spokesman for the policy committee announced that the committee will hold a special hearing Thursday on the State News fee after the regular committee meeting at 7 p.m. The question to be considered will be the State News' right as a nonstudent corporation to charge a $1 subscription fee from students.

The board passed a motion to readjust the budget so that each of the board members receive $30 for postage and supplies to be used in contacting his constituency.

Another motion was passed requesting that ASMSU board members and cabinet heads receive visitor parking privileges on campus, including freshman board members. It was explained that the privileges would enable board members to park near appointments on campus and would not add to the problems.

The board refused requests from students the Dept. of Parks and Recreation and the Pre-Med Club for funding to go to conventions on the basis that they were not sufficient interest in the total student population.

CITY, COUNTY SYSTEM

Kelley urges area bike paths

By TOM HAROLDSON
State News Staff Writer

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, Tuesday, urged Lansing, East Lansing and Ingham County to combine forces in establishing an effective bicycle transportation system in Ingham County.

As a followup to his position on a statewide bike path system that he presented to the State Highway Commission last month, Kelley said that he is turning his attention to local responsibility because of the important role they have in developing a bike path system in the state.

"Local governments can be a catalyst for creating bicycle storage facilities, for promoting public education programs for bicycle safety and for developing bike paths for residents," he said.

Linda Joy, press

secretary for the attorney general, said Kelley's request for more local responsibility in developing a statewide system does not represent a retreat from his previous position of state financing.

"The attorney general still believes that the statewide bike path system is possible to develop," she said. "This local emphasis is only one alternative to building and financing it."

Ingham County Commissioners John Veenstra, Patrick Ryan and James Heyser said they support a countywide bike plan.

"I was elected on a platform advocating a countywide bike path system," Veenstra said. "I hope we can use some revenue-sharing money and do more to implement such a program." John Patriarche, East Lansing city manager said the East Lansing city council approached Lansing's city council last year and suggested this idea, but received no response from them.

Patriarche added that if the local governing units in Ingham County combined in developing a bike path system in the county, he would be encouraged by it because combining all the bike systems would benefit transportation in the area.

"We have already begun our own bike path system and if the neighboring governing units decided to accept this idea, then our system would be connected to it thereby making a better designed system for transportation," he said.

If Ingham County

accepted this plan, he said, East Lansing could receive funds from the county that would benefit their own program of bike paths.

Patriarche said that it is difficult to differentiate between recreation and transportation bike path systems because the two are so similar in use.

"Because we were placed on a low priority for funds and because we stated our bike path system was mainly for transportation not recreation, the funds were denied," he said.

He added that the matching $93,000 federal funds, to be matched by funds from Lansing, might set back construction on the bike path system back three or four years.

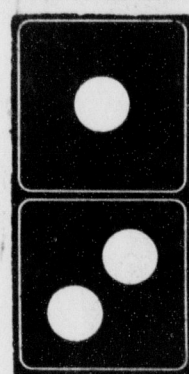

Judge sentences right-wing activist

DETROIT (UPI) — Militant right-wing activist Donald Lobsinger, an announced candidate for Detroit mayor, was sentenced to 45 days in the Detroit House of Correction Monday for assaulting a priest during a January antiwar demonstration.

Lobsinger was convicted of shoving antiwar priest Rev. Father Thomas Hinsberg during a Jan. 20 rally at the Cathedral of the Blessed Sacrament.

"You pose as a patriot," Ravitz told Lobsinger in pronouncing the sentence, "but the reveal you have little regard for the law."

Ravitz then quoted he said was a statement made by the late Sen. Long of Louisiana, who Lobsinger epitomized "danger captured in statement: 'When comes to America, it probably be wrapped in American flag.'"

Court decides state officer's nose knows; OKs dope test

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

A whiff of marijuana smoke in the nose of a suspicious policeman is "probable cause" for a search, the state Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday.

In a 3-0 decision, the appellate court held it was legal for a Saline police officer to search a car containing five youthful occupants when the officer smelled what he believed was marijuana smoke.

"We believe that probable cause may arise from the use of an officer's olfactory senses," the court said.

The decision upheld the narcotics conviction of Joseph A. Parisi, one of the occupants of the car. When the policeman ordered the car to pull over, Parisi tossed a packet out the window which was later found to contain heroin.

Milliken to alter staff duties

By ELLEN E. GRZECH
State News Staff Writer

Gov. Milliken announced Tuesday that he is restructuring his executive staff so that there will be greater accountability and lines of responsibility while allowing him final responsibility.

Milliken announced a complete review of his 270 staff members and their positions Monday.

Tuesday Milliken's chief of staff, William Hettiger, resigned his position as director in the Dept. of Administration so he could devote all of his time to his duties as executive secretary to the governor. Hettiger will direct the staff evaluation and reorganization.

"I believe Mr. Hettiger can best help to strengthen administrative management of the executive branch of state government by serving full-time in my office," Milliken said.

Milliken's actions were accelerated by recent disclosures that members of his staff were engaged in improper behavior.

"This has been a very difficult and a very painful period for me in the last couple of weeks," he said at a press conference Tuesday. "It has caused in many ways on my part reassessment of many functions and activities in the executive office and the executive branch."

Milliken said he doesn't foresee any large-scale firings in his office.

"I make no commitments or statements that we're going to have overall reductions or anything of that kind," he said.

He said he does not foresee more cases like that of Glenda McGuire, who was receiving over $18,000 a year as a member of his executive staff for doing nothing, a position she allegedly received in a political deal his office made with Detroit Recorder's Court Judge James Del Rio. McGuire was fired by Milliken three weeks ago.

"As I look back on these several weeks, and even before that, there are probably things I would have done differently," Milliken said. "I probably would have fired Glenda McGuire even sooner than I did."

Milliken said he received no explanation of McGuire's activities, but knew she was on the payroll.

"I wish I had been much closer to it," he said. "I received fragmentary kinds of explanations but it was not the kind of thing that I pursued in any detail. And I wish I had, I wish I had."

Milliken said he knew of no arrangement with Del Rio before the 1970 election, in which Del Rio supported Milliken.

Milliken said that, looking back, Don Gordon's employment appeared improper, though it was not improper in substance.

Gordon, who resigned his state job last week, was a top adviser to Milliken while on the payroll of utility companies. Gordon, who admitted he and Del Rio had an arrangement for Del Rio's support, never tried to influence Milliken in the utilities' favor the governor said.

"I did not then nor do I see now a conflict in what he was attempting to do and what I wanted done," Milliken said.

Milliken said his situation could not be compared to Watergate because the purity of motive is what counts, and the situations are not similar.

He also said that though he doesn't agree with the conclusions the press came to, it serves a valuable function as the watchdog of government.

Milliken said Hettiger would be, in practice, an assistant governor for administration. Hettiger will report to him the exact situation of the executive office.

"I think I know essentially the story, but I don't know that I know everything," Milliken said.

He said he accepts full responsibility for his administration and the acts of the people who are a part of his administration.

"I've taken these actions, I will be taking other action as we go along," he said.

Milliken said he has tried to build confidence in government and respect for institutions, and he does not want that faith in government to be undermined.

Europe reaction mixed to Atlantic charter plan

LONDON (AP) -- Britain and West Germany welcomed Henry A. Kissinger's call for a new Atlantic Charter but expressed appreciation for his statement, which based future U.S. - European relations on a continued American military presence in Europe.

In Paris, however, the French Foreign Ministry said it had yet to receive a meeting, was described Tuesday as constructive by the British government.

Bonn expressed appreciation for his statement, which based future U.S. - European relations on a continued American military presence in Europe.

All the Paris papers commented on the speech which received front page coverage in most of them.

In an editorial, Le Figaro predicted London and Bonn would welcome the proposals but warned, "It is less certain that France will welcome them without reserve. Paris has always regarded with great suspicion any alliance which may appear like that between the wolf and the lamb because of the specific weight of the principal partner."

Kissinger outlined in his speech a blueprint for a revitalized alliance. He said Washington was making "an appeal for a joint effort" to agree upon common objectives.

"The historic opportunity for this generation is to build a new structure of international relations for the decades ahead," he said.

Supreme Court backs truth-in-lending statute

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Supreme Court today upheld a tough requirement for installment charges in a major test of the effectiveness of the 1968 Consumer Credit Protection Act.

The act, also known as the truth-in-lending law, authorized the Federal Reserve Board to set regulations "to assure a meaningful disclosure of credit terms."

concealing credit charges," wrote Chief Justice Warren E. Burger for the court.

In another decision, the court voted 5-4 that the government did not overstep legal bounds when one of its agents provided an essential ingredient for illegal pep pill manufacturing.

The majority upheld the conviction and six-month sentence of Richard Russell of Whiteby Island, Wash., who admitted manufacturing and selling amphetamines but said he was entrapped by federal agents.

Writing for the Supreme Court majority, Rehnquist said Russell was not an unwary innocent but rather an unwary criminal.

White man's society chokes U. S. Indians

The drama still unfolding at Wounded Knee has helped bring home to the American people the plight of the country's forgotten minority: the Indian.

Systematically pushed off his land, restricted to reservations along the fringes of white society, shoved onto the bottom rung of the urban poor (Indians off the reservation are usually not eligible for federal aid), the so-called "noble red man" has been reduced to a standard of living that is a shame on the record of the world's richest nation.

A case in point is the Mt. Pleasant Indian reservation, one of four Indian reservations in Michigan where 70 per cent of the families have a yearly income of less than $3,000 and 50 per cent of the adults less than a ninth-grade education.

The land they own has been reduced by the inroads of the government and business from six townships (about 216 square miles) in 1864 to two square miles today.

Nationally the average Indian life expectancy is 44 years; the suicide rate is twice the national average; the infant mortality rate is staggeringly high; diseases such as tuberculosis and dysentery which have been practically wiped out in the white population, run rampant among underfed, ill-housed and ill-clothed Indians.

There is no easy answer, though an overhaul of the creaky Federal Bureau of Indian Affairs certainly is a necessary first step.

At the same time, the Indian must be given untrammelled control over his affairs.

One plan to accomplish this is a form of "revenue-sharing" that will remove the stigma of federal supervision.

Funds can be channeled to reservations according to population or need. Distribution of the funds will be handled by the individual tribal councils, much as the East Lansing City Council parcels out revenue-sharing dollars for city projects.

The Indians should also have full control over schools and places of employment on their reservations -- which the Congress should protect against further private-business inroads by appropriate legislation.

Today's State News Counterpoint supplement explores some of the aspects of the Indian problem, with special focus on the plight of Michigan's Indians, on and off the reservation. The facts are there; it is up to white society to act on them to redress 300 years of wrongs.

May at the Placement Bureau. Though Royal may appeal his conviction and eventually have the charge dismissed, the practice of using badgeless plainclothes detectives to evoke an arrest looms as a dubious form of entrapment.

Royal maintains that he did not know that Officer James Dunlop was an undercover detective. Royal was arrested after he shoved Dunlop away from another demonstrator, even though the police officer apparently had not identified himself, was garbed in street clothes, and was not wearing a badge.

Granted, police must often rely on undercover agents as the only effective method to deter crime. But a police officer has an obligation to clearly identify himself when dressed in plainclothes, and if there is no identification, there is no rational basis for a charge of obstruction.

To the Editor:

I would like to reply to Mariann McNally's letter of April 9.

First of all I will admit that I've been a student cook at Brody kitchen for several years. Brody kitchen, being the largest on campus, should be representative of the problems occurring in other campus cafeterias.

McNally, I can assure you, since I work in food production almost every day, that the quality of the food has not changed since the beginning of fall term. We're cooking the same types of foods the same way. As for quantity, students can still go back as many times as they want for seconds.

McNally said that "students will soon get ulcers or go broke eating at McDonald's." To this I say, if you can withstand a steady diet of hamburgers, why doesn't the large variety offered by campus cafeterias satisfy you? It took over two terms to voice any dissatisfaction with residence hall food, but I would give you much less time than that to become disgruntled with McDonald's hamburgers.

CHRIS DANIELSON

Chief Quack ducks truth

Hi there.

It has long been the feeling within Red Cedar circles that the press has been unfair in its treatment of President Milhouse Quack's administration.

As a special favor to the Spartan people, President Quack has appointed one of his top advisers (me) to write a syndicated newspaper column in order to rectify this dishonorable state of affairs.

In this initial column I will present a general overview of President Quack's accomplishments during the first 51 months of his presidency, and conclude with a few comments on the president's handling of the Watergate incident.

As we all know, President Quack inherited the Canadegese War from his predecessor, President Lyndon Bird. During Bird's presidency an incursion of a few Quebec geese into Ontario was escalated into a fiasco involving half a million Spartan ducklings.

When President Quack took office, there were those who clamored for peace at any price. But he made it perfectly clear that anything less than peace with honor was repugnant to Spartan duckhood.

It took four years of forthright persuasion of the most bombastic form, but within 90 days of his second inauguration President Quack brought all our ducklings home.

This is not to say that the road was easy. The president was hindered in every possible way by malingering malcontents before he hammered out the agreement returning our troops and POWs to Spartan soil.

From the cackling crackpots on network television to the cantankerous cranks in the Senate, the path to peace was mined with patriotic vacuums.

But it's time to bury the pax. Let bygones be bygones, as the president says.

Other achievements of the administration have been similarly spectacular.

Since the president has been in office a dozen ducks have journeyed to the Disneyland and brought back 57 tons of cotton candy that scientists will find invaluable in improving the lot of the common duck.

The president's trips to the North and South Poles will not only improve the chances for a lasting world peace but also enhance the Spartan position in world trade.

At home, the president has held the line on welfare spending, and he has made sure inflation grows at the optimum organic rate.

There are some, however, who would seek to obscure the luster of this administration with rumors of a rumor concerning the Watergate incident.

Let me assure you that I have the president's word — Duckling Scott's honor — that the facts I am about to relate constitute the fowl truth of the matter.

President Quack had no prior knowledge of the plan hatched by some of the lower echelon members of his campaign staff to inundate the Red Cedar River with oil during Senator McDuck's last major campaign speech before election day.

Most of the leaks spilled to the drips from the press about this scheme don't hold water as far as resemblance to the real facts are concerned.

Regardless of his Grand River Avenue residence, the president years for the Red Cedar and was saddened by this snafu caused by a few overzealous patriots as much as any of his feathered friends.

The president would like to state that the oil was taken from his private stock without his knowledge.

Since the Watergate incident was much a surprise to the president as anyone, and since he has now publicly expressed his regret that this thing happened, I think it's time for all Spartans to rally in moral support of the duck they have duly elected president.

Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner at the University Health Center. Names need not be included unless a personal reply is requested.

My wife and I are expecting our first child in July and because of this we were attending prenatal classes for instruction and preparation. In all the literature for the course, we keep seeing statements such as "The baby emerges from the mother's body in any of a variety of shades from blue to red, but soon the baby's coloring changes to a soft rosy pink or white."

We were wondering if this was true of babies born of black parents or of parents belonging to one of the darker complected peoples of the world? Are their babies born blue or red, then turning to rosy pink? If not, then we feel that there must be some revision of the prejudiced prenatal literature distributed by a variety of companies.

Babies born of black parents have a much lighter skin color initially which becomes darker in a few weeks. At birth, a black baby is often a very deep pink or red and if the parents are light complexioned the baby might actually be the same color as one born of white parents. The development of skin pigmentation for all infants continues to take place after birth and may actually extend for a period of several years. However, the difference in appearance at birth of the child from black parents compared to a child from white parents is sufficiently distinctive so that one would imagine that prenatal literature would comment on it. That such literature might exhibit the peculiar form of prejudice known as ignoring the existence of nonwhite people, does not surprise me. I think it would be a worthwhile venture for you to write to the company distributing such literature and confront them with your observation.

I use oral contraceptives. One of the benefits is the menstrual regularity. I can predict accurately when each period will start. I wonder if it would be harmful to use oral contraceptives to alter the length of my cycle. For example suppose I don't want a period to fall on a weekend, can I take extra pills and extend the cycle for a few days? Would this cause harm or discomfort? How far could a period be stretched in this fashion?

There is no reason why a woman could not vary the appearance of her period by taking birth control pills for a longer time before stopping them. The so-called period with the pills is actually artificial and is caused by a change in hormone levels when the pill is stopped. For convenience sake and the establishment of a routine, manufacturers package these pills in dispensers to encourage regular use. If you choose to have a cycle other than what comes with the prepackaged arrangement, ask your physician to prescribe a contraceptive which can be packaged as a large number of tablets in an ordinary pill bottle. Thus, if you took the pills for 25 to 30 days instead of the usual 20 - 21 days and the cease taking them, you would have a longer period if you desire.

It would probably not be possible to eliminate your period entirely or some break - through bleeding would occur after a few months of continuous use. In no way should this alternate form of using birth control pills be hazardous but I must warn you that many people are incredibly dense keep track of events and failure to take pill each day will enhance the possibility of an inadvertent pregnancy.

To the Editor:

I would like to reply to Mariann McNally's letter of April 9.

First of all I will admit that I've been a student cook at Brody kitchen for several years. Brody kitchen, being the largest on campus, should be representative of the problems occurring in other campus cafeterias.

McNally, I can assure you, since I work in food production almost every day, that the quality of the food has not changed since the beginning of fall term. We're cooking the same types of foods the same way. As for quantity, students can still go back as many times as they want for seconds.

McNally said that "students will soon get ulcers or go broke eating at McDonald's." To this I say, if you can withstand a steady diet of hamburgers, why doesn't the large variety offered by campus cafeterias satisfy you? It took over two terms to voice any dissatisfaction with residence hall food, but I would give you much less time than that to become disgruntled with McDonald's hamburgers.

Your allegation that the roast beef is used over and over again throughout the week is completely unsubstantiated due to your total ignorance of food production.

I would imagine that the most people you have ever cooked for, if you even have, is 8 or 10 people. Try cooking for over 2,000 some time and see what you come up with. The cafeteria cooks, both regular and student, are dedicated and experienced people who take pride in their work. We do the best we can with the menus and food we have to work with.

So McNally, if you want to go on eating McDonald's hamburgers, remember the dorm cooks are trying to satisfy you with what they have to work with. And you're getting more than you really pay for. So next time you have a gripe, McNally, just remember that we, the dorm cooks, also may have a gripe with you ungrateful, ignorant students who know nothing about food production.

Suicide

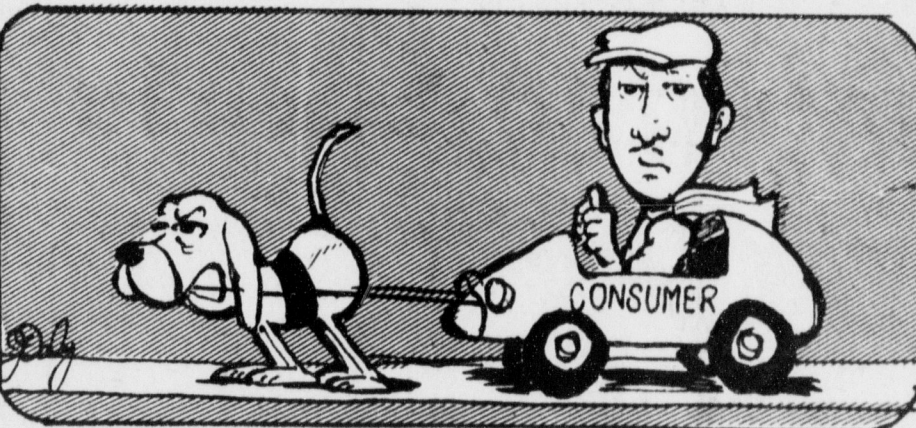

To the Editor:

The primary reason why people commit suicide is a lack of sleep.

There are other factors: A lack of faith in oneself, drinking, drugs, the weather, noise, mental stress, frustrations, bitterness and a myriad of others.

I speak from experience. I was nearly a suicide twice in my life.

Save gas with Cash

To the Editor:

It seems to me that back in the mid 1950s my father showed me a short paragraph in the paper about a German scientist who had developed a carburetor that would allow an automobile to travel up to 60 miles on a gallon of gas. The oil companies bought the patent on this carburetor and, of course, because this event took place in the 50s, nobody really got too excited about it.

In fact, I seem to remember my father's response being, "I don't blame the oil companies for buying that patent. It could put them out of business."

I have been told that the 50s were very strange years and people just accepted things like that and never did get too excited about anything other than Communists.

It is now roughly 20 years later and the oil companies (hereafter referred to as "Oilment" - that marriage of oil companies and government) have hired Johnny Cash (I love the symbolism in that name) to go on television and tell me that our country faces a serious energy crisis. Would I please conserve gasoline? If we all work together, maybe our country won't have to ration gasoline.

Hmmmm.
Like I say, it seems to me that my father showed me such an article. I was only 9 or 10 then and it didn't seem too important. Now I ask every mechanic I see if such a carburetor is possible and without exception they say that it is. A lot of mechanics will come right out and say, in a 1950 sort of way, "sure, they could make a carburetor like that."

How now Johnny Cash?
If there really is an energy crisis, why doesn't Oilment allow the useage of a better carburetor? I would be willing to pay $1 per gallon if I could go 60 miles on it. And think of what this would mean in terms of cleaner air.

Shut down

To the Editor:

Vacation Travel / Student tours strikes again! I am a Spanish teacher at Hannah Middle School in East Lansing. Last December, a group of my students signed on a tour to Spain which was to depart on April 13. I was to go as a chaperone. In all, 110 people were scheduled on this tour at $349 each. That means that Vacation Travel / Student tours had approximately $61,000 for almost two months with which to make dependable arrangements.

Less than 48 hours before departure time I was notified that the flight had been cancelled. Regardless of the reason, the fact remains that many young people are heart-broken. For many, this was to be one of the greatest experiences in their young lives. The money has been refunded but that doesn't mend the broken hearts.

I realize that it sometimes becomes necessary to cancel a tour when there is not enough sign on to make the tour possible. This was not the case here. But if anyone does experience what they consider unreliable service by your tour company, I would urge them to contact the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office, Room 670, 525 West Ottawa, Lansing, Michigan 48913.

Any tax proposal should, in my opinion, be backed up by an argument that there is a demonstrated need for that tax. RHA has presented no such arguments to the students. The arguments I have heard from other sources, notably the president of Wilson Hall Assn., runs to the effect that the tax is necessary to carry on resident hall council activities.

If I know University refund procedures, it'll take at least an hour or two. So to keep my own $.75, I must waste an hour or two of my own time. I leave it to the voters to decide whether or not this is a tax. Vote no on Thursday in your residence hall.

Mariah to feature Raitt, bawdy blues musician

By STEVE ALLEN
State News Reviewer

Bonnie Raitt and Little Feat will perform on campus Thursday and Friday night for Mariah. Thursday night's show will be held in Wonders kiva, Friday's at Erickson kiva. There will be two shows at 8 and 10:30 p.m. each night. Advance tickets at $2 are available at Marshall Music, Elderly Instruments and the Union. Tickets at the door will cost $2.50. Bonnie Raitt happens to be one of the best young, white, blues musicians to come around in a long time. Last year she had the distinction of being the only white performer at the Ann Arbor blues and jazz festival. Her repertoire, however, is not limited to the blues. She does original material plus songs by the likes of Joni Mitchell, Jackson Browne, Steve Winwood and Stephen Stills. In addition she is also known to breathe new life into an old hit like Barbara George's

"I Know."

Her vocals are clear and strong, not to mention fresh and honest.

She has released two albums on Warner Brothers "Bonnie Raitt" (recorded on a four track in a garage-like shack in the Minnesota woods) and "Give It Up."

Bonnie is the daughter of musical-comedy star John Raitt. She was born in Burbank but shuttled across the land many times before settling down in Los Angeles, a town she hated. She went to Radcliffe for 2 1/2 years before becoming an integral part of the Cambridge-Boston musical scene. A recording contract and fame soon followed.

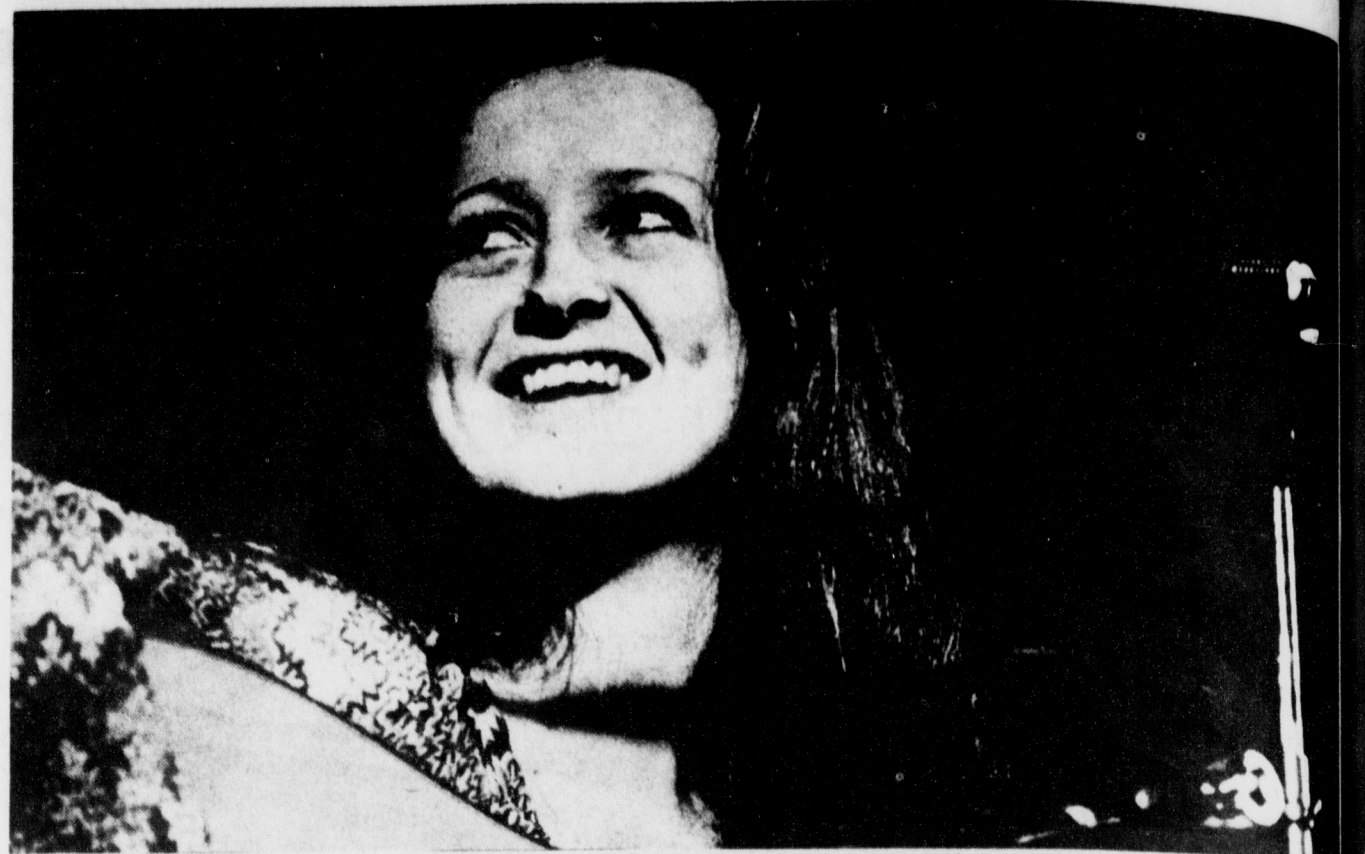

Bonnie Raitt is also known for her drinking habits. She approaches a fifth with a good healthy attitude, however, using alcohol for the pure and simple fun of it instead of drowning her sorrows. At 22, she figures she has quite a few years of good drinking left before she mellows out.

Little Feat is a six-man band which has overwhelmed rock critics across the land, yet has not gained widespread commercial support. They have three albums out: "Little Feat," "Sailin' Shoes" and the recently released "Dixie Chicken."

Rolling Stone critic Bud Scoppa describes Little Feat's music in this way: "The group's music has always been pervaded by that throaty, plaintive, downshifting squeal to scrape the preconceptions and the standard expectations from the listener's mind, to force him to take the song on his own terms." The result is a "dense, careening, nearly out-of-control feeling."

Find out for yourself at Mariah this weekend.

Lady sings the blues

Bonnie Raitt, one of the best young white blues artists to come down the trail in a long time will be at Mariah this weekend, along with Little Feat.

Tickets are on sale now at Marshall Music, Elderly Instruments and the Union.

Dion rare, adaptable singer

By STEVE ALLEN
State News Reviewer

Dion's appearance at the Stables this week is one of those events which simply does not happen often enough in the East Lansing area.

Here is a guy who less than a year ago sold out Madison Square Garden in a rock and roll revival show appearing in an intimate situation where performer and audience can freely interact. A further plus — the cover charge is so small it's obscene.

Dion is the rare artist who has been able to adapt his style to changing musical tastes. In the late 1950s and early 1960s, Dion was the undisputed king of rock and roll. Nobody could match the string of hits he produced in that time — "Little Diane," "Donna,"

"The Wanderer," "I Wonder Why," — the list goes on and on.

When hardcore rock and roll became passe with the psychedelia of the middle and late 1960s (only to return stronger than ever now in the 1970s), Dion was, so to speak, a singer without a song.

However, instead of selling insurance or pumping gas, Dion developed his talents on the 12-string guitar and became a solo performer.

Since then, he has had one monster hit "Abraham, Martin and John" plus four albums which have been critical, if not financial, successes.

He performs modern recent material off his recent folk albums, but once in a while he sneaks one of those golden grooves of yesteryear. And when he does, the place goes nuts. Despite the passing of the year, Dion's performance still has as much magic as ever before. If your spine does not tingle at least a little bit when he sings "Why must I be a teenager in love?" you've got definite problems, friend.

Davis says Guru has secret to life

By SHARON HANKS
State News Staff Writer

"Nothing has ever changed my brain more than the day I received knowledge of Guru Maharaj Ji," Rennie Davis said Monday night to a crowd of about 400 at Wells Hall.

Yet, not since the Chicago 7 Conspiracy Trial did Davis' thinking evoke such disbelief from his audience as well as utter light, amusement and outrage.

Davis, a 32-year-old member of SDS, the Chicago 7, and the now defunct Mayday Tribe explained that the knowledge has completely freaked me out. And the only way to know what's going on is to receive this knowledge.

Since January, Davis has forsaken his antiwar activities for what he calls a better way to make peace through 15-year-old Sat Guru Maharaj Ji.

Davis explained that he was on his way to see Madame Binh at the Paris Peace talks in January when a friend offered him a free trip to India to learn about Sat Guru.

While in India, he said he was struck with wonder, "that an incident of coincidence was the making point."

He was washing some dishes and thinking about Guru when about 125 monks screamed and swooped down at him. "At that exact moment, I let go in my mind all the doubts and made the connection," he said. "And all the birds flew off in different directions."

Amidst chants about Guru Maharaj Ji, as well as songs and laughter, Davis continued "every religion is wrong, believe in order to know. Where we're coming from, we know and we can't believe it!"

Davis said the trick bag Maharaj Ji is the mind. The purpose of the mind is not to be master, but to serve your real self which is perfect, which is divine, which is Maharaj Ji.

Ji. "The mind is the obstacle to understanding. The mind is the devil," he said. "It generates suffering and oppression. But if the mind serves the soul, the ideas will be absolutely perfect for everyone."

Maharaj Ji shows you this and lifts you out of this world in a blissful high. You experience joy and peace of mind at its deepest level," he said.

But Davis' statement that "Sat Guru, or Perfect Master or if you like, God, comes to bring the secret of life to people," brought groans from the audience.

Davis advocated that MSU and the Michigan Legislature should set up public hearings to investigate Maharaj Ji.

But to some local antiwar activists, it was apparent they thought Davis was selling out.

Applause greeted Davis when he said, "the people who are here who think Rennie Davis has destroyed them and has sold out -- all I can say is that I really relate to where you're coming from."

Questions yelled from the audience about world problems were answered by Davis with a single solution -- all problems will be solved and peace will exist only after everyone has received the knowledge.

One irritated man asked him whether the Vietnamese should die for their cause in the war or surrender and give up their arms.

Davis replied, "I can't say. I can say only what I'm realizing. When they receive the knowledge they will realize what they could do."

"If you study this organization, you'll realize it utterly defies all organizational and bureaucratic theories all around the world," he said.

During the past week, Davis has toured the country in an effort to gain support for Sat Guru.

The movement has been steadily growing in this country for about a year-and-a-half and claims 6 million followers.

Its teachings are implemented through the Divine Light Missions which also sponsored Davis.

Police try to curb parking lot losses

The repeated destruction of gate arms at two city-owned parking lots has prompted East Lansing police to take action to prevent the vandalism.

Sgt. Dean Tucker, of the East Lansing Police Dept., said last week that the department is closely watching Lot 1 on Albert Avenue and Lot 3 (the parking ramp) at the corner of Albert Avenue and Charles Street in an effort to stop the destruction.

Asst. Parking Superintendent Bill Goodman estimated that about 40 gate arms have been broken since Jan. 1.

"It is the city's intent to prosecute to the fullest anyone caught vandalizing the parking lots," Tucker said.

POLICE BRIEFS

A PROWLER WAS reportedly window peering around Mason Hall at 12:15 a.m. Tuesday.

The prowler was described as a white male, 20 - years - old, weighing 160 pounds, five feet eleven inches tall with reddish blond hair.

CAMPUS POLICE ARRESTED an 18-year-old nonstudent from Lansing at 11:30 p.m. Monday for driving under the influence of alcohol.

The man was stopped on Mt. Hope Road just east of Hagadorn Road. He was released on his own recognizance and his case was referred to the Ingham County prosecutor's office.

THREE NONSTUDENTS FROM Lansing were arrested for possession of marijuana by campus police at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

They were stopped on Collins Road by the MSU horse barns for a traffic violation and officers saw scales, cigarette papers and a hash pipe in the car. A search of the car turned up 13 ounces of marijuana.

They were released on their own recognizance and the case was referred to the Ingham County prosecutor's office.

TWO BICYCLES WITH a combined value of $170, were stolen from East Holmes Hall between 5 p.m. Monday and 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Police have no suspects.

A 12 - YEAR - OLD boy was bitten by a squirrel in the vicinity of Cherry Lane Apartments at 3 p.m. Tuesday. He was treated by his personal physician.

An MSU policeman called to the scene shot and killed the squirrel and it was taken to the Vet Clinic for analysis.

Refugees

A combination of informed estimates indicate that the last two months intensified fighting and bombing have generated at least 20,000 new refugees across Cambodia. And figures are available for the two-thirds of the country that is controlled by anti-government forces.

The Phnom Penh has nearly 295,000 registered refugees, almost 10,000 this year and an unknown number of new arrivals who have taken up residence in pagoda in crowded apartments with friends and relatives.

"There really isn't a reason for a refugee register," said one relief worker. "The government is over-exerting itself to do them."

However, western workers insist that lack of food is not a major problem - at least for the time being - and observation bears this out.

"The Cambodians share and share and share long as there's something go around," said an American.

"We have some problems with small children, some cases of malnutrition due to diseases, but for the most part the nutrition is sufficient," said Dr. Frank Altherr, a Swiss physician for a Red Cross relief team.

Overcrowding, lack of sanitary facilities and resultant skin and intestinal diseases are the big problem, aid workers agree.

A major underlying problem is lack of coordination among a few dozen relief agencies - ranging from ladies' aid groups to the Red Cross. "I don't think there's any one person in this whole country or of it who knows how to receive these people," one official said.

Among dozens of refugees interviewed, many said fear of U.S. bombing was one of their reasons for fleeing, but few told actually being bombed.

Cambodia's refugees complain patiently, without apparent bitterness. The situation does not alarm workers who have seen camps of Vietnam and Bangladesh.

"As long as the fighting it seems it's going to get worse," said one American relief worker. "Sooner or later something is going to have to happen."

Committee

because the committee would be minimal.

He said that the seven-member ad hoc committee is good for management of the review. "In fact, a review should recommend that all the committees reduced down to that they are much too large, any kind of efficiency," Chazen said.

Bonnen emphasized that a candidate should accept a seat on the committee if the candidate will not be on campus throughout the summer and fall. The committee is scheduled to report the results of the study to President Whitman next November.

OF LOT ATTENDANT

Owner defends firing

East Lansing parking lot owner Norvel Hill defended Tuesday his firing of Maurice Rowley, the parking lot attendant who staged a one-man protest Thursday in front of the lot on East Grand River Avenue.

Rowley was fired for allegedly not turning in as many receipts as there were users of the lot. Hill said, since Rowley's termination, "receipts have been up 35 per cent."

"He made a lot of friends," Hill said, "but sometimes you make friends by giving away free parking."

Rowley has been an on- and off employee for 13 years and a well-known figure to many students and residents using the parking lot between the Campus Book Store and the Paramount News Center.

Hill said that Rowley had been fired for the last time. "Private enterprise is based on providing the most to people for the least amount of money," Hill said. "If people were willing to pay higher prices for parking, he could afford to raise salaries, he said."

Hill was referring to Rowley's charge that he had to work 60 hours a week to make a living. Hill's parking lot attendants are paid $1.80 an hour.

Rowley also charged that Hill never gave him his W-2 forms. Hill said that he had sent them once, but that they had come back because Rowley was not at that address. "After that, I told Rowley that he could come over and get them, but he hasn't been over," Hill said.

Some patrons have refused to pay for parking in support of Rowley, but Hill insists that it hasn't hurt his business.

Authorities report halt in formation of geysers

WILLIAMSBERG (UPI)

Progress was reported Tuesday in the effort to relieve underground gas pressure responsible for more than 100 geyser-like eruptions in this crater-scarred resort area.

For the first time since last Wednesday when the craters first began forming in this small northern Michigan town, the Dept. of Natural Resources was able to report "no further discoveries of eruptions and no further evacuations of families."

The spread of the craters, spouting a volatile mixture of natural gas, mud and water, has forced the evacuations of 60 families within a four-mile square area, caused untold property damage and had a detrimental ecological effect on streams feeding Grand Traverse Bay and trout-rich Elk Lake.

The Department biologists in Williamsburg to assess the ecological impact of the gas eruptions on lakes and streams in the area found no loss of fish life in either Williamsburg or Acme Creeks, both considered good trout streams. However, they did report extensive discoloration of the streams due to a heavy cally silt created by mud runoffs.

State counties may try to block switch of time

ASSOPOLIS (UPI) — County prosecutors in three western Michigan counties may seek a federal order in the next few days to stop the conversion to daylight savings time.

Grand Rapids County Prosecutor Michael Dodge said Monday night it appears likely he and the attorneys of Berrien and Benzie counties will be in Grand Rapids "in a matter of two" to seek the order.

The commissioners of three counties have petitioned the U.S. Dept. of Transportation to allow them to convert from Eastern Standard Time to Central Standard Time to aid trade relations with Illinois and Indiana. Four Upper Peninsula counties were granted a similar request earlier this year.

The department has set public hearings on the proposal for mid-May.

MSU running backs loaded with talent

By PAT FARNAN
State News Sports Writer

Running backs are supposed to carry the football... and a little glamour if it comes their way. But when the pigskin toters fail to push it across, the jeers start pouring in like Morton salt.

Such has been the sad plight of MSU running backs for the past couple of years.

But a cornucopia of ball carrying talent has emerged in the wake of head coach Denny Stolz's MSU initiation and perhaps the sun will shine in Spartan Stadium once more this year.

Stolz is expecting some class performances from his reloaded runners. The former defensive coordinator under Duffy Daugherty believes his backfield flaunts as much talent as any in the Big Ten. That includes such distinguished company as Ed Shuttlesworth and cohorts down the road in Bo Schembechlerland.

Included on that list are speedster Mike Holt, David E. Brown, leading MSU rusher last year, blue chip recruit Levi Jackson, Diamond Mays, junior college all-American, Tyrone Wilson. Mays will alternate as a flanker and a runner in hopes of utilizing his speed.

At the fullback slot, the battle rages between Clarence Bullock and Arnold Morgado for the honor of busting through the core of opposing defensive lines. The winner will also be used extensively as a blocker.

"We have a great deal of talent in our backfield and we're counting on them to be a big help," Stolz said. "There is experience, speed and agility back there and I can't see that hurting us."

Offensive backfield coach, William Davis, also a new face on the Spartan coaching staff, agrees with Stolz's evaluation of the backfield.

"I think we are going to have outstanding running backs," Davis, former head coach at Adrian college, agrees. "We have tremendous talent here and there is going to be tough competition for starting positions."

Davis commented that the backs are still in the pupil stage of practice, adjusting to a new offensive formations, plays and coaches.

"We're on fundamentals - stance, steps and alignment," he explained. "This is a totally new thing for the guys but they're learning the right way rapidly and thoroughly. We're asking them to do certain things for us so we can win football games and I've got to say they've given us tremendous cooperation."

Davis clarified the right way as the one most conducive to the Power I offense installed this spring.

"We have to make a transition from the wishbone," Davis said. The two styles of offense stress different coaching techniques and consequently different steps, fakes and methods of blocking. But everyone realizes that his is a different system and that helps out. The guys are all working hard because they have an equal opportunity to start. They respect each other and they're helping each other out."

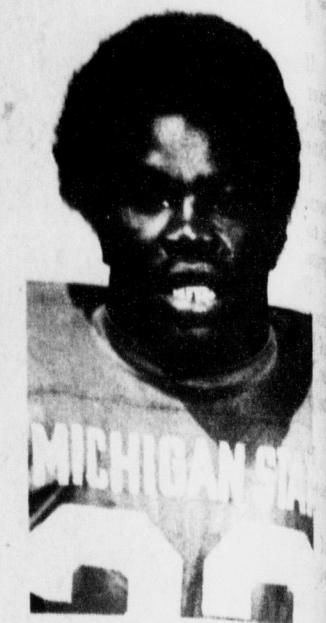

The only senior member

HOLT

of the backfield, Holt's responsibility entails more than mere mechanics.

"As a senior I have a certain responsibility to bring the team together," he said. "It's this cohesiveness thing again but it's really important. Mike Hurd does it to the team and I believe I'm responsible to the team in the same capacity."

Holt and the highly touted Brown have had various conflicts with spring drills thus far. Holt has obligations to the track team and Brown is academically ineligible. But an abundance of runners has kept the competition at a pinnacle.

"Holt has been working real hard and making sacrifices," Davis said. "But we've got other kids, too. Morgado and Bullock are bumping heads for the fullback spot right now and they're both real competitors. It's going to be a scramble for starting berths."

Both Bullock and Morgado, the Hawaiian import, saw action last year and piled up yards of experience.

Clancy, Bickel pitch batsmen to double kill, season record now 21-8

By LYNN HENNING
State News Sports Writer

The Spartan baseball team moved its record to 21-8 Tuesday, sweeping Wayne State, 7-1, and 2-0, behind the pitching of Rob Clancy and a shutout performance by Duane Bickel.

Clancy grabbed the victory for MSU in the first contest, pushing his record to 4-1. The senior southpaw was nipped for three singles by the first three Wayne State batters, accounting for the Tartars' only run of the day. But he slammed the door the rest of the way, striking out a total of 10 while giving up nine hits and walking just one.

John Rohde drove in three of the Spartans' runs in the first contest with a single, double, and a sacrifice fly. Shortstop Steve Cerez - who had been having his troubles at the plate - banged out a pair of

Women

To offset the overcrowding of the IM pool during noon and evening hours an early bird swimming session has been proposed. The session will last from 6:30-7:50 a.m. Monday through Friday at the Women's IM pool. At least twenty-five people must call the Women's IM office (5-4710) and express an interest before Monday in order for the session to be offered.

hits and drove in a run, going two-for-two and coming up with some defensive gems, to boot.

Bickel was in control from the start in the nightcap. The sophomore whiz, now 7-1, didn't walk a batter the entire afternoon while striking out four and yielding a mere five hits.

The Spartans picked up their two runs in the third when Cerez walked and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Amos Hewitt. Bill Simpson followed with a single, moving Cerez to third, and then Cerez scored on a single by Ron DeLone.

Rohde then picked up his fourth run batted in of the day with a sacrifice fly, driving in Simpson.

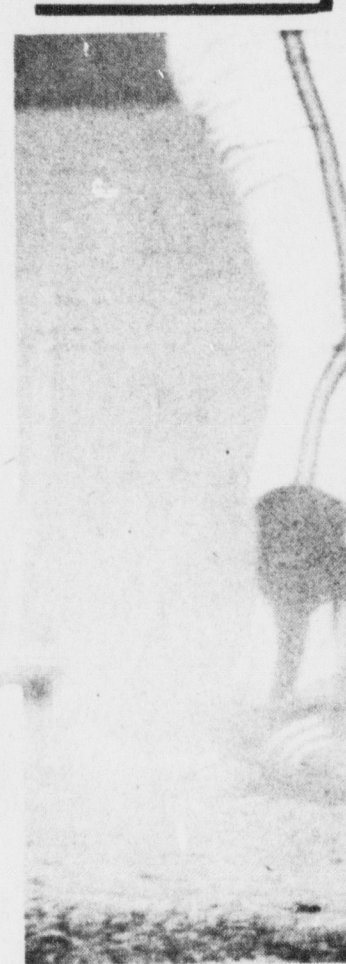

Simpson and DeLone each had a pair of hits in the nightcap to lead the Spartans' offensive efforts.

MSU picked up just six hits in the second game. Wayne State, now 9-10-1, rallied in the seventh off Bickel on a single and a hit batsman. But Bickel retired the last two batters on routine ground balls to preserve his shutout and record his seventh straight victory.

Bickel's only loss of the season came in MSU's first game of the season in Miami, where he dropped an identical 2-0 contest.

The Spartans now hit the road, facing the University of Detroit at the U-D campus in a Friday doubleheader. They won't make another home appearance until a May 5 battle with Michigan, when they'll resume Big Ten play.

Ron DeLone slides safely into third base in Tuesday's game with Wayne State. DeLone had three hits for the day and two runs batted in, helping the Spartans to their doubleheader sweep of the Tartars at Kobs Field.

Slide, Ron, slide

Linkers underway—finally

By STEVE STEIN
State News Sports Writer

It was a long time coming, but the golf season is finally underway for the MSU linkers.

After seeing their first competitive action since mid-March at the Kepler Invitational at Ohio State last weekend, coach Bruce Fossum's crew will be participating in the Purdue Invitational Saturday and Mid-American Invitational Monday.

Both tournaments are 36-hole events.

The Spartans had their yearly battle with early spring weather, compounded this season with the heavy snow two weeks ago, but the golfers finally played on the 18-hole Forest Akers west course Monday.

Before then, MSU was using the facilities at Par-Mor golf course and the nine-hole Forest Akers east layout.

MSU spurred on the second day of the 54-hole competition at the Kepler to grab fifth place of 18 teams in the tourney. The Spartans had ended the initial afternoon in 12th place.

Freshman Steve Cole led the Spartan scorers with a 228 total for third place in the individual standing while junior Bill Marx was the second lowest Spartan with 233.

Scores in the tourney were high because the course was wet from week-long rains and it was quite windy. Cole posted the best individual round in the event - an even par 72.

"Cole's score was very good," Fossum commented. "I was not surprised on the basis of his ability but based on the time of year and the conditions, it was an outstanding round."

He's a good shot-maker and he is very accurate. As a result, he hits more greens and has more chances for birdies or easier pars. I think he's going to be a great player," Fossum said of the Jackson (Parkside) graduate.

Not having played on a big course in some time, Fossum believes the six-man squad may have tired in the final nine of 27 holes on the first day.

"We played considerably better on those final nine holes the second day, however," Fossum added.

MSU will be sending a six-man squad to Purdue but only Cole and Marx have been guaranteed spots on the contingent. There will be an intrasquad playoff today and Thursday at Forest Akers west to determine who will fill the final four spots.

"The rest of the guys (at OSU) didn't play all that well and since we have such a short season, we have to give every other player a chance," Fossum said.

MSU will be seeing many of their conference rivals as all 10 schools participate at Purdue while Indiana and OSU join the Spartans at the Mid-American in Oxford, Ohio.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Los Angeles Rams wide receiver LANCE RENTZEL pleaded guilty Tuesday to a marijuana possession charge, and the prosecutor said two other drug charges would be dismissed.

Rentzel, 29, who refused to comment on his football future after the proceedings, will be sentenced May 22. First offenders usually are given suspended sentences and placed on probation.

Deputy District Attorney Robert Altman said charges of furnishing marijuana and possession of codeine without a prescription will be dismissed at the time of the sentencing.

Defense attorneys had fought the charges on the grounds that the search warrants which led to the discovery of the drugs were obtained with insufficient cause.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Philadelphia 76ers opened the National Basketball Assn. draft Tuesday by selecting DOUG COLLINS of Illinois State.

The 76ers had traded their first round pick to Chicago Monday for veterans Clifford Ray, a forward, and guard Bob Weiss, but the deal backfired Tuesday morning when a Temple University orthopedist declared Ray's injured knee physically unsound.

Cleveland, with a choice from Portland, followed Philadelphia by choosing Minnesota center JIM BREWER. Buffalo chose Providence's ERNIE DIGREDORIO, while Seattle took little-known MIKE GREEN of Louisiana Tech. The Detroit Pistons, who didn't get a pick until the third round, fared quite well. Among their choices were DWIGHT LAMAR of Southwestern Louisiana, Memphis State's LARRY KENON and BILL KILGORE of MSU.

Michigan State's lacrosse team hopes to break a three-game losing streak today as it travels to Bowling Green to face one of the Midwest Lacrosse league's toughest teams.

The Spartans are coming off losses to Ohio Wesleyan and Michigan (twice) and not stand 2-4 for the year.

Better defense will be needed if the Spartans hope to end the string as they have yielded 40 goals in the last three games.

Davis resigns, time to change

By PAM WRIGHT
State News Sports Writer

Last week Carol Davis, the women's athletic director, announced her intent to resign her position. Davis was appointed last September to fill the position for 10 months. In June 10 months will have passed. She is eager to relinquish her job.

Davis is disgusted with administrative duties and has found that she has had little time to do what she actually wants.

"I knew I wouldn't like it," Davis commented. "I don't like administration. I like to deal with people. Teaching is my thing and I've found I have less and less time to do that."

She can surely be admired for her job as athletic director and her sincere dedication to the women's program.

However, the applicability and the validity of her philosophies on the functioning of the sports program have become questionable.

Last spring, the organization of the MSU women's athletic program was examined by the Women's Steering Committee. The committee recommended that MSU women receive athletic scholarships and financial aid, that women coaches develop a recruiting system, that coaching become a full time job and that the position of the women's athletic director be full time.

At that time, Davis spoke against these proposals and today she adheres to those positions.

She believes that money should not be involved with the relationship between an athlete and a coach. It should instead be based on a sincere desire to participate.

Davis doesn't believe that the job of a women's coach is full time but feels strongly that a coach should also be a part-time instructor.

Davis said that if a person is good enough to coach a varsity team, he also should use his ability to teach our HPR courses.

"Our HPR students deserve the best that they can get," she added.

Should not be full time job

She also believes that the women's athletic director should not hold a mandatory full-time position. To make it mandatory would be unfair, according to Davis.

"There should be some leeway," Davis commented. "Many women would want to coach or teach at the same time. They should have that option."

Davis has worked hard during her tenure as athletic director to integrate these philosophies into the women's program.

It's unquestionable that Davis is sincere in her efforts and that she should be admired for her hard work and honesty.

However, these philosophies, if continued in the future can retard the further expansion of the women's athletic program.

Should be taken seriously

It is time that the women's athletic program be taken seriously. Our able women athletes should be able to receive financial help; they should have qualified coaches and most importantly the athletic director's job should be full-time. The person that will fill this position should view it as an extended assignment and her first priority.

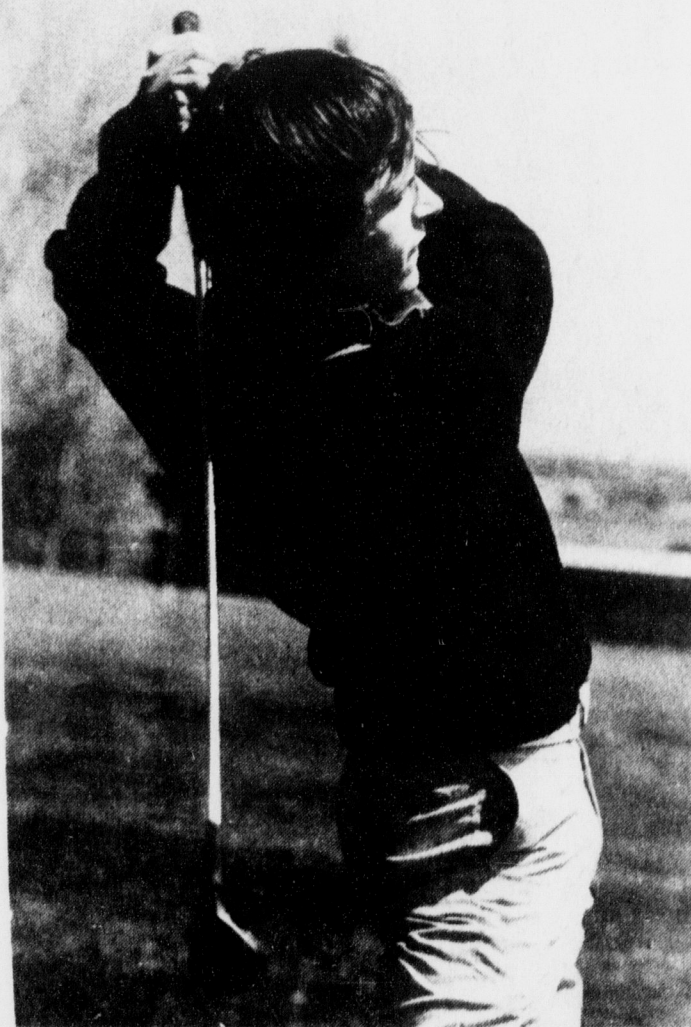

Through these implementations the women's athletic program can begin to rid itself of its second rate image.

With the quest for a new athletic director, questions of organization and of the functions of a women's program are going to have to be answered.

Now is the time for women to demand these things which are deserved.

Campus lawns sprout tiny tips

If you have noticed little colored signs popping up all over campus, do not worry. The three by five inch signposts were planted Monday night by Alpha Phi Omega, a service fraternity at MSU.

The intent of the signs, according to Rick Harris, secretary of Alpha Phi Omega and coordinator of the drive to prevent pedestrians from walking and littering on the grass.

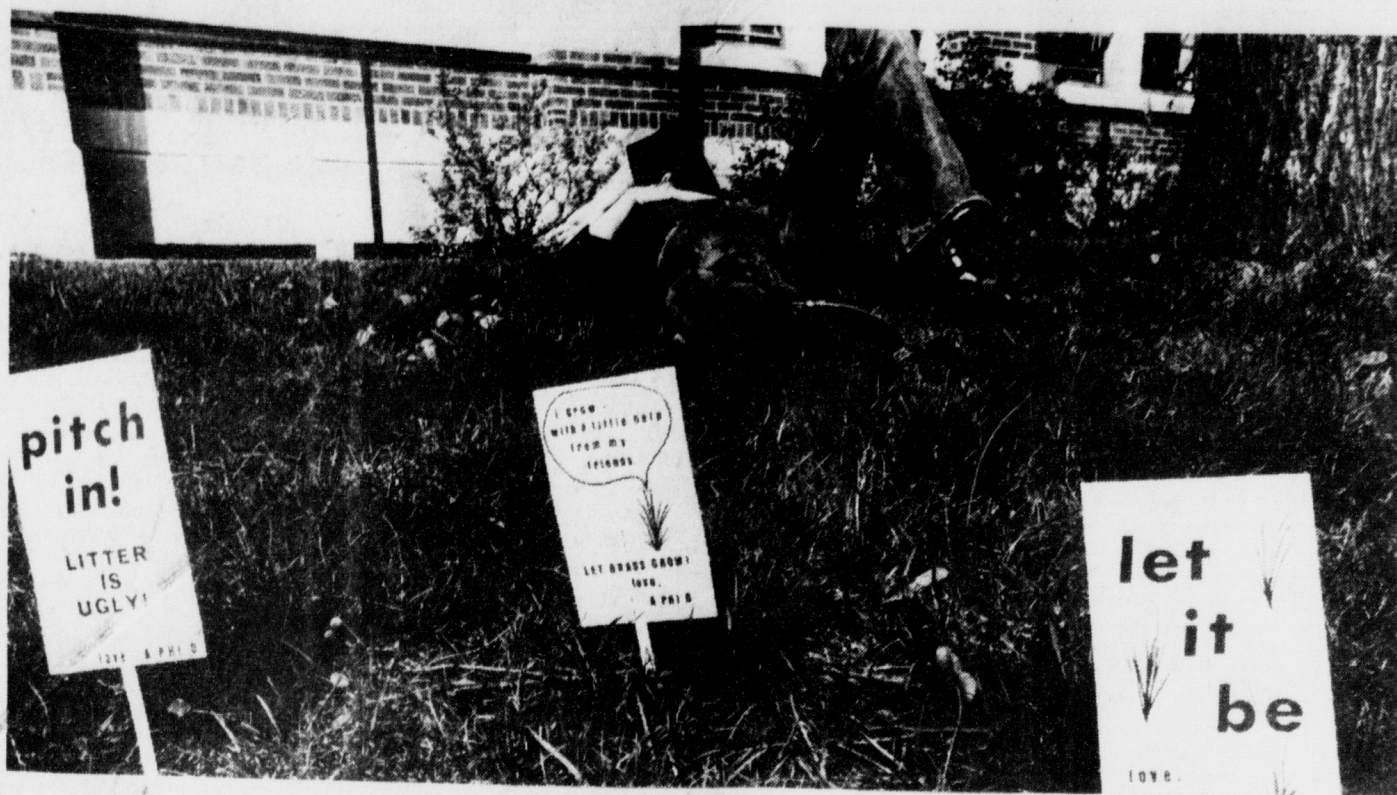

The "antilitter, pro-grass" campaign conducted in cooperation with the Grounds Maintenance Dept. consists of little signs displaying such messages as "Pitch in," "Let it be," and even a blade of grass saying "I grow with a little help from my friends."

Harris said the signs were placed where "there are more cow-paths than sidewalks."

"We are trying to get people to use the sidewalks instead of cutting corners and walking on the grass. This is a beautiful campus, and we want to keep it that way."

Burt D. Ferris, superintendent of grounds maintenance, said that he thought the signs were a great idea and hoped they would have some effect on pedestrians.

"The turf is tender right now and keeping people off the grass is very necessary," Ferris said. His only fear was that the novel signs might be carried off by passersby before they could complete their task.

Let it be

New reminders to all are these signs placed about campus by members of the Alpha Phi Omega service honorary as part of an effort to preserve the beauty of the MSU campus. Apparently oblivious to the signs' existence is John Wagner, Lansing junior, who catches a few winks by Berkey Hall.

Court to weigh district busing

WASHINGTON (UPI) - In a case that could affect many big metropolitan areas, the Supreme Court has been asked to knock down jurisdictional boundaries that separate white suburban schools from inner city blacks.

The case directly concerned only Richmond, Va., and two adjacent rural counties, but the NAACP Legal Defense Fund said Monday it represents a prevailing problem of desegregating inner city schools "within the narrow, inflexible limits" of political boundaries.

Similar cases have reached various stages in Wilmington, Del.; Buffalo, N.Y.; Boston; Hartford, Conn.; Durham, N.C.; Atlanta; Detroit and Grand Rapids, Mich.; Dayton, Ohio; Louisville, Ky.; and Indianapolis.

The state of Virginia and the Justice Dept. opposed the idea on grounds that courts have no authority to impose desegregation plans that cross county lines.

NAACP attorney William T. Coleman said the state had allowed whites to cross Richmond's boundaries freely in order to escape from predominantly black schools of the city school district.

He said 39 per cent of the white enrollment in the city system left between 1970 and 1972.

"It is only when it comes to desegregating schools that districts all of a sudden become the most sacrosanct thing in the world," Coleman said.

Even trees show IDs at MSU

By PAUL GOODMAN

Michigan State University, in its pursuit of orderliness, has issued ID tags to many of its plants and trees as well as its students.

One of the men responsible, George W. Parmelee, curator of Beal gardens, believes the tagging is educational and enhances the value of the plants and trees for students and the University community in general.

The practice began 100 years ago when William J. Beal, founder of the Beal Gardens, first came to MSU. Beal felt the gardens and ID tags would teach students to be observers, not merely scientists who learned from books.

One of the methods of tagging is to select a sidewalk and tag the best example of oak or elm and allow the student to identify the remaining trees by observation. In this way the walks serve as a showcase for the University. The more exotic and attention grabbing plants and trees usually receive priority around tagging time, Parmelee said. He considers some of the trees as heirlooms. A giant Norway spruce in the band practice field and the withered beech in Beaumont Field, south of the Abbott Road entrance are two favorites. The oldest tree on campus is probably the great black oak, 100 yards north of Beaumont Tower, which Parmelee estimated is over 300 years old.

The University also grows opium poppies and several varieties of cannabis.

Parmelee acknowledged their illegality but said it has been University policy to grow them as examples of nature.

"Of course, we keep an eye on them," he added. The poppies are strategically located near the poison ivy.

There are several types of tags used. The paperish looking tag is really fiberglass reinforced plastic and is considered temporary. They cost only pennies, but the sun breaks down the fibers in two to three years.

The larger wooden tags cost over a dollar apiece depending on the amount of lettering required. A new aluminum faced tag is being used that has the script photographed on it much in the same way a picture is developed from film. These tags have a life expectancy of 20 to 30 years.

Parmelee's eventual goal is to tag all the plants and trees, though he admits this will probably never be done. MSU has over 7,500 different varieties of plants and trees. The elm population alone is 1,300 and these make up only a few of the different varieties.

Parmelee also said the spraying of elm trees to ward off Dutch elm disease will continue this year. MSU has 1,300 elms left due to an intensive effort to save them by the University.

Lansing and East Lansing have stopped spraying and as a result have almost no elms left, Parmelee said.

ATTENTION

GRADUATE STUDENTS

The Council of Graduate Students is now interviewing graduate students interested in acting as COGS representatives on various university committees next year. All interested persons please contact the COGS office, 316 Student Services Bldg. Phone 3-9189 for further information.

$100 a month

$100 for each month of the school year. It's like a $900 annual scholarship. If you qualify, you can earn it as a member of the Marine Corps' Platoon Leaders Class.

You'll also be earning a Marine officer's commission through PLC summer training at Quantico, Virginia. Talk to the Marine officer who visits your campus.

Abernathy urges unity in fight for civil rights

He attacked the Nixon administration, stating that it has been insensitive toward the needs of minority people.

The civil rights advocate probed into a major problem that black people have among themselves. He criticized those blacks who, after having attained their degrees, forget about others who have not been as successful.

"Too many blacks have made their way out of the muddy waters of injustice, then they feel they are in the promised land. As long as you are black you're in the same condition as other blacks," he stated.

Abernathy views America as a nation where people are rising up and refusing to accept second class citizenship anymore. He supported this statement by explaining how the Indians are fighting for their rights at Wounded Knee.

"There must be liberty and justice for all or there will be no liberty and justice for all. We want our God-given and constitutional rights," he said.

If America continues to allocate luxuries to certain classes, the country may possibly be doomed, according to Abernathy. The civil rights advocate predicts that America may be headed for destruction as ancient Greece was.

Many blacks tend to agree with Marcus Garvey's concept of the "back to Africa" movement. But Abernathy said America is his home, and that Africa could never have been his home because he was not born there. However, Africa is the home of his black ancestors.

Abernathy recently received a letter from an anonymous white person who urged him to follow the back to Africa movement.

"Until the Englishmen go back to England, Frenchmen to back to France, Italians go back to Italy, Irishmen go back to Ireland, Jews go back to Israel and the white man gives this country back to the Indians, I'll be damned if the black man isn't here to stay," he stated.

Abernathy urged the people to do something about the injustices practiced in America if the country is to survive.

He stated that the fight for freedom must continue. "We all didn't come on the same ships to America but we're sinking in the same boat," he said.

Rogers' help asked in Nixon staff overhaul internal investigation of the campaign organization last August when the Watergate affair was unfolding.

"I proposed not only to the campaign manager but to the whole campaign planning group that the time was right to make the fullest disclosure about Watergate," Ehrlichman was quoted as saying.

MacGregor replied that "at no time during the months of August 1972 did any Nixon administration official request MacGregor to conduct any Watergate investigation."

The differing accounts provided another example of the growing plots developing among top administration officials in connection with the Watergate case.

The Florida White House said Tuesday that President Nixon wasn't involved in making an offer of executive clemency which Watergate burglar James McCord testified he received through intermediaries.

"The President has not made such an offer, nor have there been any discussions with the president about executive clemency," said deputy press secretary William French Smith. Transcripts of grand jury testimony quote McCord as saying the offer came from the wife of co-conspirator E. Howard Hunt, and McCord believed it originated with lawyers in the Nixon campaign.

Women still hopeful about rights opposing the amendment have said the law would cause the destruction of family unity and that certain things are "unnatural" for women.

Silea said emotional arguments such as these are invalid because the amendment deals with political and civil rights.

"This amendment doesn't have anything to do with who lights the cigarettes or who opens the door," Silea said. "Those are purely personal choices. The amendment simply wants every woman to be assured her rights."

Silea also said Hunsinger's action to rescind the amendment is invalidated by previous legal precedents. Several states have already ruled that a legislature which has defeated the amendment may reconsider the vote, but an approval may not be reversed.

MacIntosh said it would take an organized public education campaign to get the amendment passed in the remaining states.

Women as a political force may rally around this issue, Hammond said, but the opposing groups are very active.

"Those who are for the amendment tend to sit back and just say, 'Yes, I believe in that,'" she said.

Women have got to get the law passed by refusing to vote for legislators who do not support the amendment, she said, and by dispelling the myths about women's rights.

If women use the political process, she emphasized, the amendment will be passed.

U. S. accuses Hanoi of violations demands.

At the same time, the United States pledged to adhere to the terms of the agreement, and it urged Hanoi and the other conference participants "to help bring about a lasting peace in Indochina."

King said a formal reply by Saigon to the Communist accusations is expected.

The specific violations charged by the United States against North Vietnam and "forces under its control" in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia also included.

A substantial effort to upgrade the road system within Laos and adjoining parts of South Vietnam as clandestine supply highways.

Placement of mines by troops under Hanoi's control to interfere with train service.

Calculated obstruction in the four-party Joint Military Commission.

In defense of its own behavior, the United States said it has scrupulously observed the agreement by withdrawing its own military forces from Vietnam and not participating in any hostilities there.

The department said there were no U.S. military personnel in South Vietnam disguised as civilians, and that less than 9,000 Americans officially were in the country, most of them "filling logistics and maintenance functions which are soon to be taken over by the South Vietnamese."
