

Solitary drinking

More and more students are turning to the bottle as drugs lose their attraction. Rather than going out to bars, many students stay home with cards, a few close friends, and more than a few cold ones.

Campus booze intake reported on increase

Chuck used to go out to the bars once or twice a week and have a couple beers with friends.

Now, after breaking up with his girlfriend, he hits the bottle at 8 each night in his room and usually passes out by 4 a.m.

Fortunately, this term Chuck has all afternoon classes, and manages to trudge through his studies despite his nightly escapes.

As the drug mystique takes a new turn, alcohol in greater quantities seems to be sliding more easily down the throats of an increasing number of students.

Though most residence hall directors and graduate advisers report no problem and no increase in alcohol usage, individual resident assistants who live in closer proximity to students disagree. They say that for many of the students on their floors, drinking is the "big and the only weekend activity."

Others, they say, are beer-sippers who finish off a six-pack while studying each night.

Robert Zucker, associate professor of psychology who has studied adolescent alcohol usage at Rutgers Center for Alcoholism Studies and at MSU, estimates that 20 per cent of State News staff writers Sue Ager, left, and Irene Evans have pulled together a comprehensive look at a growing drug abuse problem — alcoholism. This week, the State News offers a series of articles on alcoholism both on campus and in the county.

MSU students can be classified heavy drinkers — those who drink often and occasionally a lot, or those who drink occasionally but always a lot.

Half of these, Zucker says, or 1 of every 10 students, may be potential problem drinkers who drink to cover up or escape a deeper problem running through his life.

Zucker bases his estimates on national survey data collected in California.

But statistical evidence of the use of alcohol by students is scarce.

Lansing and East Lansing alcohol treatment agencies agree with Bob Hammond, executive director of the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems, that the number of students seeking treatment is "pretty nil." But this, they say, is a poor measure of actual student involvement in the resurrected pastime.

More youths found in grip of alcoholism

Old Man Booze is still alive in Michigan, and there are an estimated 469,797 alcoholics in the state to prove it. In the tri-county area, which includes Clinton, Eaton and Ingham counties, there are an estimated 7,195 alcoholics.

"Though these figures are higher than last year," John McConnell, chief of the Alcoholism Control Section in the Michigan Dept. of Health, said, "we just have better and more exact figures to work with."

Alcoholism is a disease which knows no social limits. It affects the rich, the poor, blacks, whites, women, men, the young and the old.

"Not all alcoholics are middle-aged businessmen," Bob Hammond, executive director of the Michigan Council on Alcoholism, said.

Some treatment centers used to say that a person 35 to 40-years-old had no drinking problem because they were too young, Hammond said.

"But now those same centers are finding alcoholism in younger and younger people," Hammond said.

For example, at one major factory in Lansing, alcoholism is a problem the employe may have before he begins working in the factory.

Jim Chapin, investigator for the alcohol detection program at the Oldsmobile Division of General Motors in Lansing, said the people his company works with are as young as 19-years-old.

"A lot of these people actually started drinking between the ages of 14 and 16," Chapin said. "But instead of getting better, the problem gets progressively worse."

The worsening of drinking habits is one of the symptoms of the disease

Students form campus job unit

By NANCY CRANE

The state's first campus wide student employe association was formed Saturday at a student labor conference sponsored by the Kellogg Center Student Employee Assn., the MSU Student Employee Assn., and the main goal is the complete unionization of student employes at MSU.

on the unionization attempt of the Kellogg Center Student Employees Assn.

The Kellogg student employes' request for separate bargaining will be reviewed at a Wednesday meeting between the Michigan Employment Relations Commission and representatives of the board of trustees. At the meeting, the state commission will determine if a specific group exists at Kellogg Center to be organized into a collective bargaining unit.

The definition of a collective bargaining group would be followed by a vote of the student employes.

As the Kellogg group continues its unionization attempts, the group is also pressing for an all-campus student labor unit. If this goal is accomplished, it would be the first all-student employe labor union in Michigan. Other attempts have been blocked by University administrators or died from student apathy.

The Kellogg group made the request for a separate bargaining unit because Kellogg Center is a hotel which does not provide services to students.

The MSU association hopes to keep the student employe issue alive on campus until September.

The association will do this by encouraging students to form informal student associations modeled after the Kellogg group.

Tim Cain, president of the Kellogg association, said the best strategy for informal student groups is "Play the bureaucrats off against each other."

"The management didn't get together to fight us (the Kellogg association) until we began talking union," he said. "We had the Kellogg management petrified every time we had a conference with the vice president or the student employment office."

Aides ask Nixon to fire staff linked to bugging

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is being strongly urged by White House aides just below the top level to drop out all those involved in the Watergate scandal, according to a staff aide in private, and major White House office holders in public, that the quick removal of such persons is one of the few steps open to the President, who spent the week-end in guarded seclusion.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., announced that he will introduce today a resolution calling on Nixon to take the case out of the hands of his appointees in the Justice Dept. and to place it with a politically independent special prosecutor of irreproachable reputation and "impeccable" integrity.

Percy said, however, that he hopes Nixon will seize the initiative by making a full statement on the case and by firing all those members of his staff who have lost public confidence.

Robert W. Meserve, of Boston, president of the American Bar Assn., endorsed proposals for a special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation. Stressing that he was speaking personally and not as the bar association's president, Meserve told newsmen that there is precedent for such a move, citing former President Calvin Coolidge's appointment of a special prosecutor in the Teapot Dome scandals of the 1920's.

Meserve was in Washington for a speech today.

A similar proposal was made by Sargent Shriver, the 1972 Democratic vice presidential candidate, who said that five former Supreme Court justices should be asked by the President to appoint a special prosecutor with jurisdiction over "every aspect" of the affair.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., said the White House may be putting out a deliberately false impression by implying that L. Patrick Gray III was forced out of his job as acting FBI director.

The source on the White House staff said that those aides who are

PA official take over post at FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) - William D. Ruckelshaus plans to take over as FBI director today with the hope of pursuing all leads turned over by the grand jury investigating the Watergate bugging raid, an aide said. As aide Jack Conmy told a man over the weekend that Ruckelshaus "is not simply going to be a taker director," although he told President Nixon that he would observe temporarily - perhaps for two Conmy said Ruckelshaus felt the must "run down all leads turned over by the grand jury" in the Watergate case which led to the abrupt resignation Friday of acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, was appointed to the post less than 48 hours after Gray's resignation. Asked whether Ruckelshaus would assume personal responsibility for the Watergate investigation, Conmy answered: "He will be up to his neck in it."

Ruckelshaus moved over the weekend prompting reports that he will run for the U.S. Senate in his home state of Indiana next year. There has been increasing speculation that Ruckelshaus would run against old political foe Sen. Birch Bayh, who defeated him in a 1968 Senate race.

RHA fee plan OKd in on-campus vote

By BOB OURLIAN
State News Staff Writer

All students living in residence halls next year will have to pay a refundable sum of up to $1.75 before they can complete registration each term.

This sum, intended to replace current hall dues, results from Thursday's referendum where on-campus students voted to amend the Residence Hall Assn. (RHA) constitution.

The amendment passed by a 2,455 - 1,463 vote. The voters comprise 23 per cent of the 16,500 students presently living in residence halls.

The amendment will allow RHA to assess up to $1.75 from each student who will live in a residence hall and then give each hall that amount for each student in the hall. For example, if the assessment is fixed at $1 and a hall houses 300 students, it will receive $300.

The amendment also has a provision for students to receive refunds if they do not wish to pay.

A similar referendum, minus a refund clause was voted down last May by the 2,500 students who voted in that referendum.

Gene Buckner, president of RHA, explained that the sum, to be determined at a 6:30 p.m. meeting Wednesday at McDonel Hall, will probably be in the neighborhood of $1. At that meeting, representatives from each hall will determine what amount, up to the maximum $1.75, will be needed to meet the needs of all halls.

Another meeting is planned for later this term to work out a policy for refunds. Buckner reasoned that not as many students will want their hall

Bombs explode in California

Bombs carried aboard a munitions train continued to explode Sunday, more than a day after a series of blasts turned a rail yard into a square mile of flaming boxcars and flying shrapnel.

The continued detonations of the 250 - pound bombs, the sort dropped by American B52s in Southeast Asia, prevented Air Force and Army bomb experts from moving into the still-smoking Roseville yards of the Southern Pacific Railroad 15 miles northeast of Sacramento.

Meir calls for self-reliance

Israel conducted memorial services Sunday for the six million Jews killed by the Nazis, and said it would rely on itself alone to safeguard the Jewish people.

Premier Golda Meir declared to the world: "You who did nothing to save Jews in the holocaust — you shall not preach to us now."

In another area, Meir has instigated policies intended to expand the civil rights of 366,000 Arab citizens to reward them for loyalty to the Jewish state in the past 25 years.

Agnew top choice in poll

Vice President Spiro Agnew is the top choice among Republican voters for the GOP presidential nomination, the Gallup Poll reported Sunday.

Agnew would win the votes of 35 per cent of those Republicans questioned, followed by Gov. Ronald Reagan of California with 20 per cent and former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally with 15 per cent.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York had 11 per cent and Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois 8 per cent.

Former president surfaces

Former South Vietnamese President Duong Van "Big" Minh is about to come out of political hiding as figurehead of a new force that aims for a middle role between the Communists and President Nguyen Van Thieu, political sources said Sunday.

The new force also is expected to bring the militant An Quang Buddhist pagoda, which claims the largest number of adherents in South Vietnam, out into the political arena for the first time since 1971.

Brandt visits Washington

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt arrived in Washington Sunday for two days of talks with President Nixon on U. S. - European relations.

The visit follows the proposal six days ago by presidential adviser Henry Kissinger that the Atlantic charter, drafted 32 years ago by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, be rewritten to revitalize the partnership.

The chancellor is to meet with Nixon Tuesday and Wednesday. U. S. officials believe the meetings could be especially significant since Soviet Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev is to visit Brandt in May.

the commission, suggested that a public access channel be provided on the FM radio band system in the proposed cable agreement.

"More people in this area are interested in radio and have receivers than own TVs. Could they (the cable company) provide a station on FM for community input?" he asked.

National Cable Co. attorney Charles Norman replied that it was technically possible. "The idea has merit, though the legal problems are large," he said, referring to the problems of obscenity and slander.

After testimony, city council requested the cable commission reexamine studio facility requirements and the number of free public channels reserved in the proposed franchise.

During Tuesday's council meeting, council members will vote on whether to approve the National Cable

Co. franchise bid and complete deliberations that began Dec. 13 when the council first looked at the company's proposal.

Under the old, looser East Lansing cable television ordinance, National Cable Co. now serves part of married housing on campus and a small area of East Lansing.

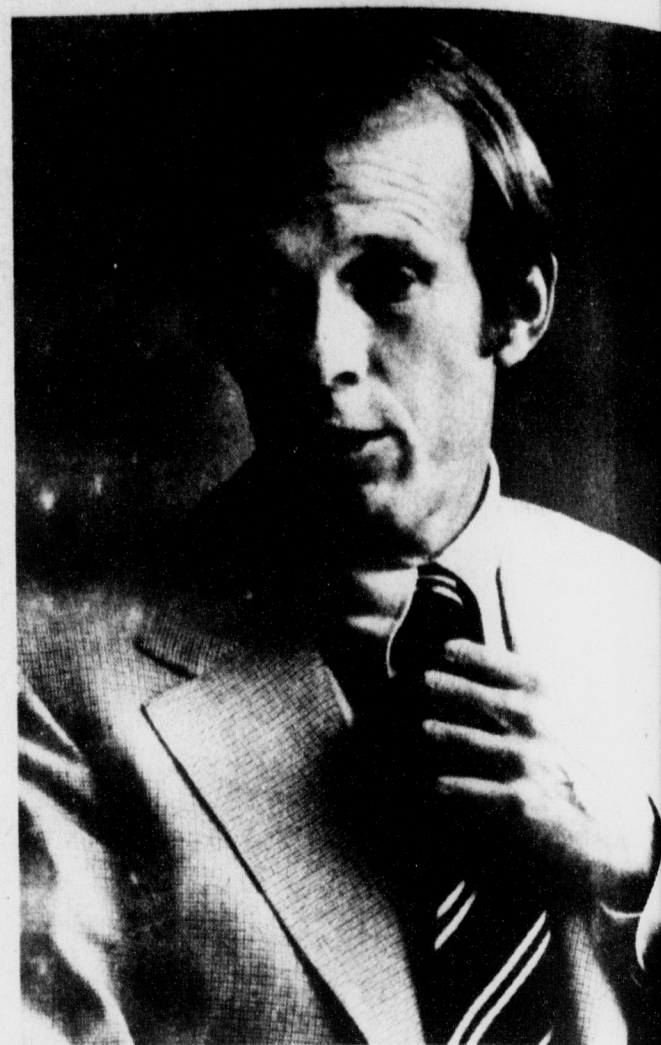

But the advantage of larger numbers of commercial channels available under the old ordinance only hints at the service National Cable Co. will be required to provide if they are granted a franchise under the new ordinance.

The simple 12-channel system now in use would be replaced by a 60-channel system. Thirty channels have been designated for general distribution, but most interested is centered on the remaining channels to be aside for schools, city buildings, sports facilities, hospitals, MSU and recreational centers.

Not only will such facilities be able to receive educational and informational programs on 16 channels from the cable company's central distribution point, but they will be able to originate their own programs to be sent out on the 14 additional channels in the reverse direction.

The television services the company must provide under its proposed agreement include a community affairs channel with 24-hour local news; special news reports for ethnic minorities; live news events; sports events from local junior high, high schools and colleges; and programs of community-wide interest in the political area.

S. Viets, VC to swap captives

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting ebbed across South Vietnam Sunday as the Saigon regime and the Viet Cong prepared for another round of civilian prisoner exchanges. The international truce force began a new investigation of the fatal April 7 crash of one of its helicopters.

In Cambodia, insurgent forces maintained pressure around the capital city of Phnom Penh. President Lon

Nol announced that he will head the newly created four-man political council designed to calm criticism from his opponents and allies that Cambodia is under one-man rule.

The Saigon command reported 74 cease-fire violations across Vietnam during the 24-hour period ended at 6 a.m. Sunday, the second lowest number since the truce went into effect three months ago.

The Saigon command announced it will release 400 civilian prisoners today to the Viet Cong.

The first phase of the civilian prisoner exchange began Saturday. The exchange of civilian prisoners had been delayed since the cease-fire went into effect Jan. 28 in a dispute over the number each side holds. Under terms of the peace agreement, the exchange was to have been completed Friday, but now the target date is still uncertain.

A 19-man team moved into Communist territory by road to reexamine the helicopter crash site and to dismantle a second helicopter that made a forced landing during the same incident.

The reinvestigation aimed at settling a dispute over whether the second helicopter was moved by the Communists to back their claim that the aircraft strayed off assigned safety corridor and met with an accident.

Oil companies skid in energy shortage

Today's "triumph over adversity" award goes to the 13 major American oil companies who have weathered the energy crisis so well that their first-quarter profits have jumped 10 to 58 per cent.

Texaco Inc. reported a 14.8 per cent rise in net income on a rise in revenue to about $2.5 billion. Exxon Corp., one of the biggest international oil companies, reported a 43.1 per cent increase in its quarterly net figures. And oil company executives expect the escalating trend to continue.

Such success must be comforting news to the less fortunate Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America, which recently estimated that about 1,000 of its 21,000 member stations nationwide have already shut down, victims of dwindling gasoline supplies at refineries.

Some energy experts are already predicting the end of the independent along with cut rate gasoline.

Certainly President Nixon's recent message on the energy crisis which is not expected to have a significant effect for at least three years, holds few hopes for either the independents or budget-conscious consumers. Oil companies, though, have few complaints.

While the message does end a quota system on oil imports, it offers a generous consolation prize to companies fearing the influx of "cheap foreign oil." Offshore lands available for exploration and exploitation will be tripled and new tax deductions on well-building will be set.

Not surprisingly, Nixon's message has caught criticism from environmentalists and lawmakers. They claim it only superficially deals with the need to conserve energy and rejects more research on energy sources.

However the heated controversy ends, the costs of the changes to be made in America's gluttonous style of energy consumption will inevitably put the burden for change on the consumer. He will have to give up on his gas buggy in favor of more energy-economical means of transportation such as mass transit.

Eventually, the oil companies, in turn, will have to stop gloating about profits and start thinking seriously about questions more pressing to society than the condition of their next quarterly statement.

POINT OF VIEW

By VIRGINIA E. ROSS
Vice president
MSU Employees Assn.

Some matters regarding the clerical-technical position and election on campus need clarification.

More than five years ago, a group of concerned clerical-technical employees started holding meetings. Object: Organization, and recognition by the MSU administration, as the bargaining unit. Nights and lunch hours were spent contacting other concerned employees - finally forming the nucleus of an organization. More meetings, and eventually a constitution and by-laws were drafted, revised, rewritten, and finally accepted by those interested enough to come to meetings, to contribute mentally, physically and financially, to what evolved as the MSU Employees Assn.

Aha! A larger and more affluent "parent-type" organization - the American Federation of Labor - cast longing eyes on the group and started recruiting for their own organization. All sorts of goodies were offered as inducements, financed by dues paid by hard working "members" of locals under the "protective umbrella" of the American Federation of Labor. Alas, they could not - and did not secure enough signed authorizations to petition an election. The successful efforts of the employees group brought it to fruition, and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees rode our coat tails as the intervenor. That first election proved that clerical-technical employees do want representation.

The second (run-off) election was not won by the employees federation as the distinguished C. Patric Larowe would lead you to believe. At this point, the employees association has the majority of votes. The margin is close, but the final decision will not be reached until the Michigan Employment Relations Commission counts all the ballots. Then, and only then, will a unit be certified and recognized.

As to the employees who suddenly on a Sunday afternoon preceding the second election, became supervisors, most do not qualify as supervisors under the state definition. They are employees with years of service, as well as voluntary education for self-improvement in their employment, who are willing to share experience and education with newer employees. This does not make them supervisors. Most do not have authority to hire, fire, nor even to reprimand - all they do is share. They are classified and paid as clerical-technical employees. If, in truth, they were supervisors, it has never been recognized in a remunerative manner nor in reclassification of employment. Thus they are entitled to vote, have the vote count, and to make their wishes known.

The board of directors, elected by concerned clerical-technical employees have been "wooned but not won" by representatives of the employees federation. They sent in their "big guns" seeking a merger. We, as your representatives, would have been traitors had we done other than refuse. We were offered choice tidbits, but stood fast by our convictions - and yours! The people currently serving in the board of directors have integrity and are vitally interested in the welfare of the clerical-technical employees.

The employees association can do anything any organization can do, and can do it better. They can better represent the employees - because it is the clerical-technical employees. It is not ruled by outsiders nor is it necessary to send vast sums of money to maintain state, national and international offices and employees.

Now, there is an even larger job to be done, and we need help from clerical-technical employees. An annual meeting is in the offing and remember this is your organization. Offer your assistance. We need you!

Laying limit on litter

Litter is a constant flutter of pain to the esthetic beauty of the University campus and it's good to see the Waste Control Authority doing something to clean up the mess.

Specially-marked litter boxes were placed in buildings across campus last Friday for students to use as refuse containers. "Litter is Ugly" bumper stickers were also given out to promote a deep-seated hate for paper and plastic and metal garbage.

Students can also rescue the State News each day from the fiery depths of an incinerator and instead recycle the paper for future issues. Boxes in residence halls are designated for the recycling program and is another convenient way for the community to combat litter.

The Waste Control Authority's campaign of the past weekend is an effective prelude to the massive spring dredging of the Red Cedar River. Students and faculty members could do MSU and the environment a favor by taking part in the cleanup, and help make the Red Cedar a prettier river to look at.

(c) 1973 NEW YORK TIMES
NEWS SERVICE

The forgotten factor in the Watergate case is that it is only the most dramatic part of a much wider political conspiracy. Everybody seems to be concentrating now on punishing the people who planned, financed or approved the illegal espionage of the Democrats at the Watergate, but very little attention is being paid to the people who organized the disruption and the sabotage of the Democrats in the presidential campaign.

Everybody now seems to be saying that we have to get at the facts of the burglary and bugging of the Democratic headquarters, and see that the people who broke the law, who committed perjury, or who obstructed justice be punished.

But this is one of those complicated problems where the people who actually broke the law may have done less damage than the people who merely evaded the law. Maybe the espionage by Liddy, McCord, and the other convicted conspirators - though it was a clear violation of the law - was not as disruptive of the American political process as the money corruption by Stans and the other Republican fund-raisers, or the calls in the night, the dirty tricks and the sabotage against Muskie, McGovern and Humphrey.

So, if there is now to be a total disclosure of the corruption in the last presidential campaign, it will not be good enough to deal only with the problem of espionage at the Watergate. It will have to go beyond the espionage, the burglary and the bugging in Washington, to the sabotage of the Democratic candidates, the corruption of how money was raised, concealed, and finally diverted to finance not only espionage but also sabotage.

You don't have to break the law like these Watergate burglars to influence presidential elections. You can merely organize a Dept. of Dirty Tricks on the side. You can call up voters in New Hampshire and ask them to vote for Ed Muskie because he wants to give blacks a home in the state, or because he favors busing or abortion. It is dirty but legal.

You can get your young guys to volunteer in opposition headquarters, to pass on the opposing candidate's schedule and the advance text of his speech, to arrange for people to heckle him, and to tell off the television people in advance, so that the confrontation makes good pictures for the network news shows.

The possibilities of this kind of political corruption are endless. Letters were sent out in the Florida primary last year under Muskie's name proposing policies which were highly unpopular to Florida voters. Anonymously printed "flyers" were distributed suggesting all kinds of immoral relationships by the Democratic candidates. This has apparently been accepted by many people as the normal corruption of American politics. "Everybody does it!"

So now there is a brutal and conspicuous corruption in American politics, a moral apathy and spiritual bewilderment in the land, and the chances are that it won't be removed by indicting the culprits in the Watergate affair or by cleaning out the White House staff.

This is not primarily a legal, but rather a philosophic problem, and even a human tragedy.

Henry Kissinger said in New York the other day that after all the tragedies of the Watergate are over after justice is done, "Then we have to ask ourselves whether we can afford an orgy of recrimination, whether we should not keep in mind that the United States will be the longer than any particular crisis."

Well, nobody wants an "orgy of recrimination," nor would anyone deny the need for compassion, but the Watergate characters are not really the main thing. The people who raised the money and concealed its source, and the people who organized the sabotage of the American political process, are probably more to blame than the burglars at the Watergate. Somehow they are getting away with it, which is the final irony of the whole tragedy. The Watergate and the courts are not the end of all this, but rather only the beginning.

Did University persecute Royal?

To the Editor:

John Royal, former MSU student, was found guilty of "obstructing an officer" on April 19 in Ingham County Circuit court. A jury of 10 women and 2 men did the deed after receiving instructions from Judge Marvin J. Salmon. These instructions specified that if the jury had reasonable doubt as to Royal's guilt they were to find him innocent. In talking to one of the jurors after the trial we discovered that many of the jurors had been undecided as to his guilt. They felt there were too many contradictions in both the prosecution and defense testimonies to make a clear-cut decision, so they decided in favor of the police and the university, which was contrary to the judge's instructions. This juror then flippantly added that "John won't serve time anyway."

But the jury isn't the villain in this case, it was merely a pawn. Given the jurors' white middle-class middle-aged background, it is not surprising that they chose to believe the police and not Royal and other eyewitnesses.

MSU had clearly decided to get Royal on some charge and make an example of him. Royal was arrested by a plain-clothes MSU cop, who was also a student at the time.

The point of all this is that President Wharton will make statements as he did last spring - that he is opposed to the war and that legitimate protest will be allowed, but when those protests begin to have a concrete effect on war recruiting or University policy, the University will harass and arrest people in hopes of stifling protest and diverting them from opposing the war.

Abortions at Olin

To the Editor:

Hasn't anybody told the "Students United for Life" and their vocal leader that the U.S. Supreme Court ruled 7-2 that abortions are now legal? Somehow this small handful of students have completely ignored the legality of this issue and concentrated only on their own view of morality. The morality of abortion is a personal matter which each individual must decide for him or herself. We hope that the board of trustees knows that a small group of vocal mothers picketing the health center with their "wanted children" does not represent the entire MSU student body.

As a legal medical operation, abortion services should be available at all licensed, registered hospitals. The University Health Center qualifies as such and therefore should offer complete medical service. If a medical procedure is both legal and safe, why must people go to another city or state for their health care? To deny that choice to the majority would seem unconstitutional, given the present Supreme Court ruling.

Boiling mad over heater

To the Editor:

Last Friday's blow-up of a soldered joint on the hot water heater located between 1404 and 1405 Spartan Village and the prior boiling of water highlights the dangers which result when safety precautions are neglected and worn out parts are not replaced. The responsibility for this mishap lies with Married Student Housing.

I wonder when was the last time a plumbing inspector checked the numerous boiler rooms to inspect the functioning of the units as well as the safety devices' conditions. I know, from writing on the blown heater, that that one had not been cleaned since 1969. Does it take property damage and near-personal injury (ask police officers who were in the room when the joint blew) to take proper care of their heating units?

I suggest married housing immediately to have a plumbing inspector check the units at least once a year so preventative maintenance required, can take place.

UNANIMOUS ASMSU OK

OBA funds released

By MIKE LaNOUE
State News Staff Writer

Without much discussion or hesitation the policy committee of ASMSU voted unanimously Thursday, to take a freeze off Office of Black Affairs (OBA) funds that has been imposed on the organization since last November because of the Conrad incident.

The group also talked at some length about State News operations.

The Conrad incident involved the banning of all non blacks from attending an address by Stokely Carmichael, which was sponsored by the OBA.

The controversy surrounded the legality of this move and resulted in the subsequent withdrawal of ASMSU funds to the organization.

The vote came after a recent finding by the entire ASMSU Board that OBA was not in violation of student rights in the Conrad incident.

Charles Massoglia, chairman of the committee, said that ASMSU still has control over how monies allocated to the OBA are spent. But he added that any money the organization raises on its own will be out of the jurisdiction of ASMSU.

Following the OBA decision, the board held a lengthy discussion of the State News corporate structure and $1 fee, which had recently come under fire by various groups in the community.

Complaints have been made that the State News is not a student newspaper and that it is not a nonprofit corporation.

Since the State News became independent of the University in July 1971, questions about the newspaper's affiliation with the University, corporate status and the student fee have been questioned, but only recently has ASMSU felt the need to have a hearing on State News' status as a student paper.

Massoglia made it clear that the action of ASMSU on the State News was by no means binding or official but was simply a hearing to gain input on a matter brought to the committee's attention. John Borger, editor-in-chief of the State News described the corporate structure of the newspaper including the board of directors and their function at the request of the committee.

He said that the board of directors exercises control only over the hiring of the general manager, the editor-in-chief and the advertising manager.

The $1 fee is a substantial part of the total budget of the State News, Borger said, adding however that the majority of revenue for the State News comes from advertising.

Borger told the committee that the State News profits from last year, which amounted to about $40,000 were put into two areas.

Half of the money was put into a State News reserve fund, which is aimed at having a reserve of one year's operating funds for emergency use, and the rest of the money was given to the Committee of Alternative Voices, for papers to be used at the discretion.

East Lansing voting precinct 16 will face review by the Ingham County Republican party to determine if there were any voting irregularities in the 1972 election.

Eldon Sneeringer, chairman of the study committee, said there was a particular reason that precinct 16 was chosen except that it is heavily Democratic.

Precinct 16 includes Phillips Snyder and Mason

Abbott residence halls.

The committee has just completed a study of two Meridian Township precincts which revealed that no one from either precinct had voted in different districts.

Sneeringer, apparently not satisfied with the results, asked the party to approve the study.

Jim Pocock, who ran unsuccessfully against H. Lynn Jondahl for state representative from East Lansing, protested continuing the study. He said the committee should be content with the results from the two Meridian precincts.

"It's just a waste of time to continue this study," he said. "Our activities should be directed in a more positive direction."

"Continuing this study will just give us (the Republican party) a poor

Sneeringer said that if someone was found to have voted in two districts, he would be used as an example of what would happen to anyone who was caught. Hopefully, the Republicans could then prosecute, he said.

In Meridian Township it was hoped something would be found to upset the county commissioner's race in which Republican incumbent Charles White lost to Democrat John Veenstra, Sneeringer said.

Sneeringer would not say which elective office was being closely examined in East Lansing precinct 16.

The study will be made by volunteers checking voting records for the names of those who voted in the 1972 election, followed by phone calls to those people to insure that they cast their ballots in only one district.

Milliken names group to review role of GOP

Gov. Milliken has appointed a committee to review the role of the Republican party in the 1970's with a view towards modernization and securing more support. The Ingham County Republicans announced at the April meeting Thursday.

The 18-member Republican Revision and Development Committee will attempt to answer such questions as what the Republican party is, where it is going, what it is trying to do, and how it can best be done.

Milliken, in appointing the committee, said that 1972 had been a highly successful year for the Republicans.

"However," he said, "we need to revise the base of the party in Michigan to allow for more participation of youth and minorities."

Jeff Pillon, chairman of the East Lansing Republican Committee, saw the change as a step forward for the party.

"Any group," he said, "especially a political party, should be open to change. It's really important that we look and see how we are running and responding to the public."

"We're a good party, but we want to be even better." The revision committee will hold open hearings at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday in Capital Rooms A and B in the Olds Plaza, Lansing.

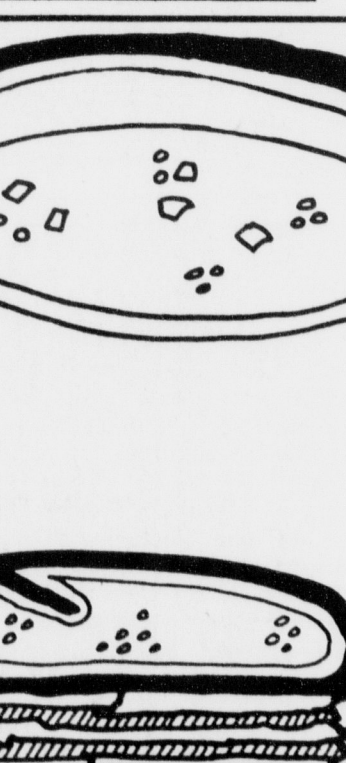

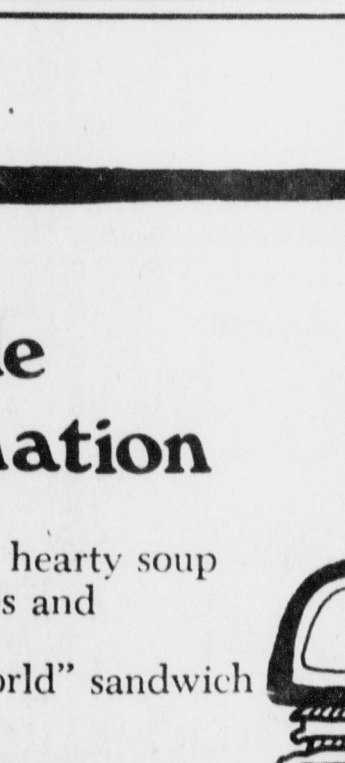

The Ingham County Republicans are also concerned over the many members who have not paid this year's dues.

Julie Abraham, membership chairman, said that dues collections are far behind last year's rate.

Election

Poll workers are needed for the PIRGIM Board of Directors election on Tuesday. Workers will work from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will be paid $1.70 an hour. For further information call 353-8266.

Campus drinking rise reported

One residence hall head adviser sees no increase in students seeking counseling. However, he measures rising alcohol usage by increasing loads of beer cans and liquor bottles which fill trash cans each morning, a method he admits is "very unscientific."

Police statistics are not much more reliable. Campus police arrested 131 people on charges of driving under the influence of alcohol and 55 for drunkenness between July 1971, and June 1972. But campus records are not classified by age, so the drunk student is indistinguishable from the drunk visitor.

State Police records show, however, an alarming 10,580 arrests in 1972 of persons under 20 years of age on charges of drunkenness or driving under the influence of alcohol.

A former MSU graduate student, a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, maintains that problem alcohol usage will "get bigger and worse" among students, who now have ample funds to buy liquor.

A survey of Lizard's, Lums, the Brewery, the Stables and the Alley shows student population willing to pay cover charges and the higher prices of alcohol at these drinking spots. The average attendance on any weekend night at these five spots totals about 4,550 persons, most of them students and most of them drinkers.

But resident assistants say many students living on their floors now prefer the privacy of a residence hall room, the company of two or three close friends, a deck of well-worn cards and the relative "cheapness" of retail rather than bar liquor.

It's an acceptable alternative to doing something," an East Holmes Hall RA speculates.

"You don't have to meet new people that way," he says, "or expose your personality. It's a lot easier than going out to a bar."

Rick Proppe, an Emmons Hall resident assistant, notes heavier use of what he calls "hard core stuff": rum, tequila, bourbon and whiskey.

"Nobody has just a couple of beers anymore," he says. "Instead they always get really drunk, on a couple cases of beer or a couple pints."

Dr. Richard Bates, an East Lansing physician and founder of the former alcoholism and drug addiction ward at Sparrow Hospital, said student drinking problems are too often taken too lightly by the students themselves.

"A number of students can be called alcoholic, but it's not too apparent to them because it's hidden within the phenomenon of teenage drinking which students have always done and will always do," Bates said. He feels alcohol usage has been ignored too often in the past 10 years when health authorities were concerned mainly about student drug usage.

"It seems the vogue thing now is to be all fucked up, drunk or high all the time," Claude Kazanski, S. Case Hall RA said. "The most frightening thing is that to enjoy itself society must get that way."

Voters OK RHA fee plan

fee refunded as students who want their State News fee or Michigan State Network (MSN) fee refunded, because a hall fee is much more immediate. Buckner felt that the new fee will be "an awful big advantage to most students," pointing out that some halls charge up to $7 a year for fees.

Buckner said the referendum had an admittedly low turnout, though higher than last May's vote.

He attributed this to a general apathy among students presently living in residence halls since a lot of them are moving off campus next year. "Those who didn't vote," he said, "didn't care. And those who did vote got what they wanted."

Critics of the amendment with refund provisions contend that a voluntary system of hall dues works just as well as the RHA system.

Alcoholism

alcoholism. Like any other disease, it has other symptoms which are "warning signals" that individuals should be aware of.

The first symptom is an increased need for alcohol to produce the desired "high" or effect. A drinker may need 10 drinks to produce the same effect five used to.

Other symptoms of importance are sneaking drinks, preoccupation with drinking, gulping drinks to get the effects quickly, and avoiding listening to, talking about or reading anything that may call attention to his drinking behavior.

The soon-to-be alcoholic also suffers from blackouts or periods of alcohol induced amnesia and a loss of self-control when alcohol is introduced to his system. After that happens, he is a full-fledged alcoholic.

Drinking at this point interferes with the individual's regular routine, and most persons at this stage deny that they have a problem.

"We have to convince them that they have a problem," Chapin said. "Hopefully, they will seek help."

The Oldsmobile division in Lansing finds its problem drinkers by observing work performance. There tends to be a high rate of absenteeism when drinking is abnormal.

"They start the weekend on Friday and just can't make it in on Monday," Chapin said.

Attorney warns women to 'wake up,' fight sexism

"Women who have anesthetized themselves to institutional discrimination had better wake up," Jean King, Ann Arbor attorney, warned women at the Faculty Women's Assn. meeting last week.

King filed the first significant sex discrimination complaint with the government against the University of Michigan in 1970 which resulted in the withholding of over $3 million in government funds.

It is important for women to join across all status and class gaps to form alliances among blue collar, secretarial and clerical workers as well as faculty women and students, King said.

She said the potential support for organized women's efforts at MSU is particularly widespread. King said support for those women who want to further themselves through career opportunities is crucial to the women's movement.

King also said support is often denied faculty women, and that women should not trust people in administrative position to look after their best interests.

"Trust is sometimes a woman's worst enemy, especially in academia," King said.

The Faculty Women's Assn., one of the largest women's organizations on campus, also awarded scholarships to five outstanding women graduate students at the meeting.

The recipients were: Mary Bednarski, Hamtramck graduate; Leonor Conzevo, East Lansing graduate; Suzanne Hammer, Albion graduate; Eleanor Schlenker, Laureldale, Pa. graduate and Gloria Woodard, Detroit graduate.

Martin Malin, vice president of the Kellogg association, said that state laws allow students to organize unions, but the type of bargaining units students may organize is often questioned.

A bargaining unit is determined by community of interest so if students working in residence hall cafeterias wanted to organize, they would probably have to organize all the other residence hall cafeterias into the same bargaining unit.

Malin said it would not be difficult to organize all student employes on campus because students are disgusted with their working conditions.

"It only took the Kellogg Center Student Employees Assn. two nights to get the 30 per cent signatures needed to call for a union election," he said.

Hazel Clipp, shop

steward at the Kellogg Center for Local 1585 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees said, "There is a reason for students to organize because they (MSU) aren't treating students with dignity. They (MSU) need the students but they don't appreciate them."

Clipp said that because "the university has 1,001 ways to beat a union" the MSU association should form as strong a union as possible, suggesting that students be asked to join the union before they accept campus employment.

Most of the 25 students at Saturday's meeting echoed Clipp's comments that students who work for the University are stripped of their dignity. They said that regulations on employee conduct are not uniform.

One woman student said, "every student works on the whim of his supervisors. I work in the Library and my supervisor makes me wear a dress to work. Library employees in other departments don't have to wear dresses."

In order to combat contradictory supervisory regulations, the MSU association is compiling a booklet on University supervisors which will be distributed to prospective student employees.

Watergate

(continued from page 1) urging Nixon to fire those implicated so far may be doing so at the risk of their own jobs if that advice is not taken.

"Their own positions may become untenable," the source said, because the men they are seeking to oust include White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman and Chief Domestic Adviser John Ehrlichman.

The Washington Post, in its Sunday editions, quoted an unnamed White House official as saying that presidential counsel John Dean III intends to swear under oath that he gave Haldeman and Ehrlichman regular progress reports on attempts to cover up the Watergate bugging.

The Post said that at least two other high-level White House officials have concluded that Haldeman and Ehrlichman supervised a cover up.

And it quoted another source as saying that the President and his top advisers are aware of Dean's intentions and that they are planning a strategy to offset his charges.

Dean, the Post quoted its sources as saying, has written a story of his version of the bugging of Democratic party headquarters at the Watergate Hotel, and of the steps taken to prevent public disclosure of it.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said that, if the Watergate affair is not cleaned up by 1974, chances for Republican success in that year's mid-term elections could be damaged.

"If we get through it (Watergate) and finish it in the public consciousness," Agnew said, "then I don't see how we're going to be hurt by it. If it's still dangling, it's going to hurt us because it's being discussed as a cover up and it's eroding confidence."

"People are going to be cleared or indicted, and when speculation is put aside, then the full impact of the Watergate affair can be properly analyzed," he said.

Batters score 44 runs, sweep weekend series

By PAM WRIGHT
State News Sports Writer

The fact that the women's softball team has strong hitting and base running was proven to be an understatement this weekend.

The Spartans tallied an astounding 44 runs defeating Grand Valley College Friday and sweeping a doubleheader from Calvin Saturday.

MSU defeated Grand Valley, 8-4, and had no problem taking an 11-9 victory over Calvin in the first game and a 25-5 victory in the second game.

"Our batting just looked superb," Anne Irwin, coach of the women's softball team said. "I thought we would have some problem with our opponent's pitching, it's a lot slower than ours, but we adjusted well."

Junior pitcher Sherrie Tyler added two more wins to her record, remaining undefeated this season. Tyler pitched against Grand Valley and went in to relieve junior Cindy Elliot to get a win against Calvin.

Tyler has a 3.30 earned run average. "Sherrie has been doing just great," Irwin commented.

"Not only is she pitching well for us but she's got one of the best batting averages on the team, also."

Senior pitcher Pat Casey picked up her first win against Calvin.

"Pat did much better this weekend," Irwin said. "This was only her second game and she needs to build up some confidence more than anything else."

All the Spartan starters, except one, have at least a .300 batting average. There of the Spartans have hit the .500 mark. Tyler has a .500 batting average, junior Cindy Elliot is hitting .527 and freshman Beth Carson leads the team with a .565 average.

Carson paced the Spartans with 10 hits for 13 times at bat. She hit two doubles, two triples and one home run.

"Beth is a strong hitter," Irwin commented. "She was our clean-up person this weekend."

Irwin was especially pleased with the marked improvement in the Spartan defense. Last week against Purdue and Indiana MSU committed a total of 14 errors. The Spartans cut their errors to five over the weekend.

"The defense looked much better," Irwin commented. "They improved tremendously."

Hitting hurler

Lansing junior Sherrie Tyler takes advantage of a good pitch to help the Spartans win three games this weekend. Tyler, MSU's starting pitcher, is undefeated for the season and also boasts a .500 batting average.

WEEKEND ACTION

Spartan sophomore sprinter Marshall Dill posted a 9.6 clocking to take top honors in the 100 yard dash Saturday at the 64th version of the Drake Relays in Des Moines, Iowa.

It was the second major sprint victory of the season for Dill, who last week reeled off a 9.3 wind-aided performance to capture first place at the Kansas Relays.

The sprinting sensation from Detroit Northern High barely nipped Dean Williams of Kansas State in posting the Spartans only place finishing of the two day Drake meet.

MSU's trackmen will entertain Notre Dame in dual meet competition on Saturday.

Netters bounce Notre Dame

MSU's tennis team picked up some much needed momentum Saturday as the Spartans nipped Notre Dame, 5-4.

MSU was led by senior Rick Vetter who extended his unbeaten string to 6-0 with a win over Chris Kane in straight sets.

The number two doubles team of Dave Williams and Brian Smith scored the decisive victory enabling MSU to win the match.

The victory over Notre Dame boosted MSU's overall record to 4-2.

Coach Stan Droba said his team "came of age" at Notre Dame as it battled back constantly to pull the match out. The Spartans will travel to Iowa and Minnesota for action this weekend.

Linksmen nab 4th at Purdue

The MSU golf team tied for fourth place in the Purdue Invitational Saturday at West Lafayette, Ind.

The Spartans were led by Bill Zylstra's 154 (78-76) who called the long, wide open Purdue track "his kind of course." Steve Cole, freshman who topped all Spartan linksmen in last weekend's Kepler Invitational, was next for MSU with 156.

Indiana, led by Kevin Proctor, took top honors with a 760 total followed by Illinois with 775.

Proctor withstood the wind, a lengthy course and Illinois' Joe Burden to capture medalist honors but the Hoosier senior needed two sudden-death holes to subdue Burden with a chip in. Both were tied with 150 totals at the end of regulation play.

Netters, golfers take home titles

The long hours of practice, concentration and work are now all worthwhile for the women's tennis team. The netters brought home the Big Ten tennis championship this weekend.

The Spartans took fifth place in the tournament last year.

The Spartan golfers were also smiling this weekend. MSU defeated Ferris State College remaining undefeated for the season.

The Spartans shot a team total of 450 strokes. Ferris shot 552.

"This was good experience for the girls," Mary Fossum, coach of the women's golf team said. "They had to play on an unfamiliar course and were forced to make a lot of judgments."

Senior Bonnie Lauer paced the Spartans, shooting a 76.

"The girls have a tremendous amount of team spirit," Fossum commented. "It's a joy to see them working together and concentrating on their playing."

Batsmen remain in first

MSU's baseball team is still all alone in first place in the Big Ten standings.

The Spartans split a nonconference doubleheader Friday with the University of Detroit in their only action of the weekend, while MSU's top contenders failed to catch up to the league leaders.

Ohio State and Indiana, who started the weekend one game behind MSU, both had troubles during their visits to Iowa and Minnesota. The Buckeyes went 2-2 and Indiana 1-3.

Coach Danny Litwhiler's squad now leads the league with a 6-2 mark. Northwestern, Wisconsin, Minnesota and OSU are one game out.

MSU will play a twinbill with Eastern Michigan Tuesday in Ypsilanti and then face arch-rival Michigan Friday in Ann Arbor and Saturday at Kobs Field in single games.

"If we can win two from Michigan, we'll be in good shape," Litwhiler noted. "We have our toughest weekends of the season coming up because we are playing all of the clubs that are right up there."

After facing U-M, the

Spartans travel to Indiana and Ohio State next weekend and then finish the conference season at home against Northwestern and Wisconsin, May 18-19.

"It's important that we do it ourselves," Litwhiler said. "We can't count on other teams to help us."

MSU beat Detroit in the first of two Friday, 11-4, but then lost to the Titans in the nightcap, 5-4, leaving the Spartans with a 22-9 season mark.

Leading hitter John Rohde led the Spartan attack in the first game, hitting a two-run homer and a two-run triple. He added a single in the second contest.

The first baseman now has 38 runs batted in this season, only eight behind Shaun Howitt's Spartan record of 45 set last year.

"He's our fourth hitter and we count on him to drive in those runs or else we wouldn't put him there," Litwhiler said. "The first three men are supposed to get on base and be supposed to drive them in. So far, he's done an excellent job."

The Spartan coach said Elliott Moore pitched a "very good" game in gaining the victory. Steve VanderLaan finished up the win, adding three hits for MSU.

Detroit scored the winner in the second game on a walk, a hit, and errors in the fifth inning of reliever Rick Deller, who took over for starter DeBallard.

MSU third sacker Am Hewitt led the attack with three safeties. The contests were played on a cold day with a steady wind blowing in, making Rohde's feats even more spectacular.

"Under the conditions everybody did well," Litwhiler said.

Spartan stickmen nip Buckeyes, 9-7

By JACK WALKDEN

Steve Urban scored five goals and Tom Hardenbergh added four assists as MSU's lacrosse team beat Ohio State, 9-7, Saturday for the first Spartan lacrosse victory over OSU's varsity.

The Spartans defeated the Ohio State junior varsity, 12-1, in 1963. Since that time Ohio State has won eight straight varsity contests.

The victory ended a four-game MSU losing streak and moved its record to 3-5 for the year and 2-3 in the Midwest Lacrosse League.

"Hardenbergh played a great game," a joyful MSU coach Bob Stevenson said. "He ran the offense well and called the plays." Though it didn't show up as much in the statistics, Stevenson said, Val Washington was the major force in the victory with his two goals.

"Val Washington played some kind of phenomenal game," Stevenson praised. "This was one of those days where he really thrived on playing. He didn't want to take a rest the whole day."

The Spartans played one of their best physical games of the year especially Don Schulz and John Cudnoffsky, Stevenson said.

"Cudnoffsky and Schulz really laid them out today," he added. The game was close throughout with neither team holding more than a two-goal edge.

Ohio State used five goals from Gerry Cooper for its only lead of the day, 5-4. Two goals by Washington and one by Urban gave MSU a 7-5 lead.

But OSU's Terry Saylor rifled a shot that deflected off Schulz' stick and into the net, cutting the Spartan lead to 7-6.

"The one off Schulz could've really taken the stiff out of us," Stevenson said, "but this team showed a lot of class and didn't lose its cool."

DETROIT (UPI) - Al Kaline doubled in the first run the game and scored the second to help Joe Coleman win his fifth game of the season for the Detroit Tigers Sunday 6-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Jim Northrup singled to open the third against the Wayne Simpson, 2-2, and scored on Kaline's sharp double to left-center.

The veteran Detroit outfielder went to third on a ground out and so unnered Simpson at third base that the Kansas City right-hander balked him home.

Northrup singled leading off the fifth, was wild pitched to second by Simpson, went to third on a fly out, scored on a sacrifice fly by Gates Brown.

Duke Sims walked to lead off the sixth, moved second on Rich Reese's sacrifice bunt, and scored on double by McCauliffe.

Sims accounted for the final two runs in the eighth when he hit a two-run homer, his first of the season.

BOSTON - Walt Frazier poured in 13 points during decisive 15-minute stretch Sunday as the New York Knicks ripped the Boston Celtics, 94-78, to win their second straight Eastern Conference Championship in the National Basketball Assn.

The win sent New York into the NBA playoff first against the Los Angeles Lakers, Western Conference Champions. It was the first time in 10 attempts that the Celtics ever lost the seventh game of a playoff series. The Celtics used a sticky defense to dominate the early part but were never able to put together their usually accurate shooting game.

The game was tied six times and the lead changed eight times before the Knicks pulled in front on two Frazier throws.

The championship series opens Tuesday night in Los Angeles. The Lakers will host the second game on Thursday before the two teams head for New York for games three and four next Sunday and Tuesday.

INGLEWOOD, CALIF. - Little Ernie DiGregorio, Providence, who wasn't even asked to go out for the 1972 Olympic team, and UCLA reserve center Swen Nater, scored 14 points Sunday as an American all-star team wire-to-wire to trounce the touring Russian National squad.

MONTREAL - Jacques Lemaire scored two power goals Sunday afternoon and Montreal erupted for four in the final period as the Canadians scored an 8-3 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks in the opening game of the Stanley Cup Finals.

The second game in the National Hockey League championship round will be played here Tuesday night.

Student mute at arraignment on rape counts

Robert L. Martin, Detroit freshman, stood mute on four charges of rape and gross indecency at his arraignment Friday in Ingham County Circuit Court. No trial date was set.

Martin is accused in connection with the March 24 rape of Lillian Kay Parteneimer, Evansville, Ind. sophomore, and Jane Gruber, Grand Ledge sophomore.

Circuit Court Judge Donald Reising postponed action on a request from Peter J. Treleven, Martin's attorney, to reduce Martin's $15,000 bond so that he could return to classes.

Raitt's distinctive style wins over Mariah fans

By TEVEN ALLEN
State News Reviewer

Bonnie Raitt's stint at Mariah this past weekend proved that you don't have to line the blues in order to sing them.

Bonnie Raitt certainly has never had to wonder where her next meal is coming from. Daughter of John Raitt, a leading man in Broadway and Hollywood musicals like "Carousel" and "Oklahoma," Bonnie Raitt has never been down enough to forget which way is up.

But even though Bonnie Raitt does not have the background of a Big Mama Thornton or even a Janis Joplin, she can still sing and play those blue notes.

Bonnie Raitt is probably the first white female blues singer to come down the road in a long time that does not in some way try to come off as a white man's second coming.

She has her own distinctive style. Even when she's just sitting on stage playing a Coors, there's a certain aura about her that you this white blues singer is going places.

This carries over into her songs. Most of the stuff she sings is authentic blues material - Fred McDowell, John Lee Hooker, Sophie Tucker songs - with an occasional Joni Mitchell touch to spice up the serving.

She performs these songs well-known numbers with a simplicity that serves as her trademark. Half of her set consists only of her voice, her guitar and the backing of bass player Freebo. That's all she needs, as she won over the audience from the word "go."

Unfortunately Raitt was plagued by a cold in her appearance here, causing her to occasionally lose control over her voice. She still performed quite well under the circumstances. Only at the very end of her set, when she and Freebo were being backed by Little Feat, did virus vanquish voice.

As for Little Feat, they were plagued by feedback throughout their first Friday night set and in addition had to suffer through a garbled mix through their first few numbers.

But after the bugs were cleared away, Little Feat started smoking like a locomotive, proving themselves to be as tight and exciting instrumentally as any group around.

Their vocals, though, need much improvement. Their albums show that Little Feat can sing well enough in the recording studio, but they cannot carry a tune in a bucket live. Perhaps a lead singer should be added. Otherwise, Little Feat did themselves proud.

Priority urged for mass transit

By MIKE LaNOUE
State News Staff Writer

Nearly 150 people from Michigan met at MSU Friday to discuss transportation problems and alternatives at the first statewide transportation conference. Most participants voiced the idea that transportation priorities must be shifted from highway expansion to some form of mass transit.

Helen Leavitt, author of "Super Highways Super Hoax," returning to MSU for the first time since she graduated in 1956, said that too much national emphasis has been given to the construction of highways and not enough interest has been shown in alternative modes of transportation.

"For areas such as Lansing, the best system of mass transit would be buses," Leavitt said.

She also suggested that electric street cars and minibus services be employed in Lansing.

Leavitt said that even though the bus in America is currently not in competition with the automobile as the most useful means of transporting our population, it should be.

Leavitt said the American people have been forced to use their cars, thus using up gas and using this country's highways.

In the past 15 years $250 billion has been spent on highway construction, Leavitt said, but only $34 billion during this period was spent on other means of transportation.

Gloria Fox, a Boston community organizer who helped lead a fight to make Boston's transportation system meet the needs of the people in that area, told the Michigan conference that citizen participation in transportation planning is the key to meeting the people's needs.

"Roads and road planning are many times outmoded by the time construction begins," Fox said.

She said that herself and fellow "Kill the Road" campaigners are now working to make sure that no new roads are built in Boston.

Fox suggested that people currently employed in road construction be employed in repairing existing roads and that mass transit systems be instituted in urban locations.

Both Fox and Leavitt discussed the use of gas tax money for the construction of mass transit systems and the use of Federal highway trust funds for mass transit systems.

Recently the House of Representatives defeated a Senate passed bill which would have allocated $700 million to be used toward mass transit and alternatives to highway expansion, Leavitt said.

Leavitt is hoping that White House pressure may push a bill through Congress and grant money to highway alternatives.

The conference brought people from both urban and rural settings together to discuss transportation in Michigan. For many, this was the first time they had their individual transportation needs heard. Locally, about 20 people gathered and discussed alternatives to Lansing transportation systems.
