Halfway houses help alcoholics return to normal living situation

By IRENE EVANS
State News Staff Writer

Someone once said an alcoholic is like a clouded crystal goblet. The beauty can't be seen. But once the woman is treated, or the goblet is cleaned up, the beauty is obvious.

A halfway house, which is a stepping stone between treatment and a return to living a normal life for the alcoholic, can be the bath the crystal goblet needs.

Lansing's two halfway houses, one for men and one for women, are nationally recognized as two of the best programs for alcoholics. They frequently have out-of-state visitors who come simply to observe the programs.

"In Lansing, the entire halfway house program seems to be in a glass house because everyone is looking at it," said John Huhn, administrator of the Lansing Halfway House for Alcoholic Men, 1018 W. Ottawa St.

A halfway house is a residential living experience for the alcoholic who is not quite ready to return to society, but has been sober for at least ten days.

The women's halfway house, which is called the "Glass House" thanks to the goblet analogy, has been in existence only since June 1971, and is located at 419 N. Logan St.

The Logan Street location was chosen from about 300 homes in the Lansing area because of its closeness to St. Lawrence Hospital, which is used for follow-up treatments of alcoholics, its good central floor plan, and its spaciousness.

Staff members say both houses attempt to establish a homey atmosphere. The residents have usually had unhappy home experiences, and the staffs of both houses say that if the home the residents live in now is institutional, the patients may never learn to relate to a family situation.

"We have no special facilities," Judy Saylor, an administrator said. "We want this to be as much a home as possible."

The Glass House, though decoration is not yet complete, has assumed that atmosphere. During the day, Saylor's four-year-old son Mitchell provides the touch that only a little boy can.

administrative personnel are receiving proper salaries for the jobs they are performing, but that women and minorities are disproportionately concentrated in the lower salary grades.

While the study was intended to correct salary and promotional inequities and smooth over grievances, the investigation seems to have had just the opposite effect in raising the ire of numerous administrative personnel.

William Kenney, president of the Administrative Personnel Assn. which represents about 58 per cent of the personnel, said he had received a great deal of negative response from the membership.

MSU salary reportangers personnel

By LAURA MILLER

Anger is stirring among the ranks of administrative personnel over an investigative report released last week by the University which explored inequities in pay for employees performing the same jobs.

The Hayes Associates report, an eight-month study conducted by the management consultant firm and a subordinate University evaluation committee, investigated the MSU salary compensation practice for administrative personnel.

The study which cost $48,000, examined the salaries of 709 administrative personnel employees and concluded that 90 per cent of the

Pet rule easy to duck

By LINDA DROEGER
State News Staff Writer

Students living in residence halls are not being alarmed if, upon returning from an evening at the bars, they see ducklings waddling down the hall or rabbits hopping from room to room.

Despite the All-University ban restricting all pets excepting fish, animal lovers continue to bring their pets into their rooms. Resident hall assistants and hall monitors - often by looking the other way - make the rule easy to get around.

The RA told the women on her floor that there would be no pets after a designated date. What she said she meant was, "I don't mind animals as long as I don't see them."

Some RAs enforce the regulation with no exceptions. "You have to be consistent, you let one pet stay and then not let another one stay," Laurie Grimm, vice president of Residence Hall Association (RHA) said.

Grimm said that RHA would continue to support the enforcement of the administrative ruling unless it received reasons from students that the policy should be revised.

Other RAs use their own judgement to decide which animals go and which stay. "I feel like I should enforce the rule but I don't always do it," said one Mason RA who knows of two pets living on her floor. "It depends on the size of the animal, the sanitary problem and if I've received any complaints about it."

"Last term there were three dogs, a chicken, a cat and some gerbils on my floor," an RA from Wilson Hall said. "I made a statement that there would be no pets on the floor at the beginning of the term but that's as far as I feel my responsibility goes."

Head advisers and graduate assistant advisers in the halls also vary in opinions on how stringently the policy should be enforced.

"Where we do find pets, we ask the student to get rid of the animal," a Butterfield adviser explained. "I'm sure that some of the RAs are sympathetic and don't follow through

Investigators finger former Nixon aides

(C) 1973 NEW YORK TIMES NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Government investigators say they now have evidence that high-ranking officials of the white house and the committee for the Re-election of the President conspired after the June, 1972 Watergate break-in to arrange a careful cover story designed to obstruct the federal investigation.

The investigators also say the evidence shows that the obstruction of justice was coordinated by President Nixon's two closest advisers, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, who resigned yesterday, and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who headed the re-election committee at the time.

Three other former White House aides, Jeb Stuart Magruder, a special assistant to Nixon, Frederick C. Laue, another special assistant, and John W. Dean 3d, the President's counsel, were also involved in the initial cover-up attempt, investigators said.

The cover-up was formulated during some planned secret meetings held at the re-election headquarters here in late June, according to investigators.

The basic scheme was said to have called for all of those involved in the operation to deny any knowledge of it, and for the re-election committee to issue public statements to that effect. In essence, investigators said, everyone involved in the operation repeatedly lied, to federal investigators, prosecutors, other White

Ex-Nixon aide says he hired Gordon, Liddy

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Newly-resigned presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman told the FBI that he hired Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt to investigate the Pentagon Papers case and learned later they broke into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, it was disclosed Tuesday.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, presiding over the trial of Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, revealed the statement that Ehrlichman made to the FBI on Friday. The defense attorneys immediately moved for dismissal of the case and Byrne took the motion under advisement.

The FBI interview quotes Ehrlichman as saying that President Nixon designated him in 1971 "to make inquiries independent of a concurrent FBI investigation which had been made relating to the leak of the Pentagon Papers." Ellsberg was indicted in June 1971 on charges of espionage, conspiracy and theft.

Ehrlichman told agents that Nixon "had expressed interest in the problem of unauthorized disclosures of classified government information..."

The report added that, according to Ehrlichman, "a decision was made...to conduct some investigation in the Pentagon Papers leak matter directly out of the White House." G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt were designated to conduct the investigation.

Ehrlichman said he knew the two men were traveling to California to "follow up leads," including work that "there was information available that Ellsberg had emotional and moral problems, and Liddy and Hunt sought to determine full facts relating to these conduct traits."

Agency sought to unify drug, alcohol programs

By ELLEN E. GRZECH
State News Staff Writer

Legislation establishing a new, single state agency responsible for administering all drug and alcohol abuse programs within the state will be introduced in the Michigan legislature soon, according to the director of the Office of Drug Abuse and Alcoholism.

The agency, the Office of Substance Abuse Services, would be located in the Dept. of Public Health, C. Patrick Babcock, said Tuesday.

The new office was one of the major recommendations made by the drug abuse office in a 200-page Substance Abuse Plan released Monday.

The new office would reorganize the present competing, conflicting and ineffective substance abuse programs while basing ultimate responsibility for protection and treatment services in the local community, the report stated.

A single state agency providing strong administration is necessary to insure minimum standards of care for those seeking treatment, an effective expenditure of funds, specialized technical assistance to communities and long-range plans, the report said.

Existing programs are operated by the departments of Mental Health, Public Health, Education, Corrections, Social Services, Licensing and Regulation, State Police and the Executive Office. These programs are fragmented and without over-all state objectives, the report said.

The plan also analyzes and makes recommendations for care and control systems, prevention and education.

Gov. Milliken called for an "increase of more than $10 million in the level of funding for 1973-74 over the current fiscal year" to improve the state program and implement the drug abuse office plan.

"It is the most comprehensive program ever developed at the state level to effectively deal with the complex and increasing problems facing society because of the abuse of drugs and other substances," Milliken said.

International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat assailed U.S. peace plans for the Middle East Tuesday, implying that the United States was ready to move in and grab Arab oil lands if the energy crisis required it. As he asked for Soviet support in what he called the "inevitable" confrontation with Israel, the Israelis unveiled more additions to their arsenal as they prepared a military parade for their country's 25th birthday Monday.

Two recent "awards" put Soviet Communist party secretary Leonid Brezhnev a giant step ahead of his colleagues in the Kremlin's "collective leadership."

Tuesday he was the only Russian to be awarded one of four Lenin International Peace Prize. The announcement was timed to coincide with the vast May Day festivals, labor's official international holiday.

In another "first," Brezhnev's portrait has been placed above secret police head Yuri V. Andropov in Politburo publications, violating official tradition of listing members alphabetically to indicate equality.

Authorities warned Tuesday that more rain may cause more evacuations from the Mississippi valley flood area. But Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz expressed confidence that farmers could get out and plant their land once again if "fair weather" comes. The Mississippi River Commission estimates that 11 million acres in seven states, much of it prime farmland, is under water.

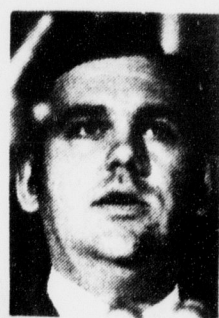

Three gunmen occupied a Roman Catholic elementary school in Peoria, Ill., Tuesday, threatening to shoot a pupil if they were not given rifles and a walkie-talkie radio.

Police cordoned off a four-block area around St. Cecilia's school and exchanged shots with the gunmen, wounding one.

Myles J. Ambrose, head of the Office of Drug Abuse Law Enforcement, suspended four federal narcotics agents and is seeking a grand jury probe of the mistaken - identity raids last week on the homes of two Illinois families.

The Collinsville, Ill. families, one of which has filed a $100,000 damage suit, have said that officers, dressed as hippies, terrorized them and damaged property.

People and places

Ziegler

Following his Monday night speech on the Watergate affair, PRESIDENT NIXON stepped into the White House press room, stood behind the rostrum and told reporters, "Just continue to give me hell when you think I'm wrong. I hope I'm worthy of your trust." And presidential Press Secretary RONALD ZIEGLER publicly apologized to the Washington Post on Tuesday for his past criticisms of their reporting on the Watergate conspiracy. "When we're wrong, we're wrong," Ziegler said. "I was overenthusiastic at that time in my comments about the Post." Ziegler had called one Post account "a blatant effort at character assassination" and said others were based on "hearsay, character assassination, innuendo, guilt by association."

Rhodesian newsman PETER NIESEWAND, jailed since Feb. 20 for allegedly passing on secret information, won an appeal of his one-year sentence - but he will remain in jail and may be deported.

Retired chief justice of the United States EARL WARREN, in a speech at the Truman Library Institute in Independence, Mo., recalled the personality of the late Harry S. Truman and then remarked, "I often wonder if that wholesome approach to politics is gone forever."

Nixon requests aid for Indochina

FROM OUR WIRE SERVICES

President Nixon asked Congress Tuesday for $2.9 billion in foreign aid to friendly nations, including $632 million to rebuild Indochina.

The package included no money for North Vietnam, but Nixon said the Communist country would be eligible for U.S. help when it fully complies with the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

"If and when that occurs," he said, "I believe that American assistance for reconstruction and development of both South and North Vietnam would represent a sound investment in confirming the peace."

Meanwhile, Nixon said that to ignore the postwar needs of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia "would be to risk the enormous investment we have made in the freedom and independence of the countries of Southeast Asia."

Nixon, seeking support for the measure, reviewed his foreign aid authorization bill with congressional leaders at the White House before formally sending the package to Capitol Hill.

His proposal includes $652 million in military assistance and another $100 million for Jordan, Thailand and other countries considered especially close to the United States. About $33 million would also be spent to train foreign soldiers here.

"The sums I am requesting represent the absolute minimum prudent investment which the United States can afford to make if we wish to create a peaceful world," Nixon said in his message.

The request includes approximately $1 billion for development assistance programs during fiscal year 1974, and about the same amount for the 1975 fiscal year.

They are likely to be questioned about Nixon's foreign aid proposals as well. The House Foreign Affairs Committee will begin its hearings on the President's requests in about two weeks.

The President said that, under the Nixon Doctrine, the United States has tried to stimulate other countries to bear a larger part of the costs of their own defense and economic needs. But he said this balance should not be shifted too quickly, so as to increase the likelihood of international instability.

Nixon added: "Thus, it is critical we provide a level of foreign assistance will help to assure our friends the passage through this period of transition and development."

Administration urges gasoline conservation

FROM OUR WIRE SERVICES

Warning that the nation faces potentially severe gasoline shortages this summer, Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton Tuesday urged all Americans to voluntarily restrict their driving.

Morton's call for gasoline conservation was the first public warning by the Nixon Administration that the country may be facing gasoline shortages this summer.

Previously, spokesmen has been downplaying the problem, saying that there would only be "spot shortages" in some areas.

For the first time, however, Congress Monday gave the government power to ration gasoline among civilians if a sufficiently severe fuel shortage should occur. Up to now federal government ration fuel only in the of national defense.

Morton urged everyone who drives to adopt "common measures, including planning vacation camping trips closer to walking or riding on short trips and driving miles an hour below speed limit on all highways."

"For this summer, one or two per cent difference in gasoline consumption make a difference,"

BY LIBRARY OFFICIALS

Blacklist proposal rejected

By LINNEA SLATER
State News Staff Writer

Library officials reacted negatively to a Council of Graduate Students (COGS) proposal that a blacklisting policy be instituted, Jan Brashler, vice president for graduate welfare, said at the COGS meeting Monday.

The blacklisting policy would suspend the Library privileges of borrowers who neglect to return books when they are requested.

The officials reportedly said that because of the way the Library's computer system is set up it would not accommodate such a change.

Graduate students have been concerned for years about the University Library's policy of allowing faculty to have extended book loans without a penalty system, Brashler said.

The library appointed an ad hoc committee to review the possibility of eliminating the present practice of classifying borrowers according to their student or faculty status. If this were done, Brashler said, faculty and students would have the same Library privileges.

Elizabeth Andrus, COGS president, said that Ed Grafton, ASMSU president, told her he was willing to cooperate with COGS in taking a judicial case against the Library if it became necessary to do so. Andrus said this action would be taken in the case of the complete refusal of a faculty member to return a book when requested to do so by a student.

In other discussion, graduate students expressed concern about the increasing practice of hiring undergraduates as teaching assistants in positions formerly filled by graduate students.

Several students said the undergraduates in these positions in their departments performed their jobs better than some graduate students.

But most students said the practice was threatening jobs for graduate students. Undergraduates are cheaper to hire than graduates, they said, and often departments would rather give the job to the cheaper labor.

COGS formed a committee to investigate the status of undergraduate assistants on campus.

Only two actions were taken at the meeting, one of which was the approval of a $50 allocation to the COGS executives for emergencies and entertaining guests for business purposes.

COGS also approved the appointment of Griffin Rivers, New Orleans, La., graduate student, to fill the COGS seat on the Alternate Publications Committee, recently established to disperse part of the State News' profits to other student publications.

The Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM) requested $650 to support a summer intern to work on an investigative project. COGS will vote on the request at the next meeting.

COGS also suggested time limits for the graduate student grievance procedures in response to a request from the Graduate Council. A two-week time limit was suggested for both the length of time the grievance committee has to meet on a grievance and for the appeal of a decision.

Plans to cut down elms anger local residents

By MIKE LANQUE
State News Staff Writer

After years of being an accident-ridden and congested intersection, the conjunction between Michigan Avenue and Harrison is finally going to be revamped to create a free flow of traffic.

This decision may be a welcome one to the motorist, but it is being denounced by concerned citizens who would like to see 28 elm trees saved that are scheduled to be cut down in the reconstruction and who wish to preserve the esthetics of this area of the city.

Most citizens agree that the corner needs to be revamped so traffic can flow more smoothly. And over 100 accidents have occurred at the Michigan-Harrison intersection in the past three years. But some citizens question the plans that soon will be implemented at the intersection.

The elm trees scheduled to be cut down are all large trees. Eight trees are eight to 12 inches in diameter, 13 are 12 to 24 inches in diameter and seven of the trees are 25 to 36 inches in diameter.

The losses, however, are not considered to be significant because they are elm trees and would undoubtedly get Dutch Elm disease, Gordon Melvin, asst. city engineer, said Tuesday. He added that replanting is planned.

Charles Massoglia, president of Off-Campus Council, said Tuesday, that he is unsure whether the removal of all the elm trees is necessary.

In addition to rebuilding the corner, plans call for the widening of Michigan Avenue from Harrison to Kensington Street, an area filled with elm trees. Massoglia agrees that the corner needs to be redone but he feels the widening of Michigan Avenue and the subsequent cutting of elm trees may be unnecessary.

On the other hand, Melvin says that no part of the plan can be altered without upsetting the traffic balance at the intersection.

"The lanes have been planned out on a capacity basis," Melvin said. He added that the intersection was replanned with the idea of saving as many trees and plants as possible, while meeting the projected traffic capacities of the intersection.

"This project was not something that was set up in an office," Melvin said, adding that "many people had input on the matter."

Massoglia and other tree defending advocates were expected to speak on the matter at Tuesday's city council meeting.

Their input on the matter at this time could have no effect because a preconstruction meeting with the work contractor was held Tuesday morning and Melvin said the construction will likely begin within a month.

U.S. warns Hanoi of fight renewal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The U.S. envoy in the Paris cease-fire talks warned Tuesday that fighting might resume unless Hanoi stops its violations.

Meanwhile, American B-52 bombers and jet fighters pounded suspected communist camps around Phnom Penh and North and South Vietnam issued May Day pledges of reforms for their war-weary peoples.

U.S. deputy asst. secretary of state, William H. Sullivan, made the cease-fire comment following several days of conversations with North Vietnamese negotiator Nguyen Co Thach.

"We are absolutely unsatisfied with the way the North Vietnamese and the forces under their control are conducting themselves and in the way in which they have implemented the accords," he said, adding that Hanoi's actions would lead to the military situation the cease-fire agreement was trying to halt.

U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators returned from Paris to their respective capitals after a round of talks designed to improve observance of the Vietnam cease-fire.

Thach, North Vietnam's deputy foreign minister, ruled out a predicted meeting between Henry A. Kissinger and the North Vietnamese official with whom Kissinger negotiated the Vietnam peace accord, Le Duc Tho.

Sources in Washington had said the Kissinger-Tho discussions would take place in Paris in mid-May. But Thach said "the atmosphere is not favorable at present" for the talks.

He spoke as he boarded a plane for Hanoi following the conversations with Sullivan.

Thach's talk of an unfavorable atmosphere indicated along with Sullivan's comments that their efforts were not fully successful.

In Cambodia, teams of F4 Phantom and F111 jet fighters from American bases in Thailand again bombed the rebel-infested eastern bank of the Mekong River two miles across from Phnom Penh, Cambodia's capital. The B-52s thundered toward targets farther east and south.

The Cambodian command reported a minor success by soldiers sweeping up Highway 5 in an effort to clear antigovernment forces controlling a 12-mile stretch of the vital "rice road."

The antigovernment forces control about two-thirds of Cambodia, the one Indochinese country without a cease-fire.

A reporter who visited the provincial capital of Kampong Cham, 24 miles south of Phnom Penh, said government defenders have been shelled for the last three days with an average of 200 rounds of heavy weapons fire.

Poor found to pay more for utilities

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Poor inner city consumers are paying as much as a third more for utility service than consumers in well-to-do suburban areas, a state lawmaker said Tuesday.

Rep. Philip Mastin, D-East Lansing, told newsmen he has completed a study of major gas and electric utility rates in Michigan which shows that low income users are forced to support the deterioration of their own areas through "regressive and discriminatory" rate structures.

The regressive rate structure is the result of a policy by most utility companies offering lower rates to high volume users, he said.

Mastin said such quantity discounts, in effect, punish the poor for being poor while encouraging moderate and high income users to consume more energy, thus adding to environmental pollution and the energy shortage crisis.

MSU salary study offers few solutions

The recent study of the salaries of MSU administrative-professional employees which cost the University an exorbitant $48,000 is an ambiguous report providing no viable solutions to present employment discrimination.

Though the Hayes and Associates study did reveal that women employees are paid less than men in certain administrative and managerial positions, and that women occupy lower job level classifications at MSU, the report remains a bungled surface attempt to analyze discriminatory employee practices with a few facts and figures thrown in.

The study does not purport to deal with discrimination, but rather with disparity. The salary disparity between men and women in certain salary levels is as high as $5,904 per year. Women predominantly hold positions in the bottom one-fourth of job grade levels, while women's positions in the top quarter level are nonexistent.

That the study can provide these findings is admirable. A closer look at the report however, brings doubt that the study deals with the problem of job discrimination in any depth.

Granted, the report was designed to be only an evaluation of the 709 administrative and professional positions. But why was such an arbitrary distinction made between job levels when there are over 2,500 clerical-technical workers within the University?

The study reports that women and minorities are concentrated in the lower 25 per cent of the job levels, but says this is "a problem of seniority which will solve itself over time." The report then weakly proposes a merit system that would speed the advancement of women and minorities toward better job positions.

But the report's merit system proposal lacks any specific guidelines for speeding advancement, making it appear of half-thought rather than a suggestion for improvement.

The study's conclusions, if they can be called that, draw from broad generalities and state the obvious. The report says nothing new, nothing challengeable or questionable, and it is doubtful that it says anything at all.

The study's findings are essential to heighten awareness of discriminatory employee problems at MSU. But without implementation based on conclusive research, a $48,000 managerial study becomes a financial fiasco.

Pop has problems

Numerous complaints have been leveled at ASMSU Pop Entertainment this year for its inability to get big-name groups on campus.

At first glance, this would seem to be a valid complaint. There haven't been many big concerts this year, but the blame cannot be put on Pop Entertainment entirely.

There are a myriad of reasons for this lack of big-name entertainment. One major factor is cost. A college such as MSU just can't compete with the big-name promoters in Detroit. Motor City promoters can offer a four day engagement at Cobo, while MSU can only offer one night in Jenison. The choice is rather obvious.

Another reason is the bands themselves. Pop Entertainment signed the Mahavishnu Orchestra only to have them cancel out.

The Moody Blues were going to come but one of their members is not allowed to enter the U.S. according to Pop Entertainment.

Also, the University is only willing to let Pop Entertainment use Jenison Fieldhouse and the Auditorium for a limited number of dates.

At least Pop Entertainment is trying. There will be a two-day concert May 11 and 12 featuring Canned Heat, Quicksilver, Lester Flatt, Eagles and others.

Another thing to keep in mind is that Pop Entertainment books entertainment at Mariah Coffee House. These aren't the biggest concerts in the world but they do provide consistently good entertainment at a reasonable price - something that is hard to find these days.

Keep trying, Pop Entertainment. That's all that can be asked of anybody.

Women's athletics

To the Editor
I am writing in response to Pam Wright's article on Carol Davis' resignation as the women's athletic director.

First of all, I am questioning Wright's authority on what we, "the able women athletes," need at this University. I am not at all convinced that she is aware of how we feel as athletes, and therefore cannot possibly state what we need, let alone want. Many of us play on the varsity teams, and from what I have observed of their reactions to her article, I'd say she has a big argument on her hands.

Let's get something straight. Believe it or not, we play a sport because we want to, and not because we're getting paid. We love to compete, we enjoy the challenge and we like the people we work with. If there is money available for these so-called scholarships, why not direct it toward a more useful means? We could use money for travel expenses, equipment, additional uniforms and for other athletic costs. Why tamper with a good thing? If we want to compete out of sheer desire and for no other reason, who has the right to change that?

Secondly, Wright will find that very few of us are complaining about the quality of coaching that we receive. She stated that we should obtain

Japanese solve auto crisis

WASHINGTON - Detroit has had so much trouble meeting the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) emission standards that it was given one year's grace, until 1976, to produce an engine which will not pollute the air. Even with the extra 12 months, the automobile companies insist they will not be able to meet the EPA deadline.

The auto manufacturers are so desperate that they are now submitting alternate proposals to Washington which they believe will take care of the air pollution hazard.

One promising plan I heard about was brought to EPA the other day by Huxley Barnstable, an automotive engineer who has been working on the emission problem for years.

He told me, "It is absolutely impossible for Detroit to develop an engine which will meet EPA requirements by 1976."

"Then you're throwing in the towel?" I asked.

"Absolutely not. It's true that we can't build an engine that will cut down on carbon monoxide, but we believe we have developed a device which, when attached to a human being, will make it impossible for him to breathe the poisons we emit."

"That's fantastic!" I said.

"For years the automobile companies have devoted all their research to cutting down on pollution created by their engines. Only recently did we realize it was easier to invent a gadget to put on a person."

"What is it?" I asked excitedly.

Barnstable opened up his briefcase and pulled out a package.

"This is Detroit's answer to the air pollution problem."

I tore the paper off. "Why, it's a gauze bandage with strings on it!"

"That's correct," Barnstable said. "You tie it over your nose and mouth when you go outside and it will cut the dirty air you breathe by 50 per cent."

"It's so simple," I said. "How do you scientists ever think of it?"

"It was really an accident," Barnstable replied. "One of our researchers was going through an old National Geographic and saw a photograph of a group of people during typhoid epidemic in Japan. They were all wearing gauze bandages over their mouths. It suddenly dawned on him that the bandage was the answer to air pollution in the United States."

"Leave it to the Japanese," said. "The beauty of it is that the bandages will cost the consumer only $1 while an antipollution device on a car would cost $300. We've not only solved the emissions problem in the United States but we've done it at $299 savings to the car buyer."

"And they said Detroit has been asleep all these years."

"What we have to do now is persuade the Environmental Protection Agency to make it a law that everyone in this country must wear a gauze bandage by 1976," Barnstable said. "Anyone who goes outdoors without his bandage would be subject to a fine or imprisonment or both."

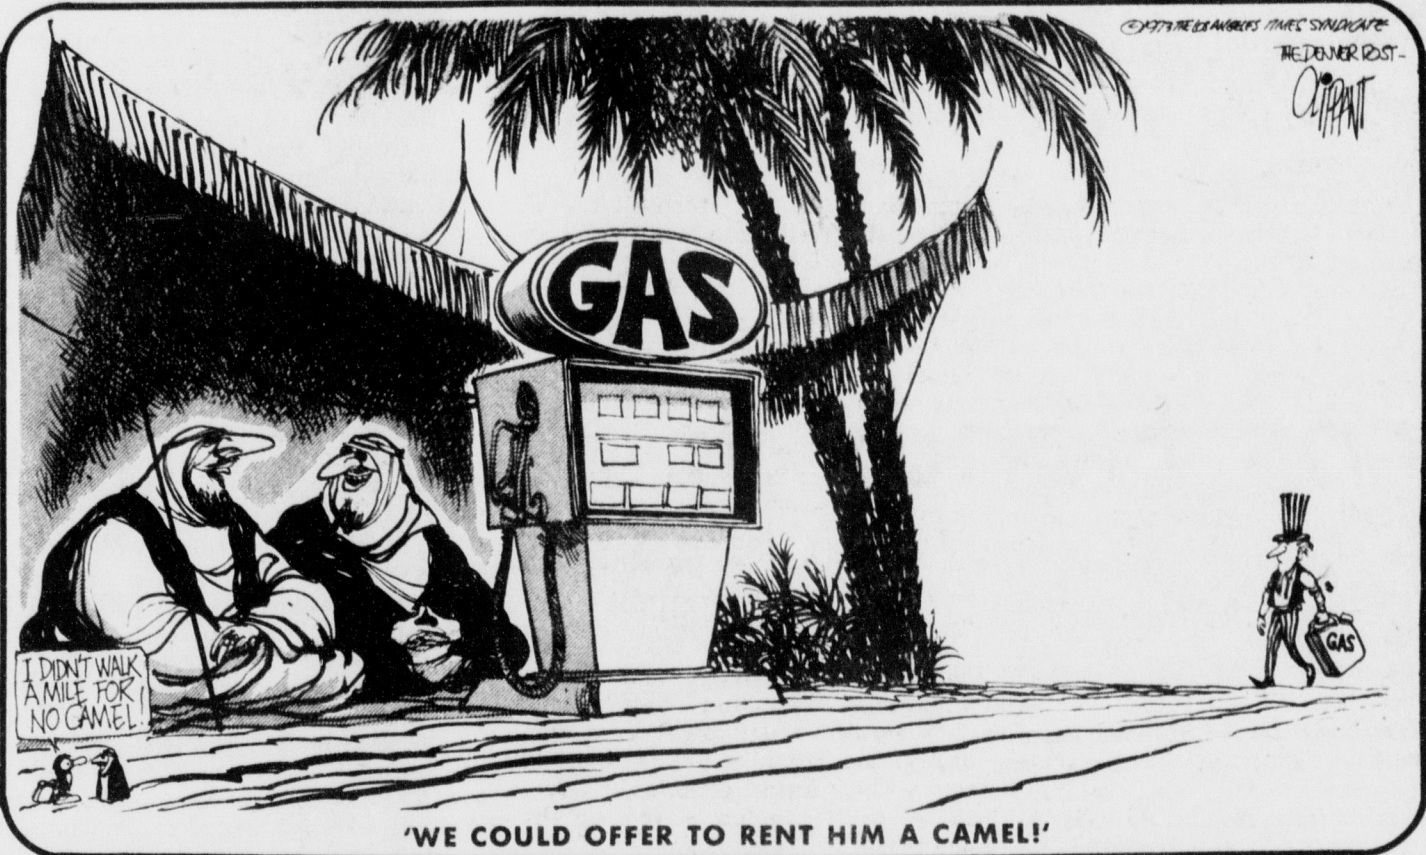

"It puts the onus on the public where it belongs," I agreed.

"Our contributions to the Clean Air Act would be that you wouldn't be able to start your car until your bandage was tied over your mouth."

"I don't see how EPA could turn down your proposal," I said. "If it doesn't prove that the auto companies have gone the extra mile, then I don't know what will."

"I hope you're right," he replied. "because the gauze bandage is the only thing we've got."

The Doctor's Bag

By ARNOLD WERNER, MD

Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner at the University Health Center. Names need not be included unless a personal reply is requested.

I buy meals in a residence hall on campus where I can usually get unlimited seconds. Therefore, I tend to eat only one meal a day to save money. I stuff myself, often eating for well over an hour having five to six main helpings. After eating, I often fall asleep in class or feel worn out. I am wondering whether it is harmful to eat so much at once and why I often feel so fagged out afterwards.

From a physiologic point of view there is no pressing reason why one should eat three fixed meals a day. Some people contentedly consume the vast majority of their daily calories at one sitting. In the animal world, species that hunt other animals typically consume food in massive amounts at irregular intervals for obvious reasons. These animals are often adapted to hold very large amounts of food in their stomachs and to digest them over long periods of time.

While I can assure you that your engorging behavior is unlikely to result in harm, I cannot give you an entirely satisfactory explanation about the sleepiness. There are theories regarding this ranging from decreased cerebral circulation due to the pooling of blood in the gastrointestinal tract, to secretion of sleep-inducing substances by the lining of the gut. There are fallacies in all the theories. My only suggestion would be to try making the one large meal a day your supper meal, which you can follow by a brief nap that would not interfere with classes.

This term I am taking a course in human sexuality and we were told how the woman during intercourse could achieve orgasm multiple times. My problem has been the opposite of this. Ever since finding this out I have felt very inadequate. During intercourse my boyfriend is able to achieve more than one orgasm where I am only able to achieve one. I am very satisfied and fulfilled after having intercourse but can't help but feel that I should be able to have more than just one orgasm. What's wrong with me?

Absolutely nothing is wrong with you. Since it became more widely known that some women are capable of having multiple orgasms, "problems" such as the one you describe have also surfaced. Multiple orgasms in a woman are primarily of physiological significance in that they point to a biological difference in terms of sexual response between males and females of the human species. It is impossible, and in my estimation, ludicrous to place a qualitative judgment on this capacity, especially when you indicate that you are satisfied and fulfilled after having intercourse.

I have spoken with women who have the capacity for multiple orgasms who find a single orgasm more satisfying. Many women, particularly as they get older and have more sexual experience, can develop a capacity for more than a single orgasm in one sexual encounter. Also, women not infrequently experience more than one climax when masturbating since they have greater control over sexual stimulation. Again, this appears to be of greater academic interest than of practical significance.

In regard to your boyfriend's capacity for more than one orgasm, this is primarily related to being young. This ability tends to wane in the mid 20's until the time lapse between successive ejaculations lengthens to the point where they can no longer be considered multiple.

A cosmetic clerk told me recently that if I don't wear makeup, my skin will age and wrinkle early. Is this true? I have always thought that makeup was at best harmless and on occasion, harmful.

The vast majority of cosmetics sold do absolutely nothing to enhance the quality of one's skin. In some cases they serve the purpose of creating a more attractive appearance, which obviously deals with culturally determined preferences such as eye makeup etc. The cosmetic clerk might well believe what she told you, considering her economic stake promoting the sale of her product would hardly expect her to be objective.

Many cosmetics are incredibly overpriced for the dubious value they have. Aging and wrinkling of skin are generally determined by genetic factors, by extensive exposure to elements, in particular sunlight, and one's nutritional state. It is nonsense that the use of expensive cosmetics is going to delay or prevent wrinkles. Some cosmetics are allergenic and sensitive people can have a hard time with them. c 1973

Martin Luther King

To the Editor:

In a meaningful article by Bill Taylor and Abdul Jamal in last Wednesday's issue of the State News - "Abernathy urges unity in fight for civil rights" - it was noted that "his closest friend was shot down and died in his arms on April 4, 1968."

I recalled these words from "Brian's Song":

"Let us not remember how he died; let us instead remember how he lived."

The late Martin Luther King lived a beautiful life devoted to love, brotherhood and the elimination of social and economic injustice. Many human beings in this world are determined to emulate the kind of life this remarkable man lived.

Escaping the real world

In his quest for existence, the Velveteen Rabbit innocently asked, "What is real?"

Today, May 2, 1973, the question is a paraphrase of his: "Is there real?" For centuries man has sought something alternately called Reality and Absolute Truth. Tiring of the tedium of library research, they eventually found their reality in money, in Jesus Christ, in Guru Maharaj Ji and even in R. M. Nixon.

We wonder now if they haven't been searching for something as nonexistent as the single government official responsible for the Watergate blunder or as evasive as the Good Fairy.

Kurt Vonnegut in "Sirens of Titan" invents a spot in space where everyone's reality is real and everyone's truth is true. He calls it a "chronosynclastic infundibulum."

He could just as well have called it a "unitedstates of america" or a "michiganstate university."

Both places where people have given up the search and settled for their own self-determined reality.

Inhabitants of all three locations believe that reality can be turned on or off at whim.

For example, isn't it true that skipping page one and flipping to the comic section makes Watergate only a fantasy acted out by elves and fairies and hobbits?

Doesn't locking your door in the middle of the afternoon mean that the world and some of the screwed up people who call it home are creations of your imagination, characters of a tragicomic soap opera that is never interrupted for a commercial?

Doesn't puffing joints for two hours and 17 minutes enhance the inner self-realization of each man? And won't enough alcohol quickly drown the troubles and soften the shafts which reality periodically serves to us lead-footed players on the court of life?

Or is there a chance that the 0.0 chem grade, the lost friend and the ruined career will suddenly emerge from a sea of bourbon or a cloud of smoke, re-real?

There are so many ways that each

by Garry Trudeau

of us uses to blot out or reshape our version of reality - everything from closing our eyes to closing our door to closing our mind.

But the point is that reality, like energy or death, can't be destroyed. And like rising prices and rain, it creeps up on us when we need it least.

Despite a nearly universal belief to the contrary, reality is not creatable. It can be covered up or ignored, but it is what hits you in the gut when you finally walk out on the street and open your eyes.

It is what you find when the pot and the booze wear off, the ashes of the fantasy.

It is what you cannot escape in the long run.

The answer to "Is there real?" is "Hell yes." Unfortunately for the eyes and the ears and the mind, reality is typically frightening and/or disgusting.

But like men with incurable diseases who are frozen until medicine smiles upon their ills, reality deniers may awaken to find themselves in a world peopled with more weirdos and more vexome problems than when they innocently closed their eyes in search of a new and different existence.

POINT OF VIEW

POINT OF VIEW

Rape case editorial lacks any sensitivity

By ARNOLD WERNER, MD
Associate Professor of Psychiatry

In an editorial reeking of a lack of sensitivity and poor logic, the State News sort of apologized for "a serious mistake in judgment" in publishing a detailed story of an alleged rape on April 26. Disturbed by their lack of judgment in covering a preliminary examination and devoting so much space to it, the editors acknowledged the unreasonableness of exposing an individual to the "glare of publicity" under circumstances where evidence may be inconclusive. The editorial then continues, devoting most of its lines to a labored defense of publishing the names of possible victims of rape.

Disguised as carriers of truth and news, the editors maintain that it is justified and necessary to publish the names of victims of rape even though they acknowledge that such people may be subjected to harassment and condemnation. They even use the euphemism "participant" for the victimized. A participant shares in something, the raped are robbed of their privacy and their personal dignity and it would appear that the State News contributes further to their devastation. The insult to women is immense and is an insult to us all.

Shifting responsibility to society for the condemnation of the rape victim does not free the newspaper from considering its role in aiding or encouraging ostracism. The newspaper serves social functions, one of which might be to encourage the timid to step forward to face their assailants. I doubt that the intellectually trivial argument that you are merely presenting the news in an open fashion, does much to encourage the victim to take the steps that might protect any of us from future assault. Perhaps the courts are also to blame in this situation. In many jurisdictions, cases such as rape are heard in a closed courtroom. At other times, the press, in the elegance it is capable of, declines to publish names of victims.

Perhaps, the editors lack experience with rape victims. Unfortunately, I do not. I have talked extensively with the victims of rape who are at times adversely affected by the experience for very long periods of time, but are particularly affected by the insensitive manner in which people deal with them. I feel strongly that the editorial position taken by the State News will discourage the reporting of rapes. A precept of my own profession is applicable to the journalist as well: "Above all, do no harm."

This point of view does not condemn the messenger for the message he carries, but rather condemns the failure to carry the more important message: We shall deal with the news in a humanitarian fashion. I hope the State News will reconsider its position.

Gum mania makes noise

With the decrease in classroom smoking, a new peril faces the sensitive test taker during midterm exams. The horrendous gum chewer is chomping to new levels of noise pollution in large lecture classes and discussion groups alike.

The solutions to this dire problem would be to limit the sale of gum on campus, enforce University regulations for quietude during tests and urge all to practice temperance in gum chewing during exams.

Man 'petals' perfume with French ac(s)cent

By MAUREEN McDONALD
State News Staff Writer

Henry Calisher is a soft spoken gentleman with a slight French accent and a large desire to "please the ladies."

While lighting women's cigarettes and issuing complimentary remarks, Calisher discussed his perfume, Vivre, to women at a press luncheon at Jacobson's Tuesday.

Vivre sells for no less than $50 an ounce.

Vivre was first introduced as a present to the wife of the shah of Iran in a 32-ounce crystal bottle at the festival of Persopolis which marked the 2,500 anniversary of Persia.

Calisher later sold a replica of the perfume in the same crystal bottle for $4,500. The sale made the perfume the most expensive bottle ever sold in the world.

The $50 bottle of Vivre is a less expensive version of the same thing.

"The perfume has a rich ambiguity which adds enchantment to women," Calisher said in his French accent.

Calisher said he has faith in women students to buy elegant perfume which he attributes to a return of femininity.

"Thank God women are still basically feminine," Calisher said. "It is the catalyst of a reform towards elegance."

Calisher, himself, is elegant in his description of perfume on women.

"Perfume is the invisible accessory which compliments natural scents," he said. "It evokes violent emotions and a sense of tenderness in women."

Male colones enrich the ego, according to Calisher. He plans to introduce a male version of Vivre in the near future.

Calisher attributes the high price of his perfume to the various essential oils used in the product.

The petals of the jasmine, which must be picked from along the French Riviera between 5 and 7 a.m. yield one kilo per million petals.

Then the manufacturers add petals of the Bulgarian rose, which add a "sensuous elegance" to the fragrance. Calisher explained that fragrances of wild woods wouldn't do, he said, as one needs "an unexpected smile of spice," found in a "forest or park where a chemist walked and recreated the aroma from memory."

EFFECTS OF IMAGERY

Poets to talk at meet

The effects of images in literature — good and bad — will be the subject of a three-day conference in modern literature Thursday through Saturday in Kellogg Center.

Poet Robert Creeley will participate by lecturing about modern poetry and by reading from his own work. A dozen other poets will also participate in the conference and after.

Creeley teaches at the University of New York at Buffalo, has written a number of books of verse and is the former editor of Black Mountain Review.

Most of the poetry and fiction of the 20th century, ever since Ezra Pound and F.S. Flint officially began the Imagist movement in 1913, has centered on the use of images, Linda Wagner, professor of English and chairwoman of the conference, said. An image is the focusing of attention on the concrete and physical rather than on the abstract, she added.

Most of the sessions during the conference bear on the question of whether the impact of images has been beneficial or detrimental to the quality of literature as a whole, Wagner said.

Creeley will present a speech entitled "Contexts: Notes on Charles Olson" at 1:15 p.m. Thursday in the Kellogg Center Auditorium where all presentations will be made. Creeley and poet John Unterecker will read from their works at 4 p.m. Friday.

Other highlights of the conference include:

• Donald Hall,

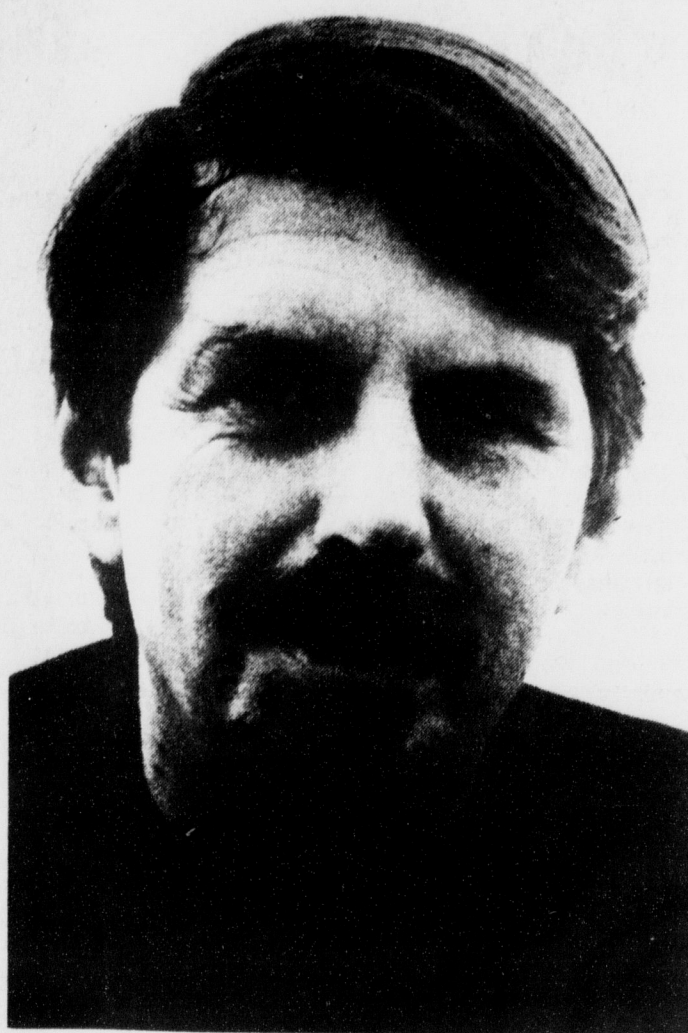

University of Michigan, will speak on "The Continuity of T.S. Eliot" at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

"A Morning with Ezra Pound" will be a symposium on the poet beginning at 9:30 a.m. Friday involving James Laughlin, founder of New Directions Press; Sister M. Bernette Quinn, Allen University; Emily Wallace, Swarthmore College; and Roger Meiners, MSU professor of English.

• James Guimond, Rider College, will make an address entitled "After Imagism" at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

• Louis Martz, Yale University, will speak on D.H. Lawrence at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Wagner said the sessions are designed so that the public can understand them and she encouraged students to attend the conference. Admission will be free for MSU students and staff.

Program slated for jobless vets

Jobless veterans will be able to learn about a special veteran hiring program at an information session at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Center for United Ministries, 1118 S. Harrison Road, East Lansing.

The meet is sponsored by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, the Black Veterans and the MSU Veterans Assn.

The hiring program is being conducted by Lendman Associates, a private employment firm which specializes in veteran job placement. The placement program includes a "career weekend" when veterans have an opportunity to meet and interview with prospective employers from across the U.S.

Veterans qualified for the program would be former non-commissioned officers and junior officers who have graduated or are close to graduation.

Earl Robinson of the Black Veterans said that the Purpose of the information session is "to explain about the jobs there are, from thereon it is up to the individuals to decide if they want to go for the weekend program."

Bob Bilger of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War said that he saw the program as another option open for the veteran looking for a job.

Larry Meads, spokesman for the MSU Veterans Assn., said he viewed the program as an opportunity for the veteran to find employers specifically interested in hiring veterans.

"Many employers prefer a veteran with a degree," Meads said. "And I think it is good to have an organization that handles only veterans."

Any interested veterans should contact Bob Bilger at 351-4504, Larry Meads at 371-1380 or the MSU Veterans Coordinator at 355-6470 for information.

This takes a strong technical electronics background. Enough to understand and stay in close touch with design developments at the home plant and the technical ability to apply new semiconductor concepts to key customer inquiries at all levels, including top management. You will be responsible for managing one of two million dollars per year semiconductor business.

We will supplement successful candidates formal education with a training program at our facilities in Dallas or Houston, Texas. The majority of this time will be spent in real world work assignments learning Texas Instruments in general and semiconductor activities in particular. Upon completion of this 6 month program, placement will be in one of the major metropolitan areas of the United States.

Rock concert to feature famed country groups

By STEVEN ALLEN
State News Reviewer

Tickets go on sale today for Sunspark, a two-night rock concert to be held May 11 and 12 in the Auditorium. Tickets cost $7, and are good for both nights. Individual tickets for each night are not available.

The May 11 show will be country-oriented, starting Lester Flatt and the Nashville Grass, Gram Parsons and the Eagles. May 12 will be "boogie night" with R.E.O., Speedwagon, Canned Heat and Quicksilver.

Lester Flatt and the Nashville Grass is a genuine country group straight out of Nashville's Grand Ole Opry. Flatt is best known for his performances with Earl Scruggs. The Flatt-Scruggs duo was one of the major forces in the history of country music, by making bluegrass music a household sound throughout the country.

Flatt's band contains six members and is known for tight vocals and instrumentals. Most are veteran country music performers.

Incidentally, the Earl Scruggs Revue will be at the Brewery Sunday.

Gram Parsons is now a solo act. Parsons is the man who changed the direction of the Byrds from folk-rock to a country sound in their "Sweetheart of the Rodeo" album.

Parsons and Chris Hillman then split from the Byrds and formed the Flying Burrito Brothers with Sneezy Pete and Chris Ethridge. The Burritos were probably the most country of all the "country rock" groups ever.

Parsons' solo album on Warner Brothers Records follows in the great Burrito tradition. Any country station would be proud to play any cut from it. Those who think Commander Cody is the "real thing" in country music should definitely check Gram Parsons out.

As for the Eagles, three hit singles, "Take It Easy," "Witchy Woman" and "Peaceful Easy Feeling," plus two hit albums "The Eagles" and the recently released "Desperado," speak for their success. "Desperado" marks the development of what can be called a genuine "Eagles sound"—soft, mellow, easy listening. The group has only been together a short time, but it already is one of the top bands around.

Tickets for Sunspark are on sale at Campbell's, Marshall's and at the Union.

Taking it easy

The Eagles headline the Friday, May 11, segment of Sunspark, a two-night rock concert sponsored by Pop Entertainment. Also on the bill will be Lester Flatt and the Nashville Grass and Gram Parsons.

Guild to meet plans to bring opera to area

The Opera Guild Greater Lansing will meet for the first time tonight to make plans to bring opera to the Lansing area later this year. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Michigan Education Association, 1216 Kendale Blvd. Public is invited.

The guild, a non-profit organization, plans to present one opera this year and then expand to community interest groups. The guild was formed because the members felt that opera should be accessible on a professional level to all citizens of the community.

Dillards--pure, honest music

By GARY OZANICH
State News Reviewer

The Dillards are making their long awaited reappearance in town, after winning the hearts of many when they blew Elton John off the stage in Jenison Fieldhouse last year. The Dillards are a five piece blue grass group, led by guitarist singer Rodney Dillard. They will be at the Stables through Thursday. It is really good to see a great blue grass group in the area. All too often the groups playing around here do not do justice to what blue grass can sound like. They get into trading off monotonous fiddle or guitar-banjo solos, showing little more than speed within a very limited musical context. While displaying a folksy contrived "down home" humor, which comes off as extremely hokey, such groups also lack good integrated vocal harmony.

The Dillards show how it should be done. If you would like to see how blue grass should be played, few groups are a better introduction than the Dillards. The group does a modernized blue grass, all equipment amplified, and often directs its talents at contemporary material (including Lennon, McCartney, Hardin, and Dylan) or fairly modern sounding original tunes. They have their sound very together.

As a band the group sounds fine—extremely balanced. Rodney Dillard plays a good guitar, and Dean Webb on electric mandolin is excellent. The electric mandolin with its unique tonal quality actually accounts for much of the overall sound of the group. The group plays nice integrated arrangements with banjo, bass and drums. The high point of the show has to be the group's vocals which can seem like instrumentation in the songs' execution, as the group gets into beautiful three and four part harmony.

Entertainment

The energy level of the Dillards music runs the gamut, from slow tender ballads to the energy of footstomping rural revival music. Likewise the musicianship runs from the sublime of gentle guitar riffs to the fervor of hard core pickin', equal in speed and quality to any you will ever hear.

It was interesting to note how the band came off live. They didn't get into any corny "Hee-Haw" jokes or raps, but did entertain the crowd with stories of hometown personalities and musical experiences, thereby adding a little more flavor to their show without being obnoxiously quaint. The Dillards are highly entertaining to see.

Baggett new face at quarterback spot

No. 1 QB

By PAT FARNAN
State News Sports Writer
Avis should take a lesson from Charles Baggett.
A 20-year-old product of Fayetteville, N.C., Baggett has been the number two quarterback for Denny Stolz in spring drills. No more. At least not for two more weeks.

A new number one quarterback has emerged from the spring display of Spartan football talent. He's Charles Baggett, a transfer from the University of North Carolina.

"Mark Niesen will be moved to the defensive backfield for the remaining two weeks of spring drills," Stolz said. "At that time we will re-evaluate and decide where he will play next fall."

Stolz stressed however, that the move is not final. "Not by any means," he said. "We have two kids who are very talented athletes. It would be to our advantage to get them both in the lineup and that is what we are experimenting with right now."

Stolz added that Niesen would be working with the defensive unit and would continue to concentrate on offense in the event that both he and Baggett would be needed to fill that gap.

"Mark will try to pick up the Power I offense, too," Stolz said. "We still consider him an offensive ball player and we will continue. For right now, though, he'll be working out with the defense." Baggett, who transferred here from North Carolina, began working with the offensive unit as the number one quarterback Monday.

"I look at this as a move designed to help the team," Baggett said. "I'm very happy about it, of course. I came here to play football."

Baggett, who lived next door to MSU receiver coach Jimmy Raye during his high school career, commented that the move wasn't made because he "beat out Niesen for the job of quarterback."

"The coaches felt that they could possibly use their talent more effectively if they moved Mark to the defensive backfield," he said. "But then again this is only tentative. I'm just happy to be in there, that's all."

As a freshman, Baggett led the North Carolina freshmen to an unblemished 5-0 record before transferring to MSU.

Though his trump card is supposedly the pass, Stolz calls him "a beautiful combination of running and passing."

"We don't think that we are losing anything on the ground or in the air by having Baggett just about equal in ability. Niesen might have an advantage in that he is experienced."

"But Baggett should pick up some of that experience this spring," he continued. "We think he can do a good job. It's a gamble but then again it's something we might have to do to get the best players on the field." Niesen commented that the move didn't surprise him and it could be quite beneficial to the team.

"That's why the move was made," he said. "The object is to make us a winning football team," Niesen said. "I'm all in favor of anything that's going to help us out."

A former high school all-state selection at Manistee Catholic Central, Niesen added that he still would like to prove that he is capable of being a good quarterback.

"I still have the desire to prove to myself that I can handle the job," he said. "My running has improved and I think I can throw the football much better than people think."

Niesen admitted however, that if given a choice of playing on either side of the ball, he would lean toward defense.

With Niesen keeping the defense company, the back-up quarterback chores will be shared by Tyrone Willingham and Steve Moerdyke.

"Willingham will work behind Baggett and Niesen and will be available as an alternate," Stolz said.

DILL ONLY BRIGHT SPOT

Injuries hamper trackmen

By CHARLES JOHNSON
State News Sports Writer

The long road to the Big Ten outdoor conference title is becoming more and more narrow for the MSU track team, as the squad has turned in less-than-great performances in its first two outings.

According to Spartan head coach Fran Dittrich it is taking longer than he had expected for his team to gell as valid conference threats.

"Frankly, I was a little disappointed that we didn't do better than we did last week," the Spartan mentor said in reference to the Spartans' mediocre showing at the Drake Relays.

"It was obvious that we weren't ready for the quality of competition they had out there," Dittrich added.

The defending conference champs have looked far from deserving of that honor so far this season, with the exception of sophomore sprinter Marshall Dill.

In the Spartans only two outings of the outdoor season, Dill has managed to rack up a couple of 100-yard dash victories, running a wind-aided 9.3 at the Kansas Relays and coming back with a 9.6 last week at Drake.

The speedster from Detroit Northern has been the only bright spot in active competition for MSU, although Dittrich says that the rest of his squad will eventually come around.

"We've got to improve before the Big Ten meet," Dittrich said. "In fact, we can't go any other way but up and anyone who isn't ready by the Big Ten meet will not make the trip," Dittrich said seriously.

A big blow to the Spartans this season has been the inability of premier 440-yard hurdler Bob Cassleman to overcome a troublesome muscle strain.

"Bob wasn't quite ready last week and we just didn't want to take any chances," Dittrich asserted. "He's starting to look better in practice and I'm confident that he will be in top form shortly."

Besides Cassleman, the Spartans have been plagued with a number of minor injuries to other key members.

One hundred and twenty-yard high hurdler John Morrison has been bothered by a groin injury. Long jumper John Ross is still suffering from a four month-long heel injury

Varsity

The Varsity Club will hold an important meeting at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the Varsity Room at Spartan Stadium. Hot dogs and soft drinks will be served.

Sophomore sprinter Marshall Dill has been the Spartans' only semblance of greatness this season, registering two impressive 100-yard dash victories at the Kansas and Drake relays.

which has not been responding to treatment. Triple and long jumper D. Gregory has been hampered by thigh muscle soreness and shot putter M. Roberts has a bad elbow.

Despite the slow progress, Dittrich still maintains his optimism. "When we all get ready we're going to be wicked," Dittrich stated.

Spartan stickmen face Notre Dame

By JACK WALKDEN
State News Sports Writer

MSU's lacrosse team takes a break from Midwest Lacrosse League action as it hosts Notre Dame 3:30 p.m. today at the Secret Practice Field.

Notre Dame, having its best year in history, has more experience than any team the Spartans have played to date.

The Irish have 16 seniors on the team which won its first eight games before losing last week to Columbus, 4-3.

MSU, now 3-5 on the season, will have to stop not one, but three players if it's to stay in the game.

Attackman B. J. Bingle and midfielder Dave Jurusik have been the top goal scorers for Notre Dame with 18 goals each, while attackman Rich Mullin is the top point-getter with 15 goals and 16 assists for 31 points.

MSU has three dependable goal scorers itself. Val Washington leads the way with 15 goals, which leaves him seven goals short of his own record of 22 set last season. Tom Hardenbergh has chipped in

Men's IM

All first round resident hall tennis matches have been rescheduled for 6 p.m. Thursday. All first round independent tennis matches have been rescheduled for 6 p.m. today.

Resident hall track will begin Monday with a scratch meeting at 4:15 p.m. and preliminaries at 5:30. Fraternity track will begin Tuesday with a scratch meeting at 4:15 p.m. and preliminaries at 5:30. Finals for fraternity and resident hall track will be May 10 at 5:30 p.m.

with 12, while Steve Urbin has 11.

Hardenbergh and Urbin both had great days in the Spartans' 9-7 win over Ohio State last week. Hardenbergh had four assists to tie the Spartans' single game record. Urbin had five goals to key the victory over the Buckeyes.

"If I was a betting man I'd bet on Notre Dame," MSU coach Bob Stevenson said in discussing the contest, "but at even odds."

Stevenson thinks, however, that the Spartans have a chance.

"They're a very, very good team. They've lost almost no one from last year. Ron Herbert is going to have to have a good game and we're going to have to get some good production out of the midfielders to win," Stevenson explained.

"A victory over them (Notre Dame) would indicate that we're in good shape to finish the last three games," he added.

Herbert has begun to get back into form in the last few games but is still somewhat bothered by an ankle injury sustained early in the season against Ashland.

"An individual probably won't be able to carry us against Notre Dame," Stevenson noted, "but Ron (Herbert) would be the most likely individual who would be able to do it."

The Spartans have one injury problem, but they also have good news on another player. Roy Sgroi, who has been bothered by a shoulder injury most of the season, will be unable to play against the Irish. However, Tom McGohey, who has yet to see action this year, may return against Notre Dame. McGohey broke his collarbone in early drills, but was hopeful of getting an OK from his doctor Tuesday to return to action.

Stop that pass

Midfielder Mike Richard - (60) prepares to pass off to Mark Macy (3), as the Spartans get ready for a goal-scoring drive against Illinois. An unidentified Illini player has much to say about the pass completion, however.

Breslin whips "Lash"

By GARY F. "GERITOL" KORRECK
State News Sports Writer

Say it ain't so, Lash.

A misty-eyed little boy touched a dog-eared copy of a Harry Bridges biography to his chest and trudged into the shadows of the IM building. Mighty Larowe had struck out.

For the record, Larowe showed only brief flashes of continuity in his play, losing 21-7, 21-12, despite holding an 11-8 lead in the second set.

For Tiger Jack Breslin, the victory had to be gratifying. Breslin slept and ate little during the week and had his phone number changed three times to avoid threatening calls from Larowe.

With his knees admittedly going bad, Breslin was expected to have rough going. He proved the skeptics wrong.

Forced to enter with a police escort, Tiger Jack made his way through the hostile crowd and bedazzled his own sparse following with a resplendent green and white "Tiger Jack" T-shirt and red Keds.

He took a spill during game two and the standing room only crowd held its breath as he moved slowly to his feet. "I didn't trip him intentionally," Larowe offered.

"Go easy on him Jack," the crowd pleaded as Breslin rebounded from the tumble.

Despite the strong Larowe contingent, few at the scene expected it would go the maximum three games.

"My heart's with Larowe, but my money's on Breslin," one observer commented.

"Stop toying with him, Jack," Walter Adams pleaded.

"Larowe's stopped breathing."

Distinguished prof Adams later presented Breslin with a Reynolds Wrap embroidered loving cup, while the crowd voiced its displeasure.

"The least you could've done is work up a sweat," Adams said.

"The knees were bad," Breslin admitted, as he hurried upstairs to grab a glass of milk.

"You're damn right I'll be back next year," Larowe said. "He'll be a year older - I'm already in training."

In the final analysis, it was the youth and speed of Tiger Jack over the pleistocene grinsance of Larowe.

"It couldn't happen to a nicer guy," Adams said of Tiger Jack. "It was really no contest."

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) -- Narcotics Agents arrested 22 persons in raids at the University of Nevada in Las Vegas early Tuesday, including a campus policeman, student officers, athletes and students who pooled scholarship funds to buy drugs.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Patrick Stevens, supervising agent for the State Division of Narcotics, who led about 25 officers on the raids. "The thing that impressed me was the openness of it. The stuff was just lying around in jars and bags, with little vials of cocaine."

Stevens said his agents on campus were told by some students that they had pooled their scholarship money to buy large quantities of narcotics.

DETROIT -- Bob Lanier, leading scorer and rebounder for the Detroit Pistons during the last two seasons, Tuesday signed a new five-year contract with the National Basketball Association Club.

Pistons' general manager Ed Coil said the current five-year pact with the 6'11", 260 pound center was torn up with two years remaining. Coil would not disclose the amount of the new contract, but it was believed to be more than the original pact of some $1.3 million.

Lanier joined the Pistons in 1970. He was bothered by a knee injury in the first season, but led all teammates in scoring for the next two seasons.

In the past two seasons, Lanier has led the team in rebounds. He notched 1,205 during the past season and 1,132 in 1971-72.

NEW YORK -- Jockey Jacinto Vasquez who rode Angle Light to victory in the Wood Memorial and is slated to ride the colt this Saturday in the Kentucky Derby narrowly escaped injury in the first race Aqueduct today.

Vasquez was rushed to a hospital for X-rays when there was a possibility his shoulder was fractured. The pictures were clear, and Vasquez was not held for further tests.

MSU's baseball squad dropped the first game of its doubleheader Tuesday when Eastern Michigan, as the Hurons came with a run in the bottom of the seventh win, 8-7.

The second game was incomplete press time.

Duane Bickel went all the way for Spartans and absorbed the defeat.

Designated hitter Howard Schryer MSU's hitting attack with a triple home run in three at-bats, driving in runs.

John Rohde and Bailey Oliver each doubles for the Spartans, which scored three in the sixth to take a brief advantage.

ON SCHEDULED BASIS

Gynecologist joins center staff

By LAURA MILLER
State News Staff Writer

Women with "female problems" will be able to see a gynecologist on a scheduled basis at the University Health Center.

Previously, the health center had the services of gynecologists from the Dept. of Obstetrics Gynecology and Reproductive Biology only on a sporadic basis when that staff had time.

Numerous women had complained that the health center's gynecological services were inadequate without a permanent gynecologist. In the beginning of April, the health center added its first permanently scheduled gynecologist on a part-time basis.

Gordon D. Daugherty, asst. clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology, has been assigned to the health center staff part-time. He will work in the clinic three days a week and also teach classes in the department.

Dr. James S. Feurig said a part-time gynecologist was added to the health center staff, because there was a visible demand for increased services from women wanting birth control devices and treatment for pelvic disorders.

He said increased sexual freedom in recent years has increased the number of women seeking gynecological services from the center. The need for expanded services was particularly evident last fall term, he said.

"We were quite overwhelmed fall term," he said, "because the clinic is often the first access to birth control information women have." The demand for gynecological services is usually high every fall he said, and the health center is considering adding another part-time gynecologist next year. That decision will depend on the availability of an appointment from the Dept. of Obstetrics Gynecology and Reproductive Biology Feurig said.

Feurig said the health center has not contracted a full-time gynecologist from outside the University, because college women usually have limited types of problems which limit the type of service needed.

"Our clientele does not have the gynecological disorders or the diversity that a full-time gynecologist with a full range of expertise wants," he said.

Feurig said the bulk of a gynecologist's time is spent with obstetrics, hysterectomies and ovarian tube surgery, and most college women do not have these problems.

By using a part-time gynecologist from the University department, he said, the doctor can use his full range of expertise within the department, the health center and teaching.

Officials on governor's staff pass up free goodwill cruise

DETROIT (UPI)—Some 450 Michigan officials can look forward to a five-day Caribbean cruise sponsored by the Greater Detroit

Chamber of Commerce.

But members of Gov. Milliken's staff originally scheduled on the male-only cruise aboard the British Cunard Ambassador backed out at the last minute—apparently to avoid any more controversy over alleged conflicts of interest.

Public officials scheduled to make the trip which begins Thursday include Detroit Mayor Roman Gribbs, Wayne County Commission Chairman

Robert Fitzpatrick and top Democratic and Republican leaders in the Michigan Senate and House of Representatives.

Two Milliken staff members turned in their tickets after several stories last week indicated possible conflicts of interests in the governor's office, a Milliken staff member said.

Milliken has pledged to take steps to avoid any appearances that conflicts of interests exist within his staff. Michigan businesses or individuals purchase tickets to finance the annual cruise, which chamber officials insist is nothing more than a "goodwill trip."

Three seminars are planned for the cruise on subjects ranging from taxation to inner-city development. They will focus on government programs in which the chamber and business have interests.

Volunteer
Bureau

The following is a list of openings from the MSU Volunteer Bureau's request book. The request book provides volunteer opportunities in a variety of settings, coming from requests for volunteers from agencies or persons from the Ingham County community.

A volunteer is needed for general light housekeeping in an elderly, handicapped person on Social Security. Times arranged. Transportation is not provided.

People with an interest and sensitivity toward children are needed to work with young emotionally disturbed children and their families. Times can be arranged. There is a possibility that agency will provide transportation. The agency will provide necessary training.

The MSU Office of Programs for Handicapped Students would like several students to provide on-going help for handicapped MSU students. Activities might include buying books for students, helping them at registration, etc.

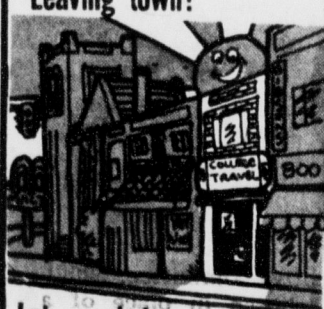

The Ingham County Juvenile Court is seeking volunteers to help locate full and part-time employment for youngsters. Volunteers will be required to contact and interview prospective employers. Four or five volunteers are needed. Hours are flexible but the agency does not provide transportation.

The Probate Court has a desperate need for a tutor for a 16-year old Chicano boy who reads on the third grade level. Hours arranged and there is a possibility of transportation being provided by agency.

Hall residents find pet policy easy to duck

but the matter must be brought into perspective. A residence hall room is not a conducive environment for a pet to exist in."

The adviser said that the building supervisors report the existence of pets when they are discovered during daily repairs.

"If I see a pet, I ask the student to find another home for it," Sharon Brown, Mason adviser said. "Maybe a solution to this whole problem is to set aside a residence hall where a student could keep pets in his room. But I have to enforce the rule as it now stands."

Gary North, residence hall coordinator, said the pet problem is far less evident this year than in past years. He attributed the decline of pet complaints to the detailed spelling-out of the regulation in the student handbook and to the inclusion of all University buildings as no pet areas beginning last fall.

"In a system this size it is necessary to have the rule and to enforce it," North said.

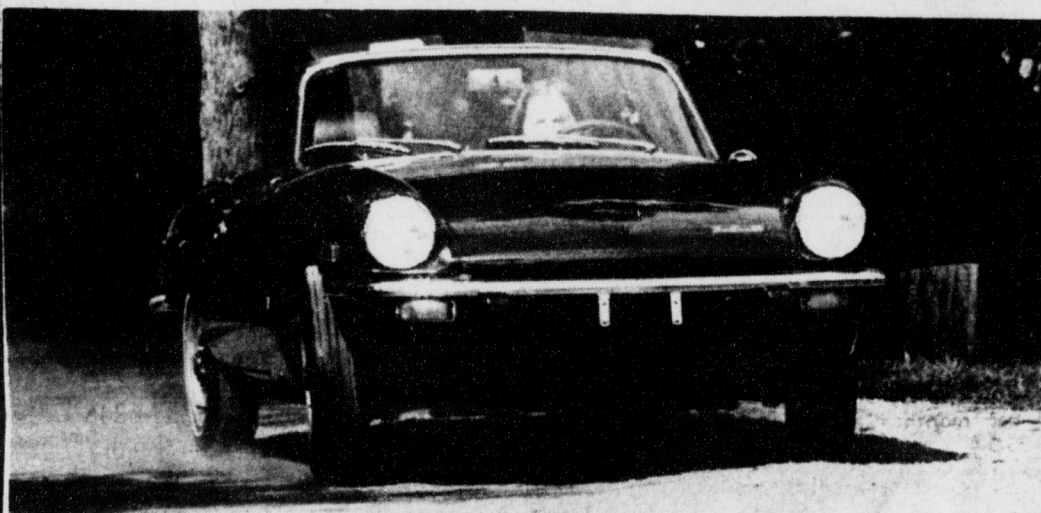

He explained that the no pet rule came about as a result of increasing complaints from janitors who objected to cleaning up after pets, students who complained about animal disturbances and veterinarian students who complained that confining an animal to a residence hall room environment was inhuman.

No disciplinary action is taken by the University against students who violate the ordinance, assuming that the student corrects the situation. North said most students cooperate when they are asked to remove a pet.

Jump into Spring with the nimblest and most inexpensive Triumph — the Spitfire 1500.

Put the Spitfire through its paces and experience its eager GET AWAY performance. A peppy 1493 cc four cylinder engine with overhead valves responds to the slightest touch of the pedal.

Spitfire's "right-on" handling approches that of the most expensive sports cars. A heavy front anti-rolle bar gives sound road stability. The quick rack and pinion steering seems to almost anticipate your every move.

Travel first class and GET AWAY into Spring with Spitfire's spirited performance and handling. Come in and test drive one today... don't miss anymore nice days.

University salary report angers personnel

Kenney said many personnel employees were angry because it seemed that Hayes had taken existing salaries and built classifications to fit them; instead of taking each job description separately and assigning appropriate pay according to duties.

He also said a number of the administrative personnel, who were on the evaluation committee to review compensation policies were upset that their recommendations were not taken by Hayes Associates.

He said it appeared to many that the authors of the report had ultimately ignored their recommendations and had made internal adjustments on the basis of as yet undefined criteria.

One woman on the University Steering Committee said the report didn't give attention to them, and committee members were used only to placate people.

During the investigation, points were to be assigned to each job classification on the basis of duties performed. Salaries were to be determined, according to that point system.

But Stephen Zopf, an administrative assistant in the College of Human Medicine, said the method used was unsatisfactory.

People were lumped together in broad job classifications, he said, while they performed widely different duties that were not given recognition.

"Without giving point counts and investigating every person's job description that was filed at the beginning of the study," Zopf said, "how can they possibly find out if people are in the right place?"

But Keith Groty, asst. vice president of personnel and employe relations and a member of the Hayes-University

Steering Committee, said all jobs were evaluated in the administrative personnel ranks, and that the study found per cent of the personnel were in their proper pay range.

One administrative secretary who has worked for the University for 10 years and did not get a raise as a result of the report said she was definitely not put in the right place. She intends to file a grievance with the Dept. of Human Relations.

She said it was the people who were "tooting their own horn the loudest" and worked for the right people who got the raises, while the people who did the real work and made important decisions did not.

Herman King, asst. provost, said however that no one salary had been absolutely set and that the Hayes report was only a recommendation dependent on the final approval of the board of trustees. Complaints about salary are premature until approval of the report, he indicated.

Zopf contends that even the recommendations are well out of line, particularly in regard to promotions.

He said the study recommended such broad salary ranges in each classification that a person could be at the high level in one category making $14,045 a year and promoted to a higher classification at a minimum level with the same pay.

Some of the most vocal critics of the report are administrative secretaries.

"There isn't any equity at all," said an administrative secretary who has worked for the University for 10 years. "People who don't even know how to type or use correct grammar are being called administrative secretaries and are being given the raises. Many competent administrative secretaries are being treated like housewives who do all the work but get none of the rewards," she said.

Agency sought to unify programs

"I'm optimistic about the future," he said. "There's good support, though I realize it'll be modifications." Babcock said his office will work with legislative committees, especially appropriations, and is drafting legislation for the proposed restructuring. He has also received input from alcohol and drug control groups, he said.

Though the state would provide technical assistance and adequate funding, the responsibility for treatment and rehabilitation would rest with local communities. Services would include information and referral, diagnostic evaluation, medical and psychiatric care, laboratory work and research and occupational help.

Though drug abuse affects all people, programs reach very few, the report said.

"Only one segment of the at risk population has been the major recipient of services, i.e. the middle-aged, white, employed male," it said. "Almost all programs exhibit a striking absence of women, adolescents, young adults, minority groups including American Indians, blacks and members of the Spanish-speaking communities."

Drug education programs are also inadequate, the report said. It recommended regional drug education training programs and student service centers for schools. It also calls for the development of training opportunities for treatment personnel to upgrade their performance.

The criminal justice system should use noninstitutional care and community programs for offenders whenever possible, the report said.

The Commission on Drug Abuse and Alcoholism compiled the report over a 15-month period using public hearings, surveys, census reports and task forces.

Investigators finger Nixon aides

All six men are expected to be indicted by the federal grand jury now hearing testimony on the Watergate incident, sources close to the case said today.

At least four other persons also were involved in the cover-up, and are now under investigation by the grand jury, the sources said. They are Dwight L. Chapin, the President's former appointments secretary, Gordon Strachan, a Haldeman assistant, Herbert L. Porter, who worked for Herbert Klein's information office and Kenneth W. Parkinson. The last is a Washington lawyer who was hired by the re-election committee shortly after the June 17 break-in.

In addition, investigators said, there were many others who were -- in the words of one source -- "seduced by the operation." The grand jury and Senate investigating committee are now trying to determine, among other things, whether those persons know the full implications of their roles in the cover-up.

The scheme, as allegedly worked out by Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Mitchell and Dean, included payments to the arrested defendants, promises of executive clemency, a series of public denials, and arrangements with Magruder and Porter to perjure themselves during the trial of the seven Watergate defendants.

The additional funds needed for the payoffs, sources said, were collected by Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer who also served as a chief campaign money-raiser. Although Kalmbach made a special effort to raise the case after the men were arrested, the sources added, it has not been determined whether he was aware of its ultimate use. He, too, is now under investigation by the grand jury. The White House said today that the lawyer is no longer handling legal matters for Nixon.

"This is the thing which absolutely blows my mind," one investigator said in an interview.

The account of the cover-up provided to the New York Times was subsequently confirmed and corroborated in interviews during the last 24 hours with a variety of officials and attorneys involved in the case.

Perhaps the grossest fabrication, sources said, was the coordinated account provided to the federal prosecutors, and used by them as a bulwark in the subsequent Watergate trial, of the initial rationale behind the cash payments to G. Gordon Liddy, one of those convicted of the bugging of the Democratic National Committee.

The government was told by a number of re-election committee officials that the $100,000 given to Liddy was to pay 10 different intelligence agents $1,000 a month each for 10 months in 1972 to find out if anti-Republican demonstrations were planned.

"That was a complete fabrication," one investigator said. "Just a complete lie."

Hugh W. Sloan Jr., treasurer of the re-election committee, who gave the cash to Liddy, according to investigators, was the only key official who apparently chose not to participate in the cover-up, causing his superiors to alter some details of the agreed-upon story.

Sloan had been urged to commit perjury during the Watergate trial by testifying that he gave Liddy and his associates only $40,000 in 100 bills rather than the $235,000 that was actually provided, informed sources said. On at least three occasions, Sloan has told investigators that Magruder and La Rue attempted to pressure him into changing his story.

Sloan confirmed the account in a telephone interview last night from his father's home but refused to discuss the matter, saying that he would talk only to the appropriate officials.

Investigators said, however, that Sloan had unsuccessfully attempted, in the days following the first public disclosure of the Watergate break-in, to tell both Ehrlichman and Haldeman of his concern over the re-election committee's role in the bugging.

"Sloan made incredible efforts to get word to the President or somebody about what he knew what was wrong," one source noted. "They all told him to go back to the committee."

His first attempt to tell higher-ups of the impending scandal, investigators said, came six days after the break-in, during an evening party aboard a chartered vessel in the Potomac River. The party was in honor of Col. Vernon C. Coffey of the Army, a White House military aide who was being reassigned to the National War College, and may White House and re-election committee officials attended.

By this time, one source recalled, Sloan "had begun to read this stuff in newspapers about $100 bills floating around, and he really began to get scared."

Sloan approached Chapin, who was then Nixon's appointments secretary and a Haldeman protegee, and asked for an appointment with the White House chief of staff. Investigators also say that he sought out Kenneth R. Cole Jr., then a member of Ehrlichman's staff, and arranged for an appointment the next day with Ehrlichman, the President's domestic adviser.

According to the investigators, Sloan said that the following conversation, using roughly these words, took place during his White House meeting with Ehrlichman:

Sloan: "I think we've got some real problems at the committee in connection with this bugging of the Democrats."

Ehrlichman: "That's a problem you have over there. I don't want to know any facts; it's none of my business. If you have a personal problem about it, get a lawyer."

Sloan: "Let me tell you what I think may be going on over there."

Ehrlichman: "I don't want to be told any details."

Sloan, sources said, never did get an appointment with Haldeman, and he was, in effect, told by Chapin to mind his own business.

endeavored to prepare a 'psychiatric profile' relating to Ellsberg. The efforts of Liddy and Hunt were directed toward an in-depth investigation of Ellsberg to determine his habits, mental attitudes, motives, etc."

The report said Ehrlichman "was not told that these two individuals had broken into the premises of the psychiatrist for Ellsberg until after this incident had taken place."

The report adds that Ehrlichman does not know if anything was obtained from the psychiatrist's office, and, presumably whether it was used in the prosecution of Ellsberg and Russo.

Ehrlichman was interviewed by the FBI the same day Byrne made public a Justice Dept. memo revealing that Liddy and Hunt had allegedly burglarized Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office. Byrne ordered an investigation launched that day. Nixon announced Ehrlichman's resignation Monday.

The jury has heard four months of testimony about the role of Ellsberg and Russo in copying the top secret Pentagon Papers. The judge said he would try to have the government continue its rebuttal testimony while the investigation continues.

Byrnes specifically asked for more information about the alleged connection of Cuban nationals with the burglary and another alleged attempt to attack Ellsberg publicly.

Huhn will soon be hiring a woman assistant.

"We need a woman's touch, but that doesn't mean I'm a male chauvinist," he chuckled.

Huhn said a woman will help the men relate to a stable home situation. This, he explained, is because alcoholic men tend to be very insecure with women because they usually have had unsuccessful marriages and many have been divorced at least once.

Both houses try to deinstitutionalize themselves.

Neither has a sign declaring it a halfway house. There are no visual distinctions between the halfway houses and other homes in the neighborhood.

"When we answer the phone, we don't say 'Lansing Halfway House' or anything like that," said Huhn. The men want to remain anonymous, so when we answer the phone, we just say 'John speaking,' or something like that."

Currently there are 12 residents in the men's halfway house, one of which is a live-in residential manager.

Bill, a patient who once resided in the old halfway house, feels that if the house were bigger or if there were more residents, it would not be the same.

"It would lose its personal touch," he said.

The residents in both houses range in age from 20 to 60, though most are 35 or younger.

Residence in both houses requires an interview by respective house administrators. Each patient needs the recommendation of at least two doctors or therapists for consideration of admittance.

"We want someone who's motivated, which is why most of our residents are young," Saylor said.

Once a patient takes up residence in one of the houses, he or she gets a week to get used to the new environment before beginning to participate in the programs.

All household chores are divided among the residents. The residents must have a complete interview with the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, and they must also participate in some form of therapy. Therapy can be through Alcoholics Anonymous or on a one to one basis with a personal therapist.

The social life of an alcoholic is a very delicate thing, and must be restructured very carefully.

Some of the women residents date, and some have steady relationships. Others want to but haven't had the time.

"For some, it's scary to start dating," Saylor said. "Before, they always had booze to help them relate to the opposite sex."

"We try to give patients alternatives for a new behavior," she added. "Mostly they knew cards and bars, so they haven't really developed skills in crafts or recreation."

Saylor and Huhn are working on new crafts, field trips and other recreational activities for the residents.

"They just don't know how to relax," Huhn said. "So we have a chance to help rebuild shattered lives."

Both Huhn and Saylor are optimistic about the future of the houses, and both are scheduled to soon merge with the Tri-County Council on Alcoholism, which offers information about the disease and a referral agency for Clinton, Eaton and Ingham Counties. The council, however, has been funding the houses since their inception.

"It's a good thing we're located in Lansing," Huhn said. "Here we can come the attention of people who can help us do something about alcoholism."

Correction

A Tuesday story in the State News series on alcoholism incorrectly said "the alcoholic family" finds help through the Al-Anon Family groups. The story should not have called the family alcoholic, but merely the family of the alcoholic.

Also, the omission of a line of type left an impression that alcoholism is referred to as Anon. Actually, alcoholism goes to Alcoholics Anonymous, and it is his or her spouse that attends Al-Anon.
