Lansing television station WJIM has been challenged recently by the Detroit Free Press, the American Civil Liberties Union and a citizens' group. The Federal Communications Commission has deferred the renewal of WJIM's license to investigate charges against the station.

Experts predict harsh action toward WJIM-TV not forthcoming

Students may be watching WJIM-TV for years to come, despite the fact that the station's license was not renewed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) last week.

Two MSU communications experts said Monday that if any punishment is handed out to the station by the FCC for alleged news blackouts and other charges, it will probably amount to no more than "a slap on the wrist."

But a lengthy and expensive legal battle may ensue, John Abel, asst. professor of television and radio, and Thomas Baldwin, professor of television and radio, said Monday.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) last week requested federal authorities to conduct public hearings to determine whether WJIM-TV's principal owner, Harold F. Gross, had misused his broadcast license and should have it revoked.

In response to the ACLU's request, Gross said he hopes "that the motive of the Lansing ACLU chapter is not to seek publicity but to seek the facts."

"It is ironic but immensely rewarding to be able to say to the ACLU that the quality of WJIM-TV news has never been higher as recent surveys by reputable firms attest," Gross said.

He cited a survey report indicating that WJIM has the highest TV news rating in Michigan. He did not name the specific rating service.

If the FCC could find any foundation to the allegations, Abel said it could fine WJIM-TV, grant it a short-term license of one year or postpone any action indefinitely.

While postponing action would not affect the station directly, it could stymie Gross' chances of getting the still unawarded Lansing cable television contract, or adversely affect the pending transfer of a Fort Wayne, Ind., television station Gross recently agreed to purchase for $4 million.

All such transfers of station ownership must be approved by the FCC.

"Revoking a license is a very drastic step," Baldwin said. "The FCC would be very reluctant to revoke a license worth, in this case, perhaps $10-$15 million."

Abel cited a study he conducted which showed that from 1934, when the Federal Communications Act took effect, until 1970 only 78 commercial television stations had their licenses revoked or renewal of licenses deferred. There are presently 704 commercial television stations in the United States.

Gross himself sees little or no chance that the station will permanently lose its license.

In a similar case the renewal of the license of WJBK-TV in Detroit was deferred in 1970 because of a petition filed against the station.

The license was renewed in 1971, however, when the FCC found the petition without foundation.

Larry Carino, vice president and general manager of WJBK, said Monday there has recently been an increase in the number of petitions filed against stations.

Balwin said most of these petitions have recently been filed by minority groups.

However, Gross remains confident about the station's future.

"If after 40 years of business in this community, the extensive and investigative reporting by the Detroit Free Press is able to produce only the unfounded, ludicrous and trivial allegations carried in recent weeks, then we're damn proud of our record."

But 22 present and former WJIM employees were not so proud of the station's record, as reported in recent Detroit Free Press articles. Charges were leveled that Gross ordered news blackouts of certain public figures, including James Harrison, a 1968 Democratic candidate for Congress.

The articles further charged that Gross used his publicly issued broadcast license to further his personal interests and that he included false information in his application for a three-year renewal of his broadcast license.

Gross denied the allegations Monday and said each of the four local officials cited by the Free Press as targets of the alleged blackout have stated for the record that they were unaware that any such condition ever existed.

"I remind the local members (of the ACLU) that I have categorically denied the blackout allegations contained in the recent irresponsible Detroit Free Press articles."

WJIM-TV first came under fire in June when Citizens United for Better Broadcasting, a 20 member local citizens group, complained of the quality of the station's news and public affairs programs, the alleged lack of children's shows, sexist advertising and inadequate minority hiring.

"Gross is ripping off this community by taking money he made here and investing it elsewhere," Abel said.

Agnew probe faces statutes of limitations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors are racing the calendar to wind up their probe of Spiro T. Agnew before statutes of limitations run out on alleged crimes for which the vice president is being investigated.

Legal arguments may be made that the statutes on at least some of the alleged crimes expire in as little as three weeks, it was learned Monday.

Agnew is under investigation by a special federal grand jury in Baltimore for possible violation of bribery, extortion, tax and conspiracy laws while governor of Maryland.

Under federal law, prosecution for bribery and extortion must be initiated within five years of the commission of the crime. After five years, no legal action can be taken. The statutes of limitations on tax evasion and tax fraud are six years.

The statutes on conspiracy to commit bribery or extortion are five years, on conspiracy to commit tax evasion or fraud, six years.

On Oct. 22, 1968, the Maryland State Board of Public Works held its last major session before Agnew left the office of governor. At that session, seven major engineering contracts were awarded, totaling more than $5.6 million.

Records subpoenaed

These contracts involved construction of approaches to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and the Baltimore Outer Harbor Tunnel, the two major projects to be financed out of a $220 million bond issue.

All records involving these contracts have been subpoenaed by the Baltimore grand jury.

Should the panel wish to indict Agnew for extortion, bribery or conspiracy to commit either of those crimes in connection with the Oct. 22, 1968 awards, Agnew's lawyers reportedly are considering an argument that the indictment cannot be returned after Oct. 22, 1973 — five years after the meeting, sources close to the case reported.

By that reasoning, however, the prosecutors should have until Oct. 22 of next year to pursue allegations of violation of tax laws, the sources said.

It is known that the prosecutors in Baltimore are moving as quickly as possible to present evidence to the grand jury.

Crucial to that effort was the ruling last week by U.S. Dist. Judge Walter E. Hoffman that the grand jury investigation may continue while Agnew's lawyers and the Justice Dept. battle in court over the grand jury's constitutional right to investigate a sitting vice president.

Should the grand jury fail to act by Oct. 22 and should the Justice Dept. wish to pursue the extortion-bribery lines of inquiry, prosecutors could argue that the statutes of limitations did not start to run until the day Agnew left the governor's office — Jan. 7, 1969 — or even until Agnew took office as vice president — Jan. 20, 1969. That would mean that statutes wouldn't run out until January of 1974.

The grand jury was scheduled to meet again later this week.

News leaks attacked
In the meantime, Agnew was to return to Washington late Monday afternoon from a weekend on the West Coast during which he made the strongest statement in his personal defense since he disclosed Aug. 6 that he was under investigation.

Agnew also attacked Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen as the source of a controversial news leak about the investigation. On Monday, White House spokesmen said Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson had assured President Nixon that Petersen was not the source of the CBS news report Sept. 22. That report quoted sources as saying Petersen had said of the investigation: "We've got the evidence, we've got it cold."

"This morning the attorney general assured the White House that Asst. Atty. Gen. Petersen was not the source of the statement reported on CBS," said Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren. "The attorney general assured the White House that Asst. Atty. Gen. Petersen had not talked to the news media."

Warren also quoted Richardson as saying that an in-house departmental investigation of news leaks is continuing.

On another matter, Warren said special White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt had acted as a go-between in earlier negotiations between Agnew's lawyers and the Justice Dept. Buzhardt did not participate directly in discussion between the two parties, however, Warren said.

House inquiry denied

In a related development, House Speaker Carl Albert said his decision not to grant Agnew the House inquiry he requested will stand and added that the decision was not politically motivated. Albert has said he would not permit the House to hear Agnew's case because it was a matter before the courts.

"It was not based on political considerations," Albert said at a news conference. "It was based on lots of study by myself, by the Judiciary Committee and its staff and others."

Albert has received a number of requests from Republican members of the House to reconsider his decision, but has not done so. Agnew has said he will continue to press the House for action.

Report calls for equal emphasis on higher education for all people

By LINNEA BOESE
State News Staff Writer

The present higher education system should concentrate less on educating a minority of young middle class students and more on educating the majority of people of all ages, according to the latest report of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

The report argues that the emphasis on the conventional four-year academic degree and the prestige of the college curriculum has led to more subsidies for young students entering this system and fewer for those who cannot because of jobs or background.

John E. Cantlon, MSU provost, reacted to the national report Monday by saying that MSU has not been "asleep at the switch" in establishing adult education programs.

The 75-year-old Cooperative Extension Service, which is operating on an $11 million budget, focuses on educating adults off-campus, and its Continuing Education Service extends education to thousands of others.

Adults in these programs do not get the subsidies that on-campus students get, but the fault for this is with the state, which does the funding, Cantlon said.

MSU's education program is geared mainly to the 18-to-24-year-old. Cantlon questioned whether this is necessarily bad.

Though the University completely supports adult education, the younger student has been the challenge up to now, he said.

"We are not going to suddenly convert to an adult-education institution," he continued. "We will continue to focus on the young student more than older people."

"However, the University can and is doing more about adult education," Cantlon said.

MSU is presently considering increasing night classes for those who work, what courses can be made available by broadcast and cable TV and evaluating on-campus policies that presently restrict the granting of "external" degrees.

The commission's report also calls for greater opportunities for all people to drop in on and out of learning situations.

Cantlon said that there are no great impediments to doing this now. About 2,000 students were readmitted to MSU this fall after having been out of school, he said.

Other recommendations of the commission include proposals for a wider dispersal of educational facilities so they are nearer more people, improved opportunities for the employed to study part time and programs to train persons whose skills are unneeded or obsolete.

The report also said that other learning situations are better for many people than college, including technical training, apprenticeship programs, museums and libraries as well as correspondence schools and private trade.

The commission proposed that education be made available to all people through a voucher system which would guarantee financial aid to anyone for two years of postsecondary training.

A greater emphasis on a cumulative record of achievement and less on an academic degree would be placed on the system.

MISDEMEANOR CHARGES

Saboteur pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political saboteur Donald H. Segretti pleaded guilty Monday to violating federal election laws during last year's Democratic presidential primary in Florida.

In Senate testimony, Segretti was identified as receiving between $30,000 and $40,000 from a fund raiser for President Nixon's campaign.

Segretti pleaded guilty to three charges of conspiracy and distributing political literature which did not identify the persons responsible for distributing it.

A letter outlining the cooperation Segretti agreed to give prosecutors in exchange for immunity from further grand jury prosecution was sealed by the court at the request of Segretti's attorney and federal prosecutors. No reason was given for keeping the letter secret.

Segretti had been indicted by a federal grand jury in Tampa, Fla., on four counts, but prosecutors agreed to drop one.

Segretti was accused of distributing a letter on Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's campaign stationery accusing two other Democratic candidates, Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Henry Jackson of Washington, of sexual misconduct.

Segretti, 32, a Los Angeles lawyer, entered his plea before U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell who deferred sentencing on the three misdemeanor charges. Each carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Segretti will appear before the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday, chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., announced Monday.

The committee canceled today's hearing because the two scheduled witnesses — former White House Aide Dwight L. Chapin and a political operative once known as "Fat Jack" — have said they would plead the Fifth Amendment.

Chapin, President Nixon's former appointments secretary, and John R. Buckley, identified by Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. as "Fat Jack," told the committee through their lawyers that they could invoke their right to refuse to testify.

Herbert W. Kalmbach, one-time personal lawyer to Nixon and a Nixon campaign fund raiser, told the Senate Watergate committee he had paid Segretti between $30,000 and $40,000 at the request of Chapin.

Meanwhile, E. Howard Hunt and four other men who had pleaded guilty in the Watergate break-in trial, were told Monday that their final sentences would be nothing like the long prohibitive terms under which they have been confined since last March.

The five men, who had pleaded guilty to burglary, conspiracy and wiretapping, are Hunt, Virgilio R. Gonzalez, Eugenio R. Martinez, Bernard L. Barker and Frank A. Sturgis.

All have asked to have their guilty pleas thrown out on the grounds they were misled into thinking that they were protecting a national security operation.

Military bill approved by Senate

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved Monday a $29.9 billion military procurement bill after rejecting a last-minute proposal for an across-the-board $500-million cut in the defense budget.

For the Nixon Administration the Senate's action, coming after 10 days of debate on post-Vietnam defense policies, represented a basic endorsement of its defense program.

The Senate bill, passed by a 91-7 vote, authorizes $1 billion less than requested by the administration for the procurement of new weapons and military research in the present fiscal year. But the legislation authorizes all the major weapons sought by the administration, which was able to beat back all floor amendments to cut various weapons programs.

The only setback suffered by the administration was in the field of military manpower. The Senate bill calls for a 156,000-man reduction in the 2,232,900-man military force.

Water quality management

Howard Tanner, project director of a $2.2 million water quality management facility being constructed three miles south of central campus, briefs newsmen on the details of the program Monday. Waste water piped from the East Lansing Sewage Treatment Plant is already filling the four lakes, and will eventually be used to irrigate a 300-acre tract of land nearby.

Meir to confer on emigration

Israeli Premier Golda Meir will visit Vienna today to persuade Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky to reverse his pledge to close down a transit camp for emigrating Soviet Jews.

Meir said Austria's "surrender to terrorism" created a dangerous precedent and raised the possibility that other countries would close their borders to emigrating Jews on grounds that these Jews created a risk of terrorism.

Kreisky decided to suspend large-scale emigration of Soviet Jews through Vienna as a concession to secure the release of three Jewish emigrants and an Austrian official who had been kidnapped by two armed Arab guerrillas.

"Threatened human lives have to be saved first," Kreisky said. "Only then come the others."

Meanwhile, the State Dept. said it disagrees with the Austrian decision to close the transit center.

Viet battle bloodiest since truce

Communist and South Vietnamese government troops fought the biggest battle since the January cease-fire 40 miles northwest of Saigon. Waves of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong infantry attacked two government strongholds near the border with Cambodia, leaving a total of 300 dead or wounded on both sides by late Sunday.

In Cambodia, Communist-led insurgents continued to apply pressure north and south of Phnom Penh. At Kompong Cham, 47 miles northeast, government troops retook a key pagoda and a dike in a push toward an encircled airport. Clashes were also reported along Highway 38 along the southern defense line.

IRA prisoners form battalion

Militant Irish Republican Army members have formed a special battalion in their detention camp near Belfast. The provisional battalion is trying to continue the guerrilla war against British forces in Northern Ireland. The prisoners, not subject to prison routine, hold nightly classes on urban guerrilla warfare, ambush methods and handling guns.

Chile to upgrade shanty housing

Chile's ruling military junta unveiled a plan to improve "subhuman" living conditions. The plan calls for aid to millions living in squalid shantytowns near Chilean cities. Urban housing has been scarce for the poor for 20 years, and country peasants coming to the cities to find work built shacks on vacant land to house their families. These marginal areas became hotbeds of Marxist activity.

In another development, nine more executions of leftists were announced.

ICC asks Penn shutdown block

The Interstate Commerce Commission asked a federal judge in Philadelphia to block Penn Central Railroad trustees from shutting down the mammoth system at the end of the month. The commission said it believed the railroad can continue operations through 1974. The court set a hearing Oct. 12 to hear proposals about what should be done for the railroad, which filed for bankruptcy June 20.

Bodies taken from plane wreck

The bodies of six members of a Highland, Mich. family killed in a crash of their small airplane near Florence, Wis., were removed from the wreckage Monday.

Dead are Joseph Neu, 57, an experienced pilot and flight instructor; his wife Lenore, 54; their daughter, Dorothy Parks; their son-in-law, James Parks, and two grandchildren, Dawn, 9 and Darlene, 2.

Discovery of the wreckage in Wisconsin Sunday evening nearly coincided with a decision by the Civil Air Patrol in Michigan to call off the search in the Upper Peninsula.

The search for the twin-engine plane, missing since Sept. 21, had been hampered by poor weather conditions.

The plane was reported missing on a flight from New Berlin to Iron Mountain.

Airlines receive extortion threats

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Terrorists have demanded $1 million each from Pan American World Airways and Braniff International, police sources said Monday.

Local directors of the two airlines reported the threat to police, but details of the extortion were not known, sources said. The threat apparently came about a week ago.

A Pan Am official said that extra security measures had been taken at Ezeiza Airport, but flights were operating normally.

A spokesman for Pan Am said in New York the company had no information at present about such a demand.

In Dallas, Tex., a Braniff spokesman confirmed the extortion demand, but gave no details. He said the airline had undertaken special security measures, but that flights were operating normally.

The police sources in Buenos Aires said a group calling itself a faction of the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army signed notes to the two airlines detailing the extortions, but there was no way of verifying if the people's army was actually involved.

Outgoing President Raul Lastiri outlawed the urban guerrilla organization last Monday. A day later, Argentina's top labor leader and key Peronist, Jose Rucci, was assassinated, and the government blamed the people's army.

The group, founded in 1970, has an estimated 500 active members. In May, it extorted $1 million from Ford Motor Co. It was paid in food, ambulance and medical supplies to the needy, along with direct donations to hospitals.

Unconfirmed reports said the airline threat included similar demands.

The threat followed similar warnings against executives of Coca-Cola, Otis Elevator, Eastman Kodak and newspaper reports of extortion demands against Pepsi-Cola. The latter could not be confirmed.

About 20 American and Argentine executives of Coca-Cola left Argentina for Uruguay and Brazil in early August after the people's army demanded $1 million in exchange for not kidnapping executives. They have not returned.

Otis Elevator sent 13 executives out of the country for good after an attempted extortion May 30.

At the time of the Ford blackmail payment, U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said, "I don't think it was a particularly healthy thing to do." He told newsmen in Washington that Ford's decision to accede to blackmail would have a "detrimental effect" on other U.S. companies abroad.

Stop the presses? Newspaper strikes hit city hard

NEW YORK TIMES

ST. LOUIS — "I feel so isolated," said the wife of an art gallery owner. "It's not that I pore over the newspapers. It's just good to know they're there."

It is the spirit of a city as much as its economy that is suffering. Social and civil organizations cannot publicize their meeting dates. The days pass, and deaths and births, marriages and engagements go unnoticed.

People devour the printed word here wherever they can find it. The news magazines sell out within hours of arriving in town. On a recent Sunday in suburban Clayton, people lined up in the rain to buy 1,100 copies of a New York paper, and some brought folding chairs and sat while they waited.

Similar scenes occur where enterprising teenagers and college students bring in such out-of-town newspapers as the Kansas City Star, which is sold for 50 cents to a dollar a copy.

The radio and television stations have increased their news coverage, but the best vacuum filler so far is St. Louis Today, a thrice-weekly strike tabloid, put out by volunteer staff members from the Post-Dispatch and the Globe-Democrat.

Readers of St. Louis Today could follow the Cardinals with the same sports writers who cover the team for the Post-Dispatch.

The paper sells between 50,000 and 60,000 copies an issue and is the most professional of the recent spate of special papers published in this country when there is a newspaper strike.

The main problem the paper has is newsprint shortages, so some issues have been printed on peach-colored paper.

Economically, it is difficult to measure accurately the impact of the shutdown. About 2,200 persons work for the Post-Dispatch and about 200 for the Globe-Democrat, and nearly all are out of work, receiving strike benefits. The benefits to reporters from their union, The Newspaper Guild, range between $40 and $70 a week. The publishers have moved in court to block the payment of jobless insurance benefits to the out-of-work employees.

Harry Morley, executive vice president of the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Assn., said, "We've not tried yet to measure the real economic impact, and the retailers are not ready yet to put together their figures."

"The impact is there, though, on the image of metropolitan St. Louis. In recent years, because of labor cooperation, St. Louis has had an excellent record in terms of days lost through strikes. This has attracted outside business, and this situation now can be nothing but a depressant."

The entertainment industry has been perhaps hardest hit of all, particularly movie theaters, where the blackout of movie listings has lowered attendance nearly one-third.

Until the strike, the evening Pulitzer-owned Post-Dispatch had a daily circulation of 330,000 and a Sunday circulation of 540,000. The morning Globe-Democrat, part of the Newhouse group, published six days a week and sold about 300,000 daily.

Arms budget cut refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, after some legislative wrangling, refused to cut $500 million from a $21-billion weapons authorization bill Monday.

The Senate first accepted, 51-47, a $500-million cut in place of a proposed $750-million cut. Then it turned down the smaller cut, 51-47.

The bill was then passed, 91-7, sending it to a House-Senate conference to iron differences.

During nine days of Senate debate, Nixon Administration supporters successfully blocked curtailments in weapons systems. But the final Senate bill would require withdrawal of 110,000 land-based U.S. troops overseas by Dec. 31, 1975, including 40,000 by June 30, 1974. This provision was tacked on late Thursday.

Both Senate and House versions of the bill call for $1.5 billion to continue the Navy's accelerated development schedule for the missile-firing Trident submarines. The first ones are scheduled to be completed in 1978.

The Senate voted $1.1 billion to purchase 77 F15 fighter planes for the Air Force, but cut $100 million from a $473.5 million administration request to develop B1 bombers.

The $750-million cut was proposed by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and the alternative $500-million cut by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., urged the Senate not to undo months of congressional scrutiny of individual programs with a "meat-ax approach" that he called impractical and dangerous to national security.

Sen. William Proxmire,

D-Wis., argued on the other hand that defense spending must be curtailed to avoid cuts in child nutrition, forest protection, health services and education programs.

Crest plays adult fare; awaits trial

If Mary Poppins and Linda Lovelace seem like strange bedfellows it is only because Okemos' Crest Drive-In has returned to its own version of cinema verite despite a recently passed Meridian Township ordinance prohibiting the showing of "sexually explicit" films.

After three months of Disneyesque fare, the bare facts are that the drive-in has come back with "Southern Comfort," "The Toy Case" and "Love Camp," a triple-bill Crest manager Randall Posorek defines as "soft core."

Still, Meridian Township attorney Theodore Swift, who drafted the ordinance, warned the Crest and its owner, the American Amusement Co., that the fun will not last.

However, Theodore Albert, American Amusement's attorney, says its all right for the Crest to show what it wants until the state supreme court issues a code of obscenity.

The Crest is already faced with four court cases awaiting trial, including three before Judge William R. Reid in District Court 54A for possessing and showing allegedly "dirty" movies.

Meanwhile, the theater's turnstiles are clicking and Mary Poppins is left to fly off into the sunset.

AMENDMENT PROPOSED

Academic Council faces debate on blanket grades

By MIKE GALATOLA
State News Staff Writer

The controversial issue of blanket grading will come up for debate at today's meeting of the Academic Council.

The Educational Policies committee has proposed an amendment to the Code of Teaching Responsibility that would deal more specifically with the practice of giving a fixed classwide grade.

The proposed amendment reads: "Course grades will be determined by the instructor's assessment of each student's individual achievement, judged by a common standard applied to the class as a whole."

The present code requires instructors only to inform their students of how the course grades will be determined and of any special attendance rules for the class.

Lester V. Manderscheid, professor of agricultural economics and chairman of the committee at the drafting of the proposal, said Monday the recommendation has already stirred some feeling among the faculty.

"I've gotten quite a few phone calls, both positive and negative, about the proposal," Manderscheid said. "I don't expect the amendment to pass council without some debate."

Robert W. Ophaus, associate professor of English, said Monday that even if the council adopts the committee's proposed amendment, he won't change his grading procedures.

Ophaus is guaranteeing the students in his English 205 class this term a minimum 2.0 if they write the final exam, no matter how shabby it appears. He believes this is consistent with the proposal.

"If the student does the minimum work, which I interpret to mean writing the final, he or she deserves a 2.0," Ophaus said.

Ophaus said even if the committee disagreed with him he would not change his grading.

The council will also hear an information report on plans for selection of a faculty grievance official by the Search and Select Committee of the Faculty Affairs and Faculty Compensation Committee. A report of the University Curriculum Committee will also be presented.

AT TREE-STUDDED INTERSECTION

Road work apparently stalled

By CHRIS DANIELSON
State News Staff Writer

They have yet to win a court battle, but a local citizens' group has apparently succeeded in stalling the Michigan Avenue - Harrison Road intersection reconstruction for this year.

Gerald McCarthy, deputy director of the Michigan Dept. of State Highways, said Monday that there is now only a 50 per cent chance that construction work at the congested corner, which threatens 28 trees and shrubs, will resume before Jan. 1, 1974.

A new agreement is currently being worked out between the department and the contractor, following the modification of the original plans for the $390,000 joint federal, state and city project near Brody Complex this summer.

McCarthy said he did not know when these negotiations would be completed, but he estimated that it would take about a year to finish the project.

James Anderson, coordinator of a citizens' group that was formed in June to prevent or modify construction work, said that he will personally abide by any court ruling resulting from "fair judicial review."

His appeal of a Sept. 4 circuit court ruling denying a restraining order against further construction work, has been submitted to the Michigan Court of Appeals, but a court spokeswoman contacted Monday said she could not predict when the appeal would be considered.

McCarthy noted that since no restraining order is currently in force, work on the project could begin as soon as agreement is reached with the contractor on financial details.

He said that he had ordered the delay of the work several

Bell company asks student feedback

Ma Bell is waiting for the students of MSU who live in residence halls to send in an important card. The card tells the Bell Telephone Co. whether the students who live in each room in the residence hall want to continue the long distance service on their room phones.

"I'd say that the new phone service has been very popular with the students and that a majority of the students use the service, because they can save from 20 to 40 per cent on each phone call by not using the operator," Mrs. McCann, supervisor of the East Lansing Bell Telephone office, said.

The company has been advertising in the State News for students to send in their responses before Oct. 18 or lose their use of the long distance service provided last year for the University.

For all those students who are likely to forget or procrastinate the service will be discontinued for the term after Oct. 18.

Bell supplied each room with a card to fill out, so all occupants have to do is send in the decision by the due date.

Services planned for Indian director

Funeral services will be held for John R. Winchester at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Dowagiac. Services will be held in the McLaughlin Funeral Home, 405 Center St., with burial at Silver Creek Sacred Heart Cemetery near Dowagiac.

Winchester, who died Sunday in Ann Arbor, was the coordinator of the North American Indian Affairs Office in the Center for Urban Affairs at MSU.

The North American Indian Student

Organization will remember Winchester's efforts in the field of Indian education by renaming the scholarship fund he began, after him. The official title will be the John R. Winchester Memorial Fund for North American Indians and will be used for American Indian students at MSU.

Donations to the fund can be sent in John Winchester's name to the Office of Minority Affairs located on the third floor of Linton Hall.

Winchester is survived by five children, John, a junior in philosophy at MSU, Mike, Steve, Susan and Julie.

State News receives top rating

The Michigan State News has received the top rating from the Associated Collegiate Press in its annual evaluation of college and university newspapers.

The All-American Award, which the State News has received more than 20 times previously, recognizes unusually high quality and especially creative or lively work in the following categories: content and coverage, writing and editing, editorial leadership, physical appearance and photography. The award makes the State News eligible for a Pacemaker Award, the highest distinction possible for a college newspaper, the winners of which will be announced in November. In the past 10 years, the State News has won seven Pacemaker Awards.

"You really get beneath the surface in coverage," one evaluator wrote of the paper. "You write like pros, and editorials are researched and presented well. Page one is as professional a job as I've seen."

Another judge criticized the relative lack of campus news, however, and recommended more human interest stories and better placement of ads.

Hundreds of newspapers are rated against each other every year by the Associated Collegiate Press, a team of professional journalists and educators, headquartered at the University of Minnesota.

Michael Fox, State News managing editor, praised the work of the staff of 70. "They work 20 hours a week or more, at a pay which averages little more than $1 an hour, and still turn out an exceptional newspaper," he said.

City council to consider new animal control plan

East Lansing's city council will consider replacing the city's animal control program with dog-catching services offered through Ingham County at their bi-weekly meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in city hall.

The move involves rescinding the city's animal control ordinance which provides dog catching services, administered and financed by East Lansing.

New services would be offered by the county. Such services have always been available to municipalities within county boundaries.

Previously, East Lansing had decided not to use the services because county animal control regulations were not as strict as the city wished them to be, Nancy Webber, city administrative assistant, said Monday.

Ingham County would be able to provide 24-hour services seven days a week, whereas East Lansing had been operating its program on a five-day-a-week and eight-hour-day basis, Webber said.

Cost of the program would be covered by taxes already paid by the city for county services. Should the ordinance pass, council would be able to redistribute the $12,950 allocated to animal control in the 1973-74 city budget.

In other action, council will consider granting a license for pool room facilities to Dooley's Restaurant, 131 Albert Ave. The management applied for a license which would enable them to install about five pool tables.

Dooley's is scheduled to open in mid-October.

Also to be discussed is a notice from the Ingham County Road Commission advising East Lansing of proposed revision and relocation of the Kalamazoo Street bridge.

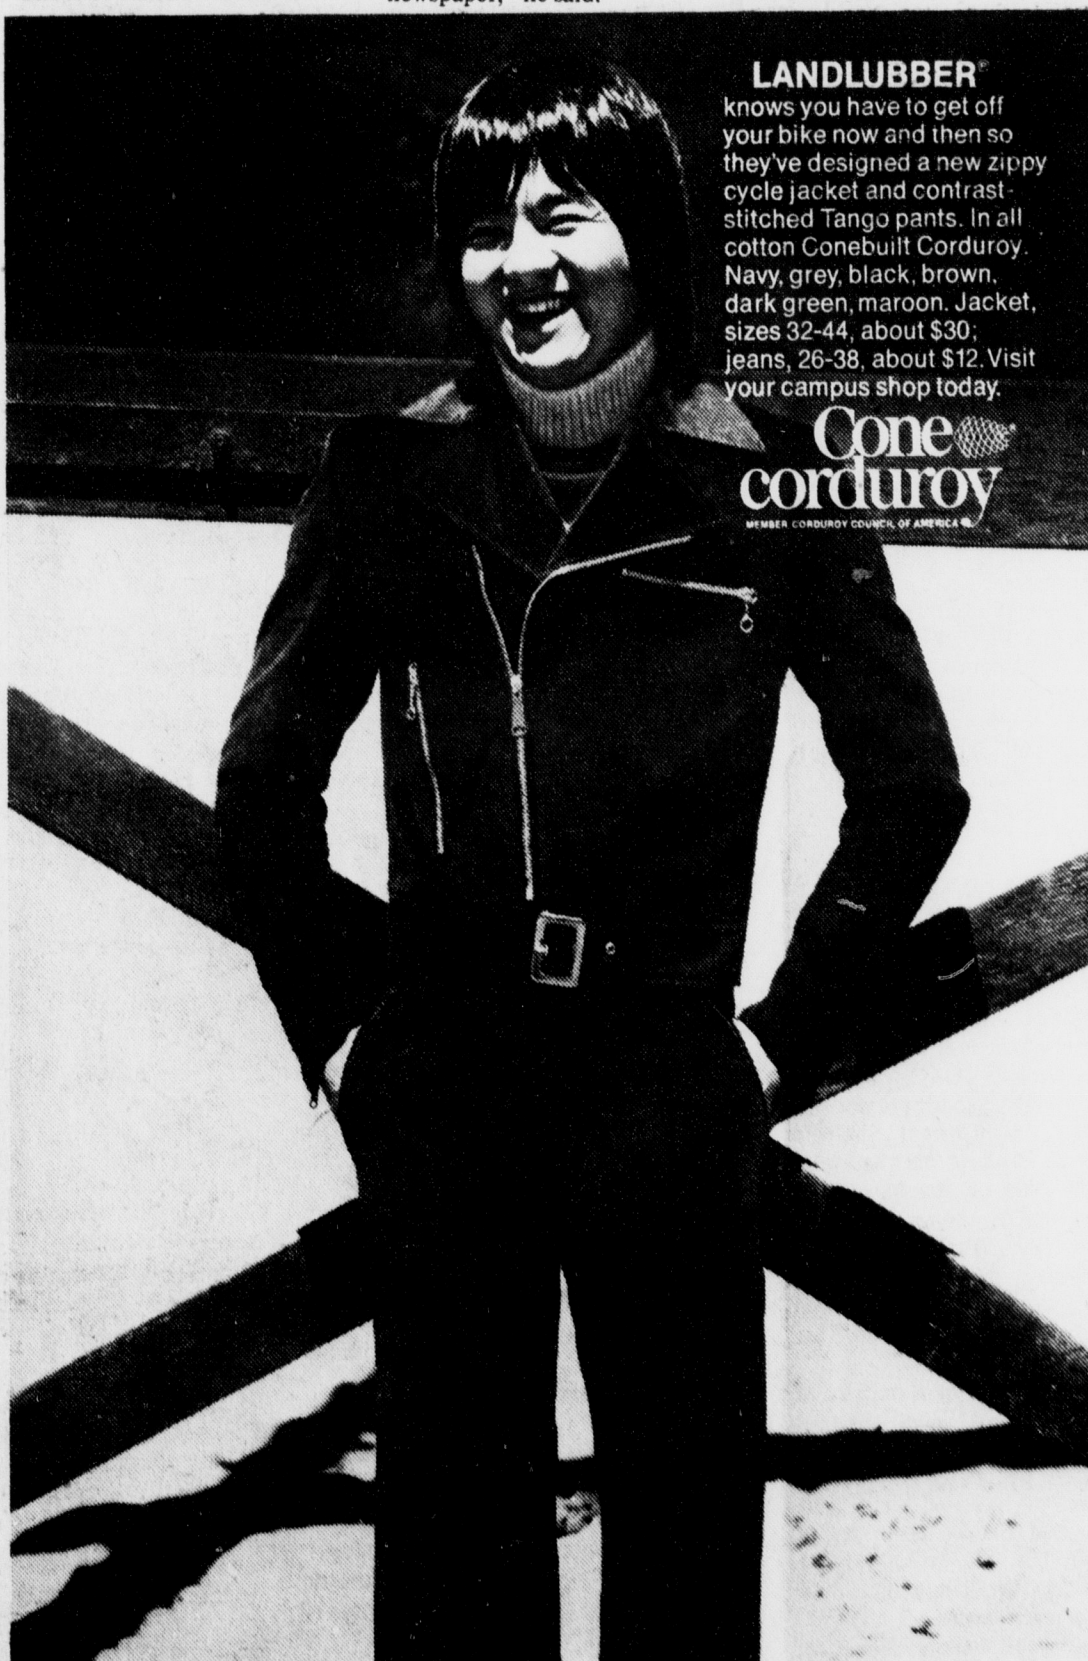

The project, which will be at least a year in completion and planning, would involve re-channeling the Red Cedar River and widening Kalamazoo Street to Harrison Avenue.

Unnamed sources convict Agnew; destroy chance for impartial trial

A man is considered innocent until proven guilty. This presumption of innocence is vital in a democratic society governed by laws, like ours, if a man is to receive a fair and impartial trial from a jury of his peers.

Why, then, is this fundamental principle of justice apparently being disregarded in the case of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew?

Agnew has not even been indicted by a grand jury, which, in itself, is not an indication of guilt. Nor has there been any evidence presented that might even indicate violation of political campaign laws — merely allegations from unidentified "sources," repeated endlessly by the news media.

Yet, on the basis of such unsubstantiated allegations (there are no charges) much speculation has been made over whether to impeach Agnew or call for his resignation. In other words, some otherwise level-headed people would press for action to destroy a man's reputation and career based on rumors and "information" with which a county prosecutor could not get a shoplifting conviction.

Some of the blame lies with the news media. Far more blame lies with official "sources" — whether inside or outside the Justice Dept. and White House.

No wonder Agnew feels he could never get a fair trial. He has even requested the House of Representatives to investigate allegations of political corruption in Maryland — which House speaker Carl Albert, D - Okla., declined to do.

Even if Agnew should be indicted he should stand firm in his office and fight, not resign. That would only be taken as an admission of guilt by those who seem determined to politically cripple — if not destroy — the vice president.

And for all practical purposes, Agnew's political future has been all but decimated.

Let the grand jury probe run its course, hopefully without the leaks that serve only to smear and destroy reputations with half-truths and rumors.

If we are pledged to giving the lowliest persons in our society a fair hearing, it would be unfair to deny that right to the highest.

Agnew drama starts crisis anew

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

BOSTON — It is as if we were living a chapter of history, with fresh revelations of a system's crisis at each turn of the page. The Agnew drama disposes of the claim that we were somehow past the crisis of American institutions. Even after these past months, it hits with the force of an earthquake — and one that will not shake Spiro Agnew alone.

Charges not fair or legal

To the Editor:

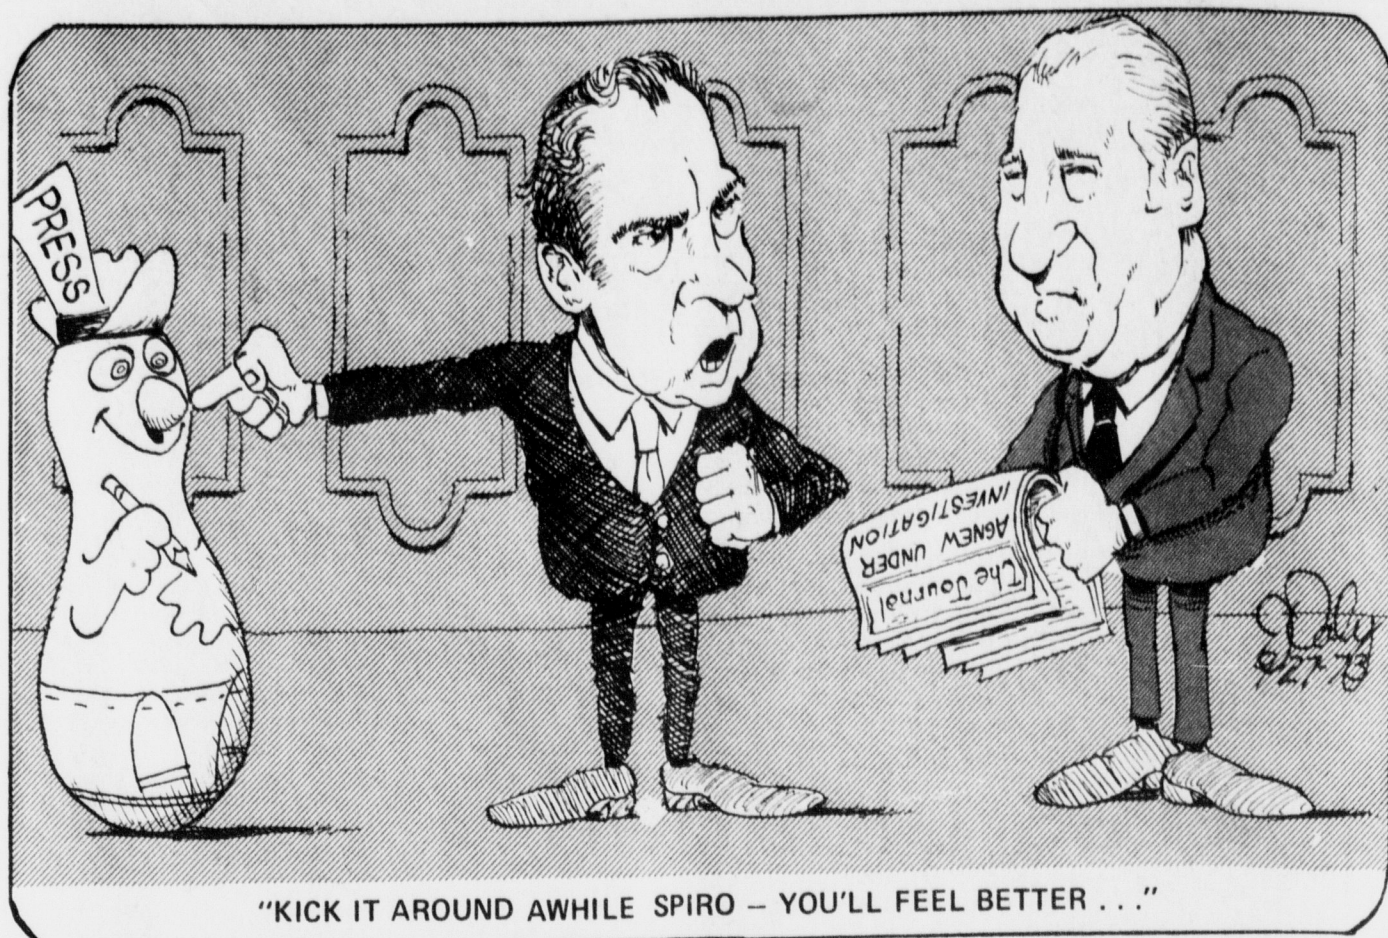

Charles Rose, co-owner of Beggar's Banquet, a restaurant at 218 Abbott Road, said in Tuesday's State News that a statement in Monday's paper by a waitress interviewed there was incorrect. She said that waitresses at Beggar's Banquet were charged for the bills of customers who walk out without paying them.

Contrary to that statement, Charles Rose said Beggar's Banquet does not charge its waitresses, as it is illegal according to the Michigan Fair Employment Act.

I worked this summer as a waitress at Beggar's Banquet. During that time, a customer of mine walked out without paying 63 cents for his bill which included a 50-cent bowl of chili and a 10-cent beer. When I asked Chuck Rose what I should do about the bill, he said that I would have to pay for it and he would take it out of my next paycheck.

Sure enough, the 63 cents deduction appeared on my next paycheck and I still have the check stub which shows it.

Sixty-three cents may not seem like much to many people, but to a waitress

CHRIS DANIELSON

Why embrace roadwork?

Item: MSU Board of Trustees approves $127,000 to "improve" the Collingwood entrance to MSU and $150,000 to extend Bogue Street to the Life Sciences building. Work on both projects to begin immediately. (Page 1, State News, Sept. 24)

Item: East Lansing City Council members booed for planning a 180-foot extension of Ann Street. Area residents fear extension will increase traffic flow. Incumbent city council candidate Mary Sharp reportedly will propose that disputed land be turned into park. (Page 3, State News, Sept. 24)

These two seemingly unrelated articles were juxtaposed vividly in my mind the other day as my IM football team was practicing on the Mason-Abbott Hall lawn.

Pointing to several stumps near mid-field, I remarked that they outlined the path thousands of vehicles driving on and off campus would be taking in a matter of weeks. The feelings voiced by my teammates in response to this news was unprintable.

Indeed, the prospect of all the roadwork is hardly a welcome one. Besides having Grand River Avenue's six lanes bordering the north side of Mason-Abbott Hall, five lanes will now curve across the southwest side and Bogue Street's four lanes to the east will become more congested when it is cut through to Service Road, rather than dead-ending at the Veterinary Clinic.

The hall will become, in effect, a brick castle surrounded by a wide concrete moat.

If the combination of exhaust fumes and marijuana smoke is not enough to knock the 800-plus residents of the hall into a state of lethargic stupor, chance meetings with the vessels in the moat will.

The spacious Mason-Abbott Hall lawn was a nice recreational area, giving residents a feeling of living in a home rather than a barracks.

Yet no vote of hall residents was necessary in order to wrest their front yard away. There will still be virtually no parking close to the hall, though the traffic around it is bound to increase.

The small parking lots that now exist will no doubt be filled with bewildered motorists trying to find their way out of MSU's newest concrete maze.

But the management's newsletter will continue to confine itself to excusing the food and pleading for the return of stolen silverware even if the walls come tumbling down.

And the green space involved in the quarter-mile extension of Bogue Street will probably be a hundredfold more than that infamous patch of grass festering in the middle of Michigan Avenue for which $15,000 in legal fees has been spent by one side alone, and seven times longer than the proposed Ann Street extension, which was called off by the city council Sept. 26.

No doubt the "improvements" have been near the top of the priority charts for decades, like the mixed Ann Street extension and the now-defunct cross-campus superhighway. But it is time that the priorities changed.

Instead of trying to funnel as much traffic through campus as fast as possible, maybe it's better to limit the amount of vehicular traffic.

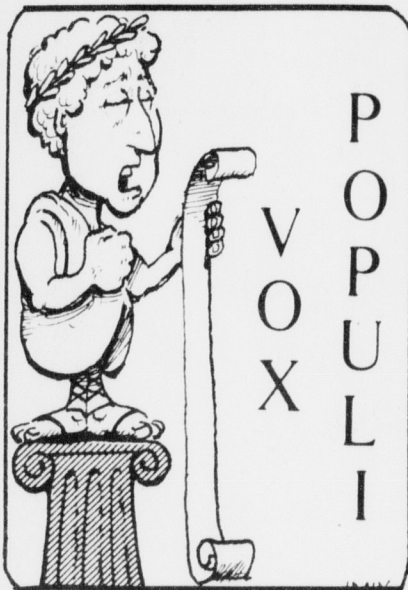

A number of methods could be used to achieve this end, including closing some of the inner-campus roadways to motor traffic and establishing a free mass transit system. Though these measures may seem costly at first, in the long run they would prove to be the lesser evil.

Certainly the University has as great a commitment to foster a livable environment for thousands of campus residents as the City of East Lansing has to a handful of homeowners on Ann Street.

Tuition rules not liberal

To the Editor:

The State News' recent editorial that the new out-state tuition regulations are actually liberalized in name only is truly accurate.

Having paid the outrageous out-state tuition for four years, I decided to try to get reclassified under these supposedly new liberalized out-state tuition regulations.

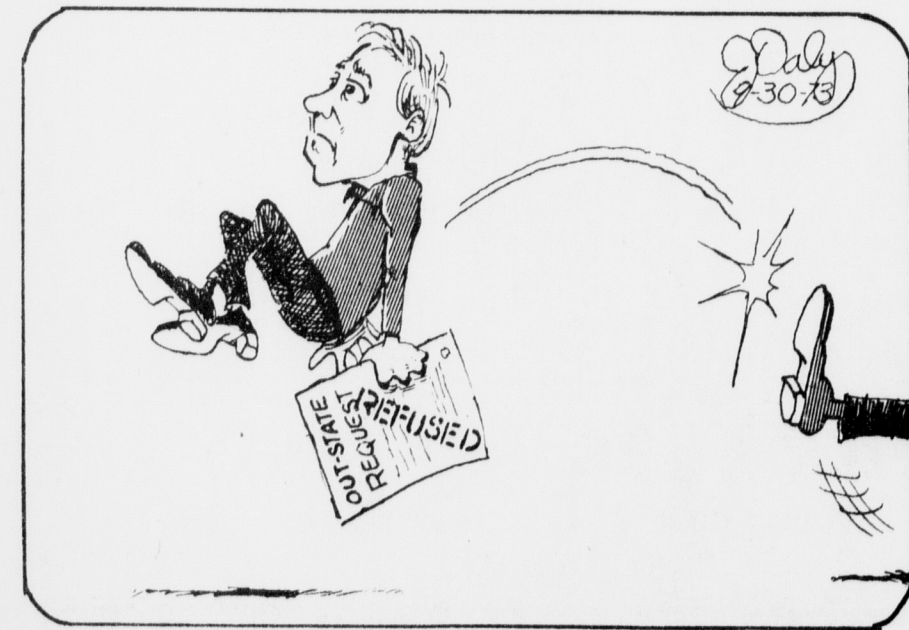

I submitted the form for request to be reclassified to in-state status along with documentation showing residence in the state for 12 consecutive months and Michigan voting registration, along with employment fee receipts showing Michigan state tax withheld to the out-state fees committee for review.

A few weeks later I was notified that I was refused reclassification, pending further documentation showing intent to remain in the state. After a talk with registrar King, he advised that I would need a letter showing acceptance of an employment offer made in Michigan as proof to remain in the state.

With the job market as it is, I tend to think that this is the roadblock for out-state students attempting to be reclassified; after all, I just wonder what is the percentage of graduating seniors, like myself, that have offers of employment at all, let alone in Michigan... yet some call these new regulations "liberalized," bah humbug!

David M. Bonga
Duquesne, Penn., senior who is working hard to pay for her education, those kinds of deductions certainly do not help. It could have been a much larger bill. Regardless of its amount, charging waitresses for unpaid bills is still illegal.

Unfortunately, I was not aware of the laws against this practice at the time. I hope that more waitresses will be aware of their rights and will not allow their employers to hold them responsible for walkouts as Charles Rose did.

Cathleen Joachim Peery
Rochester junior

Editor's note:

John Killeen, of the wage/hour division of the Michigan Dept. of Labor, said that charging waitresses for walkouts is definitely illegal. The Fair Employment Practices Act specifies that any employer who makes a deduction of pay without the full and free consent of the employee is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Killeen said employees charged for walkouts can file a wage complaint with the wage/hour division, and employers may face prosecution.

called the Agnew proposal premature, but the reasons would remain if Agnew renewed it after an indictment.

When there is a case for impeachment, the House must perform its constitutional duty. But here there is a large legal doubt. Does the Constitution contemplate impeachment for offenses before a man takes office, as alleged in Agnew's case? The only precedent is the case of Vice President Schuyler Colfax in 1872. It seems unlikely now that the House would undertake what amounts to an impeachment proceeding with no clear legal object at the end.

On the other hand, the legal advice given Agnew that he cannot be put to a criminal trial while in office has some weight.

Those legal assessments, if correct, present a terrible political prospect: Criminal charges hanging over the vice president of the United States, unresolvable for more than three years.

The obvious way out is resignation. That asks a good deal of Spiro Agnew. He would be giving up his constitutional defenses to any criminal charges.

Agnew may or may not have taken bribes as a Maryland official; we have not seen the evidence. The crime, if such it was, is not to be condoned. But it involves only personal enrichment, not an assault on the Constitution. And so, if he were forced from office, Americans would be bound to make some resentful comparisons.

It was not Spiro Agnew whose agents sought to rig the 1972 election by sabotaging the opposition Party's candidate.

It was not Agnew whose plumbers broke into a psychiatrist's office in search of material to smear a criminal defendant.

It was not Agnew who said the courts should deal with Watergate and who then withheld critical evidence from them.

It was not Agnew who bombed a neutral country in secret, who enlarged the Indochina War and kept it going for four more years, and who hid the facts from Congress.

The country knows who it was. It understands with great clarity that the source of the trouble that is rotting America's natural optimism and decency is not Spiro Agnew, but Richard Nixon.

The uncertainty and the loss of legitimacy that afflicts our politics now stem from Richard Nixon. Nothing that happens to Spiro Agnew can help. In the circumstances the only real solution is a complete and cleansing change: Resignation of both the President and the vice president, and the succession by law of House Speaker Albert or of someone chosen under the 25th Amendment.

That is an extraordinary remedy, but we are suffering from an extraordinary illness. The time has come to face the real problem — time especially for conservatives such as Barry Goldwater, who do not avert their eyes from difficult truths. One or more of them must sooner or later go to the President and tell him that the torment of the American system of government cannot end while he remains in office.

Deputies estimate 600 registered as voter drive enters final week

By ANDREA AUSTIN
State News Staff Writer

Deputy registrars estimate that more than 600 people have registered to vote in East Lansing as a result of a citywide door-to-door registration drive now in its last week to qualify voters for the Nov. 6 city council election.

In the Nov. 6 election, East Lansing voters will choose two councilmembers for four-year terms. Nelson Brown, Margaret McNeil, John Polomsky and incumbent Mary Sharp are running for election.

Though the registration effort, conducted by East Lansing Voter Assistance and ASMSU Legislative Relations, is short of deputy registrars, Voter Assistance chairman Mark Grebner said Monday the entire drive should register over 5,000 people by Friday's deadline.

About 500 registration affidavits had been turned in to City Hall Monday out of an anticipated 4,500, Joyce Trovato, deputy city clerk, said.

The city clerk's office in City Hall, 410 Abbott Road, will be open to register voters until 8 p.m. Friday, the last day for registration before the Nov. 7 election under Michigan voting ordinances, Trovato said.

Trovato said that East Lansing voters should also make address changes in their registration before the Oct. 5 deadline. Changes may be made in person to the city clerk's office or by calling 37-1731.

About 3,500 students were registered to vote during MSU student registration Sept. 17 through 19, including 500 Meridian Township residents, and 150 to 200 Lansing residents.

Grebner said deputy registrars have only been able to canvass one-half of what they had planned, but hope to cover all of the campus residence halls and East Lansing residential areas by Friday.

"We're getting eight to 10 per cent of each dorm each time we go through," Grebner said. "That's on top of about 35 per cent who were registered before, five to 10 per cent who can't register, and 40 to 50 per cent who want to remain registered where their parents live."

"All these people (who are registered where their parents live) think they're tourists," Grebner, a manager of the McNeil and Brown joint council campaign, said. "They think their homes are where their parents live and they're just passing through East Lansing."

Deputy registrar Maria Simpson said the voter registration drive seems to be going easier than last year even though a lot of people from Detroit want to stay registered there because of the upcoming mayoral and common council election.

Voters who change their East Lansing addresses after Friday should vote at the precinct of the old address, Trovato said, but it is still possible to vote at the old precinct if they move before Friday.

Voters are required by law to give their correct address, Trovato said, "but we're not going to keep them from voting as long as they live in East Lansing."

Four burglars arrested due to student alertness

By GARY KORRECK
State News Staff Writer

Four Flint men are scheduled for a preliminary hearing in 55th district court today as the result of some fast work by a group of MSU students.

Wilford Gant, Bruce Cobb, Robert Craig and Walter Hodo were arrested by campus police Sept. 21 in connection with a series of break-ins at East Holmes Hall — arrests that Corporal George Groll said could not have been made without student help.

"We probably would never have found them if it hadn't been for the alertness on the part of the students," Groll said.

The arrests of Gant and Cobb were made when campus officers received a call from hall residents that four men had lifted cash and personal belongings from a number of watches, a combination lock and a bottle of after shave lotion were found.

Craig and Hodo were later arrested with help from residents who tracked them to their car, providing police with its identification and license number. A search of the car turned up a substance believed to be heroin, though the State Police Crime Lab report is not yet official.

Some $296 in stolen property was recovered, at least half of it cash which cannot be returned to its owners until it is submitted in court as evidence.

"I can understand people wanting their money back, but we have to decide whose is whose," Groll said.

A police report indicated that most of the burglaries were made by entering an open room and striking up a conversation with the residents.

"The burglars would keep the residents occupied with talk about where the action was and the others would float around the room," Groll said. Two of the heists were made by single members of a group asking to use the bathroom. From there they went into the next room and, if unoccupied, had a field day, police said.

The four men were charged with breaking and entering. Seven charges of entering without breaking were filed individually. If State Police crime lab reports are positive, the group could also be charged with possession of heroin.

Charges of conspiracy could also be filed against the foursome.

"It's an easier charge to prove, but no one has brought it up yet," Groll said.

"Students have to really be careful," Groll said. "Even with the midnight closing of the dorms people can walk into unlocked rooms."

Groll said the majority of break-ins are committed by nonstudents and often by non-area residents. Two days previous to the Holmes Hall break-ins two other Flint residents were picked up on breaking and entering South Hubbard Hall.

Business call rate rises with campus billing plan

As the cost of eating soars, the cost of asking a business associate to lunch rises too.

Beginning Oct. 16, all off-campus calls from business phones on campus will have a 4.5 cent price tag on them. And if dialing habits continue as they are, the new billing system is expected to add about $6,000 per month onto MSU's phone bill, Laurence L. Alchin, campus telephone supervisor, said.

Off-campus calls from phones in residence halls or married housing units will not be affected by the change.

Also effective Oct. 16, the base monthly rate for each business phone will be cut by 85 cents, so offices can make about 19 calls off-campus and still pay the same bills as in the past.

Alchin said some departments that make less than 19 off-campus calls per month will save money while others will foot substantially higher bills.

On-campus calls, long-distance calls, directory assistance calls, repair service calls or calls to the Lansing operator will not receive the 4.5 cent charge.

But don't think your costs will be cut by encouraging friends and business contacts to call you instead. All other business phones in the Lansing area will be charged nearly a nickel for each call too.

New insurance in effect; legality still under attack

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Michigan launched its no-fault automobile insurance scheme but police across the state promised they would not carry out a crackdown on violators until the law's constitutional status is cleared up.

A police spokesman said drivers without no-fault insurance are violating the law. But he said police in Detroit and several other major cities will check drivers' policies only after accidents or under unusual circumstances.

A Wayne County court refused last week to block the introduction of no-fault insurance, but set a full-scale hearing for mid-November on the constitutionality of the scheme.

Several hundred lawyers filed legal action to stop no-fault on constitutional grounds.

After the court ruling against them, the lawyers said they would give free advice to drivers charged with not having no-fault policies.

As many as 600,000 auto owners reportedly do not carry full policies, but instead subscribe to a special state program that costs $45 a year, but did not give them full protection.

That system also is under legal fire with drivers challenging the state's right to abrogate that system in the middle of the tax year.

Insurance companies reported a weekend rush by owners to get policies before it came into force at midnight Sunday. Some companies said the demand for information and policies was 10 times above normal.

Petitioning response high for committee positions

Monday's State News story about the lack of student participation on a campus planning committee, brought over three times the normal response for petitioning for seats on the committee.

Sue Hughes, asst. director of student activities, said that 20 students had expressed interest in the six positions on the Buildings, Lands and Planning Committee. "There were never more than six people interested before," she said.

Seats are filled by the Academic Council, not ASMSU as was incorrectly reported. One seat is allocated to a graduate student from the Council of Graduate Students, three seats to undergraduates, and two are at - large.

Students interested in petitioning the Academic Council for appointment to the committee should contact Hughes at 101 Student Services Bldg.

The Buildings, Lands and Planning Committee meets every second Wednesday of the month, not every third Wednesday as was reported.

Four candidates vie for ASMSU positions

Four candidates are vying for two seats on the ASMSU Student Board in tomorrow's election.

The two vacant board seats are in the College of Communication Arts and Social Science/James Madison College.

Only Anya is running for the College of Communication Arts seat. The other three candidates are competing for the Social Science/James Madison College seat.

Seven students took out petitions last week, but only the four presently running returned them by the Sept. 28 deadline.

Polls for the election, open to students in Communication Arts and Social Science/James Madison colleges, will be set up in three locations: Bessey and Berkey halls' lobbies and the Wilson Hall cafeteria.

Two student candidates submit campaign data

Wednesday marks the first student election to be held since June when the State News adopted a new policy of attempting to better inform voters about candidates.

All student governing groups have been informed of the new policy, and ASMSU candidates were given a written notice when they picked up their petitions.

In all, two of the three candidates for the position of College of Social Science/James Madison College returned their information sheets by the 2 p.m. Monday deadline. The single candidate for College of Communication Arts did not submit any information.

Candidates were asked to submit background information plus a 30-word statement explaining why they are running.

STATEMENT

In thirty words I cannot adequately describe my reasons for running for a position that same time reducing triples in dormitories. requires sincere dedication and accountability to the students I would like to represent.

STATEMENT

I urge a change in campus residency regulations, providing students with different and more economical living options, while at the same time reducing triples in dormitories. Furthermore, ASMSU should take an active role in extra-University issues, i.e. lettuce boycott.

LYNN HENNINGWho'll be next Tiger skipper?

It's World Series time and in a week or two Detroit Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell will probably name a successor to deposed hero Billy Martin.

But please, Jim, use a little caution. The rumors as to who Campbell will pick as his new manager are enough to make Spike Briggs turn in his grave. Bill Rigney, Ralph Houk, Leo Durocher, Eddie Kasko. There's no end to the madness.

The most recent leak — and the most credible — has Ralph Houk coming to Tigertown, only a couple of days after he had jumped off the New York Yankees' sinking ship.

Please, not Houk

Houk, of course, has been praised as one of the game's finest managers. But only for a couple of very good reasons.

He is a manager who keeps his mouth shut, and he had the good fortune to manage a team in the great publicity arena of New York City.

But conservatism and poor judgment hurt him with the Yankees and it just naturally would have to follow him to Detroit.

He almost succeeded in coaxing the Yankees to the top of the Eastern Division this past year. But woefully for Houk, the season doesn't end in June.

Houk would seemingly fit Campbell's conservative tastes. Certainly better than Billy Martin did. But at the stage the Tigers are at, when they must rebuild from the bottom next year, Ralph Houk's mothball philosophies are not needed in Detroit, thank you.

The same goes for the rest of the old timers. Bill Rigney has never been a winner and still is too remindful of the lethargy possessed by old friend Mayo Smith.

Leo Durocher would offer about as much decorum to the Tiger organization as Joe Schultz has. Eddie Kasko and the rest of the unemployed jokes around baseball at the moment would be no better choices.

Kaline poor choice

And for that matter, neither would Al Kaline. In spite of his great playing abilities, Kaline has never been the forceful leader of the team. He is too mild mannered, too quiet, much too reserved to ever take over as the team's manager.

The Tigers need a manager in keeping with the youth movement that they are forced to adopt next season.

For that reason even Billy Martin would have been a poor man to have at the helm. After successfully milking all of the productivity possible out of the veteran Tigers for three seasons, Martin had, in fact, spent his usefulness.

His impatience with young ballplayers, and his whole abrasive manner would have made him a poor man to nurture and coddle a group of budding young rookies.

What the Tigers need is a young man, someone who wouldn't be out of touch with younger ballplayers. Someone like Minnesota's Frank Quilici. Or, Whitey Herzog, who was fired at Texas to make room for Billy Martin.

Or, the Tigers would be wise to go after Frank Robinson, a player with leadership ability which has been demonstrated year after year, a player with tremendous talent and knowledge of the game, and a man who commands respect.

But it's not likely Campbell will choose a young man, or an unproven manager. It has not been traditional for him to do so. All the way from Charlie Dressen to Mayo Smith, Campbell has opted for the "old pro." He retreated from that philosophy to hire Martin and likely regretted it from the start.

Goodbye Gator

Whoever Campbell chooses, rebuilding will be the word. Goodbye, Gates and Ike Brown. So long, Woody Fryman, Jim Perry, Frank Howard, Dick McAuliffe, Tony Taylor, Norm Cash and maybe even Mickey Lolich and Bill Freehan.

There are few Tigers who can look forward to returning next season. Joe Staton, John Knox, Ron Cash and Tom Verzyer have arrived, to name just a few of the genuinely impressive crew of Tiger rookies.

Now all they need is the manager to mold them into winners. Bet you a Yankee pennant Ralph Houk isn't that man.

Say Hey, Willie!

Willie Mays, the New York Mets' 42-year-old outfielder, gets a dose of champagne from some of his teammates Monday after the Mets clinched the frantic National League East title with a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Mays, one of baseball's all-time greats, announced his retirement at the end of the season. The Mets now move into the NL championship series against Cincinnati.

Ralph Houk to manage
'74 Tigers?

DETROIT (UPI) — A spokesman for the Detroit Tigers said Monday that reports Ralph Houk will manage the Tigers next season were "just speculation."

The Detroit News said in a copyrighted story that Houk, who quit Sunday as manager of the New York Yankees, would sign to manage the Tigers within the next two weeks.

"That's just speculation," the Tigers' spokesman said. "I don't know anyone here who would know if that story is true or not."

Tigers' General Manager Jim Campbell was not available for comment. He said earlier that he had not contacted Houk.

In other baseball developments Monday, the New York Mets clinched the National League East title with a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros manager Leo Durocher resigned. He was replaced by former San Diego manager Preston Gomez immediately after the announcement.

Holt, running attack
draw Stolz acclaim

By PAT FARNAN
State News Sports Writer

After spring ball and three regular season contests the MSU gridders are still getting acquainted.

"Both men did the right thing; it's just a case of getting familiar with each other," Coach Denny Stolz said of the fourth-quarter interception which put the lid on any chance of a comeback Saturday in the team's 34-21 loss to UCLA.

"Mike Hurd saw that his normal pass route would be shut off, so he cut the other way," Stolz explained. "Charlie Baggett, on the other hand, didn't have time to read the cut so he threw it the other way."

"Had Baggett and Hurd been more familiar with each other it could have been a touchdown."

Despite the loss, Stolz expressed pleasure with the Spartan ground game, which netted 155 yards.

"We ran the ball much more effectively," Stolz said. "Mike Holt looked real well, especially for his first game of the year."

It was Holt who returned a kickoff 95 yards with seven seconds left in the game in addition to picking up 68 yards from scrimmage.

"The touchdown run kind of distorted our disappointment with losing," Stolz commented. "That's the type of play which will pick a ballclub up. We really needed that."

Though the offense managed to push across two touchdowns, the Spartan defense didn't shine. It gave up more than two touchdowns for the first time in 11 games.

"I think defensively we were ready," Stolz said. "We hit real well. Of course, anytime you can hit like that and still give up 34 points, well..."

Stolz mentioned that Julius Askew, junior college transfer will be the starting fullback against Notre Dame Saturday. He also started in the UCLA game.

"He's just starting to learn the system now," Stolz said. "But he's starting to come along now. We're really impressed with his blocking ability."

Stolz indicated that Mark Neisen would probably start in the defensive secondary against Notre Dame.

When this 25-year-old researcher wanted to investigate a possible cancer treatment, we gave him the go-ahead.

We also gave him the right to fail.

At Kodak, it's not unusual for a 25-year-old like Jim Carroll to win the title of senior research physicist. Like any company involved in a lot of basic research, Kodak has felt the pressure of modern technology and the need for young, fresh thinking. So we hire the best talent we possibly can, and then give them as much responsibility as they can handle. Whatever their age.

We have departments and divisions, like any company. What we don't have are preconceived ideas about how an expert scientist's time should be spent. So when we received a request from the medical community for assistance in experimenting with lasers as a possible cancer treatment, we turned to 25-year-old Jim Carroll, who is deep in laser technology, and gave him the go-ahead. He built two half-billion watt laser systems, one of which Kodak has donated to the National Institute of Health.

The lasers proved unsuccessful in treating cancer, but we'd make the same decision all over again. We entered laser technology because we have a stake in business. We let a young researcher help the medical community look for a means of cancer treatment because we have a stake in the future of mankind.

To put it another way, we're in business to make a profit. But in furthering our own needs, we have often furthered society's. After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

LARGEST FALL AMONG MAJOR CITIES

Crime in Lansing drops 28%

By ANGELIA CARROLL
State News Staff Writer

A 28 percent drop in reported crime in Lansing is the largest decline among 95 major American cities, according to statistics released in a recent FBI report.

Lansing is among six Michigan cities to experience a decline in reported crimes for the first six months of 1973.

The crime index (the number of serious crimes committed) for the city of Lansing dropped from 5,561 for the first half of 1972 to 3,990 for the same period in 1973.

"We are quite proud of the drop," Capt. Curtis Wash of the Lansing Police Dept. said Monday.

The crime decline is partly due to saturation patrols by the Lansing Police Dept. in areas where crime frequently occurs, Wash said. The police use a computer to pinpoint areas, days and times where crime is frequent.

However, the number of murders and forcible rapes increased in the first half of this year. Seven murders were committed in the 1973 time period, as compared with two in 1972. The number of forcible rapes climbed from 19 in the first six months of 1972 to 23 in the same period this year.

Armed robberies declined 41.6 per cent, from 197 to 115. The drop in cases of aggravated assault was from 161 to 129. Burglaries fell from 1,798 in 1972 to 1,111 in 1973. Larcenies were reduced from 3,019 in the first six months of 1972 to 2,366 in 1973. There were 365 auto thefts in Lansing in the first half of 1972 and 239 in 1973.

The statistics indicate the reduction in crime has been greater percentage-wise in the model cities area, Jackie Warr, model cities director, said at a press conference Friday.

This is a result of the cooperation between the model cities program and the Lansing Police Dept., the Ingham County Sheriff's Dept. and other agencies, Warr said. The model cities area has achieved a 98 per cent reduction and prevention rate for arrests, statistics released at the press conference indicated.

Returns to jail for second or third offenses have declined by 92 per cent. The number of youths in institutional care was reduced by 79 per cent, while the number of youths under the jurisdiction of a court declined by 16 per cent, according to the model cities statistics.

The other six Michigan cities showing a decline in crime statistics were Detroit, 11 per cent; Dearborn, 16 per cent; Flint, 6 per cent; Grand Rapids, 3 per cent and Livonia, 7 per cent.

Journal's unions continue bargaining

Though the contract for the International Typographers Union and the Newspaper Guild at the State Journal expired Monday, there is little or no chance of a strike, according to John Reynolds, management representative.

Reynolds said negotiations are continuing.

Committee probes Civil Service; former chairman defends actionsBy UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Civil Service Commissioner Ernest Brown Monday denied allegations that the selection of Sidney Singer as state personnel director was influenced by the governor's office as "totally without basis."

Testifying at the first of a series of hearings by a special

House committee probing the operations of the civil service system, Brown said the selection of Singer "was the result of honest and objective evaluation of the top candidates by the commission."

Brown, who was chairman of the commission when Singer was appointed in January 1971, said the allegations regarding Singer's selection "are totally without basis and strike at the very integrity of the commission."

Singer currently is involved in a court suit over his hiring.

Brown and present Commission Chairman James W. Miller were among the first witnesses to testify before the special committee chaired by State Rep. Bobby Crim, D-Davison. The investigation is expected to last for months.

Brown said the commission felt the resignation of Frank De Wald, Singer's predecessor, gave the commission an opportunity to implement long considered changes in department procedures.

But, Brown said, "We did not give Sidney Singer a mandate for change and then turn the reins over to him to do as he saw fit. The commission has been aware of and has deliberated long and hard over all of the policy and rule changes that have occurred in the past two years."

to guard against creating a system "that rewarded seniority and longevity at the price of productivity and creativity."

"In many respects," Brown said, "it appeared to us that what had been designed as a system to erase the effects of a spoils system and to prevent their recurrence, had gone beyond this scope to the extent that its procedures became so rigid and so incapable of coping with change that they hindered management and created barriers to effective and efficient administration."

Alice Coltrane concert superb; jazz trio mesmerizes audience

Review

By DAVE DI MARTINO

A raw blast of energy can find its physical expression in many ways. Alice Coltrane showed an enthusiastic audience Sunday night that her source of energy had no limit, as she provided some of the most glorious musical vibrations this campus has ever felt.

As the first attraction in the Pop Entertainment's Jazz series, Alice Coltrane more than proved the series' value, as she and her inspirational accompaniment held the rapt audience in fascination for 90 minutes.

Coltrane, playing masterful organ and harp, was accompanied by drummer Ben Riley and the legendary bassist Charlie Haden whose presence on this campus alone is in itself a great event.

As a serious musical instrument is tremendous. Though she initially received acclaim for her piano and harp playing, her fairly recent preference for the organ has served her well. In a manner quite definitely unique, she plays as if she were possessed — glancing upwards for divine inspiration.

Eastern influence

The whole of her music centers basically around East Indian influence. Thus, the droning modality of her every note deeply expresses her spiritual feelings.

Her utilization of the organ pedal device, which lowers each played note one half-step, results in a dramatic counter-surge of energy against the powerful droning on which the music builds.

As Haden magnificently bowed his bass, Riley kept a strong rhythmic pulse while Coltrane flew up and down and left and right over the keyboards.

Faulty system

Switching to her harp, Coltrane let her fingers lightly touch the strings, as her soft angelic voice introduced the next number. Here, the only bad note of the concert was hit. Due to a faulty sound system, an annoying crackling sound was present for the duration of the show, particularly as high notes were reached.

The high point of the 8 p.m. show had to be the startlingly dramatic version of the classic "My Favorite Things." Her variations on the theme were tremendously exciting. The audience seemed on the edge of their chairs as Coltrane suddenly released the familiar melodic theme and the number reached its climax.

Percussion feature

Closing the first show was an excellent feature of Ben Riley on percussion. Seemingly not at all affected by the faulty sound system, Riley was free to alternate subtle licks with the incredible Haden until he took his solo. The audience was appropriately appreciative and the number concluded the first of the two shows.

The first presentation of Showcase Jazz was a remarkably successful one. The well-packed audience attested to the fact that jazz music is indeed welcome on campus and Alice Coltrane undoubtedly provided the finest in jazz music.

Beautiful jazz

Alice Coltrane, playing in Pop Entertainment's first Showcase Jazz show Sunday in the Fairchild Theatre, produced some beautiful jazz for capacity crowds at two performances at 8 and 10 p.m.

Movie of the Week.

"Isn't it Shocking" stars Alan Alda as an inexperienced sheriff, accustomed only to giving out tickets, confronted with an ingenious killer and some odd goings-on, when elderly citizens begin to die off. It is billed as a delightful tale of murder and features a stellar cast with Will Geer, Ruth Gordon, Lloyd Nolan and Edmond O'Brien.

9:30 p.m. channel 6
"Hawkins."

"Murder in Movieland," written and produced by David Karp and directed by Jud Taylor, marks the premier of this new series. James Stewart stars as Billy Jim Hawkins, the down-home lawyer, who jets out of West Virginia every few weeks to get the best of them city fellows out to get his clients. Hopefully, the series will prove better than the pilot.

9 p.m. channel 10
"Magician."

The "Magician" stars Bill Bixby as a Monte Cristo-like character who escaped from unwarranted imprisonment in a South American prison. Now he performs as a magician and does good, jetting from place to place in a mobile home that Hugh Hefner could be proud of.

10 p.m. channel 10 "Police Story."

The pilot was charming, well-plotted with one of the best chase scenes presented last year in film or T.V. The opener follows his attempts to discover who tried to murder his friend, a controversial columnist, introduced in the pilot.

Pulsating rhythms

Opening her set, Coltrane explained that she had spent the past summer in Ethiopia and Egypt, and as a result was greatly influenced by traditional music forms that she had experienced there. She began with what she called a "traditional mode" of Ethiopia and proceeded to dreamily ride the flow of the gently pulsating rhythms Haden and Riley produced.

Legal document forged, man says

By NANCY CRANE
State News Staff Writer

Black nationalist Robert Williams says Gov. Milliken's decision to extradite him to North Carolina on kidnapping charges was made partially on the basis of faulty information submitted to Milliken by the attorney general's office.

According to Williams a legal brief, written by former Asst. Atty. Gen. Leo E. Maki was rewritten and submitted to Milliken with Maki's forged signature attached.

Maki said Monday that the original brief he submitted was tampered with but declined to say that it was forged.

"As far as I'm concerned Williams didn't have a claim going except for the fact that the 'circumstances' of the kidnapping were not described in the North Carolina warrants."

The circumstances of a crime include the who, what and where of the crime as well as other aspects surrounding the crime, Maki said, such as the mental state of the people involved and the history surrounding the events of the crime.

"None of the documents explained the facts of the crime," Maki said. "Whoever read my original brief changed its meaning completely. I said the man should be entitled to a hearing before the governor and that portion of the brief was left out."

Maki said he believes Williams should be given a hearing before the governor because he doesn't seem like a typical extradition case.

Williams believes

Dealers, RAs divided by hall drug rules

By ACE BURGESS
State News Staff Writer

Last year Sly was a big marijuana dealer on campus. But with the recently announced crackdown on the sale of drugs in residence halls, he has decided to call it quits.

Sly (not his real name) said it is too great a risk to sell drugs since the University has asked all residence hall staff members, including resident assistants, to report any information about the sale of drugs.

A 19-year-old sophomore from the Detroit area, Sly said he had planned to sell ounces of weed until hearing about the new drug policy.

"Since the risks are so high this year, I guess I'll have to work at an honest job if I want to make some money," he explained.

Last year he made a couple of thousand dollars dealing marijuana, he said.

Sly is one of many drug dealers on campus who will either have to stop dealing, be more discreet about it or move off campus if RAs enforce the new ruling.

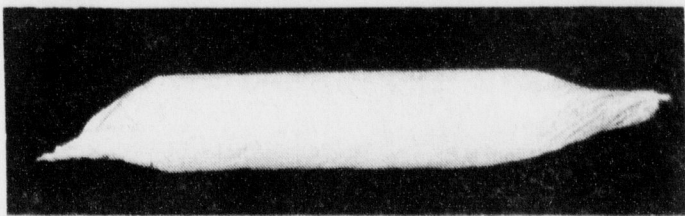

Gary North, coordinator of Residence Hall Programs, said the program was put into effect to halt the increase in drug-related crimes in the residence halls.

He said more than 15 robberies were reported last year. Last spring a student narrowly missed death when a robber whom he was pursuing in Armstrong Hall shot at him with a .45 pistol, North added.

Sly said he's not completely against the program, because last year he got ripped off twice while living in Wilson Hall.

During the first ripoff, Sly said, he got beaten badly. He suffered no broken bones, but was bruised. And during the second one, he lost over $300 and his personal stash, which, he said, included some "bamb Jamaican weed."

He said there were two guys in the first robbery, which occurred early spring term, and neither was armed. He doesn't know how many there were in the second rip-off because it occurred as he was attending the Jethro Tull concert on campus last May.

But even after the ripoffs, he said, he continued to deal. "I know getting ripped off is part of the trade. I don't dig it but at least I make that much money to begin with."

One of the main reasons why Sly dislikes the new policy is that he believes it will strain relationships between students and RAs.

He said he will not talk to an RA if he develops a "drug problem." "You really don't know who is cool anymore, so I'm not going to trust any of them."

Several other students who were asked about the new policy after it was announced agreed with Sly.

"I don't want to make RAs into narcs, but I do want to stop the drug flow in the residence halls," Gary North, Residence Hall Programs coordinator.

Bill Underdown, sophomore, 623 E. Wilson Hall, said the policy will make it impossible for many students to trust RAs. "Instead of regarding the RA as a friend, I must now look on him with suspicion."

Thom Selinger, junior, 237 Abbot Hall, said, "I would like to look at my RA as a friend, but if he enforces this policy, there is no way that I can do that."

The majority of the 10 students checked, who all said they smoke grass, believe in what the University is trying to do, but they don't think the RAs should be involved.

Many said it should be the job of the law enforcement agencies to handle the ripoff problem.

The RAs contacted from Mason Abbot, Butterfield and Holden halls said they were very much against the new drug policy. One RA in Mason - Abbot Hall said, "I'm really upset about the policy, but there seems very little that I can do."

Another RA in Butterfield Hall said, "I'm really upset about it, because they said we would be fired if we are caught smoking and I don't like that at all."

North appeared satisfied with the policy, and he said, "I don't want to make RAs into narcs, but I do want to stop the drug flow in the residence halls."

He said the RAs should realize that they are in a public trust position and they have a responsibility to tell the University if something illegal is going on in their hall.

Detroit teachers continue strike

At least 8,000 of the 10,600 striking Detroit teachers met Sunday night in the University of Detroit fieldhouse to chant, "hell no, we won't go," and vowed to continue their 27-day strike which has idled 270,000 students.

The pledge to continue the strike, which began Sept. 4, came despite a court order issued last Tuesday by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Foley to end the walkout.

The teachers, who were officially notified of the return to work order this weekend, face jail sentences of up to 12 months and the Detroit

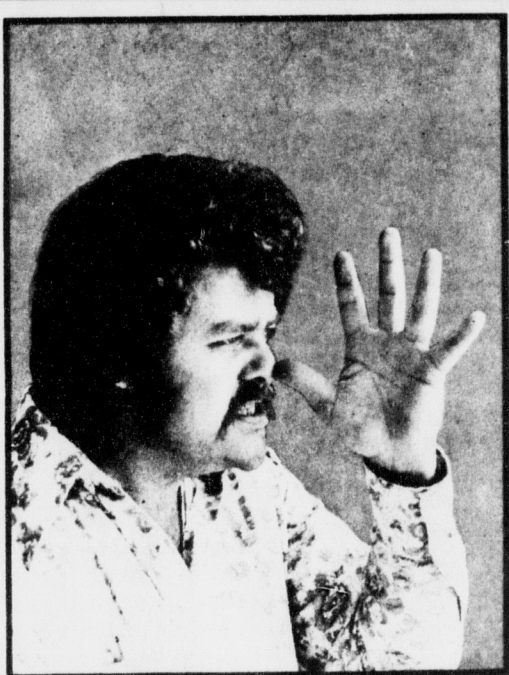

Federation of Teachers, their union, could be fined several thousand dollars if the strike continues.

Federation representatives were to appear in circuit court Monday to explain why they haven't obeyed Foley's order. Marathon bargaining sessions during the weekend produced no report of progress.

In compliance with Foley's ruling, Detroit School Superintendent Dr. Charles J. Wolfe Sunday ordered all school employees back to work Monday.

Teachers reportedly were seeking a pay hike of 9.7 per cent.

Cobalt energized ultra high frequency cassettes

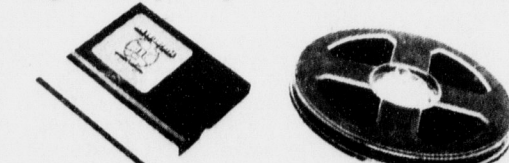

DAK's new Cobalt Energized Cassettes make chromium dioxide and special bias switches obsolete. Without any special circuitry or switches, DAK's Cobalt Energizing adds an impressive 3 to 5 db to the high end frequency response. That means more brilliant and true-to-life cassette recordings from now on. And a response capability in excess of 22,000 Hz.

In addition, DAK Cobalt Energized Cassettes employ only the highest quality mechanical parts... the same degree of quality that you'd expect from brands like BASF, Maxell, and TDK.

DAK Low Noise—High Output, professional quality recording tape utilizes a heavy duty binder and special silicone lubricant. It provides consistently low background hiss level and unusually long tape life.

Tell your tape dealer to "kiss off!"

(Here are several reasons why.)

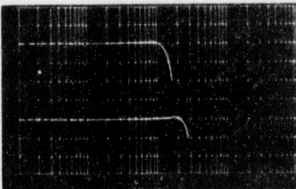

You're paying plenty just to see your tape dealer smile. First, he tacks on a "middleman's profit." That's an extra amount you have to pay because your dealer doesn't make the products he sells. Then he adds on a little more to cover his "overhead." It's just his way of getting you to help pay for his store's rent, utilities, and income. All of which adds up to the "retail price"—or "the shaft" if you don't happen to be independently wealthy.

DAK's got a better idea. We make, and assemble, all of our own tape and cassette products right here in the United States. Then we sell them ourselves. Directly to you. At WHOLESALE prices. (With a little help from the U.S. Postal Service.)

So go ahead. Tell your old tape dealer to "kiss off!" When you pay through the mail—you don't have to pay through the nose.

DAK Low Noise—High Output

Scotch 207

(Actual untouched photos from Audio Magazine's article.)

In its May '73 issue, Audio Magazine tested DAK's new Low Noise—High Output tape along with several other well-known brands, including Scotch 207. Their conclusions about DAK: "...an inexpensive tape with excellent frequency response, good headroom..."
