

Documents tie Agnew to bribery

Vice president quits, gets fined for tax evasion

FROM WIRE SERVICES

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigned Wednesday.

Government prosecutors, who made a deal with Agnew for him to plead no contest to a charge of income tax evasion, released documents that portrayed the vice president as a politician who joined a Maryland tradition of illegal shakedowns and bribes from contractors.

Agnew was sentenced to a $10,000 fine and three years' unsupervised probation by a federal judge.

A plea of no contest, called "nolo contendere" in legal jargon, is not an admission of guilt but acknowledges criminal charges. The no contest plea is used in some criminal cases to avoid the stigma of guilt because it will not adversely affect any collateral civil suit. The defendant does not put up a defense and the punishment is usually the same as if the defendant had pleaded guilty.

"I hereby resign the office of Vice President of the United States, effective immediately," Agnew declared in a formal statement delivered at 2:05 p.m. to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, as provided in the Succession Act of 1792.

Minutes later, Agnew stood before U.S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman in a Baltimore courtroom and, his hands trembling, read from a statement in which he pleaded no contest to a government charge that he had failed to report $29,500 income in 1967, when he was governor of Maryland.

Hoffman sentenced Agnew and declared him on the bench that he would have sent Agnew to jail had not Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson interceded personally, arguing that "leniency is justified."

In his dramatic courtroom statement and a letter to President Nixon, Agnew declared that he was innocent of any other wrongdoing but that it would "seriously prejudice the national interest" to involve himself in a protracted struggle before the courts or congress.

Texts of letters, statement and local action, pages 6, 7

Agnew's resignation came only 11 days after he made an emotional declaration to a

Los Angeles audience — "I will not resign if indicted! I will not resign if indicted!"

Close associates of Agnew said that, contrary to official White House denials, Nixon had asked Agnew to resign at least twice since it was disclosed Aug. 6 that the vice president was under investigation by a federal grand jury in Baltimore.

Nixon told Democratic congressional leaders he expects to nominate a successor to Agnew later this week or early next week, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield reported.

In a 40-page outline of evidence released by the Justice Dept. when Agnew resigned and pleaded no contest, prosecutors said there is no question Agnew and Maryland contractors knew payoffs were made in exchange for lucrative state business.

Richardson told the court that the Justice Dept. had agreed to a single count plea in an arrangement that included the vice president's resignation.

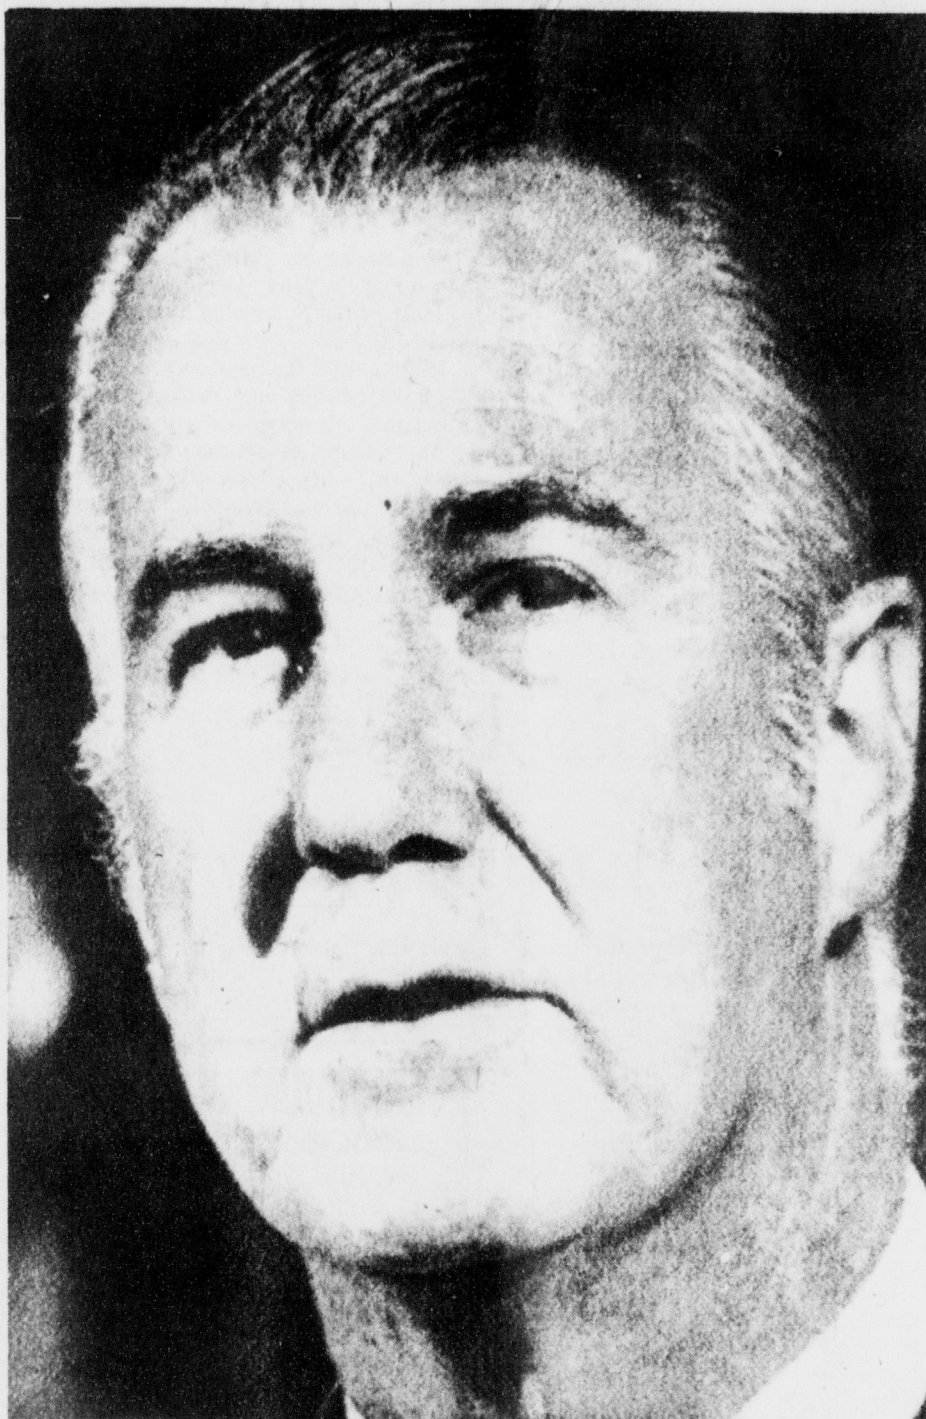

Richardson declared that the corruption investigation involving the vice president had "established a pattern of substantial cash payments" to him by Maryland state contractors when he was Baltimore county executive, governor and as vice president.

These payments continued from the early 1960s into 1971, and one engineer doing business with the state made payoffs up to and including last December, Richardson said.

Agnew left the courthouse immediately after the 30-minute hearing before Hoffman. In a brief statement to newsmen, he said the Justice Dept. had not been fully prosecuting witnesses in his case and that some had received either partial or total immunity—a fact which had been widely reported in the press.

Waving to bystanders outside the downtown courthouse, Agnew drove away to join other members of his family at a funeral home where his half-brother, W. Roy Pollard, 65, who died on Monday was lying in state. Agnew said he would make a public statement in a few days.

Nixon, expressing "a sense of deep personal loss" over the stunning development, met with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders at the White House to discuss "procedural questions" on the selection of a successor.

Officials meet quitting with cheers, regrets

By TOM HAROLDSON
State News Staff Writer

High-ranking University, state and federal government officials expressed surprise and shock Wednesday at the resignation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Beyond this initial surprise, top Democratic leaders generally applauded Agnew's sudden resignation, while leading Republicans mainly expressed regret that Agnew felt compelled to quit the post he had held for nearly five years.

Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., said he was initially surprised but later concluded that the resignation would be in the best interest of the country.

"Agnew's decision to resign, an act which can help restore confidence in government, was a service to the country," Hart said in a prepared statement. "In the same vein I hope the appointment of a successor will be a healing rather than an ailing process."

Rep. Gerald Ford, Grand Rapids, Republican leader in the U.S. House, said he was originally surprised and couldn't believe the announcement, but later sadly realized that it was true.

Ford's press secretary, Paul Miltich, said the congressman first received word of Agnew's resignation while on the floor of the House Wednesday. He said Agnew sent Ford an official and personal letter stating that he was remorse in announcing the decision and thanked Ford for his support.

Ford and Michigan Republican Senator Robert Griffin were called to the White House Wednesday afternoon, along with two other Republican Congressional leaders to discuss the resignation and plot the course of action in finding Agnew's successor.

Griffin did not issue a statement because he was whisked off to the presidential meeting, his press secretary said.

Griffin and Ford have been mentioned as possible successors for Agnew, but the press secretaries for both men would neither deny nor confirm that the men were likely candidates.

Republican Congressman Charles Chamberlain, who represents East Lansing, said the Agnew difficulties and eventual

"This latest development, added to the previous erosion in the public's confidence in the current administration, makes the choice of a new vice president especially critical. The low esteem with which government is held can best be changed by the nomination of a widely acceptable and respected successor."

resignation would strengthen the country in the long run by setting a stricter standard of conduct for political officials.

"The vice president's resignation adds further trauma to our political process," Chamberlain said. "But as disruptive as it may be to us, this is no time for us to wring our hands."

Gov. Milliken said he was surprised at the resignation but added that he hoped better things would come out of it.

"It is a tragic development for the country and for the vice president," (continued on page 6)

Iraq joins war with Egypt, Syria; U.S. says Arabs getting Soviet aid

FROM WIRE SERVICES

Iraq joined Egypt and Syria in fighting against Israel amid indications that the growing conflict is being fueled by Soviet military aid.

Nixon administration officials said

Wednesday that the Soviet Union was airlifting military equipment to resupply Egyptian and Syrian forces that have been locked in combat with Israel since Saturday.

Diplomatic sources have reported that Israel has approached the United States about speeding up the delivery of military equipment promised Israel before the outbreak of hostilities. This would include accelerated deliveries of Phantom jet fighters, which Israel has been losing at a high rate to the Soviet-built antiaircraft missiles used by the Egyptians and Syrians.

Meanwhile, the Defense Dept. refused to confirm or deny a report that a Boeing 707 with Israeli markings on its tail was loaded with missiles and bombs at a naval air station in Virginia.

On Middle Eastern battlefronts, Israel reported its jets attacked the Damascus airport and other targets deep in Syria and Egypt.

Jordan, until now a noncombatant, called up its reserves in what could escalate the fighting by adding a third front to the conflict.

Israeli Premier Golda Meir said that Israeli forces recaptured the Golan Heights and that they were pushing the Egyptian army back along the Suez Canal. She said the Soviet Union was pouring in arms to help the Arabs.

Egypt and Syria had no immediate response to the claims, but accounts from newsmen on the Suez front said Egyptian forces were continuing to move across the canal.

Communiques indicated that armored battles in the Golan Heights and the Sinai Peninsula ground into something resembling a stalemate as the new Arab-Israeli struggle settled into its fifth day. Developments indicated neither side was capable of a quick, clear-cut victory.

Tel Aviv and Damascus reported savage air clashes over the Golan Heights battleground and during the Israeli raids on targets in the Syrian heartland. Each side claimed the other suffered heavy losses.

President Nixon met with congressional leaders in Washington and won their support for his efforts to halt the war. Nixon's peacemaking proposal to the U.N. Security Council remained stalled, however, over conditions for a possible cease-fire.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said after the White House session that the question of U.S. arms for Israel is "always under advisement" but that it did not arise in his talk with Nixon.

A communique broadcast by Cairo radio said Egyptian forces "are improving their advance positions east of the Suez Canal under air cover while the enemy forces continue to retreat eastward."

Nixon to employ 25th Amendment in choosing Agnew replacement

FROM WIRE SERVICES

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's successor will be chosen by a process never before in American history.

The process, outlined in the 25th Amendment to the Constitution ratified in 1967, provides for President Nixon to pick Agnew's successor with the approval of a majority of both houses of Congress.

Agnew's life: classic story

When Richard M. Nixon picked him to be vice presidential running mate in 1968, few people knew of a hard-hitting Marylander named Spiro T. Agnew.

Agnew's career was classically American. His father was Theodore Spiro Magnostopoulos who came to the U.S. from Greece in 1896 and shortened his name. His mother was the former Margaret Kers of Bristol, Va. His father operated a restaurant in Baltimore.

Agnew was born Nov. 9, 1918, studied chemistry for three years at Johns Hopkins University, later switching to University of Baltimore where he received his law degree following action in World War II.

He married the former Elinor Judefind of Baltimore on May 27, 1942, and moved to the Baltimore suburb of Loch Raven Village.

After much activity in civic life Agnew was elected Baltimore County executive in 1962 and his record at that position was so successful that when he ran for governor in 1966, he won handily, becoming the fifth publican governor in Maryland's 180-year history.

Two years later, Agnew admitted that he

Other presidential nominations — such as cabinet members, judges and other top officials — are ratified only by the Senate.

During most of the nation's history a vacancy created by resignation or promotion of a vice president has gone unfilled until the next election.

Previously Agnew's post has been vacant 16 times for a total of 37 years due to death, succession to the presidency on a president's death or to resignation.

The only other man to resign from the job was John C. Calhoun, who quit as Andrew Jackson's vice president on Dec. 28, 1832, in a disagreement over tariff policy and states' rights. He became a U.S. senator from South Carolina.

The first vacancy to occur in the office was in 1818 when George Clinton, vice president to Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, died.

The most recent was in 1963, when Lyndon B. Johnson succeeded John F. Kennedy.

Beyond disagreements on procedure in picking the successor — such as whether the two houses of Congress vote jointly or separately — is the very real political question of Nixon finding a successor that will not be opposed by the Democrats, who hold a majority in both houses.

Democratic leaders have reportedly been concerned about confirming a new vice president who might become the Republican presidential candidate in 1976.

The section of the 25th Amendment dealing with the vice president's successor should he die or resign — a small part of an amendment designed chiefly to deal with the president's successor and the order of succession — reads:

"Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the vice president, the president shall nominate a vice president who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Planners vote to send bridge plan to trustees

The Building, Lands and Planning Committee voted Wednesday to recommend, in concept, the Kalamazoo Street bridge project to the board of trustees.

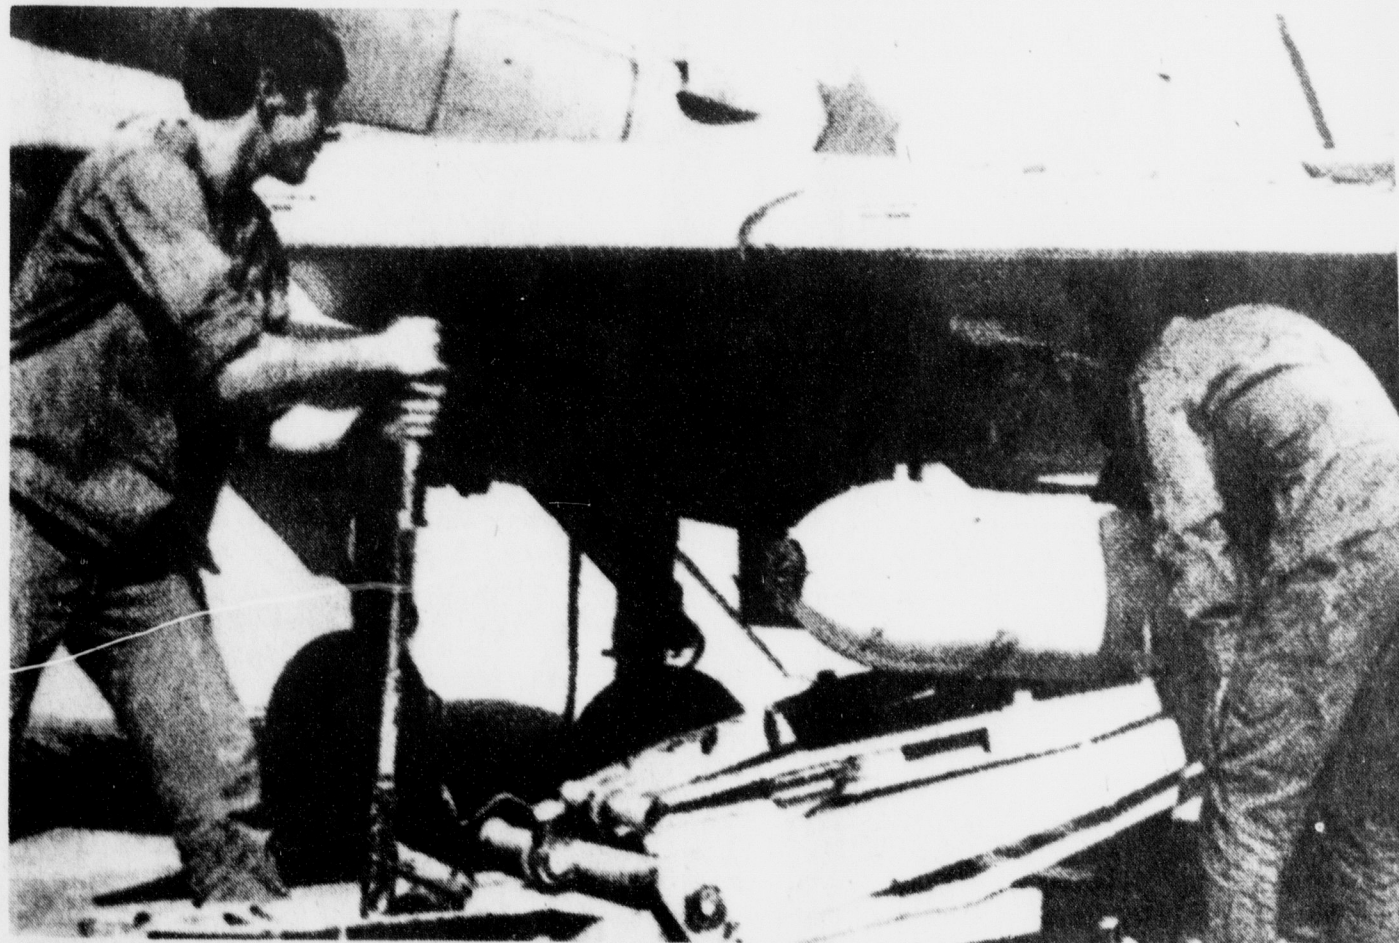

Two committee members voted against supporting the project, claiming the matter deserved further study. To recommend the project in concept means to support the general purpose but not every detail of the plan.

'Milk money' used in break-in

A donation from a dairyman's fund was used to pay White House "plumbers" to stage a break-in at Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office the Washington Star-News has reported.

The milk money, $5,000, was solicited by former White House aide Charles W. Colson and paid through a dummy campaign group in Washington called the "People United for Good Government Committee." Colson received the $5,000 as part of the money flow from the dairy industry's "Trust for Agricultural Political Education" set up to channel funds for President Nixon's re-election through dummy committees. The huge flow of funds started after the White House boosted federal milk price supports.

UAW warns Ford on contract

The United Auto Workers told Ford Motor Co. it will strike Oct. 26 if no agreement on a new national contract is reached.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock set noon of Oct. 22 to resolve its contract, which expired Sept. 14. If no agreement is reached by that day, a national walkout will begin Oct. 26. The union covers 184,000 Ford workers.

Senate OKs strip mine limits

The Senate sent a major bill to the House establishing federal standards for stripmining. The bill, passed 82 to 8 by the Senate, avoided a move to soften a major provision that, had it been approved, would have saved stripminers the expense of restoring scarred land to its original contour. The bill blocks stripmining in areas where reclamation is not feasible and authorizes funds to reclaim land already stripped.

Study tells schools to take risks

The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education's 21st and final report on colleges and universities urged them to "be daring and take risks" to cope with special problems ahead - including declining enrollments.

The commission said the change in enrollment patterns caused by the decline in enrollments it foresees will force colleges to make such changes as admitting more older and part-time students and holding down tuition to make schools more attractive to students.

Long proposes 'workfare' plan

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., has a plan to take five million American families out of the poverty trap. Long says Congress can accomplish this if it approves a bill to give the nation's poorest workers a 10 per cent tax rebate.

The plan, known as "workfare," was approved by Long's Senate Finance Committee as an amendment to a minor bill making changes in the Social Security Act. Families making $4,000 a year or less would get back 85 per cent of the Social Security taxes they and their employers pay.

4 gunmen kidnap British consul

Four gunmen broke into the home of Britain's honorary diplomatic representative in Guadalajara, Mexico, and kidnapped him. Police said they had no word from the kidnapers on the fate of Dr. Anthony Duncan Williams, 47, Mexican-born honorary consul for Britain in Guadalajara. It was the second diplomatic kidnapping in Mexico's second-largest city this year. In May, U.S. Consul Terrance G. Leonhardy was kidnaped, held four days and released unharmed on payment of an $80,000 ransom.

Episcopal bishops change rite

Bishops of the Episcopal church voted to change the 400-year-old sacrament of confirmation, the process by which an individual becomes a full member of the church. The new rite approved by the bishops at a meeting in Louisville, Ky., makes confirmation voluntary rather than mandatory. Baptism alone will be as full initiation into church life.

Spy defends campaign moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A paid spy for the Nixon campaign defended Wednesday the political espionage work that took him inside three Democratic campaigns and into friendly contact with Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

"To me there's a difference between breaking law and breaking someone's confidence," Michael W. McMinoway told the Senate Watergate committee. "I believe it's impossible to run a successful campaign without knowing what the other side is doing."

McMinoway, 27, a private detective from Louisville, Ky., said his success as a spy culminated when he was appointed to McGovern's security staff at the Democratic National Convention.

He said he was able to watch activities on the 17th floor of the Doral Hotel occupied by McGovern and his top staff.

McMinoway said he chatted with McGovern several times and that the candidate once invited him into his room to watch on television a key convention vote.

McMinoway testified under oath he was told that the persons hiring him and receiving his reports were "concerned citizens." He said he was never told and wasn't sure of their identity but said they paid him $5,808.10.

Previous testimony has established that McMinoway's reports were received by officials of the Committee for the Re-election of the President and that he was referred to by the code name Sedan Chair 2.

McMinoway testified that while working in the McGovern campaign in Miami he provided transportation for a delegate and two women who "engaged in immoral activity" with the delegate in the back seat of an auto.

McMinoway said he was successful also in getting information from the primary campaigns of Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., because he made sure he was the best volunteer worker they ever had.

McMinoway testified he got his security guard position in McGovern's headquarters on the recommendation of Thomas Southwick, whom he described as the national youth coordinator for McGovern.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., the Watergate committee chairman, said he will attempt to comply with subpoenas to testify in the Vesco case trial of John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans, respectively former attorney general and commerce secretary.

GOP donations on rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — With big money contributors scared off by the Watergate scandals, the Republican party says it is now recovering from financial crisis with an army of small donors.

Little more than a month ago party officials were lamenting publicly that the two-party system was in danger because the sources of Republican operating funds were drying up.

Now GOP National Chairman George Bush says a direct mail campaign has overcome the setback and the party will end 1972 in the black and still outstep the Democrats three to one.

What is more, Bush says, most of the money is coming from rank and file party members.

In August, the GOP took in $260,000 in contributions, against a $400,000 monthly budget. But in September, after massive mailings, income soared to $380,000.

The September figure is particularly significant coming toward the end of the year. Most political money flows in early in the year.

Most of the September income, $300,000 of it, came from the under $100 class, party finance chairman Pat Wilson says.

Wilson says that with some cash already on hand, another $300,000 would take care of Republican National Committee operations this year.

The national committee, under its new chairman George Bush, has been trying, apparently with some success, to divorce itself from the scandals connected with President Nixon's re-election campaign.

"I'm rather confident that we will get through the year without having to borrow a nickel and end up the year in reasonable cash," Bush said.

Upper Peninsula balks at Navy's radio project

IRON MOUNTAIN — First it was Wisconsin, then Texas and now Michigan, but no matter how beneficial it may seem to the Navy, not many people in these states seem to want to play host to a favorite Navy project.

The latest to join the opposition to Operation Sanguine, the Navy's proposed underground antenna facility for emergency radio communication with its nuclear submarine fleet, is a citizens' group in the western counties of the Upper Peninsula.

PIRGIM charges area bankers with violating federal lending law

By SUE BURZYNSKI
State News Staff Writer

The truth in lending act, 1968 federal consumer protection law, is being violated by 18 of 42 Lansing - East Lansing banking branch offices, the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM) charged today.

PIRGIM charged that seven area banks are violating the act by quoting credit seekers both the annual interest rate and the add-on or discount rate, which usually sounds lower.

The act, designed to aid comparison shopping for bank interest rates, gives guidelines to banks for answering initial inquiries about loans.

Under the law, banks are to give either no information over the telephone or to quote only the annual percentage rate.

Six out of seven of the area banks which PIRGIM said are in violation of the law responded that they instruct their employees to give only the annual percentage rate.

"We always quote the annual percentage rate, just as the truth in lending law stipulates, said Rodney Waters, vice president of East Lansing State Bank.

Don Monette, vice president of Michigan National Bank, said, "We instruct our people to quote only the annual percentage rate."

He added some employees may inadvertently quote the add-on rate along with the annual rate because many of them were with the bank prior to the truth in lending law. "We stress the annual percentage rate," Monette said.

Fred Knight, vice president of Bank of Lansing, agreed with the other bank officials. "Our policy is to quote only the annual percentage rate and not to refer to the add-on rate," Knight said. "If one or more branch offices referred to the add-on rate we would take immediate measures to discontinue the practice."

"We've done what we can to make our people aware of the truth in lending law; the problem occurs when callers don't understand the annual rate and ask for more details," Brandon White Jr., vice president of the Clinton National Bank and Trust, said.

Strict instructions are given to managers and personnel of the American Bank and Trust Co., John Kuri, asst. vice president said.

Delmar Kramer of Dart National Bank said people are not familiar with the annual percentage rate and ask about the add-on rates.

PIRGIM has sent letters to the banks allegedly in violation of the law, urging them to undertake employee training so misleading information will not be given accidentally or deliberately.

PIRGIM has also sent its report to federal and state regulatory agencies urging that they take disciplinary action.

Joseph S. Tuchinsky, executive director of PIRGIM, said if the add-on interest rates are given accidentally, he thinks it is strange that more than half of the banks in the state have the same accident.

"There is no excuse for this consumer deception. The banks train their employees in things they think are important. We think they should consider it important to obey the truth in lending law," Tuchinsky said.

ASMSU officials upset by action on liaison plan

By BOB OURLIAN
State News Staff Writer

President Wharton's transmittal of ASMSU's Student Trustee Liaison Proposal to the Ad Hoc Committee to Review Academic Governance has ASMSU worried.

There is a possibility, ASMSU officials say, that the transmittal may be a "stalling tactic."

Larry Bartrem, ASMSU executive assistant, said the transmittal, which occurred late last week, "caught our office by surprise."

Bartrem and ASMSU President Ed Grafton both said they had received indications that the proposal would go directly to a trustee / student / administrator committee instead of stopping off first in another committee.

"President Wharton feels," Bartrem said, "that because the academic governance structure is under the process of revision that the efforts of the Ad Hoc Committee to Review Academic Governance would be less than comprehensive unless they dealt with this proposal."

"The stated purpose of the proposal," he continued, "is to open formal lines of communication between ASMSU, COGS and the board of trustees. The relation of the proposal to academic governance seems unclear to me."

Bruce Miller, asst. professor of philosophy and secretary of the ad hoc committee, believes differently. "Academic governance," he said, "is the system whereby faculty and student views are related to the administration. So we have a natural interest."

The official letter of transmittal from President Wharton to James Bonnen, chairman of the Academic Council Steering Committee, expressed Wharton's wishes for the ad hoc committee to examine the proposal closely for the ramifications it will have on academic governance.

Grafton said he was told by Wharton, that the president wanted to give the ad hoc committee a chance to examine the liaison proposal for possible ramifications on their report of the structure of academic governance at the University, due Nov. 13.

"This is fine with me," Grafton said. "If this is what the president feels is correct, I'll abide by his decision."

"However," he continued, "if we are not allowed to give verbal input to the ad hoc committee, if we are banned from approaching them verbally, then I would look at it as nothing but a stalling tactic."

The academic governance review committee has a policy of encouraging written rather than verbal reports.

County OKs bikeway study funds

By R.D. CAMPBELL
State News Staff Writer

Between apple bites and after considerable discussion, the Ingham County Board of Commissioners Tuesday night allocated $5,500 for a comprehensive bike roadway study project.

In an amendment to the original resolution, county road commission was directed to provide matching funds of $5,500. Road commissions must spend at least one-half of one per cent from their annual budgets for nonmotorized transportation under state law.

Over $5 million in federal funds is available for fiscal 1973 for the construction of nonmotorized pathways in Michigan, Commissioner John R. Veenstra, D-District 6, said.

"Ingham County could conceivably get as much as $1 million in the next year or two for bike paths," Veenstra said. He promised to work for a countywide bikeway system in his campaign last fall.

A group called the Non-Motorized Transportation Advisory Board composed of 12 county residents, including several students, was organized last June. It took the commissions's original plan calling for a $3,500 study to the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission and asked for an outline of the type of study that could be undertaken with those funds.

"Their plan was highly superficial because of the limited resources. It's foolish to skimp on funds with a project of this magnitude," Veenstra said.

In other action in its regular monthly meeting in Mason, the board:

- Approved a countywide substantive alcohol and drug abuse program and alcoholism highway safety contract which would place all related abuse prevention programs under the umbrella of the Ingham

County Health Dept.

- Received a petition signed by 70 county residents urging that the Extended Care Facility for senior citizens remain in operation.
- Approved the transfer of $1,000 for a videotaping program to be run by Urban 4-H.
- Approved a resolution supporting tax relief for farmers in urbanizing areas.
- Voted unanimously to approve an agreement with Clinton County for housing prisoners whereby Clinton County inmates could be moved to the Ingham County jail, which has a more extensive educational program.

The board's transfer of $1,000 from the minority development fund to the inner-city Urban 4-H program is aimed at developing a videotaping training program.

"Inner-city youth will be able to produce their own cable television programs," Commission Chairman David Hollister, D-District 20, said.

If Alfred Wardowski, R-District 3, could have his way, Ingham County might be converted into a giant apple orchard. Wardowski brought a bag of apples as a salute to National Apple Month that kept the commissioners and audience content during the four-hour meeting.

Try breaking something in instead of wearing it out.

The Leather Shop on M.A.C.

After Veenstra introduced the resolution for tax relief for farmers, Wardowski read a statement proving once and for all that "apple trees cause substantially fewer problems than people."

Agnew's resignation in public's interest

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, the self-professed champion of "law and order," finally ran up against a brick wall which he could not flatten with a barrage of worthless rhetoric. His resignation from office, when faced with criminal charges he could not refute, is his ultimate service to all Americans.

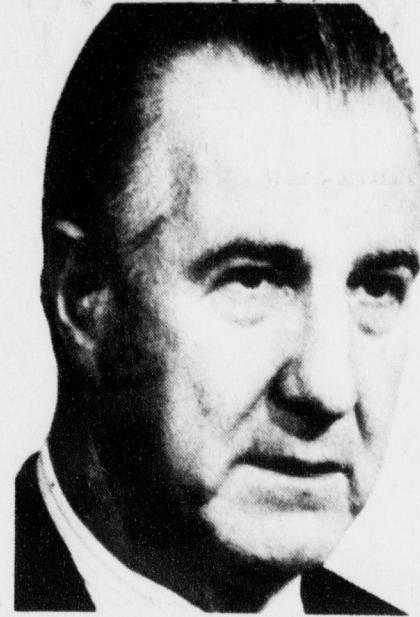

Agnew had little choice but to resign. A legal defense of the charges against him could have taken years—time when the public's confidence in the vice president and the entire federal government would have slowly eroded. Creeping disillusionment with the democratic system would have slipped into distrust, disgust and a determined desire to cleanse the White House.

In light of the never-ending Watergate revelations, the vice president's situation is hardly surprising. Agnew was partner-in-spirit, if not in fact—to an effort by the Nixon administration to steal America. Dirty tricks, smear campaigns, campaign fund-raising extortions and authorized burglaries are but a few of the seemingly standard practices of the present administration.

Public trust in government has been slowly eroded since Watergate first developed. The Agnew chapter is but another pathetic commentary on one of the most corrupt administrations in this nation's history.

However, the vice president's resignation is a Pyrrhic victory for those who have been critical of his stands and policies. It is a tragedy for the American people, as well as Agnew. From an obscure, relatively unknown Maryland politician, Agnew rose to become a household name. His perennial jousts with the media, the youth culture and critics of the Nixon administration made him the most controversial vice president in recent memory.

However, his downfall leaves little to rejoice over.

Agnew made a responsible choice in resigning when confronted with irrefutable evidence. Had he been indicted by a grand jury on criminal charges, a prolonged legal battle would have ensued which could not have been ignored. A full legal defense of the charges against him could have taken years.

Protracted proceedings before a grand jury, the Congress and the courts, with the speculation of unlimited controversy surrounding them, would have seriously prejudiced the national interest and impeded Agnew's defense.

The constitutional questions of indictment and impeachment of a current vice president have thus been mercifully avoided. The sticky legal questions which threatened to bring the government to the brink of immobility have been left unanswered; a situation which, while inconclusive, leaves the situation fluid to address conflicting situations.

Agnew was a symbol to many Americans, the embodiment of a type. His biting tongue and scintillating speeches made him a friend or foe to many. But his resignation and conviction shakes the very principles he stood for.

People who believed the vice president's ringing denials of guilt the last few weeks have to feel betrayed. Instead of standing for law and order and public trust in government, he now represents hypocrisy and deceit because he could not admit he accepted illicit campaign funds while he was governor of Maryland.

It no longer matters that accepting campaign contributions was part of a long-established pattern of political fund raising in Maryland. Agnew willingly and knowingly participated in an illegal activity and must suffer the consequences.

And the vice president had long said that those who partake in illegal activities must face the heavy hand of justice.

Now President Nixon must begin a painstaking search for a new vice president. The choice of Agnew's successor is likely to be a stickler; Nixon may nominate a replacement, but both houses of Congress have to approve that person. And Congress is not likely to approve a vice president who would have a decided political advantage for the 1976 election.

Whoever Nixon chooses must be a man of unimpeachable integrity with a long record of public service. Nixon must carefully screen his candidate and be positive he has no skeletons hanging dormant in a closet.

Agnew chooses 'no contest' plea

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's resignation and subsequent plea of no contest to one count of federal income tax evasion in 1967 caught America by surprise.

In legal terms, nolo contendere, or no contest, means "I do not choose to contest." It is tantamount to a plea of guilty, but avoids the stigma of a guilty plea. The defendant is, in effect, not bothering to put up a defense.

"Public interest requires swift disposition of the problems which are facing me," Agnew said. He also said a full defense could consume several years, which was his main reason for the plea.

In a criminal proceeding such as Agnew's, it is necessary for the judge to agree to the no contest plea before it can be entered. This was done in Agnew's case and the judgement was swift—a maximum $10,000 fine and three years probation without supervision.

A nolo contendere plea has, for the past few years, been used in criminal antitrust cases. This was done to avoid publicity and effect swift justice. In Agnew's case, the same logic applies. No contest was the only rational plea.

Agnew's resignation and plea was his final service to America.

Choice of successor problem; difficult challenge for President

WASHINGTON — For the 17th time in 184 years, the republic is without a vice president and the immediate question is how President Nixon will approach the choice of a person to succeed Spiro Agnew for the next three years and three months.

Eight times during these 184 years, a vice president has succeeded to the presidency in midterm and with another war in progress in the Mideast, the administration weakened by scandals and resignations and the people troubled by internal dissension and inflation, Nixon's decision comes at a particularly solemn moment in the history of the country.

Nixon seems to be facing his decision in a cautious and responsible way. He had said that he had no "contingency plan" for replacing Agnew and he has now committed himself to consult with other leaders of the nation before submitting his nomination to the House and Senate, both of which must confirm the nomination under the 25th Amendment by a majority vote.

Nevertheless, he is faced with a dilemma. It has been widely reported that he regards John Connally, former governor of Texas, former secretary of the navy and former secretary of the treasury, as the man best qualified to be president. But Connally is a controversial figure who has only recently joined the Republican party and his choice would not only split the Republicans but also infuriate many Democrats. This is why his approach to the decision is so important, for while he must propose a qualified man, any attempt to select a probable candidate for the presidency in

JAMES RESTON

New York Times

1976, would give the new vice president a big advantage in the '76 election and lead to more political contention just when the country is looking for unity and calm.

The same problem arises with the nomination of either Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York or Gov. Ronald Reagan of California. For while the Democratic majority in Congress could scarcely reject either on merit, the nomination of the progressive Rockefeller would irritate the conservative Republicans and the nomination of the conservative Reagan would annoy the progressive Republican.

Accordingly, there has been considerable support here for selecting a capable caretaker vice president, who would avoid a bruising battle over confirmation and commit himself not to be a candidate for the presidency in 1976.

Among those discussed regarding this approach to solving the problem are former Secretary of State and Attorney General William P. Rogers; former senator from Kentucky John Sherman Cooper; present White House aide Melvin Laird of Wisconsin and the present Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, as well as his deputy, William Ruckelshaus.

Washington has been playing this guessing game for weeks, but was nevertheless stunned by the Agnew resignation and astonished to discover that last week's parlor gossip was suddenly an immediate decision of state.

In the interests of making a calm and orderly transition, it has even been suggested that the President might consider asking Chief Justice Warren Burger to resign from the court and stand in for the vice president. Associate justices Lewis Powell Jr. of Virginia, Harry A. Blackmun of Minnesota and Potter Stewart of Ohio have also been mentioned, though their enthusiasm for giving up lifetime appointments on the court to act as temporary designated hitters for Agnew might be somewhat limited.

Clerical-technical staff not represented

To the Editor:

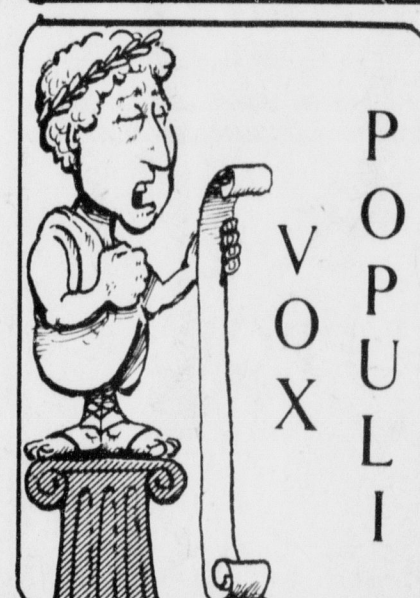

As the result of a contested election held in November 1972, the case concerning the representation of clerical-technical employees on campus has been pending in court for almost one year, with the hopes of a settlement within the next year growing exceedingly slim. Consequently, the entire clerical-technical staff is left devoid of any representation whatsoever, with the ensuing bargaining power nonexistent.

Increasing evidence reflects that should another election be held today the response would be overwhelmingly in favor of unionization.

In an effort to eliminate further delay and additional court costs, I appeal to all clerical-technicals to demand a deciding election be held immediately.

Letter Policy

Ouch! The newprint shortage is threatening to take its toll on the State News, so we turn to our readers for help.

In order to insure that as many letters to the editor as possible fit on the Opinion Page, readers should please limit their letters to 25 typed lines or less. And, of course, that means typing letters to a 65-space line and triple spacing.

As in the past, all letters must be signed and include local address, hometown and student, faculty or staff standing. Absolutely no unsigned letters will be accepted.

Letters may be edited for clarity and conciseness to fit more letters on the page, but definitely will not be edited for content.

Thanks for the help. With your efforts the State News can work to offset the effects of the newprint shortage.

Night wait for tickets down the drain

To the Editor:

To anyone that arrived at Spartan Stadium before 6 a.m. Monday to turn in their senior coupons for tickets for the University of Michigan-MSU game, I fully sympathize with you because I was among you.

One of the members of our group arrived at 4:30 a.m., was relieved at 5:30 a.m., and I relieved him at 6:30 a.m. We were in a line about 150 yards long stretching from the gate at the northwest corner of the stadium. Some had been there since midnight, sacrificing a good night's sleep for a good seat at the game Saturday.

At about 7 a.m. an unidentified MSU employee unlocked the gate at the northeast corner of the stadium and the race was on. All those people who had arrived last were closest to the ticket booths and were at the head of the line when the dust settled, after a scene that resembled the chariot race in Ben Hur.

It seems like the University could take the trouble to set up some sort of crowd control for the crowds that are expected for such games as the U-M game. One or two police officers or even employees of the ticket office would have made quite a difference in making sure that the students that had arrived early at the gates would be the first ones to get a chance at the tickets.

Though this might not go down as one of the top priorities of the University, those of us who watched a whole night's efforts go down the drain might be somewhat consoled to know that something will be done to minimize such inequities in the future.

Creative art

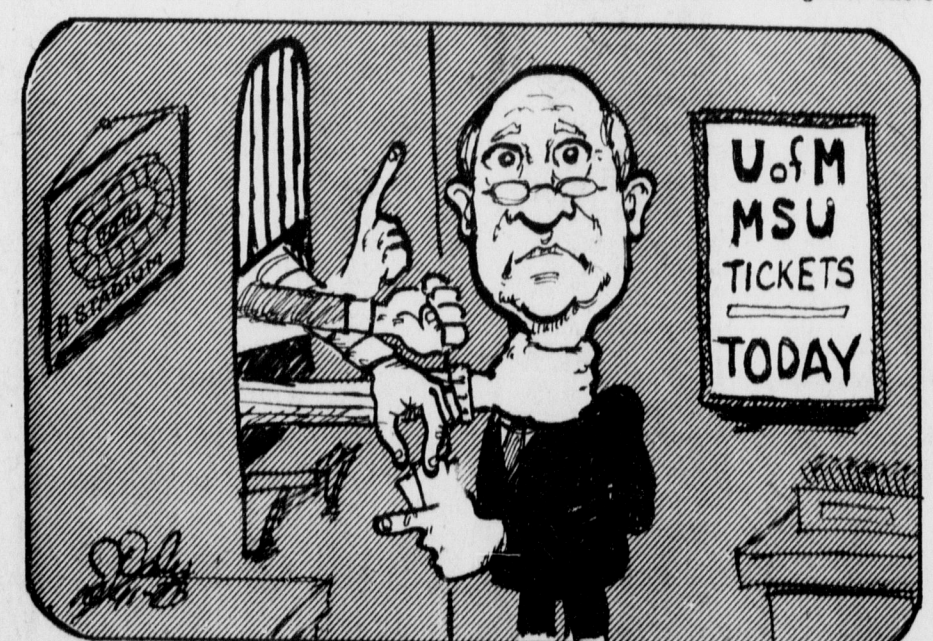

To the Editor:

On Sunday, Oct. 7, we attended the open house for the Arts Workshop in the old Marble School on Hagadorn Road. It was certainly heartwarming and encouraging to see so much evidence and variety of constructive creative activity.

Children of all ages were sculpting, dancing, weaving, making jewelry and displaying excellent work in layout, batik, water color and other media.

Though we understand all this is actually the product of a hard-working director and equally dedicated instructors, we cannot help but think the venture is especially blessed. Perhaps it is because of the children.

Milliken cites strike law need

By MAUREEN McDONALD
State News Staff Writer

Gov. Milliken reinforced his concern for Detroit school children at a press conference Wednesday and stated that the laws governing labor mediation for teachers and school boards need to be changed. While the governor said he was not in favor of binding arbitration to settle teacher disputes, he said "we are considering every day the alternative legislation we can take" to prevent lengthy teacher strikes.

Milliken will be addressing the state legislature Tuesday in the first session following a long summer vacation for the legislators. Legislative sources predict that education and the creation of a super agency for social services will be high priorities in his address.

Milliken would not specify the nature of the new agency at the press conference, but various legislators anticipate that he will present an executive order to combine the departments of Social Services, Mental Health and Public Health and the rehabilitation programs in the Dept. of Education.

The Detroit teacher's strike controversy dominated the press conference as Milliken said "the strike is doing irreparable harm to the children who are pawns in the power struggle."

"Unless the strike is settled this week there will not be enough days left to meet the legal requirement (180 days) of a complete school year," Milliken said.

He blamed both sides for failure to reach a prompt settlement of the strike.

Future legislation to prevent teacher strikes may take the form of compulsory arbitration, timetables for settlement or making the teachers more responsible to the courts, Milliken said.

"When the dust settles we will have to look at a whole range of laws affecting collective bargaining," he said.

Other laws being scrutinized by the governor's office include a revision of Michigan's 4 per cent sales tax on food and drugs.

"Removing the tax is an appealing thought," Milliken said, "but what will be the impact? Will we realize a tax reduction?"

He will resume hearings on the state budget soon and said he will continue to back appropriations for an MSU law school.

The law school proposal calls for $688,000 to hire a dean, set up a library, and initiate classes.

Milliken said boards of trustees at their respective colleges and universities should decide the price of tuition.

WJIM employees vote, keep bargaining unit

WJIM news department employees voted 13-5 Wednesday to retain the National Assn. of Broadcasters, Engineers and Directors as its bargaining agent in future contract negotiations with the station. The results will be forwarded to the National Labor Relations Board for approval.

Reporter R.J. Grossfeld said the staff "will be doing some homework on a proposal to submit to station owner Harold Gross in the near future."

"The issues are basically run-of-the-mill issues," he said. "Wages, fringe benefits, working conditions. We want to be able to bargain in good faith and we want to do it right," Grossfeld said.

WJIM vice president James Gross said he had "no reaction" to the news department vote.

"I'm not going to make their decisions for them," he said, in response to a question raised on a recent report, which calls for a doubling of tuition at colleges and universities.

On other matters, Milliken denied having any input into the hiring of Sidney Singer, state personnel director.

Singer has been under fire in recent weeks during a series of public hearings on civil service.

A civil service official recently testified that Singer was appointed contrary to civil service rules.

Milliken gave his support of the civil service program though he encouraged the additional hiring of women and minorities in high-ranking positions.

STATE'S HUMAN RESOURCES DEPT.

Plans for new agency expected

By DANIEL DEVER
State News Staff Writer

Gov. Milliken is expected to announce plans to create a new state "super department" next week to consolidate public and mental health services and welfare services in Michigan.

Some legislators, including House Speaker William A. Ryan, D-Detroit, anticipate the governor's announcement when the legislature returns for its fall session Tuesday.

However, Milliken declined to comment on plans for the new department at his press conference Wednesday.

By combining the Dept. of Social Services with the Mental Health and Public Health Dept., the new Dept. of Human Resources would be the largest in size and budget of any state agency.

"Those three departments' prime function is to provide four basic needs to the people of Michigan: food, clothing, shelter and health care. Setting up one department will streamline this function and make it more effective," Ryan said.

The Commission on Aging and the vocational rehabilitation program now run by the Dept. of Education would also be included in the Dept. of Human Resources.

Ryan said he expects Milliken to issue an order to create the new agency under the power granted the governor in the Constitution and the Reorganization Act of 1965.

"We think the executive order would be the fastest and most effective way of implementing the plan," he said.

The executive order will take effect unless formally rejected by the Senate or the House within 60 days.

Legislative action would be required, however, to change the name of the departments, Ryan said.

Ryan said he thinks the proposal will receive support from both parties in the legislature.

He said that after the new department is set up the legislative and executive branches would work together on refining the workings of the new agency.

Such legislation has already been introduced in the House by state representatives James Farnsworth, R-Holland and Raymond Kehres, D-Monroe.

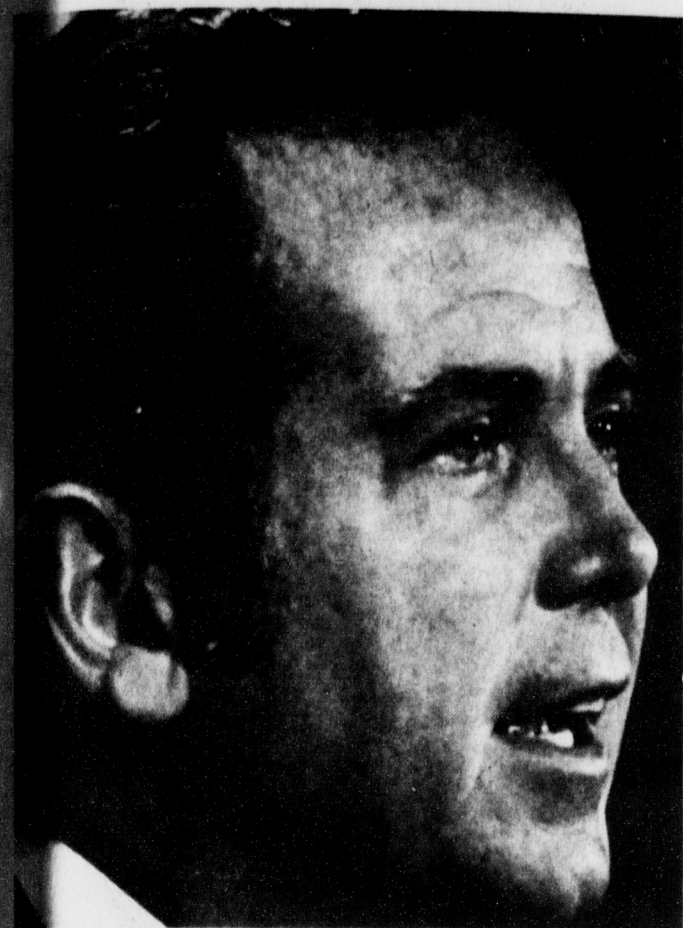

Farnsworth said the consolidation of the three departments would eliminate the duplication of services which often occurs now.

"It would be a way to give more things to more people in a more streamlined way," Farnsworth said.

If created, the new department would have 25,000 employees and a budget of more than $2 million in state and federal funds.

Several men have been mentioned as possible directors of the new department.

The front runners include John T. Dempsey, director of the newly created office of Management and Budget, and Gus Harrison, former Corrections Dept. director who now heads the Bureau of State Lottery.

Super agency

Gov. Milliken reiterated his concern for school children affected by the teacher strike in Detroit Wednesday at a press conference in the Capitol. He also spoke of a super social services agency he will propose when the legislature opens Tuesday.

Teachers' reps reject contract

Negotiators for East Lansing teachers rejected Tuesday night a tentative agreement made orally two weeks ago with the board of education, charging that the written version of the two-year contract was not the same as the verbal one.

State labor mediator Edward Connors, meeting with negotiating teams from the board and the teachers, "failed to resolve a misunderstanding over economics," a board of education release stated Wednesday.

Representatives from the teachers association were not available for comment Wednesday.

The board's contract offer calls for salary schedule improvements of 11.1 per cent over two years. The teachers' demand is for 12.6 per cent.

The complete board package increase for two years has exceeded 19 per cent while the teachers' demand is for 20.67 per cent, the release said.

Prior to the oral agreement, teachers had agreed to continue working under their 1972-73 contract. The board's statement said the old contract has been extended pending a settlement.

PRESIDENT RESPECTS DECISION

Nixon gets letter of resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Following are the texts of Spiro T. Agnew's formal letter of resignation as vice president—sent to Secretary of State, Henry A. Kissinger under statutory procedures; Agnew's advisory letter of his resignation to President Nixon, and Nixon's reply to Agnew:

The Honorable Henry A. Kissinger
The Secretary of State
Washington, D.C. 20520

Dear Mr. Secretary:
I hereby resign the office of vice president of the United States, effective immediately.

Sincerely,
Spiro T. Agnew

Oct. 10, 1973

Dear Mr. President:

As you are aware, the accusations against me cannot be resolved without a long, divisive and debilitating struggle in the Congress and in the courts. I have concluded that, painful as it is to me and to my family it is in the best interest of the nation that I relinquish the vice presidency.

Accordingly, I have today resigned the office of vice president of the United States.

A copy of the instrument of resignation is enclosed.

It has been a privilege to serve with you. May I express to the American people, through you, my deep gratitude for their confidence in twice electing me to be vice president.

Sincerely,
Spiro T. Agnew

Oct. 10, 1973

Dear Ted:

The most difficult decisions are often those that are the most personal, and I know your decision to resign as vice president has been as difficult as any facing a man in public life could be. Your departure from the administration leaves me with a great sense of personal loss. You have been a valued associate throughout these nearly five years that we have served together. However, I respect your decision, and I also respect the concern for the national interest that led you to conclude that a resolution of the matter in this way, rather than through an extended battle in the courts and the Congress, was advisable in order to prevent a protracted period of national division and uncertainty.

As vice president, you have addressed the great issues of our times with courage and candor. Your strong patriotism and your profound dedication to the welfare of the nation, have been an inspiration to all who have served with you as well as to millions of others throughout the country.

I have been deeply saddened by this whole course of events, and I hope that you and your family will be sustained in the days ahead by a well-justified pride in all that you have contributed to the nation by your years of service as vice president.

Sincerely,
Richard Nixon

NO CONTEST

Agnew outlines decision to court

WASHINGTON (AP) - Here is the written version of the statement by Spiro T. Agnew to the court in Baltimore:

My decision to resign and enter a plea of nolo contendere rests on my firm belief that the public interest requires swift disposition of the problems which are facing me. I am advised that a full legal defense of the probable charges against me could consume several years. I am concerned that intense media interest in the case would distract public attention from important national problems—to the country's detriment.

I am aware that witnesses are prepared to testify that I and my agents received payments from consulting engineers doing business with the state of Maryland during the period I was governor. With the exception of the admission that follows, I deny the assertions of illegal acts on my part made by the government witnesses.

I admit that I did receive payments during the year 1967 which were not expended for political purposes, and that, therefore, these payments were income taxable to me in that year and that I so knew. I further acknowledge that contracts were awarded by state agencies in 1967 and other years to those who made such payments, and that I was aware of such awards.

I am aware that government witnesses are prepared to testify that preferential treatment was accorded to the paying companies pursuant to an understanding with me when I was the governor.

I stress, however, that no contracts were awarded to contractors who were not competent to perform the work and in most instances state contracts were awarded without any arrangement for the payment of money by the contractor.

I deny that the payment in any way influenced my official actions. I am confident, moreover, that testimony presented in my behalf would make it clear that I at no time conducted my official duties as county executive or governor of Maryland in a manner harmful to the interests of the county or state, or my duties as vice president of the United States in a manner harmful to the nation, and, further, assert that my acceptance of contributions was part of a long-established pattern of political fund-raising in the state. At no time have I enriched myself at the expense of the public trust.

In all the circumstances, I have concluded that protracted proceedings before the grand jury, the Congress and the courts, with the speculation and controversy surrounding them, would seriously prejudice the national interest.

These, briefly stated, are the reasons I am entering a plea of nolo contendere to the charge that I did receive payments in 1967 which I failed to report for the purposes of income taxation.

Official reaction mixed

Milliken said. "It is particularly unfortunate in that it comes at a time of declining public confidence in government."

"I regret the resignation was necessary," he added. "But it is now clearly in the best interest of the country to resolve the matter as the vice president is doing."

William McLaughlin, chairman of the state Republican party, said he was sorry to see the resignation occur but added that his main concern was that the president make a wise choice in naming a successor.

Morley Winograd, chairman of the state Democratic party, said Agnew's resignation was appropriate and in the best interest of the country. He echoed Milliken's remarks that the resignation came at a time of declining public confidence in government but added that it "will do more to restore confidence in our elected leaders than the lengthy legal controversy which would have otherwise taken place."

In resigning Wednesday, Agnew said he wanted to avoid the lengthy battles which he believed would hurt the country.

State Sen. George Fitzgerald, Senate Republican leader from Grosse Pointe Park, said the resignation was a surprise in light of what Agnew had been saying this past week regarding his innocence. But he said he felt a compassion for Agnew and decried the sentence that was placed on him.

"I see no reason for the three year probation," Fitzgerald said. "The fine and the disgrace would have been sufficient. Agnew is not like an ordinary criminal in that he will not go out and do it again."

Michigan Speaker of the House William Ryan cautioned Democrats from trying to capitalize on the Agnew resignation. He advised them to instead concentrate on economic and social problems facing the country.

State Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, said the Agnew resignation was long overdue and added that Agnew should not have spent a much time fighting the press and the Justice Dept.

"He has spent so much time and energy pleading his innocence and denouncing the press and other areas as oppressors," Jondahl said. "It doesn't go well for any of us that he attempted to cover up his case with these accusations."

MSU trustees Blanche Martin, D-East Lansing, and Don Stevens, D-Okemos, said they agreed with Agnew's decision to resign but thought that it should have come sooner.

Speculation now begins as to the possible successor for Agnew. Most of the officials contacted offered candidates that they would like to see replace Agnew. The names most often mentioned were Gov. Milliken, Griffin, Ford, John Connally, former governor of Texas, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan, governor of California.

But in mentioning the names, officials agreed that the choice would have to pass the Congress as well as be acceptable to the Democratic party and the American people.

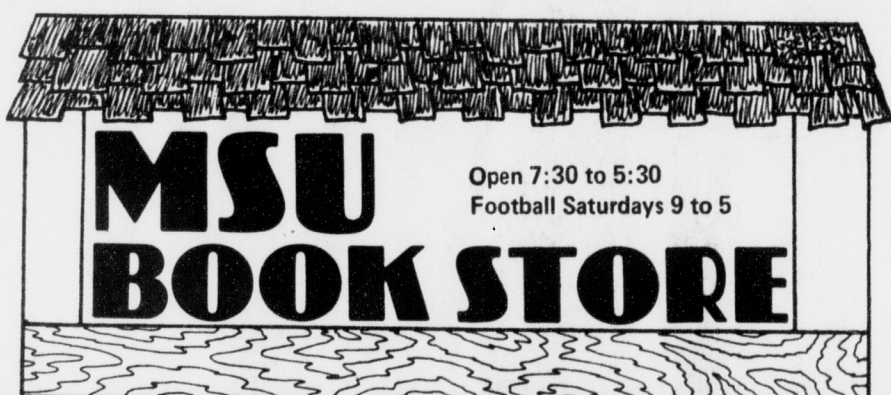

State News staff writers contributing to this article included Dan Dever, Maureen McDonald, Michael Ogorek and Linda Sands.

Shock, elation expressed at news of Agnew quitting

By DIANA BUCHANAN
State News Staff Writer

Shock and elation were the general moods of the citizens contacted on the street about the news of the resignation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

"He did? Great, fantastic, too," said Coco Denton, 550 N. Magadorn Road senior, said.

"The general reaction of everyone around me was that it was about time he got caught," said Eileen Bostwick, 96 Linden Blvd., Mason graduate student, said.

"One down, one to go, and there are probably some more in there somewhere," Allan Schmid, professor of Agricultural Economics said.

"Some how I'm concerned that this will somehow relieve our tensions about Watergate," he added.

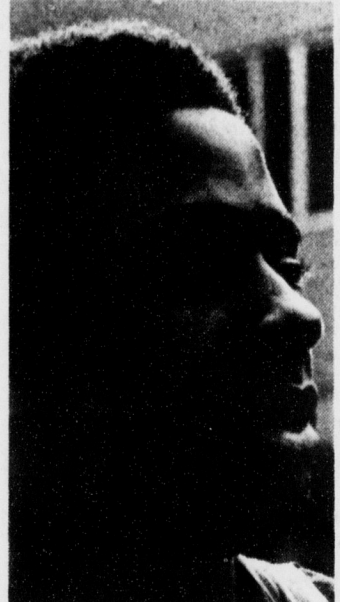

Several people interviewed said they thought Agnew's resignation was all a fake, still others replied apathetically to the development saying they didn't care.

Many agreed with Kevin Donnelly, G69 Shaw Hall, when he said: "My opinion of the whole government of the United States is negative. I think he should have resigned, the general public doesn't know what the government is up to most of the time and they don't want the press to let the people know."

Others were even more politically minded about their reactions.

"This means the President gets to pick his own vice president with the House and Senate voting for approval. Nixon will definitely have to change his politics," Beverly Harris, East Lansing resident

"This is just one more in a series of revelations of Nixon's administration," Mitch Bloomfield, instructor in American thought and language, said.

"Basically I'm surprised, but I suspect that Agnew will put more pressure on the news leak now and try to screw the media by forcing the reporters to divulge their sources or go to jail," Greg Huszco, 1130 Beech St., graduate student, said.

"I'm really glad and I wish Nixon would follow suit, but I don't expect it," Bonnie Brunger, 343 Albert St. sophomore said.

Zoltan Ferency, associate professor of criminal justice said, "All I've heard is the wire report that he has resigned, but under the circumstances I don't believe he had any alternative. The person who occupies the office one heartbeat away from the President has to be of unimpeachable integrity, and if Agnew felt constrained to enter a plea of no contest to a criminal charge, I don't believe he has those qualities so important in a leader of our nation."

"I have two reactions. I had thought he would stay in office and fight his case in courts and it makes me wonder what kinds of pressures were put on him by the White House," Edna Rogers, asst. professor of social science said.

Andrew Barclay, associate professor of psychology, said: "I fully expected that we would go through a long period of trial. More interesting is my first thought that since the Senate has to approve of a successor they will probably pick someone who they would like to see as president if Nixon left."

Some people speculated as to the effect the trial process would have on the United States. One of these was David Ralph, professor of communications.

"I just heard about Agnew. I'm surprised that he did it so quickly. It would be very interesting constitutional process. It would be good to see the impeachment philosophically but not in actuality. I almost bet that there won't be a replacement," Ralph said.

Spokesmen for student groups have other vantage points to add. Most students were rather cynical about the whole investigation.

"I would like to see all the evidence made public that's being compiled by the Defense Dept. It appears that Agnew now is trying to suppress the information. By this nolo contendere plea they've agreed not to investigate further," Jim Garris of the Student Mobilization Committee said.

govern effectively after his indictment," Laurie Grimm of the Residence Halls Assn. said.

"This was according to plan (the resignation). They did it to save the man (Nixon)," Roland Williams, coordinator of the black premedical association said.

"It's about time that we got a little bit of the corruption exposed but it's too bad that it makes it look like all the corruption is in one party," Mathew Mills, 326 Cowley Ave., sophomore said.

Other University people felt that there was no hope for whoever the successor would be. There weren't any people who were acceptable to them.

"I don't see anyone prominently who I would like to see the next vice president. They all seem to be of the same mentality," Harvey Davis, associate professor of mathematics, said.

BULLOCK, MOORE

Two players suspended

By LYNN HENNING
State News Sports Writer

Starting fullback Clarence Bullock and offensive tackle Wendell Moore have been suspended indefinitely from the Spartan football team for "breaking football rules and policies," head coach Denny Stolz disclosed Tuesday.

"It could be for a few days, a few games or an entire season," said Clarence Underwood, asst. to the Athletic Director for Academic Affairs, along with Athletic Director Burt Smith, the man to whom Stolz reported the suspensions.

Underwood said he had no idea what specifics led to the suspensions.

"They apparently violated some of Denny's rules," Underwood said. "It was strictly Denny's decision. The players were aware of the rules."

Bullock, a junior from Ft. Wayne, Ind., had started in three of the team's four games this season. Moore, a junior college transfer from Ft. Arthur, Texas, was backup tackle to senior John Ruzich but had seen action in all four games.

Stolz declined to talk about the suspensions later in the day, saying only that it was a "family problem."

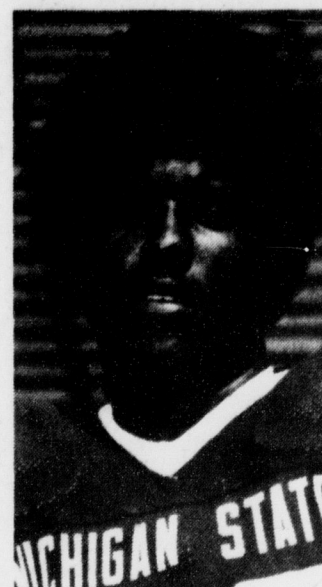

Either sophomore Julius Askew or freshman Levi Jackson will replace Bullock in the MSU lineup Saturday against the University of Michigan.

Bullock was contacted outside Spartan Stadium Wednesday afternoon dressed in football practice gear.

"I have nothing to say," Bullock responded when asked about the suspension.

BULLETIN

OAKLAND (UPI) - Andy Etchebarren's three-run homer in the seventh inning tied the score and Bobby Grich's solo blast in the eighth won it Wednesday as the Baltimore Orioles came back from a 4-0 deficit to beat the Oakland A's, 5-4, and deadlock the American League championship series at two victories each.

Vida Blue, Oakland's 20-game winning southpaw, had the Orioles stopped on two singles before they caught up with him in the seventh.

The A's and Orioles will play today to determine who will face the New York Mets in the World Series.

Mets grab NL flag; clobber Reds in final

NEW YORK (UPI) - Cleon Jones, the embodiment of his team's "rags to riches" season, keyed a four-run fifth inning with a double, and reliever Tug McGraw put the finishing touches on one of baseball's greatest comebacks Wednesday to lead the New York Mets to a 7-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds for the National League pennant.

The victory, which turned Shea Stadium into a frenzy, gave the Mets the championship series, three games to two, and culminated an incredible season which saw the team rally from last place on Aug. 30 to win its second pennant in five years.

Oddly, it was four heroes from the Mets last pennant in 1969 who figured prominently in Wednesday's victory - McGraw, Jones, Tom Seaver and the last of the original Mets, Ed Kranepool.

Jones, a disappointment in the first half of the season but a star during the stretch run for the East Division title, collected three hits, including the big fifth-inning double, and also singled home the Mets last run in the sixth.

Seaver, the Mets' No. 1 pitcher all season, working on three days rest for only the seventh time, battled the Reds valiantly for 8 1/3 innings, allowing only seven hits, but had to be bailed out of a ninth inning jam by McGraw, who came on to retire Joe Morgan and Dan Driessen in succession with the bases loaded.

Kranepool, subbing in the outfield for Rusty Staub, who injured his right shoulder in Tuesday's game while making a spectacular catch, also contributed handsomely with a two-run single in the first inning.

It was Jones, however, who came through with the big hit as the Mets, befuddled all season by Jack Billingham, finally broke loose against the Reds' tough right hander in the fifth to break the game open.

The Mets opponent in the World Series will be the winner of the Baltimore-Oakland American League final today.

Soccer

Rom Zdravko scored a goal in the first half and Mike Kenney tallied one in the second half as MSU's soccer team shutout Albion, 2-0, here Wednesday.

The win was the Spartans' second in three games going into a Sunday home game against the University of Michigan at Dearborn.

Field hockey team wins opener

By PAM WARD
State News Sports Writer

There are only three experienced players on the entire women's field hockey team but no one would believe it, least of all Adrian.

The young Spartan squad captured its opening game against Adrian Tuesday by a decisive 4-0 score.

"Our beginning players looked really good," Mikki Baile, coach of the women's field hockey team said. "This was the first collegiate game for many of them and they looked like veterans. The beginners possessed a lot of poise."

The Spartans were in control of the ball throughout most of the game, exercising a tremendous amount of offensive power.

"The whole team looked good," Baile said. "We were on the attack most of the time, we had quite a few shots and the defense kept itself well positioned."

The Spartan goals were made by sophomore Cindy Hudson and senior Joyce Spano. Hudson, a newcomer to the Spartan squad, scored three goals.

"All of the goals were team efforts, though," Baile said. "You could watch the shots develop down the field. We had a tremendous amount of team awareness. Each person on the team was working together and knew where the others were on the field. They were all there with their eyes on the ball and their sticks down."

"I couldn't even say who was better - the offense or defense," Baile continued. "The team loves working together. Most of the girls get the same kind of pleasure from assists as they do from scoring a goal."

Baile has been experimenting with different plays and formations during the past two weeks and the innovations worked out well against Adrian. The Spartans' field play tactics and the formation on the forward line is decidedly different than last year.

"Our stick work and field play is progressing well," Baile said. "They kept feeding the ball to the line."

"Our halfback did a real good job, too," Baile said. "They kept feeding the ball to the line."

The Spartans are going back to work preparing for their match against Delta College next Tuesday.

Agnew's story is classic

was "stunned" when Nixon decided on him as his Republican ballot - mate.

"I had no idea that this was going to happen. It came as a bolt out of the blue," he said, when Nixon's announcement was made in 1968.

Agnew's name soon became a household word for many of the hard-line statements he made throughout his career and one he continually hammered out during the 1968 campaign was the ironical theme, "law and order."

Over night he became famous by calling student dissenters "basically parasitic" and calling leaders of the Vietnam War protest movement "an effete corps of impudent snobs" and by describing newsmen as "the most superficial thinkers I've ever seen."

Agnew promised that the Nixon-Agnew administration would bring an end to civil disobedience of any kind and he sarcastically asserted "there are procedures that exist to challenge...law without breaking it."

Loose with his language at times, the former vice president publicly referred to persons of Polish descent as "Polacks" and later referred to a reporter of Japanese origin as a "fat setbacks for Republicans in 1968 led Agnew into the 1970 off-year campaign with the desire to gain friendly relations in Congress, especially in the Senate. But Agnew's attempt was fruitless and the Senate remained Democratic.

Throughout the 1972 campaign reporters wondered about the apparent "new Agnew," who spoke with a less abrasive voice than the vice president of the previous four years.

Agnew explained his new image. "When I get up and look in the mirror in the morning I say 'What are you going to be today, fellow? If I feel bad, I'm the old Agnew. If I feel good, I'm the new Agnew.'" The newsmen roared with laughter.

With Nixon's landslide re-election, Agnew was in the best position of any Republican to win his party's nomination in 1976 and the spotlight has been on Agnew ever since.

Bridge project concept OKd by group

they should give the trustees some input for its Oct. 26 meeting, since the committee would not meet again until Nov. 14.

The project, proposed by the Ingham County Road Commission, includes shifting the East Kalamazoo Street bridge

Defense lines

Shown are Israeli defense lines in the Middle East fighting. Israeli forces have all but abandoned the Bar-Lev Line. Israel said its forces have evacuated most of that line and established a new line two or three miles into the Sinai. The main Israeli defense line is reported about 30 miles deep in the Sinai, in front of two key passes through a range of mountains. AP Wirephoto 200 feet east of its present location and enlarging it 2½ times its present size. The project would also enlarge East Kalamazoo Street between Clippert Street and Marigold Avenue from two lanes to four.

East Kalamazoo Street runs on the west side of campus just north of University Village married housing.

A 600-foot channel will redirect the Red Cedar River to flow under the new bridge while the present site of the river will be filled in.

Milton Baron, director of Campus Parks and Planning, told the committee the entire project would benefit MSU.

"This will lessen the chances of flooding along Kalamazoo Street," Baron said. "The street is flooded as many as four times a year."

"Ingham County road officials told me they believed there's too much traffic running on what they consider an obsolete county road," Baron continued.

"Approximately 38 trees will be cut down and some vegetation along Kalamazoo Street will be lost to complete the project," he said. "But the land for the new river is not used for class study and the species of trees are of no special importance."

But James Anderson, asst. professor of humanities and coordinator of Citizens for a Livable City, questioned the benefits of the project.

"The result of this project will be increased visual sterility in an area now pleasant to drive through," Anderson said.

Though committee members thought the project should have been discussed further at the meeting, they were anxious to give the trustees their opinion of the project.

"If the committee was to have any opportunity to provide the trustees with its input before their Oct. 26 meeting, it had to vote today," Anne C. Garrison, committee chairman, said.

One day before the Consumer Conference, the Research Group in Michigan asking Gov. Milliken Michigan Consumer Council executive director N. Lorr. In a letter and report Thursday, Joseph S. Tuch director of PIRGIM, said Consumers Council has been with partisan divisions and ineffective council appointments. "It has been severely executive director who ne advocates consumer in closely identified with in and who has lost the confidence of consumer groups but her own staff," Tuchinsky. Replying to the PIRGIM said, "PIRGIM is attacked not issues. They (PIRGIM) strictly political and consumers at all."
