Kissinger had worked out the final details with Egypt and Israel Thursday and there is no longer any need for further negotiation about disengagement at the Geneva peace conference. Implementation of military details will be handled by the commanders at Kilometer 101. Both Eban and Yigal Allon, the deputy premier who spoke to the nation on television, did not disclose more than the bare outline of the pact. Significantly, Allon said that through Kissinger the two countries had also reached "oral understandings."

Similar announcements of the disengagement agreement were made in Egypt and by President Nixon in Washington. Eban said he hoped "it would mark a turning point, a first initial, but nevertheless important step, on the road toward peace in the Middle East."

Eban said Israel was prepared to hold disengagement talks with Syria, its other major opponent in the October war. Kissinger plans to fly to Damascus Sunday in a bid to persuade the Syrians to join the moves toward a settlement.

He flew to Egypt Thursday and is expected to confer with King Hussein of Jordan Saturday.

Allon, who replaced ailing Premier Golda Meir as chief Israeli negotiator with Kissinger, said he could not give details of the pact. But from his television remarks. these points emerged:

*Israel will withdraw "a reasonable distance" east of the 103 - mile canal, giving up both the southwest shore it captured in the October fighting and the eastern bank it took in the 1967 war.

Israel has never officially said so, but it is known that disengagement envisages an Israeli withdrawal to the Mitla and Gidi Passes, 18 to 30 miles east of the canal.

*Allon implied this would not be Israel's final withdrawal in Sinai and "we will not create a long - term status quo" out of disengagement. The agreement would preface more withdrawals in the framework of a peace treaty, he indicated. The first major agreement between the two sides came in November when Israel and Egypt formally agreed to a cease - fire arranged by Kissinger.

MSU's economy shivers in energy crisis

By DIANE SILVER State News Staff Writer

When the nation's economy catches a cold, the state of Michigan comes down with pneumonia and MSU starts to shiver. That saying, a favorite of MSU administrators, aptly describes the current economic situation created by the energy

MSU's fortunes are closely entangled with the economic situation of the state. Approximately two - thirds of the University's $107 million general fund comes from state appropriations, and a major portion of the other third consists of student fees, which could decrease with a drop in enrollment caused by a recession.

Unfortunately, the economic situation of Michigan is turning dismal. The energy crunch will hit the state in its two most important industries: automobiles and

The tourist industry has not yet been affected by conservation conscious vacationers avoiding weekend drives. However, the automobile industry. hit by a decline in big car sales, was forced to lay off thousands of men in December.

"The state's No. 1 problem now is the auto industry," Sen. John Toepp, R - Cadillac, said. "Not only are auto plants laying off people, but industries related to the auto industry are starting to lay off, and this means less tax revenues for the receipts from the gas tax, caused by after they have been given to MSU. decreased gasoline use, would reduce those sevenues. High unemployment could further reduce state monies by forcing the state to increase spending in the food stamp and other relief programs, Toepp said. State officials will not comment on the extent of the reduction they expect, but one official did note, "There is no doubt that everybody is expecting a tight budget vear."

If money is as tight as some expect, next year's higher education appropriations could be cut back, or the winged back to D.C.

Three years ago, a similar economic slump hit the state after an extended strike against General Motors. At the time, the revenue the state received from taxes failed to equal the expected receipts. As a result, the state took back $711,000 in 1971 - 72 fiscal year and $1.3 million in 1972 - 73 from the total funds given to MSU.

The appropriation recall forced MSU to substantially reduce the operating budget of all academic and service units, says Roger Wilkinson, vice president of business and finance. Maintenance budgets were also reduced by postponing repairs. "Such a recall is always a possibility," says a source close to MSU's administration. "The long - range prospects are good for support from the state, but for any given year there is a possiblity that MSU might have to go through this again."

Today, if the legislature recalled a portion of its appropriation, MSU would have a more difficult time economizing.

"It was a different situation," says President Wharton. "We made certain kinds of short - run adjustments by postponing maintanance and delaying purchasing. But we had more flexibility then because we knew that when the strike was over the problems would end."

Unfortunately, short - run adjustments by unemployment, and a reduction in the state could recall a portion of its funds may not be applicable now because no one can guess the length of the current slump. Wharton said. Wharton said inflation has eaten up much of the University's ability to save money. For example, savings in fuel conservation are being eaten up by soaring coal prices, and new state safety standards are adding costs. Increasing costs and lack of fuel have forced both the University of Maine and the University of Massachusetts to shorten their terms by extending Christmas vacation. Some state officials believe that for MSU an appropriations recall or cutback may not happen. However, they doubt that any new programs will be funded. This could endanger funding for MSU's proposed law school.

The prospects of a recession have recently compelled MSU administrators to make contingency plans - some of which they will not comment on. The freeze on hiring into the tenure stream, ordered Dec. 6, is the first of those plans to be put into effect. The action is intended to protect current MSU tenured employes from losing their jobs. The slumping economy has forced the University of Wisconsin to lay off 70 tenured faculty this June.

Grand Rapids fetes favorite Ford

By R.D. CAMPBELL State News Staff Writer

GRAND RAPIDS - A stranger ndering into this town Thursday might e thought that the wicked king had and a new prince child had been born ave the masses. But it was really just the triumphal irn of Vice President Gerald R. Ford to hometown to be hailed as a hero by his constituents - his first visit since his Iguration in early December. Grand Rapids city fathers and the Kent unty Board of Commissioners had jointly declared Jan. 17 as "Jerry Ford

Ford arrived in Grand Rapids late Wednesday and was greeted by a small but exuberant crowd. He said hello to those he recognized and asked Wyoming Mayor Thomas Eardley how things were in Grandville. Both cities are suburbs of Grand Rapids.

He awoke to the daylight saving darkness early Thursday morning and at 8 a.m. visited Dr. G. Renton Wrosfold, who reported that the new vice president has fine teeth.

Next stop along the hero trail was an hour - long visit to South Middle School, formerly South High School, where Ford in the late '20s had played football before going on to star at the University of

Ford, 63, recalled how he became a center: it seems that after the coach had selected the first four teams when Ford was a freshman, he looked over the remaining boys, including Ford, and shook

"What position you play, Ford?" "I dunno."

"You're a center."

The audience at this whistlestop was mostly the faculty and black students of this inner city school.

Several presentations were made to Ford by student congress members, including a varsity letter, a copy of the 1931 South High yearbook and a portrait of himself that the balding Ford admitted had too much hair.

Ford's motorcade then sped to the downtown press club where Ford held a 35 - minute press conference. He reiterated comments from a Monday speech saying that the AFL - CIO and the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) "have run a well financed, skillfully planned program to impeach the president.'

"This group ought to be exposed," Ford said. "They're trying to convince Congress to impeach without the necessary facts."

If the impeachment sought by these groups was effected, a reporter asked, might it not mean only miniscule changes in executive policy? Ford replied that he was not expecting to change jobs. Ford said that if groups like the ADA, which he described as "on the extreme left of the political spectrum," are successful then they would have achieved a victory for liberal government that Ford said would be harmful.

After the conference the veep's entourage headed for a prayer luncheon at the . Civic Auditorium sponsored by a gospel films corporation. The feature was a testimonial from Norm Evans, all - pro tackle for the Miami Dolphins, who talked about getting smeared by Bubba Smith and seeing the Lord Jesus Christ 71/2 years

Delay foreseen until rail council begins preparing new depot site

By SUSAN BURZYNSKI State News Staff Writer

At least another month will pass before the new Capitol Area Rail Council begins its duties of preparing a new Amtrak station site for the greater Lansing area which will begin operating in Bylaws for the new rail council were adopted Wednesday night at a 31/2 hour meeting of the Capitol Area Council of Governments, an advisory body which recommended the proposed 4,000 - square - foot Trowbridge Road site as the new station's location.

The rail council will consist of five members from Lansing, three from Ingham County, two from East Lansing and three from the advisory council.

The rail council will approve the new site and prepare it for operation. If the Trowbridge Road site is accepted, it will need a temporary shelter for passengers, a paved parking lot and a maintenance person.

David Hollister, chairman of the Ingham County Board of Commissioners, said he expects the rail council to approve the Trowbridge Road site without any trouble. Comments from other council members seemed to verify Hollister's statement.

Assuming the five Lansing members of the rail council would oppose the site and the five Ingham County and East Lansing members would approve it, at least two of the advisory council's three votes would be needed for approval.

John Patriarche, chairman of the advisory council, said its representatives will be appointed at a special Feb. 13 meeting. He said he hoped the other governments would have their appointments made by then.

Patriarche, who is also East Lansing's city manager, said the two East Lansing representatives to the council will be appointed by the East Lansing City Council within 30 to 45 days.

Hollister said he hoped the three Ingham County representatives could be appointed by March, but he said a lot of considerations are involved in the appointments. "Every time you get into appointments, it takes time," Hollister said. He said some of the considerations would be geographical residence, sex, ethnic backgrounds and minority

Russ Thornton, representing Delhi Township on the advisory council, said he wanted to be sure townships were represented on the rail council.

An amendment to the bylaws was added which could increase the rail council's membership if a township provided financial assistance to the project.

In selecting the Trowbridge Road site for its recommendation, the advisory council was presented with facts and figures about the two proposed sites- Trowbridge Road and the Depot Restaurant on Washington Avenue in Lansing- by an Amtrak committee composed of George Griffiths, East Lansing councilman, Terry McKane, Lansing councilman, and Hollister.

The council also took a one - hour bus tour of the two sites. Though the Amtrak committee did not make a specific recommendation to the council, Griffiths and Hollister both spoke in favor of the Trowbridge Road site.

The Trowbridge Road site, which would cost about $35,000 for the first year's operation, would be more convenient on a long · term basis, Hollister said. Depot restaurant owner Vincent Malcangi, who had originally offered the site free of charge, ended up asking $31,000 for the first year of its operation. Griffiths, who voted in favor of the Trowbridge Road site, said he thought the cost figure of the Depot site was too high.

Patriarche, who also voted for Trowbridge, said the parking situation at the Depot site was too spread out to be policed well. He also said the restaurant would not hold 75 to 150 passengers with luggage comfortably.

The Trowbridge Road site provided more room for long - term expansion, is more convenient for students and is convenient because of the proximity to the highway interchange, Patriarche

The council voted 11-2 to recommend the Trowbridge Road site to the rail council. Lucille Belen and Terry McKane, the Lansing representatives to the 13 - member council, opposed the

President hit with new subpena

President Nixon was subpensed by Common Cause Thursday and ordered to produce documents relating to fund raising and political activity of his 1972 re election campaign.

"This is not a suit between branches of government, and we are seeking political documents, not governmental documents," Common Cause lawyer Kenneth Guido said. "Therefore, there can be no claim of executive privilege."

The White House had no immediate comment on the latest subpena.

In other developments:

• Secret Service record keeping came into question Thursday at a court hearing on the Watergate tape gap. Raymond C. Zumwalt, a Secret Service technician, admitted that his records on who had received and

Statistics indicate '74 recession

The United States economy may be on the brink of the Nixon administration's second recession, government statistics indicated Thursday.

Economic growth slowed to the lowest growth rate in three years, 1.3 per cent, while the inflation rate surged to 7.9 per cent, its fastest pace in 22 years, the Commerce Dept. reported.

Most economists expect real Gross National Product to decline in the current quarter, and many also expect a further drop in the second and perhaps third quarters. A recession occurs when there is a decline in real GNP for two consecutive quarters.

State of Union message slated

President Nixon will personally deliver the State of the Union message to Congress at 12:30 p.m. Jan. 29.

Nixon's appearance at the joint Senate - House session will be broadcast on television and radio.

Nixon will submit his budget message to Congress on Jan. 30 and his economic message on Jan. 31, congressional sources said.

Skylab gets OK for another week convocation.

After experts reviewed the health of the Skylab 3 crew and the condition of the spacecraft Thursday, the astronauts got a go - ahead to continue their marathon mission for at least another week.

Astronauts Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson were cleared to stay in space through at least Thursday in the second of a weekly high - level evaluation of the record space mission.

Officials are making decisions on whether to continue a week at a time for the last month of the 84 - day mission. Carr. Pogue and Gibson are now in a medically unknown area because men have never before been subjected to the deconditioning effects of space for such a long time.

Fullback, pot lost in plane crash

Success seemed certain for Duane Doel in 1970 when University of Florida football coach Doug Dickey called him his No. 1 fullback.

But things just seemed to go downhill after that. Doel flunked out of the university and enrolled in a junior college to become eligible to play football again, but the coaches never heard from him.

Doel died Monday in the crash of an airplane loaded with two tons of marijuana.

The crash is being investigated by federal narcotics and aviation officials. Another plane with a ton of pot aboard crashed near the Gulf Coast last week.

Cambodia may request bombing

The Lon Nol government in Cambodia is about to ask the United States to resume bombing of insurgent forces, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the ousted Cambodian government chief, told Senate leaders.

Sihanouk appealed to Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D - Mont., and Sen. William Fulbright, D -

Ark., to let Cambodians manage their own affairs. Sihanouk described himself, in a radiogram made public Thursday by Mansfield, as president of the Cambodian National Front, which he said is conducting the current offensive against Lon Nol government forces.

Philippines seen as Vietnam

By JOHN TINGWALL State News Staff Writer

Is another Vietnam brewing in Southeast Asia? According to Raul Manglapus, leader of the Movement for a Free Philippines, the answer is yes. In an interview with the State News Thursday, Mangiapus said that since a declaration of martial law in September 1972, by Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos. the chances of political chaos and U.S. intervention in the Philippines are "real."

Manglapus, on a speaking tour of the United States to gain publicity and support for his movement, is attempting to gain enough influence to pressure Congress into withholding American military and economic aid to the Philippines.

He is also seeking release of all political prisoners there.

Manglapus will speak at 11 a.m. today in the Con Con Room of the International Center.

A former Filipino presidential candidate, senator and member of a 1970 constitutional convention when exiled by Marcos, Manglapus is now a visiting professor at Cornell University. "The United States should

Council asked to extend hours of city bus service

By LINDA SANDEL State News Staff Writer

East Lansing's Mass Transit Committee Wednesday night asked the city council to formally seek extensions of the new city bus service, which the Capitol Area Transit Authority (CATA) operates in the city.

The committee recommended that the council seek extension of weekday service from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. In addition, the transit body asked the council to consider seeking the addition of a 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday service along the new routes. Arnold Stieber, representative of CATA, told the committee he did not think extension of the weekday service would pose problems that CATA cannot solve.

Stieber added, however, that the addition of weekend service might be harder to come by, because it would involve contract renegotiations to provide drivers for the service. CATA drivers currently work a five - day week.

Stieber said he would inform CATA of the city's proposals

Various officials have noticed the overload difficulties on the Burcham -Hagadorn and North Harrison routes, particularly at times when school students along the routes board the buses in the morning and afternoon. Ridership figures for the new routes continue to climb. Stonebraker said total ridership averaged 1,838 passengers last week. The Burcham - Hagadorn route continued to draw the most passengers of the three runs, averaging 793 riders per day or 43 per cent of total ridership.

> The North Harrison route averaged 643 passengers per day, or 35 per cent of total ridership. The South Harrison route averaged 403 passengers per day, or 22 per cent of total

He could not pinpoint the exact figures without knowing what amount CATA needs to run the buses per mile.

Kalamazoo Street bridge project neither welcome nor warranted

The controversial Kalamazoo Street project has been revised to avoid rechanneling the Red Cedar River, but many people remain unsatisfied with the proposal. It is questionable whether the project is even necessary.

The project's original intent was to ease future traffic tie - ups, but the East Lansing Traffic Commission found no traffic - related reason to widen Kalamazoo Street.

Replacement of the old bridge was intended to aid the flow of the river under the bridge and to avoid flooding. But some local residents have said that the river does not flood that often, and, even when it does, it usually covers a low spot in the street several hundred feet east of the bridge, not the bridge itself.

The solution to the yearly street closing because of flooding - and the only real need for any construction on Kalamazoo Street - would be to raise the grade of the street.

The viability of the project is becoming more remote at each public meeting. No one seems to be opposed to a new bridge, but there does not appear to be much public support for widening Kalamazoo Street from two to four lanes.

So, as the plans for the project become more publicly acceptable, the closer the plans come to really doing nothing at all.

Last summer's Michigan Avenue - Harrison Road intersection controversy set the stage for the Kalamazoo Street project. The county found that it was not prepared to meet public opposition to the Kalamazoo Street plans, much as the City of East Lansing was not prepared for the outcry over Michigan Avenue and Harrison Road.

The East Lansing Traffic Commission and the Environmental Quality and Aesthetics Task Force have recommended that the East Lansing City Council reject the Kalamazoo Street project. The planning commission deadlocked 4 - 4 over a motion to support the revised

Perhaps the county should find other projects for roadway improvement. Critics of any proposed Kalamazoo Street construction efforts have instead suggested that a project to improve the Harrison Road railroad track intersection near Trowbridge Road should be undertaken.

It does not appear that widening Kalamazoo Street and replacing the bridge over the Red Cedar River is that important. More importantly, it seems that the public does not want these improvements.

The Ingham County Road Commission should find other projects since improvement of Kalamazoo Street is neither welcome nor warranted.

Due to erratic boundaries between East Lansing and Meridian Township, students living in Akers, Hubbard, Holmes, McDonel and Owen halls are either residents and voters of East Lansing or Meridian Township. Residency often depends on which side of the room a student sleeps.

In Akers Hall, the west wing is in East Lansing, the east wing in Meridian Township. In Hubbard Hall, the hall is divided by rooms. In McDonel and Owen halls, the boundary splits individual rooms. Holmes Hall is divided down the center of the hallway.

Nonreturnable bottles expensive By ROSS DE MERITT responsible for throwaways attempt to

From many standpoints, the Jan. 9 article on the new antithrowaway bottle legislation is misleading. While the writer produces a scare when he maintains that the price of beer may go up 50 per cent, he neglects to mention that this price increase is only due to a refundable deposit. Therefore claims of rising prices are unfounded and in fact are directly contrary to truth due to the fact that repeated studies have shown that per fluid ounce returnable bottles are cheaper than their nonreturnable counterparts.

Through an intensive advertising campaign, the industries which are show the consumer the ease and environmental "goodness" of their new recycling programs. What they fail to mention is that economically and in energy consumption their recycling programs are a flop.

It will always take less energy and money to sanitize a returnable bottle (with an average national return rate of 15 times per bottle) than to remelt glass or aluminum which has to be collected. sorted and transported to and from the now necessitated recycling centers.

A few additional facts may be enlightening:

 Employment in bottling and beverage processing industries has dropped considerably, coinciding with their introduction of nonreturnable containers.

• Each nonreturnable bottle or can costs the consumer 31/2 - 4 cents to make. Nationwide, Americans pay between $700 million to $1.5 billion for the luxury of throwing away their nonreturnables, not including disposal and litter costs. Throwaways make up 20 - 50 per cent of all garbage. Reducing this percentage would produce a corresponding reduction in collection and disposal site costs.

• It costs the state 37 cents for every bottle or can picked up on the highways.

For myself and other consumers who wish to pay for contents and not the container, I urge you to write in support of the new antithrowaway bill, sponsored by Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D - East Lansing, now before the Consumer Affairs and Agriculture Committee.

Write to: Rep. Frank Wierbiciki, Chairman of the Consumer Affairs and Agriculture Committee, Capitol, Lansing, Mich. 48933.

Access to evaluations provides benefits to students, instructors

By JAMES B. RAYMOND

Recently there has been discussion on whether results of the Student Instructional Rating Survey (SIRS) should be made available to students.

The benefits of student access are two fold: 1) to improve quality of education and 2) to provide students with a consumers guide. Such a system is presently in operation at a number of universities.

It would provide a valuable tool for students attempting to select from among the hundreds of courses available. It could serve to direct students to strong courses and guide them from weak ones. Such a procedure tends to improve the general quality of instruction at a university.

It must be noted that most professors receive an average or slightly above average rating. Therefore, the main function is not to label an instructor "good" or "bad," rather, it is to describe differences between instructors and their classes. Indeed, all available evidence indicates that classroom effectiveness depends on the vagaries of student emotions, academic interest and

Role of special prosecutor could impede impeachment

By ANTHONY LEWIS New York Times

BOSTON - By his performance as the Watergate special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski has quieted early questions about his ability to be independent from the President who appointed him. He has held together the staff picked by Archibald Cox; he has pressed the investigations; he has kept his distance - and his freedom from the White House.

All that must be acknowledged as preface to consideration of the important statement that Jaworski has just made. He said that he could "see no way at the present time" to make material obtained from the White House available to the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry.

There is no doubt of Jaworski's good faith in reaching that position. He had obtained presidential documents and tapes by asking on behalf of grand juries and he was therefore bound by personal honor and the rules of grand jury secrecy not to disclose them elsewhere.

Nevertheless, it must be recognized that the view he indicates raises extremely serious problems for the impeachment inquiry. Indeed, the unintended result just could be to immunize President Nixon from any effective retribution for wrongdoing.

Consider the burden placed on the House Committee's impeachment staff, headed by John Doar. The exceedingly skilled lawyers of the special prosecutor's office have worked for six months on all the threads of evidence, and they are just about ready to ask the grand juries for major indictments. If Doar and his colleagues have to start at ground zero now, they would face an enormous task in trying to collect the evidence afresh.

Of course there is a mass of material available apart from what the special prosecutor has gotten from the White House. And there are numerous possible grounds for impeachment that rest on published facts, for example Nixon's 1970 approval of a secret security plan authorizing the use of illegal wiretaps and burglaries.

But for sound political as well as legal reasons the House committee will surely be intent on exploring the leads closest to the President - any evidence linking him personally with the crimes of Watergate and the cover - up. The committee will be looking for public support; and much of the public, for all its disbelief in Nixon, has indicated a reluctance to undertake impeachment without some showing of direct criminality.

This dilemma presents an ironic situation. Congress originally insisted on a special prosecutor for Watergate because of the possibility that the President might be involved. Yet the special prosecutor work may now turn out inadvertently have obstructed the process established the Constitution to correct president

Fortunately, the situation is not from Jaworski has expressed the desire! cooperate with the House inquiry as in he can. And there is room for compro and adjustment.

For one thing, grand jury secrecy is an absolute in our law. Judges can rele the minutes of grand jury proceeding a variety of reasons. Federal testimony communicated to state prosecula defendants may have claims on it, and forth. The ethical and legal restraints Jaworski feels apply to him as prosed would not be the same in relation to be John Sirica, and Jaworski could set ruling from him.

The point is that judge and prosecula and all concerned have obligations to larger public interest, to Congress, to country, to the constitutional process impeachment. It would be extraordinant the fact that evidence had been before grand jury stood in the way of impeachment proceeding. The public likely to understand that, and to see in dilemma another, if unwitting, cover.

Kalamazoo analysis good

Congratulations to Chris Danielson for his analysis of the city planning commission's hearing on the Kalamazoo Street improvement proposal (Friday, Jan. 11, page 18.)

Few in the reporting and writing field in these times have exhibited the ability to perceive the central issues as well as this member of your staff.

Very perceptive is the reduction of the overall situation to "the two major questions" and the " . . . contradictory observations and statistics in support of their views which cancel each other out." I cite one regrettable circumstance. As a member of the East Lansing Environmental Quality and Aesthetics Task Force, I have heard a parade of persons of unquestionable expertise test on several natural resource subjects.

Some become so enraptured in the commendable fervor for the topic they, without recognizing it, transport their technical position to cover of fields of knowledge. Thus, a well triple expert in ornithology, for example, also expound topics of traffic flow, to shortage problems and world politic areas in which he usually has no scientific training or expertise. The decision maker who fails perceive or refuses to acknowledge grotesque transposition of expertise not be in a position of responsibility.

Reps look through a bottle darkly: to ban or not to ban nonreturnables

By CHRIS DANIELSON State News Staff Writer

Labor leaders, women's club presidents, MSU students and a concerned fourth grader were among a parade of 36 speakers who argued for and against a proposed ban on nonreturnable beverage containers during a three - hour public hearing in the House of Representatives chambers at the Capitol Wednesday night.

Opinions on the bill were split almost evenly. The 20 speakers favoring it contended that the ban was necessary to save energy and reduce the state's litter and solid waste disposal problems.

On the other hand, the 16 opponents of the bill - six labor representatives, six beverage industry officials, three people in the packaging and bottle industry and one food dealer representative - claimed the nonreturnable ban would eliminate jobs in a time of rising unemployment, unfairly handicap the beverage industry and fail to solve litter and waste disposal problems.

The hearing was the second of three to be held this month on the bill, which was introduced by Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D -East Lansing, and co - sponsored by 16 other representatives.

Following the hearing, Jondahl said the decision of the Committee on Consumers and Agriculture on the fate of the bill could come by mid - February if the remaining major informational questions have been answered by them.

The key areas of conflicting testimony were the economic effects of the bill and the question of whether a similar bill passed in Oregon in 1971 has really succeeded in solving any problems.

Though nonreturnable bans have been introduced in the House in each of the last seven years, they have never been voted out of

However, the presence of 30 House members and several hundred citizens at Wednesday's hearing indicates that interest in such a bill has increased due to the energy crisis and growing waste disposal problems.

Jondahl's bill would establish 5 to 10 cent deposits on all sealed carbonated and alcholic beverage containers, and is intended to promote the proliferation of reusable bottles.

"If bottles last forever, our business will go down," Gary Wilmore, representing 650 Glass and Bottleblowers Assn. members, said.

"Whenever legislation like this is passed, the working people suffer," he said.

"The ban would mean no jobs for 150 people at our plant," Michael Grant, United Steelworkers Local 74013, said. Passage of the ban is expected to sharply reduce the number of beverage cans on the market.

"At a time like this we should be considering ways to keep Michigan plants running," one glass manufacturer told the committee.

However, Dennis Briscoe, MSU graduate student representing the Mackinaw chapter of the Sierra Club, noted that U.S. Dept. of Commerce figures show the advent of nonreturnable containers had cost beverage industry workers 20,000 to 30,000 jobs due to cutbacks in handling and transportation and because of consolidation of small companies.

Rep. Frank Wierzbicki, D - Detroit and consumers committee chairman, said if forthcoming evidence shows the number of jobs created by the bill would be greater than the number lost, the chances of the bill being passed would be enhanced.

Proponents of the ban bill cited reasons ranging from preservation of Michigan's beauty to lower consumer costs as cause for their support.

MSU freshman Connie Filipovitch, 152 N. Case Hall, released figures from a recent PIRGIM survey showing that the consumer saved an average of 32 cents on an eight - pack of returnable pop bottles once the refundable deposit was subtracted from the purchase price.

Alex Sagady, director of the Michigan Student Environmental Federation, said a nationwide nonreturnable ban would save the equivalent of 24 million gallons of home heating oil annually.

John Veenstra, D - East Lansing, Ingham County Commissioner, noted that the commissioners unanimously supported the bill because it would reduce litter

However, one opponent of the bill expressed fears that kids would root around in neighborhood trash cans for returnables and create highway traffic hazards in their searches.

A top official of the Michigan Education Assn. (MEA), a union resenting 80,000 teachers, questioned the validity of the state nt of Public Instruction's accountability program and its licability to minority students Thursday.

Under the program, now in its fourth year, students in grades 1 ough 12 in public schools are tested to assess their ievement according to whether they have learned certain ls. In the former method, they were compared with the rage student. Teachers have opposed the program because they feel it has been adequately evaluated. They also fear that they will be held ly responsible for the failure of a child and that the tests given students are not free of cultural influences.

lerman Coleman, MEA executive secretary, in a debate before MSU chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, said teachers are concerned that the state is planning a testing program in nine subjects at five grade levels before urrent program has been carefully evaluated.

nil Kearney, asst. superintendent of public instruction, said state is doing area testing of the assessment program, but the effects of the program on overall state education are not

MEA thought it was an experimental program, but it expects. the instruction department to expand the program next fall and the MEA feels this is premature, Coleman said.

He stressed that MEA does not oppose teacher accountability; however, it does intend to foster changes in the state's approach to accountability.

"Because heretofore the curricula of our schools and the assessment processes employed have not been sensitive to the dignity and worth of all human beings, and to a great extent have invalidated the worth of highly visible ethnic groups, I must inquire as to the credibility of the state assessment program," Coleman said.

He asked if the program had been planned to represent the cultural diversity among students, and if educators and special agencies representing minorities had been asked for sufficient input into the program or had evaluated it for ethnic bias. Kearney cited educators and state department staff who represented minorities and had helped develop the testing program, but said he realized that it would be naive to expect that the tests are free from cultural influences.

MEA and the National Education Assn. have commissioned a three - member panel of educational experts to conduct an evaluation of the assessment - accountability plan. They expect the study to be completed in March.

Unit may oversee preparation of dossiers

Graduate chairmen from 10 departments in the College of Arts and Letters voted unanimously Wednesday to recommend formation of a committee to oversee operations of the MSU Placement Services in preparing and sending dossiers of their graduate students.

The action came in response to complaints from several departments that dossiers, mailed by Placement Services in behalf of their doctoral candidates, had been disorganized or unreadable. A typical dossier includes a general resume of business and educational experience together with recommendation letters from faculty members.

Charles McCracken, chairman of graduate studies in the Dept. of Philosophy, said the recommendation would be presented to the University Graduate Council at its February meeting. Jack Shingleton, director of the Placement Services, acknowledged that some dossiers sent out in behalf of doctoral candidates had been poorly reproduced or put together badly.

"In all honesty, we've had some problems because of the tremendous volume of requests for dossiers," he said. "The quality of our reproduction equipment is not of the highest order either," he admitted.

Shingleton said that copies of recommendation letters had been reduced in size in the past to save copying costs, but that this practice had been stopped after receipt of a complaint from one of the academic departments in November. He said that his office would be happy to work with an academic committee if the University Graduate Council approves

The Placement Services also is creating a new, special dossier for MSU doctoral candidates, to meet some of the complaints made by the academic departments, Shingleton said.

James H. Pickering, acting chairman of the Dept. of English, said the new streamlined form "will go a long way toward solving some of the problems we've been encountering with the previous Pickering said he reviewed Placement Services dossiers of 12 current MSU Ph.D. candidates in English after another English department told him it had received a nearly unreadable dossier for one of the candidates.

"Four of the 12 I reviewed were unacceptable," he said. "The quality of reproduction made some of them almost illegible. One recommendation letter had a white swath running through it."

Pickering said some of the other recommendation letters had been reduced in size by one half. "We couldn't expect anyone to read these miniaturized copies," he said.

William J. Brazill, graduate adviser in the Dept. of History, said a similar problem had been reported to him by a history department which received a Placement Services dossier for a Ph.D. candidate in his department.

"There's a great rush to send these dossiers out. Inevitably, regrettably, there are going to be mistakes," Brazill said. "In the past, mistakes were not as crucial," he added. "But in this difficult job market for Ph.D candidates, we have to do everything possible to give our candidates an equal chance."

Brazill also noted that the standard Placement Services resume form, which heads the dossier, "is not exactly appropriate for jobs in higher education.'

He said that Placement Services had agreed to omit some of the unnecessary information from a new form for candidates for teaching positions.

Setup of energy unit discussed by officials

Leaders of governments in the tri -, county area, which is a mixture of rural and urban backgrounds, put their best intentions forward this week at a press briefing on the energy crisis that apparently caught some of them unaware.

County Commissioners from Ingham, Clinton and Eaton counties and mayors' representatives from Lansing and East Lansing discussed, for the first time Wednesday, the formation of a committee to study the energy situation in the area and possibly to form cooperative solutions at a meeting at the Tri -County Regional Planning Commission headquarters in Lansing.

Almond B. Cressman, commissioner of predominantly rural Clinton County, said he had a fertilizer crisis instead of a fuel crisis and asserted his intent to continue driving his Oldsmobile at whatever speed he wants. He also said a committee of various leaders could work out solutions to the energy crisis that would benefit everybody in the tri - county area.

All the officials agreed that transportation, particularly from the outlying areas to Lansing, would demand cooperation among the government units and private business.

"We'll have to move ahead with or without federal help," David Hollister, chairman of the Ingham County Board of Commissioners, said. "We can't wait for them to tell us what our

'Super unit' set for nursery use

An innovative classroom structure arrived in the Lansing area Thursday on the back of a truck.

Michael Hudson, Director of the Community Child Care Development Assn., said the 30 - by 60 - foot transportable "super unit" was trucked in from Elkhart, Ind.; where it was built. The structure was hoisted on to its permanent foundations adjacent to the Humpty Dumpty Nursery at 1321 W. Kalamazoo St., Lansing.

"This unit is especially built for our purposes of education. The unit will contain a piano, kitchenette, science tables and a special tutoring section, Hudson said. Gene Ruffin and his wife, operators of the Humpty Dumpty Nursery, will coordinate the functions of this unit, Hudson said.

The association, an outgrowth of the Lansing Model Cities Program, had requested funding for the project from Model Cities two years ago, but it did not receive any until six months ago,

The structure will be used to hold children of preschool and school age primarily enrolled in the association's Latchkey program. The Latchkey program originated to aid working mothers and mothers who are not at home when their - children return from school. A key to the child's

Group plans programs to better minority affairs

The Black Faculty and Administrators Assn. revealed plans Thursday for positive action programs to improve University minority affairs, according to James Howard, the association president.

Howard, who is also professor of osteopathic medicine, said, "In order for an organization to be truly effective, it must, by design, attain goals and have some working set of objectives to achieve maximum effectiveness. Our program committee is presently busy at this chore.

"Our organization tries to provide, to some degree, aid in student counseling and at the same time provide a service to the community by improving the Black experiences both on and off campus," Howard said.

Howard believes the association of black faculty and administrators on campus can enhance the MSU affirmative action program by adding their "expertise" in the

Vaughn contests law that forbids reps' running in special elections

By MAUREEN McDONALD State News Staff Writer

State Rep. Jackie Vaughn, D Detroit, said he is combating discrimination against Michigan House of Representative members by contesting a law which prohibits representatives from running for state offices in special elections.

Quite a few House members would like to warm Senate seats, said Vaughn, who would like to seek the now vacant Senate seat of Detroit Mayor Coleman Young. However, the state Constitution forbids any legislator from receiving any "civil appointment in this state" during the term for which he was elected.

Vaughn prides himself on being the only legislator to file suit in Michigan Supreme Court to reverse the prohibition. He notes that Young successfully pleaded before the high court that a legislator could run for a city office while continuing to serve in a state position.

Legislators can also run for congressional posts in special elections, such as State Rep. J. Bob Traxler, D - Bay City, and State Sen. Robert VanderLaan. R - Kentwood, are presently Evidence in the files of the Federal ower Commission (FPC) indicates that ome natural gas producers in the United ates have tried to buy up available serves, intending to keep the gas off the arket and await higher prices.

At an otherwise routine rate hearing veral months ago, an independent gas roducer testified that he had been proached by a number of other ompanies that sought to buy his reserves hold in the ground.

The producer, Douglas L. Bendell of ichita, Kan., told the FPC that the other oducers, some of them major oil mpanies, had said they were willing to gamble that if they held off producing the gas for several years it would be worth a great deal more money.

Bendell, an executive of the Okmar Oil Co., did not disclose the names of the other producers to the FPC and declined to do so when contacted by telephone at his Wichita office.

Bendell said he went before the FPC last July because he wanted to sell his gas to an interstate pipeline at the rate of 49 cents per thousand cubic feet, more than twice the ceiling price of 21 cents set by Bendell's request for a rate increase was subsequently denied as excessive.

During the hearing Bendell was asked by a hearing examiner what he would do with his gas if his application were denied. Bendell responded that he might try to sell it in the intrastate market where prices are not regulated or "leave the gas in the ground and not sell it to anyone."

An official in the FPC said that to his knowledge no one else had offered the commission testimony as strong as Bendell's. But, he added, there have been a number of cases in which gas producers threatened to hold off production if the FPC did not grant them a rate increase.

"I know of one major case where a witness testified that if the rate increase were not granted, his company would just hold onto its gas for at least two years, until the then - current area rate system expired," the FPC official said.

He also said that in those cases he believed the companies were trying to make as much profit as they could.

County still fighting DNR's fears of Delhi landfill site contamination

By CHRIS DANIELSON State News Staff Writer

The searches of Diogenes for an honest man, the alchemists for gold and the Scots for a Loch Ness monster may soon be rivaled by Ingham County's hunt for a sanitary landfill site. Over the past two years, several townships have balked at tentative sites - rejecting proposals on the nobody - wants - a andfill - in - their - backyard principle - and a prospective site in Delhi Township has run into a lot of flak because it is near Lansing's future water supply.

A working session of the county Board of Public Works was to be held Thursday night to decide if the county should apply for a landfili permit for all or part of the proposed site, look for additional sites or drop the search altogether, Derwood Boyd, vice - chairman of the board, said Thursday.

Fears of the possible groundwater contamination were amplified during a recent meeting between the county board and officials of the Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources (DNR).

William Walden, DNR geologist, said any landfill on the western Delhi Township site could contaminate groundwater unless $200,000 was spent for engineering improvements. The DNR is responsible for advising the state Public Health

Dept. on such contamination possibilities before the health department decides whether to issue a permit.

Walden implied that the present county proposal would be rejected unless the expensive modifications were made, a prospect which several board members deemed unlikely.

"The DNR reasoning about possible contamination is quite hypothetical," Boyd said.

The Delhi Township location is a good site that we can obtain for a fair price and eventually transform into a beautiful park or Frank - n - Stein's is a versatile bar just west of campus on 220 S. Howard Street, between Michigan Avenue and Kalamazoo Street. Because of its wide - ranging list of entertainment, nice interior and no cover charge, the place has a steadily growing flow of customers.

However, most of MSU is unaware of the place, though it is a block closer to campus than the popular MAC's on Michigan Avenue. Drawing Frank - n - Stein's still closer to the University is a band called the Bluegrass Extension Service which plays on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

instructors in engineering, mathematics and anthropology, the five - man group has been playing the bar garnered quite a following.

mandolin," said banjo picker Erik "Billy" Goodman.

"Except for Bob, we've all got our doctorates, but most of all, we just like playing together and leaving the school behind for a few nights a week. When we stop enjoying the music or the grind of playing two nights a week in this bar, then I guess we'll stop. But right now we're pretty pleased with the way things are going.'

Though Bob is the only non - numbers man in the group he is the token member from the Anthropology Dept. - he is a dominant force, with his smooth guitar and high pitched voice. The other group members are Chuck (Farley) Comprised of MSU MacCluer on fast fiddle, Jim Bateman on stand - up bass and Ron (Doc) Rosenberg on guitar and back - up puns.

"Doc" is the resident wit of for over a year and has the group while Farley and Bob try to tame his humor "We've been playing with straight - man funnies. On together for about two years and off the stage, the Bluegrass with Bob Mainfort our newest Extension Service blends nicely addition on lead guitar and and fits in with all the requests.

Almost as entertaining are the audience members who jig, strut and reel on the dance floor, with Farley always picking up the tempo on his singing fiddle.

Friday and Saturday are Polka nights, at Frank - n -Stein's, with all ages partaking in the Polish wedding at mosphere. A barrage of accordion blasts and clarinet whines fill the dance floor with well - dressed couples of the non - blue jean set. Everything is there but the Bunny Hop and a sickly groom. On Fridays the Leo Balcer trio featuring Doris Zuolkowski entertains, and Saturday brings the winsome sounds of Bohemian night and Walt Praski. However, the most outrageous days of the week fall on Mondays and Wednesdays when Sudden Sam Spiegel hosts the trivia nights. Spiegel is an MSU graduate student in American Studies, begins the next question, which could cover the movies, sports, geography, horticulture, music or anything.

But usually before he can get through the question, he has been drowned out by the screams and maddening answers from the Frank - n -Stein crowd. Most of the questions are answered in this fashion by super brains that lav sulking after their Double Jeopardy defeats that afternoon. Professors grab their temples and try to drain out answers; almost everyone in the bar is an expert at something. But the scream that answers first, wins. And the prize is a wooden nickel that chops the price of a beer in Speigel relishes his fans delirium, and actually his questions are pretty good. The answer is always on the tip of the tongue, yet just out of reach. Supposedly, Speigel rarely does anything but read books and drink his way through Trivia Nights. Talking to the man between breaks is like talking to an old Bennet Cerf book of riddles that never got published. Running fast - paced from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. on both nights, the crowd becomes a blur, reined tightly by the lordly Spiegel. "Who were the three brothers in the original Beau Geste?" he cries. He chuckles when everyone can only remember Gary Cooper and Ray Milland and forget Robert Preston. Spiegel has a good time and so does the audience.

That's what counts at Frank n - Stein's.

Repeated playings bring out Yes' best

By DAVE DI MARTINO State News Reviewer

"Tales from Topographic Oceans" is the culmination of five months of hard work by Yes. It sounds as if it took that long. This, the newest Yes album, is a monster!

First impressions: There is too much going on in this record, too much for ears to receive and brains to translate into meaning. It is a total assault on the senses.

Second impressions: So what? Sure it is tightly arranged. So what if it is a philosophical statement on part of the group? What does it mean to me? Nothing! So what?

Third impressions: It is going to take a long time to like this record, but when I do, look out. As was said, this record is a monster. As a two record set, it is a highly complex musical work that takes several listenings, at least, to even begin to appreciate. You could see it coming. "Close to the Edge," the last Yes album (not including their live set, "Yessongs" which contained strictly older material) was almost this difficult at first, but there was a difference. It genuinely seemed to maintain a "so what" reaction from listeners. It was beautiful, and the arrangements were extremely tasteful and innovative, but generally it gave the impression that the group was including all those chord changes simply because there was no reason not to. They are tremendous musicians, so why not display their talents flash after flash on the album, they seemed to say. Thus, "Close to the Edge" suffered, simply because it was an untouchable album. Who could honestly criticize it? The only valid criticism of any use would have to be the standard - "It is boring."

But it was not boring - only somewhat inaccessible.

The new album has shown that the Yes knows its capabilities. It has also shown that the group has matured considerably as a musical unit, so there is no need for the group to constantly show their abilities. Therein lies the difference.

Jon Anderson, lead vocalist, and guitarist Steve Howe, were responsible for most of "Tales." Anderson's liner notes reveal much about the making of the album, but it is n clear what the song titles mean. Why were title such as, "The Revealing Science of God," "The Remembering," "The Ancient," "Ritual" ar "Giants Under the Sun" used in "Tales"?

Anderson reveals that the inspiration for the album came to him in this form: "Leafing through Paramhansa Yoganda's 'Autobiograph of a Yogi,' I got caught up in the length, footnote on page 83." So that explains it. The four sides of the record are based on ancient Shastric scriptures from India, respective Shrutis, Suritis, Puranas and Tantras. No wond these guys are vegetarians.

No matter. Each of the four sides a emphasizes the musical prowess of each gou member. Steve Howe definitely stands on throughout the recording as the pivotal musica around which all the other group members plan He is truly superb.

Rick Wakeman is, surprisingly, in the background for most of "Tales," which somewhat of a disappointment. Perhaps this related to the fact that he will soon release he second solo album. It will be based on like Verne's "Journey to the Center of the Earth" Apparently, it will be extremely organic. Loo for it on A&M Records.

Incidently, vocalist Jon Anderson is preparing his own solo album, as is bass player and vocals Chris Squire. A talented band can do the Yes is more than talented. The group incredible. "Tales from Topographic Oceans" the best work since the likes of "Roundabout" on "Fragile." There is a return to melody something the group had apparently taken graphing to cover up with stray multitracked noise and the like. That is why the album is w interesting. It is certainly accessible, but on after several intense listenings.

The benefits of holding steadfast through the initial confusion and grasping at small family melodies or lyrics are obvious. The ablum is

The Residence Hall Assn. (RHA) will be presenting four films

Wealth of good films playing around town of women in society today. Intelligently done, the film does have a slightly unsatisfying ending.

The other two films that RHA will present are "Easy Rider" and "A Sense of Loss." The first is a film that made movie making history in its attempts to explore the possibilities for the existence of a viable counterculture in America, and it contains a brilliant performance by Jack Nicholson. "A Sense of Loss" covers the struggles of Northern Ireland in documentary fashion. Take a study break Sunday at the Union Ballroom with Charles Chaplin as "Old Time Movies" presents three previously unavailable Chaplin shorts, "The Pilgrim," "Shoulder Arms" and "A Dog's Life." Chaplin's phenomenal comic ability make these three short films a must for anyone who has never seen the master portray his pathetically endearing little tramp. The Beal film group has scheduled a repeat performance of "The Best of the New York Erotic Film Festival" for everyone who was not fully satisfied previously. Off campus, the best bet is the double bill at the Spartan Twin Theaters in the Frandor Shopping Center. The superb screen adaptation of Henri Cherriere's bestseller "Papillon" is a grim, gripping and thought - provoking film boasting two dynamite performances by Steve McQueen and Dustin Hoffman.

"The Sting" is slick, glossy Hollywood commercialism that brings Paul Newman and Robert Redford back from the dead and makes them two grinning con men in the '30 s. Though neither of the two act in any way, the film is pleasant entertainment with the plot dominating. Still, under George Roy Hill's stylish direction, it will prove a nice way for some people to relax.

If you still have not seen "American Graffiti," what are you waiting for? One of the best films to come out in 1973, "American Graffiti" tells of the trials and tribulations of a group of high school seniors in the short space of one night. Though the characters at first seems like stereotypes, they eventually emerge as real people with convincing problems

Along with "American Graffiti," the Meridian Four Theaters have "The Way We Were" which teams Redford with Streisand in an enjoyable love story that benefits strongly from the chemistry of the two leading stars; "Charley Varrick" with Walter Matthau taking Clint Eastwood's place in a Don Siegel action film and the film version of "Jonathan Livingston Seagull.

Opening this weekend are Woody Allen's latest excursion into comedy called "Sleeper" and a pair of double features, each with one new film and one returnee. At the State, "Paper Moon" with Ryan O'Neal and his scene - stealing daughter is teamed with Claire Bloom in an adaptation of Henrick Ibsen's "A Doll's House." The two make for a combination that is unique and definitely strange. Finally, the Gladmer in Lansing has two action films, "The Outfit" with Robert Duvall and "Pat Garrett and Billy The Kid" with Bob Dylan and Kris Kristofferson in a Sam Peckinpah western.

As Kohoutek's comet is spinning through time, nostalgic sequences showing the life styles, personalities and music of the '20s, '30s and '50s are expertly depicted by the planetarium's excellent sound and visual equipment.

Variety abounds as the viewer is shown seemingly authentic and picturesque scenes of ancient Greek life, the London waterfront and America as the people prepared for Halley's famous periodic comet.

Another useful and interesting device used in this show is a pictorial representation of personalities out of the past accompanied by voices. Some authentic tapes include those of Mark how, since Aristotle's time, Twain, Lubos Kohoutek himself and several other noted astronomers.

Impressive pictures of the Skylab 3 equipment as well as photos of Halley's and Kohoutek's comet again make learning about these celestial phenomena much less painful.

Newspaper articles as recent as 1910, accompanying the arrival of Halley's comet, related how charlatans peddled gas masks and "comet pills" to protect the wary from effects of the comet.

Eight series to premiere as TV starts new season

By KATHY ESSELMAN State News Reviewer

Most of us figured one TV season was enough, but the networks, in their infinite wisdom and mercy, chose to declare a second season this January. It opens this week, but if you blink

Actual changes in network lineups are minimal compared to former seasons. ABC, in other years, has completely revamped its format. This year it has elected major changes only on Friday night. The networks changed a total of nine hours, with ABC accounting for four, NBC for three and CBS for 2.

Eight new series will premiere. Unfortunately, none seems likely to equal the impact of January starters of other years. "All in the Family," "Kung Fu," "Sanford and Son" and "The Avengers" all made their bow at the half - year mark. Networks have found viewers more receptive and willing to sample a new series premiered in January.

Viewers will have a choice in what they sample, for a change. Two series star women. Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear's Tandem Productions enters "Great Day," a spin - off of "Maude" starring Estelle Rolle who plays Florida. "Dirty Sally," produced for CBS by the "Gunsmoke" people, stars Jeanette Nolan. The networks have avoided series with women leads for the past few years.

"The Cowboys," produced by Warner Bros., takes up where the John Wayne film left off. After the cattle drive ends, the boys and the cook go back to help Wayne's widow run the ranch. With the current death of Westerns, and an even more acute shortage of young leads in Western series, this one could really take off.

"The Cowboys" stars Moses Gunn, Beverly Garland, Robert Carradine, Clay O'Brien and Sean Kelly. Gunn and Garland are top professionals. Warner Bros. makes great Westerns. The company has produced "Maverick," "Cheyenne" and that masterful Western spoof, "F Troop."

ABC has dumped the situation comedy lineup on Friday night. It has canceled two five - year series on that night, "Room 222" and "Love American Style." It also canceled "Adam's Rib," which premiered last fall. It has introduced Lee Major's "The Six Million Dollar Man" under new producer Marve Bennett and "Toma" into the Friday schedule. Bennett produced the better episodes of "Mod Squad."

ABC has tried an interesting ploy to make inroads on Thursday's 8 P.M. timeslot. It will introduce two new action series, "Chopper One" and "Firehouse." These will compete with the formidable "Flip Wilson Show" on NBC and "The Waltons"

"Chopper One" offers Spelling - Goldberg Inc. a chance to reproduce their "Mod Squad" and "The Rookies." This time the three young cops fly helicopters. Any resemblance between "Firehouse" and "Emergency" is purely intentional. Could someone come up with a new idea?

"Happy Days," produced by Paramount, hopes to capitalize on "American Graffitti." It stars Ronny Howard, "Graffitti's" star, innocent (?) fun of the '50s, Can anything equal "Them," "The Blob," "Ozzie and Harriet" or "Dobie Gillis?" We'll see.

Earl Hamner Jr. will attempt to reproduce the success of "The Waltons" with his new series "Apple's Way." It is about a successful Los Angeles architect who leaves the moral pollution of LA for the quaint, small town in Illinois where he grew up. It sounds suspiciously like "Green Acres," played straight.

Lorimar, which produces "The Waltons" and "Apple's Way" also is responsible for "Doc Elliot," starring James Franciscus. This low - key drama features a modern country doctor who services a large rural area with camper and helicopter support. This modern version of the horse - and - buggy doctor has proven fascinating and well produced in its monthly outings last Fall.

Best of all, second season means that football is over and "60 Minutes" comes back at 6 P.M. Sunday night.

But Peninger warned against taking the Salukis lightly.

Bessone said the Gophers' rink is a tough place to play because it is bigger than most other rinks in the conference. There is an extra five feet of space around the nets.

"They're probably the best skating team in the league," Bessone said of the Gophers. "And they'll be difficult to handle after last weekend's two losses to Minnesota - Duluth." MSU will be playing without the services of high scoring right

MSU's Steve Colp, Tom Ross and Norm Barnes continue to be among the leagues' top scorers.

Spartans, Wolverines tangle Saturday in crucial cage clash

By CHARLES JOHNSON State News Sports Writer

The athletic rivalry between MSU and Michigan has always been emotion - packed, but this Saturday's basketball game in Ann Arbor between the two schools promises to be even more intense.

Both the Spartans and Wolverines have suddenly been cast into the unexpected roles of Big Ten title contenders after posting 2 - 1 and 3 - 0 records respectively in this still young conference season. That fact alone should make for an interesting match - up.

However, thanks or no decision of the Big Ten athletic directors (MSU's Burt Smith included) to send Ohio State instead of Michigan to the Rose Bowl, the Spartans can expect to play before 13,000 hostile Wolverine fans.

"They' re going to be hosti-i-i-le," Spartan coach Gus Ganakas said with a grin. "But I don't think it'll hurt us. In fact, I'd rather be playing them down there at this stage of the season. I figure if a team can win four road games and all of its home games then it can take the title. Therefore, more pressure is on them.

"It's a critical game for both teams, but I'm confident that thanks to the controversial Michigan's home court advantage won't mean much. Once our team takes the court, it's oblivious to the crowd." Ganakas said.

The Spartans have been almost awesome in their last two conference games, disposing of Ohio State, 83 -75, and then coming back with a big 90 - 82 win over Illinois. MSU's only Big Ten loss came at the hands of Purdue in the conference opener. The cagers' supreme play was in evidence when the Big Ten statistics were released this week. The Spartans are on or near the top in almost every individual and team category. MSU center Lindsay Hairston is out front in one of the most coveted categories, rebounding, with a 15.7 per game average.

"Lindsay has a great shot at taking that honor," Ganakas said. "It definitely won't be easy, just as Mike (Robinson) taking the scoring crown won't be easy. But, both of them have excellent ability and their first devotion is to the team."

Robinson is going after his third straight Big Ten scoring championship, but he will need a good remaining season to reach that goal. Currently he is shooting 18.7 points per game, good for eighth place in the conference. Michigan's Campy Russell leads with a 21.5

about these individual things as long as we're winning," Ganakas said. "I feel more confident with this team than any I've ever had before. A new, team attitude has emerged and it's something that a coach can't decide. It's something to win. Michigan enters the game with a 10 - 2 overall record, which has been impressive enough to qualify the Wolves for 18th place in the national rankings. One of the Wolverine losses was to UCLA, but only by 20 points, which could be Both Spartan Athletic Director Burt Smith and cage coach Gus Ganakas would like to downplay the vocal emotions that are running high for this contest.

"This thing really hadn't entered my mind except that I just talked to some writer from Ann Arbor who said they're calling it the 'Burt Smith Bowl' or something like that," Ganakas said earlier this week. "So apparently it's going to be a very partisan and volatile crowd because of the bowl thing."

But Ganakas emphasized the crowd response will not bother

"It's a very important Big Ten basketball game because both teams are in the conference race and then because of the rivalry," Ganakas commented. "So,

"It's somewhat like playing at home because it's so close," he explained. "In a way I like the idea of playing them there rather than here. Sure the
