Rockefeller was picked by Ford in August of 1974 for the vice presidency after Ford had moved up to the presidency on the resignation of Richard M. Nixon. Rockefeller was inaugurated Dec. 19, 1974.

election shows that only incumbent George Griffiths can be labeled as an almost - sure winner. The right to fill the two remaining snots will most likely be fought out by Larry Owen, John Czarnecki, and Gordon Thomas.

The State News analysis shows that incumbent Thelma Evans and Human Rights Party Candidate Elizabeth Nall will fall short of grabbing any of the spots.

Based in part on data from the 1973 council election, this year's August primary and information obtained from several neighborhood organizations, the analysis indicates that Griffiths has enough support from student precincts, mixed student - homeowner precincts and strictly homeowner precincts to carry him through the election regardless of the turnout.

The data from the 1973 election indicates that there will most likely be a 25 to 30 per cent turnout in student precincts, 35 to 40 per cent turnout in mixed precincts and 55 to 60 per cent turnout in the homeowner

In that range, Owen, Czarnecki and Thomas will be running very close together in the spring for the remaining two spots. It could come down to as little as 20 or 30 votes.

Evans and Nall will most likely be anywhere from 100 to 150 votes behind the third and fourth place finishers.

The most important areas of the city with respect to who gets the last two spots will be (continued on page 8)

Local election turnout forecast as fairly light

Though it may seem silly, things as minor as a faulty alarm clock or a midterm the day after elections have been determining factors in voter turnout - especially for

This election unfortunately promises a turnout where a little more than a third of the registered voters may show up at the

"Looking at past elecions, I would predict this one to be fairly light," said city clerk Beverly Colizzi, who is responsible for East Lansing's 32,000 registered voters.

She said the main reason for the low turnout is the low key campaign of the candidates adding "though, if anything, rent control will be the single most important issue getting voters out."

In the 1973 city council elections, with candidates who created strong studenthomeowner polarization, the turnout was still only 37.5 per cent. Traditionally, homeowners have the highest voter turnouts, while students have the lowest.

In the 1973 election the turnout in the eight predominately homeowner precincts was 57 per cent; in the ten mixed student-homeowner precincts it was 38 per cent while in the 16 student precincts the voter turnout was only 27 per cent.

Student apathy has, and will probably continue to most hurt the liberal candidates - in this election Griffiths, Owen, Czarnecki and Nall.

Though the rent control issue was thought to be the single most polarizing issue at the beginning of this election, that polarization has not materialized and will more than likely not pull out the voters.

Elliot (Al) Ballard isn't exactly the staid and stodgy businessman most University administrators are presumed to be.

The casual visitor, having lumbered down the hallway to Ballard's sanctuary tucked deep in the recesses of the President's office, will usually notice him leaning back in a large leather chair, turtle-necked and terribly relaxed.

Ballard, 42, is the secretary to the board of trustees and assistant to President Wharton. To many, he is the man behind the money at MSU.

"What's today, the 30th? But it's not 1971, though," he said, rummaging through the pages of an old calendar. "You walk into Al Ballard's office and turn your clock back four years.'

So much for the introduction to a high University officer with an official-looking sign on his desk that proclaims him an EFFISHENCY EXPURT. The truth is that Al Ballard, fiercely protective of his anoni mity (so he says), is a Horatio Alger success story right here within the Univer-

He began working for the University in 1955 while an undergraduate, at a $1.25-anhour job as a stockroom attendant in a small wooden building where the Administration Building now stands. His office on the fourth floor is directly above where he labored 20 years ago.

"If I were to get hit by a truck tomorrow, my epitaph would be, 'In 20 years he moved up 50 feet.' But I have no assurance that if I did get hit by a truck tomorrow, I would continue to move up.'

From the stockroom the young business major went to work for the state of Michigan as a personnel technician of the Civil Service division. Realizing that all government public service agencies depend on money for their success, he switched his emphasis to budgetary matters, and in 1960 began a six-year stint with the state budget division. His jobs ranged from budget analysis to what he called a one-man fiscal agency for the House of Representa-

From 1966 to 1968 he served as the executive director of the Michigan Council of State College Presidents - a job he said he tired of but that gave him a desire to get back into the University structure.

Ballard accepted an offer from then-MSU President John Hannah to come to work as his assistant. He accepted, and returned to the University in July 1968.

Now, with 15 years experience working with fiscal matters and more than seven years as a presidential assistant, Ballard sayshis responsibility still does not have a precise definition.

Shrugging off the title of academician, he says simply that his job is to advise the president when his counsel is solicited. The advice he proffers covers a whole range of adminstrative problems in addition to budgetary affairs.

"The price of playing critic and devil's advocate is that some things don't come out the way you'd like them to," he said.

"In any staff job you must recognize that

The city had sought complete reimbursement from Lansing.

In its appeal, the Detroit school board said despite financial belt - tightening, it projected a $21 million deficit for the current school year. It said that in the past, Detroit has received a lesser percentage of state support for student transportation than ther cities.

In addition, it noted that Detroit residents pay a higher tax to support their schools than anyone else in the state.

Here is a summary of other Supreme Court decisions announced Monday:

·Let stand a federal court order that Dallas, Tex., school officials said would force them to begin busing pupils for integration,

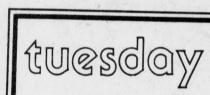

·Dismissed an appeal seeking to overturn a lower court ruling that New York State may require rural school districts, but not those in cities, to provide bus transportation

•Upheld a Louisiana law requiring mandatory retirement for state employes at age

•Decided to review a lower court decision blocking President Ford from imposing license fees on oil imports.

·Approved a lower court order requiring a third trial of San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto's $12.5 million libel suit against the publishers of now - defunct Look magazine.

•Decided to hear a case brought by two white men who asserted they were victims of reverse discrimination because of a lower court ruling that the Civil Rights Act of 1866 did not apply to whites.

Ford's highway plan killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's plan to cut back on the Highway Trust Fund and revamp completely financing of road programs is dead for this session of Congress.

The President submitted his proposal in July and asked for prompt action so that it could take effect at the beginning of the next fiscal year.

However, the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees, which have jurisdiction over the revenue aspects of highway legislation, both have said they have no plans to take it up this year.

Treasury wants benefits taxed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Dept. hopes to collect up to $100 million by taxing fringe benefits received by employes from their employers, such as personal use of a company aircraft, apartment or hunting lodge.

If the Treasury's propoosals become law, taxes could also apply to the use of demonstrator autos by automobile salesmen, to free child day - care services provided by an employer, and to a chauffeur - driven company limousine that takes a top executive to and from work.

The general rule the Treasury proposes is that fringe benefits be taxed if they result in additional costs to the employer and if they are made available to only the most highly compensated employes.

He reported the 82 - year - old generalissimo, ill now for 17 days, came through the operation and anasthesia well.

Three dead in pipeline blast

LONDON (AP) — A ruptured oil pipeline caused the explosion and fire that killed two Norwegians and an American on a North Sea oil platform, a London spokesman for Phillips Petroleum reorted Sunday night.

Sabotage has been ruled out as a cause for the Saturday blast, he said, but investigators have not determined how the rupture occurred.

The accident occurred on a platform in the Norwegian Ekofisk field midway between Britain and Norway. A crack in the 10 - inch pipeline was found just above Egyptian officials barred newsmen and photographers from the canal area, saying they feared sabotage by Arab radicals or Palestinians who claim the Egyptian agreement with Israel betrayed the Arab cause.

Spanish sources reported that Moroccan troops crossed into the Spanish Sahara Sunday and battled local inhabitants while Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, Spain's new leader, was encouraging his troops only 40 miles away.

Attack puts Peron in hospital

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Isabel Peron was rushed to the hospital Monday amid mounting pressures to give up leadership of a nation torn by violence, inflation and allegations of government financial scandal.

An official bulletin said Mrs. Peron had a gall bladder problem and that it was not serious, but private doctors close to the case said she had suffered a nervous attack.

She has been under heavy fire by dissident Peronists and opposition politicians demanding an investigation of alleged mishandling of funds in her administration.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A large explosion Sunday damaged the police station at Armagh, 15 miles southwest of here, and scarred houses within 200 yards, officials said. No injuries were reported.

Authorities said gunmen stopped a private car and held one occupant hostage while ordering the other to drive a truck carrying about 250 pounds of explosives to the police

Police blamed the Irish Republican Army (IRA), which is seeking to end British rule in Northern Ireland and to unite the predominantly Protestant province with the mainly Roman Catholic Irish republic to the south.

UN subgroup pullout planne

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States intends to withdraw from the International Labor Organization, a specialized United Nations agency which depends heavily on this country for financial support.

U.S. officials confirmed Monday that Secretary of Labor John T. Dunlop later this week will submit a formal two-year notice of withdrawal to the ILO, which is dedicated to helping raise workers' living standards.

The decision was the latest move in a lengthy dispute fueled by American labor concern over ILO policies, including the ILO's acceptance last June of an observer from the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Notification of the intent to withdraw is being sent to ILO headquarters in Geneva, but the U.S. officials stressed that effective and that in that period ment greater bargaining power they are hoping the dispute can be resolved.

If not, it will be the first such

U.S. pullout from a UN group. Both Ford administration officials and AFL-CIO President George Meany have expressed concern in recent months that the ILO was drifting away from its primary function of raising the living standards of workers and becoming excessively involved in international politics.

The 124-member ILO, founded in 1919, is the only specialized Un agency that was once a part of the League of Nations. Each member country is represented on the ILO by a threemember delegation, speaking for labor and management as well as government.

In recent years, the United States has contributed about a quarter of the agency's annual $50 million budget. U.S. sources believe the threat of withit will take two years to become drawal would give the governin winning concessions from of their virtual ostracizing of other member countries.

According to diplomatic reports from Dacca, the day-long developments revolved around a single mission of senior army officers reasserting their influence over junior officers who overthrew and killed President Mujibur Rahman three months

The reports, which said there was no bloodshed and no shots fired throughout the day, indicated that seven majors and one colonel who led the Aug. 15 coup were believed to have been taken into custody after lengthy negotiaitons between the feuding factions.

Also reported arrested was the army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Ziaur Rahman, who had resisted earlier demands from senior officers that the majors be brought before a court martial for having killed Sheik Mujib and members of his family.

The key junior officers involved in the coup had lived in the presidential palace since Mushtaque took over as head of government.

Monday's developments began, according to diplomatic sources, before dawn when units loyal to the senior officers took up positions around strategic points in Dacca, including the presidential palace.

At the same time, the state radio went off the air, Dacca airport was closed and international communications were severed.

Radio Bangladesh resumed its broadcasts in the evening, more than 12 hours after its normal opening time, but gave no immediate indication of who controlled the government. The radio mentioned no names of government leaders in its first four hours of resumed transmission.

It broadcast Bengali nationalist songs, and in its initial newscast made no reference to domestic political developments.

The army rift had been simmering since Mujib was ousted. The coup leaders had installed Mushtaque Ahmed, a former commerce minister, as president and permitted most of Mujib's old cabinet members to remain in the government to run the civil administration.

Since then, Mushtaque Ahmed has tried to tone up the administration, firing civil servants accused of corruption and arresting former political associates of Mujib who were charged with nepotism and embezzlement of government funds. Mushtaque Ahmed had blamed widespread corruption under Mujib for bringing economic misery to the already impoverished nation of 77 million. The president last month announced that normal political activity would be allowed to resume next Aug. 15 - the first anniversary of the coup - and that general elections would take place on Feb. 28, 1977.

lose $7.5 million under Milliken's budget cuts, an average of 1.5 per cent. MSU's general operations budget was not cut, but $1.67 million was slashed from appropriations for construction of the Clinical Sciences Center.

MHESA joined the Michigan Education Assn. (MEA) and the Michigan State Employes Assn. (MSEA) in calling for a tax increase rather than budget cuts to balance the budget.

Penokie argued against Milliken's reasoning that a tax increase would impede Michigan's economic recovery by decreasing consumer buying power.

"If the cuts are made, teachers will have to be laid off and will be forced to leave the state, cutting the tax base, or become umemployed, increasing state welfare costs," he said.

"Furthermore, fewer students will be able to attend institutions of higher education, due to the inevitable enrollment ceilings and tuition increases and this will further flood the unemployment sector of Michigan," Penokie said.

Penokie said there is room for budget cuts among the administrations of many schools but that any cuts would inevitably affect students and faculty instead of administrators.

MHESA, which says it represents 380,000 student members, is funded by the various student governments it represents. Penokie said MSU, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University are not MHESA members but that work is still done for those universities by MHESA.

Swainson pressured leave judicial post

DETROIT (UPI) - State Supreme Court Justice John B. Swainson, under growing pressure to quit his post, went into seclusion Monday but promised a decision on his future within a few days.

In Lansing, there were reports that Swainson would resign shortly, the first justice in Michigan history to quit because of a felony conviction.

Through his lawyer, Konrad D. Kohl, Swainson said Monday he was making up his mind on his future.

"I think in the very near future, a few days, he will make up his mind," Kohl told

A Michigan Public Service Commission (PSC) staff study released last week predicted a net increase of approximately 4,000 to 8,000 high-paying Michigan jobs if the bottle bill is passed. These figures contradict claims made by opponents of the bill that large-scale unemployment in the beverage industry would ensue.

Another shot in the bill's arm to help it out of the House Consumer's Committee, where it has been since January, was a special Governor's Market Opinion Research Poll. According to this statewide survey, 73 per cent of those polled supported a ban on non-returnable bottles and cans, with only 20 per cent opposed.

If you're one of the 28,000 bicyclists on campus and you don't obey traffic signals, you could get yourself or someone else hurt - or you could get a traffic ticket which would cost you a minimum of $9. The Michigan Motor Vehicle Code requires bicycles to be operated as if they were motor vehicles. That means bicyclists can be ticketed for failure to stop for red lights, for going the wrong way on a one - way street or even for speeding. The penalty for a bicycle violation varies according to where the offense occurs. Citations issued on the east end of campus fall under the jurisdiction of the 55th District Court in Mason. These citations are written on a parking ticket form and the fine is $4.

Violations happening anywhere else on campus are taken care of by the 54th - B District Court in East Lansing. The minimum fine for a conviction is $9. In addition, this sort of conviction goes on the driving record of licensed drivers.

The Dept. of Public Safety (DPS) is working to develop a citation form acceptable to both courts that would be used specifically for bicycle violations. At this time, motor vehicle citation forms are used.

The DPS issued 145 traffic citations to bikers for moving violations between July 1974 and July 1975. Most of these were for going the wrong way on a one - way street. Failure to stop or yield is the second most common violation for which tickets are

House bill would help save Michigan dunes

The Michigan House of Representatives should support a bill designed to protect the sand dunes along the Great Lakes shoreline from exploitation by profit minded individuals.

The bill, a substitute for House Bill 4038 was voted out of committee last week, after a year of study, and is expected to return to the floor of the House this week possibly today.

The bill will give local governments in Michigan much needed support in their fight to protect the sand dunes from destruction.

Opposes revision

The Academic Senate will meet on November 3, 1975 to consider the proposed Faculty Grievance Procedures. All faculty should attend this meeting to vote to return the proposal to the Faculty Council for revision.

Section 4.2.1 alone should be a sufficient reason for the Senate to take this action. This section provides that:

4.2.1 The FGO shall meet with hearing boards to assist in organizing procedures to meet the requirements of the Faculty Grievance Procedure. Such meetings may be held in the absence of the parties to the grievance."

Can any provision of this sort be consistent with minimal notions of due process? FGO's are human beings who, despite best intentions, make errors. One possible error might be a statement damaging to one of the parties. Yet how can that party appeal the result if he or she is not present? Even the tape recorded record choice expected (or hoped) that few of my of the proceedings, provided for in Section 4.2.7, would not yet begin at that stage.

Your recent articles concerning Faculty Grievances have clearly demonstrated the need for a full and careful examination by the Faculty Senate of the proposed Revised Grievance Procedure. I would therefore like to urge all faculty members to attend the Faculty Senate Meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 5 at 3:00 p.m. in Room 402 Computer

The following are some important issues which have been raised:

(1) That the Revised Grievance Procedure lacks several due process safeguards which are present in the existing grievance

(2) That, unlike the existing Grievance Procedure, the Revised Grievance Procedure explicitly exempts the President of the University from grievances and thereby places him above the laws of the University. (3) That the definition of a "Grievance" is too narrow. (4) That the Revised Grievance Procedure increases unnecessarily the power of the Faculty Grievance Official.

Symposium revives dead Taiwan issue

By JOSELYNE SLADE TIEN

Members of the MSU community who have been working to build friendship between the Chinese and American peoples are dismayed by the news that the Asian Studies Center in conjunction with the International Studies Center and with help from the departments of Anthropology, Geography, History and Political Science have planned a week-long program called "The Taiwan Issue." Crowning the week's activities is a visit and speech by the Taiwanese Ambassador. The sponsorship of this program on China's province of Taiwan by a number of academic departments at this university directly contradicts the spirit of the Shanghai Communique of 1972 to which both the United States and China are signatories.

The two countries expressed the hope that relations between the two countries would be normalized "not only in the interest of the Chinese and American peoples" but also to contribute to the relaxation of tension in Asia and the world. The raising of Taiwan's future as an 'issue' at MSU raises serious questions again about the politics, goals and procedures of the Asian Studies Center and international programs generally at this university. The University's claim to sponsor objective scholarship and the impartial pursuit of knowledge is hardly visible in this "Taiwan

Let us comment briefly on only four of the many questions that need clarification in regard to this Taiwan week.

First, there is the question of why the Chinese province of Taiwan was selected as a topic for such intensified study at this juncture in American history, the eve of President Ford's visit to the People's Republic of China. For the 25 years following the insertion of the Seventh Fleet into the Taiwan Straits to protect the Kuomintang rump government, the American public has been inundated with glowing accounts of the accomplishments of this regime. For the same 25 years, distortion, lies and threats have characterized policy towards the Chinese Mainland.

This unhappy situation, which isolated Americans from a people with whom they had, historically, been on friendly terms, began to change for the better with the signing of the Shanghai Communique. Therefore, instead of investing more money and time on the rotting corpse of the Taiwan issue, why has the Asian Center not decided to have an educational program directed towards increasing understanding of the 750 million or more Chinese people who live on the mainland? These are after all the people who have, without millions of dollars from the American taxpayer, saved themselves from hunger, drug addiction, exploitation and foreign imperialism. What expertise and time on is indeed a political question and leads us to wonder whom we serve here at MSU.

Second, the introduction to the Asian Studies' Taiwan program suggests that the future of Taiwan is an open matter, still to be resolved. This is a direct challenge to the position taken by the People's Republic of China in the Shanghai Communique. The Chinese government firmly opposes any activities which aim at the creation of "one China, one Taiwan," "one China, two governments," "two Chinas," an "independent Taiwan," or who advocate that "the status of Taiwan remains to be determined." The United States, for its part, acknowledged that "all Chinese on either side of the Taiwan Strait maintain there is but one China and that Taiwan is part of China." Why, then, have these departments at MSU taken upon themselves the onerous burden of resuscitating, in our midst, this rotting political corpse? Why is MSU inserting itself into the internal affairs of Asian people? Why is MSU sponsoring a political debate that takes us right back to the chilliest days of the Cold War?

Third, on all sides we hear that money is unavailable for the support of all kinds of worthy projects. Where, then, is the money for this symposium, which includes speakers from many campuses and from distant we choose to spend our teachers, money, areas of the country, coming from? Can those of us, who are concerned about the dubious direction of this week-long program, have access to all the information about its financing so that we can, at least, be assured that we are witnesses only to an error of judgment?

Fourth, there is the question of what principles have guided these academic departments in carrying out their responsibilites to educate the people of this state and the students of this University. The land grant colleges were founded, we understood, with a view to the service of the public, rather than any special interest, academic or corporate. If we are to be convinced that this Taiwan week is just another scholarly enquiry into and dissemination of information about China, we shall expect, in the immediate future and at some equally propitious moment in American foreign affairs, a well-funded, expertlyorganized program on the 750 million people of China's other provinces. For, if we are serving the public interest here, is there any higher priority than the promotion of peace and understanding between one quarter of mankind and the United States?

VIEWPOINT: ACADEMIC FREEDOM

Symposium will provide balanced hearing

By JACK F. WILLIAMS

The Taiwan Symposium to be held on Thursday in the Union Ballroom has aroused the opposition of certain members of the MSU community. While not totally surprised, I would have hoped for a more tolerant attitude from some of them. The symposium and the controversy that has developed around it involve essentially two crucial issues - academic freedom and human rights.

Those who oppose the symposium would deny the right of participants to freely discuss an issue they feel is important and worthy of public debate. I had always thought that is what a university is all about. Just because some people do not like the topic of the symposium does not give them the right to suggest the symposium not be held. They are, in effect, espousing the denial of academic freedom.

One argument put forward why the symposium should not be held, as I understand it, is that it will somehow have an adverse effect on plans underway to send a group of students from MSU to the Peoples Republic of China (PRC) in the spring of 1977, and that the symposium might even have a negative impact on the further normalization of relations between the U.S. and the PRC. I fully support both the sending of students to China and the normalization of relations.

It would indeed be unfortunate if the PRC viewed our symposium as an unfriendly gesture and responded accordingly, but it would be solely their error in failing to understand the tradition of academic freedom that is the cornerstone of American higher education. Frankly, I think the government of the PRC is realistic and sophisticated enough to see our symposium in a more tolerant way than some members of the MSU community. It is also argued, I am told, that the Taiwan Symposium is partisan and will not fairly present the viewpoint of the PRC. This criticism can only be based on ignorance of the topics and participants in the symposium, which has been organized with scrupulous attention to ensuring that the viewpoinsts of all the parties concerned are adequately and fairly presented. Most important of all, of course, are the viewpoinst of the PRC, the government of the Republic of China, and the Taiwanese people themselves. Only the PRC refused to send a speaker. A written invitation was Only after contacting the Liaison Office in Washington by telephone was it confirmed that they had no interest in participating. Hence, we substituted a scholar with recognized expertise on the PRC's policies and position vis-a-vis Taiwan. The attitude of the PRC (and some members of the MSU community) appears to be that the only correct view of the Taiwan issue is that of the PRC and hence there is nothing to discuss. They are free to take that position, of course, but it is not shared by everyone.

Perhaps even more important is the issue of human rights associated with the Taiwan problem. At stake is the future of over 16 million people, a body larger than a majority of the members of Nations. There are other countries and peoples with important interests in Taiwan also — the United States, Japan, the Overseas Chinese, and some others with trade and investment relations with Taiwan. But the interests of these parties is clearly secondary to the face of the people of Taiwan. What is to become of them? Should Taiwan be handed over to the jurisdiction of the PRC? What would happen to Taiwan if the U.S. completely severed relations, as the price for final normalization of relations with the PRC?

Should the people of Taiwan be given the right to decide if they wish to become a part of the PRC? These are some of the important quesitons that the Taiwan Symposium will address. Whatever the final outcome of the Taiwan issue, one can only hope that it will be a just and humane solution. The Taiwan Symposium is directed at furthering that solution.

I urge the critics of the symposium to come and attend in person, not just to hear one or two speakers but to stay for the entire program so that they may accurately judge for themselves whether their criticism was well-founded or not. They may be pleasantly surprised.

served and returned for the last time in the long volleyball weekend, the Spartans found themselves the winners of the Big Ten title. Illinois, Indiana, Purdue and Minnesota made up the next best finishers in the tournament.

"This was the first time that all the girls have ever won anything really major," coach Annelies Knoppers said. "Some of our transfer students from Calvin College were on the team when they won the state tournament last year, but nobody on our team had ever won anything outside the state.

"Everyone was looking at us as the big powerhouse instead of us looking enviously at them. It was really nice."

The Spartans began their long string on conquests in pool play, defeating Northwestern 15-7, 15-3; Wisconsin 13-15, 15-10, 15-10; Illinois 15-2, 15-8, and Iowa 15-5, 15-11. MSU was the only team to remain undefeated in both pools.

Purdue posed no problem for the Spartans in the semi-finals competition with a 15-6, 8-15, 15-6 victory for MSU, while Illinois was busy taming Indiana in their semi-final games, 6-15, 14-12, 15-6.

But Illinois' luck ran out against the Spartans in the finals, as MSU took the championship out from under the Illini's feet, 15-5, 15-11.

"We played a lot of different types of volleyball. Some teams were mainly defensive, some mainly offensive and none really played the hard-hitting game we're used to, so we had to adjust ourselves to several different styles of play," Knoppers said.

"I was very pleased to see how we just kept coming back at each team, even with our backs to the wall. We did what we had to to win," she added.

Mary Jo Peppler, winner of last year's Women's Superstar Competition and considered the best woman volleyball player in the world, presented the awards and trophies at the conclusion of the tournament and was just one of many who complimented the Spartans for their outstanding play.

"Everyone was really impressed with our team all through the tournament - I kept hearing positive comments all the time from Peppler, other coaches and even spectators," Knoppers said. Nobody would believe it when they asked how many of our girls were on scholarships and I told them none."

Reed leads Detroit to win in first start

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Detroit Lions, held to 62 yards in total offense in the first half, erupted for 21 points in a 71/2-minute span of the third quarter Sunday with third-string quarterback Joe Reed throwing for a pair of touchdowns for a 28-17 victory over the San Francisco 49ers.

The Lions, who lost quarterbacks Bill Munson and Greg Landry to injuries last week, trailed 10-0 when they took the third-period kickoff and went 80 yards for their first score.

Receiver Ray Jarvis scored the first Lion touchdown, running backs Dexter Bussey and Altie Taylor scored the second and third TD's and linebacker Ed O'Neil picked up a fumble and ran 49 yards for the final Detroit score.

"disease" well maybe, ... but unlike most hospitals we were drugged most of the time. We grew our facades cumbered. Facades to hide our "real self," a self thought evil unworthy of exposure, shameful. The outside died while the seethed. Or the outside seethed or played tough while the

He spent a lot of time in QR room) with meals of cornflakes and milk, our version of dand water. He hinted anger and often snapped at others. But ever let out any emotion in aggression class.

ggression class was physical education for the inhibited and exuberant. The idea was to learn to recognize and deal with your anger in a padded room that was much like a high school wrestling room. There we wrestled, boxed, played aggressively and discussed our reactions to such activity.

As usual, Mike refused to wrestle or to box or to do anything at all that day. He was angry and he threw things when he was pressed. But he became a lump of dough for his wrestling partner.

I was next door in a drama class and I heard the usual sounds of bodies and balls smacking the walls. I also heard the teachers nagging Mike. He quit his wrestling match and sat down in a corner. One of the instructors needled him and wrestled the doughy lump that Mike had become. Then he called Mike's partner Suddenly I heard a roar that came from somewhere in Mike. We jumped up to see the commotion. Mike's partner lay sprawled as if he had been tossed aside by a tornado and the 6-foot-4, 250-pound teacher had been stampeded by Mike's charge.

Mike tore up the stairs and into the lounge. Over went the pool table - minus two legs. Mike smashed the counter with a pool cue and wrecked a couple of chairs with kicks. Finally he attacked the ultimate target, the television.

With one swing, old idiot box's eye was shattered. In another instant its transistor brain lay scattered on the carpet, its body prone and legless. Mike dropped the cue and collapsed into a chair. He looked up and his face seemed to say "I told you not to make me mad." Mike spent the night in the QR and we couldn't watch television. We had to talk to each other. But even when he came out, Mike would not say much though he had everyone's attention. For awhile he even watched the broken TV, gathering another storm or maybe consolidating gains from his breakthrough.

across as a garbled scat vocal. "A Full Moon Consort's" ensemble playing was precise and together, but several solo passages seemed to be over-extended, repeating the same material ad nauseum.

The first portion of the percussion introduction to "Big Bang" sounded like an exercise to increase muscle tone until other instruments besides the trap drum set were added to the wall of sound.

The group opened itself to "classical rip-off" criticism when it ventured into the realms of Bizet's "Carmen" for its finale. The rehashing of the opera's themes sounded trite as a final selection to the otherwise entirely original programming. As always, the light show presented in the Sky Theatre was vibrant and exciting. The graphics to "My Cousin on Uranus" aptly fit the fantasy lyrics of "When Harold gets ridiculous, they take him to Uranus."

The squiggling lines, flashing lights, exploding heavenly bodies, rock music accompanied cartoons and flowing light clusters all provided a feast for the eyes. However, one can not help but wonder about the originality of "Cosmic Radiance's" lightshow since it contained bits and pieces of material re-cycled from past planetarium programs.

"A.R.C. '75" is not a profound multi-media experience. The portion of the show that received the biggest ovation was an old cartoon of a hound dog chasing a rabbit, accompanied by all sorts of electronic bleeps definitely not heavy material. However, "A.R.C. '75" is a fun way to spend an evening.

"A.R.C. '75" is scheduled to play on selected dates at the Abrams Planetarium Sky Theatre through Nov. 23.

By MARTY SOMMERNESS State News Reviewer

Editors note: A sports story on the entertainment page? Yes, indeed. Sports should be entertaining. The fact that it is often anything but entertaining prompts an occasional "review" like this one. Just pretend the football team is called the MSU

Beatles. Mediocrity.

That seems to be the password for Spartan sports in general, especially after the 21 -19 scalping and 20 - 10 cooking recently handed the MSU football team by the Fighting Illini and Boilermaker gridiron

It is because of such mediocrity that whoever is finally selected MSU's new athletic director will have a Herculean task in trying to restore East Lansing as a center of intercollegiate athletics.

Whoever does assume the unenviable position of athletic director had better take a few pointers from Don Canham, athletic director at the University of Michigan.

In the college sports world, Canham is a revolutionary. He realized long ago that college sports, besides being gut grinding athletic contests, are in the entertainment business. It may be a bitter pill for fans of the green and white to swallow, but Canham is right. College sports are entertainment businesses, and nobody is goin to be entertained by a mediocre, lackluster team.

Canham's promotion of U - M football (airplanes flying over Detroit Lions football games in Tiger Stadium with "Buy Michigan football tickets" banners) shocked the old guard, but it sold tickets.

Of course, MSU administrators should not try the same tactic. The University would look awfully dumb with a "Buy MSU football tickets" banner floating over the domed Pontiac Stadium, or the empty Tiger Stadium.

Canham's entertainment business philosophy works. Michigan stadium is almost always jammed with people for home football games.

Of course, nothing succeeds like success, and that is something U - M Coach Bo Schembechler understands completely. His teams win consistently. His teams entertain the

What kind of entertainment is there in Spartan Stadium, except an occasional grim comedy?

Michigan State MegaUniversity's sports program seems plagued with many mini problems that spell mediocrity.

After the upset of the decade in 1974 when MSU beat Ohio State, 16 - 13, the Spartan athletic department went all out in promoting MSU football. The year of the Spartan was to be 1975.

But, as Joseph Heller has said, something happened.

After this year's 21 - 0 trouncing of MSU by the Buckeyes, many complaints were aired over the handling of ticket sales. Some people could not get to their seats. Other people bought tickets for seats and did not have any seats at all, since the stadium was over - sold.

No entertainment business lasts long if it continually has ticket hassles giving it a bad

The Spartans soon found out that two upsets, the 1974 victory over Ohio State and this year's 10 - 3 win over Notre Dame, do not automatically accord superstar status and abilities.

MSU has "fumblitis" so often, one wonders if the Spartans can not afford to buy any Firm Grip.

MSU does not have the strength to consistently ram the ball up the middle (yet it almost always tries), and does not have the versatility to do much else. And MSU has the Damocles sword of the NCAA investigation hanging over its head.

Football is not the only problem area the new athletic director, whoever he may be, will face.

In all fairness, the MSU hockey team is not mediocre. "Amo's Army" is no paper tiger: they play to win. The Spartan icers are an action team that give the crowd what they come for, entertainment and victories. This season may well be the time when East Lansing becomes the home of a WCHA championship team.

However, hockey at MSU. like other sports, suffers from the malady of mediocre man-

Complaints have already surfaced about (guess what?) ticket sales procedures for hockey games. The new athletic tion due to fire marshal requirements in Jenison, it may soon prove to many that MSU is, at best, second - rate. Whoever the new athletic director is, I wish him the best of luck. He will need it. I also hope he takes an idea or two from Don Canham. MSU needs

It has been too long since MSU teams brought home a title in any major sport. Since MSU began competing in college football in 1896, the Spartans have gone to four post season bowl games. That is almost 20 years between appearances. I do not want to wait until 1986 for another chance.

for breaking the rules of biking. at fault when he or she crease, campus police enforce traffic regulations more strictly, Lyon said. Word gets out that tickets are being issued and bicyclists become more careful about obeying the rules.

One reason so few citations are written to bikers is the lack of time and officers for comprehensive enforcement, Lyon said. In addition, it is difficult for an officer driving a patrol car in traffic to catch a bicyclist who can cut between buildings and disappear when he or she is pursued by police. Last year the DPS registered

14,000 bicycles on campus. The most recent survey, done two years ago, showed that almost half the bicycles operated on campus are not registered either with the University or the City of East Lansing. This means that there could be 28,000 bicycles being ridden on campus during the peak hours of class change. During the 1974 - 75 school year there were about 60 bicycle car accidents. These accidents resulted in 44 cases of personal injury and 20 instances of property damage. Lyon said

This letter was submitted as a letter-to-the-editor, but because it arrived too late to be printed, the writer requested that it be run as a classified advertisement. Rent control is a very emotional issue. Proponents are saying "Don't feel the hand that bites you" and opponents are saying "Don't let this "B" sting you." It is past time we look at the actual bill proposed and what it would do. The proposed city charter amendment would roll all rents back to the maximum charged in 1973 and set up an appointed, then after 1977 elected, salaried rent control board empowered to grant further roll backs, set rents on units which were not rented in 1973, grant increases not to exceed five per cent, and grant (on unanimous vote) exemptions and variances. In determining fair rates of return, mortgage payments and interest may not be counted as a legitimate expense and the maximum management fees are set at six per cent of the monthly rent. Landlords are specifically prohibited from withholding services or maintenance. The control board may raise its salary in line with the consumer price index — even though a 5 % ceiling is placed on rent increases, but members receiving $15,000.00 or more from another source may not be compensated, and applications for membership must disclose any landlord-related connections. A 0.7% -of-rent fee would be charged landlords to finance the board, a registration procedure would be set up, and any application for increases, variances, etc. must be filed, with documentation, at the time of annual registration. If the board is not satisfied with the information provided in the registration form, it may set maximum rents at one dollar until the landlord supplies what it wants. A minimum fine of $100.00 and/or a 90 day jail sentence is prescribed for non-compliance. What would this do? First, about ninety per cent of all East Lansing apartment buildings would be operating in the red at 1973 rent levels. Since the landlord's biggest expense - mortgage and interest payments - are not to be counted, the board would not, it is expected, be able to grant any increases in most of these cases. Management companies, which normally charge ten per cent, would probably find six per cent unacceptable and withdraw from East Lansing. Since most of the company-managed buildings are generally owned by groups of people, most of whom know very little about the rental business, these units would be left pretty much rudderless and floundering. The private houses acquired before 1973 and used as rental units with the tenants paying utilities, etc., would still be largely in the black, while those acquired since 1973 would be generally in the red at 1973 rents. Landlords in these cases would be weighing their diminished profits against the hassles of rent control procedures and the advantages of selling out to private home-owners. A sizable non-student group seeking low rents would migrate to East Lansing and bring with them the problems endemic to low-rent districts everywhere. Landlords, constrained by strict anti-discrimination language in the statute, would be unable to deny tenancy to these people. Wherever possible, landlords would convert their units to condominiums. The net result of these reactions would be a greatly increased demand and a much decreased supply of East Lansing rentals. Many who now live near campus would find no place available and would be reduced to ofering under-the-table rents in exchange for favorable consideration of their rental applications. Unscrupulous landlords would cooperate, and survive in business, others who tried to comply with the ordinance would be forced out of business, abandoning their property to the city, which soon would become the biggest landlord, and would have to take millions from tax revenues to cover its losses in the property business, since governments are notoriously poor at managing anything profitably. Leases would become a salable item, so that certain operators would do a thriving business at leasing many units at the controlled rates, then selling these leases at a premium. Although landlords are prohibited from withholding service or maintenance, you can't force anyone to put money into a losing venture - he will sign it over to an imbecile or abandon it to the city first, and by not counting mortgage and interest costs in expenses this law would guarantee that most properties would be losing ventures. The local bankers have already promised privately to red-line East Lansing if this law passes, drying up completely the mortgage money which finances home acquisition, property improvements, construction, and the acquisition of rental property. The 0.7% to the control board would be the top of the iceburg of administrative costs - the majority of the paperwork and documentation is expected to be supplied by the landlord, and this will cost a great deal, so that the entire cost of administration will reach $10-15 per rental unit per month. It is no wonder that most of those who have studied it consider this ordinance to be a veiled thrust by its socialist minded authors to take the rental property in East Lansing from its owners and give it to the city government. The net result would be to remove property without compensation from one class — the landlords — and give it to another class : the control board, the lease sellers, and the under-the-table artists. The tenants would not be helped at all, but would, with the home owners, be forced to pay the costs of a collosal power struggle. Tenants, landlords, and homeowners should unite to defeat this ordinance, but we should not ignore the emotionalism which got it on the ballot to begin with, and should vigorously pursue and prosecute the unscrupulous landlords who don't return security deposits, and don't respond to maintenance requests, as well as the skip-out non-pay tenants whose rent is really being paid by everyone else. We should also seek vigorously to reverse an anti-construction, anti-student-rental bias held by the city government and its non-student constituency which has choked off virtually all new construction in the past five years even though many excelent sites are available.

(continued from page 3) discuss the case, but refused to comment. Chief Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh said, "At some appropriate time, we will make a statement."

The seven-woman, five-man jury acquitted Swainson on the bribery conspiracy charge, but convicted a codefendant on the same charge.

Kohl said he will continue a legal battle to overturn the conviction or win a new trial.

The first step, he said, will come in two weeks or so when he files renewed motions to overturn the conviction.

Swainson faces a possible maximum sentence of 15 years in prison and $6,000 fine.

The prejury charges against Swainson dealt with three denials to a federal grand jury earlier this year concerning two telephone calls with codefendant Harvey Wish, a former Detroit bail bondsman, and delivery of a color televis to him by Wish. Kohl said the telepho and the TV set were not with the bribery charge against Swainson, Wish third man - who is set to go on trial later convicted burglar. Swainson charged with accepting actually from Wish, described government as a middle the alleged transaction.

Jousting through the battle dance each contestant moves to find the openings of weakness. The judges decide the winner and the combatants bow to each other in friendship and respect.

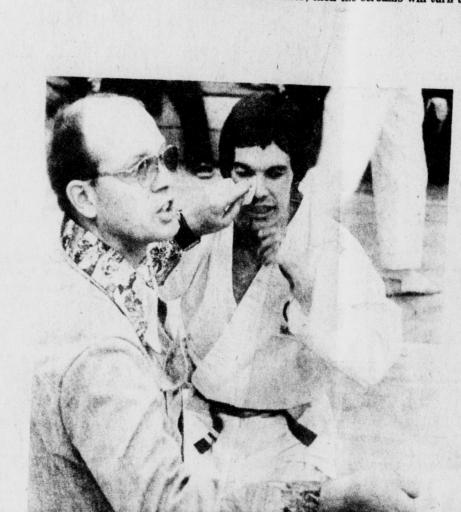

For the individuals involved, the colored belts set up the pecking order of who has advanced how far. Everyone wears the same loose-fitting white garmets. Feet are left bare. In karate the mind and the body are the only weapons used.

Contestants in the lower orders move choppily, looking like playground Bruce Lees. Watching their stiffly held open hands reminds you of the party when a karate chop to a board only yielded pain.

Members of the higher ranks move with the timeless precision of a beast of prey.

Hair matted in sweat, their faces contort as screams summon energy up from the very pit of their bodies. Uncoiling like raged vipers the arms strike out hard and fast.

There will be a winner, then the screams will turn to bows.
