

Study analyzes 'U' faculty salaries

By KAT BROWN
State News Staff Writer

Male assistant professors at MSU receive 14 per cent less in salary than males with similar qualifications. Female assistant professors receive 1.38 per cent more than females with similar qualifications, while women get over 16 per cent more than men.

The figures and others will be included in an analysis of faculty salaries to be presented at an open membership meeting of the American Assn. of University Professors (AAUP) Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Ball Room at the University Club.

Dr. H. Saks, asst. professor of economics, conducted the study with the help of graduate students in a wage theory class. Part of the study ranks departments at MSU by salary, identifies those departments with unusually high and low salaries and reports salary differences between male and female faculty members.

Saks ranked the departments in the University from the highest paid to the lowest paid. He compared each department's faculty using the same average rank, years of experience, years in rank tenure status, source and type of degree, percentage of time bought by the University and sex ratio.

The Dept. of Surgery in the College of Human Medicine was found to be the highest paid department while the School of Nursing in the College of Natural Science was the lowest paid. Out of the 94 departments included in the study, salaries in the Dept. of Surgery averaged 60 per cent higher than departments in the middle. The School of Nursing salaries averaged 50 per cent below the middle departments.

Other departments which had the highest salaries were in the medical schools. Music, Theater, Languages, Humanities, American Thought and Language and Lyman Briggs were some of the departments on the low side of average salaries.

"While it may be easy to understand why the medical schools have to pay so much to attract medical doctors away from their practices, it is not so easy to understand why the lowest-paid departments are so low," Saks said.

Reasons have been given that salaries in music are low because faculty members can charge for lessons given at the University and thus supplement their salaries.

"Unfortunately, the same kinds of stories can be told about some of the higher paid departments," Saks said. "Many colleagues in the College of Business are asserted to pull in handsome consulting fees and many other departments on campus have faculty involved in extension activities."

Saks also found that chairpersons make 13 per cent more than comparable faculty and this figure increases each year the position is held. Former department chairpersons command higher salaries at a yearly declining rate compared with faculty with similar qualifications. Ten years after a chairperson retires, the difference in salary is about three per cent.

Saks said the administration denied his request for information that would minimize costs for the study. He was finally able to complete the report when the national AAUP allocated MSU's chapter $300 of a grant from the Exxon Corp.

Saks said the report will be distributed at no charge to AAUP members and will be sold at the meeting for $1. He is hoping it will be available soon at local bookstores.

Zolton Ferency, associate professor of criminal justice and president of MSU's chapter of the AAUP, said a series of meetings have been scheduled spring term to discuss such subjects as grievance procedure reforms and terminations of faculty for "financial exigencies."

Wednesday's meeting will include a speech on collective bargaining by Francine Wehmer, a professor at Wayne State University and member of the national AAUP.

Union chief pleased with voter turnout

By IRA ELLIOTT
State News Staff Writer

The pleasant spring weather, coupled with a convenient location, drew a steady flow of student workers to the polls Monday for the first three days of voting in the Student Workers Union (SWU) authorization election.

The voter turnout was best during the afternoon hours, particularly between 5 and 6 p.m., when there were sometimes up to five people in line in the voting area, located in the lower lounge of West Hall on Monday.

SWU organizer Doyle O'Connor said he was pleased by the interest shown by students Monday, interest which was currently lacking during the first half of the election held at Demonstration Hall for the first three days of early registration.

The SWU and the University expressed disappointment over the low degree of student participation then.

"I would like to win the election, of course, but win or lose, I'd like to see the best turnout possible. We want the election to be made by all student employees," O'Connor said.

A lot of people are coming to vote from the (east) complex because it's close and they know where the lower lounge is. Most of the dorms are set up about the same. People have more time now than they did during finals week," O'Connor said.

At least three of the persons interviewed in the lower lounge said they voted rather than at early registration because the present location was near their classes.

"I didn't even notice the polls at registration," Jeff Lachman, a receptionist and student of North Hubbard Hall, said.

Lachman, along with eight other voters randomly interviewed Monday afternoon, had he voted against the union. Reasons ranged from feeling satisfied with present jobs to not wanting to pay dues or union fees.

The increased voter interest Monday also be attributed in part to certain administrators in Housing and Food Services permitting their employees to take Ted Kieffer, a Michigan Employment Relations Commission election officer, guards the Student Workers Union election ballot box Monday. Kieffer refused to allow State News photographers into the balloting area in West McDonell Hall while there were student voters present. He did not present any solid legal reason for the exclusion but insisted he would close the polls if any voters were photographed. During a lull in the voting, a State News photographer took this picture.

New coaches named

By JOE KIRBY
State News Sports Writer

MSU made another big step in its rapid rebuilding of the athletic department Monday by naming new head basketball and football coaches.

Darryl Rogers of San Jose (Calif.) State was named as the new football coach and Jud Heathcote of the University of Montana will be the new head man in the basketball program.

Newly appointed athletic director Joe

Kearney — who has been on the job for only five days — recommended the two coaches and the MSU Board of Trustees unofficially confirmed both men in a telephone poll. Formal approval is expected at the April 16 board meeting.

Rogers was given a five-year contract at $34,000 annually and Heathcote was handed a four-year pact at $25,000 a year.

Heathcote, 48, has been head basketball coach at Montana for five years and his teams have compiled a 73-58 record over that period. In 1974-75 he led Montana to 21-4 record and a Big Sky Conference title. In the NCAA playoffs, Montana lost to eventual champion UCLA by three points.

"In Heathcote, Michigan State has one of the finest all-around basketball coaches in the nation," Kearney said. "His teams will feature an aggressive defense and an intricate and interesting offense that is highly productive and crowd-pleasing."

to a new position in the University.

The major reaction among current Spartan coaching staff members was mild surprise due to unfamiliarity with the past records of the two new coaches.

Asst. football coach Bill Davis said he didn't know Rogers but was looking forward to meeting him.

"I just know he turned down a few jobs; I heard he turned down at job at Southern Methodist but other than that, I don't know much about him," Davis said.

Asst. basketball coach Dick Versace, who had applied for the head cage job, said he was looking forward to meeting Heathcote and would consider staying on as an assistant coach.

"I'm pleased with the fact that Kearney acted so quickly," Versace said. "I think that if MSU people are patient with him, they are going to love him."

While people east of the Mississippi may not know much about the new coaches, glowing phrases filled with praise rolled in from the west.

Chet Wood, a sports reporter for the San Jose Mercury News, said of Rogers, "His teams play football like you people haven't seen out there. He throws the ball. Woody Hayes better go out and recruit himself some defensive ends because Darryl Rogers is coming to town."

Linda Robbins, Associate editor at the Montana student newspaper, said of Heathcote, "He has a very good record, considering that the college is so small. He's done a really good job and I think everyone on campus would agree."

Hughes dies unexpectedly

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Howard Hughes, the phantom financier who ruled a business empire valued at more than $2 billion dollars from a series of secret hideaways, died en route to a hospital here for treatment Monday.

Hughes, 70, was being flown from Acapulco, Mexico, where he had lived since early February.

"Today at 1:27 p.m. en route from Acapulco to Houston by air, Mr. Howard R. Hughes expired," Methodist Hospital Vice President Ed McLellan said.

McLellan said Hughes was being rushed to the hospital for treatment when he died. The hospital spokesman said he had no further information to release.

Hughes built a family oil drilling bit business into a diversified complex that over the years included manufacturing of planes, helicopters, spacecraft and electronic devices. He produced movies and owned studios, owned airlines and became a major economic force in Nevada with the purchase of hotels, casinos, land and mines valued at $300 million.

He began building his financial empire in 1923 when he inherited three-fifths interest in the Hughes Tool Co., founded by his father and valued then at $500,000.

He used the Houston-based tool company as a nucleus and began the job of building a $2 billion empire which made him one of the world's richest men.

Rogers, 40, has been head football coach at San Jose State for three years and last season his team won the Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. title with a 9-2 record.

"In Darryl Rogers we are bringing to Michigan State one of the nations bright young football coaches. Coach Rogers will present in Spartan Stadium a wide-open offense featuring a combination of the aerial and ground games," Kearney said.

The two new men will replace football coach Denny Stolz, who was forced to resign because of his involvement in the football recruiting scandal, and basketball coach Gus Ganakas, who is being reassigned to a new position in the University.

The major reaction among current Spartan coaching staff members was mild surprise due to unfamiliarity with the past records of the two new coaches.

Asst. football coach Bill Davis said he didn't know Rogers but was looking forward to meeting him.

"I just know he turned down a few jobs; I heard he turned down at job at Southern Methodist but other than that, I don't know much about him," Davis said.

Asst. basketball coach Dick Versace, who had applied for the head cage job, said he was looking forward to meeting Heathcote and would consider staying on as an assistant coach.

"I'm pleased with the fact that Kearney acted so quickly," Versace said. "I think that if MSU people are patient with him, they are going to love him."

While people east of the Mississippi may not know much about the new coaches, glowing phrases filled with praise rolled in from the west.

Chet Wood, a sports reporter for the San Jose Mercury News, said of Rogers, "His teams play football like you people haven't seen out there. He throws the ball. Woody Hayes better go out and recruit himself some defensive ends because Darryl Rogers is coming to town."

Linda Robbins, Associate editor at the Montana student newspaper, said of Heathcote, "He has a very good record, considering that the college is so small. He's done a really good job and I think everyone on campus would agree."

BAN, TAX, AMENDMENT APPROVED Proposals OK'd on ballot

By MICKI MAYNARD
State News Staff Writer

MSU students approved three proposals on the spring election ballot. These included a recommendation that the MSU Board of Trustees enact a smoking ban in all areas, a proposal to put the State tax to a vote and an amendment to ASMSU constitution.

Proposition B, which if passed by the board would prohibit smoking in all areas of academic activity takes place, passed with a vote of 7,411 to 1,980.

Stebbins, an MSU student who headed the movement for the campus smoking ban, said he was not surprised at the proposal's victory and expressed optimism that the board of trustees would approve the measure.

"It isn't a matter of if they will approve it, it's a matter of when," Stebbins said. "Actually, they have two options — they can just consider it or they can approve it right away."

Al Ballard, secretary to the board of trustees, said he doubted the measure would appear on the agenda at the next board meeting, set for April 16.

In another proposal on the spring election ballot, students voted 6,644 to 2,695 in favor of holding a referendum on as to whether or not the State News $1 per term fee should be continued.

Curtis Stranathan, a member of the outgoing ASMSU board who backed the proposal, said he was not surprised at the proposition's passage. Stranathan said there could be a problem in presenting the proposal to the trustees because of the State News' corporation status.

Currently students are assessed $1 per term or about 2 cents a day for the paper. Michael Lenz, the newly elected ASMSU president, said he felt the vote accurately reflected student opinion.

Dissidents defy officials, maintain strike, picketing

DETROIT (UPI) — Dissident Teamster Union members defied their national and local leaders Monday and maintained picket lines at most area trucking terminals, prompting a call for an emergency union meeting.

Local 299 President David Johnson, faced with a revolt by hundreds of the 5,000 local members, summoned the membership to an afternoon meeting at Cobo hall to explain the new national trucking contract and urge a return to work.

Scattered violence, including at least two shooting incidents and one arrest, was also reported on the day that most truckers around the nation ended their three-day strike, the union's first national effort ever.

"We have a few dissidents who have managed a little support," Local 229 spokesman Earl Grayhek said. "We called the meeting to explain all we know about the package and insist they go back to work."

Angry Local 299 members, seeking a continuation of the strike until the contract is ratified, picketed major terminals and congregated at key traffic points such as the Ambassador Bridge linking Detroit with Windsor, Ont.

A spokesman for Teamsters for a Decent Contract (TDC) accused the local of ignoring their concerns about the contract settlement reached during the weekend in Chicago.

"We're counting on the pickets alone being enough to get the employers to call the local and force them to come out and talk to us," TDC spokesman Gene Fleszar said before the Cobo Hall meeting was announced.

Confusion and discontent with money and procedural portions of the national agreement reportedly prompted the renewed picketing at most metropolitan terminals.

The most serious shooting incident was along I-94 between Marshall and Albion early Monday. One truck was hit with four bullets in its radiator, tires and fender. Another was hit in the radiator. Both vehicles were disabled, but the drivers were not injured.

Detroit policemen scuffle with dissident Teamsters at the Ambassador Bridge, an entry from Canada, as trucks roll through the picket line to I-75. Police formed a convoy when dissidents blocked passage of about a dozen trucks halting entry into the United States Monday morning in Detroit.

Strikers await Betty's reply

NEW YORK (AP) — A six-city strike against NBC that has disrupted many network programs continued Monday as the union awaited First Lady Betty Ford's answer to a plea not to cross picket lines.

The strike by the 1,700-member National Assn. of Broadcast Employees and Technicians came after the union rejected an NBC offer of a 5 per cent pay increase. Wages of the technicians now average $375 a week.

Ford and a number of other women, including tennis star Billie Jean King, Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., and performers Carol Burnett, Marlo Thomas, Pearl Bailey, Kate Smith and Petula Clark, are scheduled to appear Thursday night on an NBC "Women of the Year" award program.

Ford denies Kissinger out

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's spokesman denied Monday that any effort is being made to ease Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger out of the Administration. The denial came after Ford's campaign manager said Kissinger may resign before next year.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said he could deny that an effort was being made to ease Kissinger out.

Nessen was asked about Kissinger at his regular news briefing. The questions were prompted by statements Saturday by Rogers C. B. Morton, the President's new campaign manager, and Sunday by Undersecretary of Commerce James Baker.

In his prediction of Kissinger's possible resignation, Morton told a private meeting of 15 leaders of the grassroots California Republican Assembly that the secretary "is getting toward the end of a long political career."

Russian subs leak radiation

LONDON (AP) — Reactors on some of the Soviet Union's nuclear-powered submarines have leaked radioactively contaminated waste and caused radiation sickness among crew members, a London newspaper reports.

The London Sunday Telegraph said Norwegian sources had reported on the leakage, apparently caused by design problems, to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"The Norwegian air force patrolling in the far north where Norway has a common frontier with Russia is particularly well placed to observe Russian warships returning to and leaving their bases in the Kola Peninsula from where most Russian nuclear submarines operate," wrote naval correspondent Desmond Wettern.

Guerillas escape from jail

MADRID (AP) — Twenty-nine prisoners, most of them Basque guerrillas convicted of terrorist attacks, escaped Monday from the Segovia prison by tunneling into the city sewer system, the official CIFRA news agency reported.

The mass breakout came as police announced the arrests of 50 members of the outlawed Basque ETA organization over the weekend. ETA are the initials for the Basque Land and Liberty group that has been battling for 15 years to gain independence for the Basque area in northern Spain.

A high official said the government had evidence that leftists plan to try and topple the four-month-old government of King Juan Carlos on May 1 — international Labor Day. Because of the plot, the government is changing its priority from democratic reform to maintaining law and order, he said.

Soviet navy rights canceled

PARIS (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat says he canceled the Soviet navy's rights to use Egyptian ports when he terminated the 15-year Soviet-Egyptian friendship treaty last month.

His statement at a news conference Sunday confirmed earlier reports that the Soviet navy's rights to use the Mediterranean ports of Port Said, Alexandria and Matruh had been ended.

Sadat said the friendship treaty was canceled because the Soviets were putting pressure on Egypt by refusing to let India provide spare parts for Soviet arms previously supplied to Egypt.

Sadat also expressed concern that the Kremlin might be planning to set up bases in Libya and said he believed the Soviets might supply the Libyan regime of Col. Moammar Khadafy with $11 billion in arms.

Lebanese seek new president

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese political chieftains maneuvered over the choice of a new president Monday, working against time to find a peaceful settlement to their long civil war.

The leader of leftist Moslem forces, Kamal Jumblatt, called a 10-day "trial truce" on Friday to allow time to replace Franjeh. The 65-year-old Maronite Christian leader has become a symbol of Christian resistance to Moslem demands for reform.

Raymond Edde, 63, a Maronite Christian, was judged by observers the most likely so far to take over from Franjeh.

Schmidt has election setback

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's coalition suffered another setback Sunday as Baden-Wuerttemberg state elections continued a swing to the right by West German voters.

The conservative Christian Democratic Union capped two years of almost unbroken regional election victories by increasing its ruling majority in the state parliament of Baden-Wuerttemberg, whose voters are a sixth of the national electorate.

The Christian Democrats increase their vote by 3.8 percentage points to 56.7 per cent and took 71 of the 121 seats in the new legislature, six more than their number in the 120-member parliament elected in April 1972.

Chinese stage demonstration

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese threw stones at security men and set fire to three motor vehicles as tens of thousands, in an unusual outburst, demonstrated in Peking's main square Monday to protest the removal of wreaths honoring the late Premier Chou En-lai, reports from the Chinese capital said.

There was no clear information on what the protest signified politically, nor any mention of the incident by the official Hsinhua news agency.

However, an informant in Peking reached by telephone said the demonstration had overtones of resistance to the campaign against Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, whom the moderate Chou had favored to succeed him. Soon after the premier's death on Jan. 8, Teng came under criticism as a "capitalist-roader."

Japan's Kyodo news agency reported from Peking that a taped statement by Wu Teh, first secretary of the Peking

Municipal Revolutionary Committee, repeatedly asked people in Tien An Men Square on Monday evening to leave immediately — "Don't be deceived by bad people."

Kyodo said that at first a considerable number remained in the square, whose name means Gate of Heavenly Peace, despite the loudspeaker statement that the unrest was "a subversive activity against Chairman Mao Tse-tung and the party central committee."

Order was restored and people left the square by midnight, Kyodo said. It said witnesses reported some radical elements among the demonstrators apparently were taken away by military men.

The news agency said about 1,000 militiamen were standing guard.

Japan's press reports said students of Tsinghua University were beaten by some of the demonstrators, who demanded, "Why do you oppose Premier Chou?" Tsinghua is a center for the campaign against Teng.

A report by the Peking correspondent of the official Hungarian news agency MTI said there were placards attacking Chiang Ching-kuo, wife, believed to be one of the leaders of the campaign against Teng of trying to reverse Mao's policies and to capitalism.

Chou rehabilitated from disgrace suffered in 1966-69 Cultural Revolution. Teng became vice premier, party vice chairman and forces chief of staff and been expected to succeed as premier.

Instead, security chief Kuo-feng was named premier. Teng has not been heard of since Chou's Jan. 15 and has come increasingly severe attacks on the official press.

Mass demonstrations for Chou began last Friday part of the annual Ching festival to pay respects to dead.

House approves flu bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill authorizing a nationwide influenza immunization program this fall was passed Monday by the House and sent to the Senate.

A separate bill, appropriating the $135 million that President Ford sought for this emergency program, was set for House action later. It was approved last Friday by the Appropriations Committee.

The program authorization bill cleared the House by voice vote. It emerged earlier in the day from the Commerce Committee's health subcommittee and was brought directly to the full House for action.

Subcommittee Chairman Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., said he expects there will be "fast action in the Senate."

In 1918-19, flu killed 20 million persons worldwide, including 548,000 in the United States.

There is indirect evidence that a virus found earlier this year among military recruits at Ft. Dix, N.J., is similar to the World War I virus.

The President told Congress on March 25 that he is advised there is a "very real possibility that unless we take effective counteraction, there could be an epidemic of this dangerous disease next fall and winter" in the United States.

Ford said an immunization program must be in full operation by the beginning of September and be completed by the end of November.

Rogers said the health subcommittee produced a quick bill because of Ford's request for fast action. "Even though we think it is a little rapid, we are trying to accommodate the president," Rogers said.

The program authorization bill was endorsed by Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., senior GOP member of the subcommittee.

Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., the No. 2 House Republican, urged that the Senate be cautioned to keep this bill limited to just the flu issue, rather than attempting to load on other matters that could delay signing by Ford.

Under the authorization bill, there would be a national flu immunization program including development of an effective

British leader selected

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary James Callaghan, a moderate who favors strong ties with the United States, was chosen by fellow Laborites as Britain's prime minister Monday.

He then accepted Queen Elizabeth II's formal offer to serve by kissing her hand. He was driven from Buckingham Palace to 10 Downing Street in a quiet transfer of power.

Callaghan earlier promised the Labor members of Parliament who chose him as their leader to forget past domestic political battles and "wipe the slate clean," but warned rival Labor factions not to "foist their views on the party as a whole."

Callaghan's victory over radical left-wing Employment Secretary Michael Foot to replace the retiring Harold Wilson foreshadowed wary, safety-first policies for Britain.

The nation is beset by acute problems of inflation, a declining currency, unemployment and grinding civil strife in Northern Ireland.

Callaghan, a 64-year-old political jack-of-all-trades, won 176 of the votes cast by 313 of the 317 Labor members of the House of Commons eligible to participate in the ballot.

Three Laborites who have quit the party caucus because of policy differences, and one Laborite whose election has been questioned, stayed out of the balloting.

After half a century in labor unionism and politics, Callaghan's big chance for the premiership came March 16 when Wilson announced his decision to retire on grounds of age.

Wilson, 60, has headed four different governments, chalking up years of premiership, a record in this century for any peacetime British leader.

As soon as the result of the ballot was declared, Callaghan issued a promise and a warning to a packed meeting of Laborites in the Palace of Westminster, which houses the Parliament.

"There will be no insiders and no outsiders and no cliques in my administration," he promised. "So far as the past is concerned I shall wipe the slate clean and I ask everyone else to do the same."

Then came his warning that he shall not be willing to accept a situation in which minority groups in the parliament Labor party maneuver to their views on the party as a whole. I mean especially left-wing Tribune and New Left Manifesto groups. Now you holds the Ark of Covenant."

The party's new leader shall not be willing to accept a situation in which minority groups in the parliament Labor party maneuver to their views on the party as a whole. I mean especially left-wing Tribune and New Left Manifesto groups. Now you holds the Ark of Covenant."

He announced he would set up the cabinet and government which, together, number 100 ministers. Each minister under the British system, his office at the disposal of incoming leader.

It was plain, nonetheless that some strong, key minister will stay put.

Forecasts suggest the Labor government is in position to make easy progress. He announced he would set up the cabinet and government which, together, number 100 ministers. Each minister under the British system, his office at the disposal of incoming leader.

Irresponsible protest will only hurt election

Wisconsin has long been famous as "America's Dairyland," but it soon may be equally famous for other, less beneficial, products. The actions of a few protesters during last week's preprimary appearances of George Wallace and Henry Jackson seem remarkable for their utter lack of relation to standards of good taste and to the long history of peaceful protest.

To Wallace, the protesters were particularly — and unnecessarily — cruel. They sported Arthur Bremer masks — Wallace's assailant in 1972 — and wheel chairs, all the while shouting for Wallace to "stand up and be counted."

Likewise, Jackson experienced the displeasure of the crowd when someone expressed an "eloquent" gesture. Jackson was spat upon.

While protest and dissent are legitimate and should be encouraged, it is disturbing to see the form they have taken in Wisconsin.

However, it is not simply the standards of polite behavior which suffer from such actions, but also the character of American elections, which are defaced by such outrages.

The increasing danger from a crowd, either from violence or other forms of abuse, only makes candidates reluctant to present themselves to live audiences.

They become more inclined to take the campaign to the media, where presentation is slick, safe and without the scrutiny which a spontaneous meeting with a live audience can give.

Such a result will be a sorrow not merely for those fond of the traditional campaign, but also for those of us who must choose between two candidates on the basis of commercials.

Those seeking to refute the views of Wallace and Jackson — or any other candidate — should do so by intellectual criticism, disagreement or legitimate protest and not by shallow, tasteless displays such as those in Wisconsin.

Taunts, threats and childish disruptions will never take the place of peaceful disagreement, careful intellectual scrutiny and face to face meetings between candidates and voters in our electoral process.

Trustees: ban butts

Sure, smokers have rights. What smokers do not have right to do, however, is filth in the air around them with stale exhalations.

Inconsiderate smokers on campus have been buried under a landslide of butts and ashes in the ASMSU spring election calling for a University ordinance against smoke and smog in all areas of academic activity.

The board of trustees must approve a smoking ban without further ado, for the overwhelming majority of voter support for a smoking ban is a most effective demonstration of the desire for unsullied air. If the board members can see themselves through the clouds of their own bureaucratic smokescreen, they should be able to see that the students are calling for swift action.

Once the ordinance goes into effect, only the students can make its successful enforcement. Backed by the new ordinance, fresh-air freaks may now speak in their own defense and, without fear or hesitation, ask smokers to remove themselves, their butts and their ashes to the area where smoking will be permitted: out the hall.

refuse to communicate with the USSR, is being suggested. He believes that the communications ought not to encourage Soviet Union in its growing obsession to dominate the world and obliterate disease.

Time says of Solzhenitsyn that "a prophet he has a vision so simple, so minded and absolute that it cannot be with a real and complex world." People have less simple, less single-minded, absolute visions have done very poorly coping with a real and complex world. generation ago the Soviet Union was a threat only to its own citizens. Now it is a master in Angola and petrifier of thought and vision of the worldly editors of the most cosmopolitan magazine in the world.

Solzhenitsyn's vision is as simple as Cato's; as naive as Churchill's. The effect of his words is that, on listening them, those of the Lowenthal's blur stantly from memory.

The Washington Star

William F. Buckley

Understanding Solzhenitsyn's warning

Well, this isn't true. Solzhenitsyn is not advocating nuclear war. Nor is he advocating policies that would lead to a nuclear war. He is advocating policies that would save the West from the attrition of its power and prestige. As regards nuclear arms, Solzhenitsyn states specifically that he doubts they would ever be used by the Soviet Union. Because the "Soviet Union does not even need nuclear arms; you can be taken with bare hands."

It is with bare hands that the Soviet Union espies victory in Italy, followed by victory in France. In its most important salient in Portugal last year, a total of six people were killed, and the westernmost member of NATO very nearly slipped into the Soviet camp. That is what Solzhenitsyn means by the use of bare hands. The reflection is not on the strength of the Soviet Union, but on the weakness of the West.

Time magazine, seeking to undermine the effect of Solzhenitsyn's broadcast, appeals to authority. "Most sober observers of world affairs are not likely to fall under his spell. Example: Sovietologist Richard Lowenthal has sorrowfully expressed his amazement at Solzhenitsyn's utter discord with the facts of recent international history." Lowenthal points out that not all defeats for the West, as for instance in Indochina, are caused by surrender... but can be the result of local forces."

To bring on Sovietologist Richard Lowenthal to confute the vision of Solzhenitsyn is on the order of invoking Naziologist Walter Winchell to dispose of a speech by Winston Churchill. It is as obvious that many defeats are caused by internal conditions, as it was obvious to Churchill that Europe had to fear the strength of Hitler only in context of the weakness of France and Great Britain. No doubt the French, adequately prepared, fired by a more galvanizing vision, would have stood up to Hitler, rather than capitulate; indeed, would have stood up to Hitler before it became necessary to capitulate. The disease of the '30s afflicts us yet again, Solzhenitsyn is saying. And all the more strongly because the moment we seek to resist the trend we are made, by such as the editors of Time magazine, to taste atomic cinders in our mouths.

Solzhenitsyn does not believe one should editorial I disagree with calls for increased militance by gay people. Violently radical SDS-type action carried out by MSU Gay Liberation would only give the FBI and National Guard the excuse they've been praying for to kill gay people in a number of Kent State-type massacres.

Militance can characterize an orientation or attitude as easily as it can a physical action. Nonviolence has been often labeled "militant," not because of physical actions, but because of the strength of the protesters' resolve. Also, the editorial implored all people, not just gays, to combat the effects of the ruling. —Ed.

Gay rights

I am in partial agreement with the State News editorial of March 30, "Court Decks Gay Rights."

I agree that the United States Supreme Court has declared the Bill of Rights null and void for homosexuals. I would go so far as to compare this court decision with the Plessey vs. Ferguson ruling which said that black people should be kept "separate but equal." In both cases the court did not have a member of the affected minority group among its members. Thus bigoted, inaccurate judgments were made.

Had the court looked at the issue of gay rights objectively, it would have seen that the issue of sodomy law repeal does indeed affect heterosexual marriages. Page 57 of the September 1, 1975, issue of Newsweek magazine reports that the vast majority of heterosexuals engage in the same activities that the court would call "criminal."

Only a hypocrite could say that all heterosexual marriages are inherently "moral." A devout Roman Catholic would have to agree that heterosexual relations carried on with the use of birth control pills are "immoral relationships."

The part of the "Court Decks Gay Rights"

April fool?

Bob Ourlian's column concerning President Wharton's commencement speech was an excellent example of "Buchwaldian satire." Did I detect overtones of Orwell and Huxley? Or was I reading too much into the piece?

Bob's story was very effective in getting a reaction from me as I'm sure it was meant to; however I'm not sure I got the right message.

I agree that we must be very careful when we grant this University control of our heads. I, for one, think I still hold the "deed" to mine. I draw this conclusion from the fact that I have so many different sources of knowledge and opinions pouring my way that I am confused almost to a point of no direction. If Wharton or MSU or anybody else had my head under wraps this wouldn't be the case. I would know what to think and what to major in without any doubts, with a warm feeling of security and knowledge of truth.

It is possible that I am in a state of delusion, thinking that I still have control of my mind and future. Regardless, I will attempt to take what I learn, find a direction and do what I want with it.

I hope Bob was trying to tell us to be careful and that he isn't suggesting unconditional surrender to the inevitable. The fact that he can write a column like that at all indicates to me that we must be objective and awake, not that we've given over the keys to our minds.

I think 1984 is a little more than eight years away, and I certainly feel that it hasn't arrived early. Am I an April fool?

Dreams

Is it wrong to dream?
My dream is to be a football coach. I realize that the proper way to be a football coach at a major college like MSU is to go to a high school, make a name for yourself, get appointed to a small-time college and work your way up, but this would have been very difficult if not impossible for me.

Presently I am one of many unemployed college graduates and am sick of my situation. I admit I have done many "strange" things, but these were done to increase the morale of the athletes.

I am considered a "card" by them because if anything wild is to be done, I'm the one to do it. I can't help it if I like people; it's one of my many hangups.

At the present time I am down on my luck, but I am sure things will get better, they have to!

Thanking you in advance,
Dan Kovacs

Vote on fees

While I don't agree with the original motives for ASMSU's suit against the State News tax, I would like to take it one step further.

I propose that the students be allowed to vote on all the student taxes and that there should be a check-off tax, not a refundable tax as it is now.

This would allow the students the choice of paying or not paying any or all of the taxes without the inconvenience of having to go to several locations to get a refund. An alternative to this could be a central location where a student could obtain all refunds if he wants to.

The day Boffo beat White Thunder on TV

WASHINGTON — The most popular type of commercial on television these days is a man coming up to a typical housewife in a supermarket or laundromat and asking her to try two products — one which his company is selling and one manufactured by a rival company. Invariably the skeptical housewife chooses the product being advertised.

It may have gone through some viewers' minds that there must be cases where the housewife preferred the rival's product over the one the man is pushing. But we never see these on TV.

I wonder what the television commercial people would do if something like this happened:

The scene is a laundromat. A TV crew comes in, sets up its cameras and lights. A good-looking announcer, his hand holding a microphone, stops the first lady who comes in. "I beg your pardon, ma'am. What is your name?"

"Janet Diamond, and I'm a housewife and I have three children who just can't seem to stay out of the dirt."

"And what kind of soap do you use, Mrs. Diamond?"

"Boffo. I've been using it for years."

Art Buchwald

"Well, we're going to try a little experiment today, Mrs. Diamond. Are you game?"

"Sure."

"We're going to take half your laundry and wash it with Boffo. And we're going to take the other half and wash it with the all-new powerful White Thunder, made especially for getting dirt out of children's clothes."

"All right."

"First we're going to blindfold you, Mrs. Diamond, to make sure this is a completely honest test. There we are. You can't see, can you?"

"Nope."

"Good, now here is a box. Put a cup in the machine. That's fine. Now come here. Put this cup into this machine. I've divided your laundry in half. We push the button and now we wait."

"All right, Mrs. Diamond, take off your blindfold. Look at these two batches of clothes. Which one is brighter, lighter and whiter?"

"This one."

The announcer gulps. "Please take another look, Mrs. Diamond. Which pile of clothes has none of those dirty leftover stains that make washing such a chore?"

"This pile here. The clothes really do seem whiter."

"CUT!" the director yells. "What the hell is going on?"

The announcer says, "She keeps saying the pile of clothes washed with Boffo is cleaner than the one washed with White Thunder."

"Are you crazy or something?" the director yells at Mrs. Diamond. "You're supposed to say that pile is whiter."

Mrs. Diamond is about to cry. "But you wanted me to tell the truth."

"Who said we wanted you to tell the truth? We wanted you to say White Thunder made your clothes whiter."

"Then why did you blindfold me? We didn't you just tell me which pile to say whiter?"

"Because we wanted the test to be honest, stupid!" the director yells.

"Don't call me stupid. And I want cents from you so I can wash this White Thunder pile of clothes over again. Look the stains still left on them."

The director holds his head in his hands. "I'm going to cut my wrists."

Mrs. Diamond holds her hands out. "Fifty cents, please."

The director hands her 50 cents and yells to his crew. "Pack it up. We're getting out of this madhouse."

As they're leaving Mrs. Diamond says, "When will this be shown on television? I have to call my mother and tell her to sure and watch."

The director replies, "The night Dan Schorr replaces Walter Cronkite as anchor man on the CBS News."

out in favor of a student workers union but vehemently opposed to the current leadership of SWU. My reasons were simple: the leaders of SWU have been more interested in "Cainfrontation" politics than in the welfare of student workers.

At the polls, I was contested for being a student supervisor. I am not and have never been a student supervisor. This was even brought out when I was appointed by the ASMSU Board to the Student Employee Relations Committee. But SWU had its reasons.

I, Linda Tlusty, am the outgoing University College Rep. to ASMSU. I also had objections to the SWU leadership. My votes on SWU financing have made my position clear.

I also am not and have never been a student supervisor. I believe the leaders of SWU all knew this. I feel I have the right to vote like anyone else, but I have not been allowed to do so.

We think you should consider what the effect of challenges will be on those students challenged. Not only is there the potential for our votes not even being counted, but we also face personal risk if they are counted.

On April 5, 6 and 7, student workers have a chance to accept or reject the present Student Workers Union. We would like to explain why it is important that you vote, because our votes may or may not be counted.

I, Philip Elliott, ran last year and this year for ASMSU president. During both elections and the year in between, I came

Hubert Humphrey: it's more than nostalgia that keeps him around

NEW YORK — Mayor Abraham Beame, with a touch of mischief unexpected from so burdened a man, declared that Hubert Humphrey should have been on the morning panel of presidential candidates.

"After all," he said slyly, "he was a mayor." And could still be president, was the thought in the Astor Room of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Humphrey was among old friends at the Democratic Mayors Conference, and he put on a stellar performance. The three avowed contenders had been bunched together, tethered to gritty questions about "counter-cyclical aid" and regressive real estate taxes.

Humphrey, soloing, soared. He sounded trumpet calls, struck deep symphonic chords, brought cheers and tears.

The anti-war liberals who rejected him in

Mary McGroarty

1968 and now unabashedly yearn for him shouted with joy to hear him speak of a Marshall Plan for the cities.

"Why is it we could plan the rebuilding of Berlin and London and we can't plan to rebuild the cities of America?" A Waldorf waiter, who had hung around to listen, joined vigorously in the applause.

The three country boys — from Washington State, Arizona and Georgia — had spoken of New York as of a foreign country. Humphrey, the seasoned urbanist, brought the distressed city into the room — the shame of the slums, crime, malnutrition, drugs, all untouched by the grandeur and splendor that stands a few blocks away.

Humphrey, who has, he says, done everything but insult people to convince them he is not a candidate — at least in the primaries — was proving something to Jimmy Carter, who last week suggested Humphrey was too long in the tooth to be a threat. He was proving that something more than nostalgia stirs Democrats who refuse to board the Carter bandwagon. When it comes to bonfire-lighting rhetoric and unfurling old liberal dreams, nobody is a match for the scarred but still buoyant Humphrey.

Carter, an hour earlier, had been upstairs in the Louis VI room demonstrating how he has infiltrated Humphrey's most loving constituency, the blacks. The gathering had the tone of a revival meeting: black ministers called out "all right" and "you are telling the truth," as Carter explained how well he understood how badly they had been treated.

He called himself "Brother Jimmy," he told them he wanted the same "intimacy" with them as president as he enjoyed as candidate. He spoke in accents many of his audience had heard telling them to get off the sidewalk in the South they had fled — "refugees in every sense of the word," one black woman said bitterly.

He told anecdotes which told them how different he was and suggested they might have stayed in the "new South" which he represents.

Beside him stood Andrew Young, the attractive young congressman from Georgia, who had been Martin Luther King Jr.'s deputy and who, with "Daddy" King, had been "Brother Jimmy's" advance man in the precincts once owned by Hubert Humphrey.

Afterwards, an elderly black came up to Young and said disapprovingly, "He's a cracker."

"A cracker in the best sense of the word," Young replied quickly. "He understands black folk, but he doesn't alienate bigots."

Black voters are reticent this year and wary. Basil Paterson, former Democratic National Committee vice chairman, said, "They are still warm for Hubert. He speaks about our issues, he is in the mold of candidate blacks would be happy to run. But we don't know what he's going to do."

Newark's black mayor, Kenneth Gibson, who faces a primary in New Jersey the first week in June, said there was nobody like Hubert, but "if a man wants the presidency, he's got to say he wants it."

Detroit's black mayor, Coleman Young, said Hubert Humphrey had been "a jewel of consistency as an advocate of cities" and was the first choice of many of his constituents.

But Young wants to go to the convention — which Humphreyites hope will be brokered — and he is entering his name in the Michigan primary as a Carter delegate.

"He was absolutely superb," said a moist-eyed New York liberal leaving the Astor Room. "If only he would give us a signal."

Humphrey is keeping his hands in his pockets these days. Friendly New York upstarts have pledged themselves to be his delegates in three districts. It may be his last chance.

Jimmy Carter has all but said that Humphrey is the past and that he is the future. He may be right. But if he doesn't have most of the delegates he needs by the time he comes to New York for the convention, Carter better make sure Humphrey doesn't give a speech before the balloting begins. The unhappy old warrior can still bring Democrats to their feet.

Positive attitude marks new rep

By SUZIE ROLLINS

State News Staff Writer

The newly elected Academic Council at-large representatives are looking forward to the 1976-77 academic year with a positive attitude.

"I would like to see minimum English language requirements in speaking competency for foreign TA's established," incumbent Denise Gordon said. She would also like to continue reforming the registration process.

Barbara Jo Kimiko Mayeda, a newcomer to the council, wants students to have a voice in determining how much a test should count toward the student's final grade.

"Finals shouldn't be such a high per cent of the grade," she said. "There should be more tests."

Another new representative does not yet have any specific goals she would like to work on, but anticipates a successful year for minority students.

"I just want to get involved," Christel Lynn Roberts said. Paula Fotchman, asst. director of student activities, shares the representatives' positive attitudes.

"The council has gone through several years of turmoil but now has reached an upward climb," she said.

The Academic Council is the highest academic governing body with student representatives. It participates in decisions on all major issues relating to educational policy in the University.

The winners of Section 1, which required the student to be a nonwhite male or female, are incumbent Ross Holland, receiving 2,033 votes; Christel Lynn Roberts, 2,307 votes and Randall Mosley, 1,691 votes.

The winners of Section 2, the category for nonwhite females, are Barbara Jo Kimiko Mayeda, 1,708 votes, and Sharon Berry, 1,443 votes.

Section 3, the undesignated category, provided for the possible election of a white male this year for the first time because the Student Council was attacked last year on charges of reverse discrimination against white males. But the winner was incumbent Denise Gordon with 1,165 votes.

The other candidates in Section 1 were Tyrone Forrell, 1,583 votes; Murline Holmes, 1,370 votes, and Mary Berry Jr., 1,140 votes. Section 2: Valeria Dennis, 1,175 votes; Mary Haynes, 1,166 votes; Evangeline Vincent, 840 votes; Section 3: Gary Neal, 1,165 votes; Alicia Wiley, 883 votes; Merrill Farhat, 603 votes; John D. Rayis, 416 votes.

Advisory council proposes for international program

The Academic Council will consider a proposal today to form an Advisory/Consultative Committee to the dean of International Studies and Programs.

The proposal, which will be presented by Gerald Miller, chairperson of the University Committee on Academic Governance, is designed to provide students and faculty with "broad-based participation...in the policy-making of the Office of International Studies and Programs."

The advisory committee would be made up of 16 faculty members to be chosen from the advisory councils of all colleges, with at least two from the Faculty Council, plus one non-college faculty member, one faculty member from the three residential colleges, two graduate students and two undergraduate students.

The committee, accountable to the Academic Council, would advise the dean of International Studies and Programs on all projects of that office, including the coordination of the University's overseas projects with MSU's academic program the recruitment of MSU faculty and staff for the projects, the academic propriety of overseas projects (both present and proposed), foreign student affairs, student study abroad, exchange relationships with foreign institutions and international studies.

"It will serve a monitoring function," Miller said, "hopefully to avoid projects which are politically and morally antithetical to the educational values of the University."

The Academic Council will also discuss a report from the University Committee on Curriculum which proposes changes in the Dept of Health and Physical Recreation (HPR) major and asks for many new HPR courses. The Curriculum Committee will also ask that the professional work experience requirement be reinstated for the undergraduate major in Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management, effective spring 1976.

The Academic Council will meet today at 3:15 p.m. in Con Con Room of the International Center. The Faculty Council will meet in the room at 1 p.m. to discuss discussion on revisions to procedure for dismissal of untenured faculty.

(AP) — "No doubt about it, but saved me," said a student who stepped into a hole in a 16-foot-deep drainage shaft. Anna Mingo, 18, a statistics major, was cleaning up after work in a room at the hotel where she stepped over a hole in the floor.

"It suddenly tilted and I went," she said. "But my stopped me from going down. I was stuck fast until men hauled me out."

Seminar to study science foundation

Some changes in the grant review procedures and organizational structure of the National Science Foundation (NSF) will be discussed in a seminar at MSU Wednesday at 3 p.m. in 321 Baker Hall.

The NSF is a federal agency congressionally appropriated and established to allocate funds for research, for the training of scientists and for increasing public understanding of science.

The seminar will be sponsored by the Dept. of Anthropology and the College of Social Science. Nancie Gonzalez, anthropology program director of the NSF, will describe changes in the NSF and how they may affect the funding of research in the social and psychological sciences.

Iwao Ishino, asst. dean of International Studies and Programs, said that Gonzalez will be at MSU to attend a health workshop and to assist faculty members and graduate students in determining the new structure and review process of the NSF.

Ishino said the changes in the NSF pertain only to future research proposals and will not affect a grant recently awarded to MSU.

MSU is among six colleges and universities in the state that have just received over $95,000 in grants from the NSF. The grants are designed to help underwrite science research projects involving undergraduate students.

William H. Kelly, associate chairman and professor of physics, said that MSU was given $16,500 that will be used for energy-related topics. Ten juniors and seniors from the Physics Dept. will be chosen later this month to participate in the research.

Applications for the project are available in the Physics Undergraduate office in 106 Physics Astronomy Bldg.

All faculty members and graduate students who are interested in discussing the changes in the NSF may meet with Gonzalez for individual conferences from 9 a.m. to noon Wednesday. Appointments can be made at the Dept. of Anthropology in 354 Baker Hall, or by calling 353-2950.

Women tracksters look to repeat good season

After a strong indoor winter track season, the MSU women's track team shows good signs of a repeat performance of last year's outstanding spring season.

MSU tied for fourth in the national championships last spring and has all but one member of last year's team returning.

"I hope we are at least as good as last year, but the competition will be tougher this year," asst. coach Mark Pittman said. "But our first goal for the season will be the Big Ten championship."

The Big Ten championship meet will be April 30 and May 1.

Last year MSU won all four of its dual meets and placed first in the five invitational meets that it competed in.

The team, coached by Nell Jackson, sent seven women to the Florida Relays at Gainesville, Fla., over spring break. Sue Latter won the 400-meter dash with a 55.7 time, while Elaine Carr placed fourth in that event. Latter's time was among the top five in the nation at this time.

Lil Warnes captured first in the 3-mile with a time of 17:30. Karen McKeachie placed second and Kay Richards took fifth. In the 1,500-meter run, Warnes ran a 4:38.1 which was good for second place. Richards and McKeachie placed fourth and fifth respectively.

Laurel Vietzke took third in the long jump with an 18-foot 1 inch leap.

MSU is now preparing for its first big meet of the spring season, the Ohio State Invitational at Columbus, Ohio, on April 10.

The Spartans have a strong team with lots of depth and should do well in the meet.

"We have four outstanding distance runners — Diane Culp, McKeachie, Warnes and Richards. "We are still unsure about our sprinters, but have good representation in the field events," Pittman said.

Vietzke should show strength in the long jump, Barb Grider is strong in the shot put and freshman Anita Lee should be good in the high jump.

MSU's first home meet will be April 17 against Tennessee.

I.M. Notes

Important managers' meetings for all teams interested in playing softball will be held at 6:30 p.m. today and Wednesday. Each league must send a representative to the sports arena of the Men's IM Building for one of these meetings. Deadline for entry is Thursday at 8 p.m.

Leagues will be available for fraternity, residence hall, independent A (competitive) and independent B (recreational) teams. All teams will have a $10 entry fee.

A co-rec one pitch softball team representatives meeting and an officials' clinic are both scheduled for today at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m., respectively, in 128 Women's IM Bldg.

All entries for the women's racquetball ladder tournament must be turned in at 200 Men's IM Bldg. by 8 p.m. on Friday.

There will be a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in 215 Men's IM Bldg. to talk over the possibility of a spring soccer league.

Schedules will be available for women's blooperball at 5 p.m. and one-pitch softball at noon on Friday in 121 Women's IM Bldg.

PLANETARIUM

Springsteen gives energetic show

By DAVE DIMARTINO
State News Reviewer

People who were expecting miracles Sunday night didn't get them: Bruce Springsteen didn't change the future of rock and roll. He didn't even come close.

But who needs miracles? Springsteen and his E-Street Band, during their commendably long 2½-hour set, started somewhat shakily, but rapidly picked up sufficient steam to provide a high-class display of some very intelligent and very enjoyable rock and roll.

An act as obviously overhyped as Springsteen's is treading in perilous waters in live performance, because audiences tend to come expecting the best—and usually there is no room for anything else. Performances not quite up to snuff become "bad" or "disappointing" simply because, as in Springsteen's case, rock's Messiah may not have lived up to his press clippings.

Luckily, Springsteen's performance in the MSU Auditorium served only to reinforce his reputation. No matter how much one might disapprove of the Springsteen media blitz, few people can disregard the performer's impact in a live setting. Even the duller moments of the "Born to Run" LP came across fresh and infinitely more appealing live, due to the E-Street Band's musical muscle replacing the occasionally slipshod "Born to Run" production.

Springsteen performs with youthful vigor that is extremely contagious. His apparent excitement on the stage, coupled with his antics with the visually captivating saxophonist Clarence Clemons, greatly increases the audience's own enthusiasm and makes for a consistently enjoyable concert atmosphere.

Most of what was performed Sunday night came from Springsteen's "Born to Run"

LP, with the "Asbury Park" album generating a surprising number of selections. Ironically, Springsteen's best album, "The Wild, the Innocent, and the E-Street Shuffle," was virtually ignored in concert though "Rosalita" finally managed to make its inevitable appearance near the end of the night. Considering how long Springsteen must have been performing the latter material—certainly for at least three years—his avoidance of it was understandable.

When in Ann Arbor last year Springsteen paid homage to old rock and roll in an unusual manner, picking and choosing various favorites and performing them—Manfred Mann at, at the time had "Sha La La" and "Pretty Flamingo" covered, and "Rosalita" followed a short prelude of Jay and the American's "Come a Little Bit Closer," as opposed to Sunday night's clever Mexican hat dance routine.

Thus Springsteen's covering the Animals' "It's My Life" was especially interesting Sunday night, particularly with Springsteen himself, the Time Newsweek kid, uttering the opening lines: "It's a hard world/To get a break in..." His two separate encores of an old Eddie Floyd number and a Mitch Ryder medley were very well chosen, displaying Springsteen's voice in classic rock and roll form.

Witnessing Bruce Springsteen live made one very important fact clear: Springsteen is as dependent upon his band as they are upon him. Saxophonist Clemons plays fine rock and roll and straight R&B; pianist Roy Bittan is a highly capable musician, and above all, new drummer Max Weinberg held everything together with some truly superb power-drumming. More than anything else, the concert Sunday night was a lot of fun. As long as Springsteen enjoys his performing, he will remain an enjoyable performer. The fact that he is willing to play 2½-hour sets for a simple Midwestern college is in itself a good sign. Springsteen does not play to impress people; he plays to have a good time.

Sunday night, everybody—Springsteen, his E-Street Band and the entire audience—had a very good time. Publicity overdoes notwithstanding, this Bruce Springsteen character must know his stuff.

Bruce Springsteen, the much-hyped rock-and-roll media-blitz "superstar," performed commendably Sunday night in the University Auditorium.

"More than anything else, the concert Sunday night was a lot of fun. As long as Springsteen enjoys his performing he will remain an enjoyable performer. The fact that he is willing to play 2½-hour sets for a simple Midwestern college is in itself a good sign."

Springsteen must be credited for actually being a good performer. Since he has received such incredible hype in the media, one is surprised that he has some authentic talent and appeal. How much better off he would be if he had not been branded "The Future of Rock and Roll."

Director's Choice selection offers films by Jean Renoir

By JEROME MCGUIRE
State News Reviewer

"I now have a better understanding of the relationship between the filmmaker and the viewer. The latter is grateful to the former for having shown him that the stairway in his house may lead to the castle of Sleeping Beauty."

The author of those lines, Jean Renoir, is the featured artist in the Director's Choice Film Series this spring. The films begin today with "Boudu Saved From Drowning," and will finish with "French Can-Can" on May 10. The films are shown in Fairchild Theatre at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Series tickets are $5. Individual tickets may be bought for $1.25 individually.

Jean Renoir is the son of the magnificent "Impressionist" painter August Renoir. To grow up basking in the light of his father's sun-dappled, glowing colored works must have been an almost overwhelming artistic influence on the young Jean. Another favorite pastime of the young Renoir was the Puppet Theater.

But Jean Renoir was so very much more than an imitator of a great painter infatuated with French puppet theater. He took his artistic legacy and rose in the growing new art of film to become the director who, in the words of one critic, "painted pictures upon the screen."

However grand this may sound, Renoir more or less stumbled onto his passion for film. His first career was that of a potter. But his wife was often mistaken for an American movie star on the streets of Paris, a result of their mutual regard for American film.

"I must insist on the fact that I set foot in the world of cinema only in order to make my wife a star, intending once this was done to return to my pottery studio. I did not foresee that once I had been caught up in the machinery I should never be able to escape," he once said.

Renoir's films center around the "struggle between interior reality (studio) and exterior reality or nature."

The commonplace world is transformed to magic through the use of Renoir's camera. Renoir is aware that the camera distorts the world it describes, but, having acknowledged this, he turns it to his advantage.

To accomplish these esoteric-sounding goals, Renoir made improvisation of the filming an integral part of his work. He called his style "realistic imagination." He transforms everyday vision. He can transform yours.

The Renoir films shown this term begin with "Boudu Saved From Drowning" (1932), with a superb acting performance by Michel Simon and "A Day in the Country" (1936), both on April 6.

"Grand Illusion" (1937) will be shown on April 12. "Grand Illusion" is a masterful study about French officers in a German prison camp in World War I, done in a world of tension before World War II.

"La Bete Humaine" (1939) will screen on April 28. The title translates to "The Human Beast," and takes in the classic themes of murder and lust. An improved novel.

"The Rules Of The Game" (1939), playing on May 4, will highlight Renoir himself in a main acting role. It is a portrait of anxiety in the pre-war period under the guise of a love story. It was unpopular in its time but a classic in ours.

"The Southerners" (1945), on May 7, is Renoir's first major American work and opens up new themes and horizons for Renoir. His use of on-scene outdoor shots changed Hollywood.

"French Can-Can" (1954) is the final Director's Choice Renoir film and will screen May 10. This is a celebration of life, the wild world of the glorious obscenity.

Guest Italian artists to visit MSU tonight

An evening devoted entirely to the music of Mozart and featuring the MSU Chamber Orchestra and Italian guest musicians will be presented at 8:15 tonight in Kellogg Center Auditorium. Admission is free.

The concert will be conducted by Franco Gulli, frequent jury member of international music competitions.

Gulli will also be the soloist in a performance of the "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra No. 4 in D Major." His wife Enrica Cavallo will be the pianist for "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 23 in A Major."

The program also includes Mozart's "Symphony No. 25 in G Minor."

Appearing together as guest artists since 1947, Gulli and Cavallo now divide their time between international engagements and teaching at the Indiana University School of Music. In 1968 their recording of Mendelssohn's "Concerto in D Minor" and "Sonata in F Major" won the Recording Critics Prize.

Gulli has taught classes at Lucerne's Conservatory of Music and master classes at the Accademia Chigiana in Siena, Italy. Cavallo, a soloist with many European orchestras, is a former professor of piano at Italy's Milan Conservatory.

Vocal Arts Ensemble premieres new work

The New Vocal Arts Ensemble will present the world premiere of a new work Friday night at Abrams Planetarium. The work is "Rings" by Kenneth Gaburo, a leading contemporary American composer. The work was commissioned by MSU as part of the Bicentennial observation.

"Rings" is based on two texts, a poem written by a woman in 1776 and a poem written in 1970 in the "beat" style. The piece is a multimedia presentation, involving the use of a 16-voice chorus, tape, movie, slides and lighting effects.

Gaburo is visiting MSU this week. He will appear at a news conference at 1 p.m. today in the Music Practice Building. He will be featured at an open discussion Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the parlor of People's Church in East Lansing. Gaburo will meet with various groups during the week.

There will be two performances of "Rings," at 8 p.m. and at 10 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who won Wisconsin's Democratic presidential primary four years ago, added his support to the candidacy of Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz. Appearing at Monday's rally with McGovern was Madison's mayor, Paul Soglin.

Candidates set for Wis. primary

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

Three Democratic candidates, in the final countdown to another primary day, spent Monday trying to paylay their pre-election predictions into postelection claims of success whatever the actual results.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., was in New York, where he has predicted victory as part of his strategy to sweep the Northeast industrial states. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz. and Jimmy Carter of Georgia did their last-minute campaigning in Wisconsin, scene of Tuesday's other primary.

Both Udall and Carter say they will win in Wisconsin and polls there indicate a close race between the two, with the former Georgia governor holding a slight lead in the latest. Carter has said that if he wins in Wisconsin and finishes a strong second in New York, he could be unbeatable.

Udall, who has not yet won a primary, needs a victory in Wisconsin and a good showing in New York to begin overtaking the early momentum Carter built by winning five of the first six Democratic contests.

Ronald Reagan, meanwhile, began a tour of Texas as part of his Sun Belt strategy to wrest the Republican nomination from President Ford.

Reagan, winner in North Carolina two weeks ago, did not campaign in Wisconsin, depending instead on the nationwide address he made last Wednesday. Aides say they do not expect him to defeat the President there. Ford campaigned in Wisconsin over the weekend and has predicted victory.

Jackson has been aiming for New York since before the Feb. 24 New Hampshire primary, which was the first stop on the nationwide caravan that will end June 8 in California, Ohio and New Jersey. Jackson has received considerable support from labor, from regular Democratic leaders and from Jewish groups who favor his stands on the Mideast and Soviet treatment of Jews.

The Washington senator first predicted a landslide, but later modified that to say he would win more than half the 274 delegates at stake. The modification came after the state legislature approved a law allowing the names of the candidates to appear on the ballot with the delegates pledged to them.

However, Donald Manes, president of the New York City borough of Queens and the senator's New York campaign manager, now downgrades that from 35 to 40 per cent and said the earlier figures were used to "rally the troops."

An additional factor is some uncommitted slates in upstate New York, the strongest in the Buffalo area backed by Erie County chairman Joseph Crangle. They are believed leaning toward Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who is not a candidate.

Udall has been helped in New York by the withdrawal of Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh, many of whose delegates have now switched to the Arizona congressman and given him a boost with New York City's numerous liberals. Udall, who originally had slates in 21 of the 39 Congressional districts, now has 37 and says he will give Jackson "a run for his money" in the state.

Carter has been touring the state denouncing the primary system and the fact that there is no statewide popular vote as such. He claimed that his polls showed him leading by a 2-1 margin in selected upstate regions and running even with Jackson in the New York metropolitan area.

There are 274 delegates at stake in New York, making it the second largest delegation at next July's Democratic National Convention. Some 206 will be selected by the voters and the other 68 assigned at a state convention in proportion to the vote accumulated by each candidate.

In most of New York, an uncommitted slate believed leaning to Ford is uncontested on the Republican ballot. The are Reagan slates in some districts, but the former California governor's name is not on the ballot because the law on the applies only to the Democrats.

Some 117 Republican delegates will be selected Tuesday. An additional 37 at-large delegates, all of them uncommitted, have already been picked.

Wisconsin's primary is traditional in form. There will be a statewide popular vote and the 68 Democratic delegates will be apportioned according to the popular vote. There are 45 delegates at stake in the Republican contest.

Reagan's trip to Texas is part of the former California governor's version of Richard Nixon's 1968 southern strategy attempt to win the GOP nomination by picking up delegates in the south and southwest. That area presents a solid conservative base. Reagan had in the North. He has lost one southern state, Florida, to Ford, and has another, North Carolina.

Project Seafarer's fate a complicated legal decision

Critics of the project immediately pounced upon these findings, demanding that the project be scrapped. The Navy, however, said that the examinations did not at all indicate that Seafarer had caused the increased blood fat levels. It said that all five who had exhibited the imbalance previously had suffered from medical problems which are often associated with excesses of triglycerine. The Navy also cited that the examinations were not valid since they were not conducted under controlled circumstances, and thus could not conclusively prove that Seafarer actually provoked the imbalance.

Content with the thoroughness of its testing, the Navy dismantled the Clam Lake facility and in March, 1975 wrote the governors of both Michigan and Wisconsin asking if they would want it to send a survey team to study the possibility of constructing a permanent system in their respective states. If neither of the states would indicate to the Navy that it was willing to further consider the issue, Seafarer would be automatically relegated to the less favorable, but already available, Southwest sites.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey refused the Navy further access to his state and Michigan's Gov. Milliken indicated that he would further study the system before issuing an invitation for a Navy survey. Milliken established a 9-member task force composed of scientists and environmentalists to review Seafarer and then issue their recommendation to him concerning whether or not the Navy should be allowed to conduct a preliminary environmental study of the U.P. as a possible Seafarer site. After reviewing the many previous studies made by the Navy, available records and all possible ramifications of the project, the task force submitted a report dated Aug. 11, 1975, stating that "a majority of task force members" recommend that an invitation be submitted to the Navy. Of the nine members of the task force, two had dissented from the majority decision, arguing that once the Navy study was approved, it would be virtually impossible to stop Seafarer's construction in the U.P. Virginia Prentice, one of the dissenting task force members representing the conservation-minded Sierra Club, explained her objection to a Navy invitation in a letter to Miliken by likening it to "the camel's nose in the tent." She went on to say that once given access to the U.P., she was not sure that the Navy would ever deactivate the program.

Despite the two dissenting votes, Milliken adhered to the majority recommendation and in September 1975 officially invited the Navy to conduct an Environmental Impact Study (EIS).

From there the fate of Project Seafarer in the U.P. will be determined according to state statutes.

The completed EIS, along with the approximately 50 other Navy experiments related to Seafarer, will be sent to the National Academy of Sciences for review and validation to insure that it has been conducted properly. Then a special Michigan Environmental Review Board panel consisting of 17 members from the major environmental and scientific organizations of the state will evaluate all available data.

With the panel's recommendation in hand, Milliken, who has been given ultimate veto power over the project, will then have a number of options to take in settling the issue. He can either call for a general state election on Seafarer, authorize a referendum only in the local U.P. regions affected by it, or if it is not brought up in an initiative, he could decide the issue alone. Whatever option he chooses to take, the Seafarer question looms as one of the most important issues facing the state.

Ballot proposals approved

"I think the referendum proves that the State News has a very small following of supporters," he said. "I'm not in favor of killing the State News. I think the tax should be maintained."

Lenz said he thought the students would vote to take away the $1 fee unless the paper made some changes. "If they want to win the referendum, they will have to improve their reporting to some degree and their editorial to a great degree," he explained. "I'll vote for it, but I think it will lose."

Stebbins said he hoped the students' approval of a smoking ban would boost other anti-smoking movements.

Stebbins commented that since the ban was approved by 79 per cent of those who voted the board was not likely to turn it down.

A third proposal approved by students involved amending Article III, Part 1, Section 4A of the ASMSU Constitution involving the All-University Student Judiciary.

The approved amendment would allow a period of time during which new members might observe open hearings and participate with outgoing members in orientations and training.

SWU voting increase noted

time off their jobs, with pay, in order to vote.

Keith Groty, asst. vice president of labor and industrial relations, said he could not order all administrators to permit students to vote while on the job but said he allowed it upon the discretion of the management.

"The work force must be directed at a unit level. So, keeping in mind the job that has to be done, the individual administrator can let a person off work, if he wants to. The administrator cannot pick them (employees) on how they'll vote," Groty said.

In other union news, SWU said it prepared and sent over spring break three mailings to all 7,000 or so student employees, as well as an additional mailing to about 1,500 or 2,000 workers who had originally signed cards indicating their interest in an authorized election.

In addition to personal donations, the UAW Communication Action Program in Lansing contributed $100 to the unionization effort. Earlier last year Council 11 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees donated $150 to SWU for postage, paper and printing costs for its six mailings. Council 11 has also provided SWU with its printing facilities.

Not to be forgotten, the group of SWU opponents, Students for Factual Information Concerning SWU, is on the scene again. Phil Lang, the group's organizer, and his group have been distributing one-page leaflets explaining their anti-union sentiments.

Lang said he funded the printing and paper cost through a "personal donation."
