

EPA recalls defective cars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A recall of 138,000 Volkswagen Rabbits and Scirocos with exhaust control device problems has been announced by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Involved are 1975 models and some early 1976 models. EPA said Volkswagen took the action voluntarily and is notifying the affected owners by letter that they may bring the cars into dealers to have repairs made free of charge.

There are two problems: the first involves overheating of the catalytic converter — the device designed to filter harmful gases out of the exhaust. And the second is the escape of gasoline fumes from the fuel tank, caused by expansion of the tank itself, particularly during high-altitude use.

Family hour arguments heard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television networks adopted a restrictive "family viewing time" policy under unprecedented and illegal pressure from the Federal Communications Commission, a federal judge was told Tuesday.

Ronald Olson, chief counsel for Hollywood writers, actors and directors guilds, said as a nonjury trial opened in U.S. District Court that the FCC's intrusion into television programming constituted government censorship.

The plaintiffs contend that family viewing time, which requires that two hours each night be set aside for TV programming suitable for children, is a violation of the First Amendment.

Their suit, filed last October, seeks an injunction preventing the three television networks from pursuing the family hour.

Two officials to be investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., on Tuesday urged the suspension of Dr. Malcolm R. Currie as the Pentagon's director of defense research and engineering pending an investigation of conflict of interest allegations.

In a letter to Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld, Eagleton referred to a New York Times story of April 5 that Currie recommended production of the Condor missile for the Navy despite test results questioning the missile's reliability.

It was reported that the recommendation of the Condor, made by Rockwell International Corp., followed a fishing vacation at a resort maintained by Rockwell on Bimini Island in the Bahamas.

Meanwhile, the Justice Dept. is being asked to investigate Civil Service Commission charges that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's brother-in-law received his government job through preferential treatment.

Magna Carta pick-up final

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It took a lecture on courtesy and a warning that the Senate was looking foolish, but Congress finally agreed in a resolution Monday, to send a 25-member delegation to London to pick up the Magna Carta for display during the Bicentennial.

The British had offered to lend one of the four remaining originals of the Magna Carta, considered the blueprint of constitutional government, to the United States and invited a delegation of 25 House and Senate members to take part in a ceremony turning it over.

Firms quietly taken off blacklist

CAIRO (AP) — The Arab Economic Boycott of Israel has removed 43 firms from its blacklist but has decided not to release the names of the American companies exempted, "to protect them from Zionist pressures," boycott chief Mohammed Magoub said Tuesday.

Those firms removed from the blacklist during a 10-day semiannual meeting attended by the 20 Arab League states in Alexandria last week included American, British, French, Japanese, Cypriot, Maltese, Italian, Swiss, Danish, Indian and Nationalist Chinese companies and their 128 branches, the boycott secretary-general said.

Magoub said the conference adopted several recommendations "tightening economic pressure on Israel through more severe blacklist regulations," but refused to elaborate. He said the recommendations will be sent to the Arab countries "for action."

Fighting disturbs neutral site

BEIRUT (AP) — Fighting broke out Tuesday around a palatial villa designated as the site for a special session of parliament aimed at ending Lebanon's civil war, now almost a year old.

Witnesses reported heavy machine-gun fire between Christian and Moslem militiamen and explosions near the Villa Esseily only hours after it was announced parliament would meet there Saturday.

The supposed neutrality of the mansion site, near the only crossing point between Moslem and Christian sections of Beirut, had made it acceptable to both leftist Moslem and right-wing Christian party chiefs.

The regular parliament building in downtown Beirut has been plundered by looters and is under sniper fire from militia front lines.

Students protest American aid

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — About 2,000 young Greek Cypriots attacked the U.S. Embassy with rocks and burning sticks Tuesday to protest the resumption of American military aid to Turkey.

The crowd, mostly students, carried banners and signs such as "Henry Kissinger murderer" and "American-Turkish agreement, gangster collusion."

Copies of a resolution were handed out denouncing a recent agreement under which the United States would give $1 billion in military aid to Turkey over four years in return for access to electronic spy bases that monitor the Soviet Union and resumption of U.S. privileges at more than a score of bases on Turkish soil.

Italian cabinet threatened

ROME (AP) — Socialists threatened Tuesday to topple the fragile 55-day-old Christian-Democrat cabinet over the explosive issue of abortion and possibly pave the way for a Communist role in governing Italy.

The United States has consistently opposed any such role for the Communists because of Italy's strategic position in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Some U.S. officials hinted that there would be economic reprisals if the Communists are let into the government.

The Socialists, the third largest party, have the power to bring down the government and force a general election.

Calling for an immediate meeting with Christian Democrat leaders, the Socialists said the only alternative to early elections would be a national emergency government with a policy-making role for the Communists.

Premier Aldo Moro, a Christian Democrat, has been operating with a minority government only by the good will of the Socialists, who left the ruling coalition but have abstained on votes of confidence.

That benign attitude is now threatened by the dispute over abortion.

The Christian Democrats, spurred by the Vatican, joined the right-wing Italian Social Movement party last week to pass an amendment restricting abortions to rape and therapeutic cases.

Abortions are illegal in Italy under a 1930 Fascist law. The Vatican recently called abortion "a regression to barbarity."

The pressures on the Moro government were compounded by scheduled negotiations Wednesday between the government and three big unions. The country is in the grip of a monetary crisis and rising labor unrest typified by a series of scattered strikes Tuesday.

Lori Fortuna, Socialist leader of the pro-abortion movement in the House of Deputies, said parliament should be disbanded by April 21-22 and new general elections held before the end of June.

"To prolong the agony of this legislature means to let problems rot," he said. "In any case, the grave measures that a serious government must adopt cannot be decided in a confused climate."

Early elections would have to be called by President Giovanni Leone, but he would have little other choice if the government falls.

The Communists favor a free abortion policy, but they have moved cautiously so as not to jeopardize chances for a "historical compromise" that would give them a share of power in the government for the first time since shortly after World War II.

In nationwide regional elections last June, the Communists polled 33 per cent of the vote, just two percentage points behind the Christian Democrats.

Tuesday was also a day of strikes across the nation and social unrest in Naples as millions of metal and chemical workers staged a four-hour strike for higher wages, shutting down the giant Fiat auto plant in Turin and other major plants struggling to recover production.

In Rome and other cities, airport personnel seeking better working conditions hampered national and international air travel.

And in Naples, where unemployment is well over 10 per cent, the city's Socialist-Communist administration decided to hire about 2,000 jobless as street cleaners and office aides as over 1,000 unemployed continued a two-day occupation of the local employment office.

Naples' Communist mayor, Maurizio Valenzi, sent a message to Moro describing the situation in the city as "explosive."

Strike leaders revive threats

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Leaders of striking city employees Tuesday revived threats of trying to shut down the city of 877,000 as commuters struggled in to work because of the crippled public transit system and a separate strike involving a taxi company.

Municipal strike leaders said AFL-CIO chiefs planned this morning to support a general strike that could virtually cut off access to the city by closing San Francisco International Airport, the Golden Gate Bridge and Bay Bridge.

The executive committee of the San Francisco Labor Council unanimously approved a motion pledging escalation, cooperation and information toward the goal of "complete strike against the city and county of San Francisco."

The National Broadcasting Co., meanwhile, barred its downtown Monday to striking network technicians and newsmen personnel until they sign a contract.

The AFL-CIO National Assn. of Broadcast Employees and Technicians had announced its 1,700 members would walk out the job in six cities early Thursday would return to work today, but NBC rejected the proposal.

In San Francisco, crafts union leaders halted talks with city negotiator late Monday night after the board of supervisors rejected terms for a settlement and called for labor's "bottom line offer."

Union leaders warned they would not "be backed into a corner" and renewed threats to shut down San Francisco International Airport.

An estimated 13,000 elementary school students were unable to attend classes Monday when pickets prevented most of the 180 city school buses from rolling.

FOOD STAMPS FOR CASH MAY BE DROPPED

Tentative compromise reached

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee chairman has reached a tentative compromise with supporters of free food stamps that would authorize a $20 million plan to try eliminating cash purchase of stamps in selected areas of the nation, aides said Tuesday.

The money would be used to administer a pilot program to eliminate cash requirements for coupons in counties selected by the Agriculture Dept., the aides said. Under the compromise, the aides said, the department would determine the number of counties involved.

The government's $6 billion food stamp program, run by the Agriculture Dept., helps feed 19 million persons.

Under the present food-stamp program, an eligible four-person family with net income of $250 a month would pay $71 in cash to get $71 worth of stamps — plus an additional $95 worth of bonus stamps from the government.

Eliminating the purchase requirement would mean this family could receive the bonus stamps without having to put up any cash.

The aides said the compromise was reached between Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., and Sens. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and George McGovern, D-S.D., as the Senate resumed debate on the committee's bill to overhaul the department's food stamp program.

However, there was no indication that such key senators as Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and James B. Allen, D-Ala., who are even more opposed to free stamps than Talmadge, would agree to the compromise.

Under the tentative compromise, the price of food-stamp coupons would be 25 per cent of net income, the aides said. That compares to 27.5 per cent in the committee bill and a range of up to 30 per cent under the present food-stamp program.

The aides said that, in return for the lower price and the pilot program, Dole and McGovern agreed to abandon their drive to allow all eligible applicants to receive food stamps without paying for them.

Initial attempts by Curtis to sharply restrict food stamp eligibility were rebuffed by the Senate on Monday. But he had at least 13 other amendments ready to curb the program, which he contends has gotten out of hand.

The Curtis amendments that failed would have denied food stamps to strikers or those who refused to work at struck plants, and would have required applicants to figure their income on the past 90 days. That would have limited low-income workers' access to stamps.

Curtis also lost his bid to impose tighter limits on assets of food stamp recipients. Agriculture Dept. officials said Curtis' limits would have forced most elderly recipients out of the program.

Under the current program persons receiving food stamps must pay up to 24 per cent of their income for stamps a month. Under the bill submitted to the Senate, all recipients would pay 27.5 per cent.

The major issue separating conservatives and liberals overhauling the program is the question of whether recipients should continue to pay a share of food stamps' cost, which is expected to reach $6.3 billion fiscal 1977.

Modification

made in bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief sponsors of a bill making large changes in the criminal code have agreed to drop limited restoration of the death penalty in a move to save the measure, it was learned Tuesday.

Sens. John J. McClellan, D-Ark., and Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., also have told a trio of liberal critics on the Judiciary Committee they are willing to leave laws against espionage and disclosing classified information in their present form.

In addition, McClellan and Hruska, in negotiations with Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.,

there was a three-way tie for

Woody Hayes, MSU's CDC

the leaders in last year's con-

"A lot of people used the lake said.

Each of the three winners

Westlake said they are plan-

Candidates for the title have

Defect proves costly

A very generous vending machine gave away its contents and subsequently caused the arrest of two MSU students Monday night in Shaw Hall.

The two students were arrested at about 11:30 Monday night for taking $11.90 worth of candy, crackers, cookies and potato chips from the willing machine.

Police said that whenever the students put a coin in the machine it would give them their item and would also return the coin.
The same coin was used over and over to acquire the snacks.

The two students were filling a bag with the vending machine goods when a DPS officer arrived, police said.
It is not known whether the students stopped their collection ing enough to consume any of their munchies. The vending machine has been put on probation.

Detroit Teamsters cease wildcat strike

DETROIT (UPI) — Hundreds of unhappy Teamster members, faced with a federal court order and possible firings, decided Tuesday to return to work and end their wildcat picketing of area trucking terminals.

Unlike the stormy meeting of more than 3,000 Local 299 members a day earlier, a quiet meeting at local headquarters ended with an agreement by dissidents to stop their strike.

Union leaders also agreed to side with any member fired for wildcat picketing in defiance of the national union.

"Once we convinced them we were behind them," local spokesman Earl Grayhek said,
"they decided to go back to work. They agreed that the proper way to handle the whole contract thing is to vote on it."

Grayhek said more experienced union members apparently reconsidered their statements made Tuesday calling for a continued strike and ousting of local union officials.

"I don't know how people think some times," Grayhek said. "Maybe a few just wanted a day off. But they gave it a thought and wanted to get back in line."

Gene Davis, a local truck company steward and a spokesman for the dissidents, said a careful explanation of the new contract was enough for him to urge others to return to work.

"It was a real good meeting, just as Monday was a real bad meeting," Davis said. "Nobody knew anything about the contract proposal. That's why there was all the chaos at Cobo Hall."

"But today the leadership answered all our questions about the contract and we're happy with it. Everybody's rolling again."

Concerns over security were prompted by the firing of two union officials at a local truck terminal Tuesday. Local union leaders got the members re-hired, and Local President David Johnson said the union would resist any other attempts to have truckers fired for illegal striking.

State jobless figures dropped last month

DETROIT (UPI) — The Michigan Employment Security Commission said today unemployment in the state dropped almost a half of a per cent in March to 11.3 per cent.

Commission Director S.
Martin Taylor said the continued downward trend, reported also in the Detroit area, was the result of a broad based recovery in all sectors of Michigan's economy.

In March 3.4 million had jobs in the state, an increase of 28,300 over February. In metropolitan Detroit, employment rose 13,000 for the month to 1.6 million.

He also said the number of Michigan residents without jobs during March dipped to 434,400, compared to 450,100 in February.

A year ago, in the depth of the recession, the state was saddled with a 14.2 per cent unemployment rate, while Detroit's figure was 15 per cent.

FREE MSU IMMUNIZATION CLINIC

The MSU Immunization Clinic has been operating for the past five years. It began and has continued under the direction of Dr. Normal McCoullough. The clinic is operated by MSU medical students under the supervision of MSU faculty and in cooperation with Ingham County Health Department.

The clinic is open the SECOND SATURDAY of EVERY MONTH. The clinic operates year round and is the only clinic in this area which is open on Saturday. This is most helpful for working parents. It is open from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M. For 1976 the dates will be as follows:

- CLINIC SCHEDULE ●
- APRIL 10 ● MAY 8 ● JUNE 12
- JULY 10 ● AUGUST 14

The clinic is held in the basement of the Church of God in Christ on the corner of Logan and St. Joseph Streets.

All materials are provided to the clinic by the Ingham County Health Department at no expense to the clinic. The following immunizations are given: DPT (Diphtheria, Tetanus, and Whooping Cough); Sabin (Oral Polio); Combined Measles, Rubella or Rubella; Adult Tetanus; and Mantoux TB Skin Tests. Smallpox and Mumps vaccines are not given.

Screening for hypertension (high blood pressure) is also available.

Contact the College of Human Medicine — Office of Student Affairs (353-7140) and ask for the clinic coordinator. Usually a note will be left and your call returned promptly. The co-ordinators for 1975-1976 are David L. Greene, Greg Kroll, Doug Richardson and Denny Yamamoto.

Sane development needs land-use bill

The fate of the controversial land-use bill will be determined Thursday by members of the House Appropriations Committee in a vote that should prove to be uncomfortably close.

The bill calls for the creation of a nine-man state commission responsible for formulating a land-use plan and submitting it to the governor and legislature for approval.

The purpose and advantage of this statewide plan seems clear to us.

It would allow for the implementation of a unified and centralized state land-use program which would facilitate efficient and rational land development throughout the state.

A concerted effort by the state to design a broad and farsighted plan for the maximum utilization of its valuable and essential geographic areas has long been an unattended need.

Too much good land has already been abused — destroyed in some cases — by the blind vision and reckless pace of urban and industrial development.

Thus, we deem the land-use proposal a wise and worthwhile attempt to bring a sense of unity to the haphazard and disjointed planning that has often characterized both private and public policy in land development.

The remonstrances of most critics to the bill have focused on the contention that the land-use commission will exercise broad and unrestrained power in violating the property rights of citizens.

We emphasize that the commission will possess no such power, but will serve only as an instrumental body in formulating the land use plan. Interim controls over land development will be given to the commission only in those areas in which the state currently withholds control, such as utility construction projects and all projects by state agencies.

The land-use plan itself will not take away the land ownership rights of others, but will serve only as a recommendation to private property owners on how they can best develop their land.

Cries of protest calling the bill "a totalitarian fascist scheme" and the doom of local government control are wholly unfounded. The land-use bill sets no drastic precedent in big government usurpation of individual rights; it is simply an attempt at the state level to bring some unity and foresight to an area badly in need of centralized government planning.

ASMSU court suit still looking away

The big news out of ASMSU these days is that the State News is taking the case to court over the refund of one-dollar fee.

In fact, it is the only big news to come out of ASMSU all year.

ASMSU this year could just as well have had a written policy stipulating that whenever a student issue presented itself, student government should look the other way or back the administration. It is possible, for that has been the net — indeed, the gross effect of ASMSU's contribution to the betterment of student life.

ASMSU could have taken the University to court on behalf of students on any number of issues: residence hall tripling, resident assistants, residency guidelines, academic freedom.

Not once, though, did it even make a move, much for student advocacy.

Now, however, ASMSU has decided that the money is there to finance a grudge against J. B. Raymond — a grudge against the State News.

Student sentiment on the State News fee has already been sought by way of referendum. There is not a sane reason in the world why ASMSU should now allow itself this needless extravagance.

Vote 'yes' today

Today in the south lobby of Bessey Hall, students will have their final chance to vote on the Student Workers Union. The polls are open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. SWU would be a boon to student workers at MSU, but regardless of how you feel, make sure your vote is counted and your voice heard on this crucial student issue.

The postal mangling machine

WASHINGTON — Postal officials have admitted that they now have machinery that can destroy packages in minutes. This is the latest breakthrough in postal equipment that has made the U.S. Postal Service system the most modern in the world. The Soviets, the French, the English and the Chinese have yet to develop machinery that can shred, tear and crush parcel post in such a short span of time.

The inventor of the machinery is Rexrode Monica, who had been working on the project for years — first in his basement, then in his living room and finally in his garage when his wife kicked him out of the house.

Rexrode is very angry that in all the news stories about crushed mail packages he has never gotten any credit. "If it weren't for me," he said, "the post office would still be back in the stagecoach era and packages would be arriving in the same form they were sent."

"When did you get the idea to develop a machine that could actually mangle packages while they were being processed?" I asked him.

"It must have been 10 years ago. I ordered a vibrator from a mail-order house and when it arrived it was in perfect condition. The string was straight, the brown paper wrapping was unmarked and the stamps were all in place. I was carrying it into the kitchen when I dropped it from a height of about three feet. When I picked it up again I noticed one end of the box was crushed. It suddenly occurred to me that if I could invent a machine that could crush packages like that, the post office would buy it in a minute."

"Most great inventions come about by accident," I said.

"I had this friend, Dr. Watson, who was an engineer and had done research in garbage compactors," Monica continued. "He said he would be happy to work on it with me. He thought the garbage compactor would not be acceptable to the post office because the price of one for crushing mail would be too costly. He figured the answer was a conveyor belt that could jam up the packages as they moved along so they could destroy each other. Actually, we got the idea from the airlines that have been doing the same thing to luggage for years."

"So you designed a conveyor belt that could jam packages as it moved along?"

"That was the idea, but we discovered too many packages were getting through undamaged. The problem was the packages were being placed on the conveyor belt by hand. The employees, for some reason, weren't lining them up tight enough to be jammed up somewhere along the way. I then got a brainstorm after driving by a junked automobile lot. I noticed a crane lifting a stripped-down automobile to a height of 30 feet and then dropping it with a thud. I immediately went home and designed a crane that could take a mailbox full of packages, lift it 30 feet and dump it on the conveyor belt so the packages would all be jumbled up."

Monica continued, "We built a prototype in the garage. When it was finished Watson operated the crane in one room and I waited in the next room at the end of the conveyor.

We had filled the mailbox with all kinds of packages, but to make sure the thing would work, we wrapped and tied them down strong, as well as Scotch taping them both ends. Watson and I both tried to get them open by hand but found it impossible to make a dent in any of them. We put them in the mailbox and hoisted the bag off the ground. Then I went into the other room and pushed a button to start the machine. I heard a terrific series of crashes and then sounds of paper tearing, strapping and boxes being mangled. In the minutes bits and pieces of the packages badly damaged they were hardly recognizable, started appearing at my end of the conveyor belt. Everyone had laughed at but we did it. We perfected the postal package mangling machine for the United States Postal Service."

"Wow, that must have been a moment," I said. "What did you say?"

"Dr. Watson, come here, I need you."

On gays

I want to respond to the letter on homosexuality by Keith Smith printed in Monday's State News. Smith says "granted, heterosexual couples engage in intercourse for nonprocreative purposes, but then they are participating in an act that was intended naturally."

Then he goes on to talk about how "unnatural" gay sex acts are. The thing that he ignores is that the sentence I just quoted is the essence of the whole debate.

Human beings do not engage in sexual relationships only for procreation; or for "relief" as Smith would lead us to think. And comparisons of human sexuality with that of dogs and cats is irrelevant. People are animals which have evolved to such a high level that we have very complex emotional makeup. Unlike other animals, sex for humans most often occurs because we want to express positive feelings of love toward the woman or man who is most appealing.

Just why it is that some people are gay when most are heterosexual is the $64,000 question. To answer it you would have to know what constitutes human nature and maybe even the meaning of life itself. These are questions that theologians, philosophers and scientists have pondered for ages.

In everyday terms: there is nothing "natural" about the heterosexual practice of having a woman take a pill which alters the very chemical processes of her body to prevent conception; there's nothing "natural" about eating food that has been treated with artificial flavorings, preservatives and additives; there is nothing natural about wearing clothes of man-made polyester.

Every day everybody does things that can be labeled "unnatural." So if you want to call homosexuality "unnatural" go right ahead, bearing in mind that something which is "unnatural" isn't inherently bad.

Work study

I have just about given up with MSU's bureaucratic and biased practices.

You see, I happen to be in financial limbo, that is, my father makes enough money to make me ineligible for financial aid, thus making it virtually impossible for me to find a part-time job.

I thought that having Tuesdays and Thursdays free would enable me to find a job without too much trouble, but alas, I can't find a job because I'm not on work study.

I'm not opposed to financial aid. I am opposed to having the majority of jobs on campus being given only to work study students. I also am opposed to having out-of-state students on work study. I feel that these jobs should be given to students who are residents of Michigan.

Hey MSU! If you're so eager to help the needy, how about giving me a part-time job.

Food co-op

Just to set the record straight...

I'm grateful for the support the State News gave us in Monday's issue. The East Lansing Food Co-op will be a successful enterprise, and it has already gotten the support of over 1,000 people in the area.

The proposed food co-op is a dream held by at least two or three dozen people that have worked on it. Monday's State News implies that it's a project of the Co-op Office in Student Services Building, where I work.

It's true that we're the collecting point for signed petitions and co-op memberships, but the effort to start the food co-op is broad-based, encompassing University students, faculty, families in the community and residents of married student housing. One of our incorporators is an MSU professor emeritus; one of our petitioners is Rep. Bob Carr. It's more than just the "Co-op Office" starting this co-op.

A second clarification: the food co-op will not "be a part of the Independent Purchasing Assn." any more than the 18 houses (frats and co-ops) that buy from IPA are "a part of it." Rather, the co-op will buy from IPA, like the other houses; we'll also be buying from the Michigan Federation of Food Co-ops (based in Ann Arbor) and from as many local farmers as we can contact and contract with.

Thanks for a good article — we're grateful for the support of the State News. Any readers interested in signing the petition or joining the food co-op are welcome to visit the Co-op Office — or see any of the other neighborhood petitioners. If you're interested in helping start the co-op, come to the open meeting Wednesday night at Howland Co-op, 323 Ann Street, at 7:30.

Thanks again for your support and interest.

More on gays

In reply to Keith Smith's letter which appeared in the State News April 5, I would like to point out a few facts.

The Virginia statute which was upheld by last week's Supreme Court decision applies equally to nonprocreative sexual activities between married heterosexuals. Smith's assumption seems to be that the law is directed against "unnatural" homosexual acts, when in fact it applies to everyone's sexual freedom.

Furthermore, in the philosophical hierarchy of natural law, masturbation is a more grievous sin than homosexual activity, so Smith's mention of "relief by masturbation" is not suitable in the context of his argument. Any Catholic or Orthodox priest will verify that homosexual acts between loving partners are considered less serious in the confessional than the solitary, selfish act of masturbation.

The real issue, in any case, is not whether nonprocreative acts are "natural" in some nebulous, philosophical sense, but rather the question of the state's right to legislate such morality. Repeated studies, such as Britain's Wolfenden Report, have shown that consensual sex acts between adults in private are not harmful to society and therefore should not be subject to legal restriction.

Smith is welcome to his own opinion in such matters, but he is not entitled to enforce it by law upon those who disagree with him.

William Bryant

Two comments regarding your editorials of April 2:

First, Michigan already has a modified caucus primary, as you advocate. The Democrats' national rules specify that their national delegates must be elected by Democrats only, so they have adopted a closed-caucus system open only to Democratic party members. Republican delegates are elected in open competition, presumably starting at the precinct level with the presidential primary on May 18.

Second, your editorial on the defeat of House Bill 5627, which would have liberalized Michigan marijuana laws, included no mention of the man who introduced and fought for the bill in the House: Republican Floor Leader William Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe.

More than anyone else, Rep. Bryant has put his career on the line by advocating and promoting a drastic lessening of penalties of marijuana possession or use. This is hardly a vote-getting position in Grosse Pointe.

I think it's only fair that, when the issue is discussed in public by those who presumably share his views, Bryant receive credit for providing the opportunity for that discussion.

Still more...

I would like to respond to the letter by Keith Smith about homosexuality (April 5).

What scares me about his letter most is his blatant fear of homosexuality but his reactionary authoritarian stand on a private and intimate matter. Smith states, "Homosexuality is NOT normal. ...In homosexual couples the single type of organ present was not designed to be self-compatible. Period. This cannot be refuted."

I cannot believe that this type of statement was made in all earnestness! Smith kidding us? Does he really believe he knows what is absolutely natural and what is not? Apparently he thinks he does.

The point that we should all be aware of is that whether homosexuality is a preference or not and regardless of whether someone "thinks" it is natural or not, I everyone else in this country) ought to be the right to be intimately involved in privacy of my home with any consenting adult I please!

Smith's comments are on a parallel Nazi Germany when they attempted to regulate every aspect of private morality with an overall sociological belief of superiority. His letter stinks of totalitarian and fascist attitudes. Who does he think is, and why does the Supreme Court think has a right as the state to attempt regulation of the most intimate details of one's private life?

I fear Smith's disgusting attitudes are only an example or a glimpse of the more towards the right that is going on in this country! Obviously this is a move triggered by ignorance and fear. Smith states, "I don't know about relief from masturbation." I would like to inform him that one time masturbation was considered of the foulest crimes against nature. Out objective reality, Smith, and then inside yourself and see what's going on!

People are afraid of homosexuality because it threatens the deep underlying sexist hierarchic structure of this society that unfortunately we have all been taught is "normal."

Abandoned lakeside park scheduled for renovation

By JONI CIPRIANO

The wind whistling through the deserted carousel building is the only sound that breaks the silence at what used to be known as Lake Lansing Amusement Park.

The site was not always so quiet. For over 50 years the park offered a pleasant diversion for Lansing residents. Originally a spiritualist camp, the land was bought by the Michigan United Railways at the turn of the century and turned into an amusement park. The main attractions were a 65-foot roller coaster which reached speeds of 75 m.p.h. and a huge carousel brought to the park in 1942 from the Exposition Amusement Park in Illinois.

That merry-go-round is now operating at Cedar Point in Ohio and the roller coaster is long gone. The abandoned structure that once held the carousel and an old concrete track formerly used for racing are all that remain of the park. Two years of abandonment has found the park reaching stages of decay. Silence reigns supreme.

However, the silence will soon be invaded by children's laughter, according to Ingham County Parks Superintendent Robert Moore.

"We plan on turning Lake Lansing Park into a county park facility by this summer," Moore said.

There will be no rides as there were in the past. Instead, the new park will be directed toward family fun and environmental conservation.

In addition to a beach with picnic areas, a mini-race track for children and a multi-purpose building, the 30-acre park will contain a marsh left in its natural state. Boardwalks will run through the marsh for bird-watching.

Richard Sode, Ingham County Drain Commissioner and chairman of the Lake Lansing Board, believes the new park will help to alleviate the lack of recreational facilities in the tri-county area.

"This park will have a very positive effect on the community," Sode said. "The tri-county area is hurting for recreational facilities and Lake Lansing is the only lake of its size within a 30-mile radius. Many people cannot afford the luxury of their own cottage and this park might provide an alternative escape for them."

A beach with a beach-house and picnic areas will probably be the main attraction of the remodeled park, according to Moore.

"There are only two natural beaches in Ingham County and both are packed in the summertime," Moore said. "This new beach will certainly be welcome!"

The old 12-sided carousel building, which now stands empty, will find a new use rather than be torn down. Park planner Lance Wice said the building will either be turned into a community center or be used as a multi-purpose structure for interested groups in the community.

The Meridian Township Historical Society has also shown an interest in building a historical display inside the structure.

The concrete track which runs through the area will also be left intact to be used as a mini-race track for small children. Tricycles will be available for use on the 10-foot-wide track which is over 2,000 feet in length.

Though much remains to be done, park planners are confident that the park will be ready for use by early summer.

"About two-thirds of our time is spent in leisure time," Moore said, "and it is the responsibility of the parks and recreation department to provide a healthy outlet for this leisure time."

Group aims to rejuvenate lake

By LAURIE SCATTERDAY
State News Staff Writer

"Jaws" in Lake Lansing? Hundreds may well be screaming "shark" if the mechanical shark from "Jaws" visits Lake Lansing this summer along with author Peter Benchley.

Presently residing in its man-made lake at Universal Studios, the mechanical shark may become one of the community events planned to raise money for restoring Lake Lansing.

More than 50 years ago Lake Lansing was the hot spot for summer fun in the central Michigan area. It may be again with the help of People United for Lake Lansing (PULL).

Lake Lansing has been dying. Weeds and cattails have emerged several feet above the surface of the lake where bathers once filled the beach and boat enthusiasts enjoyed the 452 acres of the lake's surface area.

Boaters are aggravated by weeds clogging props and centerboards. Fish are dying off from a reduced oxygen level. Many are afraid to bathe, though man-made pollution has come to a halt.

PULL is a nonprofit organization seeking funds through a series of communitywide events to restore the lake's health and bring it back to life.

Ingham County Drain Commissioner Richard L. Sode came up with the idea of PULL, which will be based on public participation and will provide a local match of available federal monies for the $1.6 million clean-up project.

"This is an organization with just one goal," Sode said, "to save Lake Lansing by getting the people involved who care." Some $800,000 will most likely be contributed by the federal government. This would require an equal amount of local matching funds.

Ingham County will provide $400,000 from existing funds as its share of the local match, while the remainder must come from assessments, millage requests or other sources.

It is the final $400,000 that PULL is working to achieve.

PULL is made up of nine area civic leaders serving with Sode on the board of directors. Membership in PULL is open to all citizens.

"All we ask is a minimum contribution of one dollar," Secretary-Treasurer Ed Eustace said.

PULL will also be raising funds through a series of outdoor celebrations such as the "Jaws" idea. The first of these events will be a Spring Bluegrass Festival to be held at the Ingham County Fairgrounds in Mason on May 16 from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Lester Flatt and Nashville Grass, together with 16 of the top bluegrass bands in the Midwest, will be competing for cash awards and trophies.

Sode said the type of outdoor events planned are those "that bring thousands of people together and create a real sense of community."

Sode is looking for great support from students on the MSU campus for the upcoming festival.

"If I have to run shuttle buses from MSU out to the fairgrounds, I'll do it," Sode emphasized.

A giant Bicentennial fireworks display for July 4 is in the planning stage as well as a possible Cyprus Gardens water sports show. Another fundraising event under consideration, one sure to encourage many women citizens, is an appearance by Robert Redford, who is an environmentalist as well as an actor.

State Rep. David Hollister, D-Lansing, was attracted to the concept of PULL because of its unique quality.

"As far as I know, there's not another project like it in the country," Hollister said.

At the April 6 news conference in the Olds Plaza building now is to get a membership money rolling.

Remember we're talking about saving 452 acres of lake ourselves and for posterity. There's not another public lake of that size within miles of Lansing," he said.

Grand River Avenue crowds experienced a bit of ancient music Tuesday when Paul Gifford and William White played 100 to 600 year old dulcimers that they made themselves.

Redwood, mahogany, walnut and ebony were combined to construct these antique-looking instruments.

"These are two of the biggest dulcimers in the country," said White while he continued to hammer out an old tune played by a flute player during the American Revolution.

The two musicians use bamboo strips with pig skin ends to strike the brass piano wire strings.

Gifford and White are old high school chums who have been playing together for years. When they are short of cash, they get together and play on street corners, fairs and anywhere else that their music may bring profit.

"We have earned as much as $100 during an eight hour day of playing," White said.

MSU ORDINANCE VIOLATION CITED Commission rejects election case

By MICKI MAYNARD
State News Staff Writer
The case of Elliot Nadel v. Counterforce, which contested the results of the ASMSU elections, was ruled invalid by the ASMSU Elections Commission Monday night after a hearing marked by disputes over procedure.

Nadel, a candidate for the College of Business board seat, had challenged the Counterforce slate on what he said were violations of MSU ordinance 31.00.

Ordinance 31.00 states in part that "it shall be unlawful for any person to attach any sign or poster to any University property other than a bulletin board."

Nadel explained that he filed his appeal because of the number of Counterforce posters he had seen posted illegally in buildings on campus.

"I saw them in at least 10 to 12 buildings," he said. "There is too much to believe that it wasn't deliberate by Counterforce—that it was not intended from the start."

Nadel said he felt the posters definitely influenced some students' votes.

"People could have avoided seeing the posters on bulletin boards, but when they're right on the door, they're hard to miss," he said.

However, during the hearing, which began 50 minutes late, Mark Grebner, the head counsel and organizer of the Counterforce slate, asked the commission to rule as to what authority Nadel had to challenge a slate.

"There's no precedent on the books," he declared.

Elections Commissioner Paula Davidson said the commission had decided to hear the case against the slate.

"There's nothing that says we can't hear this appeal," she said.

Barry Griffiths, the second counselor for Counterforce, replied that, according to the ASMSU Election Code, individuals could only challenge other individual candidates.

"Your honor, we believe he doesn't have any standing for this," Griffiths said to Davidson.

Nadel interjected that at the time he filed his appeal, he decided not to file it against individual Counterforce members because of the large number of people involved.

Grebner replied that this still did not give Nadel the power to challenge the whole slate.

"As for the code implying that the election commission can hear this case, it's utterly insane," Grebner said. "Mr. Nadel's challenge is completely invalid."

After that contention, Davidson adjourned the commission to consider Grebner's point. After a five-minute recess, commission members Ross Holland, Mike Tescoma and Davidson returned to the board room. Commissioner Steve Politowicz was absent.

Davidson said she agreed with Grebner's point, and ruled that Nadel's appeal was invalid. She said he would have 72 hours, or until 5 p.m. Thursday, to file a new appeal.

Nadel said he planned on filing his appeal today, after consulting with Davidson on certain questions he had. His action will be heard by the commission next Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in 328A Student Services Bldg.

His appeal is one of several scheduled for that night. Among these are the appeals of Wendy Bush, winner in the College of Business, and Kathy Wright, winner in the University College, by the commission on the grounds that the two women turned in late financial statements.

Another appeal to be heard Tuesday night is Bradley Ert's appeal of Tim Hagel, the winner in the College of Communication Arts race.

Eft is appealing Hagel over a banner Hagel's Better Way slate hung from the fifth floor windows of Wilson Hall. Eft said this was a violation of ordinance 31.00.

Help with tax returns available

By KARLA VALLANCE
State News Staff Writer
Tax returns are more complex this year than ever, and the deadline of April 15 is rapidly approaching. If you don't feel up to figuring the forms out by yourself, there are places that will help you prepare your tax return without adding to what you owe Uncle Sam.

According to income tax preparation industry estimates, over half the people who filed returns last year used professional help of some sort.

Besides all the commercial firms, accountants and lawyers eager to help you figure out your taxes, there are at least two places in the Lansing area where you can get free tax help and advice.

One is the MSU Volunteer Income Tax Service and the other is the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) itself.

The MSU Volunteer Income Tax Service is designed to help low-income families and students in preparing their income tax returns, but anybody can take advantage of the service.

According to Dale Honeck, this year's coordinator of the five-year-old program, there will be four centers where volunteers will be stationed: The Student Services Building, the Cristo Rey Community Center (in the heart of the Spanish district of Lansing), LeJohn Center (near the Capitol building) and West Junior High School.

From now until April 15 the centers will be open four nights a week, Monday through Thursday, from 6 to 9 p.m. The centers at the Student Services Building and LeJohn Community Center will also be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

Volunteers are given brief training by an IRS agent, mostly about the basic 1040A short form. More complicated questions are referred to the

MSU alumnus selected as director of foundation, development fund

By CAROL KLOSE
State News Staff Writer
Richard H. Jury, former program and member relations director for the National Assn. of Manufacturers (NAM), has been named director of corporate relations for the MSU Foundation and MSU Development Fund.

Jury, 31, will be responsible for soliciting contributions for MSU from corporations and coordinating the needs of the University with the interests of the business community.

NAM, where Jury was employed for two years, is a national professional organization representing the interests of small businesses. It was founded in the early 1900s and has a history of anti-union sentiment. The association was one of the prime supporters of the Taft-Hartley Act, which restricts the power of unions.

Charles Larowe, professor of economics, confirmed that NAM holds an anti-union stance but praised Jury's appointment.

"If anything, his past association with NAM would probably be beneficial to us,"

Larowe said. "All those contacts he has made would be beneficial to the University."

Larowe went on to describe Jury as hardworking and possessing a good personality.

"He has racked up a good reputation as a salesman," Larowe said. "This will be pretty much the same kind of job."

"Anyone who objects to his appointment on the basis of his association with NAM is carrying their own ideological conceptions pretty far. We don't commit ourselves to the ideology of NAM by appointing a former representative."

John Henderson, professor of economics, said that NAM had a formula for breaking unions in the 1930s known as the Mohawk Valley Formula.

"They have always taken an anti-union stand," he said. But Henderson felt that Jury's appointment was a sound one.

"If you're going to get money from business, you might as well hire a businessman," he said.

"I'm sure there are professors on campus who are to the right of NAM," he added. "It (NAM) is not like the John Birch Society."

Arthur Loub, director of development for the MSU Foundation and Development Fund said that Jury was the leading representative for NAM.

"He's been selling NAM," he said. "Now we want him to sell MSU."

"We have to increase our corporate financing to the University. What better person is qualified to do this than someone who understands corporations and can get to the decision makers."

Jury graduated from MSU in 1968 with a B.A. in social science. He was employed by Pitney-Bowes, U.S. Steel and the Toldeo Metal Furniture Co. before working for NAM.

SWU voting turnout good; workers driven to polls

Support for SWU was granted by a unanimous vote of those Democrats who attended a county committee meeting last Thursday. The resolution had the support of several county commissioners as well as East Lansing Mayor George Griff-fiths; Rep. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing; State Senator Earl Nelson, D-East Lansing, and East Lansing City Councilmen John Czarnecki and Larry Owen.

The mailing apologized for requesting financial support for the union during an election year but stressed the importance of the unionization attempt, saying it would be the nation's first campuswide student union and would thus "set the tone" for other schools.

Help available for tax return preparation

The IRS had more than 34 inquiries from American taxpayers last year, according to Bob Kobel of the IRS Detroit Public Affairs Office. Besides the walk-in office, located in the Federal Building in downtown Lansing, the IRS has a toll-free telephone number (1-800-394-1550) at the Grand Rapids office to handle questions and problems.

The IRS provides a variety of services, including computing tax liability and income credit, preparing 1040s and 1040As and reviewing completed returns. But they emphasize answering questions so that people can learn to do the job themselves.

There is always the option of going to a commercial firm, but be prepared to pay about $10 at the bare minimum for the services.

According to Ralph Nader's Tax Reform Research Group, there is more than a 50 per cent chance of getting incorrect advice from the IRS office, and private companies are no better. Remember -- the IRS will hold you responsible for the accuracy of your return.

Sens. agree to modify bill

James Abourezk, D-S.D., offered to eliminate or modify other controversial parts of the legislation.

But McCallan and Hruska have rejected some revisions demanded by the critics, who have not yet responded to a letter from the sponsors sent on March 28. The critics set forth modifications they wanted in the proposed code changes March 5.

State leaders of both parties have urged conservatives to liberalize the bill but also urged repeal of Smith Act provisions making it a crime to advocate violent overthrow of government.

Without an early agreement, it appears there is no chance of passage of the bill -- the subject of a decade of study and hearings -- in this Congress.

McCallan and Hruska not only agreed to drop the death penalty and government secrets parts of the bill but also agreed to repeal of Smith Act provisions making it a crime to advocate violent overthrow of government.

Court decisions have restricted application of the Smith Act, and in effect that there must be intent to lawless conduct, not merely abstract advocacy of the overthrow or destruction of the government.

Seafarer reports inaccurate

... 50 tests which it has conducted concerning the mat-
... As Karn was quick to say,
... far the tests have "not linked
... deleterious effects directly ... Seafarer." The Navy further
... says that it feels all its tests
... are properly conducted and is ... confident that the National Academy of Sciences — which is reviewing the tests — will find them all scientifically valid.

One point that the Navy seemingly failed to bring up, but which was voiced by Lawrence Von Tersch, the dean of the MSU Engineering Dept. and a member of a task force advising Gov. Milliken on the project, is that the electromagnetic field produced by Seafarer would be virtually identical to those produced by conventional power lines.

"For 100 years we've been living under electric power lines and there have been no apparent effects," he said. "The Seafarer current, as far as I can tell, is much the same (as those of power lines) with about the same electromagnetic field produced. Conventional power lines run on a 60 cycle current and Seafarer would run on a current much similar, between 45 and 90 cycles."

Von Tersch further said that he thought the entire controversy surrounding Seafarer was simply the result of a "bad PR job" on the part of the Navy. He also said that, in his opinion, Seafarer was an important project because "nothing is as useful in war, and more so in peace, than an efficient communication system."

As for the protest which has been heaped on the project because it might make the U.P. a potential nuclear target, the Navy responds to it as irrational. Citing information provided by the Nuclear Civil Defense Program, an organization which plans precautionary measures against possible nuclear attacks, the Navy says that because of the enormous number of military installations already present in the U.P. — the region is surrounded on all sides by scattered bases — it is already a probable target in the event of enemy attack. The Navy also contends that if the system is attacked by conventional weapons (non-nuclear), no harm will come to the surrounding residents since the system will "not be located in a residential area."
According to Karns, the Navy feels that it has been totally cooperative in informing the people of the state about the system, in spite of residents' complaints to the contrary.

In late 1975, a major furor broke out concerning Seafarer because of a statement made by Karns to a reporter as to whether Gov. Milliken would, in fact, have ultimate veto power over the project as previously promised by the Navy. According to Karns, he said that really Congress would have ultimate authority over the project since it would appropriate all funds necessary to the system's implementation. It was what he left unsaid, but what he thought the reporter would automatically take into consideration — the fact that Congress could only appropriate funds to Seafarer if it was approved by Milliken — which provoked the controversy.

Immediately, all major newspapers in the state ran stories that "Milliken may not have ultimate authority over the project" and allegations were made by the major anti-Seafarer groups that the Navy was deceiving the people.
"It was from inaccuracies such as this," explained Karns,
"that the whole problem surrounding Seafarer first started."
To the Navy the enormous opposition to what they contend is a necessary program is simply a matter of prejudicial feelings against any military spending — and a penchant by the press to sensationalize the news.
Summing up the entire controversy as the Navy sees it, Karns said: "It's amazing what people will do to create a sensational headline."

Revised amendment offered

... statement that an "emergency" housing situation exists
... East Lansing and the fact
... of an anti-discrimination
... measure was included. A city
... amendment cannot
... more than one concern.
... Proponents of this year's ... control version contend
... an emergency exists be... cause there is only a 1.7 per ... cent vacancy rate in the hous... ing market while a three per cent vacancy rate is termed critical by the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development and makes a community ineligible for state and federal rent subsidy assistance, Schaefer said.

The anti-discrimination part was deemed unnecessary when a state law was enacted in July prohibiting discrimination in rental units.
Schaefer said that students do not usually have high-paying jobs and may be forced to spend a larger portion of their incomes for rent because of this, but he said that a high percentage of off-campus students are independent of parental support and are regarded as regular renters.

Despite the compromises on the interest allowance and deduction of certain housing categories, Schaefer denied that the new proposal version is weaker than Proposal B was.

"Even if a part is declared unconstitutional, there is a severability clause stating that the rest of the amendment will still hold," Schaefer said.
He added that groups opposed to rent control will inevitably spring up like last year's confrontation by CBH,

the East Lansing Landlord Assn. and the Greater Lansing Board of Realtors.
A massive advertising campaign, using a Detroit ad agency that prepared anti-rent control information for numerous other cities, was mounted by area landlords, Schaefer said.

Bibbs looks to hurdles for high Big Ten finish

By GREG SCHREINER
State News Sports Writer

Spartan hopes for a first division finish in the Big Ten outdoor track season lie, according to head coach James Bibbs, in the intermediate hurdles.

"That's definitely our strong area," Bibbs said.

Tim Klein, Chris Cassleman, Todd Murphy and Howard Neely compose the Spartans' forces in the hurdles.

"We've also got Paul Zolynsky back for the hurdles," Bibbs continued. "Paul didn't get his eligibility for the indoor season so he didn't really get a chance to work out. We won't know how much of an added help he'll be to us."

Klein, a sophomore, took a second place in last year's Big Ten championships in the 440-yard event with a time of :51.8. Cassleman's best in the 440 hurdles is :51.9. He took third in the Big Ten finals last spring.

Murphy is one of five seniors and 14 lettermen who will be returning to the MSU ranks. His best time in the 120-yard hurdles is :14.4. Neely took fifth in the conference finals last year in the 440-yard hurdles with a time of :53.8 and last summer took the title in that event in the National AAU Junior championships with a meet record clocking of :51.2.

Bibbs defines the trackers' goal this season as bettering their seventh-place finish on the indoor season. In order to do this, Bibbs is looking for improved performances from Jeff Pullen, Fred Teddy, Steve Young and Charles Byrd.

Pullen is a sophomore who lettered in his freshman year. He is a distance runner whose best time in the three-mile outdoors is 14:34.4.

Speaking of the three-mile brings to mind MSU standout Herb Lindsay. Lindsay was runner-up in last season's cross-country conference meet and finished 12th in the NCAA championships. In the outdoor track season, he took third in 1975 with a time of 13:55.3.

Byrd is a junior who has been used primarily in the 440-yard dash and in the relay units. He ran the second leg of last year's fourth-place MSU mile relay squad in the 1975 conference meet.

The main weakness of the Spartan track team is a lack of depth in field events. In fact, one of the few standouts from the indoor season is freshman high jumper Dan King, who bettered his own personal mark during the winter term.

The Spartans found themselves in much the same position at the beginning of last year's outdoor season. MSU had finished a dismal eighth in the Big Ten indoor meet, but then bounced back in the spring to capture a third place in the conference.

The spring season opens April 16 at the Ohio State Relays in Columbus, Ohio, followed by the Drake Relays on the 23rd in Des Moines, Iowa. Then it will be back to East Lansing for a pair of dual meets. Notre Dame invades MSU on May 1, with Central Michigan coming in on May 8. The Big Ten meet in Champaign, Ill., is scheduled for May 14 with the NCAA meet set for June 3 in Philadelphia.

Reservations are now being accepted in 201 Men's I.M. Bldg. for pre-season softball scrimmages. Sign-ups will be taken today and Thursday.

Important manager's meeting for all teams interested in playing softball will be held at 6:30 tonight. Each league must send a representative to the sports arena of the Men's I.M. Building if it did not participate in Tuesday's meeting. Deadline for entry is Thursday at 8 p.m.

Leagues will be available for fraternity, residence hall, independent A (competitive) and independent B (recreational) teams. All teams will have to remit a $10 entry fee.

All entries for the women's racquetball ladder tournament must be turned in to 201 Men's IM Bldg. by 8 p.m. on Friday.

Schedules will be available for women's bloopers at 5 p.m. and one-pitch softball at noon on Friday in 121 Women's I.M. Bldg.

It's time to 'play ball!'

By EDWARD L. RONDERS
State News Sports Writer

This is the week Americans can forget agents, arbitration, and player strikes and turn their attention to pennant races, managerial firings and doubleheaders.

The Detroit Tigers open their search for respectability when they invade Cleveland Saturday, while the MSU squad travels to Eastern Michigan on Friday for a twinbill.

Not only does the opening of the campaign for both the major leagues and collegiate teams coincide time wise, but a closer overall relationship seems to be developing between the two.

Spartan coach Danny Litwhiler explained this occurrence by noting, "Since the mid-1960s the pro leagues have given more attention to colleges as a source of talent."

He explained that this is the result of several factors, including expansion, inflation and the emergence of the players' union.

Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell, commenting from the Bengals' spring base in Florida, echoed Litwhiler's sentiment, saying, "Colleges are becoming a more important source of talent for the majors. Of course, we still obtain the majority of our players directly from high school."

Campbell noted that Detroit has followed the lead of other clubs in reducing the number of minor league affiliates. "In the past 10 to 15 years we've cut our minor league clubs from 10 to four, which is now about average. So, you can see we're paying more attention to collegiate baseball," Campbell said.

With the national pastime scheduled to expand next winter, the need for players will increase. Litwhiler foresees a possible partial solution to what may become a shortage of talent.

"I feel there's a possibility for collegiate summer leagues," the Spartan skipper said. "It could be done. For example, we could eliminate our spring trip and use that money towards an expanded schedule in the summer. Let's face it," he continued, "we have a good-sized enrollment at MSU during summer term. What types of entertainment are available for those students and faculty members?"

"Plus, a lot of students leave for the summer, thus creating job openings for the players who aren't on scholarship," Litwhiler said.

He added that such a league exists in North Carolina. Walter Raab, baseball coach at the University of North Carolina, explained how that summer program works. "We have six college teams competing. We're in our sixth year and it's been a success. We've received no financial support from the major leagues, yet our program has been successful because of the community support we've received," Raab said.

Raab concluded that baseball's financial crunch has left a void in the North Carolina area. "Ten or 15 years ago there were 39 minor league teams in the state. Now, there are only two."

Campbell added that in 1960 John Fetzer, Tiger owner, offered to establish a scholarship program for colleges and universities in the State of Michigan. "We wanted to give the money directly to the school's athletic department for the upgrading of baseball. Mr. Fetzer insisted there would be strings attached. But the NCAA ruled against it, saying it smacked too much of professionalism."

ROGERS, HEATHCOTE DUE AT MSU SOON

New coaches anxious to start

By MIKE JENKINS
State News Sports Writer

And on the fifth day, Joe Kearney said, "Let there be coaches." And there were coaches. But nobody knew them from Adam.

While a lot of names were tossed around by the media, MSU's new athletic director caught everybody by surprise Monday when he named San Jose State's Darryl Rogers and the University of Montana's Jud Heathcote as the Spartans' new football and basketball coaches, respectively.

Rogers, a 40-year-old former professional football player with the Los Angeles Rams and Denver Broncos from 1958-60, played wide receiver and defensive back during his college days at Fresno State University. His credits include head coaching positions at Hayward State and Fresno State.

Last year, Rogers led his San Jose Spartans (that's right, sports fans, the Spartans) to a 9-2 record, defeating Oregon, New Mexico and San Diego State and coming up three points shy, 27-24, of beating California.

"Basically, what I did was pick the best of the applicants regardless of from where they came," Kearney said. "Mr. Rogers was no stranger to me. It was a very tight race, if you want to call it that, and it took a great deal of consideration."

Kearney added that Rogers may have had a slight edge because he went through this same selection process last year at Washington State when he narrowed his choices down to Don James and Rogers.

Rogers

"This was just like when I named Don James out at Washington," Kearney said. "Every one out there said, 'Don who? Kent what?' But it was a matter of getting the best man for the job."

Kearney said that the probation matter didn't seem to have that great of an effect on the number of applicants.

"I would estimate we had about 50 apply for the head football job and 30 apply for the basketball position. I think it is a tribute to MSU that we had as many fine candidates as we did," Kearney said.

"Rogers is a very good coach who is well respected by his players," Ernie Ribera, a Pacific, Calif., grad student at MSU, said. "His team beat two out of three of the Pac-8 teams it played this year and only lost to California because it was without its top receiver."

Rogers reportedly turned down jobs offers from Tulane, Oregon State and Southern Methodist and several other schools but said that MSU was just too good to pass up.

"Michigan State offers an opportunity and a challenge that any coach looks forward to meeting," Rogers said.

He added that it was an offer that, "in good conscience, I could not reject."

Heathcote, a 48-year-old, 25-year veteran basketball mentor, comes to MSU after leading Montana to the Big Sky Conference Championship with a 21-8 mark last year. He holds a 78-53 won-loss mark for his five years at the school.

An assistant coach of the 1975 American basketball team in the Pan American game, Heathcote was praised Monday by Kearney.

Kearney described coach Heathcote as an extremely well-disciplined coach, a sound basketball tactician and an excellent recruiter. In fact, Kearney was not sure that Heathcote would tear himself away from his recruiting to come to East Lansing for an interview.

"Coach Heathcote expressed to me that he wanted to get right on the road, get some people and get recruiting," Kearney said. "I have the feeling that when he makes an assessment of the situation he is going to pick recruiting over an interview with the press right now."

Hired for four years at $25,000 a year, Heathcote is married. He and wife, Carla, have a son and two daughters.

New football coach Rogers will reportedly be given a five-year $34,500 a year contract, $6,000 more than Denny Stolz, the man he will replace. Rogers said that the salary isn't a nickel more than San Jose paid him.

Rogers is married and he and wife Marsha have three daughters. Contacted at their home in California, Marsha Rogers was excited about the upcoming move.

"My husband's really looking forward to it. We all are," she said.

"Does it snow much there? It does? Well, maybe I'm not that excited then!" she laughed. "It'll be a real experience."

Named the CCAA, Northern California and American Football Coaches Assn. District 9 Coach of the Year, Rogers began his coaching career in 1961 as defensive backfield coach at Fresno City College.

He is known for a wide-open brand of offensive football, featuring an aggressive passing game and a tough defense. His team last year was rated sixth in the nation in rushing defense.

One football magazine commented last fall that "Rogers has the reputation for getting a lot out of his material."

Heathcote, whose team participated in the NCAA tournament last year and lost to eventual NCAA champion UCLA by three points, began his coaching career at West Valley High School in 1950, was appointed assistant coach at Washington State in 1964 and moved to the head coaching job at Montana in 1971.

Formal approval of the two coaches is expected to take place at the next meeting of the MSU Board of Trustees on April 16. Both men have been unofficially confirmed by board in a telephone poll.

"I couldn't be more pleased having acquired for Michigan State both coaches Rogers and Heathcote," Kearney said.

Heathcote

Rogers is scheduled to be introduced to the Michigan media at a press conference 10:30 a.m. on Thursday in the Kellogg Center and Heathcote is tentatively scheduled for press introduction on Monday.

Club Sports

The MSU bowling team captured first place in the eleven-team Michigan Intercollegiate Bowling League, finishing up with a 631 won-loss record.

MSU was in first place from the beginning to the end of league play and holds a five-man 930 team average (186 per man). The win enhances the Spartans' chances of a Nationals bid in Oklahoma City.

Eastern Michigan University finished second in the league with a 60-20 mark.

In action at the National AAU Tae Kwon Do Championships in Kansas City, Mo., four MSU Karate Club members took medals. Susan Catallo took two medals — a bronze in advanced women's fighting and a silver in the national championship women's heavyweight. Jeanne Kropp won a silver medal in the women's championship flyweight and Jean Nelson took the gold in the flyweight division. Les Richardson won a gold medal in the men's brown belt division. Nelson's gold medal nominated her for an all-American award.

Bullard will try to stall freon bill

By ED LION
State News Staff Writer
Supporters of a Michigan bill that would ban the sale of aerosol spray cans containing fluorocarbon (freon) will attempt to postpone its vote on the House floor, said Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, prime sponsor of the bill. Bullard called the move a "tactical necessity."

Originally introduced in 1975, the bill is scheduled to go before the House on Thursday for a general vote. Bullard said he and other supporters will attempt to delay the vote because at this time he feels that it does "not have enough support" to be passed.

The legislature is considering the sales ban on freon-containing spray cans because some scientists have found that freon, when released in the air, tends to deplete the ozone layer in the upper atmosphere. The ozone layer blocks harmful ultra-violet rays from reaching the earth. These rays have been found to produce skin cancer, genetic mutations, and other harmful biological aberrations in the life forms.

Currently freon is used in aerosol spray cans as a propellant and is also found in refrigerator systems and other industrial solvents and chemicals.

About 20 other states have considered passing legislation which in some way would limit either the manufacture or sale of freon-containing spray cans. Of these, only two — Oregon and New York — have actually passed bans, and only after protracted legislative battles.

Throughout the nation, industrial firms have waged lobbying campaigns against the ban, claiming that scientists are exaggerating freon's harmful effects on the ozone layer. Last year the DuPont Corp. sent a number of representatives from Delaware to Michigan for 10 days to speak out against the bill.

The Michigan State Chamber of Commerce (MSCC) also points out that its studies indicate a ban on freon could have adverse "implications on business."

Bullard feels that the bill will only have a chance when more scientific information from the National Academy of Science verifies freon's role in the depletion of the ozone layer. Past atmospheric tests conducted by a number of other scientific institutes — among them, the University of Michigan, Harvard University and the University of California — have all indicated that freon does break down the ozone layer.

The NAS data was scheduled to be released sometime later this month, but recently the academy announced that the data will be available only in the beginning of May at the earliest.

Ralph Cicerone, a U. of M. freon researcher, says the NAS may have delayed the release of its data to spite the news media, which had leaked the results of the testing.

Cicerone also voiced disapproval of how the state legislature had operated in considering the bill. He had been called in to testify at four committee hearings about the bill and from this experience he said that the legislature was a "hokey operation," that was run very inefficiently.

According to Cicerone's research, freon at high elevation will release chlorine molecules which eat away at the ozone layer. He said that one freon molecule will release 1,000 chlorine molecules. He feels that these results are substantial enough to merit a temporary ban, pending at least the release of additional data.

"We're taking a risk for products that we don't need," he said. "It would be better to stop using deodorants and mints than to unleash irreversible damage on the environment."

Brown Bag aids older women

By PATRICIA LA CROIX
State News Staff Writer

For 20 years, you have washed dishes, put kids to bed and cooked meals. What else is there?

As evidenced by an increase in female adult education, women are realizing that the life they have lived only for their husbands is not always enough to satisfy their desires and are demanding something more, though many do not know what or where that elusive "more" is hiding.

Joanne Horn Ritke, coordinator of the Women's Resource Center, said that the Brown Bag program is designed to reach the women returning to school and answer any questions that they might have concerning their new role in society.

"I am referring to the women that are returning to campus after years of homemaking to seek a career or more education," Ritke said. "These people have different needs from the majority of the female students here."

Meetings are held every Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m. in 6 Student Services Bldg. and often include guest speakers to answer questions on specific issues such as the women's role, legal rights, sexism or career development.

Ritke said that the specific issues that women returning to school are especially concerned about include the sense of isolation felt by many. "When you are 40 and surrounded by 19 and 20-year-olds, you are bound to feel alone," she said.

Another problem experienced by the women is the fear of actually succeeding in the business world. Though women of all ages feel this anxiety at one time or another, Ritke said that older women are especially conscious of the pressure placed on them.

One last problem mentioned by Ritke are the feelings of guilt felt by women returning to the educational scene.

"Women often feel that they are robbing their husbands and children of time that they should be devoting to them. The question arises whether they can work and still treat their families fairly," she said.

Ritke said that women returning to school go into a variety of areas of study, including traditional subjects such as social work and education along with more unusual things such as landscape architecture.

The weekly meetings are attended by varying numbers of women, Ritke said.

"Since we have no money to advertise, many women don't know the service exists," she said.

Council establishes advisory committee

In a brief meeting Tuesday afternoon, the Academic Council voted in a new Advisory/Consultative Committee to the dean of International Studies and Programs, using its power to establish advisory committees for the first time since the new bylaws for Academic Governance were established last May.

The Advisory/Consultative Committee for International Studies will replace the soon-to-be phased-out University Committee on International Projects which feels like a "lame duck," said Gerald Miller, chairperson of the University Committee on Academic Governance, who presented the proposal to the council.

The new committee, which will have expanded responsibilities, will give faculty and students participation in the policy-making of the Office of International Programs.

cerning MSU and international projects, including the recruitment of MSU faculty and staff for the projects and the academic propriety of both present and proposed projects.

The committee will include two undergraduate students, two graduate students and 18 faculty members.

The proposal for the committee passed with only one simple amendment, made by Barrie Thorne, asst. professor of sociology. Thorne asked that the word "chairman" be replaced by "chairperson" and requested that "chairperson" become standard in University terminology.

"There's been constant concern over the years over how (international) projects relate to our academic program," Lawrence M. Sommers, professor of geography, said.

The committee will be accountable to the Academic Council and will advise the dean of International Studies and Programs on all matters concerning MSU and international projects.

Whartons' lives eventful, happy

If Capital City Airport is where you most often see President and Mrs. Wharton, don't be surprised. It may be where they most often see each other.

In this week's edition of Newsweek magazine, the Whartons are portrayed as "flying" executives. In fact the magazine refers to them as "the high-wire champions of civic and corporate life."

Newsweek reports that between them, the Whartons sit on the board of directors of more than 20 companies, foundations and other institutions, as well as devoting time to his position as MSU president and hers as an art historian.

Mrs. Wharton reportedly turned down two invitations for board membership of major companies this year and her husband has refused "more than a dozen."

Wharton told Newsweek that despite the need for careful scheduling, his corporate work takes only a "small percent" of his time.

The University president also told the magazine that MSU actually benefits from his involvement in major companies, since he donated all of the $100,000 he received in director's fees during the last three years to MSU.

Both the Whartons profess to be perfectly happy with their busy schedules, but they did concede that they do not always get to spend much time together. "Sometimes we meet in airports," Mrs. Wharton said.
